

Local Students Do Well in Forensics at Clintonville

The district forensic contest was held at Clintonville, Wis. in the high school there on Saturday, March 20. Six Kewaskum High school students, who were winners previously in the local and Tri-County conference forensic contests, competed in the district meet at Clintonville.

Thelma Rosenheimer received an A rating in extemporaneous reading at Clintonville, making her eligible to participate in the state contest at Madison. Carole Harbeck received a B plus in serious declamation, barely missing out on going to the state meet. Only those with A ratings are eligible for the state.

Richard Ross received a B in humorous declamation. Audrey Schaefer a B in extemporaneous reading. Paul Landmann a B in original oratory, and Leroy Gross a C in non-original oratory. All told the local participants made a very good showing, considering there were hundreds of contestants in the meet.

The head forensics coach at Kewaskum High school is Mrs. Mary Lanphere, the junior and senior English teacher and librarian. The assistant coach is Miss Lucia Rizzo, English teacher also at the school.

Historical Society of County Meets, Elects

On Monday night, February 22, the Washington County Historical society held its annual meeting in the library building in West Bend. This society is an outgrowth of the Old Settlers' club which annually met on George Washington's birthday to greet old friends throughout the county and reminisce.

Although the aims of the Historical society are much the same as the Old Settlers' club, namely, to collect and preserve the documents, history and objects of days gone by, the approach of the new group is active rather than passive. The members are currently very busy on some projects of historical interest to everyone in the county.

At this February 22 meeting, a board of directors for this year was elected: Henry Schowalter, Miss Marion Ross, Mrs. Edwin Pick, Joe Huber, Mrs. Howard Schatz, Miss Edith Heidner, all of West Bend, and Mrs. Clarence Schramm of Germantown.

At a meeting this past week, the board of directors selected the following for officers of the club: Mrs. B. C. Ziegler, president; Mrs. Raymond P. Haebig, vice-president; Mrs. Howard Schatz, secretary, and Joe Huber, treasurer. Judge Frank Bucklin is the retiring president.

Red Cross Drive Reported Lagging

With March almost over and the deadline for the 1954 Red Cross fund appeal fast approaching, Art Pischke, chairman of the drive for the West Bend chapter area, reported this week that the drive is lagging. Although progress reports to date are incomplete, the chairman said that precinct chairmen in the communities included in the chapter area would make renewed efforts during the next week to stimulate contributions.

The goal set for the chapter is $11,500, which is about 10 per cent higher than the 1953 quota. Last year the West Bend chapter was one of the first in the state to reach its goal.

Pischke said that he hasn't received too many reports from the chairmen, however, from the returns he has received the chairman said that it is evident the drive is still far short of its goal.

The village of Kewaskum and a few communities in the chapter area have reported that they are very near or "over the top" of the quota set for them by chapter officials. Volunteer workers in other communities will continue to canvass for contributions until their respective goals have been reached.

"The Red Cross service program is more vitally needed than ever before," Pischke said in an effort to spur the work of volunteer workers. "And we want to be sure that every citizen in the chapter area has an opportunity to join and serve. We can achieve our goal only if we have enough volunteer solicitors to reach every home in the community."

Pischke said he expects to have a more complete report ready next week when he receives reports from precinct chairmen. He urged all volunteer workers to complete their contacts as soon as possible and report the results to him at their earliest convenience.

PVT. DREHER TO TAKE PART IN MANEUVER AT FT. BRAGG

CAMP POLK, LA.—Pvt. Edward C. Dreher, Jr., 29, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dreher, Sr., live in Kewaskum, will move to the Fort Bragg, N. C., maneuver area next month with the 37th Infantry Division for Exercise Flash Burn.

Dreher is a member of Company A in the division's 145th Regiment stationed at Camp Polk, La. He entered the army in May 1953.

More than 60,000 ground and airborne troops will take to the field in the Fort Bragg-Camp Mackall area of North Carolina next month for Exercise Flash Burn.

The largest and most important maneuver of its kind ever conducted by the armed forces of the United States, Flash Burn will take place during April and May. Although ultramodern weapons such as guided missiles and the atomic cannon will have a role in the exercise, the principal emphasis will be upon conventional training, using the latest methods of offense and defense.

The army will give some non-firing tests to its atomic cannon, to the new "Corporal" guided missile and to the huge " Honest John" rocket. In the organizational field, a new type of infantry regiment, under test since last summer, will be subjected to the exacting practical test of this full-scale maneuver.

Individual soldiers of the more than 165 army units will gain experience in living and "fighting" in the field for a long period of time. Each unit, itself, will be given the opportunity to operate as a closely knit team.

