

Indians Trim Lomira 50-12; Tie for Lead

The Kewaskum High school griders drubbed Lomira by a top-heavy 50-12 score on the local field last Friday afternoon. The victory was the Indians' second in the Fox Valley Tri-County conference and mounted the team into a first place tie with the defending champion Campbellsport Belles.

Kewaskum maintained its better than 50-point-a-game offense. The previous week the Indians swamped Green Lake, 51-0, giving them a total of 101 points in two games while holding the opposition to 12. However, both Green Lake and Lomira have weak teams and Kewaskum's toughest schedule is still ahead.

The Indians had very little difficulty with the Red Lions as Floyd Staats and Howard Haack each scored a pair of touchdowns, and Hilbert Justman, Roger Krautkramer and Gordon Wierman added single scores. Justman, Wierman and Dick Hantjer booted extra points with the latter kicking a pair. Arlyn Rose scored for Lomira on a long pass play and Franny Michels ran over the second.

In other league games Campbellsport got a big score from a scrappy band of Oakfield griders before coming from behind to beat the Oaks by a slim 19-13 margin, and North Fond du Lac easily downed Green Lake, 58-14. Brandon was idle.

Kewaskum expected a severe test this Friday, invading Oakfield for the top scrap of the third round of competition in the six-man circuit. North Fond du Lac was host to Lomira and Green Lake was at Brandon. Campbellsport was idle this week.

Kenny Polio Drive Opens With Generous Response

Generous response marked opening of the annual polio appeal of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation in Washington county, according to Mrs. Bauer of the Associated Women of Farm Bureaus and chairman of the campaign.

"The Kenny treatment for polio has been proved more effective than any other method of combating this disease," Mrs. Bauer declared. "Mothers and fathers know the importance of having the Kenny treatment always available and are willing to contribute to the Kenny Foundation and its work."

"Elizabeth Kenny Institute, maintained by the Kenny Foundation, is the Kenny polio treatment center for Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota, and the international training center for Kenny therapists. Here the services of the medical staff and Kenny therapists are provided at no charge by the Kenny Foundation."

The Washington county quota for this year's appeal is $500. The goal for Wisconsin is $40,000.

"Many, many more Kenny therapists must be trained so that all polio victims who desire the Kenny treatment may have it," Mrs. Bauer said. "Training registered nurses and physical therapists in this work requires a minimum of a two year course. This training program and the many other activities of the Kenny Foundation are supported through our contributions, for the Kenny Foundation has no source of income other than funds contributed by the public."

"Polio may strike anyone, anywhere, anytime. By contributing to this appeal now, we'll help the Kenny Foundation to be prepared to help us if and when polio strikes our midst."

Begin Children's Service Society Drive in County

A letter drive to support the local program of the Children's Service society of Wisconsin began this week throughout Washington county, according to Judge F. W. Bucklin, secretary of the local sponsoring committee.

The society, a voluntary children's agency, provides specialized services in the child welfare field, including adoptive placement and care of emotionally disturbed children who should be removed from their home community. Continuing as the local committee treasurer is Joseph Weninger, Allenton State Bank, Allenton.

Other members of the Washington county sponsoring committee are: Mrs. H. W. Kuester, West Bend; Mrs. F. W. Sachse, Hartford; Mrs. O. Dea Watterlin, Germantown; Mrs. E. L. Rosenheimer, Jackson; Dr. Richard G. Edwards and Mrs. Charles Miller, Kewaskum; Mrs. Ada Thompson, Richfield, and Mrs. Louis Reich, Slinger. No solicitation is made in Hartford or West Bend where the agency participates in the community chest.

The Children's Service society is licensed by the State Department of Public Welfare to care for dependent, neglected and illegitimate children up to 15 years, or until satisfactory plans are worked out; to assume the care and guardianship of any child and to give consent to adoption; to select Wisconsin foster homes in which to place children, and to issue permits to such homes.

