

Kewaskum Upset by Belles, 19-12

TRI-COUNTY STANDINGS Won Lost Lomira 2 1/2 1/2 Campbellport 2 1/2 1/2 Kewaskum 2 2 Brandon 1 1 1/2 North Fond du Lac 1 2 Oakfield 1 2

Kewaskum furnished the opposition at Campbellport's homecoming last Friday and the Belles succeeded in shading the Indians, 19-12, with a touchdown in the last minutes of play.

Quarterback Matt Serwe was the hero for Campbellport, scampering 16 yards for the game-winning touchdown with less than three minutes of play remaining.

In the opening minutes of the first quarter the green-clad invaders rolled to a touchdown on a long pass from Quarterback Leroy Keller to End Russ Rodenkirch but the point was as dangerous as a keg of dynamite throughout.

Campbellport evaded things up near the end of the opening period when Halfback Sam Bieck put the Belles in scoring position by intercepting an Indian pass.

Campbellport took the lead in second quarter when Serwe threw a pass to End Jerome Weis in the end zone, the play covering 40 yards. Once again the extra point attempt failed and Campbellport led 12-6.

In the third quarter the Belles scored but the play was called back on a holding infraction. The two teams battled back and forth most of the fourth quarter without much success.

After receiving the kickoff, the Belles started to march. Serwe flipped a 29 yard pass to Weis to put the ball on the Kewaskum 16. On the next play Serwe was trapped when attempting to pass, deced to run, and scored. Woody Kleinians booted and the Belles had their hard-earned 19 points.

Other standouts for Kewaskum were Guards Jim St. Mary and Dennis Blingen and End Don Del. The Indians gave their best but it wasn't quite enough.

On Friday of this week Kewaskum was host to Brandon in his homecoming encounter played in the snow. Brandon tied unbeaten Lomira last week, a moral victory.

ELECTED CO-OP DIRECTOR Ed. Gutschenreiter, Kewaskum, was one of the directors elected at a meeting of the Allenton-West Bend, Slinger and Hartford locals of the Pure Milk Co-operative held at Roths hall, Slinger, recently.

St. Lucas Lutheran Church to Celebrate Diamond Jubilee

October 26, 1952, is a red-letter day in the history of St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran church, Kewaskum. On that day the congregation is going to celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary, its diamond jubilee. Seventy-five years ago, in the year 1877, St. Lucas congregation was organized with but a handful of people.

1857. The first church was erected in the year 1870, and the present structure was built in 1913, and dedicated in 1914. To celebrate the memorable occasion the congregation has set aside October 26 as the festival day. Two services are to be conducted on that day.

To celebrate the occasion, the congregation is giving out a diamond jubilee booklet, containing the history of the church from the very beginning. This booklet will be a valuable treasure for members, former members, and friends.

First Snow Thursday; Measures Three Inches

The first snow of the season fell on this area Thursday evening and when residents awoke Friday the ground was covered with more than three inches of the beautiful (?) white stuff.

The snow began falling shortly after 5 p. m. and continued until the early hours Friday. The snow began melting when the sun came out Friday morning. It is not expected to last because it is very early in the season for such happenings.

The weather hampered the high school's homecoming parade and pep rally Thursday night, however, the activities were held as scheduled with the exception that the queen and her royal court could not display their formal and rode in convertibles with the tops up.

The snow followed the first killing frost by two weeks. It froze hard here for the first time on Oct. 3. Seems funny with snow on the ground and the leaves still on the trees. Boy, it's a long time yet, too, until April.

Driver Injured, Trailer Badly Damaged in Crash

A Texan operating a semi-trailer was injured and the vehicle was badly damaged when it left Hwy. 55 at the Washington-Fond du Lac county line two miles north of Kewaskum early Monday. The trailer overturned, skidding on its side. W. E. Fullwell was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, West Bend, for treatment. He was shaken, bruised and cut.

According to Fond du Lac county police the "semi" went out of control on the curve at Spanny Pete's Grove. After missing the curve, the trailer skidded 245 feet, left the road, skidded another 54 feet, then tipped over and skidded 39 feet. The truck was loaded with 630 bags of cabbage.

Rosemary Dehler, 17, of R. 2, Kewaskum, suffered cuts and bruises last week in an accident in Fillmore, involving vehicles driven by Clemens Bartzler, 58, Sheboygan, and Rosemary Staehler, 17, R. 1, Kewaskum. The Bartzler car was parked on the side of the roadway, partially on the road. The auto driven by Miss Staehler smashed into the rear of the other machine. She claimed she did not see the Bartzler vehicle until she hit it as the latter had no lights on it.

Street Name Signs Put Up in Village

How do you like our new street name signs? From now on our citizens will know on what street Clementine, Jeremiah, Esmeralda, Theophil and the rest of us live.

