Escapes Injury in Train-Truck Crash

Edwin "Snubby" Zahn, 46, of Germantown, miraculously escaped without injury when the oil truck he was driving was struck by a North Western passenger train shortly after 10 a. m. Monday. The accident occurred at a town road crossing about four miles south of Kewaskum. The 1953 model tank truck, owned by the Schaezel Oil company, was almost a complete wreck.

Kewaskum Again is a Christmas Town

How do you like Kewaskum's holiday decorations this year? Nice, eh?

Our residents have really caught on to the Christmas spirit this year. Whether it was the influence of the Kewaskum Community Service committee appeal through this paper or what, folks have taken to decorating their homes and business places more than ever before.

Every block in town has numerous homes which are gaily, prettily and appropriately decorated for the holiday season. It is a grand sight and worth getting in your car some night to tour the various streets. There will be prizes for the best decorations and details will be found in a separate article in this issue.

The strands of red and green lights across the main streets add much color to our villages appearance. So does the large gaily colored Christmas tree at the municipal building.

While on the subject of Christmas, don't forget that Santa Claus will be at the Kewaskum theatre Saturday afternoon for a party. Free movies will be shown and gifts will be distributed to the kiddies.

This year, let's put Christ back into Christmas.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED AT BOWLING MEET HELD HERE

Team events in the 1954 tournament will be held at the King Pin alleys in Campbellport. Singles and doubles will be held at Jack and Joe's alleys, West Bend. The tournament will get underway early in April. The bowling fee will be $1.10 per series and entry fee $1.

FINAL WARNING TO DOG OWNERS GIVEN

Complaints are coming in that there are still some dog owners in the village who are allowing their dogs to run loose. These dogs not only are a nuisance but are destroying property as well. A notice was published in the paper previously concerning these dogs and this is the final warning to owners. Have enough common sense to keep your dogs tied up or on a leash. If they are found running loose they will absolutely be disposed of according to law.

Enter the Christmas Decorating Contest

The Kewaskum Community service committee is pleased with the progress of the "Let's Decorate for Christmas" campaign. Nearly every street in the village has some homes displaying Christmas decorations.

It is not too late for the rest of you to enter the contest. Surely there is no better feeling than that which comes from sharing things with your fellowmen. That is just what you do when you display even just a small candle, that passers-by may see and enjoy the warmth that it seems to send into this chilled world.

It has been announced that prizes will be awarded to the homes with the best decorations. The homes will be selected by a group of three judges on Wednesday evening, Dec. 23, between 5:00 p. m. and 10:00 p. m.

So be sure to have your decoration lights turned on during that time.

This also would be a nice time for every one to take a walk or a ride and see all the wonderful decorations which our fellow citizens have displayed, so we may all share that spirit of cheer and happiness which Christmas alone can bring.

Chevs Win 3rd in Row, Tie for Lead

LAND OF LAKES STANDINGS (Northern Division)

	Won	Lost
KEWASKUM	3	0
West Bend	3	0
Fond du Lac	2	1
Mayville	1	1
Horicon	1	2
Rosendale	1	2
Port Washington	0	3
Brandon	0	3

Week's scores—Kewaskum 68, Mayville 63; Fond du Lac 72, Horicon 43; West Bend 87, Port Washington 81; Rosendale 74, Brandon 58.

Games Sunday—Kewaskum at West Bend, Rosendale at Fond du Lac, Horicon at Mayville.

The undefeated Chevrolets made it three straight victories in the Land of Lakes by downing the rival Mayville team here Sunday, 65-63. The win, which was the Chevs' fourth of the season, including one exhibition against Menasha, gained a tie for the loop lead with West Bend, which also won Sunday. The first place tie will be settled this Sunday night when Kewaskum plays at West Bend.

The Chevrolets had rougher going than anticipated against Mayville, which squad always proves hard to beat when meeting Kewaskum. It was a rough affair with many fouls and disputes. The home team was off on its shooting and Mayville forced them all the way.

The visitors possessed a one point, 12-11, lead at the quarter but Kewaskum moved into a slight 26-24 advantage at halftime. Mayville outscored the Chevs again in the third period to retake the lead at 43-39. The winner had to overcome a 4-point deficit in the final stanza to come out on top. They did rally for 25 points and held Mayville to 20 to turn the trick.

Paving the way for the Chevrolets was Johnny Tassar, the league's leading scorer, with 32 points. He has a total of 75 points in the three league games played to date. Angie Bilgo clipped in 14 to make his total 84 for the campaign. Forwards Harvey and Stueckmeyer were the main scorers for Mayville with 16 and 13 respectively.

A big crowd is expected for Sunday's battle for first place at West Bend. The tilt should be very close with Kewaskum, with its experience and high scorers, probably rating a slight edge. This contest may prove to be the deciding one for the first half title. The feature will start at 8:30, following the West Bend-Kewaskum Rivers tilt, Mayville 12 12 19 29-63 Kewaskum 11 15 14 23-68

RIVERS FIVE ALSO BEATS MAYVILLE; 2ND STRAIGHT

The Kewaskum Rivers cagers also won their second in a row by beating Mayville in the preliminary contest Sunday by a decisive 56-36 margin. They also hold down the top spot in their circuit.

