ESCAPES FROM TANK 100 FT. UNDER WATER WITH LUNG NEW LONDON, Conn.—Traveling 100 feet under water is old stuff to submariner Harvey A. Jeske, chief engineer, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erich F. Jeske, Kewaskum, but recently he surfaced from that depth without benefit of his submarine.

He was among a score of submarine men to "escape" from a man-made, 150,000-gallon escape training tank at the navy's submarine base here, submarine force headquarters reported.

It was a routine training examination, the navy explained, designed to insure physical fitness of its submarine men. Submariners must make their "escapes" every 18 months to retain their special qualifications. The 100 foot ascent is made with a bladder-type escape appliance known as the Momsen lung.

Chief Jeske is a crew member aboard the submarine Sea Leopard, based at Norfolk, Va.

Jeske's wife is the former Marguerite S. Louis of Sharp Park, Calif. They are presently residing in Norfolk, Va.

Kewaskum Wins in 16 Innings, 8-3

LAND O' LAKES STANDINGS (Northern Division)

Table with columns: Team, Won, Lost. Rows: Granville, Mequon, Grafton, Kewaskum, West Bend, Saukville, Germantown, Newburg, Cedarburg, Slinger.

Scores last Sunday—Kewaskum 8, Cedarburg 3 (16 innings); Mequon 5, Saukville 2; Grafton 6, West Bend 4; Granville 9, Newburg 4; Slinger 10, Germantown 5.

Games this Sunday—Kewaskum at West Bend, Mequon at Cedarburg, Saukville at Granville, Grafton at Germantown, Newburg at Slinger.

In the longest game played in the Land o' Lakes league in four years, the Kewaskum Chevrolets outlasted Cedarburg there Sunday in 16 innings, 8-3. Kewaskum scored five big runs in the 16th with a rally started by Pitcher Al Duenkel's double. The win was the Chev's second in a row which came after two setbacks.

The long contest was scoreless until the fifth frame when Kewaskum scored three runs and Cedarburg bounced right back with two. The Chevrolets held a 3-2 lead until the last of the ninth when Cedarburg got a run across to tie the count and send the game into extra innings. Cedarburg threatened three times in the extra innings but Duenkel was equal to the occasion. Jerry Stautz disputed a decision at first base in the sixth inning a little too forcibly and the umpire invited him to sit out the rest of the game.

Duenkel and Krueger, Cedarburg pitcher, both stayed in for the full 16 innings. Each pitcher twirled 14 scoreless innings out of the 16, an outstanding performance. The locals banged out 13 hits off Krueger while Cedarburg was limited to 13 by Duenkel. Each hurler walked only four batters. It appeared like the ball game would go on forever until Duenkel started the rally in the 16th. Then everyone started banging away and when the dust settled five Kewaskum scores had crossed the platter.

Joe Miller, who replaced Stautz, took hitting honors with three hits in four trips. Dick Edwards slammed out three for five and four other players collected two. Backmen was the top clubber for the losers with three safeties.

This Sunday Kewaskum and the West Bend Boosters do battle at the West Bend city park. Each team has won two and lost two and they are tied in the standings. It should be a typical thriller like the games between these natural rivals always are.

Kiddies' Pictures to Be Taken Free, Published in Paper

WONDERFUL PRIZES FOR THE CUTEST CHILDREN

It is an undoubted fact that the responsibilities of tomorrow's world, our nation, and community will rest upon the shoulders of the children of today. Since this is true, the publishers of this newspaper would like to give you a good look at these future "world builders."

The only way we can do this is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series. The Woltz Studios of Des Moines, Iowa, nationally known children's photographers, will take these special pictures for us.

An expert children's photographer for the studios, with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work, will be here Monday, June 9. The special studio will be set up at the Modern Woodmen hall and will be open from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

To add to the interest and fun in this exciting event, the studio will award $500.00 in CASH prizes—$250.00 to the cutest girl; $250.00 to the cutest boy. Each child or children photographed in this community will automatically be entered in the contest. The contest covers the mid-west states only. Beauty alone does not count—the studio judges will base their selections upon the personality and charm as portrayed in the pictures. Every child and family group are eligible.

There is no charge to the parents. There are absolutely no strings to this invitation. It is bonafide in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this newspaper to take advantage of this feature. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain a limited number by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the pose they want printed in the paper and entered in the contest. It is entirely up to them.

The Statesman wants pictures of all the youngsters and the more the better. So the mothers and fathers of the community in which this paper circulates should remember the date Monday, June 9 at the Modern Woodmen hall and not fail to bring their children to the photographer.

You will be mighty glad, afterwards, if you did, and very, very sorry if you did not permit your children to participate in this event. The kiddies will have much fun and both Mother and Dad—and the youngsters too—will be very proud to see their pictures in print later. And remember, your child may win one of those wonderful prizes to be awarded.

Fresh New Styles For Summer Wardrobe

No matter how well you have preserved it from last season, your summer wardrobe will need a few bright additions from this season's designs to give it a look of freshness. After going over what you have, you may decide to fill in the gaps with a go-everywhere suit, a wool jacket, a cotton party dress or several mix-and-match separates. Writing in McCall's Magazine for May, Nancy Wiener describes some of these stunning summer fashions that would give a lilt to any wardrobe:

"Brighten up your summer wardrobe with a two-way dress of red, navy or gray silk organza over polka-dot rayon taffeta. A Spencer jacket goes over a backless, sleeveless dress which has an organdy kerchief-halter — by Kasper for Penart. A coat dress in woven-check cotton with Gibson girl puffed sleeves makes a smart town dress for summer. It comes in black, navy or brown and white, with contrast embroidery on the white — by Kasper for Penart. A go-over-everything jacket of wool in white or navy with batwing sleeves will keep you comfortable and well-groomed on chilly summer evening.

