A WOW of a POW WOW!

That's the promise extended to all who attend Kewaskum Pow Wow day at West Bend Country club Thursday, July 26. Pow Wow day is the counterpart of Bender day held in previous years and all men in this area, both golfers and non-golfers, are cordially invited to attend. Starter Ted Schmidt expects 40 twosomes to tee off.

The fun-packed program gets underway at 8:00 a. m. and will continue throughout the day and evening. Golfing, entertainment, prizes, refreshments and an excellent luncheon and dinner are a part of the program.

Several surprises are in store for participants. These include a Wampum award and a mysterious special award. The nature of these is a closely guarded secret known only to the Chief Medicine Man, Paul Landmann, who is general chairman of the Pow Wow, and a few members of his inner council. His only comment so far has been, "Ugh! Awards heap good. Worth many times price of admission."

The Indian theme will be carried out in every phase of the program. A great deal of interest is centered in the Pow Wow, and a few members of his inner council. His only comment so far has been, "Ugh! Awards heap good. Worth many times price of admission."

Game Friday night—Kewaskum at Cedarburg.

Games this Sunday—Grafton at West Bend, Barton at Newburg, Slinger at Germantown.

After being idle two weeks, the Kewaskum Chevrolets resumed play in grand fashion Sunday at Germantown, winning 4-1, and gaining revenge for an earlier defeat with their third in a row and keeps them up among the Lakes leaders. Slinger dropped some more by losing its second game and Mequon tightened its hold on first place with another win.

With John Tessar in the army, "Mix" Marx, veteran pitcher, came out of retirement to rejoin the local team. Marx got into the game for three innings in his debut and shut out Germantown in the three frames he worked. He gave up one hit, walked two and struck out two. He relieved Honeck, who pitched the first six innings and did a commendable job. Honeck allowed the opposition only four safeties, whiffing three and walking three. Germantown tallied their lone run in the fourth. Between the two, they gave the losers just five hits.

Fleming went the distance for Germantown and also pitched good ball. He was nicked for eight hits, walked only two and fanned eight. Heading Kewaskum's batters was Merrill Krueger, who connected safely three times in four trips. Pressing for honors was "Pete" Petermann, who lashed out two bingles in three tries, one a double. All of the Chev's markers were netted in the first two innings, one in the first and three in the second. Fleming shut them out the rest of the way but victory was already in the old sack.

Kewaskum will have a day off this Sunday. Instead of playing that day at Cedarburg they met that team under the lights there Friday night.

Shown above is the Kewaskum Fire department's newly acquired, fully equipped ambulance presented by Edward E. "Pat" Miller last week. Miller is shown turning over the keys and papers to the vehicle to Harry Schaeffer, fire chief, while some of the firemen and rescue squad members who were present stand by. Missing from the picture is Marvin A. Martin, captain of the rescue squad.

The ambulance will be used by the fire department for emergency rescue work to carry injured, and to aid in the village's civilian defense work. It was turned over to the firemen when Miller's recently purchased a new funeral coach. The department some time ago purchased a new, modern fire truck, has an ambulance and rescue squad, a new lighting system for night use, and new headlamps in the Kewaskum municipal building. All of these are the pride of the department's efficient, up-to-the-minute fire fighting equipment.

Bands from several northern Wisconsin cities participated in a parade scheduled expressly for the occasion. A musical unit from Camp McCoy also marched. The department of defense sent no less than a general to represent the government at the ceremony.

Sgt. Ingman, who returned Tuesday to Percy Jones army hospital at Iatle Creek, Mich. for further treatment of war wounds, was scheduled to receive a surprise gift from the city residents at the parade. He received the wounds in wiping out two enemy machine gun nests.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

'Film Club' Groups Are Suggested To Meet Need in Small Communities

Last week we discussed the increasing interest the United States motion picture industry is likely to take in our small towns as a result of the channeling off of theater audiences by television in metropolitan areas and the sharply curtailed demand by foreign countries for American films.

It is likely that one logical outcome of this set of developments will be the increasing importance to the entire film industry of the movie exhibitors in the small towns where television is not yet readily available.

Now the fact that our small community theater operator is important is by no means news to us. Those of us who live in one-theater towns are very much aware that he and his entertainment business constitute an eminently desirable and worthwhile factor in our lives.

More often than not his business—his theater—is our major source of entertainment, offering us laughter and music when we need it and a measure of escape when we desire it. It is there seven days a week to help take us out of ourselves for a few hours and give us a blessed bit of make-believe to substitute for the pungent realities of our worldly environment.

