Rivers Nine Nosed Out by Barton, 3-2

The Kewaskum Rivers team lost a tough one at Barton Sunday when they were shaded, 3-2, in a pitcher's duel. Barton is the second place in the league and has lost only one tilt thus far. Kewaskum almost upset the apple cart.

What made the defeat all the more heartbreaking was that two of Barton's runs were unearned. Kewaskum outbit the winners 8 to 4 but couldn't deliver in the clutch except in the 6th inning when they tallied their two runs on singles by Van Blarcom, Koepke and Skrentny and a double by "power hitting" Feevee Stenman. Barton scored one in the 3rd and two in the 4th which proved enough to win the contest.

Wierman pitched for the losers and did a great job in his four hits. He struck out 11 Barton batters and walked only two and well deserved to win. Frings was the winning pitcher although he didn't compare to Wierman.

Van Blarcom and C. Koepke paced the losers with two hits apiece. Barton's four safeties were divided.

Youth Drowns at Mauthe Lake in Try to Aid Friend

Hawaiian Girl is Pulled Out of Lake by Lifeguard in Near Drowning Wednesday

Francis Coughlin, 20-year-old young man of R. 7, Watertown, drowned Sunday at Mauthe lake near here while trying to rescue a swimming companion. His friend was saved in the heroic attempt.

According to officials at Mauthe lake, and Coroner Joseph E. Murray and Traffic Officer Arthur J. Ambrose of the Fond du Lac county police, who investigated, and whom this reporter interviewed, the tragedy occurred at about noon. Coughlin and John Quinn, 20, also of R. 7, Watertown, had accompanied Miss Mary Rodenkirch, 18, of 22 East Follett st., Fond du Lac, and Miss Mary Condon, 19, Watertown, R. 7, to the lake for an outing.

Shortly after they arrived at the lake the group prepared to go swimming. Quinn ventured out too far and encountered difficulties when he was in approximately 20 feet of water. Although Coughlin was not too experienced a swimmer, he swam out after his friend. When Coughlin reached Quinn both swimmers began to struggle in the water, and Miss Rodenkirch, an experienced swimmer and Mariner Scout, went to the aid of the two young men.

When she reached them, Miss Rodenkirch grabbed both, but had to release her hold when they became panicky and seized her. After freeing herself, Miss Rodenkirch grabbed Quinn, whom she was with at the lake, and headed back for shore as the two life guards at the lake, Miss Mary Minsch, Sheboygan Falls, and Thomas Crabtree, Beechwood, dived in after Coughlin. Though Quinn was exhausted, he did not require artificial respiration. Miss Minsch dived several times in a vain attempt to reach Coughlin.

Several of the better swimmers at the beach joined in a "human chain" attempt. This is a system where each of the swimmers dives in an attempt to rescue a drowning person. The system failed probably because some of the divers did not reach the bottom, and authorities rushed grappling hooks to the lake. The body was recovered in 30 minutes.

The Kewaskum fire department ambulance and rescue squad was called to the lake. Minutes later the department equipment truck also sped to the scene. It was first reported that there were two drownings and all available members of the rescue squad besides those on duty at the time were contacted. In all seven members answered the call. Artificial respiration was started on Coughlin but was discontinued when a Kewaskum physician pronounced him dead.

Coroner Murray said that the fatality was accidental and that no inquest would be held. The drowning was the sixth of the year for Fond du Lac county. The body was brought to a Kewaskum funeral home in the ambulance to await transportation to Watertown.

A Hawaiian girl, Miss Cora Soriano, who is a student nurse at St. Nicholas hospital, Sheboygan, had a narrow escape from drowning at Mauthe lake last week Wednesday, July 23. She was swimming at the lake with four girl companions when she went under. The lifeguard Miss Minsch, dove for Miss Soriano twice and failed to locate her in the water. The third time she dove she came across the girl at the bottom of the lake and pulled her to shore. Miss Soriano regained consciousness and started breathing. Except for the excellent work of Miss Minsch she too would have lost her life.

The Kewaskum Lakes team came awful close to winning again Sunday and forced the game to go 12 innings before finally being subdued by Mequon here, 8-5. In the first game of the half Kewaskum was shaded by the strong Port Washington team in 11 innings. In other words, two of the defeats were in extra innings and the other was by one run.

Mel Gengler's triple broke up Sunday's duel in the top of the 12th frame. The Chevs came from behind with single runs in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings to send the contest into extra innings. Glen Backhaus was the starting Kewaskum hurler.

Roger Wierman paced the losers with four hits in six trips. Fuzzy Dreher slammed out a home run and triple for the Chevs. Dangerous hitters on the Mequon club include Nick Burczyk, first baseman, one of the loop leaders, and young Neil Karthaus, catcher.

Bartelt Agency Sells Latin Room for $46,000

George Jaber's Latin Room and property at 22-24 North Main st. in Fond du Lac was sold to the Twentieth Century Investment company, Inc., Fond du Lac, on its high bid of $46,000 Saturday afternoon at an auction to settle a $73,649.64 tax lien against the owner. The property was seized by the federal government recently.

