

John Tessar Wed to Miss Wickert

The altar of Trinity English Lutheran church, West Bend, was decorated with gladioli for the nuptial ceremony at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Aug. 28, in which Miss Mary Ann Wickert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wickert, Barton, became the bride of John R. Tessar, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Tessar, Kewaskum. The Rev. R. W. Groth performed the wedding rite.

During the service Mrs. H. Lay rendered two vocal selections, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because." Mrs. Kuss presided at the organ.

The bride wore a white nylon tulle over taffeta gown of floor length fashioned with a portrait neckline, and bodice of pearls and iridescent embroidered alencon lace. A half hat of seed pearls and iridescents held her waist length veil of illusion. A white orchid with Stephanotis was fastened to her prayer book. She wore pearls which were a gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor, Miss Maxine Wentz, was attired in a ballerina length gown of toast color crystalline, topped with a brief jacket. Her flowers were rust chrysanthemums and tea roses. The bridesmaids, Janice (Mrs. James) Wickert and Adeline (Mrs. Wayland) Tessar, wore identical gowns in fantasy green crystalline. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums and tea roses. All had flowers in their hair to match their bouquets. The bridesmaids also wore pearls, which were gifts of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a dior blue jacket suit dress with navy blue accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a brown sheath dress, with dusty rose hat and gloves to match. Both wore orchids.

Attending the bridegroom were Thomas Tessar as best man and James A. Wickert and Donald Lutz as groomsmen. Guests were seated by Wayland Tessar and Allen Tessar.

Following the ceremony dinner was served to 55 guests in the Trinity English Lutheran church hall and an evening reception for 250 guests was held at Forest Lake resort. After a two week wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Tessar will be at home in Kewaskum after Sept. 12.

The bride graduated from West Bend High school and was employed at the Barton Products Corp. The bridegroom is a graduate of Kewaskum High school, where he excelled in sports, and is employed at Regal Ware, Inc. He served in the army for two years and spent 14 months in Korea.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Braun, R. 2, Kewaskum.

The bride's colonial style gown was fashioned with a chantilly lace bodice with a tiny collar outlined with sequins. The full skirt was fashioned of tiers of nylon tulle. White carnations and red roses were combined in her bouquet.

The maid of honor, Miss Katherine Braun, and the bridesmaids, Florence Clark, June Bierzter and Ann Matzner, were identically dressed in ice blue gowns of net over taffeta, with three tiers of ruffles cascading down the back of the bouffant skirts. Their flowers were red carnations and white pom poms. Little Miss Kathleen Braun was the flower girl.

Child Guidance Center for County Discussed

A large group of people from Ozaukee and Washington counties met Thursday, August 26, at the court house in West Bend to discuss plans for a possible bi-county Child Guidance Center. A. R. Abramovitz, clinical psychologist with the State Board of Health conducted the meeting. Needs for this type of center, its purpose and cost to the two counties were discussed.

At the present time the State Board of Health has funds available to furnish part of the personnel for a Child Guidance Center on a demonstration basis somewhere in Wisconsin. This opportunity is being offered to the Washington and Ozaukee county areas. The purpose of the demonstration is to promote mental health services for the communities.

The staff of a Child Guidance Center consists of a psychiatrist, a clinical psychologist and a psychiatric social worker. During the demonstration period, the State Board of Health would pay the salaries of the clinical psychologist and the psychiatric social worker. The cost of the services of the psychiatrist and the housing facilities would be borne by the two counties.

The purpose of the Child Guidance Center is to make expert help available to parents and children when they need it. Minor problems of behavior arise in all age groups of children at home, in the school and in the community. Serious trouble can be prevented when these problems of behavior are understood as disturbances in the child's life which he is not capable of handling. Expert study and diagnosis is needed to understand the situation in the home, school or community which is causing the child to react emotionally. After the cause is discovered help can be given.

In addition to giving individual service to those in need, a program of health education is carried on in the community to enable those working closely with children to recognize early symptoms of emotional disturbance.

Eighteen counties in Wisconsin have established guidance centers to serve their communities.

The meeting held at the court house on Thursday to discuss plans was attended by representatives of the Medical society, educational and civic groups, clergy, members of the county boards and other interested lay and professional people. A chairman of the group was selected and a steering committee will be appointed to study the matter and propose it to the two county board groups for consideration.

The Bi-County Medical society has advised that they will give promotion of this health project their full approval and co-operation.

Local Kiwanis Club Tops District in Attendance

The Kewaskum Kiwanis club heard an informative, and thought inspiring message from Clyde Schloemer, West Bend attorney and gentleman farmer, at their weekly meeting last Monday evening. Mr. Schloemer not only explained today's agricultural problems thoroughly, but also made some very concrete suggestions as to how these problems could be solved. In Mr. Schloemer's opinion, the future of our farm population rests on the shoulders of the farmer, the city businessmen, with a little guidance from the government—not on a political party.

Ninety-two per cent attendance for the month of July placed the Kewaskum Kiwanis club at the top of the list for the whole Wisconsin-Upper Michigan district.

