Lady Killed in 4-Car Crash South of Here Sunday; Three Hurt

The treacherous Kewaskum swamp road, a stretch of Highway 45-55 two miles south of this village, was the scene of a fatal auto accident early Sunday night. A 4-car collision resulted in tragedy. Addie Rich, 70, Milwaukee, was killed in the crash and three others were injured. The stretch of highway through the swamp bears one of the highest accident rates in Washington county and has been the scene of numerous accidents. Mrs. Rich's death was the 10th county traffic fatality of 1951.

Injured in the collision were: Catherine Lightbody, 46, Milwaukee, head and body bruised; Ralph Lambrecht, 27, Waukegan, Ill., left eye, and Charles Nible, 27, also of Waukegan, right leg injury. They were taken to St. Joseph's Community hospital in West Bend by ambulance.

In the crash were cars driven by Ralph Liepert, 25, of R. 1, Kewaskum; Mathias J. Weber, 46, Milwaukee; Lambrecht, and the car in which Mrs. Rich suffered her fatal injury, driven by Catherine Lightbody. Mrs. Rich suffered a fatal skull fracture in the accident, apparently when she was thrown against the windshield of the car in which she was a passenger. The windshield was knocked out by the force of the impact.

According to the sheriff's department report, Liepert stopped because of another car ahead that was having a tire changed. Weber brought his machine to a stop behind Liepert without collision. Lambrecht's car is reported to have skidded 50 feet into the rear of Weber's auto. The Lightbody car then struck the Lambrecht machine. It was not known if the last crash caused the Weber car to strike Lambrecht's auto or if the Weber car hit Liepert's auto when hit by the Lambrecht vehicle. All of the autos involved were traveling south.

The front end of the Lightbody car was badly damaged and both the front and rear of the Lambrecht car was smashed. Only the rear of the Weber auto was damaged and the Liepert machine received minor damage.

Two teen-agers were injured at 11:50 p. m. Sunday on Hwy. 33 about a quarter mile west of West Bend when a car driven by William Bohn, 18, R. 3, West Bend, left the road and rolled over, then tipped over back onto the highway. Bohn, traveling east, pulled out to pass a car but had to pull in again because of westbound traffic. He then lost control of his car which went off the road on the right side. Clara Mae Nelson, 17, West Bend, a passenger, received a head injury and right side injuries. Bohn suffered scratches and bruises. John Van Barcom of Kewaskum, a passing motorist, took the injured young people to St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend.

Earl W. Mantheis, Kewaskum, and Ronald D. Mantheis, R. 2, Fond du Lac were drivers of vehicles which collided on Hwy. 67 near the Marvin Hundertmark farm. The vehicles were traveling in opposite directions when they met. There were no injuries.

Colombo Plan Aids Southeast Asians

Tomorrow's standard of living may be better for one-quarter of mankind because of an economic bootstrap called the Colombo Plan.

This six-year blueprint for development of South and Southeast Asia, sponsored by the British Commonwealth, went into action to lift the well-being of 570,000,000 people. Its $5,230,400,000 budget covers objectives from a dam the size of Hoover Dam to be built in northern India, to free public schools for the children of Singapore.

India, Pakistan, Ceylon, the Federation of Malaya, Singapore, North Borneo, Sarawak and Brunei will spend this money between now and 1957 under the plan, which was drawn up by an international consultative committee meeting in Colombo, Ceylon in Sydney, Australia, and in London during 1950. Burma, Thailand, Indonesia and Indochina have been invited to take part in the program.

MAJOR ECONOMIC EVENT

Installment Buying Was Started 40 Years Ago in Auto Industry

Although there has been no fanfare to mark it, 1911 is the fortieth anniversary of a major economic event—one that has been of special importance to people who live in small towns. For it was in 1911 that the first automobiles were sold on installments and the greatest period of industrial and social development in history began.