"Basic to any summer wardrobe is a town-or-country suit of cotton using Tattersall check for the jacket, matching solid for the skirt. In gray, black or bright navy — by Smart Streeter. Team-ed-for-a-party, a barebacked linen halter goes with a skirt of Tebilized linen, nailhead trimmed. Both in black, navy or cocoa with white trim; beige with black. Separates will help stretch your wardrobe. One charming combination is a pique skirt embroidered with cellophane braid (washable). This skirt takes a halter trimmed with detachable pique and velvet bows, changes partners to appear with a white pique blouse."

State And National Parks Wonderful For Outdoor Living

The National Parks, scattered over all sections of the country, expect a record influx of tourists and vacationers this year. Though many people do not realize it, hiking and camping in these parks, and the many state parks, offer millions of Americans a grand opportunity for outdoor living in summer.

One does not have to own a plane and fly to Canada and hunt great beasts in the Northwest woods to get maximum outdoor pleasure. Nor does the vacationer, or hunter, have to kill his prey to enjoy the outdoors and the hunt. More and more Americans are finding that life in the protected National parks is exciting and real adventure.

Wild animals abound in many of the larger parks and in some of the vast mountain park areas exists almost as it did when the Indians roamed the hills and plains without a worry over the paleface. Camping is the sport of real men in the rugged outdoors of our many parks. No breakfast tastes as good as that cooked over an open fire at dawn on a summer morning, in a great national park.

In addition to camping and seeking out wildlife, there is the hiking angle. Trails have been staked out which cover periods of many scores of miles in some parks and hikers sometimes spend as much as several weeks along these trails, observing wildlife, living on the pioneer scale and enjoying nature's summer days and nights.

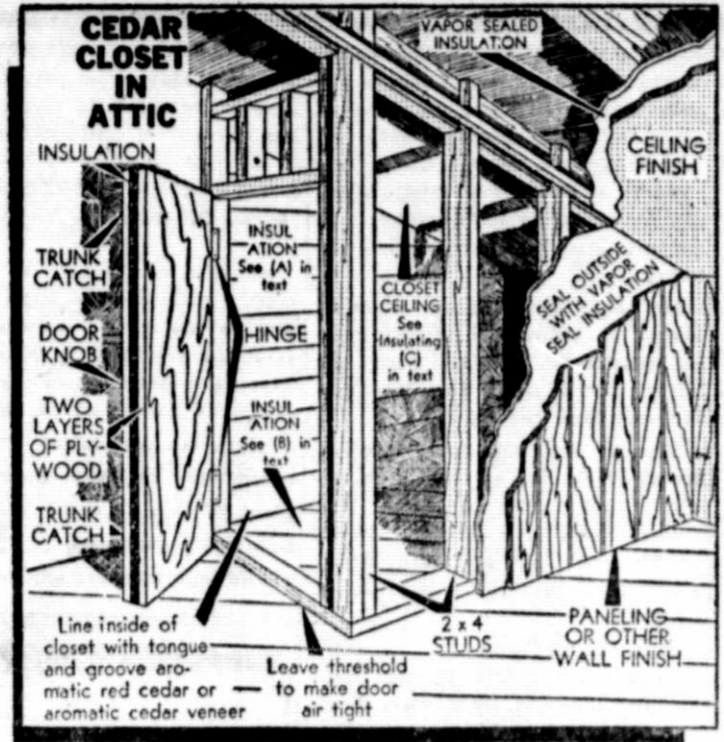

Of course such an expedition takes planning and the proper equipment if one is to be half-way comfortable. But the rewards, the appreciation of nature, of life itself, of the luxuries we take for granted, are all great experiences for the hiker. And such an outing is good for one's mind these complicated days.

Lying under the huge trees by a campfire at night, in a forest of a national park, where animals and man alike are safe, gives the city slicker a quiet moment to reflect. No telephone calls, no business tension, no human dealing and schemes at all. Here is a sport, as old as man, which costs little, and which is a tonic, both mentally and physically, for the tired business man.

The Interior Department in Washington and various state agencies can give interested persons lists of parks near their home.

Couldn't Care Less

Cogswell had taken up the saxophone and had become very unpopular, in the apartment house. He was riding down in the elevator one morning and met another tenant. "Tell me honestly," he said to the neighbor, "does my practicing make you nervous?" "Well, it used to, when I first heard the other tenants complaining about it," the neighbor replied. "but now I don't care what happens to you."

HOW TO BUILD A CEDAR CLOSET

I have attempted to illustrate an improved design of a cedar closet which will be as nearly moth proof as cedar can make it. There are several factors, however, to be considered.

An adult moth usually will not enter a cedar closet to lay its eggs of its own accord. It may be carried in on clothing.

Moth eggs which have been carried in on clothing may hatch. The aroma of the cedar, however, generally kills them before they do much damage. Larvae which already have hatched, and carried in on clothing may do a great deal of damage.