OUR DEMOCRACY—by Mat

"In God we trust"

THIS AFFIRMATION OF FAITH HAS COME DOWN TO US THROUGH THE OLD TESTAMENT, THE NEW TESTAMENT, OUR PARENTS' TEACHINGS, OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM—AND EVEN ON OUR COINS.

Seven Signals Of Alcoholism

There are a number of people in every community, who are on the road to becoming alcoholics. In most cases, these individuals are the last ones to realize they are going down the road to alcoholism.

Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, University of Illinois physiologist, recently listed seven warning signs of alcoholism. Here they are:

1. Sneaking extra drinks. Hanging around the punch bowl to help serve—and drink.
2. Feeling the need for a drink to start a business day or conference.
3. Need for a drink at a certain time in the day.
4. Irritability about drinking, or being deprived of something to drink.
5. Drinking alone.
6. Drinking to prevent hands from trembling, or to ease tension.
7. Steadily increasing daily doses.

While some may partake of alcoholic drinks for one or more of the above reasons, and not be on the road to alcoholism, others drinking for one or more of the reasons listed above, are on the road to uncontrolled alcoholism. There is no way to tell who will become an alcoholic and who will not, but the warning signs listed above should provide you with a valuable yardstick.

Dr. Ivy believes the only sure way to avoid the signs he lists is to abstain from all alcoholic drinks. If there is any doubt in your mind about avoiding the above symptoms, we would advise you to take Dr. Ivy's advice and follow the only "sure" way to steer clear of alcoholism.

Recently the world's fastest Atlantic super-liner, the United States, completed its ninety-eighth crossing of the Atlantic and two years of service. It was just two years ago that the United States broke the Atlantic passenger-ship record on its initial run.

HOW TO INCREASE THE SIZE OF THE PORCH

Many have complained of the size of porch slabs on the new houses for sale today. If you have a porch slab that is too small, you may have it larger, and do the job yourself.

The first thing to consider is the footing. It must be solid. If you live in a climate where the ground freezes in winter, the footing should be below frost level. In any climate it should be at least 24" deep to prevent rats from burrowing underneath. If the lawn around your porch has been freshly graded, dig down to solid earth for the footing.

The footing needs to be only about 12" wide and 4" thick. On top of the footing, lay up a cement block wall even with, or just below the surface of the lawn. The depth of the footing must be such that you will come out at the correct height with the cement blocks. Cement blocks lay up eight inches. Four inch cap blocks may be used to adjust the height of the wall.

If you wish to increase the width of the porch over the original steps, be sure to knock off the first row of brick. Otherwise, leave as illustrated.

The wall of the porch above the lawn may be either brick or cement block, to match the rest of the house or porch.

Use regular brick mortar in laying up the wall. You will find that it works much better than regular cement mortar. Use about three parts sand to one of mortar mixture. Lay up the wall to the same height as the old wall.

Build forms as illustrated. The new slab should be at least 4" thick.

Fill the space inside the new wall with loose rubble or sand.

Use steel reinforcement rods as illustrated.

When you are ready to pour the slab, I suggest that you use ready mixed cement. By the term "Ready Mix," I mean cement that is delivered to you in a mixer truck, and ready to pour. Be sure you are ready to use it when the truck arrives.

If you cannot figure the amount of cement you will need, tell them the size of the slab and they will bring the right amount.

Buy Fitted Shoes For Painful Feet

Corns on the feet are usually reflected in lines between the eyes according to a bulletin on summer foot troubles issued recently.

Together with bunions and swollen feet they produce the most fiendish of all hot-weather-woes and the most easily avoided, the bulletin says.

It is true that feet often swell and perspire in hot weather but the remedy is simply to select shoes that are fitted properly to allow for it. That means shoes that avoid friction and chafing and have soles heavy enough to protect from callouses. If they are airy and cool, so much the better. It does not mean snug, high-heeled shoes with thin soles since high heels can be one of the most painful mortifications ever offered on the altar of foot styles in hot weather. High heels should be reserved exclusively for special occasions when it is cool and no walking is involved, in the opinion of the doctors.

Corns are the result of friction and the bunions or growths at the base of the big toe are the result of wearing shoes that are too short and too pointed. Both can be successfully treated but will inevitably return, the doctors say, if the ill-fitting unsuitable shoes are worn again.

To help abused feet stand the strain, the doctors recommend contrast baths, alternate soaking or spraying the feet with hot and cool water, followed by careful drying and dusting with powder afterwards. They also recommend scrupulous cleanliness of foot wear as well as feet.

Other foot ills which cannot be solved so simply may be the result of flat feet or injuries or other structural difficulties for which a doctor should prescribe.

Mrs. T. A.: Will house plants that are left in sleeping rooms at night, throw off poisonous gas?

ANSWER: Studies have shown that no harm will be produced in human beings from leaving flowers in a sleeping room at night.

Sarah Anne's COOKING CLASS TANGY CHEESEBURGERS

Nothing beats the Cheeseburger as an outdoor food. The Cheeseburger is one of the most individual as well as one of the most popular dishes to be made—rare or medium or well done according to the taste of the guest, with or without pickle, mustard and catsup. But we bet everyone will like this Tangy Cheese Topping. And two other things guests will enjoy along with them are fresh crisp flower-sliced radishes and tender young scallions. A third—a long, cool hot-weather drink of iced tea, easily done with instant tea.