The bid was accepted by both Jaber, former owner of the business and property, and by Roy Hayes, U. S. attorney, who represented the government at the sale according to David C. Bartelt of the Bartelt Real Estate agency, Kewaskum, which was in charge of the auction.

Both men announced publicly before the group of more than 100 persons, that this price for the sale was satisfactory, according to Bartelt. This final sale was made at the third offer of the property by the Bartelt agency.

The first offer was for just the Latin room business, good will, fixtures, and liquor and beer licenses, together with personal property and approximately $4,000 worth of stock in liquor, beer, wine and soda. Bids on this offer began at $10,000 and only reached $11,000 before the offer was closed.

The second offer of the Bartelt agency was for the real estate. The final bid for this offer was $28,500 and offered two separate two-story brick buildings, each approximately 22x50 feet in size. Also sold were cigarette, juke box and amusement device routes comprised of approximately 70 locations. Bidding went slowly on this fourth item and the final bid accepted by both Jaber and Hayes was $21,000 made by the London Music company, Milwaukee.

Purchased were 73 juke boxes, 77 amusement games, and 73 cigar machines together with a 1953 model pickup truck, records and all equipment.

According to Ben Sadoff, spokesman for the investment company, the Latin Room business and property was bought "as an investment."

HAMMERHEAD SHARK

HAMMERHEAD SHARK
© 1953 National Wildlife Federation

Superficially this animal might look a bit like a shark carrying a bone horizontally in its mouth. Except for the head the lines of the animal are much like one would recognize as being the general average for sharks.

Hammerhead sharks in one species or another are found in warm seas near shore or offshore north as far as Maine in the Atlantic or to Japan in the Pacific. Three of the five species may be found off the California coast. Most conspicuous of those varying from the type shown here is the Bonnet-head Hammerhead Shark, whose head is somewhat spade shaped, and the Scalloped Hammerhead that has a rather pronounced notch in front. There are a number of fossil hammerhead sharks found in rocks from the Miocene to more recent times.

Our Hammerhead Shark reaches a length of 18 feet and a weight of 1500 pounds. A 12-1/2 foot animal weighs about 900 pounds. In such an animal the head may be 3 feet wide with eyes at the extremities and with the nostrils in a slit along the front of the snout. The tail is about 1/3 the total length of the fish with its upper lobe about 3 times as long as the lower. The first dorsal fin is high on the back.

There are records of Hammerhead Sharks attacking men in Australia and as far back as 1805 there is a record of an American hammerhead that had human flesh in its stomach. There was no evidence however that the man had been killed by the shark. As is so frequently the case, it is quite probable that the danger of these animals to man is greatly overemphasized.

Hammerhead Sharks are fast swimmers with exceptional ability to change direction suddenly. The head is probably used in helping make rapid changes in a vertical direction.

The teeth of Hammerhead Sharks are similar on the upper and lower jaws except that the upper jaw teeth are usually the larger. The teeth have saw-toothed edges.

The flesh of Hammerhead Sharks is fine-grained and in Japan is considered a delicacy so there is no doubt but that there are more men who eat sharks than there are Hammerhead Sharks that eat men. The skin of these sharks is of fine quality and makes good leather. The liver is of great value in producing oil of medicinal value. Like most sharks the Hammerhead has a rugged constitution and a dogged desire to keep alive and free. Because of this hardness Hammerheads are considered to be among the best of the sport fishes of their environment.

Hammerhead Sharks feed largely on fishes, squids, crabs, sting-rays and barnacles, which they are easily able to capture under ordinary circumstances.

To most persons a shark is most quickly noticed because of the fins that are usually dark

'Gone With The Wind' Now On Wide Screen

New York theater patrons were recently surprised to see an announcement in the New York Times, telling of the re-release of the picture which set new attendance records in all parts of the United States, and abroad. The picture, of course, is Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With The Wind."

This three-hour and forty-minute moving picture won 10 Academy awards and has already been brought back several times by the film industry. This time, though, it will appear on a wide screen and with a new-type sound for the first time in many theaters.