And that, as a matter of fact, is one expression of the small town motion picture exhibitor's major problem: What kinds of movies will do those things for the most people most often? What kinds of shows do his patrons want to see?

I. I. Raines, of the University of Illinois marketing division, conducted a survey of motion picture preferences in an Illinois town of 3,000 and came up with some definite answers, which we reported here last week. Topping the list of preferred motion pictures in that one town were musicals, comedies, and mysteries—what is ordinarily called light or "escape" entertainment.

The point is that if the exhibitor in this town were to select his motion picture programs solely with an eye to pleasing the majority of the theater-goers, his house never would show any of the more serious film works—documentaries, interpretations of the classics, or experimental productions.

Obviously, there must be a number of persons in this town—as in every other town—who want to see that kind of motion picture, but their number isn't large enough to carry any weight against the voice of the majority. Nevertheless, they are important. They are important because they could be the force that would encourage and promote the bringing in of good films that would tend to add to the cultural depth of the community.

Idealism aside for the moment, Mr. Raines offers a practicable suggestion. He suggests film clubs, operating on the well-known book club principle, as a means of developing a market for a higher type of motion picture fare than is commonly available in the one-theater small community.

He would have the local theater operator start with a committee of teachers, professional people, and other likely leading citizens. This committee then would go to work to enroll enough members to underwrite regular showings of outstanding films of a cultural nature—films which, by and large, do not reach our small community audiences today.

A person enrolling in this group would purchase a membership which, paid in advance, would include a specified number of admissions that could be used at any of the showings of films selected by the club.

Cost per admission, Mr. Raines figured, probably would work out to a figure comparable with that charged for first showings of these films in metropolitan centers.

Organization of such a club would take a lot of work and intensive promotion. But it could provide a solution to the problem of the local exhibitor who can't afford, at regular prices, to show the type of film which may attract only a limited audience. With his expenses guaranteed by a club, however, he could bring to his community films which might do it a great deal of good.

We do not need more men. We do not need more money. We do not need more materials. What we do need is something to give a man a new spirit . . . The problem of today is the people of today. It is people that make the times and not the times that make people. The trouble is with man himself.

Reds Agree to Discuss Cease-Fire; Congress Extends Price Controls

PEACE IS POSSIBLE—Events of the last few days have created a belief throughout the world that there is a possibility of peace in Korea.

The first move for possible peace talks was made by Jacob Malik, Soviet representative at the U.N. U.S. Ambassador Alan Kirk later called upon Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in an attempt to get a clarified version of Malik's bid.

Kirk reported that Gromyko suggested that in the first stage negotiations for a truce should be conducted by military representatives in the field, with political and territorial questions left for second stage discussion.

Then, acting on instructions from Washington, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of the allied armed forces, broadcast proposals to the Reds for a meeting aboard the Danish hospital ship Jutlandia in Wonsan harbor in North Korea.

After 29 hours of waiting, the Communists answered the broadcasts with a proposal for a meeting at Kaesong, just below the old Korean boundary on the 38th parallel. They suggested the meeting be held between July 10 and 15.

No official reaction to the Communist proposal was immediately available. Most observers, however, believed the delay as proposed by the Reds was a face saving device, so important in the Orient. But the Communist reply was an indication that the Chinese and North Koreans desire peace. The 10 day delay will also permit the Chinese and North Korean leaders to seek further contact with Moscow.

As expected, the Communists made propaganda use of Gen. Ridgway's proposed peace talks. Communist broadcasts began to pound away at the line that the allies asked for peace talks because the "armed aggression of the United Nations forces has ended in failure."

There was one other indication that the talks may not be fruitless. The Communists failed to mention their repeated demands of admission to the United Nations and control of Formosa as a price of peace.

A sincere desire for peace remains uppermost in the minds of every American, from home town to the largest city. Whatever the results of the peace talks, it must be an honorable peace before it will be acceptable to the American people. And it must be made clear to every American that a Korean settlement will not justify a slowdown in this nation's defense program.

Seeking Formula for Peace

Representatives of the United Nations with troops in Korea are shown as they held a "strategy" meeting at the state department to seek a formula for united action on the Russian proposal for a truce in Korea. UN officials reported peace prospects are definitely good.

A MONTH TO ARGUE—Congressional action in economic controls last week caused considerable comment in the home towns of the nation.