Line Closet

Line the closet and door with aromatic red cedar. Use either tongue and grooved stock or veneered sheets. Close all cracks where air might enter, or where dirt and lint might accumulate. The door of the closet should be made in three layers. Use a sheet of 3/8 inch plywood for the outside layer which is one inch larger than the doorway, on each side.

This should be true even on the bottom.

The center layer should be made of vapor sealed insulation blanket. The vapor seal should be toward the outside.

The sheet of insulation also should be larger than the opening, and will act as a seal when the door is closed. The inside layer should be of aromatic red cedar, the same as the lining of the closet. This layer should fit inside the opening of the doorway.

Important

An elderly lady, after long trips through impressive hallways and an hour of waiting, was permitted to see a high-up assistant in the Agriculture Department.

"But I want to see the Secretary of Agriculture himself," she protested.

"He's not in just now, madam," said the official. "Can't you tell me what it is you want to see him about?"

"Well, I have a geranium that isn't doing so well."

side the opening of the doorway.

The door should be fitted to the opening so it fits snugly all the way around. Trunk catches, wing nuts, or cabinet catches should be used top and bottom to be sure the fit is airtight. Offset hinges should be used with this type door.

Another Problem

Insulation of the closet is another problem. The floor should have vapor seal insulation, with the vapor seal down. It may be laid directly on top of the sub-flooring. (See Illustration B.)

If one wall of the closet is to be on the outside wall of the building, the insulation should be applied with the vapor seal toward the inside of the closet. (See Illustration A.)

If all walls are to be on the inside of the attic, keep the vapor seal toward the outside wall of the closet.

Opinions Differ

There is a difference of opinion on how to handle the ceiling insulation.

One opinion is the closet should be as nearly airtight as possible, so the ceiling also should be insulated.

The vapor seal should be toward the inside of the closet if it is applied to the rafters. The space between the rafters should not be filled with insulation.

The other opinion is the ceiling should not be insulated, since the summer heat kills moths and moth eggs.

It is true that a temperature of 125 to 130 degrees for a period of four or five hours will kill moths and moth eggs.

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 3 teaspoons double acting baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup salad oil
- 5 egg yolks, unbeaten
- 2 tablespoons grated orange rind
- 3/4 cup orange juice
- 1 cup egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 pkg. semi-sweet chocolate morsels

Sift together cake flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Make a well in this mixture and add in order, salad oil, egg yolks, orange rind and juice. Beat with spoon 150 full strokes, counting only actual beating strokes. In a large bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until whites form very stiff peaks (much stiffer than for Angel Food or meringue). If egg whites are underbeaten the chocolate morsels will sink to the bottom of the cake. Gently fold yolk mixture into egg whites with rubber bowl scraper until just blended. Turn 1/2 the batter into ungreased 10-inch tube pan, 4 inches deep; sprinkle 1/4 cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels over batter. Turn in remaining batter and sprinkle 1/4 cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels over top. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.) 65 minutes. Invert until cool. Cover sides and top of cake with frosting; decorate with chocolate musical notes. To make musical notes, press tip of semi-sweet chocolate morsels around sides and top of cake to form part of musical notes, using about 1/4 cup. Melt remaining semi-sweet chocolate over hot, not boiling, water. Remove from heat; blend with 1/2 cup confectioners sugar adding a few drops of water or milk to make a smooth consistency. Force through pastry tube to complete musical notes.

  - 3 teaspoons baking powder

Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons melted butter, then with 1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon which has been mixed with 3 teaspoons of sugar. Bake in an oven 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Cut into squares and serve hot.

Never mind what the world owes you—it is your ability to collect that counts.

RED CROSS AID TO VICTIMS OF MARCH 21 TORNADOES NEARS MILLION DOLLAR MARK

ABOVE—The refrigerator and washing machine are all that remain in the splintered ruins of G. R. Nelson's newly remodeled home near Lonoke, Arkansas, after tornadoes struck in this and six other southern states March 21. The twisters destroyed 1,044 homes, caused other losses to 4,510 families, killed 214 persons, injured 2,000 others of whom 636 needed hospitalization. The Nelsons' young daughter was one of hundreds for whom Red Cross paid medical bills.

BELOW—Made possible by a $4,023 Red Cross building award, the Nelsons' new four-room home now is almost ready for the $693 of essential furniture also bought for the family by the Red Cross. Meeting actual needs, not losses, Red Cross is aiding 775 families in rebuilding homes and additional hundreds are receiving awards—outright grants, not loans—to pay for household goods, medical bills, and other needs. Expenditures now are nearing the million dollar mark.

JOB WITH A VIEW—With only his safety belt holding him, a lineman leans from his precarious perch 400 feet above the Sacramento River as he installs a protective armor rod on power cable of the 230-mile-long Shasta-Tracy west side transmission line of California's Central Valley Project. The power cables had to be strung 3800 feet across the river.

"THE GRANDEUR THAT WAS ROME"—A Roman policeman stands guard next to the statue of an ancient Roman sentry on the grounds of "Eur. 42," a project started by Mussolini to house the 1942 world fair and cancelled by World War II. While workmen change the site into a housing project, police stand guard over buildings which will eventually become museums, schools and lecture halls.

4-H TRACTOR MAINTENANCE

BOYS OF COUNTY TAKE TOUR

Nineteen of the boys in the 4-H tractor maintenance project took a tour to the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company on May 1. The boys were taken down by E. E. Skallskey, county agent, and Bob Stodola, the club agent. They were personally escorted through the plant by Bob Fryer of the public relations department. The first part of the tour was through the tractor division. Here the boys were shown the construction of the Allis Chalmers farm tractors, beginning with scrap or pig iron as it comes to the factory, through the various manufacturing and assembly lines, until the tractor was ready for loading and loading up and hauled to the farm.

