Charges Against Rural Education Stand as Challenge to Communities

The point that Dr. Benjamin Fine makes in his New York Times survey of rural education in America is that our rural schools provide an inferior education for nearly three and one-half million children. A severe and serious indictment, we said here last week; and its implications could be profoundly tragic, both in terms of individuals and of the welfare of our communities and the entire nation.

MAIN STREET FEATURE

According to Dr. Fine's report, the rural teacher is underpaid and often is compelled to accept living conditions which are something less than ideal. Thus, it is difficult for county superintendents and boards of education to staff their school faculties.

"The rate of turnover is much heavier in rural than in urban schools," the survey states. "Generally, the rural teacher is a woman with about two years of college education, who will stay in teaching three to five years . . . Often rural teachers have no tenure-they are employed from year to year, and can be dismissed any time the local school board desires."

Pulling no punches in its reporting of the conditions, the Times survey claims that the rural schools are a haven for the poorly prepared teacher who holds an emergency license or certificate. More than 60 per cent of the 80,000 emergency teaching licenses have been granted to rural teachers.

Nearly 12 million children out of an approximate 26 million enrolled in elementary and secondary schools in the United States are attending rural schools. Community by community, small town by small town, farm by farm-that is the massive total to which the rural schools which we tend to take so much for granted add up to.

Another serious complication of the problem is that neither the attending children nor the finances are evenly or proportionately distributed among the states.

While about 40 per cent of the five billion dollars spent annually on public schools in the nation goes to rural schools, there seems to be a wide disparity in the amounts of money expended in the various rural areas. The survey found generally that states with the largest number of children of school age had the smallest amount of school funds for each child. Yet, at the same time, these states are making the greatest effort to provide support, when that effort is measured by the percentage of income spent for education by the people of the state.

The bitter findings of the Times survey ought to be accepted by us now as a generalized directional signal, pointing out an area of our social existence that needs investigation and constructive action.

A generalization such as this survey always manages to paint a more bleak and discouraging picture than the genuine, "lived-with" facts may justify. Nevertheless, the survey's conclusions and opinions represent a challenge to all small, rural communities to see to their schools. If they are really this bad, it is time for the community to act.

But does the home town have the wealth, facilities, and ability to do what might be needed, even buttressed by such support as the state may provide? This is the point at which the advocates of federal aid to education enter the argument.

They point to the teachershortage, the outmoded facilities, the inadequate finances which are said to prevail in rural schools. They cite the large number of illiterates turned up by the selective service boards during the war. Rightly or wrongly, these circumstances are quoted as reasons why the federal government should come to the aid of education in the U.S.

Dr. Fine himself adds his support for such aid: "The adoption of federal financing for many rural communities that are too poor to provide necessary funds without government help is one of the first steps in improving the nation's rural school program."

But this is a decision that America's small communities and rural people will make for themselves.

Public money ought to be touched with the most scrupulous conscientiousness of honor. It is not the produce of riches only, but of the hard earnings of labor and poverty. It is drawn even from the bitterness of want and misery. Not a beggar passes, or perishes in the streets, whose mite is not in that mass.

Allied Officials Again Expressing Belief Talks On 'Smooth' Footing

HOPEFUL SPECULATION-As the UN and Red Korean negotiators resumed efforts for a cease-fire agenda at Kaesong (without the "protection" of the armed Communist guards), Allied officials expressed the belief that the problem of getting something on the agenda would be quickly solved. There were hints that the talks were going smoother after the lay-off and the situation was more relaxed.

The man on the American streets, however, was not too full of optimism. Those who had followed the criss-cross, tic-tat-toe pattern of the war and the inevitable breakdown of the initial conferences knew that there was no available sounding board to gauge the pattern of events in Korea.