According to the average American's concept of government, the congress of the United States is supposed to reflect the will and desire of the people. With this basic principle in mind, plus the fact that congress rushed through a bill extending the nation's economic controls for 31 days, but slapping an absolute ban on price rollbacks and most new price ceilings, it began to look like the average man on Main Street approved the high prices that prevail today.

Two main factors caused most of the nation's reporters and analysts to reach this conclusion: (1) The cost of living for the average family is higher today than ever before, 8.9 per cent above that of June 25, 1950 (see story below); and (2) the refusal of congress to pass a bill to hold back this rising spiral—in fact, specifically forbidding rollbacks and new price ceilings.

The administration charged that the congress had allowed itself to be intimidated by special interests, pointing to the activities of the beef and textile industries, the national association of manufacturers, and the real-estate lobby in recent weeks.

Michael DiSalle, OPS administrator, put it like this: "Enemies of price control magnify errors and twist facts. They urge business-as-usual in unusual times. They deliberately confuse free enterprise with irresponsible license. They misconstrue and misstate OPS action to the point of outright dishonesty."

Presenting the other side of the picture, Senator Taft of Ohio, said: "There is no reason for rationing businessmen under the defense program," and price rollbacks "are dangerous economically because they upset all normal business relations. They are a step toward socialism."

The next month will be one of bitter debate on price, wage and rent legislation. What form it will finally take is anyone's guess at the moment. But it is a fantastic supposition that says the average American favors the high prices of today.

COST OF LIVING—The fact that this country has already taken the first dangerous step on the ladder of inflation was indicated again by the government's latest cost of living index.

The index of the bureau of labor statistics rose to 185.4 per cent of the 1935-'39 average. This figure is nearly 9 per cent above June, 1950, when the Korean war began and sets a new record high.

As a result, because of "escalator" clauses in work contracts, well over a million workers in the railroad industry received hourly wage increases.

The increase in cost of living was noted in apparel, house furnishings, rent, and miscellaneous goods and services. Food was the only item that showed a slight decline.

THE FUTURE—Assistant Budget Director Elmer B. Staats' prediction that defense-swollen federal spending will level off in 1955 at $65,000,000,000 a year and remain there indefinitely is an indication of things to come for the home town. It was an indication that defense spending will continue at a record peak for years and high taxes are almost a certainty.

Staats reported government spending during 1952 fiscal year, which began July 1, will run about $68,400,000,000. His forecast of a peak of between $80 and $90 billion in 1953 was startling.

Meanwhile, the treasury reported it closed its books July 1 about $6,000,000,000 better off than it had expected.

It had been estimated by the experts that the government would run more than $2,700,000,000 in the red during the past fiscal year. Actually, the government had the second largest budget surplus in history—more than $3,000,000,000 in the black.

Government tax receipts totaled approximately $48 billion between July 1, 1950, and July 1, 1951, the most money ever collected during a single year, outstripping the peak war-tax year of 1944 when revenue totaled $44,700,000,000.

FARM PRICES

New Decline Noted in Farm Prices

The agriculture department reported farm prices dropped about 1.3 per cent from mid-May to mid-June.

It was the fourth-straight month that the prices had declined, bringing them down to about 4 per cent below the record set last February, the department reported.

The department reported the decline reflected lower prices for a majority of farm products which were only partially offset by modest rise in prices of hogs, veal calves, butterfat, apples and turkeys.

On the other hand, prices paid by farmers for goods used in family living and in farm production held steady. No new farm products rose to levels at which ceiling could be applied, according to the mid-May report.

The department report said the index of prices received by farmers in mid-June was at 301 per cent of the 1910-1914 average, compared with 305 per cent in mid-May and 247 per cent in mid-May last year.

The index of prices paid by farmers, including interest, taxes, and farm wages, was reported at 283 per cent of the 1910-1914 average, unchanged from mid-May as compared with 254 per cent a year ago. Products already at ceiling prices included cotton, rice, wool, beef cattle, veal calves, cotton seed and soybeans.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

False Security

WHILE MAKING a survey of Europe last winter several top diplomats expressed the following idea about peace or war with Soviet Russia:

"The worst blunder Moscow ever made was to invade Korea. It created unity among the United Nations. It aroused the American people; and it put your mobilization program in high gear."

"And the smartest thing the Kremlin could do now," these diplomats continued, "would be to make a dramatic peace bid. It would throw discord into the United Nations. It would pull the stops out of your mobilization program. And it would ease the American people into a false sense of security."