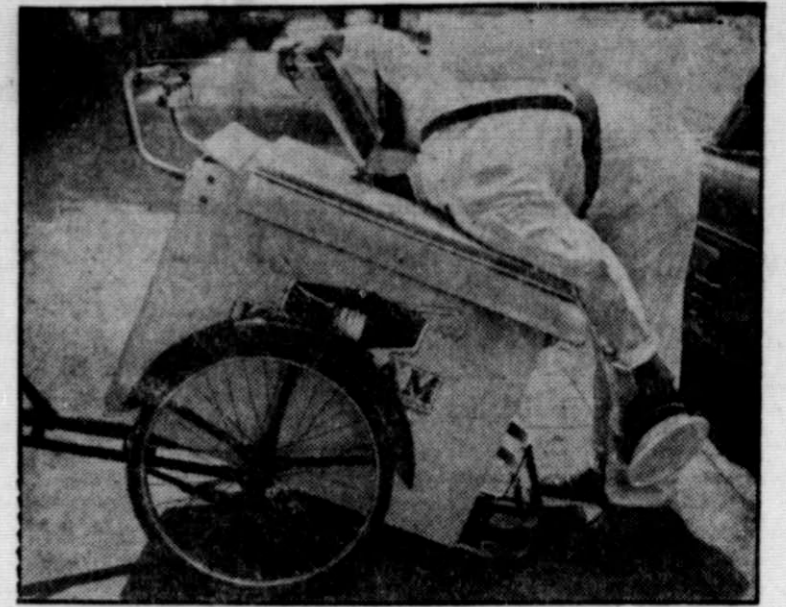

Those who do not understand tipped, this being most conspicuous in the large, paired fins which appear forward on the fish.

the particular appeal of this story and picture overlook the fact that it represents the only case of a dying country recorded within these United States in all our history. The picture portrays not only the death of a country, but the death of a way of life, which is never to return.

Its producers claim it is the greatest motion picture ever made and it has held the record for receipts for many years, until costly, wide-screen and new-type pictures have challenged its position. Perhaps the re-release of this film classic will once again give "Gone With The Wind" a comfortable lead in the money-making field.

"Mister Fixum's Handy Hints"

BY ERNIE GARDNER

This is the time of the year when people build and use outdoor grills or fireplaces. With the ready built grill units which can be bought very reasonably, the home workman need not worry about construction. It should work perfectly when enclosed with any kind of masonry, and with a chimney added.

The plan illustrated is more elaborate than is necessary. But it is not too difficult for the home workman, and you may simplify the design as much as you like.

You will probably have better draft if you locate the grill so that the prevailing winds blow toward the front.

The grill, as illustrated, will be quite heavy. Therefore, a strong base is necessary. Make it of poured, reinforced concrete. Be sure it is level. Have four inches below, and two inches above ground level.

Lay two courses of brick as illustrated, or three courses of ordinary bond.

The Grill Unit: Set the grill unit in place. Cement in the ash pit. Slope the cement so that rain water will run out the ash pit door.

The illustration shows a double brick wall on both sides of the grill unit, and flue lining used for storage space.

It does not matter whether you use the flue lining or not. But you should have a double wall because of the heat.

Lay both inside and outside walls up to the grates of the grill unit. The wall may be made of either brick or stone.

It is not necessary to fill the space below the flue lining with cement. But if you do not, and care to use the flue lining, cross walls must be laid to support the joints of the flue lining.

Line the inside of the firebox with fire brick. Ordinary brick and mortar will crumble with the intense heat.

Use fire clay instead of mortar to lay up the fire brick. Buy a bag of fire clay from a masonry supplies dealer. Mix the fire clay with water until you get a thin mortar. Dip the fire brick in the mortar. Apply enough extra clay with the trowel to seal all joints.

Lay the fire brick wall all the way up to the top of the fireplace unit.

Lay up the outside wall to the same height, enclosing the flue tile if desired.

Lay a strip of angle iron across the fire brick wall, and at the end of the grill unit. This is to support the front of the chimney.

Cement in the space under the chimney flue, and curve the cement up toward the flue. It is also wise to lay fire brick in the bottom, back of the fireplace unit.

Build forms for the cement top, leaving an opening at the back for the flue. Make sure the opening is small enough to support the flue lining.

Lay up the chimney in any pattern desired. Make sure it has a wall underneath for support, and that the front is supported by the angle iron.

Keep the cement top clean and in good condition by painting with cement base paint.

Handy Jim's FIX-UP TIPS For Farm and Home

Is House Number Legible?
IS YOUR house number doing its work? If it isn't visible, day or night, you're due for a change!

You can make a distinctive set of house numbers easily. The only materials needed are some Masonite Tempered Presdwood and a key-hole saw, which cuts curves.

First, design the letters so they are of the correct size in proportion to the house and entrance—but large enough to be visible from the street. Transfer the design to the tempered hardboard, 1/4" thick, and start cutting.

Sand down any rough edges. The numerals may be mounted directly on the siding, using waterproof glue or finishing nails, or placed on a piece of shaped hardwood.

Paint the Tempered Presdwood on both sides, for weatherproofing reasons, before putting the numbers up. For a reflective surface, obtain from your hardware dealer tiny glass beads or a special tape.

Some families, particularly in outlying areas, like to identify their homes with nameplates. These may be similarly made and mounted on a board, which is fastened to a tree out in front or hung from a post. An even easier method, suitable for the summer cottage, is painting the name directly on a piece of primed Tempered Presdwood, either free-hand or with stencils.

Still another method is to mount decalcomanias on hardboard, using individual letters or numerals. Two or three coats of waterproof varnish or shellac will safeguard the nameplate and number for years.