Most Main Street citizens approved the action of Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior UN delegate, in refusing to continue the negotiations until certain Allied rights were recognized. The spark of aggressiveness offered hope that, years hence, we might ask one another who won the war in

LET'S CHECK THE RECORD-Administration forces and Truman backers on Capitol Hill started off the week with an eye to the 1952 elections and a beckoning gesture to the voting public on Main Street. Realizing the pressure from Republicans and anti-administration forces, the parties-in-power felt it wiser to get everything possible in the way of economic control bills in order to prepare some manner of check-

The Administration decided to move quickly for final action on the new defense-production measure, in whatever form it could be shuttled through to replace the original law which expired June 30; is currently in force only through Congressional resolution. The law carries powers for wage and price control, materials allocation, and other measures. Party leaders only hoped they would not have to compromise too much and too often to get the results.

REASONABLE CEILINGS—The long-awaited Washington explosion came in the House as the battle over federal authority to roll back prices opened with loud fanfare. The Administration's willingness to compromise went for naught as farm-area congressmen balked like the proverbial

Before the debate got under way, minority leader Martin and Republican Wolcott (Mich.) leveled charges that the Administration hoped to load the pending control bill with pet "socialistic schemes . . . to sneak in the thoroughly discredited Brannan farm plan through a system of so-called production subsidies."

Administration forces sought to compromise by offering an amendment to retain the present 10 per cent rollback on live beef prices, but forego other farm rollbacks. Farm bloc speaker Cooley (D., N.C.) however, suggested a ban on all farm-price rollbacks-including the one already made on beef. Cox (D., Ga.) went further—seeking to bar all price rollbacks; on industrial goods as well as farm products.

The hopes of the Administration thus lay in finding a way to woo the farm-area congressmen and also take advantage of the House Republican leaders' promise to help pass a law that will keep prices "within reason."

UNPROVEN ANGEL—In New York a federal judge gave evidence that life is becoming tough for Communist leaders in the U.S.; for the second time in a week, the Civil Rights Congress was outlawed as a bondsman in federal court.

The dozen-and-two were already out on bond made by CRC, the Red's angel, but Judge Ryan held the Congress had failed to show clear title to bonds; ordered them to find another angel or come back to jail.

MANDATORY SENTENCES-In Washington the House came through with overdue attention to the narcotics problem, voicing approval of a bill requiring mandatory jail sentences for narcotics-law violators.

The measure, Senate-bound, provides for one to five year sentences for first offenders; five to ten years for second offenders; and a 10 to 30 year term for three-time losers. The law would apply to both peddlers and addicts; should be a strong weapon to fight one of the nation's grave problems. Across the country parents, after watching with growing horror the dope probes and hearings, expressed the hope that here was a strong axe to keep the narcotic wolf from the family threshold.

AN EYE FOR AN EYE-The United States lashed back at Hungary for the expulsion of two American envoys from Budapest two weeks ago; ordered that nation to call home two top diplomats, Peter Varkonyi, legation attachee and Lajos Nagy, charge d' affaires. Varkonyi was to leave "immediately," Nagy as soon as new minister Emil Weil could present his credentials.

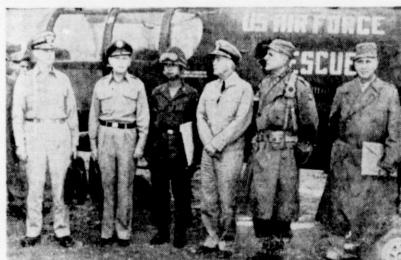

The move was retaliation for the expulsion of American envoys and by a man whose banking firm has other pressure that had caused cessation of U.S. information and edcuational activities in Hungary. It marked, however, a new low in diplomatic relations between the two countries-relations that had seemed improved big-business lobbies-Herbert Lehrecently by the release of American businessman Robert A. Vogeler.

AND THE RAINS CAME-As the week began, the most costly flood in the history of the nation moved East from Kansas City along the Missouri river, leaving the gateway to the Southwest strangled with slowly receding waters.

Residents along a 400 mile waterway counted the damages. 75,000 or more had been left homeless, 400,000 more otherwise affected. Losses were estimated close to the billion dollar mark, nearly twice as much as that in the 1937 Ohio and Mississippi rivers floods.