Many of children under care of the society come from families where one parent is out of the home. Frequently illness is the cause. There has been marked increase in mental illness among parents referred to the agency. This has usually existed for a number of years and the children are badly scared emotionally. Some parents are separated, and desertion may be the problem. Sometimes there is a health problem of the parent or child. For example, children whose mothers are in sanatoria come to the Children's Service society for care. When the health problem is centered in the child, a convalescent home or foster home may be used if the child's own home is not suitable.

Service to children in Washington county is given by workers from the society's headquarters at 734 North Jefferson St., Milwaukee 2.

Local, State Theatres Join 'Movietime' Film Jamboree

Every motion picture theatre in the state of Wisconsin will join during the new movie season which starts in October to bring audiences the greatest continuing array of outstanding new film triumphs ever to come out of Hollywood.

Announcement of Wisconsin plans to participate in the nation-wide celebration of "Movietime, U.S.A.," which will see release of every studio's finest entertainment to date beginning in October, was made this week by Manager George Hansen of the Kewaskum theatre. Mr. Hansen revealed that the national celebration of "Movietime, U.S.A." is timed to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the first motion picture theatre in the United States ever constructed for the specific purpose of film showings. During the fifty years since Talley's Theatre in downtown Los Angeles blazed the trail for today's more-than-23,000 American movie theatres, Mr. Hansen pointed out, the motion picture industry has grown to be one of the largest in the land, bringing billions in business benefits to every city and town through local theatres and all the many and varied industries which supply services and products used in film production and theatre construction and operation.

"During the celebration of 'Movietime, U.S.A.,' every theatre in Wisconsin, working with the Hollywood studios which are supplying their all-time top lineup of prize productions during the film jamboree, will show a continuing flow of outstanding films, many of which will be highlighted by personal appearances throughout Wisconsin of leading stars and Hollywood personalities."

Former Village Resident Father of Triplet Girls

Born Monday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital in Marshfield were the first triplets delivered there in 69 years. The triplets are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Backhaus, Mr. Backhaus is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Backhaus of Marshfield and the family formerly resided in Kewaskum. They have many relatives in this community and are frequent visitors here.

The triplets are Judith Raye, 4 lbs., 13 ounces; Joan Kay, 5 lbs., 79 ounces, and Jean Fay, 4 lbs., 12 ounces. The girls were reported in "very satisfactory" condition. Mr. and Mrs. Backhaus have five other children, aged 9 to 15 years. The mother is 36, the father 39.

Mr. Backhaus, a department store furniture salesman, isn't going to have as many financial problems caring for his triplet daughters as he thought he might have. Dr. Thomas Rice told the father, "I'll deliver triplets free any time." Dr. James S. Vedder, Marshfield pediatrician, recalled that his late father, Dr. James Vedder, had hoped through 40 years of practice to preside at the birth of triplets. But, although he delivered more than 6,500 babies, there were no triple births. Dr. Vedder said his father had a standing offer to provide his services without cost to the parents of triplets and he would be glad to go along with pediatric care. Sister Oswaldina of the hospital where the children were born said all hospital costs in excess of those covered by the family's insurance would be borne by the hospital. Meanwhile, the Marshfield News-Herald launched a Triplet Fund drive which in hours passed the $300 mark.

County Farmers May Set Record This Fall in Soil Conservation Practices

"Farmers in the Washington County Soil Conservation district will break all records in establishing soil conservation practices this fall if present plans are completed," says Del Wanless, local representative of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

"In order to handle the anticipated heavy work load farmers should place their requests for help immediately," Wanless continued. "By knowing the total assistance desired we can better organize our work and thus be able to take care of a maximum number of jobs this fall."

In analyzing the trend of increased interest in and demands for the establishment of soil conservation measures, E. M. Romaine, Kewaskum, chairman of the local soil conservation district governing body, says, "Farmers who have had experience in round-the-hill farming appreciate its value and want more of it. Many others, who have not started, are seeing the value of these practices for controlling soil erosion and water losses and bringing about increased crop yields and are now asking for help. Also, many farmers recall the heavy rain toll taken by some of the heavy rains of this and the past year and want to do everything they can to protect their land against further injury."