Scoring ace George Hanrahan walked off with honors, swishing in 23 points from his center position. He paced both teams. High point man for Mayville was forward Voss with 16. Kewaskum's big forward, Meisenheimer, was held to 4 points.

Kewaskum took a commanding lead in the first quarter and stayed well ahead. The halftime count was 29-18.

Mayville 5 13 7 1-36
Kewaskum 20 19 19 16-66

Teacup Topics

By Betty Ann

EDITOR
THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL
WOMAN'S PAGES

Fashion fads fade in a flash but basics go on forever, says Betty Ann.

To spark her basic built wardrobe, the smart girl includes one or two high fashion notes. To extend it, she accessorizes carefully.

Many girls do not care to invest heavily in accessories to vary their costumes. Their reason is that one might just as well buy other dresses with the money.

But the girl on a budget does not have to buy expensive accessories to be chic. If she is willing to give a little time to hunting, she can find numerous bits with which to enhance her dresses.

For example: Leopard belts are costly but leopard buttons are not. Besides, a few of these buttons arranged on a plain belt or at the neckline will have a very individual look.

One may use a handsome collection of scarves to set off her costumes. In fact, she might use them exclusively so that they seem almost a trademark.

Should this be your wont, while buying the different designs and shapes that appeal to you, quickly increase your collection by making some from remnants.

Once your friends become aware of your enterprise, they will gladly contribute their sewing scraps. For the largest piece, you will need a 21 inch square. Use the styles you now own as patterns; handroll them and in minutes you will have added to your accessories without spending a penny.

While everyone knows what a beauty asset hands can be, some women past 40 are inclined to think theirs are beyond beauty care.

Regardless of what type your hands are, you can help them to help your grooming. Yours are not the standards of an 18 year old girl. Hands that have become strong and supple through years of work can flatter the older woman.

Exercising will help to relax the hands. Whenever you think of it, raise one hand straight up as far as possible and shake it and the arm about 20 times. Repeat six times with each arm.

Persistent massage will help minimize enlarged veins, stubby fingers, lines, stiffness and tiredness. After washing hands in warm water hold the right hand upright and massage with a hand cream, working from finger tips toward the wrist.

If you are convinced that your hands are a decided drawback, avoid bright nail polish and sleeves that call attention to the hands. If you acquire a really interesting glove supply, you can add a note of distinction to your grooming.

Pep up a cheese sauce with a little finely grated onion, prepared mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Serve the sauce on crisp toast and top with slices of tomato.

Cinnamon Balls
1 1/4 cups corn syrup; 1 cup sugar; 1 tablespoon water; 1 teaspoon butter; 1 tablespoon vinegar; vanilla; 1/2 teaspoon essence of cinnamon.

Stir all ingredients together in a pan except the cinnamon. Boil and stir only to prevent candy from burning. When it forms a hard ball in cold water, remove from stove, add cinnamon and pour in buttered tin. As soon as it is cool enough to handle, pull like taffy. Roll into balls and let cool.

Golden Baked Carrots
18 soda crackers; 4 large carrots; 1 egg; 1 tablespoon water; pepper; 1/4 cup melted butter.

Crush crackers through food mill. Cut carrots in half lengthwise. Cook in small amounts of boiling salted water until almost tender. Drain. Scrape or peel carrots. Beat egg and water with blending fork. Dip each carrot half in egg, then roll in cracker crumbs. Arrange in baking dish. Sprinkle with pepper. Brush with melted butter. Bake at 450 degrees, hot oven, until golden brown, about 10 minutes. Makes four servings.

For a nutritious sweet, steam and pit large prunes, then stuff them with pecan or walnut meats and coat the stuffed fruit with sugar. You'll need about one-fourth cup granulated sugar for coating six large prunes.

Save the heavy folding bags in which gelatin is sold. They make ideal leakproof containers for lunchbox pickles or any similar juicy food.

About Your Home

By FRANCES DELL

Every child in school should have a quiet, well-lighted, comfortable place in the home in which to study and do home work. If a child is not making the grades he should, this may be the thing that is missing.

We are told that modern children lack the power of concentration found in their grandmother's day. Today, modern houses are usually small and privacy is almost a thing of the past.

Junior, in most homes, has to do his lessons amid all kinds of distractions, from the radio to mother's bridge club's conversation. It is easy to see that this sort of thing does nothing to develop the power of concentration in the average child.

Even though your house is small, make every effort to give your children this much-needed privacy. If nothing more, set aside a certain period of the afternoon or evening as a study period.