"The peace bid wouldn't mean anything in the long run," these diplomats believed. "For as long as Russia maintains a huge land army the world cannot be safe. But a false sense of security is just what Moscow wants."

This may be what is happening today. It is interesting that Malik's speech came just as the price control bill was nearing a vote and just as congress was about to adopt the biggest tax bill in history.

McCarthy Demands Reward

Republican leaders did some fancy, backstage wirepulling to keep Senator McCarthy off the important GOP policy committee. Here is the inside story of what happened.

McCarthy did demand the policy committee seat as his reward for smearing the Democrats and carrying five states for Republicans last November—Maryland, Utah, California, Indiana and Illinois. He was supported in this claim by such Republicans as Senator Ferguson of Michigan, who argued that McCarthy's name-calling was worth ten to twenty thousand votes in each state; but he was opposed by Senator Millikin of Colorado, the senate chairman, who flatly refused to appoint McCarthy to the policy committee.

Even McCarthy's close friend, Senator Taft, remarked privately that he would vote against McCarthy. They feared that, if McCarthy got on the policy committee, it would look as if the Republican party endorsed his tactics.

However, two of McCarthy's more vociferous friends, Senators Welker of Idaho and Jenner of Indiana, drew up a petition to force a show-down vote, and secured the signatures of Senators Wherry of Nebraska, Schoepel of Kansas and Williams of Delaware. What they proposed was to add another member to the policy committee in order to create a vacancy for McCarthy.

Under the rules, this petition forced Millikin to call a meeting of all Republican senators, which he did.

Meanwhile, however, GOP leaders moved fast. They shifted the committee assignments around to create a vacancy on the powerful senate rules committee, then in order to pacify McCarthy, offered the rules post to him. This was too much of a temptation for McCarthy to resist, and he accepted. For it put him in a position to block the senate report on the Maryland elections, where he is up to his neck in this scandal and anxious for a whitewash.

For example, the Maryland investigation has already discovered that McCarthy's assistant, Don Surine, perjured himself before a senate committee and was kicked out of the FBI for fraternizing with a white slavery prostitute he was supposed to be investigating.

So McCarthy accepted the rules committee post. After attaining this, however, he refused to be satisfied and continued his campaign to get on the policy committee.

Forgotten Speeches

The last time congress had a major debate on price controls was in 1946, at which time a lot of interesting speeches were made, some of which certain congressmen would like to forget. Significantly, it's some of the same fellows who are promising reduced prices if controls once again are relaxed.

SENATOR WHERRY (NEB. REP.)—"Mr. Bowles has said that if price controls were eliminated, the price of meat would go up 50 per cent. Mr. Bowles is trying to scare us. My prediction is that without price control meat will cost less than today." (Meat is now up in some cases more than 100 per cent.)

SENATOR TAFT (OHIO REP.)—"The President's figures on possible increases are a wild guess and for the most part dead wrong."

CONGRESSMAN MILLER (NEB. REP.)—"The agency (OPA) has put out so much propaganda and false statements that the people no longer heed their cry of 'wool!' wool!"

CONGRESSMAN HOFFMAN (MICH. REP.)—"OPA and its operator Chester Bowles are responsible in part for the fact that the cost of living has gone up."

CONGRESSMAN SCHWABE (OKLA. REP.)—"What would another increase hurt? Not even close to the dire predictions of Bowles, Winchell, Pearson et al. . . . The longer OPA continues to operate, the worse the inflation is likely to become."

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS—"If OPA is permanently discontinued, the production of goods will mount rapidly and prices will quickly adjust themselves to levels that consumers are willing to pay. . . . Prices will be fair and reasonable to all."

Can Luscious, Seasonal Fruits Now

(See Recipes Below)

Fruit Canning Helps

LUSCIOUS FRUITS AND BERRIES canned right now mean better meals for your family later on during the year.

Learn how to open a can of applesauce for luncheon, without having to cook it just before the meal!

Nice, too to take peach halves, pears or apricots for salad right out of a jar, isn't it?

How about a berry pie? They're already in the jar, sweetened, ready to be put in a crust. Fruit for dessert? Open a can of pineapple, resting on the canning shelf.

Fruit is easy to can because it requires only the simplest of preparation. Some need skins removed by blanching in hot water. Then they're packed in jars and processed in a hot water bath or oven to cook them completely. If you want to prevent shrinkage on some types, pre-cook slightly.

