

Install Officers Here at District Boy Scout Dinner

Installation of officers and presentation of awards highlighted the Moraine District annual Boy Scout meeting held in the Holy Trinity church hall at Kewaskum last Wednesday night. Clyde Schloemer of West Bend was chosen as district chairman for 1953. He succeeds Paul Landmann of Kewaskum.

The Moraine district includes all of Washington county and small portions of Dodge and Fond du Lac counties. Its membership consists of 106 scouts, 178 cubs, 63 scouters, 49 explorers, 36 cubbers and 18 den mothers.

Harold Koehler of West Bend and Ed. Karcheski of Hartford were named vice-chairmen for 1953. Several other officers were also installed, including commissioners, chairmen of standing committees and representatives to the executive board.

Guest speaker for the evening was C. M. Finnell, deputy regional executive, who spoke on "Scouting in the World." As an emissary, Finnell spent four months in Japan, visiting with Boy Scout organizations in that country and helping them plan a program for the advancement of the scouting movement there.

Statuettes, bronze replicas of a Boy Scout sculptured by R. Tait McKenney, were given to five persons of the district for long and outstanding service to scouting. The statuettes were presented to Henry Schwalter, West Bend; Mrs. David Twobig, Campbellsport; Tom Gross, Kewaskum; John DeLorme, Richfield, and Al Brandenburg, Slinger.

Green has served Kewaskum for a long time as scoutmaster, troop committeeman and den dad for the cub pack.

Certificates of appreciation of work done by scouters were presented to C. J. Kleinmann and Dave Twobig of Campbellsport; Fred Ladwig, Robert Krueger, Gordon Walfgram, Mrs. Rufus Justman, Robert Wolf, Mrs. Edward O'Meara and O. B. Christenson of West Bend; Charles Reigle of Kewaskum; Walter Oberberger and Rowland Hughes of Hartford; Robert Schuldt of Richfield, and Arnold Kannenberg of Germantown.

The dinner, served by the ladies of Holy Trinity A.M.E. society, was followed by the welcome and roll call of communities by the outgoing chairman, Paul Landmann. Jack Hopper, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the district officers for 1953 and L. N. Peterson, Kewaskum, council president, conducted the installation of officers.

After Don Fusman introduced the council staff, Lloyd Shafer, Badger council scout executive, spoke on "Our Council Looks Ahead."

Presentation of scouter awards was under the direction of Frank Smith, assisted by Howard Bauman, council vice-president, and Norman Colby, leadership training chairman.

Also on the program was music by the Unknowns, barber shop quartet; Philmont adventure, an illustrated lecture, presented by Roger Bauman of Scout Troop 41, on the Philmont scout ranch in New Mexico, and closing remarks by Don Furman. The invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. F. C. La Buhl. The colors were presented by Troop 44, Kewaskum.

Indians Trounce West Bend, 53-35

Big George Hanrahan, veteran center, poured 23 points through the hoops, more than half of his team's total, as the Kewaskum Indians won a decisive 53-35 victory over the West Bend Badgers of the Little Ten conference at McLane school gym there last Thursday night. The win was the Indians' second in non-conference play. They defeated Sheboygan Falls in the opener, 66-49, there.

The 6 feet, 4 inches tall Hanrahan easily was the star of the contest and made the difference between the two teams. Two nights before Hanrahan scored 22 points in the Sheboygan Falls tilt. A capacity crowd jammed the McLane gym for the battle between these county rivals. The contest was close the first half and up until about the middle of the third quarter when Kewaskum pulled away and steadily increased their lead as the game went on. The Mitchellmen's win would have been more one-sided but for the fact that the team missed an exceptionally large number of free shots in the second half of play.

The Badgers started fast and took a 6-1 lead in the opening minutes. But by the end of the quarter Kewaskum went ahead 11-8 as Hanrahan began popping them with 7 points in the period. The Indians worked their lead to 20-14 late in the second period but a basket and two free throws late in the period narrowed the gap to 20-18 at the intermission.

West Bend tied the score at the start of the second half but Kewaskum quickly jumped back into the lead. It was still close for a few more minutes and then the Indians spurted with five straight baskets to grab a 38-26 advantage. Sparked by Edward Don Meisenheimer, who netted 8 points in the final quarter, the winners increased their lead. At one time they were ahead by 20 points. The count at the end of the third stanza was 40-28.

Hanrahan's 28 points were scored on 13 field goals and 2 charity tosses. Meisenheimer took second high honors with a total of 14. Ken Frank was the Badgers' top point maker with 12, followed by Ilo Haischer with 7. Kewaskum kept the ball under control with their fine rebound work and many times grabbed the ball away from West Bend's five.

In the preliminary game the Kewaskum "B" team also easily defeated the West Bend seconds by a 20-10 score. Koepke paced the little Indians with 7 points while Harter was high for West Bend with four.

Kewaskum outscored the Badger jayvees in every quarter but the last in which neither team scored. The locals led at the half, 12-4.

Kewaskum played a return non-conference game with Sheboygan Falls here Tuesday night and was defeated for the first time. The results were not turned in and details were not available.

Very Few Hunters 1953 Budget Return With Deer

Deer hunters returning from the north woods this week report the hunting as worse than it has been in a long, long time. Very few hunters bagged a deer. The season opened last Saturday and continued through Friday of this week.

Hunters report that there was no snow in the north woods for the opening and tracking was very difficult. However, snow fell during the week and late hunters may have had better luck. But the local hunters say the deer (the season being open on bucks only this year) are very scarce and most of them saw does and fawn only.

Nearly all of the hunters returned home empty handed before the end of the season. A large part of them hunted only over last week end and then gave it up for a bad job.

Last year during the first few days of the season we had had reports from dozens of hunters who had successfully bagged a deer. Up to Thursday of this week we heard reports of only five hunters from Kewaskum who came home with their buck. We are told that Reuben Schaefer, Charles Reigle, Roland Senn, Ed. Haack and Lloyd Etta were successful. However, this is not official.

Revive Old Settlers Society at Meeting

In response to newspaper and other publicity, about thirty interested citizens gathered at the Slinger High school at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon on Nov. 18, for the purpose of rejuvenating the Washington County Old Settlers' and Historical society. F. W. Bucklin, who was the last president elected in 1946, was instrumental, together with Mrs. B. C. Ziegler, in bringing about this meeting and he called the meeting to order and presided.

Miss Lucille K. Francke acted as secretary of the meeting. Those present were as follows:

Judge F. W. Bucklin, Irving Johnson, Miss Frances Sackerson, Miss Martha Kuechenmeister, Miss Olive Stork, Mrs. Thomas O'Meara, Mrs. B. C. Ziegler, Fred Schultz, Mrs. A. J. Ferschbacher, Miss Marguerite A. Frahl, Carl Eisenmann, Miss Bertha Peters, Miss Anna Janansen, Miss Thecla Pick, Mrs. James W. Pick, Mrs. Ed. Dunne, Clifford Rose, John Beadie, Charles D. Stewart, Henry O. Schwalter, Harry D. Sheksi.