NURSERY-STYLED—White-and-blue-striped terry cloth makes a cool, comfortable suit for Baby to wear on hot summer days. Styled by Thomas of New York, it features plastic-lined shorts, with gripper fasteners for the young "quick-change" artist, and washes and dries in a jiffy.

Make A Coconut Shortcake For Him!

Looking for something new for dessert? Add toasted coconut to a shortcake recipe. What better way to give the man in your life a special treat! He will ask for seconds when you serve this short, short, shortcake, with its crunchy coconut and its delicious blueberry sauce. A fluff of whipped cream adds to the eye appeal... and be sure to have a side dish of the coconut to pass—for second helpings.

Blueberry Coconut Shortcake
3 cups sifted flour 1/2 cup shortening
3 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder 1 1/2 cups shredded coconut, toasted
3 tablespoons sugar 1 cup milk, about
1 teaspoon salt
Blueberry Topping
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, sugar, salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening until consistency of coarse corn meal. Add 3/4 cup of the coconut and mix well. Add milk all at once and stir until soft dough is formed.
Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 20 times. Divide dough in half and pat 1/2 inch thick in two greased 9-inch square layer pans. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) for 20 minutes, or until done.
Cut each cake in 9 or 12 squares and spread squares with softened butter. Put together as individual shortcakes, spreading Blueberry Topping between layers and over tops. Garnish with whipped cream and remaining 3/4 cup of coconut. Makes 9 or 12 servings.
Blueberry Topping: Combine 1 1/4 quarts fresh blueberries, 3/4 cup sugar, 3 lemon slices, and 1/2 cup water in saucepan. Place over low heat and bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Cool, then remove lemon slices.

Black and White Study of Colored TV

The growing use of television as an educational tool is described in a recent study put out by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. With the advent of color, telecasts are being used more successfully in medical and surgical instruction, UNESCO says. Although black and white TV is still best known to the consumer, the manufacture of equipment for colorcasts is going ahead, as can be seen from the above workers who are assembling color television cameras in an RCA plant in the United States.

PUDDLES TEAM IS "NOSED OUT" BY WEST BEND 23-0

The Kewaskum Puddles team's game at West Bend last Thursday reminds us of an old baseball joke: Passerby: "What's the score?" Boy: "23 to 0." Passerby: "Isn't that sort of lopsided?" Boy: "Nope, we ain't had our bat yet."

Anyway 23-0 was the final score of Thursday's abbreviated contest which was called after five long innings with West Bend causing the game to last so long. Who knows what the score would have been in 9 innings?

The victory moved West Bend a step closer to the championship. The winners blasted out 17 hits while Kewaskum was held to 3 by June Giombetti. West Bend started right out with a slight rally in the 1st inning. They batted around nearly twice and shoved across 12 runs. West Bend scored 7 more in the 2nd to make the score 19-0 after 2 frames.

Kewaskum came closest to scoring in the 1st inning, in which they got 2 of their 3 hits. Puerling doubled and Rosenheimer singled. The bases were loaded when Giombetti fanned Runte.

APPLE DESSERT CONTEST TO BE HELD IN COUNTY

An apple dessert contest is being planned in Washington county in late August or early September. Thursday, August 12, at 8:00 p. m., a county planning meeting will be held in the court house in West Bend. Committee members and any others interested in the contest are welcome to attend.

Committee members in charge of the Washington county contest are Joseph Morawetz, Miss Clara Jaehning, Mrs. Lawrence Fellenz, Mrs. John Diedrich, Mrs. William Buchelt, Mrs. Beverly Johnson, Miss Lenore Zinn, Miss Myra Fierek, and E. E. Skalskey.

The contest will be sponsored by Washington County's Fruit Growers' Association, the county extension office, and the Wisconsin Apple Institute.

Any person 14 years of age or older may enter the contest by writing the county home agent, Myra Fierek, P. O. Building, West Bend. Complete information with rules will then be sent to each applicant.

The winners will be awarded prizes and the first place winner will be eligible to enter the state contest, Friday, Sept. 24, at Plymouth.

Each entrant in the county will present a 15 minute demonstration on how to make a baked apple dessert such as apple cobbler, apple strudel, apple torte, etc.

Objectives of this contest are to increase interest in good apple cookery, to promote apples and their use; and to provide a wholesome and interesting summer project for boys and girls. Let's try to make Washington county's contest a big success.

Poise, that much admired, much desired quality, includes many things, says Betty Ann. Among them are correct carriage and a well modulated voice. And you can learn these as well as you learned to dress smartly.

One way to give a well-mannered sheath a refreshing change is to add a dash of flamboyancy with giant polka dots. Perennially popular, polka dots this season are in special favor for accessories.

You might drape a scarf around your neck, catching it with a pin over one shoulder. Or wrap it high at the waistline to point up an empire line.

For an ensemble effect, drape a smaller version of the scarf around a plain straw hat. This can be done most effectively with a pillbox or turban type.