The time payment system we take for granted has brought an "orderly revolution" in our whole way of life. Because it has been a major factor in the development of American industrial capacity, it has had a great influence on world events. It would be a much different and probably much worse world to live in if American merchandising genius had not invented the system of letting people buy cars out of income.

In the 15 years between 1895, when car production really started, and the end of 1910, a total of only 521,000 cars were made. The average model cost three years' pay of the average skilled worker. Many people said the industry had about reached its peak. There weren't many more families who could afford a car!

Since then, there have been about 93,000,000 cars produced in this country. There are nearly 40,000,000 in use today by the nation's 42,800,000 family units.

What happened is pointed out by the American Finance Conference, the association of independent sales credit companies, in a report on the effects of 40 years of installment selling. Enabling people to buy cars out of income, like homes or insurance, immediately broadened the market. This made possible mass production and sharp reductions in cost, which in turn brought cars within reach of more people. This stimulated employment and our whole economy. People could buy more and more goods, and with the installment system spreading to other lines of merchandise, modern, efficient goods went into millions of modest homes.

Putting the nation on wheels has changed our cities from dark and dirty areas around our factories to industrial centers surrounded by factories, light residential suburbs. Factories are now being built in outlying areas, where space is not prohibitively costly, and are spread out and pleasant. Recreation has been revolutionized—people go far away on vacations, take week-ends in the country, play golf, make the whole area for miles around a playground. Farmer and city dweller enjoy the same recreation, cultural facilities and shopping centers.

THE INFLUENCE on the whole economy of bringing the car within reach of nearly everyone is shown by these figures: the nearly 6,000,000 cars produced in 1950 used up the agricultural products of nearly 3,000,000 acres. This includes about 410,000,000 pounds of cotton, 3,000,000 bushels of corn, 14,250,000 gallons of molasses, 190,000,000 pounds of wool, 12,000,000 pounds of turpentine and large quantities of other farm products. About 80 per cent of U. S. rubber consumption goes into automotive uses, as well as 75 per cent of all plate glass, 68 per cent of all leather upholstery, 55 per cent of alloy steel and 51 per cent of malleable iron.

Much of the technological and chemical progress of the past 40 years has been stimulated by the urge of the auto makers to find better ways of making cars, so that the public would buy more of them on installments. One of every seven employed persons in the United States owes his job to the automobile.

The industrial plant that won World War II and is now our greatest check on Russian aggression was developed to meet the public's demand for goods it bought on time payments.

These are some of the reasons Dr. A. Anton Friedrich, noted economist of New York University, has called the mass installment credit system along with the mass production methods it stimulated "the two pillars of American prosperity." And they are the reasons Isaac F. Marcossou, former president of Studebaker Corporation, said:

"Installment buying now emerges as the builder of America's standard of living. It is a revolution which has lifted the average man to the level of living once reserved for the few. It is one of the greatest economic forward steps that has been devised in modern times."

In only 40 years, the installment system has become the mainspring of the American economy. Anything that tampers with it threatens to bring the wheels of American economy and society to a halt. Meeting the public's needs as they see fit, it promises to help make the next 40 years even more progressive than the years have been since that first car was sold on installments.

THOMAS GARRISON MORFIT, born in Baltimore, certainly believes in his public. He changed his name to Gary Moore as the result of a listener contest, in 1939. He was a continuity writer at a Baltimore radio station when one day the star of the comedy show he was writing failed to appear. Gary was rushed in as a last minute substitute. The radio audience liked him so much that he never went back to writing. Even his crew haircut is due to public opinion.

GARY MOORE

When he decided to let it grow, CBS was practically swamped with protests, so ex-barber Perry Como appeared on Gary's television show and supervised a haircut that should be permanent.

GRASSROOTS

This Iowa Farmer Practiced Frugality, Thrift

By Wright A. Patterson

THROUGHOUT all of our history ours has been and still is a land of opportunity for those who have initiative, energy and who apply the principles of frugality and thrift when needed.