Also, Mrs. Estella Davies, a sister of Charles D. Stewart, was present as a guest. Besides those named above, Dr. C. L. Lord, director of the State Historical society and Donald McNeil, field representative of the State Historical society also were present.

The chairman explained why in his opinion the Old Settlers club sort of petered out and why the new organization had failed to take hold. The old settlers were just about the thing of the past and the meeting date was an unfortunate one due to the uncertainty of weather conditions. A banquet would be arranged and then very few people appeared if the weather was bad; and the aftermath of the Old Settlers (qualifications were twenty-five years residence in the county) was not necessarily people who were interested in things historically.

A new annual meeting date was suggested, that of Nov. 18, being the anniversary of the county commissioners for Washington county. This first meeting was held in the year 1848 at the home of Mr. Honnswell in what is now the town of Mequon, which was then a part of the old Washington county.

Dr. Lord was called upon to address the meeting and he presented an array of facts and arguments which were very impressive and seemed to convince everyone present that it was worthwhile to have a local historical society and have it affiliated with the state society. He pointed out that one meeting a year was hardly enough, that quarterly and even monthly meetings were advisable; that the program attempted should be a big one with many phases so that different groups would be studying at the same time different subjects. One could hardly help but think of the old time literary society which offered many opportunities for intellectual exercise and all were impressed with the idea that the society would not only be very interesting as a social rallying point but might also become a forum and present many opportunities for outlets for those inclined to be of the studious nature, as well as fortifying and encouraging students in the high schools to activities in connection with their history studying in school. Everyone was very much pleased with the speech of Dr. Lord.

Charles D. Stewart, well known author, Shakespearean student as well as student of history, was present and gladly responded to the invitation of the chairman to say a few words to the people. He, too, was very much enthused over the prospect of building up the Historical society.

Miss Edith Heidner, head of the history department of the West Bend High school, spoke at some length on her program adopted several years ago and still in force, of connecting American history with local history which, of course, is also American history. She pointed out how students readily accepted the idea and became enthusiastic students of local history once they had small insight of what was being aimed at. Her remarks brought Mr. Stewart again to the floor because she, too, had stimulated ideas which he wanted to bring to the attention of the meeting.

Mr. McNeil, field man from the state society assured the group that he would be willing to assist in any way possible to make the organization a success.

Dr. Lord had mentioned the fact that the directors and officers of the society should be chosen with care so it was agreed that instead of electing new directors who in turn would be appointed to elect the officers, it was decided to adjourn the meeting to Dec. 11, 1952, and that the chair appoint a committee of five (5) as a nominating committee with power to name the hour and place of meeting on the adjourned date and to secure or rather propose the names of those to be voted upon for directors. All those present at the meeting agreed to be members of the society and year, they drew up a skeleton outline and upon motion made, seconded and carried adjourned subject to call to complete this task.

Lakes Play Opens Dec. 6; Ten Teams

The Northern Lakes League will get under way on Dec. 6 and 7 with a full slate of ten teams. Watertown and Hartford joined the league at the final meeting Thursday night.

Random Lake and Rosendale will open the season on Saturday, Dec. 6, when they meet at Rosendale. The rest of the league will get into action the following night with West Bend playing at home against Oakfield, Kewaskum at Mayville, Hartford at Horicon and Watertown at Slinger.

Each team will play 18 games—nine in each round. A champion will be crowned after each round and the two winners will meet for the grand championship in March. Arrangements are being made to have the Northern league all-stars play the stars of the Pewaukee-Hartland league, which is the successor of the southern division of the Land o' Lakes.

The league appears to be stronger than last year. Kewaskum, the defending champions, will have virtually the same team back but several other teams will offer stiff competition. Slinger, winner of the Land o' Rivers crown last year, is expected to be loaded. They have several men back plus John Riesch and Wes Herbst, both of whom played with Whitewater college last year. Random Lake's new team is strong and Watertown is of unknown potential. Horicon and Mayville always present a formidable lineup while Hartford is improved. West Bend figures to have a better team also. The Benders will play for a new coach, George Bies.

The formation of a Rivers league was also assured when Hartford entered a junior circuit team. Hartford, together with West Bend, Kewaskum, Fillmore, Horicon and Mayville would make up a six team league. Watertown would like to enter and there is still a possibility that Random Lake might enter.

Dundee Bachelor Dies When Fire Destroys Shack

Edward Krause, 71, a bachelor who lived alone in the village of Dundee, died early Tuesday, Nov. 25, when the shack that served as his home was destroyed by fire.

Copmer Joseph E. Murray and Sheriff Arnold Sook of Fond du Lac county said that the fire apparently began sometime between 2:30 a. m. and 3 a. m. when it was discovered by a worker returning to his Dundee home home from Kewaskum, where he is employed.

The worker, known as "Brown" to officials, awoke neighbors and then called the Beechwood fire department. But the fire had nearly leveled the shack by the time firemen arrived.

Mr. Krause was found lying on his back near the stove. He was about 10 feet from his bed, leading investigators to assume that he might have suffocated soon after the fire broke out. The body was badly burned. The dwelling was located directly across the street from the Dundee Lutheran church.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Ida Singler, Brownsville, and Mrs. Alvina Greber, Cudahy.

The body was removed to the W. A. Biddingmaier Funeral home in Fond du Lac. Funeral services were held Friday at 10 a. m. at the funeral home with Martin Koehler officiating. Burial was in Rienm cemetery, Fond du Lac.

BREAKING A.C.L. RECORDS

Less Weight Can Mean Longer Life

Heavy people who reduce gain a one-fifth to one-third better chance for a long life, states a bulletin from the Minnesota State Medical association.

