Award Nursing Scholarship to Kewaskum Girl

Miss Alice Hoffman, Kewaskum, has been chosen by the Washington-Ozaukee County Medical Auxiliary to receive their annual nursing scholarship in the amount of $100.00. This is the third year the Auxiliary has offered a nursing scholarship to encourage girls of character and ambition to enter the nursing field.

Miss Hoffman, who is graduating from Kewaskum High school in June, is the youngest of the seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoffman, Sr. She is planning to enter the Evangelical Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing, Milwaukee, in the fall. At the present time, three are functioning actively in Port Washington, Grafton and Cedarburg high schools. The clubs are open to high school students who are interested in nursing as a career and who, through work in the club, gain a good background and knowledge of the requirements they will need when they enter a school of nursing after graduation from high school. Members of the Medical Auxiliary serve as counselors.

The new officers of the Washington-Ozaukee Medical Auxiliary are Mrs. A. L. Grundahl, president; Mrs. K. F. Felant, president-elect; Mrs. A. H. Heidner, secretary; Mrs. J. Baumgartner, treasurer.

Haebig Will Not Seek Re-election; Schowalter in Race

Assemblyman K. William Haebig of Kewaskum, Washington county representative in the state legislature, announced this week that he will not be a candidate for re-election in the fall elections. Haebig was elected to his seat in the legislature in 1950 and served for two consecutive terms as the county's representative.

Haebig informed the press that the press of his law practice did not allow sufficient time to serve as assemblyman.

Elmer Schowalter of the town of Jackson, a lifelong resident of Washington county, announced this week that he will be a candidate for the post of assemblyman from Washington county in the state legislature. Schowalter will seek election on the Republican ticket in place of Haebig.

A former assessor for the town of Jackson for a number of years, Schowalter now resides on the family homestead in the town of Jackson and assists in the operation of the family farm. He is a brother-in-law of Miss Irma Quandt of Kewaskum and a son-in-law of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Quandt of here.

Nomination papers on behalf of Schowalter's candidacy are expected to be circulated next week.

Most of the other incumbent county officials will seek re-election this fall, it was announced this week by Anton P. Storal, county clerk, himself a candidate to retain his post. Storal reported that six candidates have already taken out nomination papers for the Sept. 14 primary. The deadline for filing papers is July 13.

In addition to Storal, Paul Justman, county treasurer; Sheriff George Brugger, Clerk of Circuit Court Larry Berend, Dist. Atty. Lee J. Goring and Register of Deeds Edwin Pick have taken out papers.

Coroner Dr. James Albrecht and County Surveyor Milton Schaefer will not be candidates for re-election. It was stated.

L. N. Peterson Attending National Scout Meeting

Badger Council, Boy Scouts of America, is represented at the national meeting of the Boy Scouts of America at Washington, D. C., May 28-30, by Howard Bauman of West Bend, council president, and L. N. Peterson, Kewaskum, National Council representative.

They will be signally honored as they will be, not only our council, but Badger Council is the only one of the 84 councils in Region Seven and one of thirteen councils in the nation honored at a Rural Leadership Breakfast Friday, May 28.

They will receive a certificate of merit for the Badger Council for being top ranking councilmen in the nation in the increase of rural scout units per staff men. The award was presented at the breakfast given by the national committee on rural scouting Friday at the Statler Hotel in Washington, D. C. for doing the best work among 538 councils in the nation extending scouting out along the rural routes in 1953.

The two men also will be presented at a dinner attended by other top ranking rural councilmen in the nation at which time they will explain how this record had been achieved.

The organization opened its national council meeting Friday morning with 1,400 adult scout leaders in sessions at the Statler and Mayflower hotels. President Eisenhower will personally extend greetings to the adult scout leaders on Saturday at 12:30 p. m. and will appear at the luncheon.

Saukville's Helm Blanks Chevs, 13-0

Bobby Helm shut out the Kewaskum Chevrolets on four hits as his Saukville teammates pounded out a 13-0 victory here Sunday in Land o' Lakes action. The defeat was the Chevs third in a row in the loop and they are now tied for the cellar with Mequon.

Kewaskum was helpless up against Helm's firing and had men on the bases in only four innings. Only in the second and ninth frames did they have two runners on the bags and threaten to score. Saukville scored their 13 runs on 10 hits made off of three Chev hurlers. The winners had three big innings, the first with 3 runs, the sixth with 5, and the ninth with 4.

Helm struck out 4 batters and didn't walk a man. Glen Backhaus started pitching for the losers. He was relieved by Don Melsenheimer in the 6th and Killy Honeck came in for Melsy in the 8th. Backhaus fanned 3, Melsy 4, and Honeck 2. Backhaus walked two and the others one.

J. Hesse was the big gun in Saukville's attack with 3 hits in 5 trips, including a home run in the ninth inning when the bases loaded—a grand slammer. J. Iselman connected for two out of 3. Kewaskum's four hits were all singles and were divided among 4 batters.

Things will be even rougher this Sunday when Kewaskum entertains the Grafton powerhouse. Grafton is in first place and is undefeated in 3 starts. This would be the game for the Chevs to pull a major upset and break into the win column.