We used to tell the inquiring out-of-town motorist searching for a certain place to go down the street two blocks to Wietor's barber shop, then turn left and drive two blocks more to the Schaefer house right ahead, turn left again and go one more short block, where it is the house on the northeast corner. Now we can direct him as follows: Take Main street to West Water, turn left on West Water to Third, turn left again on Third to Biigo Lane, where it is the corner house on the right side. We don't advise that you follow this route, however, because it will lead you right to Chief of Police Ed. Haack's home. Of course there are shorter ways to get there.

Anyway, the main idea is that the village installed 22 new street name signs the past week in our growing, advancing little city. They were put up by village employees on poles on the various street corners. The signs have black lettering on a white background and are easily readable.

These street name signs were purchased by the village board last February from Les Hammel of Beloit for the sum of $256.00.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

by Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK—This year may well be remembered as "be-nice-to-employees" year.

Business scouted colleges up to graduation day this spring to get their share—and more, if possible—of technical grads. The newspaper classified sections are crammed with job offerings. The number of unemployed last month, when repercussions of the steel strike were theoretically heaviest, was a paltry 1.6 million.

The shortage of manpower will not get better until after Christmas, if then. Employment is now well over 62 million and will probably rise as the Christmas season brings a demand for more mailmen, shipping personnel and sales people. But many of these are temporary workers who leave the labor market when the holidays are over. The 1.6 million available workers is less heartening than the big number sounds. One and-a-half million is about rock bottom for unemployed. Even as members of this group are hired others leave the working force to recuperate from illness, to look for better jobs and to move to other parts of the country.

Nor will new blood help the situation. Workers are retiring almost as fast as the small teen-age population reaches working age.

The only answer is to make employees more productive thru better training and better equipment and hang on to them as best you can through better employee relations. Even with this, there are going to be some bitter contests for manpower, and the worker will be in the enviable position of having the bosses fighting for his services.

SNORKEL SELLING—Initial response to Sheaffer Pen Company's new Snorkel fountain pen has added weight to the business adage that the road to industry leadership is paved with outstanding new products. Three days after Sheaffer introduced the Snorkel it had to change factory schedules from five-day to six-day weeks to meet demand for the new pen.

The Snorkel, called the first practical messproof pen, is filled through a tube that extends automatically from under the nib to draw in ink without wetting the pen point. The public is clamoring for the Snorkel, says Craig Sheaffer, the pen company's president. The years of research and development on the no-dunk, no-wipe fountain pen have proved a good investment already, he adds.

Writing equipment industry leaders expect the Snorkel pen to help continue Sheaffer as sales leader of the industry through 1952.

THINGS TO COME—The multitude of attachments that come with vacuum cleaners these days can now be hung like lifeboats on the latest unit to be introduced. . . . Pouring spout for bottles measures and counts the drinks. . . . Latest flash gun is said to enable quick removal from camera, better battery arrangement and an improved lamp socket and ejection system. . . . Cheaper shipment of machine tools is promised by the maker of a light-weight dust-resistant fiber container. Two men can assemble a unit in half an hour. . . . Special cash receipt books have been introduced for traveling business men.

HIGHBALLING JEEP—A new, special-duty conversion of the famous Jeep is designed for both rail and road travel. So don't be surprised if you see a Jeep transporting section workers along railroad lines. According to Jeep-maker Willys-Overland, the new Hy-Rail car is fast replacing equipment of the old buck-board type.

Flanged guide wheels keep the care on the tracks, that is, until the driver wants to cut across a field to pick up a worker in town or to go around a train or men working on the tracks. In two seconds the guide wheels can be lifted by a hydraulic mechanism, like retractable landing gear on a plane, and the Jeep goes bounding away on its conventional tires.

The new Jeep conversion comes in four types, including one that has a telescoping tower for the inspection of tunnels. Its speed and versatility, say the 35 railroads already using it, have been responsible for substantial savings.

BITS O' BUSINESS—Tax collectors are holding about $34 billion in spending money because people entitled to refunds have moved without leaving forwarding addresses. . . . The Commerce Department reports personal income in July was down about $2.5 billion, due largely to the steel strike. . . . Approximately 80 per cent of the businesses that failed in the U. S. in 1951 were started after the war. . . . July blast furnace output totaled 1,022,512 tons as against 1,068,281 in June and 6,069,754 in July, 1951.

LIPON LEAPFROGS OVER RISING ROSEN—Two-headed monster turned out to be second-base, seventh-inning tangle in Red Sox-Indian ball game, Sept. 13, as Boston's Johnny Lipon momentarily blocked Cleveland player Al Rosen. When dust cleared, Rosen went on to third, umpires claiming interference from Lipon. Boston took the game, 4-3, in Cleveland's Stadium.

He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now.—(John 2:9.)

How can he be "in the light" who smugly, contemptuously, ignores or scorns those who, in his opinion, are not? True salvation comes from helping, not hating, those around us—from sharing with them, through kindness, understanding and example, "the light" which God has granted.