According to Del Wanless, tests have proven that yields are upped by about 10 percent where adapted contour practices, including a good fertilization and rotation program, have been used as compared to up-and-down-hill farming.

The local SCS farm planner points out that all practices the service helps to install must meet the soil conservation objective of the Department of Agriculture. In effect, this goal states that every acre should be used within its capabilities and treated in accordance with its needs for protection and improvement. "In other words, land should be used and practices tailored-designed for each and every particular soil and slope condition," Wanless commented.

Supervisor Romaine mentions that one question often raised at meetings is: Can farmers afford not to follow a soil and water conservation program when it means increased yields, improved income and holding the soil and water on the home farm? It sure makes one wonder why this program hasn't moved even faster than it has when one considers its many advantages," he continued.

As evidence of increased income, Del Wanless points out the returns of a farm record analysis made in the Grant County Soil Conservation district by the College of Agriculture and SCS. Results of this review showed that the 49 some farmers who followed a soil conservation "tailor-made" plan had an increased net income of more than $560.00 over an equal number of farmers who did not have a planned program of proper land use and soil erosion control.

In order to provide the additional assistance needed by farmers this fall in laying out practices the Production and Marketing Administration is hiring some part-time local help. These men will work under the supervision of the local SCS staff.

revision of the local SCS staff.

Practices, particularly strip cropping and waterways, staked out and partially established this fall, but not actually effective until next year, will be eligible for 1952 FMA incentive payments. Wanless cautions farmers to "leap frog" all grass waterways. "Here's where a stitch in time" may save the development of a future gully."

"Other practices that will be given a lot of attention this fall are the construction of terraces and diversions and ripping up of sod for pasture renovation," Wanless commented.

Farmers interested in obtaining the free help available to them in increasing yields and income and keeping their soil at home through the establishment of soil and water conservation practices should make their desires known by calling or writing the Washington County Soil Conservation district, the county PMA or the county agent's office.

Supervisors of your local soil conservation district, other than chairman Romaine are: Harry Sheki, county superintendent of schools, West Bend; Charles Rode, R. 2, Hartford; Reuben Schmalz, Jackson, and Adolph Schmidt of R. 1, Richfield.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

Home Town Friendliness Can Be Greatest Asset to Boost Locality

There is a strong and abiding friendliness about most small towns that is difficult to pin down in terms of mere words. While it is virtually impossible to describe, we can agree that in our own community this friendliness is the inner spirit of the town, and one of its most valued assets.

Walking along the street at night past the homes of friends and neighbors, knowing that they are at ease with their families and being amused or annoyed by the newest singing commercial, imparts to one a vivid feeling of friendliness and belonging. This is an experience we all have known, a mutual ground of good will upon which we have met and will meet again.

A
FEATURE

The impression of community faith is increased as we walk up the street in the morning, knowing that we will be greeted—perhaps a little hurriedly and off-handedly because we are familiar fixtures—but spoken to just the same by our friends. It's good to know the kids and the familiar streets and buildings and the jobs that are waiting for our daily application of effort.

Our small town means a nearness, a feeling of particular kinship for the things that count up to make our community the most agreeable place it is.

But let us not imply that the world beyond our community is lacking in this quality which is found so readily in small towns. It is simply harder to locate in a large city, where people, by virtue of their very numbers, have less opportunity to know one another. We have friends in nearby cities, for instance, who have lived in the same apartment house for years without ever having become acquainted with the people next door. They would like to know their neighbors, perhaps, but they have neither the time nor the common interests which are needed to establish friendship.

Here, however, we do have the time, and a common interest—this town. All of us, directly or indirectly, are dependent upon each other, and our entire lives revolve about our community. With the need for understanding being as great as it is today, it seems that the friendliness we have here could be our greatest asset, even from a practical, material point of view.

An extra, spontaneous act of friendliness and kindness to the stranger in our community may impel him to come this way again. And it is not unlikely that friendliness alone some day could cause a new family to move into this town to settle down and stay. There is no other coin, in fact, that can bring this kind of riches.

To examine another facet of the situation—industry, desperately in need of homes away from crowded and congested areas, is searching constantly for friendly, strong, cooperative communities in which to relocate.