Taking baby to the doctor can become an ordeal. He may fuss, become bored with his toys, want only those of the other children. To prevent this, excite his interest by offering him "new" toys during each visit.

These toys, of course, will only seem new to him. Actually, they'll be ones he has tired of and which you have stored away for such occasions.

Babies' memories are short, so he'll be as delighted with them as with brand new ones.

The mother who doesn't impress her son with the need for writing thank you letters for gifts is likely to see him grow into a man takes everything for granted. Failing to say "thank you" is the quickest way in the world to cut down on the favors that come one's way.

HONEY ALMOND CAKE

Cream filling: 6 tablespoons flour; 1/2 cup sugar; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 2 cups milk; 2 eggs, beaten; 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix together in top of double boiler flour, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thickened, about 15 minutes. Stir slowly into eggs, beaten. Return to top of double boiler and cook over hot water for three minutes longer. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Cool until thick enough to spread.

Divide sweet dough in half, form each half into smooth ball. Place in greased eight inch layer cake pan. Cover. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk. Straight dough method about one hour; action quick dough about 30 minutes.

Honey sirup: 1/4 cup sugar; 1/2 cup honey; 2 tablespoons margarine or butter; 4 tablespoons slivered blanched almonds for top. Bring to boil in saucepan sugar, honey and margarine or butter. Brush tops of cakes with half of honey sirup. Sprinkle on each cake two tablespoons slivered, blanched almonds. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees about 35 minutes. Brush cakes while still hot with remaining sirup. Cool. Slice each into two layers; fill with cream filling. Makes two cakes.

A plain icing tops these palm leaf rolls also made with the sweet dough.

CLOVERLEAF ROLLS

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry; 1/4 cup water (lukewarm for compressed yeast, warm for dry); 1 cup milk; 1/2 cup sugar; 2 teaspoons salt; 1/4 cup shortening; 2 eggs; 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (if desired); 5 cups sifted enriched flour (about); melted butter or margarine. Soften yeast in water. Scald milk. Add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Mix well. Add softened yeast, egg and lemon rind. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny. Place in greased bowl, cover and let rise in warm place until doubled (about one and one-half hours). When light, punch down. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough into small pieces and form into smooth balls. Dip each ball into melted butter or margarine and place three balls in each section of greased two inch muffin pans. Let rise until doubled (about 45 minutes). Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about three and one-half dozen rolls.

About Your Home

By FRANCES DELL

Today bedrooms lead a round-the-clock life. High building costs have moved the dining room into the living room, have combined the kitchen, laundry and breakfast rooms and made the study double as a guest room. For this same good reason, a lot of smart people are making the bedroom take twenty-four-hour living.

Children's bedrooms, fitted with built-in toy space and a desk and a television will become their favorite room and they will want to stay there.

If one room must do for two children, use an accordion partition which folds back to convert the room into one big playroom. At night, when the partition is closed, two children have individual sleeping quarters.

The modern master bedroom has a sitting-room look. A writing desk and comfortable chairs make it an inviting spot to relax in during the day.

Bathrooms, with double basins and a screened-off toilet and bathing space, serves as two bathrooms for the family.

These new ideas are working for hundreds of families in the U. S. If you are thinking of building, you will be wise to give some thought to this new business of making one room do for two.

Your Children's Feet Demand Best of Care

By EDNA MILES

MOST children are born with perfect feet. But about 50 per cent of all 10-year-old children suffer from foot trouble. The reason for this is, of course, improper foot care.

This means many things. It means that young, growing feet are not properly refitted every two or three months. It means that shoes are passed along in a family from one child to another, for economy's sake.

And since foot shapes and stance differ greatly even in the same family, what's a good fit for one child may do real harm to another.

Many parents look for sturdy leather in children's shoes. Actually, leather should be soft and flexible, not just tough and long-wearing. Thick, heavy, inflexible leather can cause blisters that open the way to foot troubles.

Shoe linings, too, are important. Children's shoes without lining are false economy. A lining is necessary to absorb and evaporate perspiration.

One new "wonder lining" is now available in many children's shoes. It's a smooth, long-wearing cotton that's been chemically treated, its makers claim, to resist bacteria and the weakening effects of perspiration.

All good cowboys care for their feet, and this buckaroo wears boots with kind-on-the-foot cotton lining.

Factual News About The Eyes

It isn't necessary to have a swarm of insects flying around your porch light on spring and summer evenings, says the Better Vision Institute. Just pick the right kind of light bulb and you can conquer this annoying problem.

The eyes of nocturnal flying insects are sensitive only to blue light and to near-ultraviolet rays. So a bulb which does not produce either of these types of light will fail to attract the bugs. But don't be deceived by appearances. Most lamps produce a mixture of color which includes some blue, even if their predominant hue is very different. Yellow is generally used for anti-bug lamps, since it not only screens out blue rays but is well adapted to the human eye. However, the bugs are equally impervious to red and orange. In the fluorescent field, only gold will be ignored by insects.