Those who are willing to work for success rather than expect others to provide for them get along. As I thought of those who have exemplified that recipe for success, I recalled an Iowa farmer who provides an excellent illustration.

He had nothing with which to start. His father had been a town carpenter, whose efforts had provided the essentials for his family, until his death, when the son was in his late teens. He left nothing of worldly goods.

To the son fell the task of providing for his widowed mother and himself. To do that, he must have a job, and the first one that was offered was that of a farm hand. The pay was $25 a month, during the planting, cultivating and harvesting seasons of each year. For what would be approximately three other months of each year, the pay would be $20 for each month.

Instead of the room and board that was usually a part of a farm hand's compensation, the boy was offered a small house, five rooms, that had at one time been the farm family home, and with it approximately an acre of ground he could cultivate as a garden, on which he could have room for chickens, two or three hogs, and a cow.

When I last saw that farmer he owned, all paid for, 460 acres of that Iowa farmland. He had acquired it all through his own effort, through the practice of frugality and thrift, through improving the opportunity with which this land of ours had provided him.

There are millions of such success stories for which America is responsible.

They are not confined to farms only, but include merchants, small factories, and every line of en-

The garden, the chickens, the hogs and the cow would provide most of their food, the house a home for the widowed mother. Excess production from the chickens, the garden, the hogs and the cow were exchanged for such things as must be purchased at the local store. Each month the earnings of the son went to the fund that was to provide a farm for him.

At the end of 10 years, he had saved through the exercise of frugality and thrift the amount needed to make the down payment on 100 acres of the best of Iowa cornland. As an Iowa farmer he continued to practice his system of frugality and thrift, though he was not rigidly. He provided his mother during the years of her lifetime with as well an equipped farm home as could be found in all Iowa, but he did not waste. His farm machinery was never left to rust in the fields where they had been last used.

Automobiles, not war, are the great American killer. In all our American history deaths in battle or from wounds, from the Revolution down to the latest available reports from Korea, were responsible for the death of 439,151 of our fighting forces. As against that the number of those killed, or fatally injured by automobiles during the past 14 years, down to late November, 1950, totaled 442,970. The non-fatal casualty lists for all wars, to late November, 1950, totaled 1,195,885. The non-fatal auto accident injuries since Jan. 1, 1937, totaled 15,503,950. We dread war, but we take for granted the automobile killings.

Something for nothing, welfare state, socialism, totalitarianism, Communism. Each one leads to the next.

A BETTER MOUSETRAP

By John Bulling

I WAS ABOUT to doze off into an after dinner coma, when the ad first caught my eye. There was no fancy display about it. In fact, it was in the want ad columns and I only noticed it because it had been set in heavy type. It went somehow like this:

HERE IT IS AT LAST!!
BEAT A PATH TO OUR DOOR. FOLKS! KILL!
IS GUARANTEED TO KILL
RATS AND MICE. DOUBLE
YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU
FAIL TO KILL RODENTS
AFTER FOLLOWING THE SIMPLE INSTRUCTIONS!

There followed a name and address, and a request to send one dollar for a genuine "Killit". The thing was guaranteed. What could I lose? I took the paper to the kitchen and showed the ad to Mary. She insisted that we didn't have any mice or rats, but I said maybe not, but it would be nice to have a guaranteed mousetrap anyhow. I wadded up a dollar bill and stuck it in an envelope and addressed it to the Killit people and made a special trip to the post office to mail it.

Later I got to thinking about it. I hoped that Killit would not be a cat—we already had one cat, and there just isn't room for another one in our two by four apartment. But then, they couldn't send you a cat by mail, could they?

I thought of a buddy of mine, Bill Stout. He was a chronic smoker—you know the type. The world is his ashy. He had already started several expensive fires by laying down cigarettes and forgetting where he'd put them. He had seen an ad in the paper for an ashy guaranteed to snuff forgotten cig-

I showed the ad to Mary, but she insisted that we didn't have any mice or rats. rettes. Just the thing for him. He'd ordered the thing, and when it came in the mail he had found out why it had been guaranteed—it had to be filled with water. How we'd all laughed at Bill for being caught by slick advertising.