The importance of a good reading lamp and a proper posture chair should not be overlooked. Both can have a definite bearing on a child's health. A lot of us may think we know a good reading lamp when we see one, but actually do not. Before you buy just any lamp, talk to a reliable salesman about the latest type bulb as well as lamp.

There are many good posture chairs on the market. It should be comfortable and the right size for the child. Usually, a desk chair or a dining room chair is fine for this purpose.

OH BROTHER!

Forty-five years after separation a birth two brothers, now with different names, were reunited at Litchfield, Minn., Lyle Maher of that community and Adrian Smith of Ardmore, Nebraska. Foursomes are common on every golf course, but not too many have a foursome made up of brothers like the four husky Ross brothers who frequent the Ortonville, Minn. course. . . Five nephews of F. H. Eberhardt, Staples, Minn., can chalk up a 75 year record of military service.

Corn Meal Makes Delicious Meat Stretcher

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

CORN bread is always welcome, hot, with butter and maple syrup. But we've found it is delicious and economical when used as a meat stretcher. Here are recipes worth trying:

Ham Croquettes

(Yield: 4 servings)

One half cup corn meal, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup boiling water, 2 cups (about 8 ounces) ground, cooked ham; 1 teaspoon chopped onion, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1/4 cup corn meal, 1 egg, beaten; 1 tablespoon water.

Mix together corn meal, water and salt. Pour gradually into boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened, stirring frequently. Cover and continue cooking over low heat 5 minutes longer.

Combine ham, onion, mustard and cooked corn meal. Shape into 8 croquettes. Roll croquettes in corn meal. Some corn meal will be left over. Let the croquettes dry one hour. Dip croquettes in the combined egg and water, then in remaining corn meal.

Fry in deep fat (375 degrees F.) about 3 minutes. Serve with mushroom sauce, if desired. Note: If self-rising corn meal is used, omit salt.

Creamed Chicken on Toasted Corn Bread

Two cups cooked chicken, 2 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 tablespoon parsley, salt and pepper.

Make white sauce of fat, flour and milk. Add cut-up cooked chicken and parsley and season to taste. Heat thoroughly and serve over corn-bread slices toasted under broiler.

Corn Bread

Three quarters cup sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 cups corn meal, 2 eggs, well beaten; 1 cup sweet milk (room temperature), 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add corn meal and mix well. Combine beaten eggs, milk and butter and add to dry ingredients all at once. Stir only enough to just moisten the dry ingredients.

Ham croquettes made with corn meal and served with mushroom sauce make a tempting dish.

Pour into greased 8-inch-square pan and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Note: If self-rising corn meal and flour are used, omit baking powder and salt.

1 Word Can Change Your Life—MOMENTS

Most things you have to put up with are just for a little while. They change. They pass away. So lift up your spirit!

St. Paul once said: "I never lose heart." on another occasion he testified: "I glory in tribulation." Remarkable! Here was a man who was beaten and left for dead, shipwrecked, put into prison, finally beheaded in Rome. His health was never good. He was forced to make his long journeys by walking rough roads. Yet he said: "I never lose heart. I glory in tribulation."

St. Paul knew that his sorrow was just for a little while. That's why he could be cast down, but not counted out; depressed, but not defeated; "in all things more than conqueror."

Take courage. Human experience breaks up into fleeting moments, the word that can change your life.

GG Also An Effective Control For Measles And Hepatitis

With all the publicity gamma globulin has received during the past summer in connection with the fight against polio, many of us are apt to forget that this same product has previously proven successful for short periods of time in the control of two other common diseases—measles and hepatitis. So successful in fact that the state board of health has taken steps to make it more easily available to local physicians.

Formerly available only on request from the state board of health office in Madison, now gamma globulin for temporary protection against measles and hepatitis, as well as polio, can be obtained by local physicians directly from their state district health offices. In cities which have organized health departments staffed by a full-time medical officer, the globulin can be obtained directly from the city health department office.

This new distribution policy will undoubtedly save valuable time in case of an epidemic. If administered where the need merits its use, the number of cases in a community will probably be greatly reduced.

Since the demand for gamma globulin for use in combating measles and infectious hepatitis may still far exceed the available supply, restrictions concerning its use will continue. In the case of hepatitis it will be limited to household contacts. As far as measles are concerned only household contacts under three years of age and expectant mothers will be eligible for gamma globulin. Since it is of no value against German measles, it is not available for this purpose. These restrictions must be adhered to so that supplies of this vaccine will be available for those who really need it. Your doctor will know when gamma globulin is needed and how to obtain it.

It should be remembered that gamma globulin is not a cure-all, nor will one "shot" afford permanent protection for an individual. As is the case with polio, it affords only temporary immunity against both measles and hepatitis. However it is still the most effective weapon against these diseases known to medicine today.

Since gamma globulin is derived from human blood, continued visits to local Red Cross blood-donors centers by each of us is the only way a stock-pile of this important product can be built up. If you're physically able, give a pint—today.