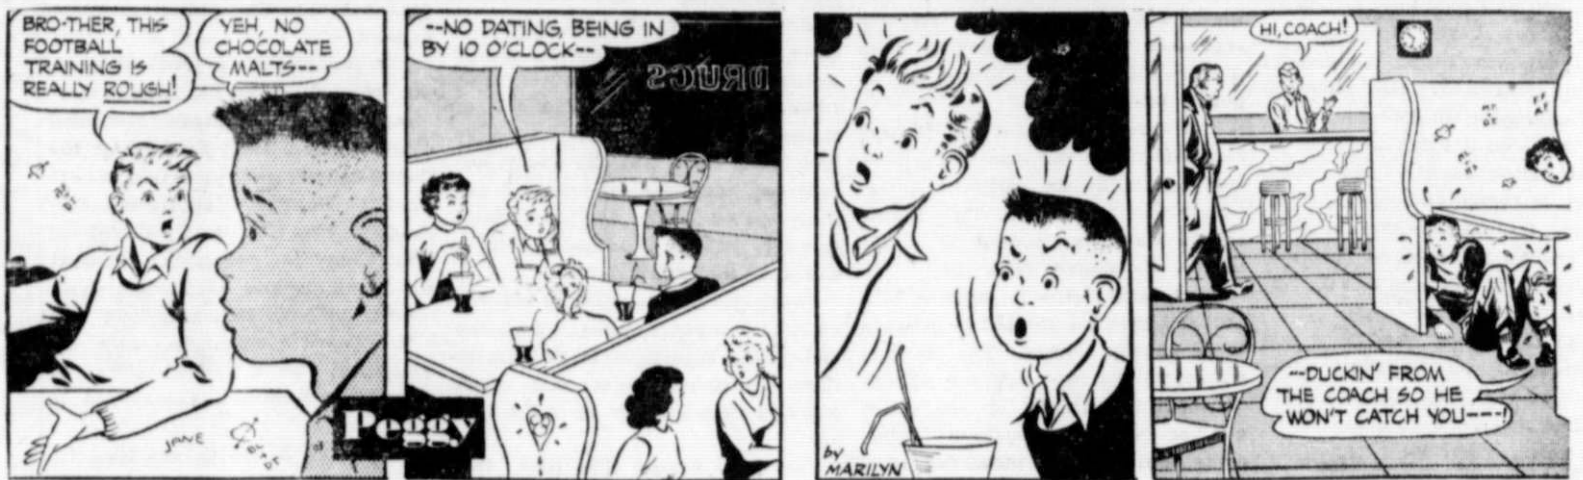

Overweight is America's number one public health problem; in all about 25 million people are overweight to some degree and at least five million adults are seriously overweight. Overweight people are predisposed to heart disease, diabetes, liver disorders, high blood pressure, and other serious complications.

The obvious truth is that overweight usually comes from overeating. But it is something that can be licked. The victim of overweight should look to his doctor for guidance and assistance in reducing. It is desirable to have a medical examination with proper laboratory tests to determine if any existing condition, other than overeating, is causing obesity. Thus, the doctor can prescribe a diet that suits the individual patient's needs.

But this is not all that is needed: the patient himself is the deciding factor. He must have the determination to reduce his weight. He must learn that only a permanent change in his eating habits will bring lasting results. He must acquire knowledge of the details of diet and the caloric values of foods. He must cut out all between-meal snacks, and should never violate his diet rules.

How much the overweight person should take off depends on how many pounds his weight exceeds what it should be. This varies according to sex, height and general body build.

Not only should the overweight person watch his poundage, but the person with proper weight should keep a constant check to insure against gaining too much damaging fat. Prevention of overweight can begin in childhood. Mothers should not worry if the child seems to be eating too little. Also, parents should set an example for the child by not overeating.

WOOD STEPS FOR THE PORCH

Porch steps rot out, and have to be replaced because there is no way of keeping them dry. Even though the outside surfaces are painted, the wood absorbs moisture from the under side. Keeping the under side painted will help, but will not completely stop rot.

Allow all possible ventilation under the steps, and build them on a cement footing that drains surface water away from the steps.

Steps should be made of rot resisting wood. Cypress is best, but hard to find. Douglas Fir is also good, and is easier to find.

Lumber for the treads should be full one inch thick, commonly called five-quarter. The risers may be regular one inch lumber. The carriage should be built of two inch lumber, 10 inches wide. If the steps are more than three feet wide, you should use three carriages instead of two as illustrated.

Use 10d nails. Nail from the outside, and clinch on the inside where they cannot be seen.

Divide the height of the steps by the number of steps plus one. This will give you the height of each riser. The one is for the last step onto the porch.

An ordinary step is about eight inches high, with a tread of about 10 or 11 inches.

Bore one inch holes in the treads and risers as illustrated to provide ventilation and drainage.

The open space on the frame should be left for ventilation. It may be covered with screen or lattice work to keep out animals. Paint steps with a good porch and deck paint. Paint the under side as well as the outside.

When paint peels from steps, it is usually because the wood is wet. The problem is to get a sealer good enough to keep the wood dry.

TONGUE-TIED—For 60 days, boasts Rayo, a 43-year-old Yogi mystic, he will endure the pain of having a five-inch nail through his tongue. The Austrian-born fakir, who is conducting the experiment in Lille, France, will be fed liquids through a tube.

CLIPPER'S KLUB

By Helen Leckrone

I feel terrible! I have a sore throat—or I think it is a sore throat. It feels sorta like a lump in my throat, if you know what I mean. When I try to swallow, it won't go down. My eyes are watery, off and on, too.

I've heard there is a disease that hits mothers about the first of September every year. It seems to be no respecter of persons, climate, or race. Usually, it follows closely on the heels of the "operation of cutting the apron strings of little Jill or Jack when they start to school."

It hit me real sudden. I had taken my little six-year-old son to school, saw him safely settled, and started home feeling very enthusiastic at the prospect of having a little peace and quiet for a change. Then it started—this lump in my throat. The house was quiet as a tomb. I listened in vain for the familiar shout of "hit the dust, you redskins," or "heigh-ho, Silver!" That's when my eyes got this watery business. They tell me this disease isn't serious, but right now, I repeat, I feel terrible.

For every teacher over our nation, I am grateful. For each one, here's a poem in your honor:

Building A Temple

A builder builded a temple,
He wrought it with grace and skill;

Pillars and groins and arches
All fashioned to work his will.
Men said as they saw its beauty
"It shall never know decay."
Great is thy skill, O builder:
Thy fame shall endure for aye."

A teacher builded a temple
With loving and infinite care,
Planning each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.
None praised his unceasing efforts.

None knew of his wondrous plan,
For the temple the teacher
builded
Was unseen by the eyes of man.

Gone is the builder's temple,
Crumbled into the dust;
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.
But the temple the teacher
builded
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple is a child's immortal soul.

Our thought for today:
"The person who lives by himself and for himself runs the danger of becoming contaminated by the company he keeps."

WILD SENNA

©1951 National Wildlife Federation

Wild Senna is a tall, handsome plant which thrives in the eastern half of the United States. It is found all the way from New England south to Florida and west to Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, and Louisiana.

Throughout this broad region, Wild Senna grows in moist, rich soil. It often sinks its roots in the soggy ground of swamps, and sometimes it stands along protected roadsides.

A big plant, it hardly ever measures less than three feet in height. Under the best conditions, it may stretch up and up until it is between five and eight feet tall.