Spread cooked hamburger patties with this Tangy Cheese Topping and broil until cheese bubbles and browns slightly. Serve on plain or toasted enriched yeast-raised buns. Cheeseburgers may also be grilled over an outdoor fire by the simple method of browning one side and putting the cheese mixture on that browned side and letting it melt as the second side cooks.

The Tangy Cheese Topping: One-quarter pound of grated Cheddar cheese; two tablespoons mayonnaise; two teaspoons prepared mustard; one teaspoon lemon juice; and one-half teaspoon celery salt. Blend all ingredients thoroughly.

To some hamburger means only meat cakes. To others it provides a number of ways to make more attractive meals. Give these recipes a try.

Healthful After School Snack

Going back to school after vacation takes some adjusting in the tummy department, too, as tots and teen-agers get used to regular hours with books. No matter what their ages, they are hungry when school is over, and they will find something to eat. So, it's a wise mother who provides a healthful snack that takes care of that yearning for food without spoiling appetites for the evening meal.

Make it a habit to have something appealing waiting for your small fry every day so they expect the snack, and hurry home for what you fix rather than stop on the way home to fill up on goodness knows what.

One suggestion for a healthful satisfying between school and supper snack is a tall glass of cool milk, with half a banana slice.

By Betty Ann

Editor, The Milwaukee Journal
Woman's Pages

One way teen agers can show maturity is to learn to select their own clothes, says Betty Ann. Taking a friend or two along on a shopping spree may be fun, but it's really unwise.

In addition to learning to rely on your own judgment, so important in all aspects of adult living, making a habit of shopping alone will help you to develop an individual style sense.

Instead of consulting friends on what to buy, consult fashion and grooming articles. Learn to understand your figure, how to tone down bad points, play up good ones.

Then interpret fashion news in the light of what you know about yourself. If you follow this plan, you'll be able to tell better than any friend what will look best on you.

And you'll be gradually developing your style sense, based on your familiarity with your personal needs and current fashion trends.

Expect to make some errors in the beginning, for that's how anything is learned.

Plan housework to avoid overworking any set of muscles. For instance, it is not wise to go from bending over a wash basin to bending over an ironing board. It is far less tiring switch from washing to hanging curtains or dusting pictures.

Short, broad feet look more graceful in shoes of one color that have a minimum of decoration. Shoes with bows across the instep, for example, should not be selected by the woman who has this problem.

Eye shadow is not so difficult to apply discreetly as some women think. After blending it in with your fingers, to get a perfectly smooth, soft look, all you need to do is go over it with a cotton tipped stick.

While the line grew at the bank teller's window, Mrs. X carried on a long conversation with the teller. He gave her no encouragement, but he couldn't get her to pick up her money and give the next person in line a chance to move up to the window without being rude.

You can remove rust from the corners of well used cake tins by dipping a raw potato in a pot cleanser and scouring them with it.

A handy knife rack is a real necessity in the kitchen. It will keep knives in good order and out of the drawers where the edges may become dulled or nicked. You can select your knife easily and avoid a possible painful cut at the same time.

Almond Coffee Cake
Batter: 1/2 cup shortening; 1 can (1-1/3 cups) sweetened condensed milk; 2 eggs; 1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour; 3 teaspoons baking powder; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/4 cup milk.

Cream shortening. Blend in condensed milk and beaten eggs. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with milk to creamed mixture. Spread batter in greased pan 13 by 9 1/2 by 2 inches. Cover with topping. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 25 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 12 three inch squares.

Topping: 1/3 cup chopped unblanched almonds; 1/4 cup granulated sugar; 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 tablespoon soft butter or margarine.
Blend almonds, sugar, cinnamon and butter until crumbly.

Meringue Shells
2 egg whites; 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar; 1/2 cup sugar.

Beat egg whites until foamy throughout. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Add sugar, two tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until meringue will stand in very stiff peaks.

Using a spoon or pastry tube, shape meringue in rounds on unglazed paper or baking sheet, making each about three to four inches in diameter and about one and one-half inches high. With a spoon make a depression in center of each. Bake in slow oven, 275 degrees, 45 to 50 minutes. Cool and remove from paper. Makes four to six meringues.

UNESCO Issues "Travel Coupons"

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has put into circulation a new "UNESCO Travel Coupon" which may overcome currency barriers to educational and cultural travel abroad.

The Travel Coupons, a form of international travelers' check provide the foreign exchange needed to enable travelers such as students, teachers and research workers to attend educational institutions and conferences in other countries.

Furthermore, the coupons enable travelers on educational, scientific or cultural business to obtain dollars, Swiss francs, or other needed currencies in exchange for the money of their own country. UNESCO's dollar reserves have made possible the issuance of these coupons to bridge what it calls a gap in the free cultural interchange of peoples.

Countries initially participating in the UNESCO travel coupon scheme are: Cambodia, Canada, El Salvador, France, Israel, Laos, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Uruguay, the United States and Vietnam.

