Kewaskum Meeting On New Bang's Disease Law Dec. 5

Meetings to explain the new Wisconsin Brucellosis Control law have been scheduled as follows for the first week in December:

Wednesday, December 5—Kewaskum Opera House.

Friday, Dec. 7—Rockfield Inn, Rockfield.

An explanation of the provisions of the law and how these apply to your dairy herd will be given by E. E. Skalsky, county agricultural agent. Dr. J. T. Kennedy, area veterinarian supervisor, will be present to answer technical questions about brucellosis. Any dairy or beef cattle herd owner is invited to attend his nearest meeting. These will be the last of such meetings to be held in Washington county.

The new Wisconsin law gives farmers a chance to get started on a program of developing a Bang's free herd. The Chicago Milk Market has set Jan. 1, 1955, as the date after which it will accept milk only from herds pronounced Bang's free by the ring test. Farmers that fail to start on this program early may suffer a big loss by losing their fluid milk market.

It is important that you know what to do if the ring test shows that you have Bang's reactors in your herd. Therefore make it a "must" to attend the meeting, starting at 8 p. m. A motion picture will be shown to indicate how the law affects your herd.

Lakes Team Trims Waupun in Opener

The Kewaskum Chevrolets opened the season in the northern division of the Land o' Lakes league with an easy 59-69 victory over Waupun on the local floor Sunday night. A good number of people were on hand to see the team pry off the lid for the 1951-52 season.

John Tessar, last season's loop leading scorer, who was home on furlough from the army, started the game at center and showed his usual form. John and other members of the starting five played only half the game or less as Manager Honeck used 12 players in an effort to keep the score down. He cleaned the bench and everyone in uniform got plenty of action. Without John Tessar Kewaskum will still have a strong team this season.

John dropped in 11 points to tie with Fred Engel but high scorer for the victors was Allen Tessar, who was deadly from out on the floor and netted 16 points. However, top honors for the evening went to center Lichtenberg of Waupun. He sank shots from all angles and scored a total of 25 points. Teammate Kresbach made 14.

Kewaskum's starting five oult up a lead from the start and their substitutes continued to score and stay well ahead of the visitors. After a 22-13 first quarter lead set up by the starters, a whole new team went in at the start of the second period and they increased the advantage to 43-28 at the half as they tallied 21 more points in the quarter. With different combinations of players being used in the second half, the third quarter score stood at 63-43.

This coming Sunday Kewaskum was scheduled to play at Cedarburg but that team postponed the game and a later date will be set for the contest. A week from Sunday, Dec. 9, the Chevrolets play at Grafton.

Farm Home Damaged in Fire Early Friday

The Nic. Beisbier farm home on Highway 25 near St. Kilian was damaged by fire early Friday in a blaze which for a time threatened to destroy the frame building. The Kewaskum fire department was called to the farm at 12:40 a. m. and fought the fire for nearly two hours, returning to the fire station at 2:30 a. m.

The flames broke out in the wall around a chimney on the west side of the home and apparently were caused by an overheated or defective chimney. When firemen reached the scene after traveling through fog on slippery roads, the flames had eaten a hole through the outer wall along the chimney. The fire spread through the waiss and under the roof and uren had to chop holes in the roof and walls before they could reach all sources of the flames. Dense smoke hampered the work of the fire fighters. The fact that the home was insulated prevented the flames from spreading more quickly.

Besides the hole burned through the outer wall the length of one story of the building, damage was caused to the walls and roof and the outside of the house was scorched in places. Some household items were damaged by fire and water.

The fire department's lighting system proved very helpful in fighting the blaze.

The fire department received another call this week. This was to the Harry H. Maaske real estate office on North Fond du Lac ave. at 2:45 p. m. Monday when an oil heater flared and filled the building with smoke. The heater was removed from the office with little or no damage resulting. We are told Harry had a "hot deal" in the making.

Party of 17 Hunters Brings Back 15 Deer

More reports about the successes of deer hunters from this area have come in to this office since those we published last week. The season closed last Friday.

One party of 17 men who hunted in the flats at Webster in Burnett county returned home with a total bag of 15 deer. The group included Roman Ritter, Ewald Rauch and Harry Blank of West Bend; Fred Menger, Roger Kuehl and Edgar Miska of Kewaskum; Calvin Rauch of Campbellsport; Elmer Rauch and Bob Hilbert of Fond du Lac; Elmer Habbeck of Waldo; Lester Hammesberger and Henry Hank of Columbus; Alvin Kruger, Donald Kruger and Bill Kruger of Westfield, and Amos Kruger and Robert Kruger of Racine. Blank and Ritter were the only hunters in the party who failed to get their deer.

Henry Wilke and Anton P. Wiesner returned from the north woods last Thursday. Henry shot a 153 pound, four point buck and Wiesner bagged a 139 pound doe.

Ray De Temple of Kewaskum, hunted in Marinette county with his nephew, Charles Andrews of Fond du Lac. Andrews, 14, bagged a 160-pound doe Friday.

Forty adult farmers are attending the classes on "Soils and Crops."

Scheid suggested that if anyone is still interested in attending the classes he should be present at the next meeting.

Young farmer classes are held on Monday evening and adult classes on Thursday evening. All classes start at 8:00 p. m. and are held in the Kewaskum High school agricultural department.

Maaske to Build 27 New Homes, Restaurant, Warehouse in Village

Work is progressing on three more new homes in Kewaskum being built by the Maaske Building Service, Harry H. Maaske, owner. These latest houses are part of a building program being carried out by Maaske this year. By spring Maaske anticipates having 27 new homes completed in the village.

The Maaske Building Service has already built 10 homes since work was started on Aug. 1. Work is going ahead on three more at present and excavating for an additional five homes was scheduled to be done this week.