The sprite who will turn heads this spring is the woman whose coiffure has more lines and design says Betty Ann. Instead of the careless, almost formless Italian cut, coifs are taming down to a more ladylike, head hugging, neater line. For hair, as for the latest high couture fashion, shape is the shape of things to come.

According to the American Hair Design Institute, the hair is destined to remain short. But it's molded closer to the head with detail clearly defined and the basic line definitely smoother than it has been.

Bobby pins are out once again to coax waves, curls, pomps and fringes. But just because we're returning to the more "set" look doesn't mean the coiffures are stiff, rigid or overset. They're actually mobile, graceful and softly modulated.

Of course, the success of any hairdress is determined by the way the hair is cut, thinned, tapered and blended, all of which enter into the proper shaping of the hair. Basically the shaped coiff must follow four principles: The hair must be short, it must be molded, it must be close to the head, it must be clearly outlined.

It's just about midway through the school year and time to take a fresh approach to packing the school lunchbox. Are you using all the different kinds of bread available to get some variety into the school-day lunch? Just to refresh your memory here are some of the many kinds of bread you can use: Enriched white, whole wheat, rye, hamburger rolls, frankfurter rolls, hard rolls, cinnamon, nut, Boston brown, raisin and pumpernickel.

Combine a hobby with beauty building by choosing such occupations as fencing, dancing, hiking, year around swimming and tennis.

Pork Shanks and Sauerkraut
3 pounds pork shanks; 1 large onion; 6 cups water; 1 teaspoon salt; 4 cups sauerkraut.
Simmer pork and onion in salted water in kettle two and one-half to three hours. Place sauerkraut in baking pan and arrange cooked shanks on top. Add one cup of pork stock. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 30 minutes. Serves six.

To have a tender and excellent tasting meat loaf, handle the ground meat as little as possible and season well. Blend an egg, half teaspoon tabasco, half cup tomato juice, one cup bread crumbs and chopped onion together first and mix in the one pound of ground meat last.

Beef and Rice Balls—"Little Porcupines"
1 pound hamburger; 1/2 cup rice, washed; 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion; 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon celery salt; 1 clove garlic, finely chopped; 2 cups tomato juice; 4 whole cloves; 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon; 2 tablespoons sugar; 1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce.
Combine rice, hamburger, onion, green pepper, salt, celery salt and garlic. Form into balls about one and one-half inches in diameter. Heat tomato juice, cloves, cinnamon, sugar and worcestershire sauce in a heavy skillet. Drop in meat balls. Cover tightly. Simmer 50 minutes. Yield: Five to six servings.

Use the liquid left from a jar of sweet pickles as a marinade for fresh cooked or canned snap beans. Serve the beans cold, with meat or fish, in place of a relish.

Keep a small sponge in your jar of silver polish; use it to remove slight tarnish stains on flatware while washing dishes.

A thin even coating of a self-polishing wax, applied with a paint brush or a damp cloth to rubber articles, will give them a bright new looking finish and protect them against wear.

Surface mildew may be removed with chlorine bleach. Deeply grown mildew is almost impossible to remove.

The silk and linen make lovely blouses for some of the new worsted suits. Polka dots or prints vie with solid colors in popularity.

About Your Home

By FRANCES DELL

Color can make or break the attractiveness of your home. It enhances a handsome house or enlivens a dull one.

The color scheme of the exterior of a house should be chosen with the largest visible area in mind. On a one and one-half story house this is usually the roof. On two and two and one-half story houses the walls will be the largest area for consideration.

The colors chosen for lesser features are of great importance because they give character to the house.

You have often heard that the roof of a house should be darker than the walls. This is not necessarily true. It depends entirely on the effect you want to create. For example—a light colored one story house will look higher if the roof is light. A dark roof tends to cut the house in half horizontally. A dark roof and dark walls on a one-story house gives the effect of a small cottage.

Proper color planning can improve the architectural appearance of a house. A bad feature of a house can be minimized by painting it the same color as the surrounding color with no contrast to call attention to it. By the same rule you can point up good features by contrasting them with their surroundings.

Spring-Lamb Pie Makes a Delicious Meal

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

WITH lamb prices down a little, it's a good time for spring-lamb pie. Combined with well-seasoned mashed potatoes, small white onions, green peas and egg yolks, economy shoulder lamb produces a delicious one-dish meal.

Spring-Lamb Pie (4 servings)

Three pounds shoulder lamb, bone in; 2 cups water, 1/4 cup fat, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup flour, 3 cups lamb broth, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 2 cups cooked green peas, 2 cups small white onions, 2 to 3 cups well-seasoned mashed potatoes, 2 egg yolks, beaten.