Another part of the tour was through the large equipment assembly building. Here were giant pumps and generators, like the ones used in Boulder Dam, being made. As a result of the tour, the boys have a better idea of the skill and workmanship that goes into the production of a farm tractor.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight NEW YORK — The simplicity nowadays of preparing meals at home and the great progress in availability of tastier, fresher and comparatively inexpensive foods from grocery stores is giving restaurant men a collective case of nerves.

(Not that they are in bad shape. One estimate puts the gross of eating and drinking places so far this year at almost $12 billion annually, compared with slightly over $11 billion last year and the all-time high of more than $12 billion in 1948. Back in 1939 the gross was a paltry $3.5 billion.)

But restaurant men point out that higher costs have reduced their margins to critical points and that it's the net that counts, not the gross. And, they feel, conditions aren't likely to improve. It is predicted in some quarters that family shoppers some day may be able to buy a complete, prepared meal at the grocery store or supermarket. Many of these food packs will be precooked and those which are not will be portioned and ready for seasoning and the oven. That day is not far away, either. Airlines have long used prepared meals which require only warming, and at least one railroad is now experimenting with the idea.

THINGS TO COME — The sharpest razor to come out lately is one with built-in hone. A few flicks of the wrist and the blade is like new. . . A "No squat—no squat—no squat" fire-resistant safe with the numbers on the side of the dial allows comfortable opening while standing with added secrecy since the body blocks the view of any snoopers. AGE FACTOR—While science can take credit for many of the technological advances in American business, it has also created its share of problems. For one, the question of retirement at age 65.

Dr. Charles E. Dutches, vice president and medical director of Schenley Laboratories, Inc., told the Industrial Medical Association in Cincinnati recently that the average American lifespan—now 68.5 years—will go even higher in the future. He also pointed out that less than half of the 12,000,000 men and women now over 65 are self-supporting.

As the number of persons over 65 increases—to an estimated 20,000,000 by 1980—the problem of supporting them looms increasingly large. Eventually, Dr. Dutches says, we may have to reappraise the question of forced retirement at 65.

CHARGE IT, PLEASE—An experiment on Long Island, N. Y., by the Franklin National Bank may help the small store owner regain some of the trade he has lost to the big department stores.

The small retailer simply can't afford to maintain a charge account department and as a result many customers shop at bigger stores which can. Franklin National believes it can handle the problem by being the main credit office for a number of small businessmen—for a fee amounting to 5 per cent of the credit sales. Approximately 23,000 Long Island families now have charging privileges in local retail stores. The merchant has a double advantage. He avoids losing the business of a good risk and can keep a bad risk happy by saying, "Look fella, don't get mad at me. It was the bank that turned you down."

Dogs: Protector Of Man Since Early Days

By John Diffily Dogs are protection. They have been since the days when they lived with their master in natural caves in the hillsides. They were one of the first animals domesticated by man. Egyptian writings mention dogs as early as 3000 B. C. In the half light before dawn of civilization the dog turned his tail on the animal world and became the companion of man. The pre-historic skin clad hunter, clutching his crude spear, knew the comforting sound of a dog's footsteps padding along behind him. A fire built in the mouth of his cave and a dog to raise the alarm if animal or hostile human approached gave man his first sense of security. Since those days, dogs have known every habituation of the human race—huts, tents, castles, boats and houses. The medieval castle always had its population of dogs and a few favorites who were never far from the lord's feet. Dogs slept in the Crusader's tents and shared the hardships of desert campaigns. The little "Schipperke" knows the barges of Belgium as his home. His name means "Little Skipper." For several hundreds of years his duties have been to keep the barges free of rats and sound the alarm against unwanted boarders.

In America our Indians well knew the value of dogs. It was impossible to approach an Indian village without causing the pack of dogs who lived there to raise every soul from his bed long before any surprise attack could be started.

Across the North American continent dogs followed the covered wagons to homes on the banks of the Mississippi and all the way to the shores of the far Pacific. Lonely frontier women knew the protection of dogs when they spent days and weeks alone in remote cabins.

I saw the efficiency of the dogs used by the Marine Corps during World War II. Their guard duty was perfect. I don't think anyone in his right mind would have argued with any of the Dobermanns or German Shepherds I saw on Guadalcanal or Bougainville.

Recently a great deal of publicity was given to the dogs employed by the Marshall Field Department Store in Chicago to supplement the regular human night watchmen. There are two of them, German Shepherds, who patrol the store and warehouse. They make their rounds and, miracle of the modern age, report in by pressing a button with their paws. They do not attack trespassers, but corner them and hold them until the night watchmen arrive. Several late-working employees have found themselves pinned in a corner until help arrived.

Many a farm house knows the protection of a fine dog. It is well to remember this attribute of the animal in these days of stress on bench show, field trial and general companionship.

My own bulldog bitch has one of the finest dispositions in the world. The children maul and love her and her only reaction is to increase the tempo of her

FIRST AID for Everybody

VI--Handling of Fracture Injuries

(This is another of a series of articles, written especially for Central Press Association and this newspaper on first aid, a subject gripping the nation in the light of threatened atomic aggression. The articles are based on the American Red Cross First Aid course. First aid principles, applicable to atomic as well as other disasters, are outlined. The Red Cross offers a 22-hour course free which teaches fully the technique of first aid.)