So it's all up to you, the Institute concludes. You can put out a "welcome" light for the bugs or go in hiding from them, according to your choice of bulb.

Prepare Child For Visit To The Doctor

Whether or not a child enjoys his visits to the doctor depends to a considerable extent on his parents' attitude. Most important of all, says child expert Irma Simonton Black in Redbook Magazine, they must always be frank about his appointments with the doctor and about any pain involved. She suggests ways in which parents may get their child to cooperate happily with the doctor:

"Going to the doctor is not always a pleasant experience. All children feel some pain during and after immunization, and thorough examinations are sometimes uncomfortable. But if you create the proper mood, you may even find your child looking forward to his visits to the doctor.

"Here are a few suggestions. "Tell your child the truth about where he is going when you set out for the doctor's office. If he's due for a shot or a blood test and he asks, 'Will it hurt?' admit that it may hurt for a second. But remind him that it's no more than a mosquito bite, and change the subject.

"Stay calm if your child acts up a few times. Your child will get over his fears sooner if you are not frowning at him and adding your disapproval to his problems.

"If it's necessary to hold him while he is getting a shot, do it. But don't shame him about it. "Sometimes your child can be diverted into cooperation. A couple of tongue depressors, a moment on the big scales, may make him forget his worries. It often helps, too, if you take along one of your child's cherished possessions, like a favorite doll or Teddy bear.

"Never, under any circumstances, threaten your child: 'If you don't behave, I'll call the doctor!' Such tactics are not only inexcusable but dangerous.

"Many doctors today routinely offer their young patients a lollipop or some small toy at the end of the examination. If yours does not follow this custom, take one along in your purse to insure a happy end to the visit."

Doctors Find Age Is No Bar To Surgery

Just how soon do you get too old to have an operation? A bulletin says the doctors aren't too sure about the centenarians. But you can have an operation, and enjoy it, right up to and including the 80's, and maybe after that.

The point the doctors make in the bulletin involves the time when the surgery is done, not the age of the patient.

It is even more important for the elderly than for young people to have fractures and surgical emergencies attended to promptly, the bulletin says. Older people have smaller reserves to combat the effects of fractures, cancer, bowel obstructions and prostatic troubles, and the sooner repairs are undertaken the better.

New anesthetics, new methods for forestalling the pneumonias that used to be a major surgical hazard, and of protecting hearts and preventing malnutrition and dehydration have made surgery just about as safe for the old as for the young, the doctors say. And what is more, surgery in the aged has provided more than a fruitful subject of conversation. It has restored a great many people to vigor and self-sufficiency who would otherwise have faded into hopeless invalidism.

They base their opinion on experience and, especially, on an extensive study reported recently of nearly 2,000 patients past 60 who underwent surgery at the Illinois Research Hospital. Only five out of 100 among 1,099 patients in this study failed to get well; and this was a run-of-the-mill study which included the usual number of cases for whom there would be little hope at any age. It was the opinion of the doctors who carefully reviewed each case that no greater risk is involved for patients over 60 than for patients under 60, provided they are properly prepared for operation and if the doctors get a chance to step in early instead of late in the course of the operative emergency.

Positive Thinking And Action Make 'The Good Life'

WHAT is the conception of the good life, the best life of all, as we see it set forth and exemplified in the teaching and example of Jesus?

Though there are profound and striking exceptions, there have been many followers of Jesus who, inspired by Him, have lived lives of conspicuous devotion and service. In our own time there have been men like Father Damien of Molokai, and Sir Wilfred Grenfell of Labrador; women like Jane Addams of Chicago.

And their name, in spite of all the shortcomings of professed Christians, has been legion; for many unknown to fame have not been unknown to God for their sincerity and goodness.

But in general the emphasis in historic Christianity and the church has been negative, rather than positive. It has been upon sins, rather than upon the great, positive expressions and acts of righteousness and truth.

If one doubts this, he need only make wide observation of life to see how many lives of "good" men and women, well-intentioned and free from evil, are none the less inconspicuous for evidence of the "fruit of the Spirit."

The thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians, next to the Sermon on the Mount the greatest sermon ever written, in its simplicity, conciseness and brevity, makes plain the nature of the good life as the Apostle Paul, learned it from His Master.

In the positive emphasis upon the good life, such as Jesus made, there is no danger that there will be less inhibition against sin and sins.

The positive attuning of the heart to truth and righteousness is, in fact, the surest guarantee that one's life will be inwardly and outwardly correct. A world concentrating more upon righteousness and the spirit and acts of love will be, correspondingly, a world freer from sin and evil.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

A snapshot such as this, of the youngster at play, deserves a place in the family album, right along side the special event pictures.

Everyday Snapshots Have Their Place in the Family Album

IF you don't personally remember the days when every home had a parlor that was opened only on special occasions and never used for everyday family living, I'm certain you've heard about it.

Well, a lot of people still keep the family camera in a similar sort of classification. And in doing that, they are just as out of date as a ranch type house would be with a Victorian parlor.

