Porchlight Parade Canvass for March of Dimes Mon. Evening

Final preparations for Washington county's first annual county-wide "porchlight parade" to collect funds for the 1952 March of Dimes were reported near completion early this week by Dr. R. N. Schacht, parade director in West Bend, and Atty. J. Tom Merriam, general campaign chairman for] the northern portion of the county.

The appointment of volunteer chairmen for each of the six wards in the city of West Bend was announced on Monday by Dr. Schacht. Each of these leaders will in turn appoint a group of volunteers to work with them next Monday evening, Jan. 21, when the block by thock canvass of the city will get underway at 8 p. m. Ward chairmen, listed by wards, are the follow-

In listing the names of the various village and township chairman last week, it was inadvertently neglected to report that Henry Wold is the chairman for the village of Jackson.

Wilfred Butler, Walter Buss, Donal Ripple, and Donald Odgers, and sixt ward, Mesdames Leo Geib and H. G.

While the list of volunteers who will canvass the townships and villages on the same evening was not available in full on Monday, Merriam stated that he is depending upon the various sistants well in advance of the night of the visits and to co-operate with them to make this first county-wide porchlight appeal for polio funds an unbeaten North Fondy. On Friday the outstanding success. Boy Scouts in the villages of Jackson and Kewaskum, Newburg are reportedly ready to aid kum and North Fondy will settle the the drive chairmen in their respective Reviewing the plan for conducting the porchlight parade, Merriam again explained that only homes which display a porchlight on the evening of and George Hanrahan added 19. For WEST BEND ited The idea behind the porchlight In the contest with Lomira Ram appeal, he continued, is to make it possible for every person in the county to make a contribution, however small, to the 1952 March of Dimes.

The need for funds is more desparate this year than in any year in which a drive has been conducted, Merriam emphasized. Not only is Washington county heavily burdened with unpaid bills carried over from treatments of polio victims in previous years, but the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis also has a compietely depleted treasury. Unless funds in greater measure than ever before are forthcoming, the struggle to wipe out the deadly polio scourge will receive a serious setback. Research to find the cause and the cur for this disease cannot go forwa without funds.

Since 1945, residents of Washingto county have contributed a total $50,962.14 to March of Dimes can paigns, Merriam revealed. Half of th amount went to the national chapte However, also since 1945, Washingt county has received from the nation chapter a total of $77,800. Thus, b sides spending its own $26,000 share donations, Washington county has a so spent an additional $52,000 of t national chapters funds to carry its local aid program to county po

We cannot hope to repay this de to the national chapter, Merriam sai But we can and must make every tempt to pay our own way this since national headquarters may be in a position to advance addit funds until it has balanced its books. A record-breaking respons the 1952 appeal will go far toward king our own communities less de dent on an almost bankrupt nat foundation.

Receipts to date from industrial individual donations totalled $6 the chairman revealed. With the paign nearly half over, he was b means optimistic about the rethus far, He added, however, that total represents only West Bend tributions, and he hoped that chair in other areas of the county, in spite of being hampered by inclement weath. Lomira 12 7 7 9-26 er, were experiencing better luck in Kewaskum 12 17 20 5-54 obtaining funds. Various social functions being planned in different communities would, he felt sure, aid materially in making the drive a success.

OPERATION UNITY

The East-West Struggle Places Europeans in Political Quandary

By FARNHAM F. DUDGEON Editor, WNU Second in a Series

Europeans today are having an extremely difficult time trying to face in two opposite directions at the same time. There is, of course, the ever present Soviet threat of military invasion.

Europe Is Concerned

But, as the United States enters into a crucial election year in which the fate of European military and economic aid will be determined in congressional debate in next November's election, these people are extremely concerned with political events in the United States.