One of the three latest homes is being built for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gruendeman, who now reside in the Mrs. Lydia Johnson home on South Fond du Lac ave. Mr. Gruendeman is employed as a driver for the Bird Trucking company. This dwelling is being erected in the Belger addition on the east end of town. Mrs. Gruendeman intends to open a modern beauty shop in the basement of the new home. Another home in the Belger addition going up next to that for Gruendeman, is being built for Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Pickler and family. Mr. Pickler is employed at the Johnson Tool and Engineering Co., Kewaskum.

Work is practically completed on the third home being constructed in Roseland Heights for Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Stayton and family, proprietors of the Kewaskum Bakery. The Stayton family, residents at the Johnson Trailer park since moving here from Campbellsport, will move into their new home on Monday.

Maaske Building Service will also erect a large warehouse containing 27,000 square feet on Mr. Maaske's lot at the rear of his real estate office on North Fond du Lac ave. To the north of his office he will build a 37x20 foot building which will house an all-night restaurant.

In still another transaction, Maaske Building Service purchased a 25x22x25 foot parcel of land from Walter Meilahn on the corner of Highway 55 and County Trunk H, across from Wallenfels Electric.

Indians Beat Cedar Grove in Overtime Game, 39-34

After losing their first pre-season warmup game to a strong Sheboygan Falls team last week, the Kewaskum Indians posted one on the other side of the ledger here Tuesday night when they downed Cedar Grove in an overtime tilt, 39-34. This also was a non-conference game.

Kewaskum and Cedar Grove tied at 34-all in regulation time but the Indians scored five points in the overtime while throwing up a whitewash defense. Center George Hanrahan dipped in 12 points while Gordon Wierman added 10 and Eddie Hamthun 8. Kewaskum tied the score with 13 points in the fourth period while holding the opponents to 7. The winners led at the quarter, 6-4, but trailed at the intermission, 15-13. The Indians were also behind, 27-21, at the end of the third period.

In other non-league affairs Tuesday night Oakfield eked out a 35-28 decision at Howards Grove, Campbellsport dropped a 45-41 tilt at home to Plymouth, Rosendale suffered a 60-36 setback at Cambria, and Lomira lost to Grafton, 49-34.

Conference openers were on tap this Friday with Lomira playing at Kewaskum, Oakfield at Brandon, and Campbellsport at North Fond du Lac. Rosendale played Green Lake in a non-conference tilt. Next week Kewaskum meets two more strong non-league opponents, Tuesday night Kohler (last year's state tournament team) plays here and next Saturday Sheboygan Falls comes to town for a return game.

Although the team lost one of last year's stars, Hilbert Justman, who is not in school anymore, Kewaskum should have a good outfit. Except for one or two players the team is green but it has the height and should improve as the race progresses. Buntjer and Hanrahan, out last year, are back on the squad this season.

MAIN STREET IN ACTION

This Story of a Soldier's Homecoming Could Be True in Any Small Community

The story on the front page of the weekly Valleyville Times brought a faint smile to Al's face as he clipped it from the newspaper.

"George Turner, manager of the Valleyville Soybean Processing Company, has announced that Alvin Watkins has accepted a position as bookkeeper for the company. He will start to work Monday.

"Son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watkins of Valleyville, Al returned home two weeks ago from the VA hospital in Martinsdale where he spent three months convalescing from wounds he received fighting in Korea. A new job isn't the only thing to happen to Al lately. This week his engagement to Miss Mary Boyde is being announced. Details of the event are on the society page.

"The entire community wishes Al Watkins well with his new job, his new wife-to-be, and his new start on being a lifetime citizen of Valleyville."

That was just about the story, or rather the end of the story—an ending that would do fine for Al until a better one came along. And in Valleyville—bless every one of its 1,684 understanding hearts—there was every chance that an even better one would come along, he thought.

FEATURE

There were some previous aspects of the situation, however, that the little news item in The Times had failed to recount in detail, although it had implied them with the characteristically sensitive restraint of a good-hearted weekly newspaper.

Al Watkins' story had begun on a Korean ridge one terror-suscept night when a shell fragment shattered his left arm below the elbow. It had continued with bitterness and pain, in a Tokyo army hospital. It was there that the doctors finally were forced to amputate his arm.

Then the long, slow months at the Veterans' Administration hospital in Martinsdale—only 60 miles from his home town. Or was it more nearly 6,000 miles—or infinity—as Al felt right after he arrived there? He knew, at least, that he had a long way to go.

Al was young enough to be capable of a deep resentment at his having lost an arm in the service of his country. Twenty-one is young enough for that. So is 50, or 75. But to Al it meant that a big piece of his future had been amputated, too. He couldn't see much hope for himself.

Still, it wasn't too long before the instinctive resilience that is part of the life-force in all of us started to bring him around. The thing that first startled him out of his own self-pity was the suddenly occurring knowledge that the doctors and nurses in this VA hospital were working so terribly hard, constantly battling his own attitude, to put him on his feet both figuratively and physically. Overworked, understaffed, they were using all their resources to heal the wounds of scores of men and to overlay their spiritual scars with a strong, constructive sense of the importance of living.

But it was Valleyville itself that really finished the cure. Al was astonished at the number of persons who drove the 60 miles to Martinsdale to visit him, bring him little gifts, tell him they were ready to take him back now as soon as he wanted to come home.

George Turner came, the manager of the local soybean processing plant. They talked some, neither of them saying too much. Then George handed Al a small, gift-wrapped package. Al opened it and saw a glove. A single, right-hand glove.

Did it hurt? Well, sure, a little; but it said something that had needed saying: This glove is a pledge that means you're going to accept this bad break, not in resignation but with courage. It means you're going to make do with what you have. You're going to be a whole man.

Valleyville didn't have a band out to meet him the day he stepped off the train at the little station, but Al was surprised again to see how many folks had just happened to have business around there at that moment. The entire community had the quality of a benevolent force that, with kindly implacability, was drawing him into itself. He had come home; but it was more important that his little town had brought him home.

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good: Myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy if I may.

