Blood Club Collects Record 273 Pints

When there's a job to be done the people of Washington county do it.

This was proven by the amazing turnout for last Thursday's donation to the West Bend Community Blood Donor club. Officials of the club had estimated that 200 volunteers would be needed at Thursday's blood clinic to replenish the club's exhausted reserve and insure successful operation of the organization well into 1952.

So what happened? The big response went far over the top with a grand total of 273 pints of blood collected. Of this amount 219 pints were credited to the Community Blood Donor club and 54 pints were donated to the Blood for Korea drive since the 219 pints were considered adequate for normal operation of the club. The 54 pints were taken to Milwaukee by taxi and by Thursday evening were shipped by air freight from the Milwaukee air terminal on the first leg of their westward flight to Korea.

At 7 p. m., Thursday, when the clinic was originally scheduled to close, there were still volunteers waiting and approximately 35 persons had to be turned away and rescheduled for a later date because of the shortage of special blood donor bottles. It was the largest number of persons ever to donate blood in West Bend, including Blood for Defense collections during World War II, and closely approached the largest single donation ever handled by the mobile unit of the Junior League Blood center.

The Community Blood Donor club makes unlimited quantities of blood instantly available again and again to patients vitally needing transfusions. Last year a saving of $7,000 in medical expenses was realized from the donated blood.

Names of the following Kewaskum people were detected on the list of donors with the possibility that some may be unintentionally omitted:

Second time—Tom Green, Edmund Haack, Morris O. Hammer, Fred Miller, Joe Miller, Henry Rosenheimer, Mrs. Hattie Weddig. First time—L. N. Bath, Clayton Kohn, Ernest Mitchell, Claver Simon, Walter Stenman. All of the above donors are from the village, none being from the rural areas.

Hunting Season Opens Saturday

Upland Game Birds, Waterfowl and Squirrels May Be Taken Starting at 1 P. M.; Outlook Very Good

Wisconsin's 1951 hunting season opens this Saturday, Oct. 13, at 1 p. m. on upland game birds, waterfowl and squirrels. The hunting outlook this year is reported to be very good throughout the state. Ducks and geese have been coming into the state in large numbers and reports are that there are more than there has been in many years. It is said some surrounding lakes, rivers and creeks are crowded with waterfowl and hunters should see plenty of action. The outlook on pheasants and squirrels is also good. Hunters are cautioned that shooting hours are from one-half hour before sunrise to one hour BEFORE sunset.

The pheasant hunting period continues through Nov. 11, Armistice day, there being a longer season this year. The bag limit is two roosters daily and four in possession. No hens may be legally shot. Outlook—Should be better than 1950. A long season and early shooting hours should be a boon to hunters. Best hunting probably will continue to be in the southeast counties.

Ruffed grouse (partridge) may be hunted at the same time pheasants are legal game. The partridge bag limit is five each day, 10 possession. Outlook—Very good, and may be the best year. Good hunting to be found in remote areas away from roads.

Hungarian partridge may be hunted through Nov. 11 with bag limits of five daily and 10 possession. Outlook—Very good, especially in the lake shore counties, and can stand more hunting pressure.

Bobwhite quail may be hunted in 22 western and southern counties. Bag limit five daily, 10 possession. Outlook—About average. Hunters are missing good sport by not going after the bobwhite.

Gray and fox squirrels may be taken in Fond du Lac, Sheboygan and some other surrounding counties from Saturday through Dec. 15. Five may be killed each day and 10 in possession. Last year the daily bag limit was three. The squirrel season in Dodge and Washington counties is shorter, extending through Nov. 11. Outlook—Hunting, especially for gray squirrels, should be very good in the west, southwest and north; fair to poor in the south and east.

Cottontail rabbits may be taken in Fond du Lac, Dodge, Sheboygan, Washington and other counties from Nov. 3 through Jan. 15, with a daily bag limit of three and possession six. Outlook—Fair to good, with the clean-farmed areas of the southeast having the poorest hunting.

With the waterfowl season opening this year with the upland bird and squirrel season, many hunters are expected to turn their attention to that sport. Waterfowl may be taken until Nov. 25. Bag limits vary as follows: Ducks—Bag 4, possession 8; coot (mudhen)—Bag 10, possession 10; rail—Bag 15, possession 15; geese—Bag 5, possession 5; woodcock—Bag 4, possession 8. The woodcock season extends only through Oct. 31. Outlook—Very good because of an early, heavy flight from Canada. Large concentrations throughout the state. Pot holes filled with water from heavy rains. Promise best showing in years.

Raccoon hunters may shoot 20 during the season from 1 p. m. Nov. 1 through Dec. 20 in Fond du Lac, Washington, Dodge and other counties in this area. There are no shooting hour restrictions and no daily bag limit. Woodchuck, foxes and skunk may be killed throughout the year with no restrictions nor bag limits. Badger may be taken from 1 p. m. Oct. 13 through Dec. 15.

There are 2 public hunting grounds in this vicinity as follows:

Kettle Moraine state forest—Follow County Trunk Hwy. G north out of Kewaskum, or State Hwy. 67 and County Hwy. G south from Dundee. Signs are posted along County Hwy. G, 5.900 acres.

Kewaskum public hunting grounds—Located between Kewaskum and Barton, adjacent to the west of U. S. Hwy. 45, 1,000 acres.

Kewaskum Wins 3rd From Oaks; Tops Loop

The Kewaskum Indians won their third straight Fox River Valley Tri-County conference football game at Oakfield last Friday to take over sole possession of first place. But they received a tough battle from the aggressive Oaks before winning out, 24-18. Kewaskum won its two previous contests over Green Lake and Lomira by overwhelming margins.

The defeat was Oakfield's second close one. They lost by the same margin to the defending champion Campbellsport Belles. Ron Vorpahl and Floyd Stautz accounted for two touchdowns apiece for Kewaskum. Bill Collien tallied two and Dwayne Ryan one for the Oaks.