BUT how could a mousetrap be guaranteed to kill if it didn't do just that? No, I was safe enough from the hilarity of our crowd. If I bought a lemon and the story happened to leak out, I should never hear the end of it, particularly from Bill. I remember how mad he'd been when I laughed at him. But a mousetrap guaranteed to kill—there was no way of getting around it.

I tried to figure out what the thing would be like. Basically a mousetrap doesn't appear capable of much change. I mean to say, the thing we all know as a mousetrap is sound, and seems about the only way to go about catching mice short of running after them.

That same Sunday night I had dreams about mousetraps. I'm one of those guys who can always remember his dreams with crystal clarity. The mousetraps I had entertained in my subconscious during the night, while they had seemed pretty good at the time, were complete washouts in the harsh light of day. Most of them were Rube Goldberg affairs, and none of them would have worked.

I began to forget the beastly mousetrap though Mary didn't. Apparently a workable idea had come to her while she was down at the market, and she had held up the line at the cashier's counter by demanding a piece of paper and a pencil—neither of which she ever has with her—and sketching out a fairly detailed plan of the thing, dead to the selfish barracking of the pushing assortment of waiting housewives. She brought it home, indignant at the attitude of the shopping public, and showed it to me. I said it would have been the best mousetrap to hit civilization yet, and where are you going to get the cyclotron to work it?

We weren't kept in suspense too much longer. A package came in on the mail on the Wednesday or Thursday of the same week. It was very heavy, and had cost twenty-four cents to mail. We ripped it open and out came a flat slab of wood about six inches square and a piece of lead pipe a foot long. And a sheet of printed instructions which started out: Place the mouse or rat to be killed on the wooden block and strike it smartly behind the ears with the pipe. . . .

Hoofbeats Resound In the Hall of Fame

Which were the greatest? As long as the drumming hoofs of horses sound through history, the question will be argued. Racing, war, travel, breeding and the stories which men have spun—all these have added names to the Hall of Fame of the Horse.

Man o' War lies embalmed beneath a special paddock at Lexington, Kentucky (Will Harbut, proud to be a groom, always induced Big Red as the "mostest hoss in de world"). Other famous horses stand mounted in the world's museums. Tombs of still others, such as Babieca, war horse of Spain's El Cid, are lost, hunted by archaeologists.

A city was named after Bucephalus, magnificent black Thracian charger that carried Alexander the Great across the known world.

Built where the horse fell from wounds in 326 B.C., Bucephala is identified today with a mound near the city of Jhelum, Pakistan. The tireless war horse named Nelson carried George Washington to accept the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. Thirty years later, Napoleon's Marengo and the Duke of Wellington's Copenhagen galloped, to equal fame at Waterloo.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

Painting Over Shingle Stain

QUESTION: The upper half of our house is brown stained shingles. We want to paint them white. How can we do it? Is there any way we can prevent the stain from "bleeding thru"?

ANSWER: If the stain is very old and weathered it may be safe to apply a first coat of aluminum paint and then put on the house paint. But if the stain is fairly recent, it would be well to apply a stain-seal to prevent any possible bleeding through. Consult your paint dealer, and buy top quality products.

Defense Bond Purchases in County Total $32,286

Defense bond purchases in Washington county the first two weeks of the current campaign, which started Sept. 3, totaled $32,286, according to figures available by the Federal Reserve Bank at Chicago. It was reported by Thomas O'Meara, Washington county defense bond chairman. This total includes sales of series E, F and G bonds.

For Wisconsin as a whole the purchases for the two weeks were $2,977,717, of which $2,422,236 were in E bonds, the most popular type for average buyers, it was announced by Harold F. Dickens, Milwaukee, director of the Wisconsin Defense Bond committee. These figures are not complete, as they are based on only the bank reports available. The Federal Reserve bank of Chicago receives weekly sales reports from the large city banks and bi-weekly or monthly reports from other banks.