—Robert Louis Stevenson

The academy's prime purpose is not to teach baseball, but, through association of the boys with their idols, teach them fair play and sportsmanship.

Wouldn't Work

A woman complained to a friend that the walls of her new apartment were so thin that the neighbors on either side could hear everything she said.

"Oh, I think you could eliminate that trouble," the other replied. "Just hang some tapestries over your walls."

The woman considered the suggestion briefly, then shook her head.

"No, that wouldn't do," she replied. "Then we couldn't hear what they say."

Reds Reject President Truman's 'Foolproof' Disarmament Program

DISARMAMENT—No one who heard President Truman's "foolproof" disarmament plan and his blunt statement that "if we can't get security and peace one way, we must get it the other way," really expected the Russians to accept it. The Soviet's immediate "no," therefore, had no element of surprise.

What, then, it might well be asked, does the U.S. expect to gain by continually seeking disarmament when everyone knows the Soviet has no intention of participating? There are several reasons, but two stand out. In the first place, there is always an outside chance that the Russians might change their minds and some method of disarmament worked out. But more immediate is the "propaganda" benefits the U.S. realizes by putting forth a definite plan, while the Russians have nothing to offer but their continued talk of wanting peace. By turning the plan down Russia has become branded in the eyes of the world.

President Truman as he appeared as he left on a five-week vacation after proposing a "foolproof" disarmament plan to the world.

The President's speech was broadcast to the world, and especially to those nations behind the iron curtain by the Voice of America. The main points of the plan:

- 1. An inventory of arms and armament all over the world, including eventual disclosure of information about atomic weapons, the number of which is presently top secret in both America and Russia. This inventory would develop into a permanent international inspection system.
- 2. The negotiation of specific arrangements for reducing armed strength and determining the size and composition of forces which each nation should have. Ultimately atomic weapons would be prohibited.
- 3. Actually putting the reductions in effect "as soon as that can be done with full knowledge and fairness to all."

KOREA PEACE—Reports from Korea indicate U.N. and Communist negotiators are in almost complete agreement on a buffer zone. But the question of when to time the cease fire still separates the two on final agreement.

The Communists want the cease-fire line indicated and effective immediately. The U.N., however, insists that it become effective only after other matters are settled—such as exchange of prisoners—and an armistice is ready for signing. The Allies contend that a cease-fire now would prevent an armistice ever being reached because it would halt the shooting and thus relieve the Reds of any necessity of negotiating the other questions.

It would seem that the chasm of distrust that exists between the Communists and Allies is more likely to delay an armistice than the establishment of a cease fire line. The Allies continue to charge the Communists with stalling.

CHURCHILL—Prime Minister Winston Churchill was again in the news. In a London speech he expressed the opinion that neither Russia or the United States really wanted to fight and pointed out "it must not be forgotten that... we took peculiar risks in providing the principal atomic base for the U.S. in Eastern England... We have every need and every right to seek and receive the fullest consideration from Americans for our point of view."

A short time later it was announced that Churchill will visit Washington for talks with President Truman. Some observers believe that the London speech was an indication of Churchill's mood and determination to have a greater say in the battle against Communism. He may even succeed in getting the President to agree to a meeting with Premier Stalin which Truman has not wanted. Churchill will also discuss the possibilities of a U.S. loan to relieve Britain's critical economic situation.

DEFENSE—There is a slight possibility the home town taxpayer may get some relief from high taxes next year. The possibility was brought about by an announcement by Defense department officials of a cut in the next military budget as much as $11,500,000,000 below this year's. Officials said the leveling off in armament outlays earlier than expected is due to two reasons. One is that because of long "lead times" in the production of aircraft, tanks, ammunition and other "hardware" for the armed forces, funds already authorized cover much of the scheduled expansion. The other is a growing awareness among military men that unless military demands are regulated and spaced, a "breaking point" in the civilian economy might result in the loss of public support for the long-term preparedness program.

Since the start of the Korean conflict the Defense department has been given total spending authority totaling approximately $110,000,000,000.

RUSSIA—Most people in the home towns of the United States have no idea of real size of the Soviet Union. Last week Soviet population figures were released that will startle the average American.

The Russians report a total population of 207,000,000 and an annual rate of increase of 1 1/2 per cent. In 1940, the Soviet population, including inhabitants of areas annexed during 1939 and 1940, was roughly 153,000,000 persons. The gain to 207,000,000 at present, despite the losses of World War II, implies an average annual population growth over the eleven years since 1940 of about 1,300,000.

If these figures are accurate, then the Soviet Union has roughly 50,000,000 more people than the United States.

LEGION—The American Legion will ask congress next year for an increase of at least 10 per cent in compensation rates for disabled veterans and the widows and orphans of veterans, Donald R. Wilson, new national commander, has announced. Wilson said that the Legion recognized the fact that the national economy was undergoing severe strain and "we are aware of an unalterable obligation not to make any undue demands upon that economy". But there still exists, he said, inequalities that must be leveled.

He pointed to the recently 10 per cent pay increase congress voted to most Civil Service employees and said veterans' compensations should be increased likewise.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT NEA Reports School Enrollment Is Up

Elementary and secondary-school enrollment totaled 26,567,374 as of October, 1951, the National Education Association announced in its annual research report. The new figure is an increase of 800,000 over last year. Dr. Frank W. Hubbard, the association's research director, termed the year of 1951-52 one of lag in school construction, teachers' salaries, supply of elementary-school teachers, and financial support, "as enrollments continue to increase steadily and the purchasing power of the dollar continues to decline."

Dr. Hubbard said the school problem was further complicated by "man-power conditions, the restraints upon construction through lack of steel. The greatest problem of school facilities is in suburban areas rather than in the heart of the cities or in the rural areas. Especially hard pressed are defense communities.

The average classroom salary for the current year was given as $3,167. The NEA has recommended a $3,200 minimum. Dr. Hubbard said the average salary should be around $3,300 to $3,400 for teachers to regain their proportionate place in the economy they held before the last war. That position was an 11 cent higher salary than that of the average employed person.