Referendum June 1 on New Kewaskum High School District

The referendum on the order of the joint Fond du Lac and Washington County School committees which created the large Kewaskum Community Union High School District will be held on Tuesday, June 1. The polling places will open at 9:00 a. m. and close at 5:30 p. m., unless otherwise extended by the municipal unit.

This referendum affords the electors the chance to voice their opinion on this issue. Certainly, the event is important enough to cause all electors to vote on that day. Their decision will mean the certification of a high school district which can operate on a reasonable tax levy, and offer a most acceptable educational program.

The referendum practice is a means of letting the members in the proposed district reassure each other on their common interest in education.

No one questions the fact that the high schools of the county need to plan expansion programs in the nature of added school building facilities as well as in re-evaluating the curriculum in order that the subject matter taught be of the utmost practicable value. Facts show that for every 8th grade graduate in May, 3 beginners will enter in September. In a few years this increase in young people will be ready for high school. Good school planning requires thorough study and co-operation of all concerned.

The Kewaskum Community High School District is the first in Washington county which has taken upon itself the solution to its high school problem, and the citizens of this particular area must be commended on this foresight. Other county areas are studying the problem, still others already have petitioned the county school committee to come to them and help them create a high school district.

The Kewaskum Community electors will set the example in this educational problem. A good attendance at the polls is anticipated from the favorable remarks made by many citizens in the area.

CIVIL DEFENSE DEVICE—Not yet ready for mass production, the miniature radio above is being developed by a Syracuse, N. Y., manufacturer primarily for civil defense use. To be worn like a hearing aid, the radio will be tuned to a single frequency that will carry civil defense messages to the public. Pencil in picture points to germanium devices, which are used instead of conventional tubes. Circular object at lower left serves as an earphone.

HURRY-UP HIGHLIGHTS—There's no longer any need to wait for Dame Nature to add years to your age before you can enjoy the glamorous highlights in your hair. A New York cosmetics house has developed a system whereby tiny end strands of newly washed and set hair can be wound around pegs, left, and then placed in transparent tubes containing a lightening mixture (either silver or gold). While you're under the drier, the lightening process is completed, and the new treatment is said to be suited to almost any hair style. When your hairdo is completed, highlights will show as at right.

LIGHT-FOOTED BALLET—Ballerina Alicia Markova weighs in at Royal Albert Hall in London, England, at a "heavy" 104 pounds. The light-footed lightweight was recently refused permission to dance at a Liverpool concert hall, for fear vibration from her dancing would damage delicate stage machinery.

SHATTERING EXPERIENCE—Mrs. Marvin Reynolds, of Wichita Falls, Kan., becomes an unwilling member of the "marred window club" as she discovers the rear window of the family car has shattered overnight. Pitted, scarred or shattered auto windows have been reported from coast to coast, and the unexplained damage has been variously attributed to radioactive dust, the work of vandals or airborne industrial-waste chemicals.

GRIZZLY BEAR

GRIZZLY BEAR
© 1953 National Wildlife Federation

Outside the areas in which they are deliberately protected it is doubtful if anyone these days can get much experience from a free, wild Grizzly Bear inside the limits of the United States. True, they may be seen in our National Parks and in our zoos but this is a far cry from the days when Grizzlies were more or less the dominating animal in much of the western half of the United States and the western third of Canada. On the whole, this is probably an improvement but it seems unfortunate that somehow a more mutually satisfactory arrangement could not have been worked out. Human nature and bear nature being what they were, it was hard to reach a natural reconciliation and as is usual the bear paid the price.

Many of us have had plenty of opportunities to see free Grizzlies in our National Parks, particularly at the points where they are fed for the entertainment of visiting tourists. Those of us fortunate to have visited these parks before the present enormous numbers went to them had more intimate and sometimes more startling experiences with them. To probably many persons, however, a Grizzly Bear is an enormous animal interested primarily in chasing and killing hunters or livestock. To those who have read Seton's story of Wab, the animal is one to be admired and pitied. Probably none of these accounts give us the true story of the animal.

An adult male Grizzly Bear may be over 8 feet long and stand 4 feet high at the shoulder, which is higher than one finds in the related Black Bear. Grizzly males may attain a weight of 1,150 pounds. The females are smaller in size and weight than their mates. Both sexes are colored a yellowish brown with a gray or "grizzly" wash. The Alaskan Brown Bear is larger than the typical Grizzly, reaching a weight of over 1600 pounds and is probably the largest carnivorous mammal on earth. There is much difference of opinion as to the proper classification of the Grizzly Bear group. Some give the Alaskan Brown Bear rank as a subspecies, while others recognize it as a distinct species. Some 86 forms have been recognized as being distinct by the zoologists.

Grizzly Bears mate for the season. The 2 to 4 young are born 236 days after the breeding takes place and each weighs about 1½ pounds and has a length of about 8 inches. At 3 months of age, the young Grizzly weighs about 12 pounds. At 3 years, it reaches breeding age and usually by 25 years it has completed its normal life span. The food of Grizzlies includes not only larger animals like deer, cattle and horses, but sheep, snakes, birds and even ants. They may also eat fruits and other plant foods when necessary.