Ryan scored first when he scooped up a fumbled pass and rambled 75 yards across the Indian goal line. Kewaskum went ahead 12-6 but the losers came back to move in front 18-12. Then the Indians powered back to score the winning tallies.

In other games Friday North Fond du Lac rolled up eight touchdowns to overwhelm Lomira 57-12 and Brandon dedicated a new football field with an easy 55-0 pasting of Green Lake. It seems Kewaskum, Campbellsport, N. Fond du Lac, Oakfield and Brandon are all pretty evenly matched, while poor Green Lake and Lomira are far inferior and take the drubbings.

Floyd Stautz of the Indians is tied for first place in the individual scoring race with Elmer Hintz of North Fond du Lac, each having scored 39 points. Close behind are Dave Wondra, Campbellsport; Steve Bruley, North Fondy, and Billy Collien, Oakfield, all with 24. Two of the conference's four undefeated had to fall this week—Friday when Kewaskum invaded North Fondy and Brandon traveled to Campbellsport. In the other contest Oakfield played at Green Lake. Lomira met Randon Lake in a non-league affair.

Kewaskum, on the strength of three victories, holds the technical lead, with Campbellsport, idle last week, in second on a 2-0 mark. Only a 4-6 tie marks the records of North Fondy and Brandon.

Immunization Clinics to Be Held in County Schools

Washington county immunization clinics will begin Oct. 15. The clinics will be held in 10 areas of the county to give a series of three inoculations for lockjaw, diphtheria and whooping cough to children 4 through 7 years of age. Each "shot" will contain immunizing agents of all three diseases. The shots will be spaced four weeks apart. Smallpox vaccination will be given at the second series of clinics held in November.

Parents! Are your children safe from the serious communicable diseases of diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox? If they have not been immunized bring your children to the clinic nearest your home.

The schedule of the first clinics is as follows: Kewaskum—High school, 9:00 a. m., Oct. 15.

Boltonville—State Graded school, 10:15 a. m., Oct. 15.

Residents of the city of West Bend will be offered this protection in their doctor's offices beginning Oct. 15 through Oct. 29.

Thousands of parents have kept their children safe from these dread diseases by the simple and safe procedure of immunization. Constant vigilance is necessary if our present control of the diseases is to be continued. Medical authorities advise the following course to follow. Have a smallpox vaccination before entering into school—preferably before one year of age. Be re-vaccinated every 5 to 7 years. Have immunization "shots" for diphtheria and whooping cough before entering school—preferably before a year of age and a "booster" shot before the age of 10 years.

The Case of Sal Maglie

BASEBALL is replete with queer odds and angles, mystery and tangles, but in nothing that quite approaches the strange case of one Salvatore Maglie, star pitcher of the Giants and possibly the star pitcher of both leagues.

How could it all happen? Up until midsummer last year, Sal Maglie, born in Niagara Falls 34 years ago, was just another unknown pitcher with the Giants.

He had been in baseball for 12 years, starting with Buffalo in 1936, and yet by 1950 had won only 46 games in organized baseball—an average of four games a year.

Then suddenly Maglie starts last summer, wins 18 games and drops four for an average of .818. That's what you call pitching. This season Maglie moves into mid-September with 20 victories and six defeats for a mark of .768.

Maglie's three-year record with Buffalo was no wins and one loss, three and seven, nothing and seven—four wins against 14 setbacks, a rather fuzzy setup.

He retired in 1943 and 1944, in 1945 he won five games for the Giants and dropped four, before departing to the Mexican League where he worked four years. Then suddenly in the last two seasons he has a combined mark of 38 victories against ten defeats, a mark well above .750.

"How could this happen?" I asked the quiet, likeable Giant star. "I couldn't tell you," he said, with a slow smile. "I honestly couldn't."

Six feet two, weighing above 190 pounds, he has an ideal build for the pitching job.

"Everyone took me for granted as just another second-rate pitcher and I couldn't seem to win enough games to change things. I kept trying to learn, and I had a chance to work out several ideas while pitching in Mexico. I had a chance to pitch regularly down there—and that helped. It helped a lot."

Control the Factor

"Just what did you learn that counted most?" I asked.

"Control," Maglie said. "I have a fairly fast ball, but I don't bank on my speed to win. I'm no burn-er-by-pitcher. Control and curves are enough if you have both. Control doesn't mean getting a ball over the plate. It often means pitching into a two-inch spot, low or high, inside or out.

"There are certain batters who can hit anything. But there aren't too many. By hard work I found the control I needed, and I knew pretty well what a flock of hitters could hit and what they couldn't hit. Most of them have weaknesses."

"That's what made Grover Cleveland Alexander such a great pitcher," I suggested. "A lot of hitters felt like crying when they had to bat against Old Pete."

"Control can do you a lot of good," Maglie said. "Around 1943 I had almost given up. I didn't seem to be going anywhere. I was certainly glad to get a chance to work in turn last summer. That makes a big difference to a pitcher."

I asked Leo Durocher why he had waited so long to start using Maglie as a regular.

"By the time he came back to the Giants," Leo said, "Sal was around 32 years old. He had been with the Mexican League and I knew little about him. You could see that he had kept himself in condition, but I had other pitchers I knew more about.

"Then suddenly we began to run shy of pitchers. Outside of Jansen, the staff we had didn't look so hot. So we bought Jim Hearn and put Maglie to work. You know what happened after that. We played the best ball in the league. Maglie was a wonder.

"It was a question at 34 how he'd go this season. His record answers that. I'll admit Maglie's case is one of the strangest in baseball—the case of a pitcher who started when he was 21 and didn't begin winning until he was 33. Maybe you can figure that one out, I can't."

Neither can Sal Maglie, today as fine a pitcher as either league knows, and certainly as smart a pitcher as I've seen in years.

Picking Up an Argument

Who is more important—the passer or the receiver? I have heard so many fevered words on this subject that I'm a trifle dizzier than usual.