THE WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round BY-DREW PEARSON

Babe-in-the-Woods

REPUBLICANS - for - Eisenhower heaved a big sigh of relief when their proposed candidate finally climbed on his plane and flew back to Paris. During the short time he was here, they estimated that their man had helped Senator Taft pick up about 100 additional delegates for the GOP nomination.

"He may be a great general," mourned one Republican active in the Eisenhower-for-President organization, "but he certainly is a babe-in-the-woods when it comes to politics."

What caused Eisenhower supporters to tear their hair was the way their man cut the ground out from under his chief backer with the statement that he hadn't heard from Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania "directly or indirectly for a long, long time."

In the first place this was not true. For, earlier in the day, Ike's own aide, Lt. Col. Robert L. Schulz, had phoned Senator Duff from Louisville. He phoned around Sunday noon, and Eisenhower's disclaimer to the press was Sunday afternoon.

Second, word was sent to Senator Duff two weeks before Eisenhower arrived that he was coming and to keep November 4, 5 and 6 open.

Third and more important, Duff had been waging a steady though quiet campaign to organize district leaders throughout the country and take delegates away from Taft. Last month, for instance, he made two speeches in North Carolina urging Eisenhower for President. Immediately following the two speeches, John Gordon Bennett, scion of the famed New York Herald editor, went to North Carolina, began the actual work of pledging delegates.

Anguished Phone Calls

Most essential part of the Bennett-Duff sales talk, naturally, had to be that Eisenhower was a Republican, had given definite assurances that he would be a candidate, and would not leave his followers out on a limb. Without such assurances, no local politician wants to deal.

Imagine their horrified surprise, therefore, when local leaders read in the press that Eisenhower hadn't heard from Senator Duff "directly or indirectly for a long, long time." Immediately long-distance phone calls began coming in to Eisenhower lieutenants from various parts of the country.

"You said Jim Duff was masterminding the general's campaign," protested one North Carolina Republican. "How can he mastermind the campaign when he hasn't even been in touch with him? You said Duff had assurances Ike would run. But Ike says he hasn't heard from him."

"In view of that," continued the irate North Carolinian, "we're getting in touch with Dave Ingalls (Taft's campaign manager) as fast as we can. We've got to protect ourselves."

What the North Carolinian had in mind was the way Eisenhower rebuffed various Democrats who wanted to draft him in 1948, making them too late to catch the Truman bandwagon. Truman has never forgiven Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, Jimmy Roosevelt, Sen. Olin Johnston of South Carolina and others who blundered for Ike. Republicans know this, and figure Taft might be just as vindictive as Truman.

Those are some of the sordid but essential ABC's of politics which Eisenhower doesn't understand, but will have to learn.

Behind the Peace

Besides the genuine desire for peace, two key factors are behind the American disarmament proposals in Paris:

A report from U.S. Ambassador Allan Kirk, just returned from Moscow, that both Stalin and the politburo are suffering a case of war jitters, think the U.S. is ready for war, and that Russia should get the drop on us. Kirk warned that there is grave danger Russia may start war for this reason; therefore urged the President to be extremely careful about all public statements on Russia—at least until the war hysteria dies down.

2. The effective manner in which Russia has put across the idea that it is the real advocate of peace and that the United States is warmongering.

War on Piggy Bank

The Bureau of the Mint has privately declared war on that trusty receptacle of America's loose change, the piggy bank. It's all because of the shortage of pennies.

The government has something like 19,197,534,000 pennies outstanding and another 175,000,000 were minted during the month of October. However, there's still a big shortage, forcing many banks to ration their outlay of pennies.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the mint, has an idea that the problem might be licked if all the nation's piggy banks were abolished.

"It's a touchy subject," admits Howard. "We don't like to tell people, particularly kids, not to save. But we'd like to trade a paper dollar for every 100 pennies stashed away in those piggy banks." The penny shortage is accentuated in times like these when people have lots of money to spend and retail stores go in for odd-cent pricing to attract customers.

Home-Baked Rolls, Coffee Cakes Add Special Menu Interest

HOW LONG IS IT since you've made hot rolls or coffee cake? It's a great satisfaction to make good ones, and there are many easy ways to do it. Hot roll mix insures satisfactory results for those who do not have the time to mix their own dough. It may even give them courage to try a yeast dough from the very beginning, when they realize the pleasures of working with yeast-made products.

HERE ARE RECIPES for both experienced and novice cooks. Try them on days when the menu needs an extra nice food or for a special occasion when you want to stimulate compliments on your cooking.

Almond Yeast Buns (Makes 12 3-inch rolls) 1/2 cup roasted, blanched almonds 1/2 cup seedless raisins 1/4 cup diced, preserved citron 1 package hot roll mix 1/4 cup granulated sugar 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 1 egg Few drops almond extract Candied cherries Halved, blanched almonds Chop almonds. Rinse and drain raisins. Add Citron, roll mix, sugar, spice and almonds, and mix well. Add liquid to yeast as directed on package, scanting liquid by 2 table-spoons. Beat egg lightly and mix into yeast mixture with flouring. Stir into dry mixture, blending thoroughly. Shape into 12 round buns and place on greased baking sheet. Allow to stand in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 1/2 hours. Brush tops with egg white beaten until foamy. Top each with a cherry half and several almond halves. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°F.) about 25 minutes.

Raisin Orange Rolls (Makes 15 rolls) 1 cup seedless raisins 1/2 cup unstrained orange juice 1/2 cup granulated sugar 2 tablespoons butter 1 teaspoon grated orange rind 1 package hot roll mix Rinse raisins and drain thoroughly. Combine orange juice and sugar and boil 10 minutes or until thickened. Remove from heat and stir in butter, rind and raisins. Cool. Prepare hot roll mix as directed on package. Turn dough out on oiled floured board and roll into rectangle about 12x18 inches. Spread raisin-orange mixture over dough. Roll lengthwise as for jelly roll. Cut into 1 inch slices with scissors. Place out side down in greased pan (about 7x15 inches). Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk about 1 hour and 15 minutes. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Serve hot.