Generally Grizzlies mind their own business but when crossed by another animal they can put up a prodigious fight. The track of a Grizzly shows the hind foot reaching a length of 11 inches as against a corresponding length of 6 inches in a Black Bear.

It is hoped that these magnificent creatures may never become extinct. The National Wildlife Federation is interested in reasonable protection of animals in danger of becoming extinct.

THE LOST SHALL BE FOUND

O. D. might be said to have returned to E. W. when Chris Peterson found in his Lake Benton front yard a wedding ring lost 23 year ago by the mother of Mrs. Harry Nordmeyer, to whom the ring was promptly returned through the initial identification. When Harry Pasch went to W. J. Schuck's New Ulm tailor shop to pick up a billfold that had fallen from his pocket, he was asked if he ever had lost anything else; a missing diamond ring was recalled; Mr. Schuck had that, too, having found it under a pressing machine more than a year previously.

HINGE SCREENS OR STORM WINDOWS

Some people like to leave the storm windows on some few windows which are never opened all the year. In this case, many of them find it convenient to hang these storm sash on hinges instead of by the usual methods. By using a loose pin butt hinge, the window may be removed for washing. Or, if preferred, it may be washed without removing.

It is also possible to interchange screens and storm windows in the same manner.

This can best be done by installing one hinge in the usual manner, and reversing the other. When you remove the sash, one of the halves left on the casing will have rolled part backwards from the other.

Then by using only one more hinge of the same size you can use one half on the top, and the other half on the bottom, you may hinge the screen and save one hinge.

Alaska To Rio In A Trailer

Three young men left recently on an automotive venture which is supposed to take them from Alaska to Rio de Janeiro and the tip of South America. The young men will not accept the aid of ships or railroads to help them through the jungles and over water obstacles.

No overland trip of this length has ever been made before, they claim, and the trip is estimated to be between twenty and thirty thousand miles in length.

A small trailer behind a sports car, with a lightweight raft atop the trailer, is the means by which the three twenty-five year-old men hope to make their long journey.

It has long been the dream of North Americans to be able to drive from the United States to South America nonstop. However, there are considerable sections where no good roads, and even no roads at all, are available, and some of the territory which must be traversed in Central America is among the thickest, most impenetrable jungle in the world. In addition, there are mountain ranges which will rise to 15,000-foot heights to be crossed.

There is also the difficulty of encountering natives who are described as unfriendly, and the difficulties of finding gasoline and other necessities for such a trip. In spite of these obstacles, the youngsters believe they can complete the automotive journey from Alaska to the tip of South America.

If these adventurers get thru and succeed in their mission their success would once again stir the imagination of those Central American nations which have not yet provided connecting North-South highways. If it stimulates this urge among Central Americans, to any degree, the trip will have been a success and may bring a little nearer the long-hoped-for highway from the United States to South America.

Drifting From Dakar To Barbados

Three young scientists recently completed a 3,000-mile, 82-day drift across the Atlantic from Dakar, French West Africa, to Barbados, in the West Indies. The expedition was a partial reminder of the famous Kon-Tiki adventure of several seasons back when Thor Heyerdahl, a Norwegian anthropologist, led an expedition that drifted from South America to the Polynesian Islands in the South Pacific.

The latest expedition, consisting of an Englishman, a New Zealander and a Malayan, was not as dangerous as the South Pacific adventure of the Norwegians, since the three scientists who recently drifted across the Atlantic carried with them an 18-ton yawl.

The expedition was backed by the Belgian Institute of Natural Sciences, and Frank Evans, leader of the expedition, says the three adventurers brought back enough specimens of marine life for a year's work of sorting and classifying. One of the results of the voyage, he said, was the finding that the North and South equatorial currents actually mingled to a considerable extent in crossing the Atlantic from East to West.

Previously, these currents were thought to remain pretty much apart, the South current moving in latitudes as far South as Natal, in Brazil, and the North current passing North of the Cape Verde Islands.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS
EASY WAY TO COOK RICE

This is the popular new 1-2-1 Fluff Method of cooking rice.

Combine 1 cup of uncooked rice, two cups of water and 1 teaspoon of salt in a large saucepan with a tight fitting lid. Bring to a boil over high heat in the open saucepan. Then turn heat down as low as possible. Cover saucepan, and cook until rice is tender. Recommended cooking time is usually included on the package of rice.

For best results, add a bit of lemon juice to rice before cooking; this keeps that snowy whiteness. After rice is done, toss lightly with a fork, then replace lid and let stand about 5 minutes to fluff the rice.

Don't wash or rinse rice; you lose valuable vitamins and minerals. Don't peek when cooking rice; it lets out steam, lowers temperature. Don't stir rice after it comes to a boil; this mashes grains and makes the rice gummy.

The following are some of the many recipes using that versatile food, mushrooms. Whether they are dried, tinned, or fresh, they combine with practically every food except those used for sweets.

Rice and Mushroom Ring

Make a cream sauce, add chicken broth and the 1/3 cup of mushrooms which have been cut up. When ready to serve, unmold hot rice ring on a chop platter. Fill center with buttered peas. Pass the cream-mushroom sauce.

Food Sense—Not Nonsense

Let's Have No 11 o'clock Drag!

