Action Program Paid Off Handsomely For Five Small Illinois Communities

Six years ago, five small communities in central Illinois, in an experimental mood, decided to find out if and how the towns could be bettered and improved through the concerted efforts of their own citizens.

Under the leadership and guidance of H. Clay Tate, editor of the Bloomington, Ill., Daily Pantagraph, and Professor Alvin T. Anderson of the University of Illinois, the five communities worked out a definite program for action. This program, described in the August edition of The Rotarian magazine and discussed here last week, was basically very simple. It depended upon the human forces involved to make it work. The formula called for a few public-spirited citizens to promote the initial action, a public mass meeting to get ideas and suggestions, a community council to plan and direct action, an executive committee within the council, and working subcommittees to get things done.

This was the platform from which the five towns of Roanoke, Minonk, Lexington, Colfax, and Stanford took their first steps toward community improvement. Now, six years later, what have they accomplished? A very great deal, according to The Rotarian article. Listen:

"The report on Roanoke was typical . . . One hundred and fifty thousand dollars had been designated for extension of the hard-surfaced streets. The village water system was extended and a water-softening plant built at a cost of $60,-000. A $100,000 bond issue was voted for an addition to the high school. Year-round garbage collection was started on a tax basis. A referendum on teachers' housing was voted and the plan approved. Sixty-five lots were brought into the village and utilities extended. A chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America was organized, as was a new Boy Scout troop."

In Minonk, the high school coach teamed up with the president of the local Chamber of Commerce, who owned a confectionery store on main street. They prevailed upon the Chamber to sponsor a summer recreation program. Local merchants came through with about $800. They worked out a schedule of volleyball, softball, and games for the smaller tots in the morning, followed by handicrafts and leather work.

All in all, the program was such a success that the year after its inception a local tax program was put through that raises $2,500 annually. That, plus the $800 in proceeds from the yearly softball tournament, puts the Minonk recreation activities on a going basis. Paul Jones, the coach, said of the community betterment program, "Well-it stimulated somebody to do something."

John O. Denson, editor of the Minonk News-Dispatch, assessed the program in a similar vein: "The project didn't bring us anything new. We knew what was wrong with the town and what had to be done. But nobody was doing much about it. What it did was sort of to light a fire under some of the folks, who then went to work through their own organizations."

The reaction was much the same in the other towns participating in the experiment. The program, which might seem impossibly idealistic at first glance, served most forcibly as a stimulus to local action. And in that local action lay the solution to the communities' problems.

Another man, owner of a new but thriving building supplies concern in Roanoke, said: "You can work yourself thin and not get anywhere if you don't think first. You've got to have a plan. Then things get accomplished. What this did was to give us a plansomething to work toward."

Editor Tate adds that the five towns have outlined enough work to keep them busy for a quarter of a century, and they've done it without a single request for state or federal aid. "The progress is coming out of the talent, energies, and interests of the people themselves."

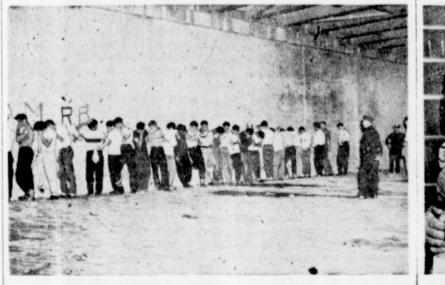

Certainly it is true that the constant striving for something better -the price of progress-adds to the total of human happiness. It stimulates industry by creating new wants. It multiplies opportunities for the employment of brain and brawn. And it bridges the gaps between peaks of prosperity and helps take up the slack during times of reaction.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World Cease Fire Talks Resume in Korea; WSB Advises New Wage Increases A MINOR DELAY-Negotiations for a cease fire in K

at Kaesong after Communists leaders pledged to keep the conference town clear of armed troops. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway broke off negotiations after the Reds violated their pledge to keep Kaesong neutral. Apparently a minor delay in the deadlocked talks, Ridgway's action nevertheless was a firm reminder that the United Nations expected the Communist to abide by previous agreements. It was also a pointed nint that the UN means business and that peace can only be achieved by honor on both sides.

There still has been no announcement of any progress over the question of a demilitarized zone across Korea, which has deadlocked the negotiations for days. The Reds insist that the line shall be centered on the 38th parallel. The allies want it along defensible positions, south of the parallel in the west but north of the old political boundary in the center and east.

AN ISSUE FOR '52-The new price control law, signed reluctantly by President Truman, will be one of the big political issues in the 1952 presidential campaign as sure as "God made little would say.

The fact was evident by the President's blast that the act." He added, with a grim-ness of tone that startled many reporters, that the measure was "the worst I ever had to sign." The Republican and southern Dixiecrat coalition that had refused the President the powers he desired in the bill, continued to maintain it was a good measure if it was properly administered.