*Fruit-Nut Bread or fast granular yeast 1 package compressed or fast granular yeast 1/2 cup warm water 1/2 cup milk 1/4 cup sugar 1/4 cup soft shortening 1 teaspoon salt 1 egg, unbeaten 1/2 cup seedless raisins 1/4 cup finely chopped citron 3 1/2 to 3 3/4 cups flour sifted Add yeast to warm water and let stand. Scald milk and pour into bowl with sugar, soft shortening and salt; blend together and cool to lukewarm. Stir yeast mixture well and pour into bowl with milk mixture. Add egg, seedless raisins, chopped citron and enough of the flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth. Place in greased bowl, turning once. Cover bowl with damp cloth and let rise in warm place 1 1/2 to 2 hours or until impression remains when finger is pressed deep into side of dough. Punch down dough. Place in lightly greased oblong pan, 9x13x2 inches or in two 8-inch square pans. Pat dough evenly into pans. Let rise in warm place about 30 minutes, covered. While cakes are rising, mix together 1 cup brown sugar packed in cup, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Measure out 1 1/2 cups thick sour cream. After coffee cake has risen, make little dents in the top with fingers. Pour sour cream on top and spread evenly. Sprinkle with the sugar-cinnamon mixture. Bake 35 to 45 minutes in quick-moderate oven (375°F.).

Cinnamon Rolls 1 package hot roll mix 6 tablespoons melted butter 1/2 cup brown sugar 2 teaspoons cinnamon 1/2 cup chopped walnuts Make dough according to directions on package. On well-floured board pat dough into rectangle about 12x18 inches. Brush with butter, sprinkle with brown sugar, cinnamon and chopped nuts. Roll as for jelly roll, cut in 12 slices. Put slices cut side down, on greased baking sheet about 1-inch apart. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 20 minutes. Glaze rolls if desired.

Eggs are not always beaten separately before adding to yeast batters because the final beating after mixing, 100 strokes, blends it perfectly into the batter. When you're beating yeast dough, beat "from the shoulder." This not only exercises the dough more easily, but it's also less tiring. A good way to handle dough which is rising is to place in a closed cupboard alongside a bowl of warm water. This gives the desired high temperature and also keeps the dough away from a draft. Refrigerated dough may be shaped into rolls while it is still cold. The dough will take about 1 1/2 hours to rise before it can be baked. Rolls and hamburger buns which are baked close together should not be pulled apart until they are ready to use, or they will dry out. Many sweet rolls and coffee cakes can be made more decorative when they're frosted. Use 1/4 cup confectioners' sugar, 2 tablespoons warm milk, and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract. Decorate with candied cherries and pecans, if desired.

RATS MOVE INDOORS WHEN MERCURY DROPS

Before the weather turns cold—

The first sign of chilly autumn weather is your cue to prepare for the invasion of rats and mice. During the warm weather they've had good food and plenty of shelter outside. Now they'll try to invade buildings, looking for harborage and a wintertime banquet at your expense.

An effective anti-rat and mouse campaign, according to many pest control specialists, includes these three steps:

One—Remedy poor sanitation.
Two—Ratproof buildings, when practical.
Three—Place rat bait according to directions.

To assure good sanitation, remove all rubbish piles, and stack lumber and firewood neatly on racks at least one foot above ground level.

Ratproofing, Step No. 2, can effectively keep rats and mice out of corn cribs, granaries, warehouses, and all other places where feed is available. Bulletins describing ratproofing methods may be obtained from your county agricultural agent.

Baiting is the third and most effective blow in the autumn anti-rat campaign. Outstanding among the available rat and mouse killers is warfarin, a potent substance discovered in the laboratories of Dr. Karl-Paul Link, Biochemistry Dept., University of Wisconsin, by Drs. Mark A. Stahmann, Miyoshi Ikawa, and Link. Warfarin bait is recommended because: It kills all species of rats and mice common to the United States; it is a slow killer and does not create bait shyness; no pre-baiting is required; no tolerance develops; it is easy to use; it may be used in any climate or season at any temperature; it is comparatively safe to use; and it may be purchased as a concentrate or a ready-mixed bait.

In using warfarin bait, it must be made available to the rats and mice at all times. Bait stations—shallow containers protected with a board or a wooden box—are normally examined and replenished every 48 hours. A limited number of permanent bait stations will kill newcomers and control reinvasion.

Farm Scrap Harvest Reported a Success
Farmers Can Sell All Scrap Iron and Steel

The national farm scrap harvest conducted between October 15 and November 15 has been termed a success by the steel industry, producing millions of tons of scrap iron and steel badly needed for making new steel.

Although the drive is over, farmers should continue to collect the scrapped machinery about their farms and sell it to dealers. It is a good way to keep the farm premises cleaned up and, although scrap does not sell for big prices, the financial return does mean something.

The steel industry continues to need the broken tractor parts, rusted and worn out implements, plow points, outdated horse drawn equipment, old cultivators, broken shovels and similar equipment that can be found on almost every American farm. There are about 25 tons of iron and steel on the average farm.

Farm scrap can be a major source of the 36,000,000 tons of scrap that are needed by the steel mills this year. It takes that much scrap to produce 110,000,000 tons of steel that mills in our country have as their goal for 1951.

Cheaper Way to Fatten Beef Cattle Outlined

G. A. Branaman, Michigan State College animal husbandry authority, reports that full feeding grain is the quickest way to get a steer to market, but it isn't necessarily the cheapest or the most profitable.

Plain cattle, for instance should be fed longer and more cheaply than well-bred steers of good type. "Corn silage full-fed along with protein supplement may replace all the grain for plain steers when fed a longer time," he comments. "Yearling steers usually are fed from 4 to 7 months, depending on their grade and quality, and the amount of grain fed. Calves require a longer time to fatten and 2-year-olds a shorter time."