Breakfast habits of many Americans on-the-go are due for a change—a change back to better breakfasts. Too often, this first meal of the day could no longer qualify as one of the good old-fashioned "three squares a day." People who skip breakfast or eat a skimpy one are apt to drag by 11 o'clock.

These are the people who may say, "I'm not hungry early in the morning." Perhaps they may not be, but are they alert at this time or does it take a good lunch to get them into action? Those who lack an early morning appetite might start the breakfast habit by eating small portions of a balanced breakfast, stepping up the quantities gradually.

The cost of mid-morning hunger has been checked in an extensive study at the University of Iowa School of Medicine. During late morning hours, college students who ate a good breakfast turned out more work, were quicker in their reactions—both mental and physical—and did not tire as easily as when they either ate no breakfast or had only unsweetened coffee.

Scientists say that those who skip over this meal or who eat a slim one, frequently fail to get enough of the needed nutrients in luncheon and dinner. For example, fresh fruits which furnish vitamins for sparkle are not always included in the last two meals of the day.

What is a good breakfast? Authorities say that breakfast should furnish from one-fourth to one-third of the daily food needs. Plenty of fatigue-chasing protein should be in the breakfast—at least one-fourth of the daily protein needs should be included if that let-down feeling is not to appear by mid-morning.

A good breakfast can follow a basic pattern—fruit, a main dish such as eggs or a breakfast meat, enriched bread or toast, and milk. All of these foods except fruit are top sources of protein; they feed out a steady supply of energy. Enriched bread supplies not only protein but the essential B-vitamins, riboflavin, niacin and thiamine. Served as French toast, bread can be the basis of a high protein dish which combines eggs, milk and bread.

Teacup Topics

By Betty Ann
Editor, The Milwaukee Journal
Woman's Pages

One of our loves is here to stay, through spring at least. It's the use of leather as a fashion fabric, says Betty Ann.

Leather shirts and coats, both long and short versions, are being featured by fashion stores. And leather shorts are destined to make an appearance on the play time scene.

Leather is big news in accessories, too. Here leather jewelry is getting top billing. Pigskin set in polished gold has proved to be an early favorite.

Necklace, earring and bracelet sets are popular, too.

One of the many things about leather that pleases is that upkeep poses no problems.

So, even though white and pastel shades are favored for leather clothes and jewelry, you needn't worry about their being an extravagance.

A cleansing with dry soapsuds is about all they will need to retain their fresh appearance.

All you will need to do is to whip up a thick lather, skim off the top and sponge the leather apparel with these dry suds. Then use a damp cloth that's been wrung out in clear water to remove the suds.

And to renew the leather's soft gleam, buff it lightly with a dry cloth.

When pressing a finished hem, iron from the lower edge up, never around the skirt. Since the turned edge is slightly bias on most garments, it tends to stretch and ripple. The lower edge of the hem should therefore be forced into ripples which can then be shrunk out.

When pressing the hem from the right side, press over a well padded surface so that the imprint will not come through to the right side.

Perfume and cologne should be kept away from radiators and sun, since excessive heat evaporates the alcohol swiftly, spoiling the bouquet's balance.

Feet that toe out place a heavy strain on arches. Feet that toe in cause knock knees. To walk properly, the toes should point directly ahead and slightly toward that imaginary center line in the skyscraper.

The heel hits the ground first as you stride forward. The entire body weight shifts onto the forward part of the foot immediately as each step is made. Learn to swing from the hips, not only from the knees. If your girdle is too long and does not permit this hip swing, get another one.

Your walk should not have any outstanding characteristics. If people notice your posture, it is generally bad. Let them see you, the whole you and not one particular quality. Correct the faults that attract attention and forget the rest, you will always carry yourself well.

Brownies

Two squares unsweetened chocolate (2 ounces); 1/2 cup shortening; 1 cup sugar; 3 eggs; 3/4 cup sifted cake flour; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 cup chopped nut meats.

Melt chocolate and shortening together in a heat resistant bowl in the oven. Cool slightly; beat in sugar, then add eggs one at a time beating well after each addition. Sift together flour and baking powder; add to chocolate mixture. Stir in chopped nut meats. Pour into a greased two quart heat resistant glass utility dish. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees, about 35 minutes. If desired, top with deluxe chocolate frosting. Yield: 15 to 24 servings.

Chocolate Frosting

Two squares unsweetened chocolate (two ounces); 1 square sweet chocolate (one ounce); 3 tablespoons butter; 1 3/4 cups sifted confectioners' sugar; 5 tablespoons hot milk; 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Melt chocolate and butter together in a heat resistant bowl in the oven. Dissolve sugar in hot milk; pour into chocolate mixture; add vanilla extract and beat until thick enough to spread.

Want to do a neat job of removing the core from fresh pear halves when you are using them for salad or dessert? Use one-half teaspoon measuring spoon or a melon ball cutter. Then with a sharp paring knife, cut away the stem structure.

Never rest heavy cooking utensils on the open door of a kitchen range. If you do, you bend the hinges so that the door will not close so tightly as it should and oven heat will be lost.

New Smut Control

With a new method for disinfecting seed oats, a grain grower now can tell at a glance which oats have been treated for planting and which have not. Shown here at left are healthy oats, while smut-infected oats are at the right.