NO SIGNIFICANCE—Navy spokesmen in Washington declared there was "no special significance" in Admiral Forrest Sherman's conferences with Franco in Spain, although sources reported that the U.S. officer sought the use of navy bases in Spain for the U.S. Sixth Mediterranean

Britain and France, opposing admission of Spain into the 12-nation Atlantic Pact, came into the open against the U.S.-Franco ties, said only the Communists stood to gain anything. Uncle Sam, however, seemed to be envisioning a limited role for Spain in the future Western defense efforts. Supply and demand: Franco needs arms and ammunition, Amer-department set out to spur the nation's farmers to a new record output of wheat and other fall-seeded grains with the release of production goals.

Secretary Charles Brannan set the 1952 goal for both winter and spring wheat at 78,850,000 acres. Brannan pointed out, "The goals for other fall-seeded grains recognize With normal yields, crop increase would be 100 million bushels.

Average Big City Spends $246.71 Per School Student

WASHINGTON-The Office of Education disclosed figures showing that the average big-city school system spends $246.71 a year to educate each child. This figure is 90.4 per cent more than the expenditures of ten years ago, it was pointed out. This agency compared expenditures in five groups of cities for the 1949-50 school year with similar figures from the 1939-40 term. Survey covered most cities over 100,000.

WASHINGTON - The Agriculture | The increase would not only meet all expected requirements for the marketing year-both domestic and export, but would also provide for some increase in holdover reserve stocks for that fiscal year ending June 30, 1953. As Secretary the need to build up feed grain supplies to aid livestock production.

The national barley goal for 1952 is 12,865,000 acres, or a production of 290 million bushels for the yearan increase of about 15 per cent over this year's acreage.

Rve estimates call for a total 1.828,000 acres, little changed from figures of the present year.

The department suggested that the ten southern states fall-seeding oats increase their production about five per cent, bringing total acreage to at least 6,035,000 acres.

Goals for other crops have not yet been determined, will be out by spring planting time.

WASHINGTON Merry Go Round

Special Interest Senators

m A.M.}^{
m HE}$ PUBLIC was asleep at 3 A.M. when the senate staged its most revealing debate on price control. Asleep also were many newspapermen.

Yet the speeches certain senators made at that time—just as price controls were scheduled to expire -and the amendments they introduced, give the clearest of all pictures regarding who pulls the strings to make certain senators dance.

At about 2:30 A.M. up spoke Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, his silver hair more awry than usua He had an amendment which would have increased the price of automobiles throughout the nation.

Ferguson did not mention the fact that his wife and son-in-law are heavy stockholders in a subsidiary of one of the biggest automobile companies—Chrysler. Nor did Sen. Willis Robertson of Virginia mention it, as Sen. Elmer Thomas was unkind enough to do three years ago when he threatened to expose Ferguson's family interest in Chrysler unless Ferguson quit investigating

However, Robertson, alert to catch the significance of Ferguson's amendment, warned his colleagues that it was "tailored perfectly to increase the price of automobiles. "Then this is a roll-up amend-ment," snapped Clinton Anderson of New Mexico. "If we want chaos in price administration, this is the easiest way to get it I have ever Then, turning to Ferguson, the of the most important of food budg-New Mexico senator observed: "It applies primarily to the automobile available in fresh, frozen or canned industry "The senator is correct," admitted Ferguson. "Why should that industry be discriminated against?" 'The profits of automobile manufacturers were reasonably good, were they not?" Anderson shot back, referring to the fact that most big motor companies have just celebrated their highest profits in his-

like other special-interest amendments, log-rolled through in the rich in protein early hours of the morning. But it was defeated—with Michigan's other senator, Blair Moody of Detroit, voting against it.

Heartsick Senator

One of the greatest speeches of the inflation debate was delivered in the senate at about 3 A.M. It was made him a multimillionaire but who fought vigorously against the man of New York.

Though Lehman is 73 years old and served as governor of New York more terms than any man in history, he is new to the senate. And he seemed hurt and disappointed at the mad scramble of his colleagues to vote for the special interests.

Finally he rose, and speaking sadly, softly, said: "What I am about to say is not going to please my colleagues in the senate. Yet I must say it. Here we are engaged in a life-and-death struggle, a struggle for survival against the most ruthless enemy in nistory, fighting on two fronts, on the military and on the economic.

