The Kewaskum indians opened their conference season in the Fox Valley Tri-County circuit last Friday night with a decisive a9-30 victory over an undermanned Lomira five o the home court. On Tuesday Kewaskum almost pull ed a big upset when they came very close to and should have upset a pow erful Kohler quint on the local floor Kohler was a runner up in the state tournament at Madison last spring and was undefeated throughout the season until hitting the state meet. The Blue Bombers lost only one regular from last year's great team, Bob Badura, who now is a member of the University of Wisconsin squad. They lost one other player, Schulze, but he was not always a member of the starting five Towering Gascoigne, Meid, Ebben anl Angelbeck are all back again. The Indians were ahead of Kohler all through the contest but they bogged down in the last couple of minutes and several quick baskets by Ebben, sharpshooting veteran, gave the Bombers a last minute win.

Kewaskum's potent attack against lie Ramthun who netted 21 points. Gordon Wierman added 14. The Indians led, 34-16, at halftime. Conrad Buerger had 10 tallies for the Lions. Top scorer in the Kohler tilt were big Center Gascoigne and Guard Ebben of the visitors with 16 and 15 points respectively. Ramthun dipped in 13 for the Indians and Center George Hanrahan 11. INFANT CARE

Government's Baby Book Is Best Seller; 28,000,000 Distributed

Millions of people all over the world have paid approximately $5,600,000 for the government's baby book and best seller, "Infant Care," tion of 28,000,000 copies.

Varying philosophies on the care of children from the time they are born till they celebrate their first birthday can be traced throughout these extra foods when a baby is the nine editions of this booklet, the first of which appeared in 1914.

In that year, for instance, barries didn't get a chance at even a tablespoon of strained fruit juice until they were 7 or 8 months old, but the 1951 baby is usually getting 2

DON MACLAUGHLIN who has the lead in NBC's "Counterspy" and stars as "Dr. Jim Brant" in "The Road of Life", is probably the only man in show business who got his start in the role of a horse. He had staked everything on making a success of acting, he'd got a small part on a network show-and it was cut during rehearsal. Don was assigned to help the sound effects man, and wound up by portraying a neighing horse.

DON MACLAUGHLIN

His first year's work netted him just $22.50. However, once he made his dent in radio the impression became permanent. Born and edu-cated in Ohio, he's called "The man with the typical American voice."

"Mr. and Mrs. North", now in their 8th year on CBS Radio, with Alice Frost and Joe Curtin starring, have a comedy mystery sketch set for Dec. 11. Involving the murder of a safe-cracker, they call it "Each Dawn I Dial"!

Bess Myerson, former Miss America, has been doing fine on her own little television show. Now Walt Farmer, producer of "Strike It Rich" has plans. Wants to star Paper Suggests Montana her in "The Big Payoff", a fashion in a person's life"-mother, schoolteacher, wife, sweetheart, sistercan win all sorts of clothes, the big payoff being a mink coat.

ounces a day by the time he is two months old. The 1914 baby could not have solid foods at all during his book and best seller, "Infant Care," first year, other than soft egg, crisp which has now reached a distribution of 28 000 000 copies a distribution of 28 000 000 copies tion of Infant Care, however, says: "Your doctor will decide when your baby needs solid foods in addionly a few weeks old, others wait until babies are 3 or 4 months old.'

Thumb sucking was sharply criticized in early editions of Infant Care. The first edition even recommended pinning the sleeve of the baby's jacket down over the fingers of the offending hand for several days and nights to stop thumb sucking. This attitude has been greatly odified over the years, and the accepted idea now is that thumb sucking is one of the first pleasures that a baby gets. Many mothers now say that it seems to result in a very satisfied child.

Cod liver oil was added to the baby's diet in the 1926 edition, and was identified as containing Vitamin D in the 1929. Frozen foods are approved in the present edition.

Infant Care is sometimes called the "mother's bible". It has been translated into 8 languages. The government printing office sells the bulletin at 20 cents per copy, and has become accustomed to many requests for simply "the book".