WAGE INCREASE PROPOSED-With the recommendation of the wage stabilization board that cost of living wage increases be allowed for all workers, it appears the administration will allow such increases at once. President Truman hinted as he signed the new price control law that the government would allow reasonable adjustments in wages to fit cost-of-living increases.

He Signs

Reluctantly President Truman signs the new control bill which be described as "the worst I ever bad to sign." The emphasis was on "had."

The new regulation would effect workers who are paid by the hour, or are represented by unions, in three general classes: (1) Those who had cost of living provisions in force prior to Jan. 26, 1951, the wage freeze date; (2) those employers and unions who now want to include such clauses in contracts; and (3) those who want to relate wage rates to the cost of living but who do not want an escalator clause in their contracts. It is estimated that living costs have increased approximately 11 per cent above January, 1950.

THE WEST POINT STORY-The announcement that 90 West Point cadets have been dismissed from the academy for cheating on examinations caused considerable talk across the nation last week. The scandal, breaking of the academy's honor system that dates from 1817, wrecked the army's powerful gridiron team and was the largest mass dismissal since the military academy was founded in 1802. Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, the academy's superintendent, acknowledged that the action taken was "stern and uncompromising." But he added: "After weighing all factors most carefully, I, and the responsible heads of the army, are convinced that there could be no compromise-solution that would preserve the vital honor system of West Point, which is the very heart of the academy.'

FOOD PRICES- Home towners throughout the nation welcomed the oureau of agricultural economics' report that plentiful supplies probably will keep food prices from going much higher this year. But most home towners, remembering the past 12 months of rising prices, accepted the statement with reservations.

Since July of 1950 retail food prices have increased approximately 12 per cent. For the whole of 1951 they probably will average at least 10 per cent higher than in 1950.

The bureau said livestock and crop-production prospects indicate that food supplies available during the latter half of this year will be ger than a year earlier. The bureau also reported beefcattle prices at times may drop below ceilings during the heavy marketing season this fall. However, a strong consumer demand for meat may prevent any substantial decline in prices. The bureau said future increases in prices probably would be limited largely to revised price ceilings under the new defense production act. The new law relaxes limitations on margins for processing and marketing food and other products. As a result, some widening of farm-to-retail price spreads may occur.

Bradley Gets Riled

GEN. OMAR BRADLEY, who doesn't get riled easily, was pretty sore when he heard how one of his own army spokesmen had blurted out to a press conference the name of an airborne division which had been transferred from Korea to Japan.

The incident took place in a press conference at which the army was explaining how Chinese Communists had built up their strength in North Korea while we had weakened ours. What happened was that General

Ridgway had cabled Washington for permission to transfer the airborne division in question to north-green apples," as the ern Japan because of the fact that cracker - barrel philosopher the Russians had two airborne divisions poised on the island of Sakhalin, threatening northern Japan. While the two Russian divisions nation's families cannot have have only enough airplanes beprotection against inflation tween them to move one division until "congress repairs the at a time, Ridgway wanted to be on damage done by this new guard against a surprise airborne attack on Japan.

Washington accordingly gave permission to transfer the American airborne division back to Japan. Such a troop movement is highly secret. But the Pentagon briefing officer, anxious to prove that the Chinese have used the truce talks to build up their strength, blurted out the movement of this particular division to a roomful of newsmen to which foreign correspondents are admitted.

When General Bradley heard of this, he tried to call army chief of staff, Gen. Joe Collins, but couldn't reach him. So he summoned as-sistant chief of staff Maj. Gen. C. Bolte and ordered a full investigation of who pulled the boner.

Eisenhower Says No

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has quietly passed the word to his GOP in the Republican nomination - if isolationists control the party.

In addition, Ike let it be known that he is upset by the timid and hesistant policy of internationallyminded Republicans and the way unheeded.

One close friend who returned from Paris recently put it this way: "If the Republicans want Ike merely to bail out the party and win an election, they're badly mistaken. That would be like putting a million dollar jockey on a two dollar horse "The general is not the least bit interested in running for President just to accommodate a candidate for sheriff. Those who say they want lke so badly are going to have to do a lot more than say, 'he's a fine fel-

The committee said a huge outlay is needed "to create sufficient power to prevent disaster in the event war is forced upon us. Eisenhower's close friends agree that this issue will largely decide whether he consents to run - and on which party. They claim Eisenhower is disturbed by four factors:

The last attempt to organize the internationalists among senate Repblicans was in January, 1949, when Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., called a meeting. This rump group met only once.

Taft Tightens Grip

3. The way the Taft-isolationist wing has grabbed control of the GOP party machinery. Ab Her-mann, the national committee's executive director, boasted to senate secretaries the other night: "We're building a sound organization precinct by precinct, so we won't have to ride to victory on the coattails of a strong and popular figure." The Taft crowd are in charge of the Chicago convention machinery and determined to prevent an Eisenhower gallery demon-