As an illustration, suppose you needed a new piece of farm machinery. And suppose the questions of credit, quality, and price were equal between two firms competing for your business. But if one of those firms was especially friendly to you, greeted you pleasantly and treated you courteously, while the other was indifferent (which is a passive form of rudeness), there would be no question as to where you would take your business.

It is much the same with communities. Man is not naturally anti-social. If he were, there would be no towns—of any size, shape, or character. People like to be friendly, and they move into and become established in communities that are receptive to their friendliness and return it in kind.

This is an old, old lesson; yet it is one that too many of us have learned only imperfectly. But look about you at the wrongly woven carpet of good will and mutual trust upon which our town rests. Dwell for a conscious moment in the friendliness pervading all our local actions, businesses, and ambitions.

It should be argument enough to convince us that we ought to lose no time in starting to sell our greatest asset.

Courtesy is really nothing more than a form of friendliness. It is amazing what a warming influence it can have on an otherwise dreary world. It has been said that a rise of one degree Fahrenheit in the mean annual temperature of the globe would free both polar regions from their ice. It is thrilling to contemplate what frugidity might be dispelled in the world of human relations if people made just a little better effort to be friendly.

Ain't It So
Life is a pretty tough proposition for the poor fellow who has just enough money to get into debt and not enough to get out.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE
BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
Care of New Floors And Woodwork

QUESTION: We are moving into our new home soon and I would like some information on the care of my floors and woodwork. The floors are a re-varnished oak. The woodwork is birch, also varnished. The doors are of flush design and also varnished. It is all very light and I would like to keep it that way. What should I use when cleaning the floors and what kind of wax would you recommend? Should finger marks be removed from the woodwork with soap and water? Or what would you advise?

ANSWER: A floor finish should be protected by waxing, except when there are old people or young children in the house. Paste floor wax can be used, applied in a thin, even coat and polished after a half-hour for drying. It can be cleaned with a dry hair broom or cloth, or a specially treated mop. It should not need frequent re-waxing except as required in traffic lanes and near doorways. It should be polished or well rubbed about once a week. This can be done with a polishing weight, or a light electric floor polishing machine. Bedily soiled places can be cleaned with a liquid wax made for this purpose. (There are special non-slip floor waxes that are sold in bulks only and made especially for convalescent homes.)

Farmers Advised Now Is the Time To Cash In On Your Old Scrap

"Harvest your iron and steel scrap right away. Turn it into cash. It is needed for the making of steel for the defense program." That's the appeal being made now to farmers by the Committee on Iron and Steel Scrap, American Iron and Steel Institute. Inventories of scrap are critically low at mills and foundries because of their record high production. Bigger stockpiles are needed if steel output is to be maintained and increased. "How much scrap is there on your farm?" asks the Committee. "Whatever the amount, it is badly needed. And there's money in it for you, if you harvest it now. At the first opportunity, get that scrap together. Take it to town and sell it to your scrap dealer. Or call him to your farm. If that cannot be worked out, ask the local farm agent to help make an arrangement so that the scrap can be moved."

A long step in the goal toward increasing the flow of scrap would be assured if each farmer sold only a few pounds of iron and steel scrap for each acre of farm land he operates. Worn-out parts of tractors, cultivators or other implements and discarded tools are among the items needed. The total consumption of scrap in the first half of this year was about 20 per cent higher than in the same part of last year. In June 1951, supplies at some steel plants declined to only a few days' reserves.

With winter coming on, when scrap is more difficult to find, and with steel capacity scheduled to be sharply increased, the situation is truly critical, according to the committee. More scrap must be obtained from farms in order to make more steel!

WISCONSIN'S ANNUAL FARM FIELD DAY SET FOR OCT. 12

Oct. 12 is the date for Wisconsin's largest agricultural field day. It is the annual farm get-together at the agricultural experiment station on the University of Wisconsin campus.

Feature of the field day this year is corn, and farmers who attend the event will see the research work on this crop at Charman farms west of Madison.