INFANT CARE has undergone major changes since it was first published. During its lifetime, advances in medicine, science, and in what we know about the emotional development of children have altered much of the philosophy which the book carries.

In compiling information for the current edition, bureau specialists talked to doctors, nurses, social workers, psychiatrists, nutritionists, and parent educators on what the book should cover. They asked parents, living in both the city and the country, what they particularly wanted the book to discuss.

The first draft of the revised booklet was submitted for review to about 70 persons outside the bureau, including 37 doctors, 6 psychologists, 7 nurses, 3 nutritionists, 1 anthropologist, 6 social workers, 8 parents, and 2 parent-education workers.

Fan mail throughout the years of Infant Care's publication has been remendous. From places as distant as Nigeria have come requests for t, and copies have even turned up in small Chinese villages.

The present edition of Infant Care, like those before it, is an attempt to bring together the most widely accepted modern ideas on the care of children. One unchanging philosophy throughout all its editions has been that babies need a maximum of tender, loving care to grow into healthy, happy, chil-

NARROW ESCAPE

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

LAURA knew her first feeling of fear when Jud took the whip from its socket and flicked it across the backs of the plodding horses. She had been watching the Minute clouds pile out of Fiction the northwest with amazing speed for the past 15 minutes. But this was April, and there was no wind at all. Also, the day was mild, almost sultry. It was hard to imagine a blizzard even in Nebraska.

Beauty and Prince broke into a umbering trot. The rhythm of the crunching wheels of the heavy farm wagon increased in tempo. Beneath them, at the foot of the long slope, Laura could see the buildings of

The cloud bank came toward them with astonishing speed, hanging an impenetrable gray curtain from sky earth as it swept across the prairie. Jud stood up and lashed out with the whip.

Little Lucy began to cry, and a moment later Jud, junior, joined in with lusty bawls. Laura huddled one under each arm and said: "Sh! Sh. now!" But when she lifted her anxious eyes, she felt again the terror.

The farm buildings were not more than a quarter of a mile away. Now they could hear the roar of the wind. It drowned out the crunch of wheels; it plucked Jud's cries from his lips and sent them screaming back over his shoulder. The blizzard struck them like a blast from the Arctic.

Laura drew the heavy bear rugs about the children, and bound her own scarf about her face. She could

The progress of the team slowed. Jud was no longer using the whip. He sat humped forward, barely visible behind a veil of snow.

AFTER a while Laura had the feeling that the team was swinging in a great arc. A new terror seized her. The road was straight. There was not a curve for miles.

She screamed at Jud, tugged at his sheepskin coat. He bent down and she tried to make him understand. He shook his head and pointed down. She bent forward, could barely make out the right front wheel. It was running even with the whippletree, had not turned at all.

She settled down once more, hugging the children close. Cold crept in under the blankets. Snow piled up in her lap and on her shoulders. he world had gone mad.

Again she had that feeling of winging around. She fought it unil the horror of it threatened her sanity. Then she poked her head from beneath the blankets. Jud was crouched forward, tense, pulling on the nigh rein. She beat against his shoulder.

"We've missed the house! I'm turning back!" She could barely catch the words. A cold chill, a hideous fear congealed the blood of her veins. Missed the house! It would be hours-possibly days before the storm ended. They had no provisions aboard the wagon. They would freeze.

She clutched the children against her. They never should have started out. They wouldn't have if it had been a month later.

The storm attacked with a new ury, an uncombatable violence. It ashed and screamed and laughed in nideous triumph at their helplessness. Time once more stood still.

Laura was roused by someone rubbing snow against her cheeks. She sat up, trying to cry out, remembering the children, "They're all right," Jud said, "I gave the horses their heads. They took us home. Wouldn't have made it otherwise.' Stiff-legged, carrying a child in either arm, she went through the shed and into the kitchen. The heat beat against her face. She set the children on the table and went to the stove. The kettle was stil ed there more than in sports and steaming. In another five minutes consists largely of third class mail, circulars, solicitations of one kind and another. Things I did not ask for, do not want, and do not read, though they are made to appear as letters through the use of special envelopes, one flap of which is folded in so as to make it appear sealed.