American taxpayers can feel fairly sure on one important aspect of this situation. Their representatives from both houses of Congress have poured into Europe in good numbers to observe first-hand the political and military situation as it

When the great debates start, both in the halls of Congress and on the campaign platforms of America's home towns, there will be a store of first-hand observations, which will enable the American voters to ask direct questions and be reasonably sure of getting well-founded replies States of-or political federation of with regard to the stake we have in Both American officials and the officials of other countries told us that these congressmen and senators, who visited them, took a good look and should be able to present a clear picture. We noticed that both political parties were well represented in these congressional in-

No Backing Down If economic and military aid from the United States were to be withdrawn, or seriously curtailed, it would be difficult to speculate on the outcome of such action. These countries certainly would not immediately back down, or "go over to the other side" Countries like Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia have no choice but to stand as firmly as they can against the Soviet Union. In Turkey we were told, for example, that the world would not be in such a sorry state today if other countries had taken as firm a position against Russia as have the Turks. In Yugoslavia there is great concern on the part of many observers. as to whether or not the people of the United States are completely convinced that the Tito defection from the Kremlin has been complete and unqualified. Our representatives in Europe voice the general opinion that Yugoslavia has, indeed, cast her lot with the West. In countries like Italy and France, there are thousands of people who still vote as "Communists". However, the general appraisal of these voters by American officials seems to be that only a small percentage are real "hard-core" Communists. They ally themselves with Communists and vote for Communist candidates as a protest against the other political parties which currently govern these nations.

If the cold war turned to a hot one, these people would undoubtedly fight against the Russian Communists. There would be some local sabotage, of course, but the majority would support the west.

A subject of continuing speculation by thinking men in Europe today is this problem of the "will to fight". Europe is tired. Its economy has been shattered by almost non- than it would be to have a front on ending wars through the first half of the Atlantic seaboard of the United this century. Much of the physical property which was destroyed during World War II has been rebuilt. But the minds of the people who have survived these wars are not rebuilt. They look with understandable suspicion upon alliances, which conceivably could thrust them into another war. And yet, at the same time, they know that their fate is completely tied to the democratic principles of government best personified today by the United States.

In their attitude toward peace and war, these people are little different than Americans. They know, even better than we do, the high and horrible price of war. But, somehow, one senses that they know, too, that unity must be maintained against Russian aggression.

Somehow, you feel that they instinctively agree with General Eisenhower, when he says:

Political Federation

"I believe that there will be no permanent position of serenity and confidence for the western world as long as we are confronted with the Communist menace. As a counter there must be created a United -Western Europe: and Western Europe must include at least Western Germany, and preferably United Germany

Many of the American officials with whom we spoke sincerely believe that such a federation of European countries is the only answer to the economic and political problems of these countries.

Such a union will not come easily, out the Europeans themselves know that something other than continuing subsidization by the United States must be done to give them an equitable status in the world's family of peoples. And it is here, in this realm of future long-range planning, that one encounters a European viewpoint, perhaps not thoroughly understood or appreciated by the American taxpayer.

Two Personal Questions

In the early stages of our trip, we encountered an American businessman, who was primarily concerned with getting us to find the answers to his two most important questions: (1.) "Do these people (the Europeans) really appreciate what we are doing for them?" and (2.) "When are they going to get "off the back" of the American taxpayer?"

"Appreciation" is hardly the word for the feeling which most Europeans have for the United States, with regard to the financial and military assistance which it has rendered. They know, and say freely and openly, that this aid has been their salvation. But by and large, these people are strongly nationalistic, and they are not happy with their fate of being the recipients of American "benevolence."

They don't feel that we are that we are buying their partnership in an alliance against a common like to have the aid, which we have been giving them, terminated just as soon as it is militarily and economically safe to do so. They feel that we are buying much with the money we are spending in Europe. Many of them are frank to say that it is much better for America to have a "front" against Soviet Russia located where it is today,

Five-Grass Mixture Popular in Indiana Pays Off in Higher

Quality Hay, Pasture

Farmers in 12 northeastern Indiana counties swear by a 5-grass mixture that pays off in extra tons of high quality hay and pasture. The combination includes timothy, brome, red clover, Ladino clover and alfalfa, reports Walter Rusk, county agent of Huntington county. This legume-grass combination, he said, could profitably be used by farmers in other states. When plenty of fertilizer carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash is used at seeding time and plant nutrients are top-dressed each year, this 5-grass mixture has yielded as much as 3 tons of hay at the first cutting on many farms. One farmer in the area insists that 5 acres of the mixture provides more forage than he previously got from about 60 acres of pasture.