Applesauce (Hot Pack)
3 pounds green apples
2 cups water
1 1/2 cups sugar

Wash apples, quarter, core and remove bruised or decayed parts. If fruit has to stand for any time, prevent discoloration by placing in slightly salted water. Drain. Add water and cook until soft. Press through sieve or colander to remove seeds and skins. Add sugar and bring to a boil. Pack while hot into clean jars. Adjust cap according to manufacturer's directions. Process 15 minutes in boiling water bath.

Baked Apples
Wash and core apples and place in baking dish containing enough boiling water to cover bottom of dish. Bake until tender. Pack immediately in hot, sterile jars. Fill to the top with juice from baking pan and additional medium syrup. Seal immediately. Medium syrup: Use 2 cups water, 1 cup sugar, and bring to a boil before packing.

Apricots (Open Kettle)
This method gives nice, rich flavor to the fruit. Use firm, ripe apricots and drop into boiling water for 1/2 minute, then dip in cold water shortly and slip off skins. Remove stones. Place fruit in Medium Syrup and simmer for 10 to 15 minutes, then bring to a full boil. Pack immediately into hot sterile jars, filling the jar to the top and sealing quickly.

Berries (Hot Pack)
Use these directions for blackberries, blueberries, dewberries, huckleberries, loganberries, mulberries and raspberries, and help prevent floating which often occurs in canning them. Wash and stem berries. Drop into boiling thin or medium syrup (Thin syrup: 3 cups water, 1 cup sugar) and let stand 15 to 20 seconds. Drain. Pack immediately in hot, sterile jars and fill to within 1/2 inch of top with boiling syrup in which the berries stood. Seal jar and process 5 minutes in a hot water bath.

LYNN SAYS: Here are Aids For Fruit Canning
Work with tongs or gloves when removing jars from hot water to prevent burned fingers.

When a recipe calls for hot, sterile jars, this means they should be prepared by washing in hot, soapy water, rinsing in clear hot water and then placing in a large kettle, tub or pan on a rack or folded cloth. Pour boiling water over them and boil for 10 minutes. Take jars out of hot water as you fill them.

Prevent that ugly space on top of fruit jars after canning by bubbling the air out of the jar. Slip a knife or spatula down the sides of the jar when you see air spaces, releasing the air and letting the space fill.

When dipping fruits or tomatoes in hot water then into cold for slipping off the skins, use tongs to prevent bruising the fruit and at the same time avoid burned hands.

When slightly heated water is used to hold fruit that has been peeled to prevent discoloration, use 1 teaspoon of salt to one quart of water.

Bootees for Baby

Wash stem and pick over carefully. Use 1/4 cup sugar for 1 quart currants. Place fruit and sugar in kettle. Add no water. Heat slowly to boiling, shaking kettle to prevent burning occasionally. Boil 5 minutes. Fill hot sterile jars and seal immediately.

Gooseberries (Cold Pack)
Wash a stem and cut off blossom ends with scissors. Prick each berry with a fork. Prepare 3 cups medium syrup. Drop 1 quart of berries into the boiling syrup and let stand 20 seconds. Remove to colander and drain. Repeat, using another quart of berries. Continue until there are several quarts in colander for canning. Pack closely in hot sterile jars and cover to within 1/2 inch of top with syrup in which they were dipped. Seal jars and process 20 minutes in hot water bath or 70 minutes in a 250° F. oven.

Peaches (Open Kettle)
Use firm, ripe fruit. Dip in boiling water for 1 minute, then in cold water and slip off skins. Clingstone peaches are usually canned whole and freestone varieties are cut in halves or sliced. Cook peaches in thin or medium syrup for 20 minutes or until clear and tender. Pack carefully and tightly.

Pears (Hot Pack)
Peel and leave whole if stems are in good condition, or cut in halves and core. Drop into slightly salted water while preparing until all are done to prevent discoloration. Drain. Precook Kieffer and Sand varieties in boiling water until tender. Drain and use the water in making medium syrup. Cook Bartlett varieties in a medium syrup for 5 minutes. Pack in hot, sterile jars and fill with syrup to within 1/2 inch of top. Process 20 minutes in boiling water bath or 70 minutes in 250° F. oven.

Pineapple (Cold Pack)
Use fully ripe, sound fruit. Cut off butt end with sharp knife and pare each slice. Cut out cores and remove eyes. Pack in jars in slices, wedges or grated, as desired. Cover with thin or medium syrup to within 1/2 inch of top. Seal and process in boiling water bath for 30 minutes; or in oven 90 minutes at 250° F.