Increase in Third-Class Mail Rate Is Desirable

An increase in third class mail should be considered, raising it to the price of second class or letter mail. This could be done without imposing any added cost to the people, other than those who use it for sales or other solicitations. Any increase on letter mail affects all of the people and con-stitutes an added government burden for all to pay. Any increase on second class mail, newspapers and periodicals, would mean an increase in the subscription prices on the newspapers and periodicals, which the public, the subscribers, would pay. An increase on third class mail would accomplish one of two things, or possibly both. It would increase the postal revenues by all or more than the present annual deficit, if any, or it would reduce the amount of mail, and the cost of postal operations.

It could do some of both, and it would not cost the people of the nation generally a penny.

Nation's Millionth Traffic Death Shows Communities' Need for Safety Programs

On some as yet unknown day this month the United States will record the millionth traffic fatality to have occurred in the short span of years since the automobile was introduced as a factor in our civilization.

This is a grimly dramatic fact, and upon it the National Safety Council has based an excellent nation-wide advertising and publicity campaign to awaken all of us to the very real personal danger with which our emphasis on motor transportation is threatening us.

MAIN STREET FEATURE

No one knows, of course, who the "millionth man" will be; and, such is the nature of mass statistics, his identity probably will remain unknown, wrapped in the anonymity of a column of figures, even after his violent death has oc-

The devastating thing about this idea is that the millionth traffic fatality could turn out to be any one of us. We are not necessarily protected by the fact that we live in a small, relatively quiet town where traffic hazards might be supposed to be considerably less than in a large city. Carelessness, bad driving habits, disregard for traffic rules can be just as fatal here as anywhere else.

A high level of traffic safety is not a natural phenomenon in any community. It may be made to happen. A more or less consistent, community-wide emphasis must be placed upon the subject, with the purpose of planting the safety theme firmly in the mind of every person-motorist or pedestrian-

Can a smaller town, with limited funds at its disposal, do an effective job in making its citizens safety-conscious? The answer, generally, is "yes." A fine example along these lines was set last year by Grove City, Pennsylvania, which sponsored a "Safety Week" at a cost of only $33.50 to the city.

The movement was started by the public affairs committee of the local Kiwanis club, which, after things began developing, turned over the sponsorship to a committee representing all of the organizations in town. Thus, it became a full-fledged community project.

Because Grove City was hesitant as to the best way to conduct the "Safety Week," various national and state organizations were called upon for assistance and cooperation, including the National Safety Council and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council. The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue, Bureau of Highway Safety, and the State Police also sent representatives to Grove City to help.

Three committees were set up-publicity, finance, and project. Literature was distributed, some of which was produced locally by the police department. Boy Scouts distributed Green Cross stickers to every home. Lapel buttons were given out by merchants and in the schools. Gasoline stations passed out "Check Your Driving" circulars.

All local organizations had special traffic programs at regular meetings. One-minute traffic safety trailers were shown at the motion picture theaters. Persons prominently identified with traffic safety gave addresses before school assemblies and community gatherings. Pedestrian warnings were stenciled on sidewalks, and traffic lines were repainted, particularly those around schools.

Besides calling the public's attention to the need for traffic safety, the "Safety Week" resulted in a long-range benefit: the organization on a permanent basis of the Grove City Safety Council.

The major cost of staging "Safety Week" was underwritten by various interested organizations in town, and expensees over and above that amounted to only $33.50.

This would seem to constitute, in general, a safety-emphasis program which might be sponsored by almost any small community that would be willing to adapt it to its own needs and resources.

The great scientific discoveries of the past hundred years have been as child's play compared with the titanic forces that will be released when man applies himself to the understanding and mastery of his own nature.