Wintering calves on roughage, then pasturing for part or all of the summer without grain results in cheap gains. Under present cattle and feed prices it is possible to pasture cattle for two summers, feeding roughage in winter. These animals may be grain fed for a short time or sold as grass-fat cattle.

The above sketch of a loading platform is one any farmer handy with tools can build. The main idea is to build it on skids so it can be moved about the farm as desired. The railing can be made detachable to make it easier for loading farm machinery. The uprights would require 4x4 lumber and the platform 2" planks.

Shearing Lamb Faces Will Increase Gains

Shearing the faces of heavily-wooled feeder lambs will increase gains, according to Graydon Blank, extension animal husbandry specialist at Michigan State College. Blank explained that lambs can see better without a heavy crop of wool around their eyes. After shearing they'll find the feed trough more quickly, will eat better and will gain much more rapidly, specialists report.

Turkey Crop Is Reported To Be Biggest in History

A survey of turkey producers reveals the biggest turkey crop in the nation's history with total production estimated at 53 million birds. Early marketing is expected to be the heaviest on record, perhaps as much as 60 per cent of the total crop. The small Beltsville White turkeys, which are sold as 4 to 8-pound weights for frying and roasting, will make up nearly 20 per cent of the total.

NATIONAL AQUARIUM

1,500 Species of Marine Life Maintained by National Aquarium

WNU Washington Bureau

The National Aquarium in Washington, although housed in the Department of Commerce building, has been operated by the Fish and Wildlife Service since 1940. In that year, the service was created by the consolidation of the Bureau of Fisheries of Commerce and the Bureau of Biological Survey of the Department of Agriculture.

The original aquarium, established in 1888 by the former U.S. Fish Commission, occupied an old pre-Civil War building in another part of the city. When the present Commerce building was built in 1932, the fish were moved to the new and larger aquarium under the main lobby, but operation continues by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

The present aquarium occupies a floor space of about 14,000 square feet, and has 50 tanks which hold about 30,000 gallons of water. The water is changed on an average of three times a day. Since the aquarium is situated below the sewer level, the water is drained into underground reservoirs which must, in turn be pumped out, an expensive operation.

The heavily chlorinated city water supply, which the aquarium uses, is a constant problem because chlorine would mean overnight death to the fish. All the water used must therefore pass through carbon filters. Temperature control must also be watched carefully. The hot Washington summers require complete refrigeration of the tanks of northern fishes, and the warm water of the tropics must be duplicated in those tanks which have fish accustomed to that climate.

The aquarium now houses 1500 individual kinds of fish of which the rarest is a collection of albino catfish — the only such collection now in this country. Another great attraction to the 250,000 visitors each year is Siamese Sue, a tiny turtle with one body but two heads. Sue is a perfect example of turtle frustration. Each brain controls the set of legs on its side so that decision as to whether she's going to move or stay still is a major factor in Sue's life. Each head must be fed simultaneously or the other one will try to grab the food. Sue has grown from the size of a quarter to about the size of a silver dollar in the two years that she's been at the aquarium. A two-headed turtle usually lives only a few months.

The NATIONAL Aquarium seeks primarily to maintain an attractive display of the principal fresh-water game fishes which are propagated and distributed throughout interior waters of the country, John C. Pearson, director of the aquarium, says.

Reactions of aquarium spectators are watched as carefully as the behavior of the fishes themselves. It has been noticed that women like the fancy Oriental goldfish, the black Chinese Moors and the multi-colored Shubunkins. Men seem to prefer the rainbow and brook trout while Siamese Sue remains the favorite of many children. The most generally liked attraction, however, is the shallow pool filled with turtles of all varieties.

Future improvements to the aquarium call for better lighting effects in the display tanks. They are all electrically lighted now with the surrounding area kept just a bit darker so as to better show off the displays. More naturalistic backgrounds for the exhibits is another aim. Real moss grows in the tanks, but most of the greenery used is bamboo because it retains its color under water for a longer period than most other types of greens. Aquarium officials also hope for a more complete display of native food and game fish so well appreciated by many millions of American fishermen.

The attendants are occasionally offered bribes by thoughtful visitors who want to take a fancy goldfish home to the children. A gem collector once offered $5 for a pearl-bearing oyster from Hawaii. As Mr. Pearson says, a good motto for any aquarium management is: "If it fits into a pocket, keep it locked up."

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

DOROTHY LAMOUR, Paramount's "Road" girl, who landed in a circus when Cecil B. DeMille picked her to play the worldly wise "iron jaw girl" in "The Greatest Show on Earth," will always be associated with the sarong that she made famous. Yet she has worn it in only 12 of her many films. But it made her famous a year and a half after she broke into films, following three years as vocalist with Herbie Kay's band and a short career as a radio singer. She probably has more friends among the studio "little people" than any other star; she says they're the ones who have made it possible for her to get ahead.

Gene Tierney, one of Hollywood's best dressed women, says she always gets caught in slacks and a sweater on Beverly Drive, in Beverly Hills, where she does most of her shopping. Just as sure as she dashes out in a hurry to make some purchases, "There I am in my slacks, and I meet somebody like Joan Crawford looking like a movie queen."

Jean Simmons, the little English actress under contract to RKO, who will have the starring role in "Pilate's Wife," has had a spectacular career. Her "Ophelia" in Olivier's "Hamlet" made her famous, and she ranks fourth in Fame's poll of international film favorites. She is currently before the cameras in "Androcles and the Lion."

Officials Should Be Legally and Morally Honest

By Wright A. Patterson

IT MAY BE within the letter of the law, but it is not within the spirit of the law for those holding government positions or having government influence to use their influence on behalf of people or corporations seeking government loans from R.F.C.

It is very possible that the man holding the position of head of the Democratic party could not be convicted for indicating to officials of the R.F.C. that he might have a hand in keeping them on the job, or naming someone for the job of director of R.F.C. What he did was undoubtedly legal, but it represented a lack of morality the people expect from those holding positions of public trust.