By Central Press THE FRACTURE is one of the most serious and delicate injuries with which a first aider must be acquainted. Fractures range from head to toe and the breakage of bones usually is followed by shock. To prevent shock keep the patient lying down and warm.

Two basic rules are (a) do not let broken bone ends move and (b) do not let the adjacent joints move. When in doubt whether a victim has suffered a fracture, assume that he has.

These rules apply to both a simple and a compound fracture. In a compound fracture, there is a wound from the break which penetrates the skin. Improper handling will convert a simple fracture into a compound fracture.

In a bomb catastrophe fractures and multiple injuries may be caused by crushing. In such cases, the first aider should immobilize the entire body, splinting damaged extremities gently and caring for shock. People pinned down by debris may suffer injuries to the kidney. Therefore, the victim should be extricated quickly, splinted if there is an indication of a fracture and transported lying flat. Apply no heat.

In the simple fracture, avoid handling the injured part. Immobilize the broken ends and the adjacent joints with a pillow or blanket or splints, binding them on. The patient should not be moved until this protection has been applied.

Control of bleeding probably will be essential in a compound fracture. Use direct pressure and pressure at the pressure points mentioned in a previous article. Do not try to shove the bones into place. A tourniquet is dangerous, as previously pointed out, but if it is used, a sterile dressing should be applied first and bound firmly in place.

IN THE CASE of a skull fracture, keep the patient lying down, head and shoulders raised if the face is flushed. If the face is pale, the head may be lowered slightly. Move him only in a horizontal position. Keep him warm but never apply heat to an unconscious person. If there is a wound, apply a compress and bandage.

Fracture of the spine is one of the most serious of injuries and not very easily detected. Pain in the neck or the back may be the only symptom. If the victim cannot move his feet or toes he probably has a broken back.

If examination indicates a person has a broken neck, and he must be moved, get a door, a shutter, or a wide board. Keep him face upward, but one person should hold his head between two hands to keep it level with the body. The head must never be tilted in any direction. Even after he is strapped to the board with several bandages, sandbags or similar objects must be placed at his head to keep it from rolling.

Any injured person with acute back pain should be considered as having a fractured spine. He should never be lifted to a sitting position. If he must be moved to escape falling walls, place him in the proper position on a blanket, rug, coat or other material and drag him to safety. He probably will be found lying on his abdomen. Roll him gently on a board or stretcher, face up, and place a pad under the lower spine.

Auto Vacation Travel Preferred Five To One

The vacationing public's favorite form of transportation is the automobile.

Almost one half of the people in the U. S. left home for at least one vacation last year, and five of them traveled by automobile for every one who rode in a plane, train or bus.

This vacationtime wanderlust, recommended by psychologists as the best revitalizer for work-worn individuals trying to keep up with today's frantic living pace, has made all of the U. S. a vacation center. The fancy resort centers, which used to get the vacation play, have now bowed to the average American's desire to see what his whole country looks like.

To cater to this trend, 22,000 hotels, 50,000 tourist motels and restaurants and approximately 200,000 tourist homes have been opened to handle the highway roamers. A good portion of those seeking new scenery head for national parks. Of this group, many travel more than 2,000 miles per trip, American Automobile Association figures show. These vacationers spend between $100 and $150 for a trip averaging 21 days.

ed and this warned them. They escaped in time taking the unconscious Pointer with them. He recovered and is a well loved pet. The dog's oldest and best role is indeed — Protector.