U. S. Charges Commies 'Murdered' 5,500 American Prisoners of War

the grim announcement by Eighth Army officers that the Reds have killed about 5,500 Americans and 290 other U.N. prisoners of war. Civilian and senate reaction was immediate and brought demands the Korean truce negotiations be broken off and use of atomic weapons against the Representative Crawford of Michigan summed up the average civilian's point of view by stating: "Let's get an answer from the Communists or let's quit negotiating and get tough and push the fight to a

The atrocity report said the Chinese had killed 2,513 American prisoners, 10 British, 40 Turkish, 5 Belgian and 75 others of "unknown nationality". The remainder of the victims were slain by North Koreans before or after the Chinese entered the war. It was also estimated that the Chinese have killed at least 2,790 non-Korean prisoners and the North Koreans about 3,000.

The worse atrocity was blamed on the Chinese who killed 1,250 Americans near the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria between September 16 and 18, 1950.

The Eighth Army spokesman who released the atrocity story gave no reason for making it public at this particular time. One result, however, is expected to be the cementing of public opinion for a quick peace or an all-out fight using, if necessary, atomic weapons.

Immediately after the story was released there were reports of investigations into whether or not the death figures were correct. Latest reports indicated they might be revised upward.

PEACE TALKS-There was, however, every indication that a ceasefire might be in prospect for the Korean battle front and possibly an armistice by Christmas. Allied and Communist negotiators were reported nearing agreement on the latest U.N. proposal

The Allied plan consisted of four points: (1) Hostilities to continue until an armistice is signed: (2) the present battle line to be a provisional cease-fire line; (3) this line to become final if a full armistice is reached within 30 days; and (4) if the armistice is not reached within 30 days, negotiations will start over by drawing a new cease-fire line based on whatever the battle line may be at that time. The idea behind the Allies plan to gain a cease-fire now, but at the same time keeping the pressure on the Reds so the final armistice agreement could be negotiated. Distrust between the Allies and Communists remains the biggest hurdle in any peace settlement. POLITICS-As a general rule politicians have always been reluctant of putting down in black and white definite opinions on domestic and foreign policies, especially before an important election. Sen. Robert A. Taft, at the moment leading contender for the GOP nomination for president, is an exception to the rule. The senator recently wrote a book setting forth his views concerning U.S. foreign policy which he entitled, "A Foreign Policy for Americans". Before next year's campaign is over it could be that Senator Taft will wish he had never had the inspiration or time for his literary effort.

The senator, charging that President Truman put "all kinds of political and policy considerations" ahead of his interest in liberty and peace, has started a cyclone in political circles that will grow as the election gets nearer. Taft also says in his book, "If the present trend continues, it seems to me obvious that the President will become a complete dictator in the entire field of foreign policy and thereby acquire power to force upon chairman, coached him at his first congress all kinds of domestic policies which must necessarily follow." In rebuttal, the Democrats are charging that Taft is still an isolationist and the same man who said in 1940: "War is even worse than a

AGAIN 'NO'-For the second time in as many weeks President Truman had occasion to sev "no" to a proposal that he meet with Premier Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Pleven for a big four conference. The suggestion was made by President Vincent Auriol of France. The President contended the United Nations is the forum in which the leaders of the world should work for peace. He added, however, he would be willing to confer with Stalin if the Soviet leader came to Wash-

On several occasions the President has given the same answer to such on, expressing the opinion that agreements with the Russians are not worth the paper on which they are written

MEAT SUPPLY-The small town housewife will resume her role as the dictator of prices of steaks, chops and roasts in the neighborhood butcher shop in the next few months. That is the opinion of prominent cattle producers and farmers in the midwest corn belt where cattle and swine are finished for market.

Stockmen base their reasoning on mounting livestock production in the nation, with federally inspected beef plants turning out beef at a higher rate than in any November in four years.