Who would you rather have? Sammy Baugh or Dan Hutson? Otto Graham or Lavell and Speedie? It must be admitted that the star passer gets most of the credit. But there is much to be said for the fast, slippery, ball-gripping end who can fake you out of position and make the catches.

My old pal Jimmy Conzelman tells me Dan Hutson is the most valuable football player, for a team, that he ever saw. I saw Hutson take Howell's passes and fake star stars as Bones Hamilton, Keith Topping and other Stanford stars out of position while they were all around him. Hutson turned the entire pro league upside down.

Hutson was the finest pass receiver the game has seen up to this point. He took the 100 yards in 9.8, take a pass and fake at the same time. He was the incredible ghost.

TRAFFIC FATALITIES

1,000,000th Traffic Death Will Occur During December

About the middle of December the 1,000,000th traffic death will occur in the United States.

It is shocking to realize that since the turn of the century, since the first automobile chugged and hissed to the derision and excitement of a horse-drawn era, the lives of almost 1,000,000 men, women and children have been squandered in one of the most senseless and tragic wastes of modern times.

There are numerous reasons for this great accident death rate. While most states have a statute requiring examination for driver's license, only a few administer the law strictly enough to give it meaning. Thousands of drivers lack the skills, physical faculties and mental attitudes for safe driving. Re-examination of older drivers or those who have been involved in accidents or violations is virtually nonexistent.

Only 13 states permit tests of blood alcohol to be used in court against the most reprehensible motoring miscreant—the drinking driver.

Engineering and road building have fallen far behind the demands of the motor age. Lack of funds is the common excuse.

Automatic revocation of a driver's license for serious misconduct is invoked all too seldom. Jail sentences are few. The system of fines and penalties throughout the nation is a hodgepodge of improvisation, the temper of the court, and the stature and legal counsel of the defendant.

These are but a few of the more obvious holes in the dike of traffic safety. They can be plugged, but only through the aroused interest and insistent support of people who care.

Safety authorities report the most shocking thing about the accident toll is the inescapable fact that few Americans feel any real personal concern. As their fellows perish about them, they look on with a detachment and complacency that is difficult to understand and even more difficult to alter.

There rests the keystone of the entire traffic safety structure—personal concern. The duty of every responsible citizen is to strive for traffic safety as a voter, as a volunteer worker in whatever capacity his interests and abilities direct, and as a driver and pedestrian. Even the relatively small percentage of accidents caused by mechanical failure of motor vehicles could be reduced if owners would make sure their cars are in safe condition.

The question remains; what will it take to spur the nation into action? Will it be 1,000,000 deaths?

THE FICTION CORNER

THE TRAP

By Daniel Shifren

"Trist!" Howie called again. "Trist! Over here!"

Tristram Olds set the rake against the barn and ran over the knoll to the orchard.

Howie was bundled against a tree, trussed wrist and ankle, very pale.

"Goodness, Boss-sh!" whooshed from Trist's dry, thin lips as he undid the bonds.

"There, that's good enough. I'll finish by myself. Get to the barn fast. It may be ablaze by now."

Trist, amazement on his whisker-framed face, jounced his aging bones and came up the incline beathing hard.

Flame licked over the haymow. He swept up two pails and raced down to the pump. Howie came running too.

They scampered around for half an hour. At last the smoke began to trail away.

"That's for now," said Howie, "but we'll have to keep a sharp lookout."

When Sheriff Gunfrey arrived, Howie had changed clothes and was rocking on the porch.

"What's all this, about burnin' barns down? Hasn't been anything like this since I copped the election."

"They tried it right enough," said Howie. "Know of any strangers in town?"

"None," said Gunfrey.

"Well, little matter. They're from somewhere round here. But I guess either Sholl or Long is the guilty party—either one or both."

Gunfrey fired the crusty cake in his pipe and puffed. "How you figure that, Howie? They're neighbors, man."

He led a coil of black wire through deep grass until he reached the pine tree. He attached the wire to the house bell.

"In the last couple weeks they tried to buy out my farm. Kept upping the price, but I told 'em 'No. I got no yen to sell this place.'"

"Did they make any threats?"

"They sure wasn't pleased."

"Hm. I'll hunt around town and ask 'em some questions. Ring me anything turns up."

HOWIE and Trist alternated on lookout. Chores were left undone. Then, during the night before Howie told Trist to discontinue the watches, he slipped out to the barn and emerged with a shovel and trowel. He worked and as light gray rose over the horizon, he laid out the last strips of straw and grass, returned the tools to the barn and came back.

He led a coil of black wire through deep grass until he reached the pine tree. He wound the wire around and attached the house bell he had in his back pocket.

The next morning he said to Trist, "No use to keep up the watches. They're not likely to come back."

Trist grunted. "Sure. Might as well get back to work."

The unexpected shrill of the house bell came that night. Howie rushed out without donning trousers. Trist behind him crying, "What's that bell for!"

But Howie did not answer.

He swept the pit with a powerful flash, picking up their figures. One's bandanna slipped as he tried to escape the slippery pit and he recognized Jerry, Trist's youngest son.

The boy's eyes, large with fright, lit on Trist and he cried out, "Dad!"

Howie's flash went out then. He heard them stumbling away.

The telephone rang before Howie could make his call. It was Gunfrey.

"Which one of 'em was it bought out Trist's boys to fire my barn, Gunfrey?"

Gunfrey said, "You were right, Howie. I didn't know—I mean about Trist."

"More the boys. They wanted the money bad. Trist could 't do nothing with 'em. Afraid they'd get caught so he kept his mouth shut."

"Howie, I broke Long down. He tried to blame Sholl, but I got him to admit something like what he was up to."

"I was thinkin' I'd hate to prosecute anyone seein's no harm done."

"I don't want you to, Sheriff, only . . . I thought about that." Gunfrey laughed his cackle. "Long won't be around after tomorrow I'm lettin' him leave town."