Had the same thing happened during the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, Boyle would have continued on the job he held for just the few minutes it took the President to fire him. But we have degenerated morally since the days of Theodore Roosevelt and are doing now what was done during the days of Harding. But the Harding crew was not wise enough to violate only the spirit of the law, they violated the letter of the law, and were caught in the toils of justice.

Abraham Lincoln said "the republic cannot live half free and half slave." Today he would say, and others are saying, "the nation cannot live half legally honest, but half morally dishonest," and moral dishonesty should not be countenanced.

There can be no place in American public life for either those who exert influence through holding places of power, or for those who demonstrate that they are susceptible to influence, whether that influence be paid for in the form of despicable units, milk coats, free hotel bills, free vacations, or as attorney fees. All such rewards are but bribes, and both the bribe-taker, and the bribe-giver should be summarily discharged from any form of government service. Our public officials must be both legally and morally honest, whether they be cabinet officers or clerks.

To the men folks of the nation it seems hardly fair that they should have to pay the present exorbitant charges of the barbers and at the same time must collectively pay for the "pretying up" of the members of the United States senate. But the recent action of the senate forces them to do just that.

The senators will get their hair cuts, their shampoos, their shaves, and all the other items the barbers can suggest as something needed at public expense. The tickets will be handed to the tax payers.

Each hair cut will be the same $1 charge whether the senator be a baldy, or one having a luxuriant crop. The tax paying public will pay the $1, plus the charges for all the extras. The cost to the people for the tonsorial needs of the senators will be more than $1300 more for this year than for last. But the senators will pay their own tips, if any.

At about the time of the starting of the Korean war, living costs were going up faster than at any time since then. At that time, congress gave the President control legislation which he then said he did not want, did not need and would not use. Now the President is condemning congress for not giving him the control legislation he did not want, and did not use, and now living costs are leveling off at about the point they reached at the start of the Korean war. Congress feels the President is inconsistent.

Instead of raising the postage rates, which the people must pay, congress might well cut out better than three billions of cost for the propaganda services that are of no benefit to any one unless it be the heads of departments who wish to justify their existence. It does not present factual information regarding the operations of government. Because it is propaganda, not factual, reputable publications will not use it. The some 30,000 people employed in its production and distribution, costing more than three billions a year, is an entirely unwarranted expense. Saving that three billion would represent a real economy that would mean far more than the adding of a few hundred millions in an increase in postage rates.

BRIGHT SUNSET

By Frances Rider

ABOVE the brow of grim El Huerfano a pale pink cloud was fluffing out her rose-edged ruffles. Desbah lifted her dark eyes from the blanket she was weaving. For a moment the brown hands were still, then they took up the wool again and the design continued to grow. She must work while there was still light upon the mile high mesa about her, for inside the hogan it was difficult to blend the grays and browns of the sheep's fleece.

A breeze stirred her hair and again her glance sought the cloud. Ah! Just as she had expected, the wind from the north had brought another cloud and although at first the pretty pink cloud slipped behind El Huerfano and pretended to hide, soon the two would touch and merge. Desbah had watched them often.

"For quilted clouds are mating, high above the plains in the summer sky—"

she and Yazza —
Yazza the Long was a silversmith. Like many Navajo men he fashioned sturdy enduring jewelry from coin silver and engraved it with simple lines signifying good fortune and long life. Desbah looked down proudly at her wrist.

Yazza was different from the others. It was he who had made the bracelet she wore. He had decorated it with the thunderbird. A square turquoise was set on either side and beside them flowering cactus, symbolizing courtship. It meant that Yazza and she would like to marry and build a squat round hogan of their own. If only they had the money for a license. The winter had been long and cold; and the summer rains scant. Her father's sheep had died off. The few left were weak because they hadn't enough gamma grass. Desbah looked at the now, grazing at a distance among the sun-baked stones. Among them several children played a game with pebbles.

The blanket was nearly finished but she could not try to sell it. She would have to trade it for overalls and calico and flour. The few remaining sheep needed salt.

El Huerfano's far lonely peak was afire with the sunset as Desbah rose and went to the door. Yazza had gone to the mission that afternoon and soon he would pass on his way back. When Desbah was twelve she had spent a few weeks at the mission school. Only orphans could stay longer. There was too little money. Remembering the services she had attended there she moved her lips in unaccustomed prayer.

When she lifted her head she saw a tall figure black against the flaming sky. It was Yazza. Coming toward her, he held out his hands showing her many bills and much silver. Desbah had never seen that much money all at once.

"Oh, Yazza! Tell me."

Yazza spoke with no excitement in his voice. "At the mission was a letter. The lady read it to me. A store in California wants all my rings, all my pins, all my bracelets. When I make more we will get more money." Beneath the beaded band his eyes sparkled with the glory of the sunset and his own pride.

"Yazza, Yazza, it is good. Now we can get the license."
"Not yet, my patient one. My parents have debts. I must help them."

"But you said there would be more money when you make more bracelets and pins."
"Yes, my patient one, but first—"

Yazza drew from his pocket a jewel-like piece of petrified stone. "Why do you think I polished and polished this tiny stone?"

Shyly Desbah looked into Yazza's eyes. "For our wedding ring?"
"For our wedding ring. Tonight I will burn the candle low while I make the ring for you."
"Then tomorrow you will make the things to sell?"
"Tomorrow, my patient one, I will make the things to sell."
Shadows slipped along the sides of El Huerfano and filled the arroyo. From behind the tall lonely peak slipped into view one cloud with just a tinge of pink ruffles as one edge.

FIRST AID TO THE AILING HOUSE

Refinishing Woodwork
QUESTION: Our home has fir woodwork. This was painted with white enamel when we purchased it twelve years ago. With two small children, the woodwork was left with their hand and finger prints. Several years ago I used an undercoat and finished it with light oak and stain varnish. The last few times I washed it, it cracked and peeled, leaving the old finish showing. Would it be possible for me to finish my woodwork myself?