Scots Abandon Island Homes

Are the remote, misty Hebrides Islands—spread fan-like along Scotland's Atlantic Coast—losing their fight against depopulation?

Latest of the island chain to be deserted by its inhabitants is Soay, near Skye. Soay's entire population—27 men, women and children—recently migrated to Craignure, 40 miles south on the Isle of Mull.

This was the second of the Hebrides' 100 inhabited islands—there are several hundred other barren reefs—to be abandoned in recent years, says the National Geographic Society. In August 1930, the 35 residents of St. Kilda in the Outer Hebrides moved to Lochaline on the Scottish mainland. Today only wild moulton sheep and sea-fowl live permanently on St. Kilda.

Shark Fishing

Soay is more fortunate than St. Kilda. A Newfoundland fisherman bought the island and has set up housekeeping there with his London wife and small son. He plans to offer shark fishing as a sport for tourists, and hopes that other English families will join him.

Decline of Soay's lobster fishing—a chief source of support—prompted residents to forsake their homeland. Poor soil, inadequate links with the mainland, and absence of medical attention were other factors which led to their emigration.

The lobster decline was a problem peculiar to Soay, but the other deficiencies are common to all the Western Islands, as reflected in dwindling population figures. Soay had homesteaders in 1936. On Skye, largest of the inner Hebrides, there are only about 8,000 people, compared with 23,000 a century ago. "Our main exports are young men and young women," Skymen say ruefully.

The Hebrides' rocky moors are scenically rich but physically poor. Soil is scanty and difficult to drain. Trees are few, and pasture extremely limited. Most of the people are crofters—tenant farmers who rent house and acreage. Fishing, cattle-breeding, weaving and the tourist-trade are the other main industries.

Norse place names are evidence of Norse domination of the isles from the 8th century to 1266. The islands' people are a blend of the Nordic and the darker Celtic types. Gaelic, the old language of the Highlands, is still spoken in the Hebrides.

The climate is wet but not cold, with frequent fogs. Main tourist pursuits are salmon and sea-fishing, and rock-climbing. Skye's Cuillin range is the barest and most precipitous of British mountains. Its jagged pinnacles resemble diminutive Alps, although the highest peak is only 3,309 feet above the sea.

Bible Comment:

Conception of God Was Enlarged by Later Prophets

TWO conceptions, or attitudes, in conflict now were also in conflict in ancient Israel, where the Hebrew prophets spoke and wrote.

One is of a religious isolationism and of a limited conception of God, providence and duty. In this conception God is little more than a tribal or national deity, whose special favoritism is for one race or nation, called and chosen to the exclusion or neglect of all others.

This is not unrelated to the political isolationism which has broken down somewhat before the stern facts that in matters of war and peace, welfare and danger, the world, even though its divisions are sharp and its conflicts intense, is one in a way in which it has never been before.

Over against this religious isolationism is the conception of monotheism. Especially among the later prophets of Israel were the nobler souls who saw the law of God and His righteousness as being for every place and time, embracing all men and demanding the obedience and devotion of all.

In this conception the call of God was not a matter of arbitrary preference. It was a call to duty and responsibility, as well as to privilege. Israel was a spiritual nation, through which all the nations of the earth should be blessed.

This large and noble conception of God found expression in many prophetic passages and in the rich and illuminating later chapters of Isaiah.

The great invitation of Isaiah 55, marvelous in its conception of a God offering Himself and His salvation to all men everywhere, still stands today as a living word of God, undated, for every time and place. It reflects in its glorifying of God the glory of the prophet who wrote it.

And these noble prophets of Israel challenge our modern world with their world-wide outlook and their message concerning the God of all, with the only adequate way of peace and welfare for humanity.

Sports Afield

By Ted Kesting

If you want to shoot geese first you have to find them and then find their feeding grounds. Preliminary to shooting is a trip over back country roads and hours with the binoculars. After you find them, and the geese leave the area, dig your pit and make plans to return before day-break the next day. If geese have a weakness, it is their tendency to return to a certain feeding ground until the food is exhausted or they are driven out.

Geese usually feed twice a day, although Jimmy Robinson says he has seen them stay on sand bars for two days without food. You get your best goose shooting in the morning but sometimes they come out in the evening, usually around 5 o'clock. Robinson remarks in a story in Sports Afield that most of his best shooting has been around 9 in the morning. But don't depend too much on the regularity of geese. They may come into your field at daybreak.

You can't beat a pit for concealment and the small, round, waist-high single shooter pits are best for field shooting. After the pit has been dug, remove all fresh dirt and sprinkle dry grass or straw around so it will look as natural as possible.

Good goose decoys are essential. Silhouettes and stuffed decoys are tops, but makeshift affairs such as twisted newspaper or napkins often work. Beware of shiny decoys. The more decoys you have the better. Scatter them so they will resemble feeding geese. If you are shooting on a shore or sand bar, most of your decoys should be on land, a few in the water. If you're a serious goose hunter, you never leave your pit and you keep an eye peeled toward the water at all times.