In New York to promote the picture they were being run ragged, what with meeting the mayor, keeping radio and television dates, and appearing at ceremonies all over town. At lunch Derek could hardly eat: the hardy veteran of those really tough football sequences was booked to appear on TV that night and was really scared. Donna wasn't afraid of anything except that her young family might need her before she gets home; her son's just a year old.

Donna Corcoran will become Metro's new Margaret O'Brien, if the executives' wishes come true. The nine-year-old has appeared in two pictures, "Angels in the Outfield" and "Young Man in a Hurry" and will star in her third.

Maureen O'Hara must like costume pictures, she makes so many of them. Her latest assignment is "Against All Flags," for Universal-International; she'll play the leader of a band of pirates, in the 18th century.

Here's something really new. Paramount will hold the first showing of "My Favorite Spy," new Bob Hope-Hedy Lamarr comedy, in the home of a movie fan, complete with guest stars and spotlights. Just write the winning letter stating "Why I would like to have 'My Favorite Spy' premiered in my home," address it to Bob Hope Contest, Box 382, Hollywood, California, and if you win you'll get the works. Bob is publicizing the contest for the next few weeks on his new NBC radio series. Good luck!

Socialism in England Is Popular With Laborers

By Wright A. Patterson

THE DEFINITELY ANNOUNCED purpose of the English Labor party is to equalize the wealth and the income of the English people. That is a vote-catching program, especially in England, and it is a program which the party can carry out. It can and is being done through taxes. On an income, which in America would be considered of a reasonable amount, the government is taking ninety five cents out of each dollar. Through taxes, it is easy to pull down the higher incomes, and through "doles" it is easy to increase the lower ones.

But the problem that must be faced is where the "something for nothing" that represents doles is to come from when the wealth of the nation has been taxed to extinction.

Socialized medicine guarantees every one in the British islands a doctor when needed, a place in a hospital when there is a vacancy, which means waiting as much as two years regardless of the urgency of the need.

It means cheap doctor bills, but it is killing the medical profession in England. The doctor is permitted to have as many as 4,000 patients, for which the government will pay him $2.10 per year per patient, then promptly tax that doctor some 50 per cent on his $8,000 income. With what is left he must provide all the expenses of medical practice.

The result is that there is no inducement for the new medical graduate to hang out his shingle in Britain. He goes to the dominions—to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa. The result will be that in time there will be no doctors to administer to the poor, at any price or on any condition.

On top of the income tax that runs as high as 95 per cent, there is a purchase tax—our sales tax—which the merchants collect on every item you buy, other than the dire necessities of living, and that purchase tax ranges from 25 per cent on the amount of the purchase to as high as 150 percent of the total, on such automobiles as can be purchased, which is practically none of English make. They are produced for export only, as is true of most other of the better grade English productions.

And along with these conditions there is the rationing. Each individual can have two strips of bacon per week, two eggs, and whatever amount of meat of any kind he can buy for ten cents, with meat selling at prices as high, or higher, than we are paying in this country. Such are but a few examples of English rationing.

Despite it all, English socialism is not too unpopular with the English workers. They are receiving more wages than they did, though they are paying far more taxes, far more living expenses, and living far less better.

Believing the program to be a vote-catcher, the Conservatives, like the Republicans in this country, as applied to the New Deal and Fair Deal programs, are inclined to approve it all, only claiming they could do a better job.

The Conservatives are against the Labor Party, and they will not get any farther than the Republicans will get on the same basis in this country.

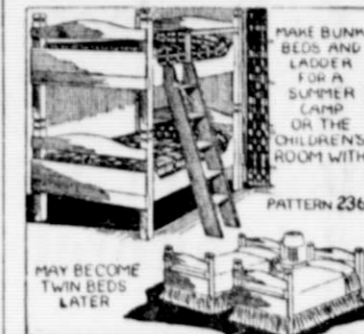

The Fair Deal does not offer their program as socialistic. It is offered as welfare state, or "planned economy," but the purpose is the same, that of equalizing the incomes of the American people.

Should the Fair Deal continue in office, it will succeed in putting over its nefarious schemes. When they do, there will be nothing left for America but bankruptcy; there will be nothing left with which to provide the "something" for those who are clamoring for "something for nothing" so they may continue to live without effort on their part.

When they understand what is being offered them such conditions will not be favored by a majority of the American people. Will the Republicans tell us what the party proposes as its program, or must we continue on the socialistic trail?

Gen. Ike will not get a two party and probably not a one party nomination for the presidency.

Fire Prevention and Civil Defense Go Hand in Hand

Fire prevention is an important part of civil defense. If an enemy attacks this country, his bombs, whether they be atomic, high explosive, or incendiary, will cause more damage by fire than they will by blast. Hence, anything done to make it hard for fires to start is a step towards preparing your community to protect itself if war comes.

The majority of all fires start in trashpiles, rubbish, or stored odds and ends that accumulate around the house. Closets, attics, and cellars are the main source of home fires, and plain ordinary good housekeeping is a strong line of defense against them.

Clean out your storage places. You will be surprised at how many burnable odds and ends are really useless to you. Don't let them make your home a fire hazard. Get rid of them. If local welfare agencies can't use them, call the junk man.

Don't stop when you've cleared out the inside of your house. Go after rubbish in your back yard, in alleys and in vacant lots near your home. Collect the rubbish and burn it. Don't leave it around to burn if an enemy bombs your city. Be sure to burn rubbish in metal containers.

Take a look at your electrical system. Buy new plugs and cords if yours are worn. Get advice from an electrician if your fuses blow frequently. They may be dangerously overloaded. His advice may prevent a bad fire.

Every winter costly fires are started by faulty furnaces, stoves, and other heating plants. Some result from too much soot in chimneys. Others are caused by rusted or cracked pipes and fittings. Look over your heating system now. If your chimney needs it, clean it out. If the furnace pipes and connections are cracked and rusted, replace them.