Housewife resistance to high prices is credited with already rolling back pork prices from 1 to 12 cents a pound below ceiling levels. Gross farm income is reported higher this year than last because of the large numbers of animals marketed at higher prices, but net profits are reduced because of higher operating costs. Also of concern to cattle producers is rising imports of foreign meat, some of which has not yet been placed on the market. This country's imports of pork and beef this year are breaking all former records. Pork imports are up 60 per cent over last year. AUTO TOLL-The National Safety Council, which has geared its statistical service to a weekly basis, reported last week the death figure from automobile accidents has reached 995,600. The millionth death will occur during the third week of December, the NSC predicts. 'This tragic event would make a mockery of all that Christmas stands for," Ned H. Dearborn, council president said. "I appeal to everyone to drive and walk with extreme caution during the next few weeks. The millionth traffic death can be delayed if everyone does his part." NEW TAXES-While vacationing in Florida, President Truman is reported to be working on another request to congress for increased taxes. The report states he will definitely ask for more money when the lawmakers come back to work in January. Only the amount of the increase is yet to be determined. The report immediately drew the fire of Republicans and Democrats alike. Several stated they will not vote for any more taxes. And Senator George of Georgia, chairman of the powerful finance committee which handles tax measures in the senate, has already stated he will not vote for an increase "short of all-out war or a war crisis." The lawmakers are well aware of the fact that 1952 is an election year and that a tax increase is always an unpopular measure.

UNITED NATIONS—Talk continued in the United Nations last week on disarmament with the Western powers outlining details of their plan and the Russians proposing one of their own, a dusted-off version of one that has been rejected by the West a number of times.

Not even the most optimistic member of the United Nations believed that anything other than talk would come from the proposed plans. The rival disarmament plans are attracting a great deal of space in newspapers in all parts of the world, but the general public seems to view them as propaganda.

The Taft Brothers

Taft forces are so sore at brother Charles Taft for announcing for Governor of Ohio that they may genial Congressman George Bender, a GOP stalwart, into the Republican primary in Ohio to run against brother Charles.

There are several reasons for this row over the younger member of the Taft family. Primarily, Bob Taft forces are sore because two Tafts in a political race cause confusion and make the public think one family is out to dominate the Second, brother Charles has not been regular. He was a friend of Franklin Roosevelt, voted for him a couple of times and served under him in the Federal Security Administration and later in the State department during the war. Charles also bolted the regular Republicans in Cincinnati where he has been a member of the city council and helped elect a Democratic mayor, Albert Cash.

Democrat Frank McHale, towering boss of the onetime Indiana 2 per cent club machine, makes no bones about the fact that he put Hoosier banker Frank McKinney chairman, coached him at his first press conference, dictated letters for him to sign, and arranged his appointments.

McHale nabbed the committee chairmanship for his protege by the old adage of "being the fustest with the mostest."

Jake Arvey, the Chicago Democratic boss, tipped McHale off that Bill Boyle was on the skids and suggested that the big Hoosier might like the job himself. Whereupon McHale put in a long-distance call for his friend and fellow Irish-Mr. Truman's staff.

"I know just the type person you need to restore the prestige of the National Committee," he said. "He should be young, a successful business executive. clean as a hound's tooth, and a loyal Democrat."

"If you know that kind of a guy, you've bought yourself a national chairman," Connelly said.

McHale then recommended Frank McKinney who both fits the description and did a bang up job in the Pentagon. Kingmaker Connelly saw to it the door was bolted, re fused to let other Democrats with candidates of their own see the Governor Dewey did not meet secretly with Eisenhower at the Waldorf as reported last week. A broadway columnist got that one mixed with a Waldorf meeting which did take place between Dewey, Senator Duff of Pennsylvania, Herbert Brownell, the Dewey GOP mentor, and Gen. Lucius Clay. Georgia-born Clay, a lifelong Dem ocrat, is now in the Eisenhower camp. The meeting discussed ways and means of rounding up delegates despite the fact that Ike cannot declare until next spring.

There's not the slightest question but that Ike started life as a Democrat. His first speech at the age of 18 at Abilene, Kansas, was at a Jackson Day din-

U. S. Needs Civil Defense

HOME FRONT PROTECTION IS UP TO YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

By MILLARD CALDWELL Federal Civil Defense Administrator Civil defense is set up by Federal and State law. But no law will work unless you back it up with action. That's why, in the end, the responsibility for civil defense is yours.

If bombs from enemy planes ever fall on your city or community, they will not fall on an organization, or a system of government. They will fall on you and your family and friends. A soldier is trained to take care of himself and to keep on fighting. As a defender of your home front, you thousands of volunteer workers.