Norman Thompson, who farms near Huntington, Indiana, reports that he grazed 27 head of cattle, including 16 milk cows and 11 calves, as well as 100 small pigs and 16 sows for 5 weeks on a 5-acre pasture seeded to the 5-grass mixture.

Rusk points out that the well fertilized legume-grass mixture is doing an important soil building job. besides giving farmers a preferred position in forage supplies. The taproots of the legumes drill down deep to keep the soil open and well ventilated. They add organic matter to improve the soil's tilth and drainage. Large quantities of organic matter in the soil mean increased water-holding capacity. They also make it possible to get the best possible efficiency out of every ton of fertilizer used.

For close to 200 years Benjamin

Franklin has been reverenced as the patron saint of printing and publishing interests in America, but there is another line of vast importance for which he was the pioneer leader. That line is mutual fire insurance. On March 25, 1752, there was started in Philadelphia a concern called "Contributionship." It was the first mutual insurance company in the na tion. Its organizers were Benja min Franklin and a group of associates, mostly Pennsylvania farmers. The idea spread, and now there are 2,616 mutual fire and casualty insurance companies operating in this country, into which were paid last year as premiums more than one billion 400 million. That business was conceived in the mind of Franklin. It stands as monument to his genius in a radically different line from that of

National Toll The 1952 March of Dimes-now in its third week-must supply the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis with funds to carry on the fight against polio in the professional training class-room—as well as in the hospital ward and research laboratory. Tripled polio incidence throughout the country during the last four years has heightened the patient care responsibilities of the National Foundation and underscored the need for intensifying the research fight against this crippling disease.

But the frightening new polio pattern—there have been more cases in the last four years than in the previous ten years combined—has breathed new urgency into the National Foundation's professional training program.

Patient care and research require highly trained personnel and this is why the National Foundation has allocated nearly $14,000,000 for professional education over a period of years.

March of Dimes funds have reinforced the reservoir of specialized professional workers through the medium of scholarships and fellowships in such fields as virology, orthopedics, pediatrica, neurology, public health, orthopedic nursing, physical therapy and physical medicine.

Additional funds have been expended for short-term refresher courses and field institutes to improve standards among the professionals actually caring for the patient.

Good Teachers, Supported by the People, Are Greatest Asset Rural Schools Have

The greatest asset our small community and rural schools possess is the men and women who devote themselves wholeheartedly to the task of teaching our children the things we want them to know. Yet, too often they, as well as the children themselves, are compelled to work under handicaps which are imposed mainly by a lack of adequate funds.

MAIN STREET FEATURE Money, in this case, does indeed talk; and where it is available in the form of a satisfactory school budget, it speaks the language of educational progress.

That section of the 1950 Census report dealing with family income casts some factual light on this serious subject. Comparisons of the medians for various population groups bring out significant differences between those groups with reference to the problem of educational facilities.

For example, the median family income for urban or city families was $3,068; for rural non-farm families, $2,-462, while for rural farm families it was $1,462. Although the income for the farm families appears to be surprisingly low, it must be kept in mind that these figures represent money income only. They do not include the value of farm produce consumed at home and other income in kind which farmers normally enjoy and which are an integral part of their high standard of living.

The figures do, however, reflect the relative lack of monetary support available to rural and small community

For many years educational authorities and experts have been decrying the low financial support and "general neglect" of rural schools. In any event, the fact that one-sixth of our total population lives in rural farm territory, plus the present high rate of mobility among the American people, makes it clear that rural schools need to be strengthened. Simply stated, it means that these schools must keep up with the normal social and technological advances that constantly are being achieved.