All phases of corn production for Wisconsin will be reviewed, including insect and weed control, and fertilization. Machinery used in harvesting and storing corn will be demonstrated.

A marketing trailer, which has toured the state to display handling and grading of produce, will be on hand for the field day.

LOCALLY GROWN APPLES AND POTATOES GOOD BUY

With the consumer's food dollar buying less groceries today than ever before, housewives are desirous to know of economical food buys. At this time locally grown apples and potatoes are good buys. Local growers are now picking Wealthy and Milton apples. Both of these varieties are good for eating and good for all other culinary uses.

The picking of McIntosh and Cortlands and other commonly grown autumn varieties will start soon. These, too, at present prices represent economical buys.

Most home grown potatoes are a economical buy in bushel lots at present retail prices.

Driving "too fast for conditions" was the leading driver error in last year's traffic accidents in Wisconsin, the motor vehicle department reports. Records show 11,641 drivers guilty of this violation, 9,259 failed to yield right-of-way at intersections, 3,707 failed to stay in their correct lane, 3,365 were following other vehicles too closely, and 1,856 were guilty of improper starting from parked position.

A Visit With Ty Cobb

Grantland Rice

I had a nice visit with an old friend the other night at Toots Shor's. His name happens to be Ty Cobb. I was playing a game called piker in the office of the Atlanta Journal back in 1903 when a telegram arrived. It was collected. It said, in effect — "Ty Cobb has just started spring training at Rayston. Keep your eye on him." There was much more. I wired back—never having heard of 17-year-old Ty— After this the mails are fast enough for Cobb. Who is Cobb?

I found out later. I still believe the original telegram was sent by Cobb. After that he bombarded me with numerous letters, signed by various names. Cobb then was 17 or 18. He was thinking fairly fast as a kid. Ty still figures that the great division in baseball between skill and power was started by Babe Ruth. This is no knock at Ruth. You can't knock a tidal wave or a tornado.

"Before the Babe came along," Ty said, "baseball was largely a matter of speed and skill—plus pitching. Home runs were unimportant. Home Run Baker got his name by hitting nine home runs back in 1911 and two more in the world series against the Giants of Marquard and Mathewson. Most of us choked bats and pumped the ball to left, right or center. Then we depended on base running speed or skill.

"When the Babe reported the game went entirely to power. The Babe was the greatest power hitter baseball has ever known, no matter who might break his famous 60. But the Babe changed the old game.

"The Babe, a great all-around ballplayer, mean home runs. Don't forget the Babe was also a great pitcher and also a fine outfielder. But most of all the Babe's biggest asset was home runs." This is all true. The Babe was probably as fine a pitcher as he was a hitter. But it was the big blow that brought him renown. Cobb was an accurate hitter and a cyclone on the base paths.

We won't try to settle the age-old argument between power and skill.

The Cobb Rating
Ty Cobb today, looking younger than his 60-odd years likes the old game better—the game that belonged to skill and speed.

Cobb stole close to 900 bases. His base running was even more important than his steals—going from first to home on a single. Today a slugger who doesn't get at least 20 or 25 home runs is a bunter.

I recall a conversation many years ago between Cobb and Ring Lardner, Sr.

"If I wanted to take a full swing and go after home runs, I could have had my share," Cobb said.

"Why don't you?" Ring said. Lardner was a great Cobb roofer, over the Babe or anyone else.

In the next two days in St. Louis, Cobb got three home runs the first game and two in the second, as I recall it. Five home runs in two games.

"How is that?" Cobb wired Ring. "Go back to hitting and running." Ring wired. "I like you better that way."

Cobb employed a greater combination of brains and skill than any ballplayer that ever lived. Ty Cobb's life was baseball—for over 24 active years. The Babe loved baseball just as much as Cobb did, but he had other dimensions.

The Third Big League
Will there be a new third big league? And if so, will it be on the Pacific Coast, or a new league involving Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Baltimore, Buffalo, Milwaukee, etc?

The West Coast knows it isn't ready in a ball-park way to handle a big league at this time. But here is the Pacific Coast idea as it is given to me by one of the prominent club owners:

"We want to be a new third league as soon as possible. But several things must take place before we are ready."