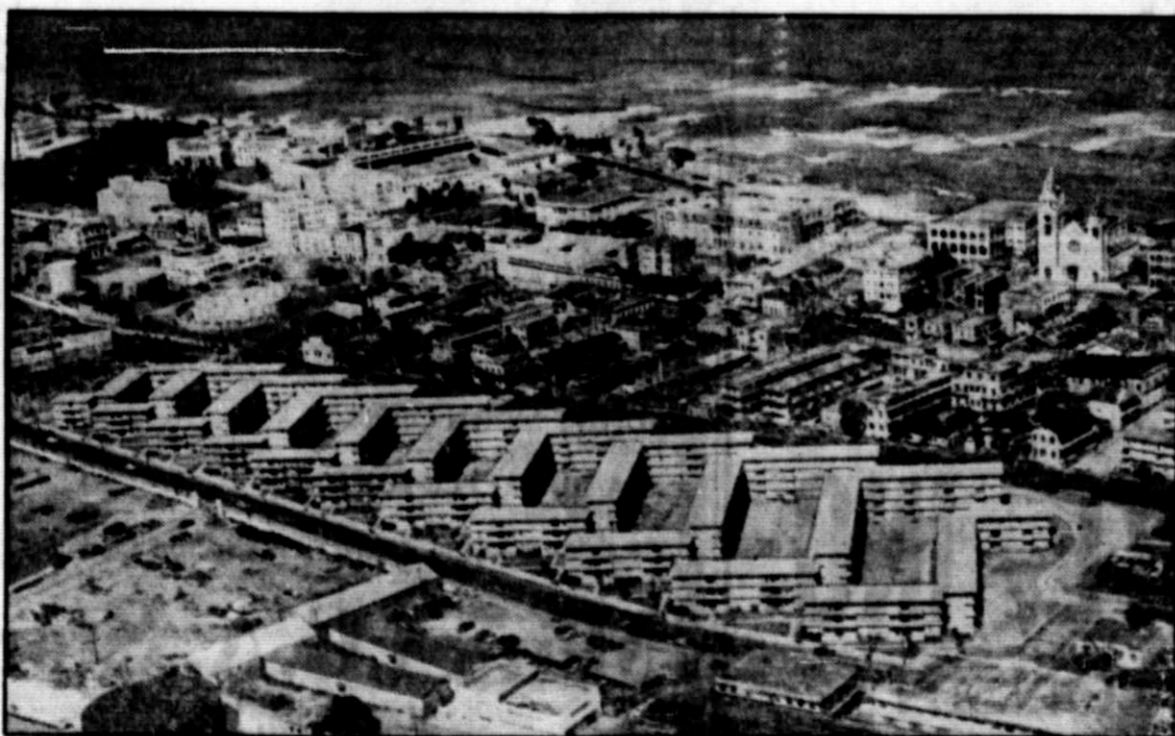

Dogs Differ In Way They Ride

Dogs differ greatly in the way they take to riding, according to animal authorities. Some just love to ride. They will jump in a car, on a train, in a boat, settle down, look out and enjoy the scenery or curl up and sleep contentedly. Others, like some people who never get over a queasy feeling when they are riding, are inclined to car sickness when in any moving vehicle.

The best way to start your dog riding is to let him sit in a car for a few minutes while it is stationary. Then, take him for short, daily trips—if only around the block—for a week or two, to get him over his natural excitement and nervousness and accustom him to the motion.

Although some dogs enjoy looking out the window, the dog that appears to be a perpetual victim of car sickness is much better off if he is trained to ride in the trunk of the car where he doesn't have the dizzying, fast-moving landscape in sight. The trunk, of course, should be equipped with ventilators at each side, or an opening made at the top of the back seat, to allow air to enter.

Hunters often wonder why dogs brought or shipped from afar are disinclined to hunt. Long rides of any kind may tire a dog or make him nervous, so don't expect him to be at his active best after a lengthy trip.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

Byron Dalrymple has made what he says is "one of the most unusual discoveries in the angling world." When he saw some of Michigan's most dyed-in-the-wool trout fishermen get all excited about another fish in the middle of the trout season, he thought he'd better investigate. The fish? The very common lake herring (really a cisco).

Just who tied the first fly that fooled the first herring no one will ever know. But the first actor in this little drama is the May fly. The thousands of miles of shallow shore lines of the Great Lakes have always been the greatest May-fly breeding ground in the continent. In the spring and early summer untold billions of them pop up. The herring, normally a deep water fish, swarm shoreward to gorge themselves on the flies. The movement has nothing to do with spawning, since they spawn in the fall, chiefly in November. One day in the last ten years or so, somebody decided to offer the herring an artificial May fly. Dalrymple describes the strike this way: A streak of streamlined silver burst out of the water, leaped with tarpon spirit. It flashed in dazzling airborne acrobatics. It tail-walked the water like a smallmouth bass, raced with trout speed, dived and cavorted and in general fought stubborn, gamy rings around anything its own size wearing fins.

It's a sweet new sport from many angles. The rankest dub with the most elemental tackle gets strikes, simply because there are so many fish. There's no wading necessary. Since the peak of the inshore herring migration usually occurs in June, it coincides with the great tourist migration. This has helped touch off a boom for herring. When a man sees dozens of local enthusiasts and tourists who've beaten him to the draw happily lashing the water, how can he forego such temptation?

The big problem, and the angle of this sport that separates the experts from the dubs, is the tender mouth of the herring. You don't haul these babies in. They insist that you play them, and that means with the utmost daintiness and until they are absolutely done in. It's something every fly-rod man should try. All along the Great Lakes, and in many small lakes where there are herring and early summer insect hatches, you can sample this fast-paced sport.

Bible Comment:

Good King Brings About Religious Reforms in Judah

ONE of the mysteries of life is why good men should sometimes have evil sons, and conversely why bad men have good sons. Both phenomena are illustrated in the history of the kings of Judah.

Hezekiah was a relatively good king, but his reign was followed by that of his son, Manasseh, who was corrupt and evil. He not only shed innocent blood, but he sought to overthrow the religion of Israel and replace it with idolatry.

His son, Amon, proved no better, becoming king at the age of 22. He ruled for two years and was slain by his own servants. Then came the good son of a bad father.

Those who slew Amon were themselves slain by those who took Josiah, Amon's son, then a boy of eight, and made him king. He ruled for 31 years, and must have been under good influences from the first, for as boy and man he was great and strong.

Good and well-intentioned men are often lacking in initiative and forcefulness in action, but King Josiah was aggressive and competent in his goodness. He vigorously attacked the idolatrous places and practices, threw down and destroyed the altars of iniquity, and restored the Temple as the place of true worship.

It was in this restoration of the Temple that the "Book of the Law," the book of Deuteronomy in our Bible, was discovered. It became the occasion for an impressive dedicatory service in which king and people made a covenant to obey its precepts and serve the one God.

Centuries later Jesus proclaimed the spiritual nature of the true God, whose worship is in spirit and in truth and is not confined to temples, mountains or other professedly holy places. But the effect of the reforms under Josiah was to purify religion of its abuses. In its emphasis on the holy place it destroyed the unholy places; and unholiness, whether in place or in person, is the denial of essential goodness and of all true worship.