Teach your family not to put magazines, papers, or clothing on radiators or near open flames. Don't hang flimsy curtains near your kitchen stove. Don't allow lamp shades to come in contact with light bulbs. Remember that such things don't have to touch flame to burn. They will catch fire simply because they are too close to the heat for too long.

Gasoline, benzine, naphtha, and similar fluids should never be used indoors. When mixed with air, their vapors can be ignited by the spark of a light switch or an electric fan, or the tiny flame of a pilot light. Keep such fluids in tightly closed metal containers outside your home.

And remember: oil-soaked rags, especially rags that have been used to spread quick-drying liquids such as turpentine, paint thinners, and some furniture polishes, can catch fire by themselves. Oil-soaked rags should be stored in air-tight metal containers. It is best to keep them outside the house.

The loss of liberty in general would soon follow the suppression of the liberty of the press; for it is an essential branch of liberty, so perhaps it is the best preservative of the whole. No nation, ancient or modern ever lost the liberty of freely speaking, writing, or publishing their sentiments, but forthwith lost their liberty in general and became slaves.—John Peter Zenger.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

'Operation Bootstrap' Proves Local Action Can Help Relieve Family Welfare Problems

From northern Illinois comes a new kind of success story that has unfolded with heartening results during the past summer months. It is not exclusively a story of a small-community accomplishment, but the lesson of individual worth and initiative that it bears is surely applicable.

A group of teen-age boys and girls in 19 northern Illinois counties, whose parents were receiving state aid to help pay for their support, mustered their physical, mental, and moral resources to prove that, given the opportunity, they could rise above restrictive circumstances and make their own way.

FEATURE

There were 128 teen-agers who took part in what was actually an experiment in social work by the Illinois Public Aid Commission. Under the direction of welfare workers who staffed the experimental area, the boys and girls earned enough during the summer vacation period to lessen state payments to their impoverished families.

As a direct result of the young peoples' earnings, state financial payments to 39 families were substantially reduced, financial aid to 34 families was suspended temporarily, and 15 families were able to leave the relief rolls entirely.

This is wise and sound economy in its deepest sense. No plan to save money, no matter how elaborate it may be, reaches its final maturity of value until it makes full use of the personal resources of individual ability, ambition, courage, and the other great human attributes.

The Illinois self-help program, which came to be known as "operation bootstrap," was initiated experimentally in the 19 counties to establish a basic pattern for an expanded program of the same kind next summer:

Because of their age and lack of technical training, most of the young participants were not qualified to work in industrial plants, so staff workers dug up jobs in other fields. The teen-agers have been working as movie ushers, nurses' aides, delivery messengers, gasoline station attendants, and newspaper route carriers. One girl had a job as copy girl in the editorial department of a newspaper.

Boys and girls living in farm areas and in small towns worked their way by doing farm chores and de-tasseling corn—a tough, muscle-stretching task which called for all their youthful energy.

The executive secretary of the Illinois Public Aid Commission, Carl K. Schmidt, is satisfied—and so is everyone else concerned—that the program has proved most valuable in inculcating good work habits in the youngsters, developing initiative, and in some instances giving the teen-agers work experience which will be useful in later life.

"Everyone who knew of the program was anxious to help," he reported. "The service clubs of the counties ran appeals for jobs in their publications, and vocational training supervisors of the high schools, together with other civic-minded persons, cooperated fully.

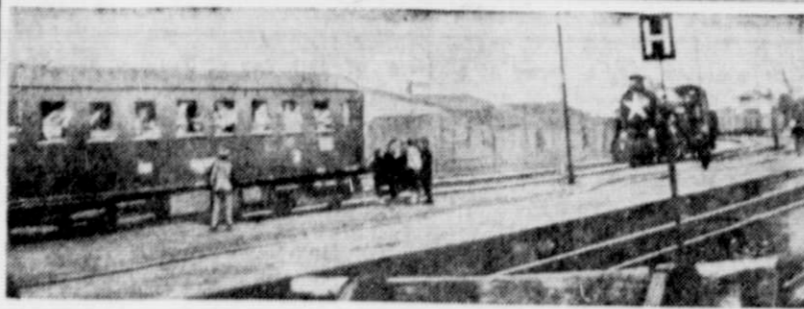

"All of this help was tied together through the agency of the commission's welfare service committees, composed of local business and professional people. Without this kind of help from so many interested individuals and groups, the program would not have succeeded so greatly."

Here again, then, is virile, constructive action applied on the community level to put across a worthwhile project. "Operation bootstrap," conceived and launched by a public welfare agency, depended in the final analysis upon the local interest, support, and cooperation which the various communities involved brought to bear upon the program.

The general points of this program could be applied with little difficulty in any small town where the need is felt to provide genuine and constructive assistance to the financially more unfortunate families in the community. This is not the dole. It is "relief" in the truest sense of the word, because it offers the youngest, strongest members of such families the opportunity to marshal their own personal resources to "relieve" the economic strain on the hard-pressed family groups.

Any man can work when every stroke of his hand brings down the fruit rattling from the tree to the ground; but to labor in season and out of season, under every discouragement, by the power of truth . . . that requires a heroism which is transcendent.

UMPIRE DIES . . . Bill Klem, National League umpire, died recently in Miami at the age of 77, death being attributed to a heart ailment. He was an umpire for 36 years and worked in 18 world series, more than any other man in history.

THEFT SUSPECT JAILED . . . Roscoe McKean struggles with detectives as he is booked at University jail, Los Angeles, as Leimert park thief suspect. He said he was an ex-inmate of Minnesota reformatory and had given tip that guards had beaten George Sturdevant of Los Angeles to death. "If they send me back to Minnesota, I know they'll kill me," McKean pleaded. "Do you think they'd let me live after I named those guards?" He was held on suspicion of burglary.