This implies a continued strengthening of the school district system, better financing, wise leadership and supervision, better housing and equipment, and a high caliber of teaching service in the rural schools. This last is the most human and at the same time possibly the most difficult prob-

What profit and satisfaction can the teacher anticipate from the field of rural education? W. M. Wilks, writing in the "Oklahoma Teacher," asked himself what he found so attractive about rural schools and came up with this sound and thoughtful answer:

"I like rural boys and girls. While rural children are very much the same as other children, they exhibit certain differences arising from background and training. These differences must be realized in working with them. I think the rural teacher has a better opportunity to guide pupils and aid them in overcoming their difficulties. There is no greater satisfaction for any teacher than to see the results of his efforts in the growth in character of his pupils.

"I like rural people. I like their sincerity and friendliness. When I started teaching in rural schools, I knew nearly everyone within a radius of 10 miles of the school in less than three weeks. I also like rural people because they usually welcome a visit from the teacher. They are nearly always cooperative when talking over a problem concerning their children.

"I like to live in the country. A community party, a fox hunt, dinner with a neighbor, or a conversation about crop prospects furnish more recreation and relaxation, at least to me, than anything the city has to offer.

"It thrills me when a member of the community introduces me to a friend as 'our teacher'. I am proud to be a country schoolteacher."

Private opinion creates public opinion. Public opinion overflows eventually into national behavior as things are arranged at present, can make or mar the world. That is why private opinion, and private behavior, and private conversation are so terrifyingly important.

—Jan Struther

sional cease-fire-line agreement in Korea expired without final agreement between the Communists and the United Nations in their peace talks. As a result, it will be necessary to redraw the cease-fire line whenever all other armistice points are settled.

Although progress in the talks has been slow, the over-all picture is encouraging. Results are beginning to show.

First, and possibly most important, is the slackening of fighting, resulting in a great drop in the number of casualties on both sides. This have. Not only that; He is constantpolicy is likely to continue as long as the talks are in progress, because, as Gen. James A. Van Fleet told correspondents: "We will not sacrifice time to reach out His hand in unour men needlessly. What is the use of thousands of casualties if it is questionable what good they would do?"

Second, the United States and its allies have a general idea, although | readily He will reveal His compassomewhat inaccurate, of the number of fighting men held by the Communists in their prisoner-of-war camps. United Nations negotiators, however, are still pressing for a full accounting of more than 50,000 unlisted Allied prisoners. The U.S. has asked specifically what has be- ures the knowledge of God's unfailcome of 1,058 Americans not on the official Red prisoner-of-war list.

How soon a final agreement can be reached in the talks is anyone's fear. guess, but distrust on the part of both sides will not hasten it. As an example, the Reds charge the lack of agreement due to "extraordinary pared by Religious News Service. colossal bungling, criminal negligence, and master-race arrogance" by the Americans.

On the other hand, the Allies charge the "Communists have run true . With few exceptions the talks have been marked by the familiar Red pattern of delay, deceit, and diversionary tactics.

PRICE CUTS-Rural and small town families, by far the largest group of mail order patrons in the country, are wondering if the announced price cuts on thousands of items by the firms located in Chicago is an indication of things to come during 1952.

Midwinter sales catalogues of the four biggest mail order houses in the business list lower prices on thousands of items. It is the biggest

One form cut the price on an 11-cubic-foot refrigerator from $262.72 to $212.75, a 25 per cent mark down on men's shirts, and price reductions ranging from 80 cents to $2.30 on tires from last fall's levels. The firm also listed 400 price cuts on both wood and metal furniture.

SALES SAG-The Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Trade Commission, in a report of business conditions during the last quarter of 1951, said sales in the nation dropped under the previous quarter's level for the first time since 1949. The report also said the profit sag, which began at the end of 1950, continued with manufacturers returns amounting to 15 per cent before taxes and 23 per cent after taxes. Sales fell off $2,600,000,000 during the period.

Only four of the 22 industries covered in the report recorded an increase of profits before taxes in the third quarter of last year. They were petroleum, food, tobacco, and apparel and finished textiles.