We locate young stars and either have to sell them or see them drafted. If we knew we could keep these players—such men as the two DiMaggios, Ted Williams, Fain, Joe Gordon and many others—we could then build much bigger parks. We need parks from 30,000 to 40,000 capacity.

"I have been asked if we could afford to pay a DiMaggio or a Williams or a Feller from $50,000 to $100,000. Not now, of course. But given new parks we could easily afford to pay those amounts—and even more."

ENRICHED BREAD

Enrichment of White Bread With Vitamin B Started 10 Years Ago

Enriched white bread in the past ten years has resulted in the virtual wiping out of two deficiency diseases and has contributed materially to better health and increased vigor to the American people, according to statements from outstanding authorities in medical and nutritional science.

Families such as the one pictured above enjoy better health today, leading scientists declare, because the bread they consume has been enriched with vitamins and minerals.

Bakers all over America this year are celebrating the decennial bread enrichment. It was in March, 1941, when the enrichment program got under way on a national scale.

White bread "enrichment" is simply the raising in bread of the content of the B vitamins—niacin, thiamin and riboflavin—and iron. Those elements are produced in volume in the process of milling wheat into flour.

The two diseases which result from a lack of the B vitamins are called beriberi heart disease and pellagra. While the average person probably is not too familiar with either of these, they were not at all uncommon in the United States prior to 1941.

The B vitamins perform an important function in the body. They make it possible to eat an ample quantity of food but still suffer from malnutrition if B vitamins were not present in sufficient quantity to make the proteins, carbohydrates and other food properties adequately absorbed into the body.

It was indications of this lack of proper nourishment which was causing considerable concern among doctors and nutritionists in the 1930's. The state of the nation's health was definitely not good and the fact was pointed up sharply when the draft started in 1940 and 1941. Thousands of young men were rejected for military service and the cause for some of the rejections could be traced to malnutrition.

The discovery of how to make B vitamins by chemical combinations in 1936 made it possible to provide the people with the vitamins. The method of getting the vitamins to the mass of the people was another problem. Consultation between government health authorities and scientists brought about an approach to the flour millers and bakers.

These meetings culminated in agreement that bread was the natural place for the vitamins and the program was launched in 1941. The B vitamins belonged in bread, since they were present in the original whole grain. Bread is a universal food, appearing most frequently in most families. And bread is one of the least expensive of foods. These facts added up to the obvious conclusion that the best place to provide B vitamins was in bread. Enriched bread thus came into being.

TO THE AVERAGE consumer, enrichment has meant general betterment of physical well being, the scientists say. Studies among children reveal, in test cases, that youngsters who received B vitamins were more vigorous, more alert, less peevish, while those whose diets did not include B vitamins were listless, inclined to cry more readily and showed little inclination for play.

Changing living habits were major factors in making the enrichment program necessary. Around 1900, 95 per cent of all the bread consumed in America was made in the home, today, 95 per cent is made by bakers.

Four 50 years ago was not as fully refined as it is today and more of the nutritional elements of wheat were obtained in the daily diet. Better transportation and better methods of processing, shipping and handling food brought a greater variety to daily diet.

Each American used to eat more than 200 pounds of cereal products each year. Recently the average has been about 135 pounds. Too, the consumer insists on a white and light loaf of bread which means less of the B vitamins are present in the product reaching the consumer table.

Health authorities who were more and more alarmed by the declining state of national health in the mid-30's made strenuous efforts to promote greater use of whole wheat bread, but with no noticeable results. The consumer still wanted white bread.

Today, a huge percentage of all white bread made by American bakers is enriched.

THE FICTION CORNER

3-Minute Fiction

THE reason my husband has been nicknamed Big Red is because he's over six feet tall, carrot-topped and peppery dispositioned. While painting our home and reaching far out from the top of the ladder Big Red fell. There were more people than the doctor and I to realize that my husband had broken his leg. He was howling mad!

