

Spring Election Tuesday, Apr. 5, in Village, Townships

VILLAGE INTEREST CENTERS ON RACE FOR TRUSTEE OFFICES; NO OPPOSITION IN TOWNSHIP

Next Tuesday, April 5, is spring election day in the village of Kewaskum and throughout the county. The polls will be open from 9 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. Balloting in the village will be done in the municipal building.

Voters will cast their ballots for village and township officers in this area. They will also vote for a supreme court justice with Grover L. Broadfoot, nonpartisan, the only listed candidate on the ballot. Judge Milton Meister, incumbent county judge, will also be up for reelection. He is unopposed for the position. Two referendum issues will also be up for consideration.

To date the election has stirred up little interest in the village with only the candidates for the trustee offices having opposition. Therefore, the balloting is not expected to be too heavy. Voting is expected to be very light in the town of Kewaskum where there is no opposition for any of the offices. Much interest has been shown in the town of Wayne, where there is opposition for every office.

In the village balloting incumbent trustees Joseph Eberle, Charles Sparks and John G. Stelplflug will be opposed by two newcomers, Ned W. Sengpiel and Wayland Tessar. Three of the five are to be elected. Other incumbents who are unopposed include Village President Charles Miller, Assessor Edwin A. Bartel, Supervisor Elwyn M. Romaine, and Justice of the Peace Lyle W. Bartel.

Incumbents in the town of Kewaskum who are seeking reelection without opposition are Chairman Edw. J. Campbell, Supervisor No. 1 Henry Muckerheide, Supervisor No. 2 Arnold Amerling, Clerk Alfred H. Seefeldt, Treasurer Lloyd Schmidt, and Assessor John Etta.

In the town of Wayne Chairman of Supervisors George W. Peter will be opposed by William J. Hawig and Earl Schulz. Three candidates for supervisors are Mike Darmody, John Oelhafen and Ewald J. Rauch. Town Clerk Paul C. Moritz will be opposed by Orville J. Kern and Treasurer Oscar P. Boebel will be opposed by Erich Erdman. Candidates for assessor are Arnold Hawig, Jr. and Fred Pamperin.

Of the referendum issues up for consideration, one concerns the amending of the state constitution so limitation of bonded indebtedness of school districts would be placed on the value of school property determined as equalized for state purposes rather than on local assessed value. The other concerns prohibiting persons 70 years old or older from taking office as a supreme court justice or circuit judge and that no person may serve in either capacity unless he has been licensed to practice law at least 5 years previous to election or appointment and that no such judge may serve beyond the month in which he attains the age of 70. The referendum permits judges over 70 to complete the terms they are serving when the new referendum law takes effect or persons retired under the new law can temporarily serve as circuit judges. The referendum issues require a "yes" or "no" vote.

Red Cross Drive Nears $8,800 Goal in Chapter

Robert T. Rolfs, fund chairman for the chapter, disclosed this week that the 1935 fund drive of the West Bend chapter of the American Red Cross was nearing its goal of $8,800. A total of $8,555 had been collected early this week with reports still not in from the towns of Farmington and Jackson, and a portion of West Bend's industrial area.

The village of Newburg was the first precinct to go over the top and several other communities have since reached or surpassed their goal. Residents who may have been missed in the canvassing are informed that they still can contribute. Chairmen in this vicinity are Willard Bartel, village of Kewaskum, John Muckerheide, town of Kewaskum, and Wendell Petri, town of Wayne.

Rolfs expressed thanks to the people who contributed to this worthy cause as well as the precinct chairmen and nearly 300 volunteer solicitors.

Plans Formed for School District Reorganization

The Washington County School committee held its first public hearing on the reorganization of the school districts in the West Bend school service area. This hearing was held at the Oak Knoll school on Friday evening, March 25.

Although the hearing was primarily for the electors of that district, several other electors were present. The attendance and the interest shown was most satisfactory to the committee.

Attorney Deane Bascom, chairman of the committee, explained that since this was the first such hearing of the many which the committee intends to have, the committee would discuss and inform the electors at this time of the general over-all objectives, and of the related problems and facts as they pertain to the study being made of this area.