"The first returns for the first two weeks reflect an upward trend in bond purchases, due to increased interest and participation by the public," Dickens said.

"The public response has been encouraging thus far. It is evident that more and more of our citizens are realizing the importance of the objectives of the drive which are to help finance the defense program, further spread ownership of the public debt, divert money from the spending channel to help curb inflation, and to develop thrift and better citizenship."

Dickens pointed out that the figures thus far released are not a true index to what the campaign expects to achieve, as much of the opening week programs were devoted to expanding the payroll savings plan and bond-a-month purchases, activities which cannot be reflected until later weeks.

Urges Generous Response to Sr. Kenny Polio Appeal

Mrs. Victor Bauer, chairman of the Associated Farm Bureau Women, this week urged generous response to the annual Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation polio fund appeal now underway in Washington county.

In so doing, she stressed that: A cure for polio has not yet been discovered by the medical profession; nor has a preventive.

The Kenny method of treatment, which has as its main goal the restoration to normal function of body tissues ravaged by the disease, has proved more effective in such rehabilitation than any other treatment for polio.

No charge is made for the Kenny treatment, including medical and Kenny therapist services, at Kenny Institute, Minneapolis.

Heartening results achieved by the Kenny treatment in eliminating many of the previously-accepted crippling after effects of polio have resulted in more and more doctors referring their patients to Kenny Institute.

Increased requests for the Kenny treatment makes necessary the training of additional Kenny therapists.

The Elizabeth Kenny Foundation, which operates Kenny Institute and trains Kenny therapists, has no source of income other than public contributions.

"Because one never knows when polio will strike us or our loved ones, it is good insurance on our part to give generously to the Kenny fund appeal," Mrs. Bauer said. "Then, should we or members of our households be so fortunate as to be stricken with polio, the Kenny Foundation will be prepared to do its part to fight the crippling after effects once commonly associated with the disease."

"For admission to Kenny Institute, the only requirement is diagnosis or tentative diagnosis of polio by the patient's doctor and a telephone call from him to Kenny Institute, Minneapolis, GEneva 0316, to make the arrangements."

This Small Town Uses 'Special Page' To Draw Business, Attention to Itself

The Rev. Carl Steefel's report in the Publishers' Auxiliary on his home town of Ainsworth, Iowa, is a stimulating account of what a small town—Ainsworth's population is about 400—can do for itself with the right guidance and cooperation.

Focus of the action which brought improvement and prosperity to Ainsworth is a weekly "Ainsworth page" in the Washington, Iowa, Evening Journal, a fine daily in the county seat. The page consists of both news and ads, copy for which is written by local people.

A

According to Mr. Steefel, Ainsworth "had its props knocked out from under it by the depression of the 30's. For 10 or 15 years it looked as though Ainsworth never would recover. Then things began to pop. Since 1946 we've been a house afire."

The added blessings that Ainsworth has been able to count since 1946 are slightly astonishing for a town of 400. It has a million-dollar bank, a resident physician, a fully accredited chamber of commerce with 121 members, and an improvement corporation, capitalized at $100,000, to sponsor new business.

"All of which meant," in the words of Mr. Steefel, "that two years ago our problem no longer was how to get started on the upward track, but how to keep going—how to capitalize on the gains we were making."

The chamber of commerce directors were at a loss for a plan, so they dispatched a committee to the county seat town of Washington to seek advice from Ralph Shannon, editor and publisher of the Evening Journal. From that conference came the idea for the Ainsworth page, a regular Tuesday feature in the paper.

Mr. Steefel describes the page. "News and features are spread across the upper half of the page. Advertising covers the lower half. Special occasions require nearly two pages of news, features, and advertising. Except for editing, grassroots persons are responsible for all copy."

"Does it do any good . . . this special page once every week? Indeed! That's what put us on the map."