Furthermore, they're missing good pictures every day. Pictures of the kind that would be so nice to have in the years to come. Pictures that help us remember the little things that actually make up so much larger a part of family life than the special events.

Even the simple modern cameras are equipped for synchronized flash. This means your everyday snapshotting can follow family activities indoors and out—whether it is putting the finishing touches of paint on the new rumpus room in the basement; or of the small fry modeling the clothes they've pulled from an old trunk.

While it is certainly possible to pose good pictures in a given situation, the ones that almost invariably turn out the best are the ones that are taken when something happens naturally.

These everyday pictures can be made with or without special purpose. Personally, we'd recommend taking them merely for the family record purpose and then putting them to various special uses. One of these might be as enclosures in letters to members of the family who are far from home—the older children away at school or in service. Granted, they'll like any snapshot you send them, but the pictures that show everyday family activities are the ones that will bring back the most memories. —John Van Gulder

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Right now is a good time to do some target shooting in preparation for fall hunting. Get your gun all sighted-in now and while you're doing this you'll spot any necessary repairs or alterations. Use the same ammunition you intend to hunt with. Then just before you go hunting all you need do is take a few confirming shots for final adjustment.

When you're sighting-in your rifle, try to get as steady a position as possible to lessen the human error. This is an absolute necessity in establishing a good sight setting. If you are sighting-in for long-range shooting where you intend to make use of a sling in the prone position, you'll be wise to use a sling when sighting-in.

To help steady your hold, it won't hurt to rest the fore-end on a sand or sawdust bag. Pete Brown reported in Sports Afield magazine he had found that after sighting-in over a sandbag he shot to the same center of impact in his normal shooting position in the field.

He writes "It is generally conceded that the center of impact will change with the way a rifle is supported when it's fired. I have often heard and read that you shouldn't hold your rifle against the side of a tree or rest it on a log when you're shooting at game. I have never hesitated to rest my rifle against a tree or over a log if it helped me get off a well-aimed shot at game within about 200 yards.

"To check my idea, I made a little test with a light-barreled 7 1/4-pound .270 and a Model 336 lever-action chambered for the .30-30 cartridge. First, I sighted both guns over a sandbag rest with the fore-end resting on the sandbag. I then fired two 10-shot groups for center of impact while resting the rifles snugly alongside of a tree, and while resting the fore-end over a log. These different methods of holding the rifle made very little difference in the center of impact and would not have prevented me from placing a well-aimed bullet.

"To top off the test I also rested not the fore-end, but the barrel itself, over a log and fired a group. To my surprise this moved the center of impact only 1 1/4 inches above the center of impact previously determined over the sandbag rest. At 200 yards this would have boosted the center of impact only 2 1/2 inches.

"Nevertheless, it is a good practice to refrain from resting the barrel on a log for a steady influence if you can avoid it. The results will not always be the same because individual rifles may prove to be more sensitive to the method of holding or type of steady rest."

Independent Colleges Need Monetary Gifts

In the past business corporations have been slow to support the independent colleges, since many of them are liberal art institutions. Businessmen have chosen, instead, to make gifts to institutions preparing men and women directly for industrial jobs.

Recently, however, business leaders discovered that the liberal arts colleges benefit business enterprise just as directly as do the trade schools. They point to the high percentage of business executives trained in the liberal arts colleges as justification for corporation gifts. Also, they have begun to regard the non-tax supported colleges as representing free enterprise in the educational world.

Business giving to the colleges seems necessary because of financial troubles which have plagued even the strongest private colleges since 1945. These troubles were caused largely by inflation which doubled educational costs and by reduced endowment funds. In 1942 private colleges paid one-fourth of their expenses with earnings from endowment funds. Today they are able to pay only slightly more than 10 percent.

College financing is further complicated by the fact that almost every college loses money on each student. To charge the full amount necessary to cover costs would limit higher education to the wealthy and eventually destroy our American system of democracy.

Barrier Broken On Four-Minute Mile

It is odd, in the history of sports, how a record stands in the books for many years, until it becomes almost a psychological barrier.

That is what seemingly happened in the track world for many years and though there was much talk of the four-minute mile, no one ever seemed able to achieve it. There were even those who said that man would never run a four-minute mile, and indeed no miler had ever been able to achieve this feat until recently.

However, once the magic barrier was broken, the feat seemed to lose some of its awe. Roger Bannister, an English track star, recently broke the famous barrier by running the first four-minute mile in history. He did it by running a mile in 3 minutes 59.4 seconds at Oxford, England, on May 6th.

Six weeks later Australian miler, John Landy, running in Turku, Finland, surpassed Bannister's mark by more than a second, becoming the second miler to run the distance in less than four minutes, and becoming the new world record holder. Thus Bannister's long-cherished feat, one which some experts thought never would be achieved, remained in the record books only six or seven short weeks.