The new, easy-to-apply liquid (Panogen) is strongly recommended for its effectiveness by leading experimental stations. It gives a reddish color to kernels coated with it so that there is no danger of mistaking this red grain for untreated oats suitable for sale or feed use.

Use of Panogen is a means of getting a crop of oats better in quality and quantity than would be the case with untreated seed.

Says U. S. Aid Saved Iran

William Elmo Warne, chief of the U. S. Aid Mission in Iran for the last two and a half years, says goodwill generated by the U. S. aid program prevented Iran from going communist last year. Although Warne might be prejudiced in favor of the program he headed, his words are interesting.

He says U. S. aid struck its most effective blow in the field of public health and that this meant the difference between communist success and failure when the Communists tried to seize power in Iran. The conditions described by Warne—which still prevail to a large extent in Iran—are almost unbelievable.

He points out that a fourth of all the villages contain not even one literate person. He says that in most villages water is a great carrier of disease because there is only one source of water in the town or village. The people make tea, wash their babies, clean their teeth, shave and do all their laundry and washing of vegetables in the same gutter flowing through the village, he said.

To combat this situation, technical cooperation teams from the United States were sent to Iran under the aid program. They began to spray villages with DDT and instruct villagers on the difference between mosquitoes and flies. To do this, they used both moving pictures and put up posters of mosquitoes and flies.

Warne says, as a result, the threat of malaria has been greatly reduced. "In the worst-affected areas we have reduced the percentage of people suffering from ninety per cent to ten per cent," he says.

It is good to hear such a report in these times when all one hears about the aid program, it seems, is criticism and scandal. Whether or not the American aid mission in Iran saved that country from communism, and we are inclined to agree that it probably had a major effect, the benefit to less-fortunate humans in Iran has certainly been considerable.

OLD HABIT—Sawing wood at the age of 97 is Wallace A. Bently, of New Marlboro, Mass. Bently saws wood for about two hours a day for exercise. A retired blacksmith, Bently attributes his longevity to tobacco-chewing, a practice he began when he was eight.

About Your Home

By FRANCES DELL

The structure of your garden soil particles must be adequate if you are to grow healthy, good looking plants. Structure means the arrangement of the soil particles in such a way as to permit proper holding of water and enough space for air.

In clay soils, the particles are small and stick together keeping the amount of air found in the soil limited. Clay does not drain well for this reason.

To change the structure of clay soil so it will be suitable for growing plants, you must rearrange the particles and make them larger. This can be done by the use of organic matter such as manure, peat, chopped straw, etc. The best time to use these materials is in the fall.

The following spring you should again apply one of these materials to your bed. Also, add a complete fertilizer. Besides this fertilizer, you would be wise to apply an inch or more of sand or washed coal ashes and spade this in.

Soils are often too coarse and do not hold enough water, although there may be sufficient air. Again an application of manure or other organic material is necessary.

Such additions, whether for heavy or light soils, must be made every year. The job never ends. Don't be discouraged, however, because you will be rewarded by the beautiful, abundant growth of your plants and flowers.

The heating of wood in order to convert it into carbon or charcoal may have been the first chemical process discovered by man, says the National Geographic Society. Charcoal fuel has twice the heating power of wood and burns without flame or smoke. It is still extensively used in many European and Asiatic countries and is the chief domestic fuel in most tropical countries. It is also used extensively in medicine, as a reducing element in the iron and steel industry, and in the manufacture of chemicals, gunpowder, explosives, and certain cosmetics.

Buy Cottons Early to Assure Comfort

By EDNA MILES

COTTON has become a year-around fabric.

This spring's cotton crop includes cottons that are suitable now, if you live in a warm climate, or ready to go into a "nest egg" for summer, if you live in a part of the country where spring means suits and toppers.

Having such a nest egg against hot summer weather saves both on your budget and your temper. If you shop for cottons now, you'll have them ready against the first shimmering day.

This day usually arrives when your closet is empty of anything even remotely wearable. Last summer's cottons have somehow managed to collapse during the winter and just don't look right.

Anyone who's ever been forced to wear a heavy suit or dress on a hot day (and apologize for it) knows that buying ahead is just as much insurance as taking out a policy.

You needn't pay a lot for a whole wardrobe of smart cottons. Clever cottons at budget prices are being shown across the country. And they offer smart fabrics as well as good design.

A sheer chambray in pearl gray is used for this sleeveless dress. Front and collar are tucked; skirt is wide through use of soft gathers.

Sheath-top cotton dress has wide skirt with soft, unpressed pleat. Scalloped neckline is trimmed with cord, and belt is velvet.

This "western crisp salad" has a new combination of ingredients, but once you have tasted it you will agree that the ingredients go together. Grated carrot, apple, celery and chopped ripe olives are tossed together with pickle, pimiento and mayonnaise to make a tasty dinner salad.

2/3 cup sliced celery; 1/3 cup chopped ripe olives; 1 cup coarsely grated carrot; 1 cup diced apple; 1/4 cup diced cucumber pickle; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1/4 cup-chopped pimiento. Mayonnaise. Lettuce.