Trade has trebled, according to Mr. Steefel's report, and this remarkable increase is attributed to the fact that the special page brings Ainsworth to the attention of the farmers as their nearest and best source of supplies.

The town itself is earning a reputation throughout the country as a live-wire place to live—always an asset, says Mr. Steefel.

Local residents are brimming with enthusiasm for projects that formerly were almost beyond consideration. A typical example is the construction of a lighted softball field that attracts 300 to 400 spectators a week.

Current climax to all this progress is the fact that a big-time radio sponsor is considering featuring Ainsworth on a national network program this autumn. Preliminary program planning is already under way.

"From nearly down and out six years ago, our town has worked up to where the whole nation is alert to our deeds," Mr. Steefel sums up. "Make no mistake. It's the Ainsworth page that's doing the job for our town."

"Our stories feature persons and events—not only in the town of Ainsworth, but on farms within a radius of six to eight miles and in towns smaller than our own within the trade territory such as Cotter and Haskins."

"A typical week's stories on just the top half of one page contain 230 essential names. Names in Ainsworth stories on another page total 66."

"Is the management of the Washington Journal satisfied? Pay-off for the county seat paper is paid subscriptions for nearly 100 per cent of the town and farm families in the Ainsworth community."

Certainly, there is nothing elaborate about this device to obtain beneficial community action. It is simple, direct, and inexpensive. And in this case, at least, it is eminently successful.

We all have to learn, in one way or another, that neither men nor boys get second chances in this world. We all get new chances to the end of our lives, but not second chances in the same set of circumstances; and the great difference between one person and another is how he takes hold and uses his first chance, and how he takes his fall if it is scored against him.

NOT AS BAD AS IT LOOKS . . . No, this frightening spectacle is not a creature from Mars. And it is not a monstrous beetle having its teeth massaged. Nor is it one of those strange creations met by Alice in Wonderland. It happens to be, in fact, the rear end of a convair engine. The engine is undergoing its periodic cleanup by an airline mechanic, Al Stern, to whom the only thing grisly about the whole deal is the oil and grime that must be removed. Scene is a Chicago airport.

OBJECTION OVERRULED . . . Andy Seminick, Philadelphia Phils' catcher, goes into a huddle with Empire Finelli over Seminick's catch of a pop ball in a recent Giants-Phils match in New York. Finelli ruled that the ball hit the foul screen and was not an "out" although it was caught, Seminick disagreed, causing this minor ruckus, which looks like a slice of a peace conference or an armistice talk.

THREE ALARM FIRE SWEETS PIER . . . This is the general scene of confusion and din as fire fighters from Edgewater, N.J., go about trying to extinguish a three-alarm blaze on a pier extending into the Hudson river. The pier is next to the giant Ford Motor Company's assembly plant in Edgewater. Scene of the fire is pier A. The pier is owned by the Susquehanna railroad. At the time this picture was made, officials had reported no casualties from the conflagration.

Well Kept Buildings Add to Farm Value New Materials Make Repair Jobs Easy

The appearance and condition of its buildings will increase or decrease the value of any farm. But more than that, well-kept buildings are an indication of the farmer's efficiency and his standing in the community.

A number of new materials such as asbestos shingles or siding, masonite—a tempered hardboard, plywood and others are durable and inexpensive materials which the farmer who is handy with tools can use to increase the value of his property.

The building in the top picture is a discredit to any farm, while the one below, a remodeled version of the one above, will add to the farm's value.

Perhaps the old building will serve in its sorry-looking way, but maybe a wind storm will flatten it and any hope of salvage. It's smarter to fix up the old place and protect your investment.

If the framework has sagged, of course, it is a good policy to have the building straightened up before anything else is undertaken.

From there the farmer who is handy with tools could do the job of repairing.

Russia Speeds Up Farm Program; On War Footing

The U.S. department of agriculture reports the Communist program for agriculture is being changed to put the Soviet Union on a wartime basis.