TRAIN DEMOLISHES DEPOT . . . Railroad officials are seeking the cause of a freak accident which recently killed one person and injured five others when a Monon railroad streamliner failed to take a curve and plowed into the center stone Monon railroad station. The ill-fated train was bound to Chicago from Louisville. Photo shows the demolished railroad station and the wreckage of two of the units of the diesel locomotive that pulled the fast streamliner before the wreck.

FAIR WEATHER . . . The time for state and county fairs and fall festivals is with us again with its fair weather and ladies fair, and the Los Angeles county fair in Pomona, Calif., is following tradition in this picture with its display of beauty and fine livestock. Just to be sure a blue ribbon Suffolk lamb will look its best, Betty Wilson adds a few final touches to its grooming.

FORMER RIVALS SHAKE HANDS . . . New York Governor Thomas E. Dewey is greeted by President Truman at the White House as Dewey called to confer with the President on far-eastern matters. The conference marked the first time that Dewey, twice-unsucessful GOP presidential candidate, has been in the White House during the six years of Mr. Truman's administration. The New York governor had just returned from a trip to Japan and other eastern countries.

Banks Report Increased Farm Loans; Reds Ask Peace Talks Be Resumed

FARM REPORT—A recent survey of rural bankers in the home towns scattered across the great midwest farm belt presents a new and somewhat startling picture of farm economy in the nation. Briefly, the survey indicates that farmers are borrowing more money this year, for that matter, than in several years, to make ends meet from day to day.

Reports a Kentland, Ind., banker: Operational loan demands are cash and had a surplus for operational expenses. Today 65 to 75 per cent of machinery sales are on credit arrangements.

A South Dakota banker presents this picture: For the first eight months of 1951 bank loans have increased 25 per cent over last year. Says an Iowa banker: Loans are up 15 per cent over last year. Capital is tied up in machinery and livestock.

Says a Dover, Minn., banker: About 90 per cent of the farm machinery sales in this area are on credit. Loans have increased 10 per cent. These conditions, midwest bankers report, are caused by the continued decline of farm prices, nearly 7 per cent since they reached a record high last February. In addition, farm operating costs have continued to increase.

As examples, fertilizer, which was selling at $44 a ton F.O.B. Chicago last fall, now sells for $64 a ton. In Minnesota farm hands are drawing $15 a day without board, comparing to $10 a year ago. Iowa farmers who paid $11.75 a 100 for binding twine last year now must pay $16.75. These examples indicate, midwest bankers say, that overall farm costs are up approximately 15 per cent over last year and 2 per cent over February when farm prices began their decline.

The only solution, according to the U.S. department of agriculture, is to keep farm prices at a high level. To accomplish this the department is expected to start a campaign this fall urging farmers to withhold crops from market. At present only six of 30 major commodities are bringing the parity price declared by law to be equally fair to growers and those who buy their products.

Calm on 'Bloody Ridge'

G.I.'s relax among blackened stumps of trees on the devastated slope that is known as "bloody ridge" on the east central front of Korea. This ridge was taken from the Communists after some of the hardest fighting in the Korean campaign.

MONTH OF DECISION—It may very well be that future generations of American school children will study the month of September, 1951, in their history books as the month of decision—the month during which the free world consolidated its position against communism.

For during the month four significant things happened: (1) Forty-nine nations met in San Francisco and signed the Japanese peace treaty which put that nation firmly on the side of freedom.

(2) The ministers of France, Great Britain and the United States met in Washington and decided upon a contract with West Germany that amounts to a treaty ad which will greatly increase West Germany's contribution to the defense of free Europe.

(3) Meeting in Ottawa, Canada, twelve Atlantic Pact countries debated and solved many military and economic problems related to their common defense.

(4) In Washington Italian and United States representatives discussed important revision in the Italian peace treaty, especially clauses relating to Italy's armed forces limitations.

All this activity adds up to strengthening of the free world's defenses against Communist aggression and thus, in turn, the very home towns of this country.

THE HALF WAR—One American soldier, who can be said to represent the average small town youth who makes up the United States army, said recently when informed that the Communists have unexpectedly asked for renewal of peace talks at Kaesong:

"Let's get this thing decided upon one way or another. 'We've been half fighting and half not fighting for months now.'"

This attitude is typical of most American soldiers in Korea today. Foreign correspondents report the men want a definite yes-or-no answer to whether there will be peace or not. If it is to be a fight they want to get at it and gain a clear cut decision.

This attitude is becoming more and more apparent in the small towns of the nation, too. This business of talking while men fight on a limited scale is not the American way. If there is to be peace, the American reason: let's have it without a lot of beating around the bush. If it is to be war, let it be all-out-war.

POSTAL RATES—The house-senate conference committee will report within a few days upon bills passed by the house and senate to increase rates on postcards, newspapers, magazines and some other types of mail and services.

Although the senate and house versions of the bill are different in some detail, the two bills are similar in that they would raise rates on second-class mail, which includes newspapers, magazines and other periodicals by 30 per cent over a three year period in stages of 10 per cent a year.

The bills are also in agreement on postal card rate increase from 1 cent to 2 cents.

The final version of the bill is expected to produce somewhere in the neighborhood of $126,000,000 of additional annual post revenues.

POLITICAL SCENE—Following his visit to North Dakota, Sen. Robert Taft returned to his home in Cincinnati where he told reporters: "If I got the same reception in a few more states, I think I'd decide to run (for president)."

And while the senator was making this statement, reports from Europe continued to circulate that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower was definitely interested in becoming a candidate, but only on the Republican ticket. The general, observers reported, would reject the Democratic bid because he did not want to be hampered by hanger-ons.

As for Senator Taft, observers said Eisenhower would try to beat him out because he felt the Ohio solon's isolation reputation would ruin this country's defense program and battle against communism.

PAY INCREASE—The house passed a series of bills increasing the pay of more than 1,500,000 government employees by a total of $670,045,600 a year. The bill will be reported soon from senate-house conference where differences will be ironed out between it and a senate version previously passed.