In the opinion of the committee, the paramount purposes of school district re-organization are these:

1. Provide equal educational opportunity for every child in the county.
2. Equalize tax rates so that the cost of education is borne equally by all and not unequal by some.
3. Assure each tax payer, the basic right of franchise in the municipality that spends his tax dollar.
4. Encourage acceptance of democratic responsibility for the affairs and program of the school district.
5. Stabilize as near as practicable the area serviced by the school so that the district may adequately budget and plan on a long term basis.
6. Guarantee a tax base sufficient to make practicable the requirements for a complete educational program.

Several hours were spent in general discussion of questions which the electors asked of the committee. Many of these were about the comparative costs. Bascom assured the people that the committee was preparing a detailed study and each elector would be given such a report at the next meeting. This report will give a complete set of facts on comparative costs as well as educational opportunities provided by the schools of the county. He emphasized that this program of school district reorganization is a most important project, one which needs deliberate study, so that the people will have time in which to consider all facts weightily.

Bascom also stated that certain areas of the county were not included in this proposal because they will require special study due to the fact that several high schools service those portions.

The hearing was then adjourned to April 21, at 8:00 p. m. when it will be reconvened at the Oak Knoll school and discussions will be resumed on the detailed facts shown in the report.

Spring Clean-up Week in Kewaskum Is Announced

"Don't Give Fire a Place to Start."

That's the slogan for Spring Clean-Up Week in Kewaskum which starts here on Monday, April 11. Fire Chief Harry J. Schaefer today called upon everyone to join in the clean-up drive and make Kewaskum a more beautiful, safer place to live and work.

"A clean home seldom burns is an old saying among firemen, the chief stated. "Thorough clean-up in and around the home is one of the best ways to prevent home fires."

"And don't ever underestimate the danger of a home fire," he cautioned. "We know from the National Fire Protection association reports that over half of the country's 12,000 fire deaths last year occurred in home fires."

Most of these fire victims were youngsters and old folks, he said. Chief Schaefer commented that he is confident that every resident of this community will cooperate with the fire department in making this Spring Clean-Up Week a success. ....ks

the Snapshot Guild

Snapshots tucked into letters let grandparents watch their grandchildren grow even though they live far apart.

Snapshots "Illustrate" Your Letters

Recently we've heard a family that makes good use of their pictures as a means of keeping in touch with relatives who live in other parts of the country. This snapshotting family has three boys and it is mother who is the photographer. She's made taking pictures of her family and home an absorbing and highly rewarding hobby. And two very special things have resulted from it. First of all, she has a perfectly wonderful set of family snapshot albums containing complete picture stories of each member of the family individually, and one of them as a closely knit group. Secondly, she's made extra prints of all of these pictures to tuck into weekly letters that go to grandparents. One set of grandparents are in the midwest, the other in the south, while the young family lives near the Canadian border. Although widely separated geographically from their three grandsons, these grandparents are watching them grow, almost day by day. They see the art work done in school, the Cub Scout activities, the help they give dad in the yard, the work they do for mother in the house. It's all shown to them in the snapshots that arrive with almost every letter. We've told you about this family because we think that you'd like to do the same thing yourself. For some of us, this is one of the things that we are always going to do sometime in the future. But we hope that this story will inspire you to start right away to bring your scattered family and friends close together with your pictures. —John Van Gulder

The recently opened ferry service from Key West, Florida, to Cuba appeared at first to open new travel vistas for the average American motorist.

It sounded inviting and adventurous to be able to cover Cuba's highlights and sideliights with one's own car.

But after completing a round trip crossing aboard the "City of Key West," and spending two and a half weeks as a motorist in Cuba, my initial enthusiasm has rather waned. And I suspect that anyone considering the journey as part of his winter vacation would benefit from my experience.

The ferry, a converted LST, leaves from Key West each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning, for Cardenas, a Cuban seaport 14 miles from Varadero Beach and about 100 miles east of Havana. It has a capacity of 40 automobiles and 250 passengers. Round trip fare for car and driver is $62.28, plus $16.50 for each additional passenger.

As my wife and I, and some 80 other passengers, learned the hard way, an LST rolls in the slightest of turbulence. On leaving the coastal waters and heading into the open channel, the roll and pitch became progressively worse with the result that, only an hour out of Key West, all but 10 passengers were very ill.

Unfortunately despite such conveniences aboard as an air-conditioned restaurant and lounge, there was to be no relief for the duration of the voyage, which lasted an even 12 hours. The "City of Key West" simply was tossed around like a cork in a washing machine.