Place lamb on rack in Dutch oven. Add water and cook over moderate heat until tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Or cook in pressure saucpan for 20 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool meat slightly in broth.

Remove meat from bones, cutting in 1-inch cubes. Melt fat in saucpan, add salt, pepper and flour. Pour fat from lamb broth. Add water to lamb broth, to make 3 cups. Stir into fat-flour mixture.

Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until gravy thickens. Add kitchen bouquet. Combine lamb, peas and onions in gravy. Place in shallow, greased, 1 1/2-quart baking dish. Whip mashed potatoes and beaten egg yolks together.

Make border of mashed potatoes around edge of baking dish with pastry bag or cookie press. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) until potato is lightly browned and pie is beginning to bubble. Serve immediately with tossed salad of spring greens.

For the bridge or canasta party, this de luxe chicken and mushroom salad is just right. Served with wedges of canned cranberry jelly, it makes a beautiful dish.

Chicken and Mushroom Salad (4 servings)

One cup cooked rice, 2 cups diced cooked chicken, 3-ounce can broiled mushrooms, 1/4 cup well-seasoned French dressing, 1/4 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 teaspoon grated onion, 1/4 teaspoon curry powder, 1 cup diced celery, 5-ounce can cranberry jelly, chilled.

Place rice and chicken in a suitable container. Drain mushrooms, reserving broth for other use. Reserve four whole mushroom crowns for garnish and quarter the remaining mushrooms.

Add quartered mushrooms to rice and chicken. Add French dressing and toss lightly to coat evenly. Place the four whole crowns in the container and let all marinate in cold place for at least 2 hours.

When ready to serve, drain off any excess French dressing. Remove the whole crowns. Blend together and add the mayonnaise, onion and curry powder to the rice mixture. Add the celery. Toss lightly together to mix well.

Place salad on individual salad plates. Cut chilled cranberry jelly in 6 slices and halve each slice. Arrange 3 half slices of jelly around each portion of salad. Top each salad with whole mushroom crown and garnish with crisp, green watercress. Serve immediately with hot biscuits for lunch.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

You'll never go wrong in your indoor picture taking by using a plain wall for a background. Then you are certain there is nothing to distract from your picture.

And It Was There All the Time!

THE title of today's column might well be the lament of a snapshotter who has just had a first glance at a picture that he wanted to be so very good! Perhaps he had worked really hard to get everything just right. He had studied his subject from all angles in the viewfinder. He had made every effort to get a good, relaxed, natural pose.

But the resulting picture may show that he concentrated just a little too much on the subject and didn't see all the distracting things in the background. That's why he can wail, "And it was there all the time!" He knows the gremlins haven't been at work on his picture. The offending objects and patterns were right in the room all the time. He just didn't see them.

Choose your background as carefully as you choose your subject. And do it with one of two things in mind. Make it as neutral as possible, or have it compliment the subject and help the picture tell its story at a glance.

Living rooms are naturally a favorite spot for indoor picture taking. And they can provide just about the most distracting background possible. There are almost bound to be patterned fabrics in evidence—in slip covers, in upholstery, or in draperies. The wallpaper may have a very definite design. These things, while they make the room as a whole very attractive, can provide a very busy, distracting background for a picture.

Suppose it is a baby picture you're snapping. Propping baby up in a chair is a familiar pose. But, if the chair has a flowered slip cover—it is going to steal the show in the finished snapshot.

Usually such busy backgrounds can be easily avoided. In the case of baby and the chair, it would be a simple thing to cover it with a blanket or sheet and thus provide baby with a nice plain, neutral background. Then all attention will be centered on baby.

Pacific Fur Seals Saved From Extinction by International Pact

The United States, Russia, Canada and Japan once negotiated in amity one of history's most successful conservation measures, the North Pacific Sealing Convention of 1911.

By banning hunting at sea, the pact saved the Pacific fur seal (Callorhinus ursinus) from extinction, says the National Geographic Society.

Fur seals spend the winter scattered down through the North Pacific Ocean, then come north in summer to bear their single pups and breed anew. The largest rookeries are on the American-owned Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea 215 miles north of the Aleutians.

Sold With Alaska

When Russia sold the islands to the United States along with Alaska in 1867, the Pribilof seals probably numbered close to 4,000,000 individuals. By 1911, the year the nations agreed, they were down to 150,000, and pelagic hunting—hunting at sea—was overwhelmingly responsible for the decline.