Monarda fistulosa

A poet once wrote of "The spring of sweet melilot" and "The perfuming of bergamot." Somehow she chose the right words for interpreting the essence of these two plants though I happen to know that she would recognize neither in the field.

If you have heard of or know bee balm, horse mint or Oswego tea, you may have some idea of the general characters of the genus Monarda which includes our subject. Not infrequently the name "bergamot" is attached to whatever species of Monarda happens to be locally best known. Strangely enough it is also applied to the creeping whorled mint Mentha gentilis and its close relative Mentha aquatica. All of these plants have a fragrance so the poet did not miss the point. However it is quite probable that the name wild bergamot should be applied to the plant figured Monarda fistulosa. This species favors dry thickets and woodland borders and is found from southwestern Quebec and western New England south to upland Georgia and Alabama west to Minnesota and Texas. At least two varieties spread the species farther to the west and south into Saskatchewan and Mexico with some extending into British Columbia. In one form or another then it probably covers most of the United States.

To a botanist, wild bergamot is a member of the mint family. It reaches a height up to nearly 5 feet and may grow in great clumps of many stems which may branch in the upper areas. The leaves are a gray green that can be recognized by an experienced observer from a speeding train with some degree of certainty. The leaves are opposite, taper to a point at the free end, are borne on short petioles.

The flowers are borne in clusters at the joints in the upper part of the stem but for the most part are in clumps at the ends of the branches. They appear to be lilac or pinkish but in one variety are white. The corolla is over an inch long, finely hairy and in general as shown in the illustration. One cannot describe by word or picture the fragrance of these flowers.

Wild bergamot is not infrequently transplanted into gardens. Where this can be done without robbing the wild areas it is best done by transplanting shortly after flowering ceases. Plants may be started with some ease by using the seeds but young plants lack the vigor of old established ones.

Students of cells, the cytologists, might be interested in knowing that the chromosome number for wild bergamot is 32.

While bergamot are often found on open prairies some species like M. didyma, more commonly spoken of as Oswego tea or bee balm, favor shady areas. Some have recommended the use of the flowers and leaves in salads but to most the chief contribution in such cases is due to the color of the flowers. The flavor is just a bit too much for most persons.

The National Wildlife Federation favors reasonable protection of this interesting plant.—E. Laurence Palmer.

Salmon Rolls Are Delightful in Hot Weather

BY DOROTHY MADDOX

ALMOST everyone enjoys canned salmon. At our house, we use it a lot in summertime for refreshing salads with a heft. Fish, remember, is a source of top quality protein, equal to meat, cheese, fowl and eggs. Canned salmon, for example, is rich in calcium and phosphorus—and is plentiful in vitamins. So you see, when you use it in a hot-weather salad, you get good nutrition as well as eye appeal. The choice packs are the red salmon—Chinook, Sockeye and Coho. Try salmon salad in frankfurter rolls. Ever eat salmon slaw? Really good!

Salmon Rolls (4 servings)

One 1-pound can red salmon, 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice, 1/4 cup diced celery, 4 frankfurter rolls.

Flake salmon. Combine mayonnaise, salt, mustard and lemon or lime juice. Add celery to salmon and mix well. Split frankfurter rolls through center; lightly spread with additional mayonnaise.

Pile salmon mixture in rolls. If desired, garnish with capers and sliced stuffed olives.

Salmon Slaw (6 servings)

One 1-pound can salmon, flaked; 2 cups shredded cabbage, 1/2 cup diced celery, 1/4 cup chopped green pepper or drained pickle relish, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco, 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, salad greens.

Combine salmon, shredded cabbage, celery and green pepper or pickle relish. Mix together lemon juice, salt, Tabasco and mayonnaise and add to salmon mixture and toss lightly. Serve on salad greens. If desired, serve as filling for tomatoes.

Bible Comment:

God's Blessing Depends Not on Wealth, Poverty

THE rich young man who came to Jesus inquiring the way to eternal life has had an unenviable place in religious history.

Though we do not know his name, the Gospel incident has given him anonymous fame, and at the same time brought upon him much harsher judgment than he would seem to have deserved.

In correctness of life he was undoubtedly remarkable, for Jesus loved him and offered him a place in His small circle of immediate followers.

We should view the young man with a compassionate sadness, remembering that he went away sad, never again to enjoy the great possessions that had kept him from the greatest glory and treasure of all.

Other rich men who heard Christ's call, either from Jesus, Himself, or in the early days of the Christian church, made a better response than the rich young man.

But Christianity, despite the fact of some rich disciples and the "saints in Caesar's household," seems to have had its rise chiefly among the poor.

This association of Christianity with poverty, and the fact that later saints renounced wealth and worldliness to lead lives of devotion and service, has often led to a glorification of poverty that is not justified by the facts.

The blessings of poverty are often sung by those who have never known what it is to be poor.

Moreover, Christianity was built upon the heritage of the Old Testament, with a philosophy of abundance.

It was only when material prosperity led to unrighteousness and forgetfulness of God, the giver of all, that the prophets gave warning.