QUESTION: We paneled one end of our living room with tongue-and-grooved cedar. We followed advice in filling the nail holes with wood putty mixed with cedar dust, but since the cedar wood is light colored in some places, and medium to dark brown in others, they still look bad. We once thought of having all the walls paneled with cedar, but it's a far more work getting these nail holes fixed than to have the room plastered. I like the effect of wooden pegs used in putting down flooring to give an early American look. Is there any way this can be done?

—H. G. W., Kenosha, Wisconsin

ANSWER: Wood plugs of oak, mahogany, and other hard woods are available or can be cut from dowel stock to fill the holes of screws countersunk. Nail holes, being small and irregular, are sometimes filled with hand cut pegs. Both are cut off with a chisel and the area sanded smooth. It's a laborious job. However, you can avoid holes completely by laying the tongue-and-grooved cedar the same way flooring is laid. Drive the nails slanting through the tongue and countersink them. The hole is then covered by the groove of the next piece added.

QUESTION: What is the correct procedure with an angle iron over a window when putting rock veneer on a house? How far past the opening must it go? Is it absolutely necessary?

—W. H. B., Reno, Nev.

ANSWER: Unless the opening is arched over—a difficult job—the lintel is absolutely necessary to carry the load of rock above window and door openings. Bearing surface should be four to six inches for average openings, more for wide ones. The lip of the angle iron is set back 1/2 inch from the face of the wall so as to become invisible, and the next course of rock or brick veneer above the opening is laid directly on the lip of the angle iron.

New Organdy Can Take It, Yet Looks Fragile

BY EDNA MILES

ORGANDY has taken a new lease on life. Not that it has ever gone out of circulation; it's been here right along. But now, it has new finishes and uses.

It's a part of interior decorating of fashion, it even goes to the head in ethereal bits of millinery. With all of this, modern organdy is constructed to take it even though it continues to look fragile.

A permanent finish for organdy was developed about fifty years ago by the Heberlein Company, a Swiss firm. It's this finish that takes the fabric, made by this process, through numerous launderings with no need for starch.

There are new patterns in the flocked organdies from Switzerland for spring. Flocked organdy appears in drapes, in translucent tablecloths and napkins, in high fashion designs for late-day wear. The pattern stays in through cleaning or hand laundering.

Porcupine Can't Shoot Quills Through Air

©1951 National Wildlife Federation Porcupine

Some people have the idea that a Porcupine can shoot its quills, but that isn't true. While the animal uses its bristles to drive away enemies, it doesn't send the weapons winging through the air. Instead a Porcupine under attack arches its back, raises its quills, and awaits the foe. At the moment its body is touched, the Porcupine swings its broad tail and swats its opponent. The stinging blow leaves a patch of quills stuck in the enemy's flesh.

The stiff, slender spines are hard to remove, too. Covered with sharp barbs, like ends of fishhooks, they sink in and cling to the flesh which they stab. An animal wounded in a fight with a Porcupine may try for days, without success, to get rid of the quills.

The Porcupine is lucky to have this unusual way of defending itself, says the National Wildlife Federation, for it is a slow, stupid animal. It cannot move rapidly, either on the ground or in trees. If it did not have barbed quills, it would be an easy victim of mountain lions, bobcats, and other preying animals.

While it does not run from a fight, the Porcupine tries to keep to itself. It likes the life of a hermit, and does not even seek the company of other Porcupines. It may prowl by day or by night, but usually it spends most of the daylight hours in its shelter. Its den may be in a cave, beneath a large rock or a pile of brush, or in a hollow log.

When it comes out of its hiding place, the Porcupine roams the woodlands in search of food. It eats most fruit and vegetables, but it is most fond of bark, twigs, buds and leaves. The worst thing it does is to feast too long in one place. Many a tree has died because a Porcupine has chewed away the bark in a circle around the trunk.

When cold weather comes, Porcupines make preparations to raise their families. In each den, one baby Porcupine is born in the late winter. It is about 11 inches long and weighs slightly more than a pound, but it is strong enough to waddle in six hours and to climb when it is two days old. Right from the start it has a set of sharp quills.

Though they are soon taking care of themselves, the young do not reach full size until they are about three years old. By that age they are three feet long, with six-inch tails, and they weigh between fifteen and twenty pounds. Their quills are yellowish white, mixed with black hairs, and their front teeth are bright orange.

Furniture Fashions

If you have a porch, terrace, garden or just a plain old-fashioned backyard, with a little planning and a few pieces of the new summer furniture, you can have an outdoor living room that's both colorful and inviting. The variety of designs in wood, rattan, metal and wicker has never been greater. Wood furniture is now treated to be moisture and insect repellent, and brilliantly colored upholstery fabrics for pads and cushions have been designed to take a beating from the weather. Summer furniture is available in matching combinations of chairs, tables, settees, serving carts, etc. Porch, garden and recreation room furniture is keeping pace with all the other design advancements within the industry. Shown above is a porch group of wire-brushed hickory and woven flat reed.

There is always more than one way to be in fashion. This season, accessories themselves lead to a number of such ways, says Betty Ann. The woman who shops with a foreknowledge of important accessory colors and shapes will find the handbags, gloves, belts and scarves which in themselves lift her costume from the mundane to the magic of fashion. This season it is not the biggest pin which makes the news, nor the bulkiest bag, nor the shiniest shoe, nor the longest, thinnest umbrella. It is the accessory with personality which has the greatest impact.