Two square-rigger mates, the brothers Alex and Dan McLean, reputedly started the grim slaughter in the cold Pacific mists around 1870. Leaving the Blueose ships that brought them to the West Coast of America, they bought a small schooner in which they successfully pursued the Pribilof seals during their remarkable 5,000-mile migrations from the bleak Bering to southern California latitudes.

Schooner after schooner followed in the heartless business of slaughtering seals trustfully sleeping on the long ocean swells. By 1892 there were 122 sealing vessels, each carrying between 15 and 50 sailors and hunters equipped with rifles and shot-guns.

Not all the shooting was at seals. Jack London produced a historical novel, not fiction, when he wrote "The Sea-Wolf." Sealers truly murdered each other for the precious pelts. Men died by the guns of government cutters, and of guards fighting off brazen raids on the shore rookeries.

Destroyed Broodstock

But the guards might well have saved their fire, for protection ashore meant nothing to seals that never arrived. Little caring that they were destroying the broodstock, the foundation of their prosperity, the schooner crews killed pups, breeding bulls and gravid cows alike until diplomats of four nations called a halt with the treaty.

Immediately after 1911, the Pribilof herd started to rebound. Today the government keeps its numbers at a constant, scientifically calculated 1,500,000 or so by taking 66,000 surplus bulls a year.

The smaller Russian seal herds also are believed to have been

Ask 18 Questions Before Buying Site for a Home

There are at least 18 points to consider in the purchase of a lot for a new home, according to Small Homes Guide. They are presented below as questions. A "yes" answer favors the site, indicating the value will tend to remain near its present level. A "no" is a mark against it.

- Is the lot the right size and shape for the house you plan to build?
- Is it well drained?
- Is the soil good?
- Are there shade trees?
- Will the site be adequate without grading or filling?
- Are these services available: water, sewers, gas, electricity, telephone, paved street, sidewalks, street lighting, fire and police protection, garbage removal?
- Is the site close to transportation, schools, churches, shopping?
- Is it distant from industrial or commercial developments, railroads, run-down areas, dumps and marshes or other health hazards?

9. Will zoning regulations permit the type of home you plan and prohibit undesirable building in the area?

10. Are all assessments against the land paid?

11. Are all taxes paid?

12. Will the owner give a merchantable title?

13. Will the owner furnish a written statement that there are no liens against the property?

14. Are the boundaries clearly marked?

15. Are taxes in the area reasonable?

16. Is the site close enough to your job so that transportation costs will not be unduly high?

17. Will a financial institution appraise the land at a figure that is in line with the purchase price?

18. Is it the block, neighborhood and community in which you would like to live for many years to come?

HERE'S HOW...

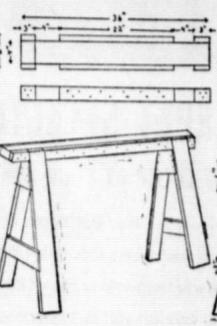

MAKE A COLLAPSIBLE SAWHORSE

A sturdy, but collapsible, sawhorse, or a pair of them, will find many uses—for carpentry or as legs for a picnic table or work table. The collapsible feature makes it possible to store the sawhorse along a garage or tool-shed wall in a space only 6 inches deep.

The sawhorse shown here can be made with just hammer and saw, using 2 by 4's for the legs and bar, and 1-inch lumber for the bracing. The bar, with its 1-inch blocking, fits snugly into the top of the legs. The only tricky feature is cutting the ends of the legs at the proper angles. For the dimensions shown below, the angles may be developed from the detail in the circles. (Shaded areas are sawed out.)

To make a sawhorse of different height, first draw the members to scale on cross-section paper, using the construction principles shown below. The scale drawing will show how to cut the angles.

Eight penny common nails are adequate for the job.

MAKE A COLLAPSIBLE SAWHORSE

A pair of sawhorses, such as one sees in use on construction jobs, finds many uses about the home. In addition to supporting boards for sawing and nailing, they also may be used to support back yard picnic tables, children's work benches, and emergency serving or table space for children's parties. At Christmas time they may be used to support the flat expanse of the Christmas-tree garden, electric trains and gift displays.

The problem with sawhorses, as with any infrequently used item, is storage. A sturdy but collapsible sawhorse, or a pair of them, can be made with just hammer, saw, nails and a few feet of lumber. When knocked-down for storage, the sawhorse may be placed along the garage or basement wall in a space 6 inches wide.