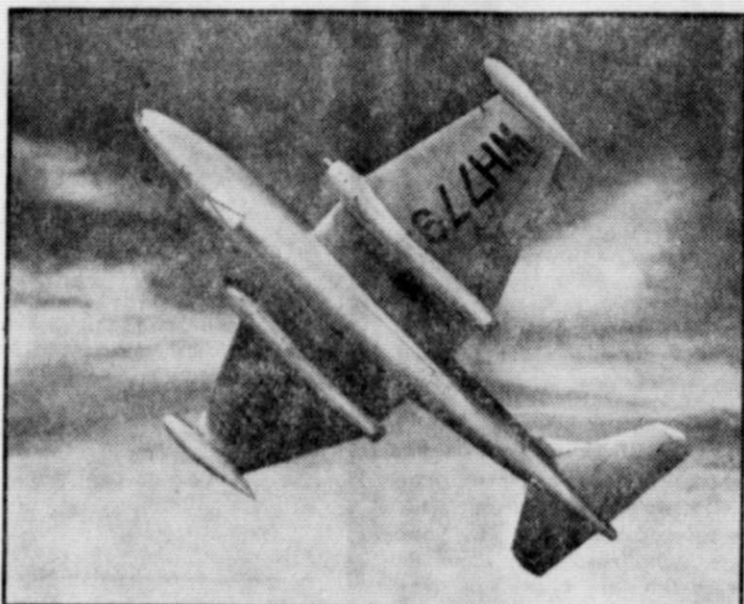

There is no blessing in either wealth or in poverty, but only in the blessedness that God bestows.

First production model of the craft, it was flown at least 300 hours in 25 days with only routine inspection and service, and stood up so well that an additional 100 hours was added before major take-down and inspection occurred.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

A low camera angle provided the neutral, and natural sky background for this shot.

The Importance of Background

WHEN you get an envelope of snapshots back from your photographer, have you noticed that in some of them your subject seems to stand out much more than in others? You may even have taken the two shots from the very same distance, yet in one the image seems much more prominent—even though it is the same size.

If you study these snaps closely, chances are you can easily spot the thing that makes the difference—it is the background. What shows behind your subject is almost as important as your subject itself. It is a factor that makes your picture outstanding if it is right—and can make your pictures most unsatisfactory indeed if it's wrong.

The best way we know to define a "wrong" background is to say that it is one that takes attention away from the subject. It is one that tends to confuse the viewer's eyes. You can't tell what you are really supposed to be looking at. Too many elements in the pic-

About Your Health & Beauty Home

By FRANCES DELL

On a hot autumn day most of us begin thinking up ways to do house work and stay cool in the process. Short of an air-conditioned house, this takes some thought.

If it is possible, have your main meal in the evening, after the house has cooled off several degrees. Choose dishes that require little or no cooking. They will be cooler to eat, as well as cooler to prepare.

The early morning hours are usually comfortable. Do all the cooking you can during this time. Prepare dishes that can be reheated in the evening.

When you are entertaining, try fixing steaks, fish or whatever you choose over charcoal in the yard. Outdoor cooking is becoming more and more popular in the United States. It is a delightful way to have guests to dinner, and a cool way, all in one.

There are many kinds of outdoor cookers on the market. Some are very expensive, some moderately priced and others very inexpensive. Also there are numerous recipe books giving directions for outdoor cooking of almost anything under the sun.

If you have to do your own house cleaning and ironing, try to clean early in the morning and iron at night. This will be a hot job whenever you do it, so the best policy is to keep a "stiff upper lip."

Have cool, loose fitting clothes to work around the house in. These can be made to look attractive and be comfortable as well. This is a basic rule of keeping cool.

Factual News About The Eyes

It's normal to have many moments of blindness during the course of a day, the Better Vision Institute points out. When you're awake your eyes blink at intervals of two to ten seconds, each blink lasting a maximum of about a second. Even this brief period without vision can expose you to an accident, especially when you're at the wheel of a car.

Furthermore, every eye has a blind spot, where the optic nerve enters the eyeball. This is not very likely to cause an accident, because an image which falls upon the blind spot of an eye will fall on a receptive area of its mate. And the eye makes constant little oscillatory movements, so that even a one-eyed person doesn't miss much as a result of his blind spot.

You can't give up blinking or get rid of blind spots, says the Institute, but you can do a lot to make sure your vision is kept at its highest level of efficiency throughout your lifetime. A competent specialist will show you the way.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

You're proud of your boat, motor and accessories and you want to take care of them because they cost a good many dollars. But just how careful have you been in building or buying the trailer to transport this precious cargo?

In an article in Sports Afield magazine, Ross B. Hall points out that many trailers incessantly hammer critical spots on a hull, or risk boat damage from carelessly secured support slings, or tie-downs.

Major considerations in good trailer design are hull contact, point of support, and secure fastening. Neglect of these important features has caused many expensive hull-repair jobs and, frankly, you shouldn't blame the design or craftsmanship of the boat.