Combine celery, olives, carrot, apple, pickle, salt and pimiento. Toss together with sufficient mayonnaise to blend. Serve on lettuce garnished salad plates. Serves four.

Bible Comment:

Try to Meet God's Standard Of Honesty

WHAT does it mean to be honest?

The question and the answer, are not just as simple as one might suppose.

When one gets out into life, and begins to observe society, one quickly finds that there are varying standards of honesty.

There is, for instance, that old, and very true, observation that "honesty is the best policy."

Many men have been known to be honest when it cost them a lot to stand by their idea of what was right and just.

And there are some men whose idea of honesty is bound up with ideas of law and legality. They maintain, "as long as the law allows it, why shouldn't we do it?"

There is a great amount of that sort of legalized honesty prevalent in the world today, and much of it in very respectable quarters; but what does God think of it? There are grades, and varieties, and standards of honesty, and so there is a point in asking, "What is God's standard?"

God's standard of honesty is related to truth and inherent right. Man may make his codes and creeds, and seek to give them divine authority, but that doesn't make them either true or right.

In the world of science men have theories concerning facts and phenomena, but they have to abandon such theories when further and conflicting light and evidence appear.

Though we may not always realize it, the same thing is true in religious experience.

Honesty, according to God's standard, is to bring one's life and action into harmony with the truth as one sees it. That is true honesty, and nothing less is true honesty.

TRAFFIC-STOPPER—Its design resembling the black-and-white warning stripes on trucks and road barricades, this sleeveless frock by Battilocchi is a real traffic-stopper in Rome, Italy. Bodice is sewn of alternate black-and-white strips of material, and the funnel-pocketed skirt is in red and green.

VERTICAL PARKING—Lawrence Myers, of New York City, wanted to park in a rental garage, but not in this fashion. He backed onto an elevator that wasn't there, and wound up, unhurt, on the basement level after a one-floor drop.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

If you have never camped out, but think there might be a bit of pioneer blood in your veins, by all means patronize the public camp grounds where everything is made easy for you before attempting a real wilderness jaunt.

You can camp from Maine to California in our national parks, national forests and state parks, usually in spots of great natural beauty. In addition, dotted all along our main highways are other camp grounds run in connection with municipal parks, filling stations or motels, and only a nominal charge is made for overnight camping.

If you can't make such a trip this year, start making plans now for next year. A good way to start is by sending 25 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington 25, D. C., for the large map "Recreational Areas of the United States." It's well worth the price.

If you're wondering about equipment for this kind of camping, here are some suggestions from Col. Townsend Whelen, camping editor of Sports Afield magazine:

The tent usually seen in public camps is the "A-Wall." It is quite satisfactory (although difficult to erect) but it is not the best type. The most comfortable tents and the easiest to erect are the umbrella and the pyramidal tents with walls. For two or three persons a tent should be at least 9 x 9 feet. If you are going to spend some time in camp, a fly or tarp to raise alongside the tent as an awning gives shade and a comfortable place to sit and work or cook. A canvas tent floor is very desirable.

If you have to economize in packing space and weight, air mattresses laid on the floor cloth are entirely practical and very comfortable. But most auto campers prefer folding cots. However, cots must have a mattress too—either kapok or an air mattress. It is not very pleasant sitting on the ground in these camps, so most campers bring folding canvas chairs and folding tables.

It's a good idea to carry a two- or three-burner gasoline cook stove. You may be near electricity, but just in case, include a lantern. Always pack a wash basin and two buckets, one for fresh water and the other for a slop-jar. It is not permissible to throw wash water or garbage on the ground. And bring a broom—many others will have camped before you.

You don't need experience for this kind of camping. All you need to know is how to put up your tent, and you can practice that in your back yard.

HERE'S HOW . . .

MAKE A DROPLEAF TABLE

Extra table space for the small kitchen can be easily provided with a dropleaf table.

Construction details are shown in the End View. A gate-post of 1x3-inch lumber, extending 26 inches from the floor, is fastened to the corner of the kitchen cabinet. On top of the gate-post, another 1 by 3, 21 inches long, is fastened horizontally to the kitchen cabinet. This serves as a sill on which to hinge the table top.

NATIONAL LUMBER MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION

The gate-legs are also made of 1 by 3 lumber. The back leg is 25 1/2 inches long so it will clear the sill, while the front leg is 28 1/2 inches long. Cross members in the gate leg may be doweled or fastened with metal plates.

The top is built up of edge-glued boards to produce a surface 24 by 30 inches; or it may be a piece of hardwood plywood. Two-inch butt hinges on the bottom of the table top are set in 1 inch from the end so that the table will rest on the sill when set up. Hinges should be recessed to make a snug fit when the table is up or down.

Do Not Neglect Colds

Colds seem to be almost ubiquitous, especially at this season of the year. They are most prevalent in winter and spring.

A neglected cold often leads to serious complications which may result in tuberculosis, pneumonia, kidney disease, heart trouble, inflamed tonsils, infected sinuses, and other ailments any one of which might end fatally.

To most people the common cold is only a minor disorder that is often regarded lightly and left to cure itself. Yet it is one of the most dangerous and baffling problems that confronts scientific medicine today. We know that colds are contagious, and that they often grow to epidemic proportions.