Dick Kazmaier, Grid Star, Renounces Pro Career For Learning

All-American Dick Kazmaier, one of the greatest halfbacks in football history, has put aside his ball for his books, says Ralph G. Martin in Redbook Magazine. Money and glory were his if he signed to play "professional," but this twenty-one-year-old Princeton graduate refused to coast along on his athletic reputation. Writing in the September issue of the magazine, Mr. Martin tells how Dick's own will and his father's guidance helped him to athletic stardom and finally to scholarly achievement.

"One of the greatest halfbacks that college football has ever known is not touching a ball this season. For the first time since he was in grade school, Dick Kazmaier, the hero from the small town in Ohio, is just another spectator in the stadium seats. Yet this slim, studious-looking young man could have had even more fame than is already his, plus immediate fortune. He could have signed to play professional football at a peak price. Instead he said, 'No, thanks; I don't plan to ride on my athletic reputation.'"

"The three men who influenced twenty-one-year-old Dick Kazmaier in his long career in sports were—his father, himself a former college athlete; a high school coach who broke down his conceit and straightened him out; and a college coach who saw his potential football greatness and developed it almost to perfection."

"The father-son relationship was set and solid. His father was always there watching—whether it was a night softball game or a basketball tournament or track practice or just a football scrimmage. And whenever the son stepped out of line—a technical mistake or a hothead play or showoff kid stuff—his father yelled, 'Mike!' That was the kid's code name, a private secret between them, and it worked."

"Kaz once explained his choice of Princeton and his good grades. 'You see, my father did it the other way. He got an athletic scholarship and didn't study because he didn't have to—that's why he's always been on my tail.' But by then it wasn't just the pressure of his father's mistake; it was his own. He wanted football because he loved the game, and he wanted scholastic standing because that's the thing that really pays off."

"The 'small shadow in the football suit' was only a sophomore when he scored both Orange-and-Black touchdowns against a strong Pennsylvania team. A year later, he paced Princeton to an undefeated season, rushing for seven touchdowns and passing for another fifteen. And in his senior year he put Princeton among the five top teams of the country. "On graduating, he had offers from professional football and from big business firms; he refused both and has gone on to specific training of Harvard Graduate School of Business."

Bible Comment:

The Golden Rule Means World Peace Is Not Impossible

STANDARDS, when used in the discussion of Christianity, can refer to either one of a pair of very vital things. One is the standard of conduct laid down by Christian principles. This is best revealed in the "Golden Rule."

Other standards used are banners and signs designating the church itself and its principles. During the crusades when many European Christians fought and died in the Holy Land, these standards were often the inspiration for many heroic deeds.

They are also mentioned in the line from a famous hymn: "Raise high the royal standard, it must not suffer loss."

Jesus put much stress on the other standard, pointing out a rule of conduct when he urged us to: "Be perfect, even as your Father in heaven is perfect."

But true standards of conduct are not applicable to people alone. They extend to the nation, even to the whole world. How different history might have been if these principles of human conduct had been applied in every case where avarice and greed ruled instead.

The standards of Christian conduct could well serve as the foundation of a new and better world. Nor are these standards different than those stressed by the other great religions of the world. Basic concepts of goodness and justice are the same everywhere and each religion has its variation of the golden rule.

Truly, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," is the best way to insure international harmony and peace. We should put this standard into action today.

List Suspensions Of Young Drivers

Wisconsin drivers between the ages of 16 and 18 are subject to a law requiring suspension of driving privileges following their first court conviction on a moving hazardous violation of the traffic laws, the motor vehicle department points out.

Under this state traffic code provision, during the first eight months this year 1,768 youthful motorists were required to give up their driver licenses, most of them for a period of 30 days. In the corresponding period last year there were 1,312 juvenile suspensions.

Among drivers older than 18, in the first eight months this year there were 996 suspensions following court convictions. Among drivers of all ages, 3,956 had their licenses revoked for one year because they were guilty of offenses which under state law require mandatory revocation. Most common fault in this group was drunken driving.

Another group of 280 motorists lost their licenses after review of their driving records at Madison indicated their unfitness as vehicle operators on public highways.

In the first eight months this year, approximately 8,000 drivers were named in suspension orders stating that because of failure to arrange for settlement of damage claims arising out of accidents, their licenses will be suspended until settlement is effected or security is posted with the state in the amount of estimated damages pending outcome of civil court action.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

Beaver are easy to raise; their diet is simple and their life is peaceful and industrious according to Hamilton L. McNichol, game breeding expert. All they want to do is gulp down aspen, willow, maple and birch barks—or maybe carrots, apples or corn on the cob—and to preen their fur.

But first you must provide them with water. Give them a small swim tank with a depth of three feet sloping to a shallow end. Tanks five feet by four feet long are ample. The water may have a constant flow or be drained off periodically.