When you spot a flock of geese, get busy with the goose call. You need only a few hours of practice to learn how to use one. The modern goose call is made with the two necessary tones built into it, so it's only a matter of learning breath control.

First, give them a heavy call to attract their attention. But ease up when they head for the decoys. Put the call down when the geese cup their wings and start circling the decoys. Now comes the zero hour—keep down and don't move an eyelash. Let them make their first swing, and above all, let them come in as close as possible before you spring up and start firing. Shoot as they come in, not after they have passed you, and aim at their heads. After you have had your first blast duck down again and stay in the pit. Geese are curious and may make another circle.

If all of our laws were enforced half of us would be in jail and the other half out on bail.

Here's the Answer

TAXED COMPLAINER—Sixty-five-year-old Rudolf Emanuelsson is a familiar figure to folks in and around Copenhagen, Denmark. Too rich to work, too stingy to buy or rent a home—according to local gossip—Emanuelsson wanders over the countryside lecturing all who will listen to his complaints about high taxes. All his worldly possessions are tied to the handlebars of his bike and a trailer.

POCKET GOPHER
©1953 National Wildlife Federation

We judge Pocket Gophers more by their works than by what we see them do. In fact there are probably more persons who recognize the work of these rodents than would recognize the workers if they saw them. There are two genera of animals that go by the common name of Pocket Gopher. Each is characterized by having reversible furlined cheek pouches and enormous curved incisor teeth that are perpetually exposed.

In the genus including the western pocket gophers, Thomomys, the outer curved surface of the upper incisors is not grooved. In the genus Geomys, which includes the eastern pocket gophers, the outer curved surface of the upper incisors is grooved. This character is relatively easily observed in any animal which can be held in the hand. However, it is not wise to attempt to hold a live Pocket Gopher of either group in an unprotected hand. Villainous injury can be caused by those gnawing teeth.

The gnawing propensity of these animals that spend most of their lives underground brings the wrath of many men down on their heads. The July, 1953 issue of the Journal of Wildlife Management contains an interesting article by Walter Howard of the University of California at Davis showing how underground cables are probably not safe from injury by these animals unless protected by something as strong as interlocked galvanized steel, stainless steel .005 inch in diameter woven or hardware cloth with 1/8 or 1/4 inch mesh. The principal damage is to underground cables such as leads to railway signals or switches, or to other buried cables. The ordinary insulation commonly used on such cables in the air offers little or no resistance to the Pocket Gophers.

Pocket Gophers of one sort or another range from the Pacific Coast to Florida and the Appalachians and from the prairies of southern Canada to Central America. They vary in size but a length of 1 foot with a 1 1/2 inch tail would be a good measurement. In addition to the conspicuous incisors, the animals are equipped on the front feet with exceptionally well-developed claws that are useful in digging soil. The animals appear to be short-necked in contrast with some of the true gophers of the plains and they may be reddish brown sprinkled with black.

The tunnels are marked by fan-shaped piles of earth that have been excavated from the ground in making the tunnels. The food is largely plant material which may be cut and stored ordinarily in 2-inch lengths. The animals are solitary when compared with most gophers or with Prairie Dogs. An individual rarely ranges outside a quarter of an acre in a season. From 2 to 8 young of the genus Geomys are born in April. By September these have become half-grown and the family breaks up to live independent existences.

Pocket Gophers have many enemies including snakes, weasels and similar animals. Apparently they do not need drinking water to survive. The National Wildlife Federation is glad to call your attention to these animals about which relatively little seems to be known in comparison with what is known about some other wild animals.

Photographer Visits Petra, City Cut In Desert Rocks

The kingdom of Jordan hopes to make the ruins of Petra, an ancient city carved from the living rock of desert mountains, one of its major attractions for visitors from the west.

David S. Boyer, National Geographic Society writer-photographer on assignment in the Near East, made the now difficult trip to Petra, which lies between the Dead Sea and the Gulf of Aqaba, about 100 miles south of Jerusalem and 180 miles east of Suez.

Mr. Boyer agreed with the Jordan government that Petra inspires awe and admiration. Given reasonably good transportation facilities, he said, it would be overshadowed as an attraction to westerners only by the holy cities of Jerusalem and Bethlehem.

Once An Empire

As a photographer, Mr. Boyer was particularly impressed. He said: "When the sunshine is bright, and particularly when it slants into a craggy canyon to spotlight some kindly monument carved in the face of a towering cliff, it is difficult to save any film for other countries on my itinerary."

Once the capital of an empire that stretched as far north as Damascus, Petra remained for centuries a truly lost city known only to roving desert Bedouins who kept its secret for fear that publicity would attract outsiders to upset their lives.

In 1812 John Louis Burckhardt, a Swiss disguised as a Bedouin sheik on a religious pilgrimage, made his way to the ruins and brought out news of the rock-carved city. Even so, few others found Petra over the next century because of the inhospitable nature of the desert tribes.