The collapsible feature is accomplished by making the legs as separate units rather than fastening them permanently to the horizontal bar. The legs are A-frames made of 2x4 material, braced at both top and bottom with 1-inch stock. The trickiest job in the construction of the sawhorse is cutting the legs at the proper angle to sit level on the floor. One of the simplest methods is to lay the job out on a work bench or other flat surface so that one edge of the bench provides a straight-edge comparable to the floor surface. The two leg members are moved into the proper angle to provide for both the base spread and the top spread. (On a small bench, it may be necessary to lay out just half a leg assembly.) The ends of the 2x4's should extend slightly beyond the edge of the table; and when the frame is properly placed, the protruding ends are sawed off. This is a quick, trial-and-error method, and once one leg member is properly cut in this manner, it forms a pattern for the others.

Another method of cutting the angles is to draw the completed leg assembly to scale on cross-section paper, in which case the straight base line of the paper is comparable to the floor level. This method will permit the home carpenter to make his own design, both as to the height of the completed sawhorse and the width of the base.

The horizontal bar, forming the top of the sawhorse is another 2x4. The top of the A-frame legs allows space for the 2x4 to fit snugly, just by setting the bar in place. However, to prevent the bar from sliding back and forth, it is necessary to place 1-inch blocking along the sides of the bar. In the conventional non-collapsible sawhorse this blocking effect is produced by chiseling out wide slots in the horizontal bar.

Since the sawhorse is used for rough work, or when used for a picnic or party table is generally covered with a cloth, there is no need to plane or sand the surface. The 2x4's and 1-inch bracing material may be used just as your local lumber dealer supplies them. Eight-penny common nails, obtainable from the hardware store or from your building supply dealer are adequate for the job.

An added advantage of the collapsible sawhorse is the ease with which the horizontal bar may be replaced. Generally after a sawhorse has been used for extensive carpentry work, the bar is "chewed up" by saws, punctured with nail holes and otherwise made uneven. In a conventional assembly, this means throwing the sawhorse away and building a new one. With the collapsible sawhorse, the necessary repair may be made simply by replacing the horizontal bar.

False Pretense

Scene: A divorce court. The judge grumpily regards the husband who is the complainant. "Misrepresentation!" he barks. "Isn't that peculiar grounds for divorce? Explain yourself."

"Gladly, your honor," the husband replied. "When I asked her to marry me, she said she was agreeable. She wasn't, judge!"

Key Issues Divide Republicans In Voting Year

Political issues are arising to plague the Eisenhower administration as Congress draws nearer to the spring primaries. Below are illustrated six of the big issues which have not only brought criticism of the administration, but have also exposed a split within the Republican Party at a time when a united front would secure the Republican foothold in Washington. Earliest spring primary will be held in Illinois on April 13, followed by one in Ohio on May 4.

Republicans have divided on the tax issue, with some demanding greater cuts while the Administration is seeking to keep taxes at their present levels.

Patronage squabbles have developed. Sen. William Langer of N. Dakota announced he would block appointments of four postmasters to his state because he was not consulted.

Ousting Clarence Manion as chairman of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations brought sharp criticism from Sen. John W. Bricker and his Republican followers.

Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson's cut of supports on dairy products from 90 to 75 per cent of parity have divided both Parties, some congressmen claiming the cut will help consumers more than dairymen.

Sen. Joseph McCarthy's repeated blasts at the army for "coddling Communists" have caused some observers to predict a showdown between the senator and President Eisenhower.

The proposed Bricker Amendment has split the Republicans, only a slight majority opposing the amendment which would limit the president's treaty-making powers.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Although he ranks high in the popularity poll among the American dog-loving public, the dachshund is looked upon with some amusement by the average sportsman by being missing a bet.

Dachshund means "badger hound" and in his native Germany the dog was, and is, used for hunting badgers, a sport which few of our outdoorsmen know anything about. In this country he usually serves as a companion dog and pet, but the American Kennel Club properly classes him in the group known as Sporting Dogs (Hounds). And the worth of the dachshund as a rabbit and pheasant dog is gradually but surely becoming recognized by American gunners according to Henry P. Davis, editor of the sporting dogs department in Sports Afield magazine.

Field trials for dachshunds are not new in this country, but they have not been widely publicized and it will be surprising to many to learn that the field trial staged by the Dachshund Club of America on November 22, 1953, was the 26th organized field competition to be held by that body.

The program consisted of a separate Open-All-Age stakes for dogs & bitches, run on wild native cottontail rabbits in New Jersey. Eleven dogs competed in each stake, and the three varieties—smooth, long-haired, and wire-haired, were seen in action.