Then, beaver need a few basic materials like debarked trees, brush, straw and sand from which to build a wilderness-type lodge. They require no bedding if soft woods like aspen are given them, for they will shred it. If bedding is given them, it must be dust-free or their eyes become irritated and swell shut.

There are many ways to confine beaver but metal-lined wood or masonry pen walls are best. The beaver breeder decides how much space he will allot to an individual pen, then surrounds the pen with a masonry wall. Cement blocks are laid to a three-foot height and the soil left undisturbed inside so the animals may bulldoze it around. The footing should be deep or else mesh wire can be turned in from the footing to prevent them from tunneling out.

Don't let beaver build in a corner—it might mean a ladder over the wall. If they try, remove the material each day and try to suggest another site. A wooden box placed in the center of the pen may easily furnish the necessary distraction. The chances are that the beaver will immediately remodel the box by extending it and building a lodge over it.

Beaver are very quiet and do not fight among themselves. Their rare displeasure is voiced with an "ugh-ugh-ugh." In the wilds the parents feel that the young of two seasons are grown up and these kits are driven off from the colony to live on their own. When confined kits are unable to depart according to beaver law, they are apt to turn up missing. So be careful to see that your beaver are separated before this age deadline occurs—just to be on the safe side.

THREE-HOUR WIND-UP—Changeover from daylight saving to winter time is a headache for Seattle clock collector, John Rignali who spends three hours a week just winding the 1000 clocks and watches in his collection. His clocks include a Swiss wag-on-wall timepiece in his hand made in 1640, ebony French buhl clock from 1650 at right, and German "man on flying trapeze" oddity in center. For a living, the clock-man works as a watchmaker.

For Vegetable Storage

FRUIT and vegetable storage usually is a problem unless there is a specific place for these perishables. Illustrated is a table-height bin for the temporary storage of fresh vegetables and fruit. It may be built of 1 by 2 inch lumber strips and Masonite 1/2" tempered hardboard. A hinged cover provides extra working or storage area.

The top and center shelves slant to give ample storage space and assure that the potatoes, dried onions, oranges, lemons, bananas and other commodities won't roll out. The bottom shelf is flat. Each of the shelves is perforated for ventilation.

Lumber strips in the framework serve also as legs of this bin, which may be used in the kitchen, basement, utility room, or entry hall. Casters may be placed under the legs. Shelves should be put in place during the assembly of the bin, as they are not removable.

This time and work saver may be left in its natural, attractive color, dark brown, or painted to match or contrast with the furnishings.

Cars Can Be Killers On Nation's Highways

CHICAGO — If you spent $1,000,000 a day, it would take you almost 22 years to spend as much as accidents cost the United States in one year.

The National Safety Council says accidents cost the nation $7,900,000,000 last year - or about $21,650,000 a day!

According to "Accident Facts," the Council's statistical yearbook, just off the press, this includes:

- $2,900,000,000 in wages lost by disabled persons, lower wages due to permanent partial disability, and the present value of anticipated future earnings of those killed or permanently incapacitated.
- $1,400,000,000 property damage in motor-vehicle accidents.
- $1,300,000,000 in property destroyed or production lost in occupational accidents.
- $1,000,000,000 for administrative and claim settlement costs of insurance. This does not include claims paid.
- $731,900,000 in property destroyed by fire.
- $550,000,000 for medical fees and hospital expense.

Play-Hard, Wash-Easy Cottons

BY EDNA MILES

DENIMS have taken on a new look. Some of them sparkle. Some of them look like tweed and others appear to be shantung.

For school-going children, the tweedy cottons are ideal. Given a touch of rayon, the cotton suitings look and feel much like wool, are washable, mercerized, sanforized, vat-dyed and wrinkle-resistant. Thus, they are ideal for fall wear, before really cold weather sets in and wool becomes indispensable.

Glaze Finish Denims Can Be Laundered

A denim that has a glazed finish is completely washable, is spot and wrinkle-resistant. Embossed for a handsome, tweedy effect, it comes in fall shades of charcoal or brown and has been cut into smart fashions for children.

Budget-priced, these miniature fashions will have special appeal for mother since they take to the tub with great ease. The new finishes aid in maintaining the original appearance through many washings and much of the hard wear that children invariably give their clothes.

"United Nations Day" Parties Being Planned To Send Gifts Overseas

NEW YORK—Every American will be urged to give personal significance to this year's observance of United Nations Day, on October 24, by sending gifts and greetings to the people of other UN countries.

A nation-wide campaign conducted by the National Citizens' Committee for United Nations Day, in cooperation with The Advertising Council, will reach into every state, city and community to rally public support, it was announced today by Frank L. Weil, prominent New York attorney and chairman of the NCC.