Rough Roads
Today, roads that Mr. Boyer asserted would "make good proving grounds" for motor vehicles lead to within a few miles of Petra, but final entrance must be made on horse or mulepack, or on foot, through a long gorge several hundred feet deep and only a few feet wide in places.

This gorge, the Wadi Musa, remains the only entrance to the city, surrounded by towering sandstone mountains, just as it

Screen for Nursery

A FOLDING screen is mighty handy to have in the nursery, where it can be used to keep drafts off the crib and as a shield against light, noise and activity.

Like the one in the illustration, the screen may be made in the home workshop and neatly decorated by means of decalcomanias or stencils. Panels without the nursery characters may be finished with blackboard slating material, so the pre-school child will have a place to draw.

Materials for this simple device may be obtained in any lumber yard—1 by 2-inch lumber for the framing and crossbars, Masonite

Tempered Duolux, a durable hardboard that's smooth on both sides, and the hardware. The panels, after being cut to size, are inserted in grooves which have been cut in the framing with a power saw.

The stick-on pictures are available at paint and hardware stores, which are sources also for stencils used in hand-painted work. Major paint companies make slate surface material, which simply is brushed on the Masonite Duolux with a brush after the panel has been prepared with two coats of clear sealer.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight

New York—Industrial outlays for plant expansion planned for 1954 figure to drop only 4 per cent from 1953's.

McGraw-Hill, the business publishing house, has just released its annual survey, which makes that encouraging forecast. This estimate, like those of the Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission, was a little on the cautious side a year ago. Then 1953 proved to be the greatest year in history for industrial building.

The McGraw-Hill survey produced a low figure last year. For the same reason it may produce a high one this year. The big firms which are sampled make plans for years ahead, and are not swayed too much by minor business ups and downs. The little fellows make their plans on the basis of a shorter time cycle. In the aggregate they add outlays when times look good, shrink them when skies darken.

Even so, if the drop from 1953 is no more than 10 per cent, that should help flatten out any downcurve of total production. Capital outlays are one of the strongest cyclical influences; while they remain high jobs will be plentiful.

RETURN TO NORMAL—The upsurge in use of consumer credit, so marked just after controls were removed last year, is leveling off, according to Dr. Sidney E. Rolfe, economist for C. I. T. Financial Corporation, the nation's largest independent sales-financing institution.

Dr. Rolfe said recent reductions in instalment credit additions, reported by the Federal Reserve Board, showed that "credit is now returning to the normal, healthy relationship established before controls were imposed."

He declared no one should regard the leveling off of instalment credit growth as a sign of weakness in the American economy.

"The whole postwar rise in personal debt started from an extraordinarily low level," Dr. Rolfe said, "and only now is credit outstanding reaching the relationship to incomes which marked past periods of prosperity."

BACK TO PLAIN FIGURING
—For the businessman bemused by over-imaginative tales of giant mechanical brains and automatic factories, here's a little sound advice from George M. Muschamp, an executive of the company probably most active in promoting instrumentation that pays off for its user:

"Just use your grammar-school arithmetic and home horse sense," urged the vice president for engineering of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company's Brown Instruments Division. "Keep your eye on the basic problem of output capacity vs. sales requirements."

Mr. Muschamp, addressing the Industrial Management Institute of the University of Illinois, explained that he was not minimizing the complexity of the engineering, scientific and financial problems to be solved, nor was he deprecating the ability of higher mathematical techniques to solve them.

"However," he said, "these must be subordinated to management's prime purpose of operating at a profit, and the mathematics must be cut back to what management can handle as a familiar tool."

PLYWOOD TURNS UP—The familiar and exasperating price-sales paradox—that price cuts stimulate business most when they cease—has popped up in the plywood industry.

Summer price cuts carried this important building material down from $88 to $76 per 1,000 square feet for the principal grade. Orders were not too much affected. Then a major producer rescinded the last $4 of the cut.

In the next two weeks mills received orders for 260 million feet, compared with a total output of 132.8 million.

FAO Works to Wipe Out Costly Livestock Killer

The only effect on this buffalo of 50,000 lethal doses of the dread livestock disease, hemorrhagic septicaemia, is the harmless area of infection seen in the picture. It has been inoculated to test the efficiency of a vaccine discovered by Dr. R. V. S. Bain, a veterinary scientist from the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) who is shown (center) with his assistants. The reaction of 70,000 inoculated animals to the epidemic season next summer in Thailand will determine whether FAO has helped bring about a cure for the age-old scourge of cattle breeders.

Wis. In Need of More Hospital Facilities

If you suddenly became ill and in need of hospital care, would there be a hospital bed available for you? Ask your doctor the next time you see him whether he has any difficulty getting hospital beds for his patients. You may be in for a surprise.

The state as a whole has 76 per cent of the general hospital beds that it needs. Not bad, you say; but you may live in the Chilton, Eagle River, Crandon, Spooner or Wautoma area where there are no hospital beds; or in Waupaca, Park Falls, Prairie du Chien, or Sturgeon Bay, where hospitals are inadequate, crowded and where less than half of the beds estimated to be needed are available.