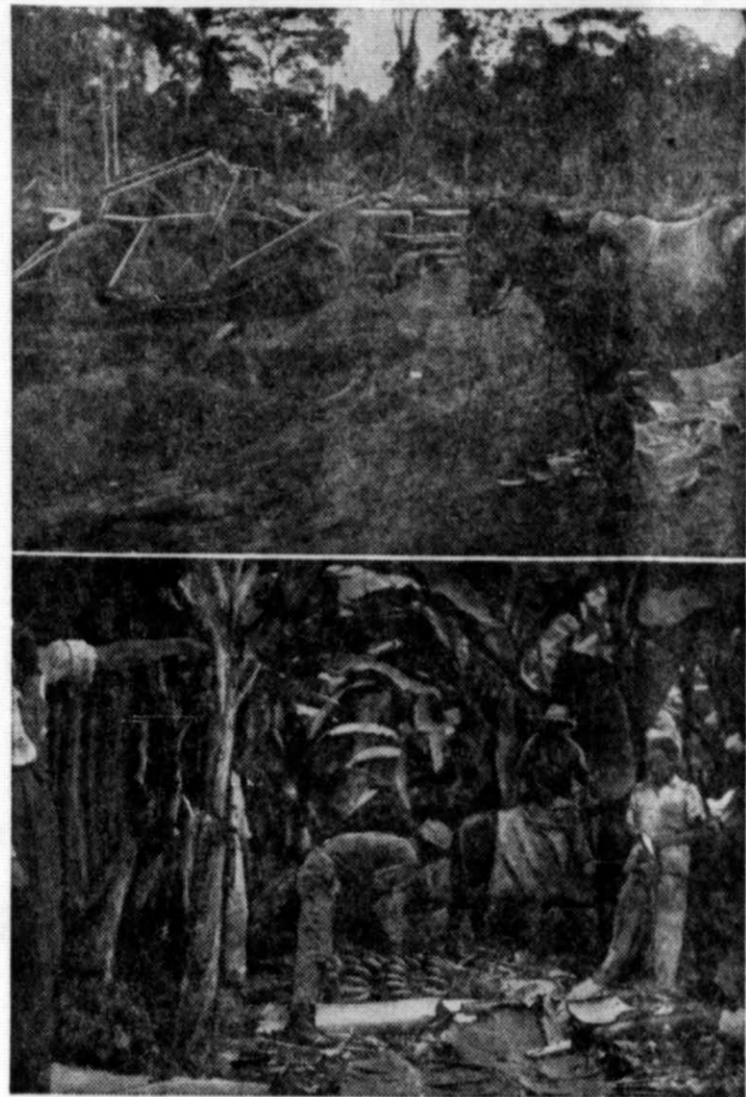

Hull contact: A proper aft hull support should shape to the hull contour. Spread across the bottom width of the boat, this support then distributes the weight and road impacts over a larger area and lessens the pressure against each square inch of boat bottom. Also, the support padding material and the way it's fastened play an important role. Use wear-resistant yet soft and resilient materials. Hose of large diameter, rubber covered and containing an inner cord for toughness, is ideal. Don't nail or screw to the top surface of the support because the heads of the fasteners may work up to mar the finish or puncture the hull.

Point of support: This location should be chosen to coincide with an internal structural member such as a husky bottom brace or frame. The ideal boat trailer should support the hull directly under the transom. Experience has proven that with boats over 15 feet which weigh more than 250 pounds, you'd be smart to add an additional contour hull support about one-third of the boat-length back from the bow.

Fastening boat to trailer: On boats that ride front and rear supports or keel-length contact, the general rule is that all tie-downs should be positive and tight. But when your boat is suspended or slung in the trailer you've got a different problem. The back of the boat may be hung on hooks at the gunwale or slung in a web strap that passes under the boat. But more important is the bow fastening. A proper mounting for the front end uses rope, web straps or springs to absorb shocks and at the same time allows practically no slippiness in the tie-down itself.

More Roads—and Exports—For Ecuador

Lack of roads and a good port has been keeping a share of Ecuador's exports, such as bananas (see bottom photo), coffee and cacao, from reaching ready markets. United Nations technical assistance experts have been working with the Ecuadorian Government on plans for more roads and a new port at Guayaquil. Recently, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development approved an $8,500,000 loan to Ecuador for road construction in that country. Top photo shows construction on Guayaquil-Quevedo Road.

A Thoughtless Moment Can Cost A Life

Take no chances. Don't stand up in boat. Don't over load or over power your boat.

Hang on to the boat if it should capsize until aid arrives. Don't try to swim to shore.

If you aren't an expert swimmer, take along your life belt.

Never swim alone. The best of swimmers can get cramps.

Keep a constant eye on children when they are near the water.

In Fashion Now

Feminine shoulders were emphasized in the opening shows of Italy's fall and winter high fashions. Interest stressed about the shoulders has been hailed as the "new Italian line."

One leading designer used draped folds and volants along with the new shoulder interest. The length of Italian skirts has been set at thirteen inches from the floor. Low-cut armholes and necklines that follow the curve of the bust were often seen.

Velvet and brocade evening gowns, covered by very full coats of satin or velvet, were described as breath-taking.

Day clothes were simple and neat. The colors were mostly tones of black or gray. Bits of trim in hostess blue, geranium red, coral and white were used.

Just as American designers have emphasized color, detail, fabric and line, so have the Italian designers.