Memo from the U. S. A.

We Americans don't get mad easy. But when we do, look out!
We pitch in and turn out guns, tanks, planes and ships faster than anybody on earth. But nobody boots us into line. No commissars. No bayonets. No slave labor. We just get to work—because we've got something to work for... our liberties and our freedoms.
And back of our men and machines is electric power—as much as all the rest of the world has.
It's steady, dependable power—the kind provided by our business-managed electric light and power companies—the kind that helped perform production miracles in World War II. Today, these companies have doubled the supply of electric power available before that war—and they're stepping it up all the time.
Yes sir, we have power—with more on the way—and we know how to use it. That's a good thing for everybody to remember right now. And it's a good thing for some people here at home to remember when they say "the government" could do a better job of running the electric light and power business.

Don't be late for your date to

GOOD WILL EXPERIMENT

Cincinnati Citizens Sponsor Summer Village for 54 Children

If there is a universal language, other than the love that poets muse about, it certainly is the laughter of children. No better demonstration of that can be found than in the story of the first Children's International Summer Village, an experiment of four-week's duration this summer in the hills near Cincinnati. Perhaps it will not be the last.

The village was inhabited by 54 children—six each from Vienna, Oslo, Stockholm, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Mexico City, Paris, Copenhagen and Cincinnati. They ranged in age from 10 to 12 years and they came from various income groups.

Mail call is a language all its own. Henry Koskan, an exchange student at the University of Cincinnati and a counselor at the summer village near Cincinnati, is the center of all eyes as he distributes letters from home.

Yet, for four weeks, they lived in harmony and laughter, learning the language, quirks, games, delectable and angers of strangers, and they emerged friends. They returned to their native lands with a better understanding of international relations and harmonies.

It is hoped that this experiment, financed solely by public support from the citizens of Cincinnati, will snowball all over the world, and already similar villages are being discussed for next summer in Germany, Sweden, England and other countries.

How did it come about? Dr. Doris Twitchell Allen, a psychologist and member of the faculty at the University of Cincinnati, started thinking in terms of such a village shortly after World War II. Her own enthusiasm fired others. Finally, the camp site, a former children's summer camp, was acquired in 1950. The children arrived June 3 of this year.

The children to attend were selected by committees from their own cities. While scholarship was not a deciding factor, it turned out to be important. Actually, qualities of leadership and the ability to mix as extroverts with others were primary elements in final choices.

IN ADDITION to the children, two adults accompanied each group. The entire assembly from Europe gathered in London and was flown to this country. Those from Mexico City came separately. The adults lived in another camp and learned how to set up villages in their own countries.

While the program included outdoor sports of every kind, there were additional activities, such as trips around Cincinnati. For stay-at-home times in the evenings there was television. The Crosley Division, Avco manufacturing corporation, installed sets in the dormitories and lounge.

Television proved to be another fascinating facet in this strange new world of America. Only one or two of the children from the foreign countries had seen it before.

And in this study of harmony, it was soon learned that Hopalong Cassidy and the Lone Ranger provide a meeting ground in any language.

Visitors at the village were quick to pick up one sound—laughter. It is possible that this sound, brought on by understanding fostered in future generations by such villages as that one in Cincinnati this summer and those being planned in the future in other countries, can offer a realistic approach to curing some of the world's ills.

Star Dust STAGE SCREEN RADIO

JOHNNY OLSEN, looking back recently when he celebrated his 25th anniversary in radio, said "I like the looks of tomorrow", to be able to say that is a fine reward for Johnny, who began at the age of 14 by singing over a homemade transmitter in Windom, Minn. Now the host of the "Lunch-club Club," heard daily at noon over the ABC network, he has set a record by appearing at more county fairs than any other actor—more than 2000. In his time he has interviewed three Presidents—Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt. And he originated his "Rumpus Room" show on radio, now has successfully switched it to television.

"We, the People's" Dan Seymour was named by the Boys Clubs of America as one of their seven favorite American fathers. Dan got votes from his son Steve and three daughters, rates with Bob Hope and General Ridgway.

Margaret O'Brien, slated to appear in "Junior Miss," on the summer theater circuit, suddenly changed her mind at almost the last moment, alienating the affections of a lot of managers who had booked her. They're stuck with the rest of the cast. Her attorney canceled her contracts on the ground that she is a minor and therefore they are void.