The most pressing need for new hospital facilities is in the rural areas; however, a few larger cities such as Wausau and Green Bay are also in urgent need of additional beds. Even if you live in Milwaukee you will find that you have only 64 per cent of the general hospital facilities required to meet the demand.

Since the federal hospital construction program was started in 1947, a total of 33 hospital building projects, mostly in rural communities, have given assistance. These projects added 1,324 new general hospital beds. During this same period, additional hospital facilities for 1,271 beds were constructed without any federal aid.

Hospital construction costs including equipment are now running from $15,000 to $20,000 per bed depending upon many factors including its size and completeness. If Wisconsin continues to build hospitals at the present rate it will take at least ten more years to catch up with what are held to be the most urgent needs and will cost in excess of sixty million dollars.

Yes, the cost is large, but the need is great. What better investment in the health and welfare of its future could a community make than to assure its residents that hospital facilities will be available when they are needed.

"UNTO THE FIFTH GENERATION"

Virginia, Minn.: Baby Scott Monroe Smith is the great-great grandson of Mrs. Mary Ellen Gilbert, 84, Mrs. Dortha Henschen, 90, posed at Waconia with her great-great grandson Mark Heuer, four months. When George Allen Boliska, just barely able to sit up, posed with his mother, grandmother, great-grandmother, and great-great-grandfather Art Or-rill, it was the first time all five had ever been together—at the home of Grandmother Hammer near Sandstone, Minn. Baby Lana Kay Johnson slept right through her five-generation picture with mother, grandfather, great-grandmother, and great-great-grandmother, at New Ulm, Minn.

"HOPPY" IN SHORTS—Screen cowboy William Boyd (Hopalong Cassidy) gets out of costume to swing at a golf ball during his vacation at Tucker's Town, Bermuda. Looking on is his attractive wife, former film star Grace Bradley.

POSTER BOY—Four-year-old Delbert "Debby" Dains of Gooding, Ida., a polio victim since Thanksgiving Day, 1949, will be seen on posters throughout the nation in January when the 1954 March of Dimes campaign is launched. Debby was recently chosen by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to represent its fund-raising campaign.

STRENGTH THROUGH FELLOWSHIP—A symbol of the strength of fellowship and brotherhood, the New Eden, Kan., Evangelical United Brethren Church today supports a full program of activities because of the unselfishness of its members. For the second straight year, its members have farmed a 100-acre tract, without pay, in a program of fellowship which has become the answer to how to keep the church going. Proceeds from the harvest are turned over to the church by its members, who enthusiastically work to support their place of worship.

MORE THAN 150 LOCAL TAXES

Six kinds of Minnesota school districts are authorized to levy 16 different kinds of tax, according to a tax manual recently issued by Richard A. Golling, Minnesota Public Examiner. Villages have 32 different levies at their beck. Towns 38, Cities 36, Counties 33—besides which there are a general Housing and an Airports tax provision, plus state and federal income taxes, and all the hidden excise taxes that dig deep into every pocketbook. On top of all of which are many "special" taxes authorized only for certain specified governing bodies throughout the state. Specified purposes run the alphabetical gamut from Advertising to Welfare.

Insurance statistics prove that hunting actually is one of the safest of sports, and it could be made more so if the juvenile factor in accidents could be whittled down.—Sports Afield.

New Mail Service

The Post Office Department has begun an experiment which is sending a limited amount of regular Air Mail to its destination by air. The present experiment is limited to several cities, such as Washington, New York and Chicago, and is designed to furnish information on the desirability of an expansion of the practice.

One feature of the present experiment is that regularly-scheduled airlines are given a varying amount of first-class and Air Mail just prior to departure time, the volume depending upon the load which the plane is carrying. In other words, if the plane is about to leave with a load only half its normal capacity, a sufficient amount of mail is placed on board to take advantage of the unused capacity.

There is no reason why first-class mail, or at least some of it, could not travel by air eventually. Of course, Air Mail will continue to be the primary mail volume hauled by airliners but where postal delivery schedules can be improved at no extra cost by the use of under-loaded airliners, the faster schedules should be utilized.

For instance, there is no reason why a first class letter mailed in New York in the morning could not reach the receiver's postoffice box, or even be delivered, in Chicago that afternoon, if it was flown directly from New York to Chicago. It is interesting to note, in this connection, that mail schedules to and from many points have improved only slightly in several decades and that quicker deliveries would be a great business asset and personal convenience.

PERENNIAL BERRY CROP

Large, luscious strawberries late in October are reported from Farmington, Northfield, Appleton and Two Harbors, Minn. While Mrs. A. T. Josephson was picking roses at Minneota, Minn.