By the middle of the summer, says the National Wildlife Federation, Wild Senna is ready to put forth its attractive blossoms. The flowers are bright golden yellow, and they grow in thick clusters which are attached at the upper parts of the plants.

Each of the many blossoms is small—only about three-fourths of an inch across. But when a number of these open up together, they make a colorful display in July and August.

Following the blossoms, the plant produces its seed pods. The pods are flat, slender, and curved. They are between three and four inches long, and have a hairy surface.

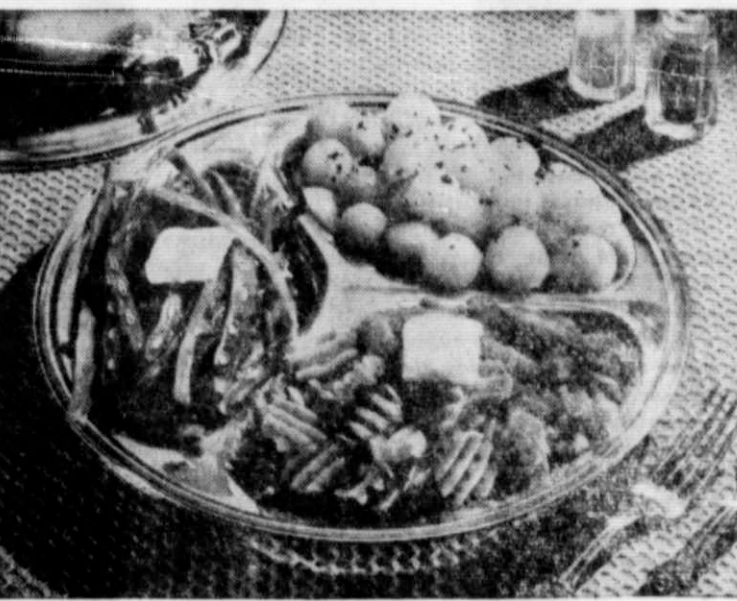

Unlike the fuzzy pods, Wild Senna's leaves are smooth to the touch. The leaves, branching out from the main stem, are dark green on top and pale underneath. Each leaf is made up of twelve to eighteen lance-shaped leaflets.

Both the leaves and the pods have been used for many years in the making of medicines. This was first done in Africa and in the East Indies, where certain varieties of senna grow. Later it was discovered that the leaves and pods of American Wild Senna also had medical value.

While this is still true, the plant is chiefly looked upon as one of our most attractive wild flowers. It grows quickly and easily in its favorite spots, but does not spread and become an unwanted pest. Many a piece of ground is brighter because Wild Senna is growing there.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS

TASTY BUTTER SAUCES!

There is nothing that will give a meal a lift more than a colorful selection of succulent vegetables, cooked to retain their garden freshness, served with seasonings and plenty of taste-tempting butter.

Inexpensive vegetable cutters are available for cutting fancy shapes such as the potato balls and the waffle-cut carrots in this three-compartment vegetable dish.

Serve the potato balls with parsley-butter sauce made as follows:

Parsley-Butter Sauce
1/2 cup melted butter; 3 to 4 tablespoons chopped parsley. Wash and dry parsley. Chop parsley fine and add to hot melted butter, pour over the cooked potato balls and serve immediately. Green beans will acquire a new and unusual flavor when served with a vinegar-butter sauce.

Vinegar-Butter Sauce
1/2 cup melted butter; 2 tablespoons vinegar. Melt butter, add vinegar and heat thoroughly. Pour over cooked green beans and season if necessary. Melted butter flavored with prepared mustard makes a delicious sauce for cooked onions, greens or broccoli. Don't be afraid to use your imagination when buttering vegetables for there are any number of flavor combinations that may be made with the addition of chopped almonds, a bit of horseradish, chopped chives or minced onion, or slivers of ripe olives.

BIG BUBBLE—Looping up slowly from the deck of U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Eastwind, a huge instrument-carrying plastic balloon begins the long ascent to the stratosphere where it will record data on cosmic rays for the Office of Naval Research. Released near the geomagnetic pole in northern Greenland, the balloon carried scientific and instrumented rockets which measured the charge and energy spectrum of primary cosmic radiation and the interaction of radiation with earth's atmosphere at high altitudes.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Alfred H. Seefeldt, who died on Thanksgiving day in 1917.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died 5 years ago,
Death cannot ever take away
And time cannot erase,
The memory of a loving heart,
A dear familiar face;
And there is comfort in the thought
That as the years go by
Our memories grow dearer still—
For love can never die.
Sadly missed by husband and children.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Frank Keller, Sr., who passed away four years ago, on Dec. 4, 1948:
A beautiful memory dearer than gold.

A father whose worth can never be told.
Years may pass but memories stay,
As near and dear as yesterday.
Deeply missed by wife, children and grandchildren.

Behind The Scenes In American Business
By Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK—Atomic energy, long locked in secrecy, is impinging more and more on the business scene and bringing with it both benefits and problems.

The packaging industry, for instance, is concerned about how to handle radioactive materials. First, how do you package such materials safely and economically? Second, what do you do with the package and the radioactive material after you are finished with them? If either, or both, remain radioactive for long periods of time the only way to render them completely safe is to shoot them out into space.

Another problem is spoilage due to radioactivity contamination. Several companies have had entire batches of photographic film ruined because of A-bomb detonations. Radioactive clouds pass through a rainstorm and contaminate an area slightly. While this isn't harmful to health it has ruined photo-sensitive materials.

Along with these problems, though, there may be some benefits. Medical benefits are already well known. In addition some experts believe that the engine being designed for the proposed atom-powered submarine might be just the thing for a proto-type of industrial-purpose atomic engines.

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY—The American family's largest single investment—its home—is a better investment than ever before, a study of housing trends by the Tile Council of America indicates. Comparison of construction methods and materials 20 years ago with those employed today show that the home buyer of 1953 gets more for his money than his father did.

For example, today's homes may be smaller, but have more living space because of improved utilization of the area. Other features, once luxuries, are now taken for granted: easily washed clay tile baths and kitchens; scientific lighting throughout the house; functional laundries; plenty of storage space; automatic heating, including radiant heating installed under conductive flooring like clay tile; and elimination of costly non-essential trimmings.

Today's house, the Council states, excels in ease of maintenance and durability.

THINGS TO COME—Steel and other metals can be rolled six times thinner than human hair on a machine recently introduced. Heat-resisting gloves made of leather and insulating materials are now available. The maker states the gloves resist temperatures up to 800 degrees F. Grocers will be interested in a device which straightens dented tin cans. The unit is a tester, too. If can ends remain bulged after using the straightener spoilage is indicated. A new acid-resistant enamel steel coating is the most effective ever developed, the manufacturer claims. The latest hot coffee dispenser for offices and stores is no larger than a water cooler. An electronic dictating machine that you can carry under your arm, weighing only 11 pounds, was unveiled at the New York Business Show.