Children are particularly susceptible to colds, as they lack the resistance of older people. The running ears, mastoid complications and other serious chronic diseases, which afflict children frequently have their inception in colds.

Taking colds is an evidence of lowered vitality. The chronically tired person whose diet is inadequate, who goes on insufficient sleep and is irregular in his habits is an inviting host for cold germs. Consequently he catches cold easily and finds it difficult to throw off.

Since we have no vaccine upon which we can place absolute reliance in the cure of colds, we should endeavor to build up resistance by proper diet and plenty of sleep. When feasible, avoid people who have colds.

Experience has taught us many valuable lessons in the treatment of colds. For example, a prominent physician told the writer that during an epidemic of colds a year ago every member of his household, including the servants, took severe colds, with the exception of two of his daughters. Both of the girls were convalescing from malaria and were still taking quinine. One of the girls was unusually susceptible to colds, but in this particular epidemic was protected by quinine.

Dr. Fishbein, whom you all know as a medical authority, says, "Quinine Sulfate has been used for years as an abortive treatment for colds." During the war a physician who served in an army hospital told me that when a soldier began to develop a cold, he was immediately ordered to bed. He was given two grains of quinine together with an intestinal antiseptic every three hours. A laxative was administered to rid the bowels of poisons, and the kidneys were flushed by drinking plenty of water and fruit juices. This treatment usually resulted in restoring him to duty in a day or two.

Do not neglect a cold. If you begin to develop one, go to bed at once and follow the treatment outlined above. Nothing yet has been discovered that is so effective in preventing and curing a cold as quinine. We have an abundance of proof for this among men of science who have given us the benefit of their observations and experiences.

The above treatment is just as effective with children as it is with adults. Of course, the amount of quinine to be given children is in proportion to their ages. They all take cocoa quinine with little or no persuasion.

It is foolish, almost criminal, to neglect a cold. By so doing you may develop a serious illness and also spread it throughout the community. This may result in expense, and even death.

Don't leave the cold to cure itself. Left alone there are so many dangers in this, the most common of all known ailments. There are many sufferers from chronic sinusitis, bronchitis, mastoiditis and other respiratory disorders, all on account of a neglected cold.

A good tonic to help ward off colds is quinine and iron.

Educational TV A Coming Reality

The Federal Communications Commission wisely set aside a number of TV channels for educational purposes when channel allotments were made several years ago. Because educational TV stations have not been coming into operation rapidly there have been cries from some commercially-interested parties that there is no place or need for them in the American way of life.

Nothing is further from the truth. It is true that only three educational TV stations are on the air (Los Angeles, Houston and East Lansing, Michigan), but about twenty are expected to be operating by year's end. And one noted radio and TV critic predicts they will be a great success.

Jack Mabley, of the Chicago Daily News, says: "Commercial television has become the nation's . . . salesman. Educational television will be the nation's greatest teacher." There is no reason why that cannot be true.

There is a need for educational—non-commercial—programs on TV. One would like to be able to see—when he wishes—educational programs free from commercial propaganda. These programs would include concert music, educational courses in the various fields, vocational programs such as an agricultural lesson on fighting corn borers, sports events, ballet, Shakespeare and demonstrations showing how mechanical devices work and are repaired, among other things. They would be educational programs—designed only to educate, and uplift the standards of knowledge and understanding among all citizens who wished to take advantage of them.

Viewers would not have only this. They could choose between a sponsored program and a strictly educational one. But we need both. And we are solidly opposed to the move to allot educational channels not being used to commercial use. In time, as the costs of operating TV stations come down, all the educational channels will be used, and it will provide Americans with a wonderful source of accurate, non-commercial information in their homes—free of charge.

FOUR FAMOUS OLD SHIPS FACE THEIR FINAL TRIP

Enemy guns, storms at sea, and even the slow attack of time failed to sink them. But at last four of America's most famous old fighting ships may be headed for Davy Jones's locker.

USS Constellation, Hartford, Olympia, and Oregon, veterans of battles from the Barbary Coast to Manila Bay, will be scuttled or scrapped in a Navy economy program presented to Congress recently. The four relic warships are so old and weary that the cost of restoring them is estimated at $35,000,000.

Oldest Ship in Navy The Constellation is the oldest U.S. warship still afloat, one of the first three vessels of the infant Navy, the National Geographic Society says. Actually, the Navy Department had yet to be created when the 36-gun frigate went down the ways in Baltimore on September 7, 1797.

Of six ships authorized three years earlier, the Constellation was the second completed. The United States, launched at Philadelphia that May, and the Constitution, finished in Boston in October, were the other two completed that year.

All three won fame. They helped subdue the lawless corsairs of the Barbary States in the Mediterranean. In the War of 1812, their guns roared out America's new authority on the seas. Even earlier, in the undeclared naval war of 1799, the Constellation met and conquered the French frigate Insurgent.

The lumbering United States, "Old Wagon" as it was called, was broken up in 1866. The Constitution, victor over the British Guerrriere and heroine of Oliver Wendell Holmes' rousing poem, "Old Ironsides," became a national symbol. Today it lies well preserved as a naval museum in Boston Navy Yard.