The commissions did not attempt to interpret the general decline in business. It was obvious, however, that decline was due to a consumer buying lull that started early in 1950, sharp increases in defense taxes, shortages of materials and controls on scarce metals. Most observers believe the trend can be expected to continue during the early part of this year.

THE OLD SOCK-According to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer the average citizen in the home towns of the nation are putting more and more of their money in the old sock and keeping it there. He says savings are greater now than at any time in the last five years.

Sawyer is all for this saving spree of Americans-amounting to an annual rate of $22,000,000,000—because he believes it has helped turn the tide against rampant inflation. He warned, however, that if Americans spend these savings in a new wave of buying, inflatary pressures

Personal incomes rose from $225,000,000,000 in 1950 to $251,000,000,000 in 1951. Now, in the early days of 1952, the rate is about $260,000,000,000.

GOP CIRCUS-The race of Republicans to secure the GOP president nomination is taking on the atmosphere of a circus-so many are joining the show that spectators are going to miss some of the acts. The latest is Harold E. Stassen. Already active are Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio and Gov. Earl Warren of California. Remaining to join the big show is Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, considered by many the white hope of the Republican party.

The other candidates had this to say of Stassen's announcement: "Every American has a right to run for President and it's well that the Republicans should have a wide choice."—Taft. "His (Stassen's) candidacy should stimulate discussion of national issues and he will undoubtedly be an important factor in the Republican convention."-War-

The important decisions that must be made early in 1952 have to do with the quantity and quality of European military forces, German participation in the defense of Europe, and creation of a European defense community and a European army.

T. V. Programs Rival Churches

WORCESTER, Mass.-TV programs have been crude, sexy, and irreligious and television generally interferes with churchgoing, in the opinion of a majority of members of the Worcester Ministers' Association who attended a panel discussion on television here.

Several clergymen labeled television a handicap to ministers. One reported that he felt "like an intruder when making parish calls in the evening" and that "there are times when I know my parishioners resent having me in their homes of mucus from nose into throat, then because they want to watch a certain program."

The survey found generally that families were more interested in stances floating in the air or to certelevision programs than in the programs of their churches and that children stayed up so late watching television that it was impossible for them to attend church school and other church programs.

Some of the clergymen reported television too time-consuming. Ten of the 20 ministers attending the panel discussion said they owned television sets themselves.

Ohio Judge Rules Bingo Against Law

COLUMBUS, O .- Charity bingo is a lottery and illegal under Ohio's constitution, Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall held in a decision of state-wide importance. His findings set aside a previous temporary order restraining police from interfering with charity bingo games of eight organizations, including church groups, American Legion posts and hospital guilds and clubs. Judge Randall based his decision on a section of the Ohio constitution which stipulates: "Lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets for any purpose whatsoever shall be prohibited in this state." While this constitution does not provide a penalty, the jurist declared, "in our opinion, the prohibition is still effective to declare all lotteries, irrespective of whether carried on with a profit to the one who operates the same, to be illegal and against public policy."

Safety Director Donald D. Cook said police will stop charity bingo.

"The coughing, hawking and blowing of noses at the theatre demonstrates that postnasal drip can be caused by excitement and emotional tension which cause overaction of the parasympathetic nerves involving certain parts of the nervous system such as nerve supply to nose and ears." That overaction of the parasympathetics is responsible for hawking, coughing) is suggested by the finding that where the sympathetic nerves were affected there was excessive blocking of the nose,

FOR THE PAST few years, cases as well as excessive opening of the of cronic head colds, dropping nose passages, due to emotional disturbances. Dr. Fowler states that from this there is something more nose have been believed caused than constriction or partial closing of the nose passages to explain the general effects on the nose and body generally caused by en otional stimulation to the autonomic (not under control of the will) nervous system. The pronounced changes in the nose due to psychic stimuli (emotional disturbances) suggest that many socalled colds are induced by this stimulation.