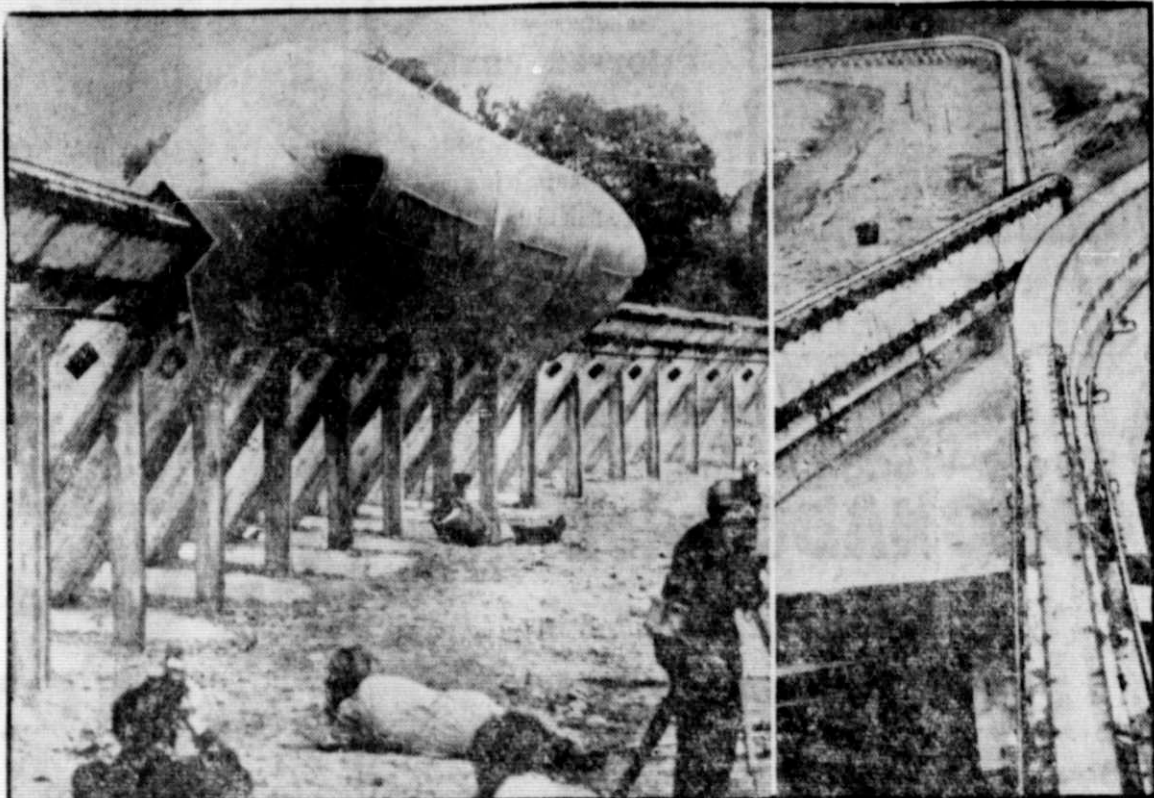

AIRPLANES AND ELECTRONICS—Modern jet airplanes need so many electronic gadgets that a new scientific industry has been born—"avionics."

"Jet planes are already flying so fast that human reflexes can't respond quickly enough. Think what the problem will be in the 1,500 mph planes of the future," says Alexander Kartveli, vice president and chief engineer of Republic Aviation Corporation.

In the Kartveli-designed F-84 Thunderjet there are already electronic devices with some 150 electron tubes—enough to build 10 home TV sets. The plane of the future, Kartveli predicts, will carry all the following electronic devices: (1) Electronic "feelers" to tell the pilot where the enemy is, (2) an electronic computer to tell him what course to fly to get there, (3) an automatic pilot to keep him on course, (4) a device that will signal automatically whether an approaching plane is friend or foe; (5) a radar gunsight to fire his guns when he's on target, (6) an electronic device to guide him home, (7) a radio altimeter.

BITS O' BUSINESS—Cigarette output next year will top this year's 430 billion, the Department of Agriculture estimates. Retail store sales in September rose to $14 billion, up 7 per cent over September, 1951, according to the Department of Commerce. Auto sales led the increase with a 30 per cent gain. American farmers' assets may reach $172.1 billion by the end of the year. More than one-third of farmers' income, this year, incidentally, was derived from meat sales. 1952 toy sales will total from $370 million to $400 million with most sales about Christmas time, according to one estimate.

ZIP-TRAIN OF THE FUTURE

Whizzing over tomorrow's landscape, the high-speed monorail superliner seen at left above may be the railroad's answer to challenge of the airplane. Built near Cologne, Germany, for test runs only, the model car is two-fifths normal size, travels 100 miles per hour. Backed by Swedish millionaire Axel Wenner-Gren, the new train was kept secret by the Rail Transportation Research Society until this year. At right is the unique monorail track at a switching point which is set to curve right. Electric power is fed to the engine through metal bands on the rails. Rollers, built into a deep slot on the engine's underside, ride on the one rail which is six feet above ground. Full-scale models are expected to travel 210 miles per hour.

New Kitchen Designs For Disabled Housewives; Drug Treats Fever Sores

The three million disabled housewives in the United States will be interested in the model kitchens exhibited at California's medical convention in which many helpful gadgets and arrangements were shown. The ordinary fever sore can be cured by using a silver-nitrate styptic pencil, according to a doctor in Atlanta, Ga. These are among the most recent advances in medicine reported by Dr. Edward T. Wilkes in Redbook Magazine for November.

"There are three million disabled housewives in the United States who should be interested in the model disabled housewife's kitchen exhibited at California's medical convention. Among the many helpful gadgets and arrangements shown were a stove made lower by taking the base out of the range, a sink which permits a wheel chair to roll under it, eating utensils for those who can eat only with one hand, a one-arm rolling pin, ironing boards for use while seated in a wheel chair, and low cabinet shelves easy to reach from the wheelchair."

"It is natural for children between the ages of one and six to be slightly knock-kneed, and the condition usually corrects itself later. Dr. Thomas Geppert, of Madison, Wisconsin, measured 239 children to determine exactly the point at which knock-knees should be considered abnormal. The distance between the most prominent points of the ankles was measured while the child lay on his back with the knees held firmly together and the feet at right angles to the legs.

"The ankles were found to be most widely separated at the age of three. If, however, the distance is greater than an inch and a half, it is advisable for the child to wear shoes with a wedge on the inner border. The size of the wedge is determined by the extent to which the child is knock-kneed.