The campaign is aimed at making the international holiday, established by the UN Assembly and proclaimed annually in this country by the President, a tangible expression of world friendship and brotherhood. Plans call for UN Day balls and parties to be held throughout the nation to raise funds for special UN Day greeting cards and CARE gift packages which will be sent to the people of Europe, Asia and the Near East.

Arrangements have already been made for large balls in New York, Washington and New Orleans. Support of all national civic, service, veterans, religious, women's and school organizations is being sought to sponsor local affairs in other areas.

Counterpart parties are also expected to be held in Paris, Rome, London, Montreal, Rio de Janeiro and other foreign cities so that the observance will be worldwide.

For American donors, CARE is preparing a special $5 food package, labeled "UN Day Gift from the U.S.A.," which its representatives overseas will deliver wherever they are needed most. The greeting cards made available by the Committee in packages of 10 for $1.00, can be mailed individually or may be signed and forwarded to CARE for distribution with the parcels.

Both the cards and the CARE packages can be ordered through the UN Day Committee, Box 498, New York 7, N. Y. A free booklet detailing the program and containing suggestions for UN Day parties can be obtained by writing to the headquarters of the National Citizens' Committee for United Nations Day, 816-21st St., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

"It is our hope that the international exchange of greetings and gifts on UN Day will become traditional," Mr. Weil stated in appealing to Americans, as individuals and as members of organizations to get behind the plan. "Were that custom already established—were millions of people in all the UN countries thus expressing a friendship transcending all oceans and borders—the day of

Perhaps There's a Bounty

Somewhere in Scotland a rector of a country parish was hunting up isolated church people.

Calling at one cottage, he asked the woman who came to the door if there were any Episcopalians in her neighborhood.

"Well, sir, I don't rightly know, but my husband shot some strange creature the other night, and its skin is on the barn door; you may take a look at it."

Homesick Soldier

As the troopship, laden with battle-scarred veterans of Korea, pulled into the West Coast harbor, the happy sergeant said to Private Smith, "Well farmer boy, are you glad you are going to hear the roosters crow and the old donkey bray again, eh?"

"It'll be mighty nice to hear the old donkey bray," replied the private. He added, "And not give orders."

Services of Industrial Hygiene Division Are Available To Industry

More and more of our Wisconsin towns and villages are being selected as industrial sites. This brings many problems in health and safety which until now have been considered questions for big city industrial workers, employers, and physicians to deal with.

Let's take a quick look at some of the things that come up when industry comes to the small town.

Workers in certain industries may be exposed to special health hazards. For example, working with lead, mercury, fluorides, radio-active materials, etc., can cause illnesses unless special precautions are taken to guard against over-exposure. Foundry workers exposed to silica dust need to be checked routinely by chest x-rays even though the place where they work is well ventilated and most of the dust removed.

In some industries toxic compounds escape into the air as fumes, gases, vapors, or dusts. Workers in such places also require special protection such as local exhaust ventilation or personal protective devices. In other instances solvents used to remove grease and oil may cause skin rashes that present a problem.

Women working in industry need extra facilities and special consideration in placement since they are more susceptible to certain toxic materials than men. Additional protective measures may be required to prevent their illness or physical injury.

The important thing is that these special health problems arising out of bringing industry to the country are recognized for what they are and that most of them can be prevented or met.

The services of the industrial hygiene division of the state board of health are available to industry on request. Staff members help to evaluate health hazards and advise as to how they may be avoided.

Curiosity is a form of intelligence.

universal 'peace on earth, good will toward all men' would be nearer each year."

The Advertising Council task force to rally newspaper, magazine, radio and television support is headed by Allan M. Wilson, vice president, and Edward F. Royal, account executive, with Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn as the volunteer advertising agency to prepare campaign material. Other officials of the national committee include C. Lloyd Bailey, executive director, and Felix D. Towle, executive coordinator.

Ticklers

Teacup Topics By Betty Ann

EDITOR
WOMAN'S PAGES

Knit dresses are a bifocal story this season, says Betty Ann. Tweedy skirts with sweater-like blouses, rib stripes, diamond dots and checked effects are being achieved by manufacturers.

Wonderful innovations in machine knitting techniques have created supple knits that enhance a figure without ever outlining unseemly contours. It is up to the customer to buy the right size, for like other garments, knits are shaped to size and there is a wide range of sizes. There should never be the tight fit problem with a correctly purchased knit.

As knitting machine technicians will tell you, machine knit dresses are controlled from the preparation of yarn to the finished product. The wool yarn is carefully calibrated and processed so that it has complete uniformity and all stitches are of the same tensile strength. Machine knits will rarely get out of shape and will require no blocking.

Recent developments in knitting machines have created stitches that are impossible for hand knitters. One of the newest knit effects is permanent pleating for skirts, actually a ribbing of a very fine yarn that hangs and looks like pleats and is guaranteed to hold to its original shape. Tone on tone effects that have the appearance and depth of tweed are featured.