In fairness to the ferry service, I should add that: 1. I understand this was the vessel's roughest crossing; 2. On the return voyage, which took three hours less, the water was calm, although there was a certain amount of roll inherent in the design of the craft; 3. The operator is reported planning to replace the LST with a larger, speedier and more comfortable vessel.

As for Cuba itself, I found it to be a charming, colorful and fascinating vacation destination. However, outside of Havana and Varadero, accommodations are, with few exceptions, too far below American standards to be acceptable to the average visitor from our country. Distances between

Railroads Losing First-class Mail

The American railroads, it has been revealed, are losing out to the air lines in the competition to carry first-class mail. The railroads still carry the great bulk of this mail, although in the last sixteen months, the air lines have made notable gains.

It is reported that the air lines now carry most of the first-class mail between New York, Chicago and Washington. In addition, most first-class mail between Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, between some important cities in the Southwest and also between several cities on the West Coast is carried by the air lines.

What disturbs the railroads is the fact that the Post Office Department began this air-line transportation of first class mail as a "limited experiment" some sixteen months ago. The experiment was to have lasted a year. Now sixteen months later, the volume of first-class mail traveling by air is larger than ever and there is no indication that the Post Office Department will halt its "experiment."

The railroads have asked for a hearing to present their side of the case, although at present the revenue loss to them is not too serious. The loss is estimated at $2,000,000 and when one considers the fact that the railroads collect over $340,000,000 a year from the Post Office Department, for handling all types of mail, one can see that the loss of $2,000,000 is not catastrophic.

However, the railroads are afraid that the new system will eventually deprive them of carrying most first-class mail and that would deprive them of several scores of millions of dollars revenue. Thus, their protest.

We are in sympathy with the railroads from one angle, knowing that they need the money. But, if the air lines can carry first-class mail much faster than

Decorating Suggestions For Attic Rooms

Rooms in a finished attic can be as attractive as other rooms in the house if proper thought is given to the type of wall covering and its decoration.

Many attractive wall coverings are available, some of which need no decorating. See illustration. It is simply a matter of choosing the one, or combination you like best. Various home magazines show attractive plans for decorating finished attic rooms.

The ceiling covering should be applied first, because there is no damaging the sidewalls. Plaster board, ceiling tile, or plywood are suggested as practical coverings. Ceiling tile has the advantage, in that many types do not require decorating. Plaster board or plywood require painting. Avoid the use of wallpaper on ceilings. For the beginner, ceiling wallpaper is difficult to hang and should be avoided whenever possible.

If ceiling tile is used, it may be necessary to nail strips across the ceiling joists, in order to have a place to nail the tile. This depends upon the size of the tile.

The part of the room between the regular ceiling and the wall is often called the half-ceiling. It presents a decorating problem especially at the ends of the room.

Plaster board or fiber board are suggested for the half-ceiling, although plywood also makes a good material. Plaster board should always be painted. This is true even though wallpaper is used for decorating.

There are many types of fiber board suited to the half-ceiling of the attic bedroom. Many of these need no painting or decorating. Some even include moldings in attractive designs.

In the illustration, plaster board, fiber board, or pine paneling are recommended. As a matter of fact, plywood could well be added to the list. Some of the new varieties are particularly suited to side wall paneling. In addition to the common plywood, various veneers are beautiful when used in decorating.

Pine paneling is a very popular material used for finishing the ends of a room. When it is used, be sure to nail stops between the studs. This is necessary to provide a solid place for nailing.

Do not stain pine paneling. Leave it as light as possible. This may be a matter of opinion, but people who do stain it, usually wish they had left it light.

Use strip molding at the various joints as suggested by the drawing. Do not strip the joints in plasterboard. Use the tape and cement made for the purpose. It is not difficult to use.

RIGHT IN YOUR EYE—These llamas love to look at visitors to the Vincennes Zoo, in Paris, France. But knowing persons keep their distance. Llamas have one very impolite habit, and if someone comes too close, in order to view the brand-new baby, mama would just as soon spit—as look—in his eye.

Avoid Overeating Of Sweet Foods To Preserve Teeth

Nutritious foods are important to dental health, but it is what we avoid eating that really counts in preventing dental decay.

The young growing child whose teeth are developing within his jaws should receive adequate amounts of the building materials found in good nutrition. The foods that result in good general health also are most beneficial for the health of the teeth.

However, after the teeth have erupted, the most important thing to remember is to avoid excessive consumption of sweetened foods and beverages.