Ever since comic Josh Shelley joined the regular cast of ABC-TV's "Holiday Hotel" he's had Don Ameche wondering what the next gag will be. The other day Josh, at the piano, was warbling "I'll be Don Ameche in a taxi, honey."

Dollar Less Elastic; Yet Farmer's Fare Improved

By Wright A. Patterson

THE figures used in this column were provided by the Home Economics Bureau of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company. That is an assurance of authenticity.

The individual incomes of the American people have doubled and trebled during the last fifty years, since 1900. But in 1950 were better off than in 1900? Did we live better?

In 1900 the cash income of the American farms averaged $350. The farmers of that time had in addition to that amount of cash, the greater part of the family food, produced on the farm, and the family fuel from the wood lot of the farm. The cash income of the average farm today is fully three times that of 1900, and the farm still provides the greater portion of the family food, and much of the family fuel.

In the matter of clothes, and home furnishings and farm equipment, the cash receipts of today will buy but little, if any more, than did the cash receipts of 1900. The farmer, while he receives more cash, is not much better off than in 1900. More of them own more automobiles, more farm equipment but farm life and farm living is much as it was half a century ago.

In 1900 the hourly wage of the average industrial worker was 16 cents per hour, with an average working week of 53 hours in 1900, and only 41.5 each week in 1950.

Despite the high prices for everything he buys the industrial worker is better off today than he was half a century ago. The money he receives now buys more at today's prices than did his wages of 1900 buy at the prices of that day, and in addition he enjoys more of today's conveniences or luxuries. Far more worker's families have automobiles, electric or other forms of refrigeration, more telephones, radios, an in sections where it is available, more television.

In addition to greater wages, most factory employees are paid for annual vacations of from one to three weeks, are allowed for sick time, have group life insurance, and several millions are assured of industrial pensions after reaching 65 years of age.

Both workers and farmers are living better, the homes of both are equipped with more conveniences and what in 1900 were considered luxuries, despite the high prices they must pay for commodities. Electricity has done much to modernize the homes of both classes. There is another class of Americans who are not as well off as in 1900; whose living standards have been lowered. That class is composed of those who must live on a fixed income, the thrifty ones who saved for their old age, and whose savings were invested in securities. There are many millions of such people, especially women, whose expenses, because of the con-

THE FICTION CORNER

THE DOCTOR

By Helen Jonney

LINDDALE had two doctors . . . two doctors about as different in every way as any two men could be. Doc Boggs was old, in his eighties, and he shouldn't have been practicing at all. He was cross and ill tempered and he often got his patients and their prescriptions all mixed up.

Doctor Willis, on the other hand was just pushing thirty. He was alert, dependable and pleasant to deal with. The women, especially, were most enthusiastic about him. "Why," Mrs. Preston said, "when I called him for my Willie when he had the measles, he worked like a trooper. When Willie didn't do so well at first he actually cried. A doctor. What do you think of that?"

"I know," Mrs. Scott agreed. "He cried over my Martha, too. We both cried. He's sweet. I just love him." You see, at first Doc Boggs was the only physician in town. People called him just because he was there. If they wanted somebody else they'd have to get a man in Bloomdale, thirty miles away. So everybody was mighty glad when young Doctor Willis came to Linddale to see about locating there.

The business men and the farmers gave him a lot of encouragement. The young married women who were expecting babies welcomed him. In fact, the only person who opposed him in any way was old Doc Boggs.

"It's a one doctor town," he said when young Doc went to call on him. "We don't need or want another one here."

For a while he dated this one and that, playing no favorite.

Doctor Willis came, just the same and set up his practice on Elm Street. He was single so he fixed himself bachelor's quarters in the upstairs over his house. Old Mrs. South who used to do for Dr. Boggs, went over to the young doc's now, which made old doc madder than ever.

IT SEEMED strange the way young Doc took on when Doc Boggs finally passed on. Not many even shed a tear at the funeral.

But young doctor Willis sat there crying openly. It made everybody think even more of him than they did before, for they knew that the old man had absolutely refused to cooperate with the younger one and that he lost no opportunity to run him down to his patients.

"What a wonderful husband Doctor Willis would make," was the thought in the minds of more than one mother of a marriageable aged daughter.

The girls themselves busied about inviting him to parties and dances. There was open rivalry for his attention.

For a while he dated this one and that, playing no favorites. One summer after he'd been away on his vacation he came back with a wife, a girl from his old home town in Ohio.