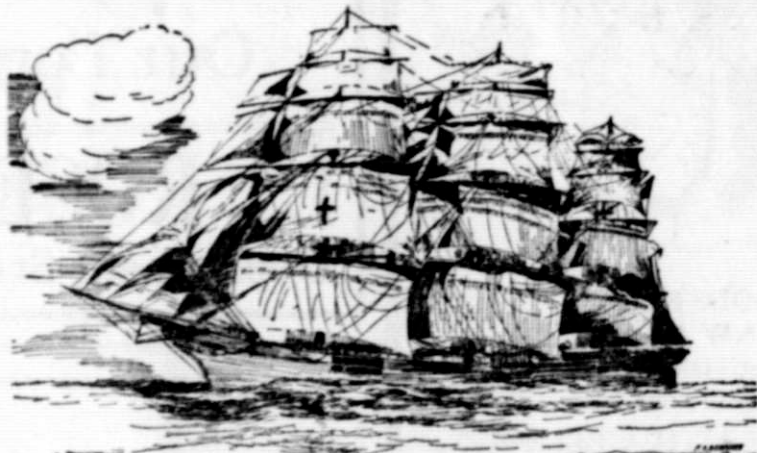

"In a recent test, meat was added to the diet of sixty infants from six to eight weeks of age for a period of eight to ten weeks, and the progress of the meat-fed babies was compared with that of a control group. It was found that the number of red blood corpuscles and the hemoglobin content of the blood increased when the babies had meat, and decreased when the meat was discontinued.

"Similar tests were conducted on twenty-eight toddlers between 12 and 24 months old. They had fewer colds than the control group, and the number of their red blood cells increased also. The number of children studied is too small to justify any definitive conclusion, but the test does indicate that meat is well tolerated by babies, and many are helped by its use.

"An ordinary silver-nitrate styptic pencil will cure the usual fever sore, according to a report by Dr. Norris of Atlanta, Georgia. The pencil should be moistened and rubbed gently over the blister area. Excessive rubbing irritates. Two or three applications are usually sufficient. If a secondary infection occurs, your physician will suggest a mild antiseptic ointment."

A Famous American Ship

Sketch of the DREADNOUGHT, most famous Atlantic packet, whose record passage across the Atlantic made in 1859 still stands, according to the American Merchant Marine Institute. Her best passage between New York and Liverpool was 13 days, 8 hours, a far cry from the 3 day, 10 hour record established by the new superliner UNITED STATES. For over a decade the DREADNOUGHT was the champion of the Atlantic Ocean before she was shifted to other services. Her proud skipper, Capt. Samuel Samuels, was a national hero, the ideal of the Yankee tar, writes W. L. Marvin in his book "The American Merchant Marine." The DREADNOUGHT lived up to her name in no uncertain manner. She gained a reputation for sailing with full canvass in the worst weather, day and night.

GOOD HEALTH

Answer to Question No. 1: It is a disease of the nervous system that often strikes in the early twenties. Its cause is a medical mystery, and there is no known cure. A new organization, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, is however sponsoring a number of research programs in an effort to unlock the secrets of the disease.

Answer to Question No. 2: About half the cases recover without any crippling after effects. One patient in four is left with paralysis that requires prolonged medical care. Others have slight after effects that can be helped by physical therapy, surgery, or simple corrective devices. Extensive research is under way to try to discover the cause or causes of polio. Until more is known, the best hope of avoiding it lies in maintaining good general health.

Answer to Question No. 3: Some 70 per cent of the body weight is salt water. We become thirsty when we lose enough water through sweat, excretions, or evaporation to upset the water-salt balance, according to one theory. Another view is that the thirst sensation results from drying of the mucous membrane of the throat.

Poor Vision Cause Of Hunting Accidents

The rash of hunting accidents that have been noted with the first few weeks of the various shooting seasons could have been avoided in large measure, said Dr. Harold L. Carlson, Mankato, president of the Minnesota Ophthalmometric Association, recently. "They could have been avoided if only hunters weren't so careless, and if only many of them would have had their eyesight checked before starting out on their hunting trip," he said.

"The hunter has some of the most exacting seeing requirements that we face in modern vision care," said Dr. Carlson. "One of the major problems is natural accommodation to different distances because when a lens corrects vision for one distance, it is at the cost of clear vision for other distances.

"The telescopic sight is of great help to the hunter who is 50 or over and who is likely to have trouble with near-point vision. Some hunters find value in trifocal lenses which correct vision for three distances—the rear sight of the gun, the front and the target.

"With a longer than ever season still before us because of the approaching deer hunt-session, hunters must be more careful if they are to survive," Dr. Carlson points out. "A hunter must see well to be successful, and unless he sees well he may be a safety hazard, mistaking a fellow hunter for game to be shot. It's important that hunters go forth with good eyesight this hunting season, and if there are doubts in your own particular case, it isn't too late to correct them."

Dr. Carlson said that nature intended man's eyes for outdoor living and for focusing at a distance such as on the hunter's quarry. He contrasted this with modern jobs in factories and offices which demand unnatural focusing on work at a distance of 12 to 15 inches.

Revelations a Source Of Fine Inspiration For True Christians

THE Book of Revelations came out of a period of crisis in the early days of Christianity. It was during a crisis when the faith of the disciples was being put to a severe test in the fires of a terrible persecution.

The book was written to encourage Christians, to help them to be firm and have a sense of God's presence. It was meant to offer assurance of ultimate deliverance and blessedness if they endured the test.

According to biblical scholars, the book was written in the time of the reign of Domitian about 90 A. D. The totalitarian power of the state was dominant. It was a rule of insane power that demanded the worship of the emperor as a test of loyalty to the state.

It was not enough that the Christian citizen be a loyal citizen of the empire. He was called upon to prove it further by setting up a man, and a very bad man at that, in the place of God.

In many ways it was no sterner a test than many have faced in our own times. As the gas chambers, mass executions and ovens of destruction will prove.

If the Book of Revelations is difficult to interpret, it is because of the dangers that threatened author and readers in those days of persecution. But, if it is difficult to understand, it is also sublime and moving in its beauty. There is an unflinching sureness in the assertion of God's eternal power. And the fact that Christianity did survive the powers that sought to destroy it is proof enough that the book did bring strength and inspiration to those persecuted Christians who needed it so badly.

It is a book for our time as well as for theirs.

Ever hear of the leopard cattle dog? Down in the cattle country of Texas the breed has been well known for many years—especially for its superb ability as a cow-punching canine, which seems to be an inherited trait. The breed also is reckoned as a fine all-around farm and ranch dog and a varmint and squirrel dog of more than average accomplishments.