Many dogs were obviously inexperienced, and good rabbit work was at a premium. Yet there were some creditable performances turned in, sufficient to prove the breed possesses a good nose, and some of the individuals were blessed with a keen hunting desire.

"I think those who like to go gunning for pheasant and rabbits are missing something when they overlook dachshunds," says Mrs. George S. Goodspeed, whose dogs dominated the trial. "While they make wonderful house dogs and pets, they are eager to hunt, have excellent noses, are good trailers and usually stay within fair gun range I believe the woebegone expressions seen on many dachshunds used exclusively as house pets are caused by their frustrated desire to get out into the open and hunt for game."

ILL WIND THAT BLEW—Housekeepers were back in business in the southwest following that area's worst dust and wind storm since the dust bowl days of the 1930's. To keep the suffocating dust out of her lungs, Lou Lanier, 21, of Fort Worth, Tex., uses a gas mask while brushing a table with a feather duster.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight

New York—March 1 is the day for unveiling the first Republican tax bill since the Eightieth Congress. The Ways and Means Committee will report to the House a so-called technical revision measure, aimed primarily at closing loopholes through which taxpayers have escaped previous measures.

Before the bill finally passes, many changes are likely. Republicans have retreated in part from the step they took to end double taxation of dividends. Democrats demand a $100 increase in personal exemptions. Some Republicans feel that is a good issue, too good to leave to the opposition party.

The coming struggle over taxes takes on added importance because the bill as it stands leaves the cash budget almost exactly in balance. Any decrease of more than a few million dollars in the Administration's schedule of taxes it wants must be offset by levying new taxes. Else the achievement of a balanced budget, an Eisenhower pledge, will fail.

It is hard to levy new taxes in an election year. Whether the national budget can be balanced rests largely on whether Eisenhower can protect the present tax bill from new reductions. The individual taxpayer's budget, of course, would benefit from the reduction—and the individual taxpayer is also a voter.

SULPHUR AND ORPHANS—When a new sulphur mine was placed in production recently in Texas it provided an additional source of income for a school for orphan girls.

The mine, Nash Dome near Houston, is operated by Freeport Sulphur Company. The land under which the sulphur is found is held in trust for the Kentucky Female Orphan School of Midway, Ky., which benefits from royalties on the mined sulphur.

Nash Dome is one of four sulphur projects Freeport has undertaken in a $25,000,000 expansion program in the last several years. It is the third placed in operation since November, 1952. The other projects are in Louisiana.

THINGS TO COME—This summer's silage can be put up more appetizingly with a new chemical additive. Cows prefer it four to one, says its maker. . . A new cleaner for painted walls, woodwork, linoleum, venetian blinds and tiles can be diluted so that a tablespoonful cleans 200 square feet of surface. . . A Boston inventor says he has perfected a tanning machine that makes leather in hours. Traditional methods take weeks or even months. . . Emergency fire extinguishers using a squeezable plastic bag are said to be as good and much cheaper than the older kind which depend on a pump. . . Liquid detergents are adding foam-producing ingredients. Doesn't get things cleaner, but housewives associate soap bubbles with cleanliness.

MORE MEAT COMING—With the first baby pigs and calves beginning to appear in the Southeastern and Southern livestock areas, this looks like a good year for meat eaters.

Feeding of cattle in Corn Belt feedlots is under the year-ago level, but most of us eat little of that grade of meat. A more important figure is the year-to-year rise in total numbers of cattle, and the promise of a good harvest of beef from last spring's big calf crop.

As for pork, it is costly in proportion to its historical price level, but this spring's crop promises to be a large one. The big commercial pig area, of course, has still to count its pigs, but at today's prices farmers there can be relied upon to save every pig they can. Before Labor Day the price of pork should begin to feel the pressure of these added pigs.

If beef and poultry stay about where they are now, and pork comes down, the nation's meat bill—per average pound—must go lower.

BITS O'BUSINESS—Texas allowable production of oil was raised, but the Texas Railroad Commission warned that gasoline stocks were getting too high. . . Pacific Coast lumber prices have edged up a dollar or two a thousand. . . The government's wholesale price index stood still in the week of February 10-16. . . Interest on crop support loans to farmers was cut from 4 per cent to 3½ per cent.

T. J.: Is it true that proteins from plants can take the place of meat in the diet?

ANSWER: It is possible to get sufficient protein without meat but it is difficult. However, one pint of milk a day with enriched bread will provide more than half the protein needed for each person and thus reduce the strain on the food dollar.