The house version provides: (1) A flat $400 pay increase for 1,043,614 government workers—totaling $417,445,600; (2) increases of $400 to $700 a year for 500,000 postal workers—totaling $235,750,000 annually; (2) an $800 limit on increases for 42,000 postmasters and 26,000 postal supervisors—totaling $19,690,000 annually.

DEFENSE PRODUCTION 50,000 Annual Plane Output Possible

Manly Fleischmann, defense production administrator, reports the nation will soon have the capacity to pour out 30,000 tanks and 50,000 planes a year—plus strategic stockpiles "to carry us through a year of total war."

In a speech at the 70th American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco, he said stockpiles of strategic materials needed to carry through a year of all-out production would be available even though the United States is cut off temporarily from all foreign sources.

He also pointed out that steel capacity will be up 18,000 tons over the output before the Korean war and there now is a 90 per cent increase in primary aluminum capacity, with proportionate increases in electric power.

He told AFL the U.S. is turning out military items needed now by our armed forces and our allies, plus a measured reserve supply to carry us through the initial stages of a total war.

"The entire production of the nation will be greater than ever before in our history but there will be less manufacture of roller skates and scooters so we can have more manufacture of machinery; there will be less production of pipe organs and more of airplane parts; more television sets and more radar."

Scott's Report

CONGRESSMAN Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania deserves a medal for high-jumping at conclusions. With considerable flourishes and a great air of being in the know, Scott announced that General Eisenhower would accept the Republican nomination.

However, here is an almost verbatim account of Congressman Scott's talk with General Ike in Paris, on which the Pennsylvania Congressman based his earth-shaking prediction.

Scott asked Eisenhower if there was any "hope" of Ike's accepting a GOP draft nomination for the White House.

Scott added: "I know you're a good Republican, General—isn't that a fact?"

Before Eisenhower could reply, an aide, Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham, who was present at the meeting, broke in jokingly:

"I've never heard the General say anything to indicate that he isn't a good Republican."

This struck Eisenhower as so funny that he reared back and let go with a belly laugh that almost shook the window panes.

Ike made no further comment, but Congressman Scott took this guffaw to mean that Ike not only was a good Republican—which nobody denies—but would consent to lead the party in the 1952 election.

Labor Flirts With Taft

Most important backstage move in the works by a small group at the A. F. of L. convention in San Francisco is to dump Truman and patch up labor relations with the chief author of the Taft-Hartley Act, Sen. Robert Alphonso Taft.

This move is certain to be denied, but here is the master-minding behind this strategy.

A group of Republicans inside the A. F. of L. high command went to San Francisco with the idea of going back to the old Sam Gompers policy of keeping labor aloof from either political party. Headed by Canny Bill Hutcheson, head of the carpenters union, long a GOP stalwart, the group includes George Meany, influential secretary of the A. F. of L., and Dave Beck, number two man in the teamsters union.

The question of sticking with the Democrats has come up at almost every A. F. of L. meeting recently. And a majority in the past has won out on the plea that labor would get a black eye if it turned on the political party which pulled it out of the depression years during FDR's day and battled the Taft-Hartley Act during Truman's day.

But now the following deal with Taft is being discussed by one or two in the A. F. of L. high command.

In return for dumping Harry Truman, Taft would agree to amend the Taft-Hartley Act. In fact, he has already introduced a bill in the Senate to help out the building trades which has all the earmarks of a deal with GOP Bill Hutcheson of the carpenters. The Taft concession violates all of Taft's previous moral principles and repeats not only part of the Taft-Hartley Act but the Wagner Act. For it not only would abolish elections in building trades unions but would protect the union from any unfair labor practices charge by another union.

In brief, this would permit an employer to back an election with a phony union which in no way represented his men.

Lewis Plots

Meanwhile, another labor move outside the A. F. of L. is being hatched by John L. Lewis and Harry Bridges, head of the west coast longshoremen, who was kicked out of the CIO after his conviction for having lied about being a communist.

Bridges has sounded out the retail clerks, the carpenters, and other west 15 minutes longer on staging a giant rally in Los Angeles on October 8, the same day President Truman is slated to attend a $100,000 Democratic dinner in Los Angeles. Chief Speaker at the labor rally would be doughy John L., long a bitter Truman enemy, who, it is planned, would blast both the President and auto workers chief Walter Reuther.

Washington Pipeline

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming complained over the phone to Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg that the defense department wasn't getting enough credit for its painstaking work in formulating the $90,000,000 defense budget. Congress soon will pass a resolution, sponsored by Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, demanding that Czechoslovakia release another American prisoner John Hvasata.

Merry-Go-Round

Freshman Senator Walker of Idaho, who regards himself seriously as a presidential contender, has been nagging GOP leaders for a chance to get into the headlines. Finally they agreed to let him take the lead for the Republicans on the new District of Columbia crime committee. Governor Dewey called on Pennsylvania's Senator Duff the other day to get instructions about the Eisenhower campaign.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Serve Baked Beans for Informal Suppers (See Recipes Below)

Festive Buffet Suppers

THIS IS the season for a flurry of sports activity such as football, baseball and hockey. If there are teen-aged boys and girls in your home, or if the man of the house is an enthusiast of one of the sports, you're in line to be asked to serve at least one "after the game supper."

These are wonderful occasions because you need food hearty and the serving is even more simply done because the occasion is so informal. Push the dining room table against the wall, or use a large buffet.

A centerpiece set against the wall is nice, if it's seasonal. Then plan to cover most of the table with food, and leave a bit of space for a stack of plates, napkins and usually, a single fork for each person. Most buffet suppers of this kind can be eaten readily with a single fork.

Another centerpiece uses a shallow bowl of garden flowers in a massed arrangement. Use needle-point flower holders for the flowers, and also for attaching "penants" made small, with construction paper, and glued to thin sticks.

One menu which will certainly prove popular includes baked beans, served in a bean pot or an old-fashioned casserole of the pottery type.