The dogs usually are gray or white with black or brown spots, but they also come in other colors. Most of them are glass-eyed. The origin of the breed, like so many others that were not deliberately planned, is a subject of much guessing. According to Henry P. Davis, one of our top dog authorities, the most plausible story comes from Will H. Smith, a well-known breeder of these dogs. He states that about 60 years ago a man bought some cattle from John Adams, who lived near Zulch, Texas. Adams noticed with much interest the ease with which the herd was handled by the cattle buyer's all white glass-eyed dog. Later the two men were eating when the buyer glanced up, excused himself and went out the back way. He never came back, and the dog found a new owner in Adams.

The remarkable ability of the white dog as a herder attracted much attention throughout that section. He was later mated with a "bluesteel" bitch and the puppies seemed to inherit the sire's extraordinary sagacity as a handler of stock. From this progeny the leopard cattle dog breed is said to have been developed.

In brush country these dogs are especially valuable. They are taught to go into the brush, locate and bay stray cattle, holding them until the riders arrive. The dogs generally work in pairs at the cow's nose, nipping and fading until the scared and angry animal gives up all thought of bolting. It is then a fairly easy job to bring her out of the brush.

In these days of cow-hand shortages, it is not surprising that interest in the leopard cattle dog is increasing. Ranch owners who use them say that two dogs can do as much effective work in a day as three mounted riders. Horse wear and labor costs are thus reduced considerably.

NIMROD ON WHEELS—Proudly holding up his four fat mallards, 44-year-old paraplegic Leonard Zimmer of Sacred Heart, Minn., calls it a day. Paralyzed legs do not keep the veteran sportsman indoors in duck season. He rolls after them in his wheel chair, carrying a 410-gauge shotgun. Zimmer was injured eight years ago when a gravel truck he was repairing crushed him as a supporting jack slipped.

To Square Materials

AS RECOMMENDED by American Builder, a leading trade journal, here's a quick method of squaring large sheets of material when a steel square is inaccurate or impractical. These are the steps to follow:

1. Choose a radius that is practical for the job, using "A" as the center.
2. Use the same radius with "B" as a center.
3. Draw a straight line through points "B" and "C."
4. Using same radius and with "C" as center, locate point "D."
5. Lines from "B" to "A" and "D" to "A" form a 90 degree angle.

Pastel Sheets and Blankets Add Color

Give New Look to Bedrooms

BY EDNA MILES

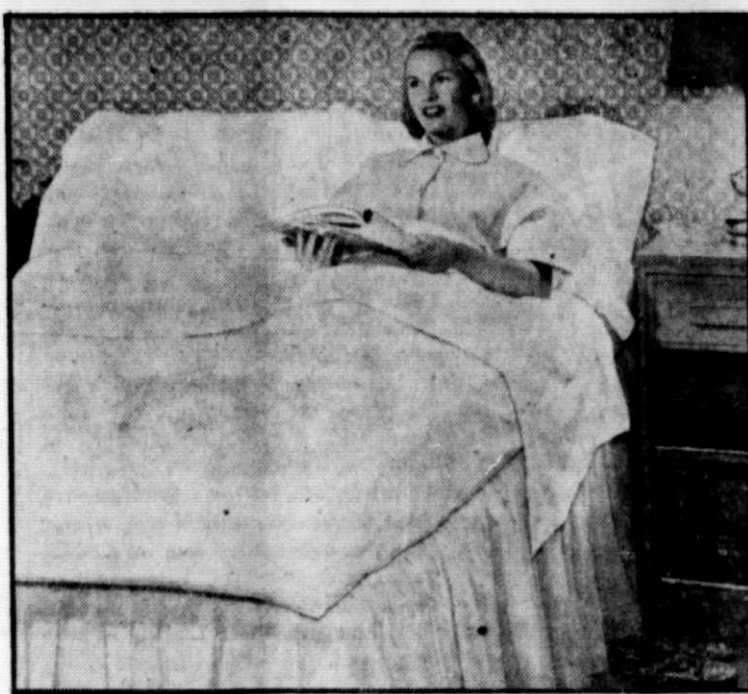

DRESSING up your bedroom these days needn't mean a tremendous outlay of money. You can retain your old pieces of furniture and refinish them if you like. Then, complete the job with new sheets in pastel colors, new blankets in gay carousel stripes, new drapes and perhaps some gay throw pillows.

Not only can you have your sheets and pillowcases in pastels suited to your particular color scheme, you can also have the handy fitted sheets that prevent untucking at the foot. There is one that's designed either for top or bottom use. It hangs on the sides and is straight at the top. This is available in pastel shades of pink, blue, yellow or green as well as white.

BLANKETS COME IN STRIPES TOO

As for blankets, they're no longer just a solid color. They're vivid with stripes now, in soft shades of blue, green, pink or spice with white. Bound on all four sides in matching satin ribbon, these blankets are pretty enough to use in place of a spread, if you like.

Should you want matching drapes, at tiny expense, just buy regulation double sheets in matching pastels. Use the wide hem as the bottom drape hem and stitch a top hem yourself. At these prices, you can afford a triple width.

This new fitted top sheet in pastel shades of pink, blue, yellow or green prevents untucking at the foot. Bottom corners are mitered to give a snug fit while allowing lots of foot room through extra length. It can be used for top or bottom.

Value Of Lime On Farm Explained By C. J. Chapman, University of Wis.

There is no question about it—the use of agricultural lime to sweeten the acid soils in Wisconsin has been a most important factor in pushing the acreage and yields of alfalfa to the present all-time record. Wisconsin farmers in 1951 harvested nearly 9,000,000 tons of hay and in 1952, close to 8,000,000 tons. The crop in 1951 was the largest in history, in fact, in both years the largest for any state in the United States.—But we still say that yields per acre of alfalfa are not what they ought to be. There were thousands of acres of alfalfa this past year that were streaked and looked rather tough and beat-out. On the sandy soils of central Wisconsin hundreds of fields suffered from lack of boron. But there were thousands of acres in all parts of the state which were spotted and the yields were not what they should have been because of a lack of lime.

Of the 200,000 soil samples tested last year 50% were acid and in need of lime. True, many of these fields have been limed once, some of them twice but the tremendous demand for lime by the lime loving crops—alfalfa and clover—has pumped the lime out of these soils and they have become acid and sour again. Many fields were not limed at heavy enough rates at the out-set. Those that were need more lime now after 6, 8, or 10 years of cropping. The job of liming is never done.

It's necessary to re-lime at intervals of every 8 to 10 years. We say, maintain your soil at a pH of 6.5 to 7.0. What does that mean? Well, pH is the chemist's way of expressing the degree of acidity. pH 7 is neutral—below 7 the soil becomes progressively more acid. So we say, keep your soil just a little under the neutral point, in other words, just a trifle on the acid side. Professor Emil Truog, who developed a test for soil acidity back in 1912 and has devoted a lifetime to a study of the relationship of soil acidity to the lime requirements of various crops says, "Keep your soils well supplied with lime, maintain the pH between 6.5 and 7.0."