In Archives of Otolaryngology (ear and throat), Drs. Arthur F. Millonig, Harold E. Harris and W. James Gardner (Cleveland) report their study of the changes in the lining of the nose of 27 patients after the sympathetic nerve supply and six after parasympathetic nerve supply had been cut, in the treatment of vasomotor rhinitis (head colds, ivarious neurologic (nerve) disorders. KATHLEEN NORRIS Sinful Smugness

THREE YEARS AGO," writes Gerald Fletcher, from Springield, Mass., "I met the girl of my dreams. The woman, rather, for Isabelle is 26; I am 32. From the beginning a feeling sprang up be-tween us, not only of love—and that was almost at first sight, but of an immense liking, a congeniality, a union of likes and dislikes. Our work brought us much together, Isabelle conducting a department for girls in the big institution of which I am assistant director. These first months of our friendship were the happiest of my life; I am a veteran, not much handicapped by an artificial knee, and have been deeply absorbed in a scientific work which I hope to have published a few years from now.

Happy Engagement

"Our engagement was an absolutely happy time, when I went to my girl's Massachusetts home, met her delightful family, and was warmly made welcome. The engagement was then announced and our plans made for a wedding last June. It was some weeks after that that Isabelle quite suddenly asked me if I had ever had any serious love affairs with other women; she said she must know everything, and that then whatever it was it should be forgotten and forgiven. She said that she had a horror of the immoralities now said to be so prevalent among adolescents, but that she could not remain in the dark about

"I was hurt by her attitude, and told her that it could only disturb her to dig up the past, but she became agitated, and I saw that she had quite honestly thought I had nothing to tell. We had several distressing scenes, after which I told her a true story of one or two episodes of my first college year, and of a genuine attachment I had to a nurse, out in the South Pacific, a heroic, gentle girl who died of an infection from a shrapnel cut.

"Isabelle immediately broke our engagement, wrote her mother that I was not the sort of man that she could ever respect, or that she could wish to have as the father of her children. She returned my let-Walters, Louisiana State Univer- ters, the beautiful ring that my father had given my mother when they were engaged.

A Little Anger

"Pride and a little anger helped me through this shock and change in life; I could arrange things so that Isabelle and I did not often meet, and as the months went by I became attached - through loneliness, I suppose, for I never had noticed her before - to my landlady's daughter, a very quiet girl, whose fiance was killed in 1942, and who is a librarian. I have not led her to think I care for her, but some months ago she betrayed that she has come to like me.

"Now for the problem. This morning, while I was reading your article, a letter came from Isabelle. She has experienced a complete change of heart, she is sorry, she says she knows that men's lives are different from those of women, and that since poor little Rosy was killed in the war, I cannot restore my honor. as she puts it, by finding her and making her my wife. Isabelle's letter goes on to say that she is sure a few honest talks will set matters right and restore our old feeling for each other, but she ends with the warning that she must know everything now, and not expect any more shocks and surprises.

My dear Gerald, I say in answer, your letter leaves me no choice. Perhaps you have done Isabelle an injustice, although it does not seem so. But self-righteousness is a detestible thing, and anyone who thinks she has a right to question another about his past, his young mistakes, his natural emotions, will make a difficult wife. The smug serenity with which Isabelle proposes to probe into your soul, presently extending to you her benign forgiveness, indicates that you would always be to her a weak brother, to be helped and guided to her own heights of perfection. Just because a woman does not yield to early sex impulses doesn't mean that she hasn't equally serious faults.

One young wife I knew demanded to know everything her doctor husband's patients told him. When he laughed at her she grew angry, and told him that unless he answered her questions there would never be a baby in the house. They were Tonsils should not be removed married 16 years after that, until her death from cancer, and there never was a child. Isabelle would understand this perfectly.

In your place I would write Isabelle that you felt that your seeing each other would serve no purpose, and remain hers affectionately. And then take Goldie to the movies

HOW SNUG IS A BUG IN A RUG?

Well, that's hard to tell-but actually, we believe the whole thing is highly over-rated. One thing for sure-no "bug in a rug" is half as snug as the folks who sleep under the soft, warm folds et an electric blanket. Just set the control for exactly the kind of sleeping comfort you like-and the blanket stays that way all through the night. No "bug" ever had it so good!