CHRISTMAS TOY

The tiny tot will enjoy rocking away on this saucy little duck. Climb aboard and away he will go! Inch lumber, jig or keyhole saw, some paint and you have a toy for any kind of wear and tear. Easy to make and very inexpensive. The outline and complete directions given on pattern C9905, 20c. Send orders to: Handcraft Service, (The Colonial Co.), Journal Pub. Co., Inc., 1243 Swift, Kansas City 16, Mo.

STRICTLY FRESH

WHEN a gunman found that the cash register in a Worcester, Mass., variety store contained less than a dollar, he walked out disgustedly. Guess he discovered that crime didn't pay.

INSTALLING A PLASTERED ARCHWAY

INSTALLING A PLASTERED ARCHWAY

If you have a doorway that you have long wanted to tear out and replace with a plastered arch, you will be interested in this job.

Note that it will be necessary to tear out more plaster than the actual width of the arch. This is because a double 2x4 header will be necessary to support from above, formerly supported by full length studs and the doorway.

Whenever possible cut away plaster to a point where the new joint will come directly over a 2x4 stud. That makes it easier to get a firm base for the new lath.

Cut curves for the corner of the arch out of 2" lumber. Four pieces exactly alike will be needed. Nail these in place.

Cover the inside of the curves with metal lath as illustrated. Either wood, metal, or gypsum lath may be used on the remainder of the opening. Metal corner bead should be used on all corners or edges. Otherwise it is almost impossible to get straight corners.

Buy regular rough or brown coat plaster for the first coat. Use sharp plastering sand, or vermiculite. Mix according to directions. Apply plaster with a trowel. It should not be level with the old plaster. Leave about 1/8" for the finish plaster.

Be sure to wet edges of the old plaster before applying the new. Allow the first coat several days to dry. Cracks may develop between the old and the new plaster. This is caused by the old plaster absorbing too much moisture from the new.

Buy ready mixed finish plaster or lime putty for the finish coat. Mix according to directions. Wet the edges of the old plaster to prevent too much absorption.

Trowel to a smooth finish. Test with a straight edge to be sure there are no high or low spots.

Allow several weeks for plaster to dry before painting or papering.

Apply wall sealer before painting.

Apply wall size before papering.

So Goes The Mind

By Orin R. Yost, M. D.
Medical Director, Edgewood Sanitarium

(Editor's Note: Dr. Yost is a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond, studied psychiatry at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D. C., taught psychiatry at Columbia University, New York, was division psychiatrist of the 79th division in World War II, and is presently Medical Director of Edgewood Sanitarium Foundation.)

(Author of: What You Should Know About Mental Illness.)

One of the greatest obstacles to be overcome in the fight against mental disease—the greatest destroyer of health of all diseases—is the misguided notion of some people that mental illness is something to hide, something to be ashamed of. This antiquated attitude often prevents those in need of expert care from seeking advice until they are in a serious condition.

The obsolete idea that mental illness is a reflection on the individual concerned, or the family affected, stems from early days when the medical profession knew little about the various types of mental illness. In those days it was often said that any mentally ill person was "crazy" or "insane," often when such a term was wholly unjustified.

As more and more progress is made in the battle to uncover causes and types of mental disease, it becomes increasingly clear that many mental diseases are relatively easily cured, if caught and treated early enough. People who fifty years ago would have found no cure for their condition, and little sympathy from society in general, are today being restored to active, healthy participation in society.

This progress is speeded up as people learn to recognize the early symptoms of mental illness, and seek to do something about it before it is too late. Most cases of mental illness can be successfully treated if caught in time and therefore public education along this line is vital in the battle against mental disease.

Since our society is becoming increasingly complex, and nervous breakdowns all too common, it behooves all citizens to adopt an enlightened viewpoint on mental illness and to do their part in creating the proper attitude and approach to the problem in their communities.

3/4 cup chopped candied cherries
3/4 cup chopped or broken pecans
1 oz. sweet milk chocolate, melted

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream butter until soft and gradually blend in sugar. Add egg and vanilla, and beat vigorously until smooth and fluffy. Add flour mixture and mix thoroughly. Divide dough into 3 portions. Add chopped cherries to one portion, and nuts and chocolate to the second.

Roll part of each dough in waxed paper and chill several hours in the refrigerator. When ready to bake, slice very thin. Place on buttered cookie sheets and bake in a hot oven, 400° F., about 10 minutes or until delicately browned.

The remaining dough may be placed in a cookie press and pressed out into fancy shapes on buttered cookie sheets. Bake at the same time and same temperature as those that are sliced. Makes about 8 dozen thin cookies.

Inhaling for Health

TB patients in Guayaquil, Ecuador, have waited long for the Marfan-looking apparatus seen here. It is one of the many advanced aids for diagnosis and treatment which have been supplied by the United Nations Children's Fund to the government-sponsored anti-tuberculosis program. The complex mask is measuring this patient's breathing capacity. Physicians and other medical personnel from the U.N. World Health Organization are also taking an active part in the program, which has cut TB deaths by more than half.