Studies have shown that the acids which are produced in the mouth during the fermentation of carbohydrates, especially sugar, are a major factor in causing dental decay. For this reason, the consumption of sweets such as candy, pastry, chewing gum, sweetened beverages, etc., should be kept at a minimum.

In adulthood, a good diet is an aid in avoiding diseases of the gums and other supporting tissues of the teeth, the leading cause of tooth loss after age 35.

The essential daily foods for adequate nutrition, experts agree, include milk, vegetables, fruit, eggs, meat and butter.

Dentists emphasize that foods should be selected not only for nutritional qualities but for their physical character as well. The latter plays an important role in keeping the mouth naturally clean and in providing the chewing muscles with the exercise they need.

Examples of such foods are carrots and celery, apples and oranges. Through eating such cleansing foods, ancient man was able to keep his mouth free of bacteria without the aid of the modern toothbrush.

Vitamin pills are not a good substitute for dietary essentials, dentists point out. Such pills are a form of medication and should be taken only after consultation with a physician or dentist. A rounded diet will provide all essential vitamins for a child.

Milk is essential in a well balanced diet and is particularly important in the diet of a child. The cells that form the teeth and bones need plenty of calcium. Proper formation of the enamel depends upon it. The enamel develops within the jaws over a long period of time (from about four months before birth to about eight years of age).

No-Bake Cheese Cake A Taste Wonder

Effortless, and excellent this no-bake cheese cake wins dessert honors. The smoothness of the fresh-of-lemon refrigerator cake results from a custard base, cream-style cottage cheese and whipped cream. Then unflavored gelatine magically blends all the ingredients together and assures a delicate firmness. Cookie crumbs make the topping.

No-Bake Cheese Cake (Party Size 10-12 servings)

Crumb Topping:
2 tablespoons melted butter 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon sugar 1/4 cup chocolate cookie crumbs, and
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon 1/4 cup graham cracker crumbs

Mix butter, sugar and spices together. Add half of spiced mixture to chocolate crumbs and remaining half to graham cracker crumbs; mix well. Turn cheese cake mixture into an 8-inch spring form pan; sprinkle with crumbs in wedge-shaped pattern, alternating chocolate and graham cracker crumbs. If desired, an 8 or 9-inch square pan or a 9x5-inch loaf pan may be used. Line with waxed paper. Press crumb mixture in bottom of pan; turn in cheese cake mixture.

Cheese Cake:
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup sugar, divided 3 cups (24 ounces) creamed cottage cheese, sieved
1/4 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 eggs, separated 1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk 1 cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix together gelatine, 1/4 cup of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Beat together egg yolks and milk; add to gelatine mixture. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatine dissolves and mixture thickens, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat; add lemon rind; cool. Stir in sieved cottage cheese, lemon juice and vanilla. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into gelatine-cheese mixture with whipped cream. Turn into prepared pan; chill until firm.

(Family Size 5-6 servings)
Use 1/2 gelatine recipe but full amount crumb mixture in an 8-inch round pan or 9-inch pie plate.

Here is a group of favorite recipes that will lend variety to the menu. They are easily prepared and are appealing to the eye.

INJURIES PLUS WEATHER CHANGES EQUAL BACKACHE

Sudden changes in weather such as we are now experiencing, help to bring about painful "catches" in the back. These are sometimes called lumbago, rheumatic neuritis, sacro-iliac sprain, or just plain rheumatism.

Such pains are often brought about by severe injury or sprain, but may be caused by merely twisting, stooping, or lifting which would hardly seem severe enough to cause the trouble. The pain may immediately follow the injury or it may be mild at the onset and grow continually worse. Sometimes the pain may not be felt for weeks or months but will develop with sudden weather changes such as frequently occur in the spring and fall.

All cases, however, present a history of some type of injury which has produced a misalignment of the spine or pelvis. Chiropractic adjustments correct the misalignment and bring relief in most cases.

"SCARLATINA SYNOPSIS"

Scarlatina or Scarlet Fever is a mild or acute febrile disease characterized by fever reaching 103 to 105 degrees, and a rash covering—first the chest and neck and then spreading over the entire body. The face and scalp are usually void of the rash.
The first symptoms of Scarlet Fever appear 2 to 7 days after exposure to the disease. It begins with nausea, vomiting, fever, and sore throat. The rash follows at about the second or third day. This rash consists of pin-point red spots on a reddish background. As the fever declines, so does the rash; usually 4 or 5 days after the rash first appears. A period of desquamation (shedding of skin) will follow and last for possibly 2 or 3 weeks.
Chiropractic as a treatment for Scarlatina has proven itself to be very effective, especially at the start of the disease. Your own 'body resistance' is again an important factor toward fighting febrile disease.