Landy's new record is three minutes and 58 seconds. It proves that the human species is progressing physically, as well as mentally, and that coming generations will continue to surpass the achievements of their ancestors. The younger generation, it seems, manages to make progress in spite of all the dire predictions from members of older generations.

What Will Happen To Our Globe?

Evidently not over-impressed by the problems and perplexities which confront the human race, forward-looking astronomers sometimes speculate on what will eventually happen to the globe that we call the earth.

The experts generally agree that the most likely fate is that the sun will explode, shriveling the earth in a sudden, hot death. Other less likely fates include the cooling of the sun so that the earth will be frozen waste-land, the destruction of the earth because of a smash-up between our sun and another star, the destruction of the earth through a collision with a comet and the possibility that the moon might come so close to the earth as to create tidal waves and volcanoes to wipe out the habitation of man.

While people seem to be interested in the effort to understand the future, there is no occasion for anyone to become excited. The experts do not think that the sun will explode during the next billion years, or more.

GOOD READING PAYS OFF

The ability to read well is an important factor in modern living, the Better Vision Institute points out, and it is closely related to efficient eyesight. Consider the case of a certain 11-year-old boy.

When this youngster had completed the fourth grade, he could not meet the expected reading rate of 160 words per minute. The best he could do was 100 words per minute with 50% comprehension. He was made to repeat the fourth grade, and still his reading did not improve. Then he was placed in the care of an eyesight specialist, who discovered that he had a visual problem which inevitably impeded his reading. With the help of glasses and visual training under the specialist's direction, he raised his reading rate to 220 words a minute with 70% comprehension, thus coming close to high school requirements.

Not only did this boy's standing in school go up, as a result, but his home life took a turn for the better. He learned to hold his own with a younger sister who had been lording it over him because she was doing better in school than he.

CHINCHILLA SETBACK—Since 1923, when an American mining engineer brought eleven chinchillas to this country from Chile, more and more of the delicate little rodents have been bred in the expectation of huge profits from their fur. Demand for breeding stock has kept live animals' prices high, although no fur went to market.

The other day the first chinchilla auction was held in New York, with 11,000 pelts offered in 20-skin bundles. The first bundle sold at $175 per skin, but before the day was over the average was down to $45 a skin, with half the bundles unsold.

Fur market habitues said there were only 15 chinchilla cutters in New York, and that fur manufacturers didn't like to pay high prices for their cutters to get practice.

One of the handiest yard clean-up aids is the new, lightweight galvanized steel utility basket, sturdily-built to last year after year. The women and youngsters can carry such a basket, even when it's filled with debris, because of its light, durable construction.

HERE'S HOW . . .

Remodeling the attic is a challenge to the craftsman, and the possibilities for development are endless.

Before he starts, the craftsman should see his local lumber dealer for advice on how to take advantage of the existing structure, and on how to save money by the wise use of lumber.

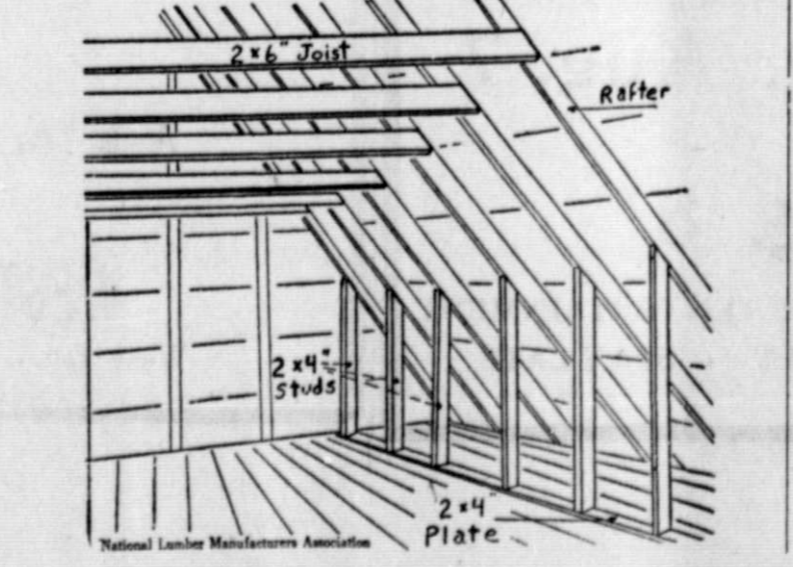

The drawing shows the addition of the joists and studs to which ceiling and walls will be fastened. This work must be done carefully, and checked for alignment with a carpenter's level.

Ceiling joists are of 2 by 6-inch lumber for spans over 10 feet long. For shorter spans, 2 by 4's may be used.

Wall studs are 2 by 4's, extending from a 2 by 4 plate on the floor to meet the rafters at a suggested height of not less than 5 feet.

County Fair 4-H Blue Ribbon Winners Listed

4-H girls really did their share in making the county fair activities successful. 27 girls participated in the demonstration contest held Friday afternoon and evening. Many of them presented a topic including dairy foods. These girls deserve credit for the fine demonstrations they gave.