Many of the new materials shown were mixtures and silk and wool and nylon.

ago—because the two lenses seemed to frighten some customers. The machine's developer, Fred Warren, of Sun Valley, California, then redesigned the camera so that it looked more like a modern soft drink dispenser.

In fact, the lenses are almost unnoticed by most customers, since they are placed on front of the machine in V-shaped slot that looks like anything but a slot for a camera lens. Two lenses are needed. A picture of both the check and the customer is necessary.

One retail grocery store reported recently that bad check losses had dropped from more than a thousand dollars a month to less than a hundred after installation of the new machine. It seems people passing bad checks prefer to go to stores where cameras are not used in cashing them.

If the new machine, and (or) similar ones become widely used in the retail stores of the country, a way might finally have been found to cut down the enormous loss suffered each year by merchants in bad check counts. The national "take" in this racket, is estimated close to $25,000,000.

New Machine Takes Bounce Out of Checks

A new machine introduced to take the bounce out of bad checks, has proved highly effective in limited tests. The machine is nothing more than a camera, which takes the pictures of all customers who ask to have checks cashed.

The first tests of the machine were disappointing some months

Behind The Scenes In American Business

By Reynolds Knight

NEW YORK—The ups and downs of the steel industry would seem to be of little concern to most small businessmen. They don't own steel companies' stock; most of them don't deal in the durable goods that consume much steel. But actually, steel's fate is vital to all of us. If we only deal in corn flakes, they were pressed by steel rolls and delivered in steel freight cars.

The cyclical industries—housing and heavy appliances—which must prosper for the country to have full employment, rest on the use of steel. When steel consumption rises it means the nation is on the upturn.

Anyone who studied steel with those facts in mind for the last half-year found a strange contradiction: steel production kept going down, prices of steel companies' shares kept going up. A Federal Reserve Board study gives a clue to the contradiction. In June, with steel production down 25 percent from a year earlier, use of steel by fabricators was down by only half as much. In the first half of 1954, factory inventories of articles made chiefly of steel were reduced $2 billion.

Manufacturers will have to come into the market to replace the steel they took from inventory, and when they do we shall see an upsurge.

FIRE PREVENTION—Although post-mortems are still being conducted on the fire which destroyed General Motors' plant at Livonia, Mich. last year, it's pretty generally agreed that asphalt and tar on the roof, which melted and dripped through to feed the fire, helped the flames to spread throughout the 34.5-acre concrete and steel plant.

This has brought about the development of a new fire-retarding roof material which is already being used in plants going up. In it Koroseal film is sandwiched between the ceiling and roof insulation. The manufacturer of the film says it is designed to eliminate any combustible materials between the ceiling and insulation, and to act as a barrier to the dripping of hot roofing tar onto otherwise non-flammable installations.

THINGS TO COME—The do-it-yourselfer who has scalded himself on the heating pipes passing through his basement workshop can now get an insulation that wraps onto the pipe and sticks there. . . . An improved hot-air face and hand drier eliminates the customary heating coils in favor of a single short rod, making it lighter and faster-acting. . . . A new tool attachment can drill a hole around a corner for the home handyman. . . . Saving for Christmas comes easier with a new desk calendar. Stays the same day until you put a quarter in the slot. . . . A 26-quart wastebasket, available in half a dozen solid colors, is made of flexible plastic, won't rust or scratch floors.

BEAT THE HEAT!—In considering ways and means of beating the summer slump bugaboo, more and more American businessmen are concluding that customers need and will buy about as much merchandise in the summer months as in any other season, if the goods are made available and if the business is solicited with strong promotion and hard selling.

MISSING FIGURES—A useful business tool is being threatened with torpedoing by the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives. Although the Census of Manufactures has been authorized by both houses, there's doubt about whether the needed funds will be forthcoming.

Rep. Cliff Cleverger (R. Ohio), committee chairman, taunted proponents of the measure, which would have cost some eight millions, with being the same persons who had been demanding government economy in other directions. He said businessmen in his district got pertinent statistics from their trade associations. Evidently he didn't realize where the trade associations get them.

Business census figures, gathered every five years, are used chiefly by statisticians to tell them how far off their own month-by-month calculations have strayed. From statistics are almost as useful as right ones, if their user only knows just how wrong they are—as an errant alarm clock can get its owner to work on time if he only knows just how slow or how fast it is.

Water Flows Again in Angkor Baray

Angkor, Cambodia's mysterious and magnificent temple-city abandoned to the jungle 500 years ago, today is regaining a portion of its water system.

Repairs to ridgelike dikes and dried-up canals will send water flooding once again into a 4000-acre reservoir near the ruins and out again in dry seasons to irrigate ricefields carefully in a forgotten past, the National Geographic Society reports.

Unless Indochina's present strife interrupts the restoration work, Angkor's great man-made western baray, or reservoir—five miles long by more than a mile wide—will eventually water some 50 square miles of surrounding lands and refill part of the moat of the royal city itself.

W. Robert Moore, chief of the National Geographic Magazine's foreign editorial staff, recently visited the restoration project. He found the big rectangular storage basin to be virtually intact despite centuries of neglect.