In a way of trims, lacy loop and crochet effects outline ascot ties and other blouse trims. Tweedy designs point up interesting yoke effects, unusual collars and sleeve joints. Looking particularly new is a yarn woven into a fabric and draped into gored and unpressed pleated skirts in keeping with the fluid lines of fabric garments.

It is important to remember that hand loomed dresses are built and knit to shape. And since wool is a living fiber, it, like organic substances, has a shape "memory."

A knit dress, which might have been pulled out of shape by the wearer, will resuscitate in a matter of minutes after it is laid aside in a drawer. Knit dresses should never be hung, as hangers have a tendency to pull and split wool fibers.

Texture and color bring great significance to the new, more controlled coat silhouettes. The simplest box coat, the most unadorned classic, the trimmest fitted coat all take on a look of luxury, of great elegance due to the designer's choice of fabric and color.

There are two families of fashion fabrics of equal importance. The nubby, bumpy surfaced chinchillas, the ribbed or sculptured effects and newest of all the furry, long haired zibelines, their surfaces gleaming with mohair for added richness. In contradiction to this trend are the luxury fabrics. Smoothly surfaced, buttersoft and velvety, this family has a special opulence that appeals to both the eye and the touch. Camel hair, cashmere woven of rare imported fibers and angora belong to this group of fabric aristocrats.

The greatcoat has less fullness than last season and is more flattering to the figure. In cashmere or angora it's a coat to span the day or the globe. Wear it over sweaters and skirts or wrap it around your bare shoulders for an evening cloak.

Along with texture, color assumes a new fashion significance. Added to the neutral grays, beiges and taupes are subtle olive greens, lipstick reds, vibrant blues and rich amber tones that are bound to make fall a colorful season.

Black and white dominates the scene of new lamps. In all price brackets and lighting units, table, floor or pinup models, the trend is to black and white. There are black finishes on wrought iron forms, china, glass, wire, ceramics and leather. A black burlap shade is mounted on white parchment in one instance. Black metal is combined with polished brass, white marble, milk glass, natural straw and even woven basketry. White china, metal or pottery is shown with interesting contrasts of black.

For a snack for youngsters, mix a three ounce package of cream cheese with a few tablespoons of raspberry jam and spread on hot buttered toast.

A simple graphite pencil can be used to lubricate stubborn zippers just by rubbing the lead up and down the teeth several times.

New Fire House at Random Lake Dedicated Sunday

The Random Lake Fire Department dedicated their new $40,000 fire house with appropriate ceremonies Sunday beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The balance of the afternoon and evening was devoted to showing off the new building. It is attached to the auditorium and provided over 15,000 square feet of recreational area for the hundreds of guests.

Officers of the Badger State Firemen's association, representatives from over 40 fire departments and visiting dignitaries were present to assist in the dedication. One of the largest crowds in the history of the department's social activities viewed the ceremonies and enjoyed the following fun.

Pre-dedication frolic began Saturday night with a dance to the music of John Federwisch's band.

The new building houses three modern fire trucks as well as the nucleus of a life saving or disaster squad. The department owns a shallow diving rig, grappling equipment, resuscitator, inhalator, air pack, and gas masks at the present time and plans on adding equipment in the very near future.

The structure is of fireproof construction, built of poured concrete, walyite block and brick. The building has a modern steam heating unit which can provide 100% fresh heated air even in the coldest winter weather.

The building in its entirety provides a large dance hall, a complete kitchen, 100 foot long bar, shower rooms, a cozy meeting room for firemen and village board members, as well as all necessary sanitary facilities.

Childhood Accidents Can Be Prevented

Because children have a natural drive to explore the world, to put objects in the mouth and to climb and run, they are likely to become accident victims, states a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical association.

Parents can help prevent childhood accidents by having a fuller understanding of child behavior, using minor injuries as learning experiences, and developing a keener awareness of the accidents that are likely to occur.

Almost half of the accidents happening to children occur in or around the home. The five most common types of major accidents are motor vehicle mishaps, burns, drownings, falls and poisoning.

Boys participate in more outdoor activities, many of which are played in or near the street, and are nearly twice as likely to be hit by a car as girls are. Parents can be a great influence in teaching children caution in outdoor play.

Drownings are also more frequent with boys. Safe swimming rules should be enforced. Small children should be watched constantly. No child or adult should swim alone.

About one-fourth of all accidental poisonings are in children of pre-school age, mostly from one to two. Closer supervision is needed during this inquisitive age. Don't be careless in handling poisons; keep them out of reach. Be careful in handling matches; use caution when working with fire.

Children like to imitate and to repeat. If a child does a dangerous thing without mishap, he will probably repeat it. Don't take unnecessary chances—children are likely to imitate you.

Parents should practice the safest ways to do all things, and thereby help prevent fatal childhood accidents. The general rule should be to follow common sense in all activities where children are involved.