'We ought to be engaged exclusively in considering legislation to benefit all the people of the country, legislation to keep our country on a sound economic basis. Yet. here I see and hear senator after senator rise, not to concern himself with the issues before us, but to play politics, to blast the Adminis-tration. I tell you, it has made my heart sick to hear all this. It makes me feel that we are betraying the people who send us down here.

"We are about to pass a bill which is a bad bill, a bill which is not in the interest of the people of our country," Lehman continued. "I know there is nothing I can say which is going to reverse the trend and bring about the ends I and many of my associates and the people seek. Deep down in our hearts, we all know that these ends are necessary. Yet some are acting without regard to what is right. But I hope that we are not going to be supine or satisfied with what we have done. "I assume that what I have said will not set well with some of my Lehman concluded 'Yet I am glad I said it. I think it is something which had to be said on the floor of the senate."

Peanuts and Milk

Senators Ed Thye, Minnesota Republican, and Warren Magnuson, Washington Democrat, also pushed through an amendment to freeze dairy and peanut products at their present high prices. But Senator Anderson objected.

"The bill we are considering is designed to try to put ceilings on prices," he said. "How is a measure that would prevent prices from dropping germane to a bill that is trying to put on ceilings?"

Cattle Black Markets

Anderson also tried to block an amendment by Sen. Hugh Butler, Nebraska Republican, weakening the government's control over meat slaughtering. Butler raises cattle in crackers makes a nice appetizer. Nebraska, while Anderson raises cattle in New Mexico. But while Butler has been the great champion of the cattlemen-and his pocket book interest-Anderson has voted against his own pocketbook.

He called the amendment a black market one.

Lack of Nitrogen Retards Corn Growth Deep-Rooted Legumes

Add Nitrogen to Soil (First of Two Articles)

A soil-building, deep-rooted sweet clover crop grown regularly in the rotation made the difference beween these (below) two corn fields. Both crops were grown at the University of Missouri's experimental farm at Columbia, Mo. Both had the same fertilizer treatment, including tons of limestone and 150 pounds per acre of 0-20-20 fertilizer in the row at corn planting time.

The crop in the upper photo was grown on land that had a rotation of corn, small grains and shallow rooted lespedeza. Even late in the season the growth is stunted and scarcely head high.

and sweet clover. Over a 14-year test period, the corn crop having the benefit of is sharp, be careful around the sweet clover in the rotation yielded 10.7 more bushels per acre than the other field. The average yields were 67.7 and 57 bushels per acre, respectively. The sweet clover crop added extra organic matter to the soil, improved tilth and drainage and helped the corn crop make better use of the fertility in the soil. The taproots of egumes such as sweet clover and alfalfa probe down several feet into the subsoil. They drill out passageways for water and air. They condition the soil from the surface on down through the root zone.

U.S. Wheat Crop Makes Strong Comeback, Report

The latest agriculture department report on wheat prospects indicates a crop of about 1,054,000,000 bushels this year, or nearly 72,000,000 more than forecast a month earlier. Such a production would exceed production goal-a goal which would exceed prospective needs and add emergencies. Unfavorable weather, particularly drought in the southwestern great plains, and insects in the same area, coupled with cool, wet spring weather, had put the crop prospects under a cloud. The indicated production-plus reserves from past crops-would supply plenty of wheat to meet any needs seen now. The department made no estimate on corn production, but said producers were optimistic.

Poisons Recommended For Tomato Pinworms

Farmers and home gardeners should watch their tomatoes closely from the time the fruit first sets until it ripens. During this period fruit worms and pinworms may attack the fruit. For control of these pests entomologists recommend dusting tomatoes cut rings out of the dough, and bake once a week and following heavy rainfall with a dust containing 5 per cent rothane and 5 to 6 per cent

Lindane, the non-smelly form of benzene hexachloride, is just the thing for louse control in the chicken house, tests at the University of Massachusetts show.