ANSWER: When you varnished over the old finish you evidently did not prepare the surfaces sufficiently to take the new finish; therefore the finish failed. Before doing anything more, all the old finishes should be well scraped off down to the bare wood. If you can get hold of an electric portable sander, this would save time and work in removing the old finishes. Or you can use a varnish remover to soften the finish, and follow by scraping with scrapers, steel wool and rough cloths. Then clean the surfaces very thoroughly with turpentine, for every trace of remover must come off; if any is left on, it will work on the new finish. (Liquids are inflammable—be careful of fire.) For the finish that you like so well, bleach out the wood with a prepared wood bleach. Next, coat the surfaces with a liberal coat of white paste wood filler tinted with color-in-oil thinned with turpentine to the consistency of thick paint. (Or you may be able to buy a special "pickled" wood stain.) After fifteen minutes wipe off most of the coating across the grain with a coarse cloth. The remaining filler should be allowed to dry hard. Then smooth the wood with very fine sandpaper. Wipe off dust thoroughly and finish with white shellac or varnish.

OPS Consultants to Visit West Bend Again Dec. 10

A consultation team from the Milwaukee District OPS office will pay a third visit to West Bend on Monday, Dec. 10, when it again sets up a one-day headquarters in the city hall, council room from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. The team, composed of two professional staff-members from the district OPS office, offers a consultation service on OPS matters to businessmen of Washington and Ozaukee counties on a private, voluntary, personal-interview basis.

Comprising the team making this visit are Robert P. Thompson, business analyst, and Joseph B. Scheiber, an attorney from the legal branch. Questions are invited on OPS regulations and requirements, with this team specializing in those dealing with food and restaurant problems.

OPS emphasizes that the advisory service offered by these teams is conducted on an individual basis with businessmen who come to the city hall. There are no "meetings." Present OPS plans call for another visit of a team to West Bend on Jan. 11, 1952.

BOLTONVILLE BUSY BEAVERS 4-H CLUB NEWS

"Share the Fun," a film showing the exciting breakfast honoring winners and talented 4-H'ers in the 1950 Recreation and Rural Arts program, was shown to the Boltonville Busy Beavers 4-H club at the regular meeting, Friday evening, Nov. 23, MWA lodge rooms, by Robert Strodola, club agent.

The outstanding talent on the program during National 4-H Club Congress enthused members to develop their entertainment skills. Norbert Dettmann, leader, related his past experience as a state winner to the congress and encouraged members to seek that goal.

"A cost hanger, chicken wire, Christmas tree ornaments, red ribbon, and evergreen is all that is needed," stated Margo Weiss as she demonstrated how to design a beautiful Christmas tree door decoration. It is now on display at the public library, West Bend.

Eileen Laatsch clearly showed one of the 14 ways of using apples when she demonstrated the various steps in preparing and serving a delicious tuna fish apple salad. The pamphlet "4 Ways to Serve Apples" was given to each club member family. Each demonstration was evaluated by Mr. Strodola.

For the monthly health talk Carol Riley compared healthy boys and girls who grow up straight and tall to a straight and tall tree that is strong and good looking, while a small crooked tree is not pretty.

Kenneth Stahl, junior member, and Myrna Laatsch, junior leader, were given the Boltonville Modern Woodmen award for the best record books. Achievement pins were awarded to the 25 project members. The 1951 club certificate with three gold seals was posted on the bulletin board.

U. S. Needs Civil Defense

ORGANIZING THE HOME FRONT MEANS USING MANY SKILLS

(This is the tenth of a series of articles on civil defense, based on the booklet "This Is Civil Defense" prepared by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. It may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for ten cents.)

By MILLARD CALDWELL
Federal Civil Defense Administrator

After the explosion of an atomic bomb, the resulting fires could cause more loss of life and property than the blast itself. Therefore, getting ready to fight fires is a big part of the civil defense job.

Atomic bombing would cause great fires in the area of the burst, and start hundreds of small fires in surrounding areas. With the regular fire fighting companies fully occupied by the main fires, people would have to put out these smaller fires on the spot. If they live in target areas they must know how to fight fires at home or at work.

At least one member of your family should be trained in the use of basic fire fighting tools and methods. Because women are at home much of the time, they are urged to learn how to put out fires in case of emergency. Teaching of householders to fight fires will be carried out by instructors trained by their local fire departments. Auxiliary or reserve firemen will be recruited to back up the regular companies. These volunteers will be trained by local fire companies, using regular equipment.

Your Warden or your local civil defense headquarters will tell you where to volunteer for such training.

Traffic A Big Problem

The biggest police problem in event of enemy attack, would be the control of traffic. Another big problem would be maintaining law and order. These are the most important of the duties which civil defense volunteers would help perform under the Police Service.

Auxiliary police, which many communities now have to supplement regular police forces in handling parades and crowds on special occasions, will also be used in civil defense work. They will be a part of the local police departments, and under the command of regular police officers, their authority to act being prescribed by local law.

Civil defense will need thousands of volunteers to carry on the duties of the Police Service. You can serve your community by volunteering today.

Good Communications Essential

No matter what kind of disaster strikes your community, much will depend upon good communications. In the face of enemy attack, the Communications Service would be the nerve center of civil defense for it would relay air raid warnings promptly, direct fire, police, rescue, warden, medical, engineering, and other services, and keep them in touch with one another. Without this service, headquarters would not have the information necessary to control situations brought on by disaster.

Thousands of volunteers are needed to man the communications network. Any technical training in radio, television, telegraph, or telephone work will qualify you for this service.

Neither sex nor age is a barrier to volunteering for civil defense. Retired persons with technical training are especially valuable, such as retired policemen and firemen. There are many jobs which women can fill better than men. Your local civil defense director will tell you what they are.

(The next article will discuss more civil defense services.)