Surprisingly, though, Big Red wasn't too bad a patient during his long hospitalization. Yes, leave it to him—he did a royal job, nothing simple and routine! His fracture required specialists, operations and enough paraphernalia around his bed to make it resemble Frankenstein's nightmare. That's my Big Red!

During those long months before he came home Big Red said that the thing he was most thankful for was that he was away from the Sanders, the Markhams, and the Keatings. Perhaps in other neighborhoods there are more family's like those three. If so, I can sympathize with all who live neighbor to thoroughly nice but thoroughly tiresome folks. Take Mr. Sanders, for instance. He has gall stones. The way he describes the pain, the many medicines the doctors have tried to dissolve them is something to remember for days. When anyone suggests an operation, Mr. Sanders gasps, "Oh, no!" You wonder if one would rob him of his only conversational topic!

Little Mrs. Markham is sweet and lovely. She seems so—until she mentions she didn't sleep last night, the night before and for weeks has heard the clock strike every hour! She's tried counting sheep, hot milk and drugs. Nothing helps. Then there's Mr. Keating. He's next in size to Big Red. His wife is an allergy. When he and his wife come in maybe it's the new davenport pillow that he stares at like it came from Mars. He's spent hours receiving painful shots and telling about them.

WHEN Big Red finally came home and was established in bed he told me to ask the Sanders, Markhams and the Keatings all to visit. Those bores—and all at once. Wondering if complex broken legs could upset a man mentally, I argued gently. Big Red roared so I asked the three couples over.

It must have been the first time anyone had dared having the three chronic complainers under one roof. How the conversation flew! "My painful gall stones—" was interrupted with, "—not a good night's sleep for three years!" Then Mr. Keating pounced on one of Big Red's fluffy blankets and gave me a run down on awful allergies. I looked at my husband. He was smiling!

Then he began! With a voice that could make a general stand at attention, Big Red described the troubles he'd undergone. He reeled off treatments, doctors, specialists, traction affairs, the silver plates that had been applied to his leg bone during the operations, the pain, the sleeplessness, the discomfort, the way the doctors had been perplexed, hundreds of shots! "I was terrific. I think my mouth flew open and I forgot to shut it."

When our company looked at each other in extreme boredom and wiggled their feet experimentally as though they wondered how soon they could decently leave.—Big Red winked at me! He took a deep breath—and began again on the horrors of his case.

Out on the porch, with Big Red's voice just a muted roar our guests expressed their sympathy. "Such a one track mind!" said Mr. Keating.

"Don't you get tired of hearing him talk about pain?" asked Mr. Sanders who never tires of his! I stepped inside, closed the door on their pity. Then I went to Big Red... and we giggled, we roared with laughter. Big Red's bed shook. "I can't wait 'til we see them... next time," I told him, finally.

"If this cure doesn't work," Big Red agreed, "I could always do a repeat!"

Somehow, though—I'm sure there will be no need!

Cancer Mortality On The Decline

Encouraging indications of a decline in cancer mortality are reported by statisticians who base their findings upon the postwar experience of millions of industrial policyholders.

Favorable developments in the cancer picture are most evident, the statisticians point out, when the recent trend of mortality is studied according to whether the primary site of the disease is accessible or inaccessible to diagnosis.

For the accessible sites as a group, both men and women in the insurance experience recorded declines in the death rate from 1946-47 to 1949-50, men by 2.4 per cent and women by 7.2. There was a reduction in female mortality from almost all the accessible specific types of cancer.

In the case of the inaccessible sites as a whole, the death rate among women declined 1.1 per cent, but, on the other hand, that among men showed an increase of 4 per cent. However, both sexes showed decreases for such specific sites as the stomach, intestines, other digestive organs, bladder, and liver.

Considerable increases in death rates were recorded for cancers of the lungs and other respiratory areas.

Greatly intensified efforts have been put forth on all fronts since the end of the war to fight cancer. These have included the expansion of diagnostic facilities, the opening of more special cancer hospitals, and intensified cancer research. In addition, the statisticians state, "great emphasis is still placed upon early recognition and treatment of the disease."

Good or Bad?