Designers have given us accessories with a personality of their own, a personality which can in turn become a woman's personality. Many new accessories take their cues from the new interest in white and pale costumes. White or almost white accessories are also ready to give the important personality touch to a pallid costume, or to a woman one which many women adhere to, or to black costumes which provide the other important summer background.

White jewelry, for instance, is much handsomer than in the past. Women in search of white jewelry with personality will find not just white beads but flower forms and crusty surfaces illuminated with rhinestones. From Paris, too, comes news that bigger earrings are on the way. Paris is also reported to be on the side of colored jewelry and jewelry which is definitely "showy."

Full of appeal, too, are pink accessories, from pale rose to a glorious crimson. Universally flattering, pink is now to be found in belts, in leather and fabric handbags, in umbrellas as well as scarfs and gloves.

For several seasons beige has been important. Now it emerges as more than a neutral. It develops in variety from tip to toe in accessories and in a great choice of tints and tones. Now there is a whole family of beige, running from a delicate vanilla into the deep glowing tones of warmer amber.

Next to colors, the shape of accessories is important in the roster of things to come. Shape has much to do with personality. The newest handbags look like a low slung racing car. Others are flat little folders to be clutched in the hand.

This season, a handbag may be the personality punch line of a costume. It need not match anything else, but may stand out in its own color, shape or material.

Fried Shrimp
Two cups hot cooked rice, one and one-half cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one egg, three-fourths cup evaporated milk, drained canned or fresh cooked shrimps, two teaspoons tartare or phosphate baking powder or one teaspoon combination type baking powder. Measure and sift together the flour, salt and baking powder. Beat the egg slightly, add the milk and combine with the dry ingredients, stirring constantly. The batter should be thick enough to coat the food entirely. If too thick, add more milk. If too thin, add more flour. Dry the surface of the shrimps, then dip each one in the batter, entirely coating it. Fry in deep fat heated to 360 degrees, browning them on one side and then the other. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with rice and soy sauce. If using fresh shrimps, leave the tail attached in removing the shell after cooking. Yield: 18 fried shrimps.

You can safely keep leftover egg whites for 10 days if you put them in a tightly covered jar and store them in your refrigerator. Use them for prune whip, angel cake or a meringue.

Refrigerator cookie dough may be pressed into a square or round waxed cardboard carton and placed in the refrigerator. When the dough has chilled and stiffened the carton has removed by cutting along one side and "peeling" it away from the dough. To cut even slices of the cookie dough for baking, use a thin, sharp knife and a sawing motion.

There is a reason for all things—but most of us fail to take time to reason.

Plan Aeroplane Tour of County June 29

Arrangements are being made to provide an aeroplane tour over Washington county to see soil erosion problems and some of the practices being used by farmers to conserve soil and water. The date of the tour will be Sunday, June 29. At this time of year the fields and crops present a beautiful appearance from the air. An aeroplane tour of this nature was held in Washington county last summer at which time 134 farm and city folks took the plane ride.

Planes with experienced and licensed pilots for such trips will be provided by the Wisconsin Aeronautics Commission. Such plane trips have been a regular part of the flying program sponsored by this commission. The planes used will be four-passenger planes and will be fully covered by insurance. The plane ride will be about one-half hour in duration and will cover about 70 miles and will include an air view of much of the county. The cost of the tour will be $3.00 per passenger. The pilot will point out points of interest and explain what the farmer is attempting to do to conserve soil and water on erosion-subject farms.

City people as well as farm people may take this trip. Reservation for the plane ride may be made with E. E. Skalkskey, county agricultural agent, post office building, West Bend. Telephone 502 before June 21. No remittance need be made at the time of making your reservation.

Plane trips will begin at 10:00 a. m. if necessary and continue into the afternoon until all passengers have been accommodated. Those interested in taking such a tour should make their reservation very soon. Also when making your reservation kindly indicate at approximately what hour you prefer to take the tour. Indicate also a second choice of time. Choice of time

Our club joined the Lake Fifteen and Gage schools on a tour to Madison, Cave of the Mounds, and Little Norway on May 16.

After our old and new business was taken care of, we made a check on our health habits and filled in our health record sheets.

Then demonstrations were given by Rachel Petermann, David Smith and Ronald Petermann.

Rachel Petermann showed us the correct way to brush teeth. Ronald Petermann and David Smith gave a demonstration on the right and wrong way of repairing an extension cord.

Later a movie was shown on health. We also saw an Abbot and Costello movie by the assistance of Oliver Petermann and his wife.

After the activities of the night were completed, Mrs. Bales served a delicious lunch.

COUNTY OIL GROUP TO MEET, ELECT OFFICERS

Local oil men will meet at West Bend on June 6 to discuss a program of objectives and to elect officers of the Washington County Petroleum Industries committee, Milton Becker, present county chairman announced this week.

The committee is composed of oil men of all levels of the industry—service station operators, dealers, jobbers, and others. In the interest of good government and in behalf of their customers, the group seeks solutions to problems affecting the growth and development of automotive transportation.

An interesting color film entitled, "Pipeline on Wheels" which illustrates the safety precaution taken by the petroleum industry in handling its products will be presented by F. M. Elliott, executive secretary of the state Petroleum Industries committee.

A six-point program of objectives recently outlined by the state organization will be discussed at the meeting.