Occasional breaches in the 80-to-115-foot-high dikes are being repaired. A diversion dam has been built across the Siem Reap River where it flows through Angkor, and an inlet canal, utilizing one side of the ancient city's square moat, is being cut and cleared for use.

Deep in the interior of Cambodia, a warrior race known as the Khmer civilization flourished in medieval times. Angkor was its imperial seat, an Asiatic metropolis fantastic in size and splendor.

Angkor Thom, the Great City, was begun in the 9th century A. D. It eventually covered an area two miles square. More than a million people were centered there. Five great gates pierced the city's walls. Carvings and statues of infinite variety adorned its stone temples and palaces.

Bas-relief murals show something of the daily life of the Khmer peoples. Their emperor wore jeweled robes and adorned his hair with jasmine blossoms. Dancing girls by the hundreds entertained him with graceful steps that survive in Cambodia's traditional dances today.

Angkor Wat, the city's greatest temple, stands a short distance outside the walls. Ranking among the world's foremost architectural achievements, its cloistered face rises to five gigantic towers pyramided in carved stone high above the tallest palms of the surrounding jungle.

Angkor Wat was built in the 12th century when Westminster Abbey and Notre Dame de Paris were also under construction. The Khmerian temple, dedicated to the Hindu god Vishnu, is far larger than either European church. It measures three quarters of a mile long by half a mile wide.

About 1430, Siamese invaders from the northwest conquered the Khmers, who had turned to the more peaceful gods of Buddhism. The people of Angkor left their city and temple and fled south. They never returned.

In 1861 a French naturalist named Henri Mouhot, exploring the hinterland, stumbled into a clearing and saw before him the majestic and silent towers of Angkor rising from the steaming wilderness. His discovery was one of the most startling in the history of archeology.

Since then French scholars and Indochinese workmen have cleared the wild fig trees from Angkor's ruins and restored many of the temples and towers. The painstaking work, begun half a century ago, probably will require 50 to 100 years more to complete.

Early Shrines Open To Public

An impressive segment of Minnesota history smuggles around the popular Sibley Tea House at the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers. Here Lt. Zebulon Pike first raised the Star and Stripes on Minnesota soil September 21, 1805. Fort St. Anthony was established in 1820 and in 1825 moved across the Minnesota to Fort Snelling. The village of St. Peter's was formed in 1834, changed to Mendota in 1853. General Sibley built the state's first stone house in 1835, followed by the pioneer fur trader Faribault in 1837. Nearby Minnesota's first Catholic chapel, St. Peter's, was built in 1840. In 1854 Hypolite DuPuis, General Sibley's secretary, built a home, selling in 1869 to the Fee family who in 1928 sold to the Daughters of the American Revolution of Minnesota. Today the DAR maintain and keep open to the public these early shrines, including the Tea House in the century-old DuPuis home, where the piquant flavor of history is enhanced by the culinary finesse of Mr. and Mrs. Bjarne Olsen.

Unusual Pet To Be Put In Zoo

Vijay, an eight-months-old tiger, has been owned until recently by an Indian boy, who visited the United States two years ago. The Indian youngster recently sent his pet, Vijay, to the United States so that American boys could enjoy him.

The pet is a little unusual, but he is described as very docile, and has been the personal pet of Vijay Srivastava and his father, who raised the cub from babyhood.

The pet is rather rapidly-enlarging tiger, and was delivered in New York recently, after Vijay's generosity had sent him on his way. The tiger responds to its name, and reportedly misses its customary romps with members of the Srivastava family.

The tiger is being placed in the Central Park zoo in New York and, while we are glad to see American youngsters get a chance to view the handsome beast we believe the loss in Kanpur, where the tiger's young owner lives, is a heavy blow to residents there.

TAKE THE LABOR OUT OF LABOR DAY PICNICS

by CAROL LANE,
NOTED TRAVEL AUTHORITY
PROFIT BY SUMMER'S EXPERIENCE AND PICNIC "SCIENTIFICALLY."
WITH PROPER PREPARATION, AN OUTING CAN BE AS EASY AND EFFICIENT AS A MEAL AT HOME.
FOLLOW THESE PRINCIPLES:

MAKE THE MOST OF INGENUOUS EQUIPMENT SUCH AS FITTED PICNIC BASKET, COLLAPSIBLE GRILL, LONG-HANDLED TOOLS, TABLE-AND-STOOLS THAT FOLD INTO TINY CASE, HUGE THERMOS BAGS FOR FOOD.

PREPARE FOODS IN ADVANCE—PRE-SCRAMBLE EGGS, PAR-BOIL POTATOES AND MEATS, MAKE COFFEE AND THERMOS JUICE. USE FROZEN OR CANNED FOODS WHERE POSSIBLE. COMPLETE MEALS NOW COME FROZEN ON TRAY, READY TO HEAT AND SERVE.

SHORT-CUT TIME AND TROUBLE. USE DISPOSABLE PLATES AND UTENSILS. METAL FOIL AROUND PANS MAKES CLEANING EASY—OR COOK RIGHT IN THE FOIL. PAPER TABLE CLOTH TURNS EDGE OF CAR'S LUGGAGE COMPARTMENT INTO DANDY TABLE.