Jean, that was her name, had such a nice way with her that she soon made friends. When people kept saying over and over that her husband was the sweetest, most tender hearted man in the whole world, she sometimes looked a bit surprised. Sure, she thought he was great. That was one reason she married him, but nevertheless she felt a bit puzzled at times.

And then she found out something that nobody else knew. She kept still and just smiled when they began to rave about her husband. She smiled and went about her business of picking up after him, keeping him well fed and mended and not really minding the times when he was thoughtless and inconsiderate as all husbands are at times.

The way she found out was that one night he came home to dinner quite late and dog tired, too. When she looked at him she saw that his eyes were red.

"Don't tell me you've been crying?" she said.

"Crying? Me?" he laughed. "What ever gave you that idea?"

"Your eyes. They look like it."

"It's those flowers . . . roses. Why is it people always send roses to the sick? Every place I've been today has had a bouquet of 'em. I hate roses. I'm allergic to 'em. I have to take shots all the time. Roses roses roses!"

Iron Curtain Also Cuts Bering Strait Fur Swaps

Washington, D.C.—The Iron Curtain is also a Fur Curtain between Big and Little Diomedes.

No longer do American cigarettes, tea, flour and sugar buy Siberian fox pelts and walrus-tusk ivory across the three-mile channel of icy water which separates Russian from American soil, midway across Bering Strait, the National Geographic Society reports.

Russian soldiers man a lookout post on a rocky shoulder of Big Diomedes Island, easternmost sentry station of Soviet sovereignty. Staring across the International Date Line at U.S.-owned Little Diomedes, for three years they have cut off all trade and social calls among Eskimo families who literally have relatives on both sides of the world, yet are only a few minutes' paddle apart.

Since the glacial age the Diomedes, twin mountain peaks protruding above the surface of Bering Strait, have served as steppingstones between Asia and America. In 1867 Russia sold Little Diomedes with Alaska to the United States, but retained Big Diomedes.

Each island supports an Eskimo village. Their inhabitants scratch a living from sea and land by hunting walrus, whales, seals, bears and foxes.

Little Diomedes families, living closer to Siberia than to Alaska, once traded regularly with their Russian neighbors.

Kill That Smell

Oddest request ever received by a certain company was from a man who wanted an old car to smell like new. The concern, which manufactures flavors and fragrances, accepted the challenge and now the old jalopy smells like it just rolled off the production line.

Painful Corsets

In Queen Elizabeth's day ladies wore corsets which gave them a painful but elegant 13-inch waist; 50 years ago standards and waistlines had been relaxed to a more comfortable 18-20 inches; in the interests of health, girdle manufacturers today generally set 24 inches as the minimum for foundation garments they make.

OPEN CENTERS For This Farmer

Everett Lewison
Vermillion, South Dakota . . .
"I own a 360-acre farm and I know just about what I have to have in tires to get my work done. Maybe my soil is different, but it seems to me that Firestone Open-Center Tires pull better than any of the others."
EVERETT LEWISON.

TRACTION CENTERS For His Neighbor

Leaf Larson
Vermillion, South Dakota
"With 550 acres to farm, I have plenty of opportunities to judge tractor tires. About six years ago I had my first experience with Firestone Traction-Center Tires, and today I have them on all my tractors. In my judgment, they're the best tires money can buy."
LEAF LARSON.

Firestone CHAMPIONS For Both

THAT'S the way it is in most farming localities — Some farmers want Open-Center Tires, while others find that Traction-Centers do a better job in their soil conditions. In all probability, you have a definite preference, too.

If it's an Open-Center you like best, try the Firestone Champion Open-Center Tire. You'll find that its curved bars pull better, its Flared Tread Openings keep the tire clean, and its wide, flat tread wears longer than treads of other Open-Center Tires.

Or—if you think a Traction-Center Tire will do your job best, try the one and only Firestone Traction-Center, the choice of more than a million farmers. Remember — only Firestone gives you your choice between the greatest Open-Center and the only Traction-Center Tire on the market today.

Gallery Concessionaire Has Sharp Business Eye

CAMDEN, N.J.—The shooting gallery concessionaire at the south Jersey fair is a man with an eye for business.

Instead of setting up the usual moving ducks, he posted a large map of North Korea with a bull's eye circle around the 38th parallel. He even amazed himself, as marksmen lined up five deep at the counter to get a shot at the mythical, boundary bull's eye.