The Constellation, across the pier from her, fared worse. Though rebuilt several times, it is now little more than a hulk—massless, worm-eaten, and barely held together by supporting timbers and a cat's cradle of steel-cable bracings. The people of Baltimore would like to have the senior ship back, but there is serious doubt that it could survive the long tow home.

Mobile and Manila The three-masted, high-funnelled, steam-and-sail warship Hartford entered America's history books on August 5, 1864. Braving a Confederate mine field at the entrance to Mobile Bay, Admiral David G. Farragut on the Hartford found his line of ships suddenly halted beneath the guns of defending forts. He signaled ahead to learn why. "Torpedoes," came the answer.

"Damn the torpedoes. Go ahead!" replied Farragut. Steaming directly over the mine field, the Hartford led the way.

It was aboard the flagship Olympia, in 1898, the Commodore George Dewey opened the Battle of Manila Bay against the Spanish Philippines fleet. His long-remembered words to the Olympia's captain were: "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley."

Simultaneously, the new battleship Oregon was engaged in a 14,000-mile race against time, from San Francisco around Cape Horn and north again to Cuba. The record-breaking voyage not only made the Oregon famous; it proved to all America the urgent need for a canal across Panama.

Stripped of superstructure, the Oregon lies today at Guam in the distant Pacific. The Olympia, which brought home World War I's Unknown Soldier, is at Philadelphia. The Hartford is at Norfolk. From their berths, unless funds are found, all three may soon make their last voyage—to the bottom of the seas.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK — Commodity markets have an impressive record in predicting war or peace. In 1914, with a huge carryover of cotton and another large crop coming up, the price of cotton began to climb before anyone realized that the murder of Austrian Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Sarajevo had touched off a world war. In 1945 commodities turned down, even while there was much stern fighting still to do.

Consulting this oracle about the danger of a new war's starting in Indochina, one gets an answer of "Well, yes and no." Soybeans, corn and cats have been rising. Wool and wool tops cost more. Hides are at seasonal highs. Cocoa, coffee and tin, products of the tropical countries where the trouble centers, are higher. So are lead and zinc, warming metals.

On the other hand, wholesale commodity indexes appear to stand still, meaning that for every gain there is a corresponding decline. Cheaper commodities include two—wheat and lard—which are indispensable to the diet of fighting men. For the moment, at least, commodity traders and purchasing agents must be as confused about the outlook as the rest of us.

BACKYARD BOOM — Lawn addicts and planters of flowers, trees, shrubs and vegetables will spend more than a billion dollars this year for seed, fertilizer and garden equipment, says a leading company. Managers of the company's retail stores, which stock everything from garden hose and lawnmowers to shotgun shells and fishing rods, report that today's big spender is the home gardener.

Over the nation last year $144,500,000 was spent for power lawnmowers alone. Golfers, by comparison, spent about $80,000,000 on all their equipment, hunters an estimated $140,000,000. Another indication of the popularity of America's newest outdoor pastime was given in a recent study in the Midwest. Gardening scored 97 per cent of a possible 100 as an outdoor recreation.

Manufacturers and merchants supplying the market estimate the number of home gardeners at thirty million. They credit the postwar boom in home building, the high level of industrial activity and more leisure time.

THINGS TO COME — A new drip coffeemaker pushes the hot water through the grounds four or five times without ever letting it come to a boil . . . A tailored telephone cover made of simulated alligator leather is on sale . . . A West German safety razor blade, just imported to this country, is said to give three to five times as many shaves as the domestic variety . . . Steel clips to hold diapers together eliminate the use of safety pins . . . A new sidewalk- and garage-floor broom with gaily colored bristles calls itself a patio brush.

PLANE PICTURE STEADY — The U. S. airplane industry today stands closer than ever before to becoming a stable long-term producer, getting away from the traditional feast and famine cycles that have plagued the plane makers. Net result should be a healthier economy, and more defense at less cost to the American taxpayer.

The steady buildup toward a 137-wing Air Force, plus large-scale U. S. military commitments abroad, is expected to keep production at 12,000 military planes per year for some time to come, according to Mundy I. Peale, president of Republic Aviation Corp. As an example the Long Island plane producer cites the fact that his own company is now in the opening stages of a mass production program for jet aircraft, scheduled to run into 1956.

Planes involved are the F-84F Thunderstreak, a fast sweeping fighter-bomber, and the RF84F Thunderflash, a high-speed photo-reconnaissance fighter. Republic already has contracts for two other extremely fast airplanes, the F-103 fighter-interceptor and the F-105 fighter-bomber, which will be seen in the sky sometime between 1956 and 1960.

BITS O' BUSINESS — Corporate earnings show a general pattern of increased profits on decreased sales, due to the expiration of excess profits taxes. This is a short-term lift unless business improves; prices will be forced down by competition . . . Defense appropriations were cut $1.2 billion, but left-over funds give the Defense Department $77 billion to spend in fiscal 1955 if it can . . . Machine tool shipments increased in March, but manufacturers say this important industry is eating down its backlog of orders, which are back to 1950 levels . . . Prices of print cloth have firmed in New York, but large fabricators are out of the market.