Battle Against Disease

Nations throughout the world continue to press their battle against disease and epidemics. In this struggle, they have been assisted by the United Nations and specialized agencies of this organization. Penicillin plays an important role in this battle. The World Health Organization and the United Nations Children's Fund recently joined hands with the government of Yugoslavia in modernizing and expanding the only penicillin processing plant in this country. Shown above, girls bottling penicillin in a sealed, sterilized glass cabinet at the Zemun plant near Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Good Food Habits For Good Health

If the food habits of school children are an indication of the type of food most of them are eating, there appears to be much room for improvement.

During the past five years surveys have been made of the food habits of over 5,000 school children from all economic levels in both rural and urban communities—north, south, east and west. Whatever the area, the findings were similar, and most revealing.

Less than one-third of the children had "good" diets—that is enough of the various food elements to insure good nutrition. About one-third to one-fourth of the diets were rated "poor". The most common faults were failure to have enough milk, citrus fruits (or other foods providing vitamin C), and green and yellow vegetables.

About one-half of the children failed to have the required three or four glasses of milk each day—in fact, one in ten didn't have any. We in this area should be able to better than that! And also, only about one-half of the children had a serving of orange, grapefruit or other food providing vitamin C, such as tomato or raw cabbage.

As might be expected many children indicated that they indulged in large amounts of sweets and soft drinks. Green and yellow vegetables which are counted on for providing much of the vitamin A needed were eaten in adequate amounts by less than one-fourth of the children.

On the brighter side, two-thirds or more of the children indicated that they had an adequate amount of meat, eggs, and other protein foods each day. Potatoes and bread were also eaten in sufficient quantities.

Good nutrition is the foundation for good health, and good nutrition depends upon adequate food. Poor food habits developed in childhood too often are continued throughout adult life. They are poor preparation for parenthood and the everyday stresses and strains of living.

Poor food habits are the underlying cause of overweight, and undoubtedly add to our health problems in later years.

"Mister Fixum's Handy Hints"

BY ERNIE GARDNER

REPAIRING ROOF LEAK—WOOD SHINGLES

Wood shingles should last 20 years if properly installed and cared for. But when a roof leaks, it must be repaired, regardless of its age.

To locate the leak, go up into the attic and look for stain on the roof boards caused by the leak. Trace this stain to its highest point, and you will usually find the leak.

Drive a nail up through the roof at this point, so that the nail will extend through the shingles. Then you will be able to find the right spot when you climb up on to the roof.

Mark this spot with chalk before driving the nail back.

Nails which hold shingles in place are hidden by the next row of shingles. These nails must be cut without tearing up the shingles.

A good tool for this purpose can be made from an old car spring. See illustration. Grind a v shaped, chisel edge on one end. Locate and cut nails by driving this tool up between the shingles.

After the nails have been cut, the old shingles may be removed, and replaced with a new shingle.

Some people prefer to leave the old shingle in place and insert a piece of sheet metal or tar paper underneath. By using this method, the repair does not show.

Simply fold a piece of tar paper over the edge of the sheet metal and insert under old shingle. Be sure the nail stubs do not tear the tar paper.

Trim the tar paper even with the exposed end of the shingle with a sharp knife.

It is usually best to drive about 2 shingle nails to hold the repair work in place. These nails will be exposed, but must be driven to hold the shingles in place.

Use galvanized nails to prevent rusting. Drive the nails at least 2" from the end of the shingle to prevent splitting.

IMPROVING THE LOT OF THE AGED (Conclusion)

In our first article on the necessity of considering the problem of adequate care for our aging population, we mentioned that not only should the individual prepare himself for advancing age, but the community should make provision for his happiness and security.

Oldsters must be given something to do by which they can divert their minds and by which they will feel less dependent upon relatives.

The aging with only mild conditions of abnormalities must not be "dumped" into hospitals. Suitable quarters equipped with those things conducive to wholesome living must be provided for oldsters.

Entertainment features at a community house perhaps, should be provided as a place where they might be able to socialize together. If hospitalized, the institution should provide for its aged patients an integrated program which will meet the social needs as well as the medical ones.

Older people must be taught how to prepare for retirement so that they will be able to adjust acceptably, effectively and happily to a new way of life. In view of the remarkable advances being made at present, the government should no longer consider the sixty-fifth year as a retirement goal but rather should it devise tests for determining the abilities (both working and psychological) of those large numbers of oldsters who give promise of many future years of substantial service.

Doctors must not only familiarize themselves with the specialized treatment required by the aging but also feel it their responsibility to teach them how to anticipate the factors peculiar to aging, how to prepare for the aged period and how to adapt themselves to the aging processes. They must also forewarn elderly people against future tension and excitement occasioned by the loss of loved ones.