No question about it, our success even with red clover during the past 15 years is due in part to a lime rich soil. Remember, some 25 years ago when we were so worried about clover failures and the big cry among our agricultural leaders and as well, farmers, was "bring back clover." Well, it's back,—due in part to the more general use of commercial fertilizers but more than anything else, to the 28 million tons of lime which we have applied in the past 18 years.

Fall is a good time to lime. Lime applied in the fall months is more effective than when applied in the spring since it has a longer period in which to react with soil acids. The facilities for the production of agricultural lime are likewise more favorable during the fall months and early winter than in late winter or early spring. Then, too, wide roads and highways permit our trucks to get the lime out on farms and get it spread when the ground is firm. These big spreader trucks can get right out on the fields in the fall and apply this lime; whereas if you wait until spring, highway restrictions may delay delivery until it's too late to get the lime on your land for spring seedings.

For best results, apply your lime on the plowed, land and disc it into the soil but where more than 3 tons per acre is applied, it's best to spread half before plowing and disc it into the surface 4 inches, then plow and apply the other half.

Many farmers ask the question about applying lime as a top-dressing to old established fields of alfalfa that are yellow and thinning out. Yes, most certainly we advise liming these old fields this fall or next spring. Remember, however, that lime is only slightly water soluble so that the finer the particles, the greater the penetration and the more effective it is where applied as a top-dressing. Yes! the same soil where applied on the plowed land. The effectiveness of the lime is in proportion to the fineness of the particles—but of course, these are

Lime Law has set up the following specifications. (1) "Grade A Agricultural Lime" designates a product of which at least 90% passes a standard 8-mesh sieve and either at least 50% passes a standard 60-mesh sieve or at least 90% passes a standard 100-mesh sieve. The minimum neutralizing value is 85% on an oven dry basis. (2) "Standard Grade Agricultural Lime" designates a product of which at least 80% passes a standard 8-mesh sieve and either at least 35% passes a standard 60-mesh sieve or at least 20% passes a standard 100-mesh sieve. The minimum neutralizing value is 80% on an oven dry basis. Expressed decimally, the product of the amount passing the 8-mesh sieve multiplied by the neutralizing value must equal or exceed 0.72. (3) "Substandard Grade Agricultural Lime" designates a product which does not meet the minimum specifications of "Standard Grade Agricultural Lime."

Test Your Soil

Don't waste lime on land that doesn't need it—on the other hand, don't waste valuable alfalfa and clover seed on acid soils. Take samples from the fields you plan to seed down to alfalfa next spring. Have them tested not only for their lime needs but for fertilizer needs as well. Test these old alfalfa fields where the big crops you have harvested the last two or three years have pumped the lime, phosphate and potash to low levels. Bear in mind the fact, too, that the fall of the year is a good time to apply commercial fertilizer on those old established fields of hay. 0-10-30 or 0-9-27B applied at rates up to 300-400 lbs. per acre along with additional amounts of lime (where the soil is acid) will pay off in bigger and better crops of hay next year. "Lime for the land's sake." Yes, lime because it's a good investment. But remember that "Lime without manure may make both farm and farmer poor, but lime plus phosphate-potash-clover will make the old farm rich all over."

Embossed cotton, while pretty as a picture to wear, can be a problem when it comes to washing and ironing. With a little laundering know-how, however, there's not a bit of need to worry, says Betty Ann.

In hot wash water, use bead-bling and soap or synthetic detergent, for whites. For colors use the same materials but in warm, not hot, water.

Skip the bleach! Embossed cottons often are treated with what is known as a chlorine retentive finish which means that if you use a chlorine bleach, the two "chlorines" react and the fabric you want to whiten will turn yellow. Not only that, but the material will be badly weakened.

When it comes to wringing these embossed cottons, avoid unnecessary creasing and fold flat before putting through the wringer. If you are washing by hand, squeeze—don't twist, to wring.

Dry right and there's no ironing! Put wearing apparel on hangers, and do what ironing is necessary right then. Shake gently to release wrinkles and folds. Smooth the collars, the cuffs, and straighten hems. Pull seams and facings straight. This "blocking," if well done, can reduce ironing to nothing! If you feel, however, that the garment should be touched up with an iron, then set the thermostat at "cotton" and press the garment only when it is completely dry.

Next time you buy a zipper for a washable garment, check to see that the zipper is made entirely of one kind of metal.

Some of the newer zippers on the market contain both copper and aluminum, and they are likely to cause trouble in laundering, according to textile chemists.

When homemakers complained of brown spots and holes appearing in cotton wash dresses, chemists looked in the problem.

They traced the trouble to electrolysis produced by two different metals in zippers, or to any situation where wet garments are kept in contact with two dissimilar metals before the garments are ironed.

In the time a dress is rolled up before ironing, this electrolysis may give off enough acid to damage the fabric. Then, when the garment is ironed the damage may show up in brown spots and holes.

To protect wash dresses made with zippers of two metals, the specialists suggest that you avoid the sprinkling and rolling up danger by pressing the dress before it dries.

If you must dampen the dress for ironing, be careful not to dampen around the zipper. When you roll it up, put a clean rag against the zipper to protect the fabric.

Hair color is no longer a luxury but one way of giving luxury to your coiffure and, therefore, to your whole appearance. Hair coloring may be a permanent or a temporary change, and if it is the latter, it can be changed to suit your mood, your fancy or your costume. Contrasting hair streaks are one way to lend a fashion note to your hair-do with a minimum of time and effort.

Hair colors can be so blended as to brighten a sallow complexion. For example, the application of the light blond shades to the natural shade of brown hair will introduce highlights of a lighter, brighter hue. The result will be a complexion that looks less sallow.

Always consult a professional beautician about your hair coloring decisions. She is trained to know just what color will be best for you and what type of application is necessary for your particular type and texture of hair.

You may be able to remove a stain on your rug even when you don't know what caused it. Apply nonflammable dry cleaning fluid to stain with eye dropper and sponge with clean, white cloth. Follow by sponging, always working toward center of stain, with synthetic detergent solution.

Want to spice up your apple-sauce? A half teaspoon of cinnamon, a half teaspoon of nutmeg and one-eighth teaspoon mace will be about right for two pounds of cooking apples. Add sugar to taste and don't forget to add a dash of salt to point up the flavor.

Add fresh or dried thyme to a vinegar oil and sugar dressing and pour over sliced fresh tomatoes that have been sprinkled with salt and lots of freshly ground pepper.