Mrs. O. T.: Will moving to a new area help hay fever victims? Answer: Not necessarily. The new area would have to be very carefully chosen, for it is just as likely to have other disturbing pollens which cause hay fever.

Give, and it will be given unto you... the measure you give will be the measure you get back.—(Luke 6:38.)

Sow! at someone, and invariably you will get a scowl in return; unkind words or deeds come back upon us two-fold in bitterness. But a smile, a kind word, a good deed—these doubly bless the giver and the receiver as well, and they spread out to all those around us like the light of the sun.

SPLIT-RAIL FULL-PAIL MEMENTOES—Souvenirs from other, more bitter presidential campaigns are examined by Mrs. Polly Lovett at the Chicago Historical Society exhibit. Big axe swung high in her right hand is from the Lincoln "rail-splitting" campaign of 1860. Dangling at lower right is a "full dinner pail" used in McKinley rallies in 1896. Badges decorating her blouse date campaigns back to 1840. Historians predict a century hence, symbol of Ike-Stevenson campaign will be a broom.

LAYING FLAGSTONE FOR THE TERRACE

A flagged terrace make a nice place to gather on hot summer evenings, or while enjoying a picnic supper around an outdoor fireplace. The home repairman can make a flagged terrace, with materials easily obtained.

There are many kinds of flags, and also many ways of laying them. I have illustrated two patterns, and two methods of laying. The geometric pattern lends itself best to home made flags, where you can get the sizes and shapes you want. See Mister Fixum's Handy Hints, Book 1.

The random pattern is usually better when you buy regular flagstone, or when using broken concrete.

Flags layed on a concrete slab will stay in place better than those layed on gravel. But getting grass to grow between the flags is a problem when the spaces are partly filled with cement.

The geometric pattern I have illustrated looks well when made to cover an area about six feet square. If enough space is left between flags to grow grass, it will cover an area about seven feet square.

If the area you have to cover is greater than six or seven feet square, repeat the pattern.

When flags are layed in a random pattern, there is no definite pattern to follow. Keep the outside edges straight.

What To Know About Sun Glasses

Two pairs of sun glasses may look pretty much alike, yet be vastly different in quality, method of manufacture, and long-range effect on our vision, the Better Vision Institute explains. The best dark glasses conform to expert "ophthalmic" standards. Lenses are made of fine, clear glass, and the surfaces are ground and polished like those of prescription lenses which are used to correct faulty vision. Coloring is dark enough to shut out an exactly determined amount of sunlight, including the invisible rays. Also, the colored lens should be approximately "neutral," so that a green traffic light will still look green, a red one red, instead of taking on some other hue.

On the other hand, here are some of the things that may lie concealed in the inferior pair of glasses. Though the two lenses may look equally dark, one of them may admit a lot more light than the other, so that the pupils of the wearer's two eyes will have the knotty task of trying to adjust themselves to two different degrees of illumination. Or, neither of the lenses may exclude the right amount of sunlight.

One of the below-par lenses may have more spherical curve on it than the other, again tending to upset visual equilibrium. Along with the faulty curvature may go a curious thing known as "power," meaning that the lens magnifies, either all over its surface or in certain parts. There may be tiny "prisms" concealed in the irregularity of the lens, causing the rays of light to be thrown to one side or the other. A proper sun glass lens should not magnify, or displace the light rays in any manner.

In ordinary glass there are imperfections known as seeds, bubbles, striae—or streaks, specks, and differences of density of some kind or another. Such things don't cause much annoyance in a pane of window glass, but in a sun glass lens they can produce distortions and blockages which the eye should not be asked to endure.

One of the most common defects of the run-of-mill sun glasses lies on the surface of the lenses, in the form of tiny pits, oxidation, waves or a kind of graininess. These flaws are often invisible when looked at, but they can become important when the sun glass wearer looks through them for long hours at a stretch in bright sunlight.

Methods of manufacture account for many of these defects. Cheap glass lenses are sometimes "blown" in the form of a big glass bubble, from which circular sections are cut to make the curved lenses. Another way to produce the curve is to "sag" a piece of flat glass, when softened by heat, into a mould. Surface irregularities are hard to avoid when these methods are used, without polishing or grinding.

What an imperfect lens can do to a visual object is dramatically shown when light is passed through the lens by a magnifying projector and made to throw an image on a screen. The biggest letters on an ordinary visual test chart appear foggy, blurred, and indistinct. The lines of a rectangular grid are wavy, unevenly magnified and distorted by prism effects. Such irregularities, even though invisible when unmagnified, are transmitted to the delicate nerve centers of the retina, and the eye has to do battle with them.

It is sometimes argued, the Better Vision Institute concludes, that these imperfections are unimportant, and that the eye is able to deal with them. But such imperfections are not tolerated in ordinary "seeing" or corrective lenses, because they might do serious damage to the eye or to the wearer's comfort and health.