Oldsters should be assisted in the matter of securing jobs if they are sufficiently alert, physically and mentally, so that they might maintain their respect, as well as feeling productive.

The aging population must not continue to feel that they are unwanted and are left to themselves to eke out a final existence.

If oldsters are to be kept happier, more careful consideration must be given to their diet and to the avoidance of unpleasant associations which tend at meal time to produce undesirable psychic effects.

The foregoing has stressed the importance of providing for the oldster things vital to his economic security, religion, health, social acceptance and contentment, all of which should tend to make his lot happier and more enriched.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS

Butter Spreads Add Flavor

Butter spreads are fun to have on hand to make breads, vegetables and casseroles taste just a little different and just a little better. Butter's creamy texture makes the mixing easy, and butter's fresh flavor remains to give that rich taste we like so much. Always buy butter protected in a paraffined carton to keep it safe from exposure to light, off-odors and physical damage.

Here are five delicious spreads:

Butter and Honey: Blend softened butter with honey, half and half, and serve it over hot cooked carrots and sweet potatoes, or serve on pancakes, waffles or hot muffins.

Butter, Mayonnaise and Lime Juice: Blend 1 tablespoon softened butter with 1 tablespoon mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon lime juice and a dash of salt. Good with hot cooked peas, celery, artichokes, asparagus, green beans, broccoli and spinach.

Butter, Creamed Cheese and Minced Onion: Blend 1 tablespoon softened butter with 2 tablespoons cream cheese and 1/2 teaspoon finely minced onion. Dot over scalloped potatoes or a vegetable casserole before baking, or serve as a spread for crisp potato chips for an hors d'oeuvre.

Butter, Deviled Ham and Mustard: Blend 1 tablespoon softened butter with 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and 2 tablespoons deviled ham. Serve on canned corn, broiled tomatoes or crisp melba toast.

Butter and Grated American Cheese: Blend softened butter and grated American cheese half and half and add a little mayonnaise to make an ideal spread for broiled sandwiches, a casserole topping or to spread over broiled hamburgers.

Wheat, corn, oats and rice are the most important cereals of today. They rank high in nutritive value, combine delightfully with many other foods and are among the cheapest energy-providing dishes.

ELIAS HOWE—(1819-1867) endured extreme hardships before his invention of the sewing machine paid off. He obtained a patent on the machine Sept. 10, 1846. Tailors admired his demonstrations of the machine, but nobody would buy one. An English manufacturer cheated him of his patent rights in that country. Poverty assailed him and his family. Once he had to pawn his patent papers to keep from starving. Meantime others began manufacturing and selling his machine. Friends came to his rescue. Infringers were fought through the courts for five years until Howe was declared the winner. Royalties poured in. His annual income zoomed from $300 to $200,000, to help him finance improvements.

Plan '54 Corn Crop Now to Enter 100-Bu. Project

Now is the time to plan your 1954 corn crop, especially in this true if you plan to enter the 100-bushel or more corn project. In 1953 about 12 farmers from the county made an attempt to produce 100 or more bushels of corn per acre by following recommended farming practices. These practices consisted largely of fertilizing the corn field based on the plant food needs as shown by soil tests, by planting at the recommended rate per acre, and then by top dressing with a nitrogen rich fertilizer as determined by the amount of nitrogen in the soil.

Some Washington county farmers grew as much as 122.2 bushels corn per acre. Each field in the contest was carefully husked and acre yields computed. This 100-bushel program is conducted somewhat as a contest. That is the farmer must enter the program, and have soil tests made of one or more samples of soil. He must then agree to apply the fertilizer as recommended by the soils department of the College of Agriculture and also to plant at the recommended rate in autumn when the corn is ripe the extension office will supervise the husking, weighing, and moisture determination of the sample. All yields are computed on a uniform moisture content.

In 1953 Wisconsin had the highest per acre yield of corn of any state in the union. The Wisconsin average yield was 58 1/2 bushels per acre. More than 900 farmers were members of the Pacemaker Corn Clubs getting yields in excess of 100 bushels. Besides these were many un-checked fields where the yields exceeded 100 bushels also.

Soil samples can be taken now on most upland fields. Use an auger, spatula or round pointed shovel for taking the soil samples. Mix together in old container soil from six or eight different places on a 5-acre field. Then put one or two large cupfuls in a paper bag, label and bring to the county agent's office. On fields of 5 acres or more it may be well to bring two samples. For the corn project it is necessary to know the past history of the fields. What crops did they grow, how much manure was added, when was legume hay last grown are sources of information that enable the college to make better commercial fertilizer recommendations.