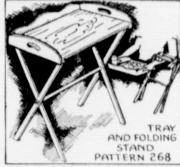

The easiest way to use lindane is as a 1 per cent dust. Spread it at a rate of three pounds per 1,000 square feet in the litter, under the roosts, and in the nests. One treatment does the job, university specialists report.

often entails special difficulties in providing financing of housing teachers and transportation of pupils, the rural school system has been the slowest to develop.

A model of what the rural community can do to meet its problems is the Holcomb community in inney county in southwestern Kansas. For 30 years the community has been building an exceptional rural consolidated school.

The village of Holcomb is situated ght miles west of Garden City ne county seat. It has a population f 200. Transcontinental highway 50 and the main line of the Santa Fe railroad pass through it. The consolidated school is the dominant nstitution. There are an alfalfadehydration plant, a post office and two filling stations, one of which carries a small stock of groceries. There is no church, no bank, no general store. For the services of these institutions, the people go to Garden City.

On January 6, 1920, three districts voted for consolidation of a school at Holcomb. On July 23 1921, another district petitioned to be admitted to the union district At various times since 1921 additional districts have joined, the latest additions occurred in 1946 These additions brought to nine the total number of districts to come in and brought the area of the consolidated district to 210 square

During the past 30 years the Holomb school has developed a full curriculum, including instruction in he elementary grades, from the sindergarten up, and in the high school full courses on every subject, including vocational agriculture and vocational homemaking.

By 1950 the school owned 12 buildings and 20 acres of land. The buildings included the main school structure, a grade school, a vocational agriculture building, a teacherage, a bus garage, and seven teachers' cottages.

THE VISITOR to the Holcomb community soon senses an attitude of community pride in the school and a marked popular solicitude for the school's welfare. The solicitude extends not only to athletics and other extracurricular activities but also to courses offered and to the maintenance of good cademic standards. The visitor gains the impression that the community, for all its enthusiasm for thletics, would feel much less disurbed by a "disastrous" basketball season than by a reduction of the school's rating by the state department of education from Class A o Class B. The public created the chool and the public has stood

Religious Ardor

Because of the religious ardor of a king named Asoka, the dometype of architecture characteristic of India during the Third Century B.C., was spread nearly half-way 'round the world. Asoka "felt it his duty to convert all mankind to Buddhism." He sent missionary monks to Burma, Ceylon, Java, Syria, Egypt, and many more lands. The Aryan dome or "stupa" which he had made an emblem of faith, spread to these lands with Buddhism. From it evolved the pagodas seen today in China, Korea, and Japan.

Those devout Franciscans did not realize that they were laying out a great highway system to serve an alien people. Their interest, other than that of civilizing the Indians, was to establish a new colony for their king, that of Spain, and to provide routes of travel to and from that colony as they trudged the weary miles of ocean beaches or desert sands, through the dense chaparral and the difficult stony passes of the mountain ranges. They did not realize they were serving as the highway engineers of a state in the American republic, but

To the trails blazed by the padres were added those of the fur traders, those of the gold seekers, those of the stage coaches and the emigrant wagons, many of them following those of the padres. Today all of these constitute the thousands of miles of hard surfaced highways, or the rails of the railroads that make California and its many places of historic and scenic interest so easily accessible to the travelers using such transportation as best suits their wishes. The El Camino Real of 100 years ago is Highway 101 of today.

ELECTRICAL TIPS FOR THE HOME

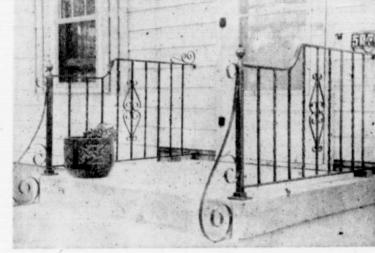

DON'T think you have to center one fixture over the bathroom mirror. A lamp placed in this position casts shadows on the neck and chin, makes shaving and other close-seeing jobs difficult.

DO install two fluorescent or in candescent fixtures—one on each side of the mirror. For shadowleglarefree light, center the lamos at 5 feet, 2 inches high and cover. them with translucent shields.