Develop a healthy insight and foresight into future plans so he will not be too strongly swayed by whims which may effect his future life.

5. A firm set of conduct standards. Parents can help develop a working knowledge of acceptable behavior for teen-agers in all social situations. Develop a firm moral and religious code.

6. Proper adjustment with people. Help the child know what to do to develop personality traits which will foster his own popularity with people.

7. A certain amount of independence should be encouraged. Let the teen-ager stand on his own two feet, make his own decisions and manage his own affairs, with help only when it can't be done alone.

MRS. G. V.: When something at home annoys my 16 year old girl, she threatens to run away, get a job or be married. Is this a real threat or just a bluff?

ANSWER: Parents are safer to assume that it is a threat. Have a frank talk with her, discover what is unbearable at home, and try to take steps to improve the situation.

Season Sandwiches With Dressing

Choosing seasoning for a sandwich is as important as choosing the filling itself. Salad dressing or mayonnaise does for a sandwich just what a fruit sauce does for a steamed pudding, or chocolate sauce does for ice cream—turns a "plain jane" into a luscious creation. Swiss Decker Sandwiches, a meal-in-one type, please with their spread of mayonnaise and filling of boiled or baked ham, coleslaw and mellow Swiss cheese.

MILK-RICH SCHOOL LUNCHES

You never outgrow your need for Milk!

Milk is the backbone of school lunches.

When the children go back to school, Mother starts punching that time-clock again with lunches ready on schedule every school day. This initial ad in the new ADA series on milk—"You Never Outgrow Your Need For Milk"—featuring school lunch foods and ties-in with Campbell soup, General Foods, the baking industry and other food manufacturers will appear in the September issue of McCall's. The ADA series of milk ads will continue through the year featuring "Milk with Donuts," "Milk for All Ages," Milk in egg nog for Christmas and others keyed to the ADA advertising theme, "You Never Outgrow Your Need For Milk." This advertising is one phase of the dairy farmers' year around advertising program maintained through the once-a-year Advertising Set-Aside.

NITRO-NURSED CORN IS NICER—Moniteau County Agent Marvin Fisher holds up two ears of corn grown in the same Missouri patch. Pure sand-soil fertilized only with nitrogen made ears bigger as seen at left. Scrubby ear at right was fed no nitrogen, is thus stunted. Sixty pounds of the chemical was spread over each acre of test ground. Fisher estimates corn at left will yield 45 bushels per acre, rows fed no nitrogen will give only 15.

GOOD HEALTH

1. DO VETERINARIANS AID HUMAN HEALTH?

2. HOW SERIOUS IS TETANUS?

3. DOES GLAUCOMA LEAD TO BLINDNESS?

Answer to Question No. 1:
 Over 90 per cent of the 16,000 doctors of veterinary medicine in the United States spend most of their time vaccinating food producing stock such as cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry, inspecting meat and milk, and carrying on activities to control such diseases as tuberculosis and brucellosis that can be transmitted from animals to men. Healthy animals are necessary also to supply insulin, liver extract, adrenalin, cortisone, ACTH and other products important to the modern treatment of disease.

Answer to Question No. 2:
 It is a disease causing severe muscular spasm and can result in death. When it involves the muscles of the jaw, it is known as "lockjaw." Puncture type wounds made by rusty nails and other such objects are the most frequent portals of entry for the tetanus bacillus which is the direct cause of the disease. The disease may be prevented if tetanus antitoxin is administered promptly.

Answer to Question No. 3:
 Glaucoma is a disease of the eye diagnosed by too much fluid in the eyeball and increased tension. The actual cause is unknown. Glaucoma may lead to blindness, but if treated early and persistently, it can be held in check over years. It is primarily a disease of older people.

will be heard on station WBKY on Saturday morning, Oct. 18. For her birthday treat Marjorie Beck read a poem "The Lion."

Season Opens Saturday On Pheasants, Squirrels

The second major hunting season for Wisconsin opens Saturday, Oct. 18, at 1 p. m. The first opening occurred Oct. 4 on waterfowl, statewide, and other small game in far northern counties.

The Oct. 18 beginning will find pheasants as principal objective of gunners. The limit is two cocks per day, with a possession limit of four cocks.

The Saturday kick-off also brings under fire Hungarian partridge in 24 counties (five a day, 10 in possession), bobwhite quail in 23 counties (five and ten) and squirrels in the central and southern counties, with limits of five and ten.

The cottontail rabbit season in southern counties does not open on Oct. 18, nor does the raccoon season. These species become legal game on Nov. 1 at 1 p. m. Foxes are fair game in Wisconsin the year around, with no bag limit.

Shooting hours are from a half hour before sunrise to one hour before sunset. Sunrise and sunset times are printed on the hunting laws pamphlet available free with each license purchased. All hunters should read their pamphlets for details pertaining to the laws of each county.