Students of the Soviet farm system report Russia's collective farms are being arbitrarily cut in two. This means that instead of 252,000 farms, Russia will now have 123,000. The conclusion drawn from this move is that Russian farmers are being regimented more. One hundred thousand very big collective farms are easier to manage from Moscow than twice that many.

Some experts believe there will be more systematic delivery of established farm production quotas under the new plan. Meeting production quotas on Russian farms has always been a problem in the Soviet economy.

Electric Hoist

A new all-purpose electric hoist, designed to take the "back-breaking" strain out of lifting jobs on the farm, was put on the market recently. The unit includes an electric motor, trolley, cable and the necessary hooks to fit any make of litter or feed carriers. It will travel on any size or type of track and negotiates curves without difficulty. Farmers who might be interested in the equipment should enquire at their local dealers. It is manufactured by the Finchbaugh company of York, Pa.

New Control for Soil Insects Is Announced

A new control for soil insects which damage vegetable crops now is available. An ingenious manufacturer is packaging ethylene dibromide, a highly effective soil fumigant, in heavy gelatin capsules. The capsules, big as old-fashioned horse pills, are pressed into the soil at intervals throughout the garden. Soil moisture dissolves them, releasing the gas in a few hours with no danger to the user.

28 Railroad Lines Serve Chicago Yards

Cattle, hogs and sheep from the livestock producing areas arrive at the Chicago stock yards via 28 railroad lines and in many thousands of trucks. Within the yards there are nearly 150 miles of tracks, scores of modern unloading docks, truck chutes, approximately 13,000 pens, as well as stables, scale houses, grain elevators, sales ring and water systems, all of which are needed to handle the animals.

ARMY STAR NOW PRO . . . Full-back Al Pollard, the first ousted athlete in the West Point cribbing scandal to sign up for pro football, has joined the New York Yankees in Chicago. He was in time to play in exhibition match against Cards.

KING AND QUEEN . . . John Clumies Ross, "king" of the Cocos Islands, tropical paradise in Indian ocean, leaves London church with his bride, former Miss Daphne Parkinson, after their wedding. His family has ruled Cocos since 1827.

AILING PREMIER . . . Dr. Mohammed Mossadegh, premier of Iran, ill in bed, tells Iran's senate that his government will cancel the residence permits of the British oil technicians if the British do not agree to reopen negotiations within two weeks.

FASHION FLASH . . . "Wake up and dream" is what this sky-top catot in the newest fall shade, fluorescent white, is called. It's just the thing to add a lulling note to midlady's town coats and furs. Star-line veil adds to its mood of flirtation.

SCANNING THE WEEK'S NEWS of Main Street and the World

Japanese Peace Treaty Is Signed; Farm Exports Totaled $3.4 Billion

AND NOW PEACE—Guided by the United States, 48 nations last week signed the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco, possibly the most lenient pact after a bloody and bitter war in the history of the world.

Guiding Hand

John Foster Dulles, head of the American delegation to the peace treaty conference, was the guiding hand behind the treaty. He labored 11 months to bring it about.

AND NOW PEACE—Guided by the United States, 48 nations last week signed the Japanese peace treaty in San Francisco, possibly the most lenient pact after a bloody and bitter war in the history of the world.

GERMAN TREATY—Within the next few weeks, possibly days, people in the home towns can expect the announcement of a new treaty with West Germany much along the lines of the treaty given Japan.

FARM EXPORTS—The department of agriculture reported last week that farm exports in the fiscal year ended June 30 were valued at $3,409,245,000, up 14 per cent over the $2,987,257,000 for the preceding year.

STEEL SHORTAGE—The home towns of the nation will feel the steel shortage in the next few weeks and months. Defense production officials predicted a "pinch" some six months ago and last week the government cut back allocations of steel, copper and aluminum for civilian use.

As a result there will be fewer automobiles, radios, refrigerators and other consumer products in the next few months. But the shortage will hit harder at the home towns that had planned new school buildings or had them under construction.