"I had a mighty queer surprise this morning," remarked the stock broker. "I put on my last summer's thin suit on account of this extraordinary hot weather, and in one of the trousers pockets I found a big roll of bills which I had entirely forgotten."

"Were any of them receipted?" asked a pessimist.

If Truman Wins Again, Republicans Are Through

By Wright A. Patterson

THROUGH his numerous addresses throughout the nation, notably those in Texas, Washington, Boston and others, General Douglas MacArthur has given the American people "that something to be for" rather than only something to be against.

This he has done in unmistakable words which admit no possible misinterpretations—not weasel words to confuse. Through these statements he has established the clarion call for political battle in 1952.

He calls for a battle for the freedom of the American people as individuals, freedoms established and passed down to us by our forefathers, the founders of this nation.

General MacArthur, without any desire for political reward, has given words to what the Republican leaders either could not or would not express. And he has driven the idea to a point where it must be accepted as a plank on which the campaign will be waged.

Should it, by any chance, not be accepted as the gauge of battle with an insistence that the fight be along that line, the President, if he be the Democratic candidate, will win, and the Republicans as such will be through.

In providing the one issue, that of freedom of the individual, General MacArthur covers all the issues that could be expected. It embraces the opposition toward the drift toward socialism, maintenance of the private enterprise system, the rights of states and local governments—all are wrapped up in one package labeled "freedom of the individual citizen." He has sold freedom as opposed to government direction and persuasion.

There they are, the issues of the 1952 campaign, expressed as the people like them. It only remains for Republican leaders to accept what is theirs for the taking with no strings tied to the package.

What it would go the enthusiasm statements at the general delivered them from many platforms. Certainly, these Republican leaders cannot be foolish enough to turn away! It's a campaign ready made for any party nominee—with the exception of General Eisenhower. Such a pronouncement would not be a "viewing with alarm" by either the party or MacArthur.

It would constitute a promise of what the party would do in exchange for victory, the thing for which General Douglas MacArthur, the popular hero, has asked to be done.

The unsupported statements of the approach of the Russian war wolf have ceased to jar the nerves or arouse the fears of the American people, though they have not stopped the appropriations of more billions for preparedness on the part of congress.

A preparedness that does not seem to advance as rapidly as so many billions would indicate. The people are taking the war cries largely as a hoax. They did react for a time to the President's announcement that Russia had created and exploded an atomic bomb, but there has been no evidence offered to substantiate that statement.

He has not told us the source of his information, and lacking anything in the way of corroboration the people, largely have accepted that statement as but a part of the system of hoaxing, as a means of keeping tax increases flowing.

We hear the name-calling, and denunciations of the Russian representatives to the United Nations, and we hear the equally strenuous name calling and vilification for Russia on the part of American spokesmen, including the President. But such statements do not constitute war.

There are no advancing airplanes, or tanks, or gory battlefields. And between the cries of war we have the President's statement that we are nearing a state of peace. That, too, may be but a political hoax, preparing the way for the campaign of 1952. Anyway the people have quit taking the President's statement either way seriously.

The 1952 elections will determine whether the nation turns to the right or goes further to the left.

Will the next congress see how much it can spend?

IT'S MOVIE TIME, in WISCONSIN U.S.A.
 Celebrating the GOLDEN JUBILEE of the American Movie Theatre
GO TO A MOVIE TONIGHT!
 BUT FIRST YOUR MOVIE MAN OF THIS TOWN WOULD LIKE TO ASK YOU A QUESTION
 Did you ever stop to think what an important part in everyday life the Movies play? Or, put it this way—
WHAT KIND OF WORLD WOULD IT BE WITHOUT MOVIES?
 The Motion Picture Theatre in any community is a haven of entertainment at modest prices. The talents of great artists are yours in an atmosphere of comfort and ease. The theatre, like schools and churches, play an important role in civic responsibility. We bring this thought to you because we want you to join not only with us, but with every theatre in the State in celebrating
MOVIE TIME IN WISCONSIN
 And we promise you the greatest parade of pictures ever made during this Jubilee.
 So why not relax and go to a movie tonight?
 Sincerely, THE MOVIE MAN OF YOUR TOWN