Serve this with molasses bran brown bread with cream cheese, if you like, sliced tomatoes, pickles, celery, and an apple crisp pudding or a fruit cobbler for dessert.

Deluxe Baked Beans (Serves 6) 1 uncooked medium ham hock (1/2 pound) 1 No. 2 can baked beans without tomato sauce 1 large onion, peeled and chopped 1/2 cup catsup 3 tablespoons brown sugar 1 1/2 tablespoons dry mustard 1/4 teaspoon black pepper 1 tablespoon vinegar 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce 4 whole cloves 1 No. 2 can pineapple chunks

Remove meat from ham bone and add to beans which may be placed right into the casserole. Stir in onion, then pour in catsup and syrup from pineapple. Sprinkle over all the brown sugar, mustard, pepper, vinegar and Worcestershire sauce. Dot four chunks of the pineapple with the cloves and reserve for last. Sink ham bone into center of the bean mixture, and arrange pineapple around the bone. Place the pineapple with cloves on last. Cover and bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for one hour; remove cover and simmer about 15 minutes longer until brown. For a crowd, multiply recipe accordingly and bake in large pans.

LYNN SAYS: Refrigerate Foods To Speed Preparation

If you don't want to do all your food preparation before a meal, many good things can be mixed in advance, then refrigerated until cooking or baking time.

Thin batters like those for waffles and griddlecakes can be made in advance then refrigerated, provided they are tightly covered to prevent crusting. If desired, thin with a little milk before using.

Muffin batter can be stored right in the tins, covered to keep for several days. The muffins will be light and fine in texture.

Souffles, omelets and many other egg dishes which are light can take advance preparation and chilling. After chilling place in warm oven to increase the "puffiness."

Butter cake and gingerbread batters will keep for several days in baking pans or cups when refrigerated. Let stand at room temperature for 1/2 hour before baking. The texture of batter treated this way is excellent.

Do you have difficulty keeping the breaded coating on meats and fish when frying? Chill after breading and they'll stay on better.

Yeast dough for rolls, buns or bread refrigerates well when covered, for several days. Store shaped or in bowls and let rise in a 90°F. oven or at room temperature before baking.

Cookies will be more tender and crisp if you allow the dough to stand in the refrigerator. Or, slip well-wrapped dough in one of the freezing trays if business is "rushing."

Gravies and sauces will taste better if they're allowed to stand while chilling. The many flavors in them get a chance to ripen and mellow, as well as to permeate entirely with other ingredients.

Make your pastry with flour, salt and fat, and mix until it crumbles. Do not add water. Place in a covered jar until ready to use and keep refrigerated. The moist cold will permeate and you don't need as much water for the pastry. It will be more tender, flaky and crisp, as well as ready when you need it for a quick use.

Mulching Will Not Prevent Freezing Leaves, Grass, Straw Are Good Materials

Even though many gardeners have used mulches for years and are aware of its value, they are not sure of their reasons for mulching. It is not to prevent plants from freezing, as often thought, but to prevent quick freezing and thawing.

It prevents drying out of plant tissues and freezing and thawing from heaving plants out of the ground. It also prevents plant development too early in the spring when buds might be harmed by late frost.

The gardener looking for mulching materials could try leaves when available in quantity. They are satisfactory for perennials borders and beds, rock gardens and around evergreens and shrubs. Straw is another good material, especially good for strawberry beds. Oat straw is preferred over wheat and others.

Peat Moss is often used and does an excellent job of preventing temperature fluctuations, but has a tendency to crust on top. Grass clippings are good, too, if available in large quantity.

Ground corn cobs have recently come into use as a mulch, especially for roses. This material is reported to also improve the soil by stimulating the growth of micro-organisms.

200-240 Pound Hogs Bring the Best Price

According to livestock specialists, both underfinished and overfinished hogs are likely to sell at larger-than-usual discounts this fall.

The 1951 pig crop of about 105 million head is the second largest on record, and there no longer is the strong world demand for fats and oils of a year ago. So there will be more fats available and possibly a weaker lard market.

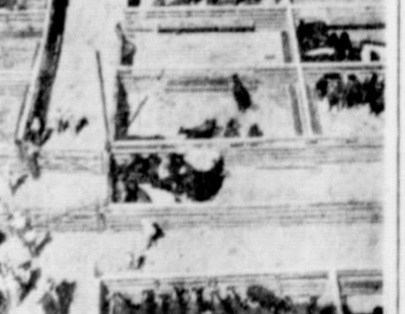

As a result this will mean more price differential for type in live hogs. Hogs that are too heavy or too fat will probably have to take a larger discount than last year.

Specialists believe farmers should feed out hogs now under 180 pounds. Discounts on lightweights are such that farmers can hardly afford not to feed them out.

With so many hogs starting to market, packers can be rather choosy about the type of hog for which they pay top prices. Both underfinished and overfinished animals will sell at a disadvantage. Try to sell as many as possible between 200 and 240 pounds.

Filling Up

Restored pens of the Kansas City stockyards begin to fill up as cattle flow in again after the great flood. More than 20 feet of flood water covered this area. The job of rehabilitation has been hailed as an outstanding feat by livestock men throughout the midwest.

Cattle Grubs Cause Big Meat and Hide Losses

Not less than 12 million pounds of the most valuable part of the beef carcasses are trimmed out around grub holes from cattle slaughtered in the U. S., according to livestock specialists. The trimming detracts from the carcass' appearance, resulting in a lower price per pound. It has also been estimated that grubs cause $20 million damage to hides each year, enough to make a million shoes.

Old Feed Sacks Keep Calves Free of Flies

Here's a neat little tip on keeping young calves comfortable and untroubled by flies.

William Schrage, an Illinois dairyman, has old feed sacks hung on baling wire in his helfer pens. They hang just low enough to help chase flies off the backs of calves walking below them.

It is a simple and effective trick which farmers in other areas can use.