WAR BABIES—The nation's school enrollment is expected to continue on an upward swing until 1964. Another crop of "war babies" will start to school in the next few years. For this reason many communities are in desperate need of new facilities.

Told You So

Charles Wilson, defense mobilization czar, announced a cutback in civilian steel, copper and aluminum allocations. He predicted the "pinch" six months ago.

SIGNS OF WAR—There are increasing signs in Korea that all-out war may start at any moment. The Reds continue with probing attacks against Allied troops and there are reports of considerable movement immediately behind Red lines.

CAR PRICES—The office of price stabilization has allowed automobile manufacturers an average of 5 to 6 per cent increase in new model passenger cars. The increase will be passed on by the dealer to the purchaser.

HOME CONSTRUCTION

Private Home Building Drops in August

The commerce and labor departments reported last week that private home building in August dropped one-third below August of last year and commercial building fell 6 per cent under its 1950 pace.

Millionth Soldier Lost By U. S. for All Wars

The millionth U.S. military death since the first "minute man" fell in the Battle of Lexington on April 19, 1775, occurred last week in Korea. The death came in battle after 176 years and 19 weeks of American history.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round BY DREW PEARSON

(Ed. Note—While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by several distinguished guest columnists; today's being by Corporal Charles Francisco, with the U. S. Army's Seventh Division in Korea. Corporal Francisco, a native of Urbana, Illinois, was inducted in September 1950, and sent to Korea as a machine gunner shortly thereafter.)

Loneliness and Death

WHAT is it like in Korea? What is it like to the men who are here? I think of three things around me—mountains, loneliness and death. I think of rotation and home and the future. And I think that those things are in the minds and bones of most infantrymen in Korea.

As a soldier lies in his foxhole and tries to peer through the mist that covers the top of a mountain he thinks of many things. This is his war in Korea as I see it.

It's a strange war here in Korea. It's a strange soldier we fight. Reports from intelligence speak of such things as "the Chinese may be waiting for a full moon" or "expect an attack if we get three straight days of rain."

Casualties Are Friends I remember the first man I saw killed. We had been joking about how easy we had it. Then the artillery came in. He was dead. The same shell was close enough to have gotten me but it didn't. Incidents like these encourage the foxhole faith you read about in civilian life.

Then there's the matter of heroes. Before I entered combat I thought heroism was a rare and individual thing. Long ago that was true. But today any man who performs his duties well under fire is a hero for his money. A knight of old may have singlehandedly slain dragons but a modern soldier cannot do hand-to-hand battle with a sharpshooter.

A Personal Fight I sometimes wonder if war isn't more of a personal fight than it seems. A man seldom has time to consider world ideals. It usually narrows down to kill or be killed. Korea today is not only a deadly place but also a lonely one. There are no cities, as we know them, in the battle zone. Only hills and wilderness. The infantry would thrill to see such simple things as telephone poles, paved streets, brick buildings and stores.

The Men Wonder Soldiers, as always, have their gripes. Rotation is wonderful, but sometimes it seems awfully slow in coming around. When they see stateside papers with Korean news mentioned briefly they wonder if the people back home care.

We Can Win After the last big Allied offensive we discovered we can defeat the Communists no matter how many men they have. We threw back everything the Reds had to offer and we had them running when the cease-fire talks opened.

HOLD FARM TERRACE BUILDING DEMONSTRATION AT ALLENTON

The Oscar Hagner farm located about 2 miles south and west of Allenton was the scene of a terrace building demonstration on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27. The demonstration was sponsored by the Weiss Hardware company of Allenton, dealers in Case farm machinery. The Washington County Soil Conservation service and the agricultural extension service co-operated in laying out and explaining the need for the method of building such terraces.

The demonstration showed that most soil conservation practices can be carried out with the aid of machinery locally available. Also that little, if any, cost will be incurred by the farmer.

When terraces are properly constructed most modern farm machines like grain drills, field choppers can be used for planting and harvesting purposes. This was demonstrated during the afternoon program.