TEACUP TOPICS

By BETTY ANN
The Magazine Editor's Choice

The charm, fun and excitement of traveling and visiting seem to start the minute you settle your coat around you on the bus or train, the minute you swish a suitcase into a car trunk, says Betty Ann.

We're smart enough these days to know how to travel light. With the aid of the wonder fabrics, we can ease a varied wardrobe for a whole week end into a small bag. The blouse goes here, but blossoms again with a felt skirt in the evening. The robe does handsomely for a nip of tea in the kitchen.

But the wonder of traveling light and bright depends upon being able to swish out that miracle lingerie, the miracle blouse, the remarkable gloves and wear them again practically right away. Don't depend upon your hostess' hand soap for the job. There are neat individual packages of powdered laundering compound. With a couple of these tucked in your suitcase you can do the job with no hunting for the household soaps.

You simply can't look your charming and prettiest self if you're uncomfortable and to women who are on their feet a lot, those self same feet are apt to be a source of physical discomfort. They work hard for you, so why not baby them a little? Take your weight off them whenever possible. Remove street shoes and wear comfortable slippers when you're home. Bathe feet often, take relaxing exercises and massage feet and ankles with a good quality witch hazel.

Pink is back in the nightgown business. It appears over blue, embroidered on white, in addition to being its own sweet self in all the finest fancies for bedtime.

Mildew should be treated promptly. Wash the garment in soapy water and dry in the sun. A persistent stain can be removed by covering with salt and moistening with lemon juice and putting the garment back into the sun.

No matter how rushed you are, leave time for a midday nap if you are inclined to be tucked by evening. Stretch out on the sofa or sofa-bed if you must keep an eye on the kids.

The old-fashioned custom of pierced ears is returning. The Jewelry Industry Council said that manufacturers report an increasing demand for earrings to fit pierced ears. Two factors probably influence the revival—comfort and economy. When today's woman invests quite a bit of money in earrings, she wants to make sure they won't get lost.

If the windows in your living room are narrow, hang the draperies so that they extend out over the frame. Hanging them within the frame, of course, will make too wide windows look narrower.

Fluffy Omelet

6 eggs, separated; 4 tablespoons water or milk; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1/4 teaspoon tabasco; 2 tablespoons butter.

Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Without rinsing beater quickly beat egg yolks with water, salt and tabasco. Fold into beaten egg whites. Melt butter in a heavy frying pan. Add mixture and cook over low heat until omelet is slightly brown underneath. Place in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 10 minutes, until dry on top. Cut part way through center. Fold and slip from pan on plate or platter. Serve with creole sauce. Yield: Six servings.

Frost a favorite cake with whipped cream and sprinkle generously with this crumbly topping. Combine one-half cup chopped walnuts, granulated sugar and brown sugar with one unbeaten egg white. Spread in a shallow greased and floured pan and bake in a moderate oven about 20 minutes. Remove from pan and crush with rolling pin. It's heavenly on ice cream, too.

If you dislike the sweetness of candied sweet potatoes, next time substitute grated lemon rind for the sugar.

To clean a discolored waffle iron use a wire brush on the grids while they are hot. After cleaning "season" with a little vegetable oil.

Merely The Truth

Excited female voice: "Wait a minute! Don't start this street car until I get my clothes on."

The passengers craned their necks expectantly. 'Twas only a housewife on her way to the laundromat.

In FASHION now

The new fashion in makeup put more emphasis on the mouth. As a result you will be seeing quite a rash of new lipstick colors. There will be a trend toward overdramatizing the mouth by changing the natural line. This may look all right on a few women but for most of us it will be dreadful.

Stay away from the purple or pink violet shades of lipstick. No matter what fashion decrees, the most flattering color for most of us is a clear red or a pinkish red.

These colors seem to blend better with the American girls' natural coloring.

Hair will be somewhat longer though far from the length fashionable four years ago. The tailored line is still going to be news. However, the front hair will be long enough to be brought back away from the face. The new cut is known as "bud shape."

Beads of all shapes and colors will be used. The most outstanding colors will be pastel for spring. Also you will see a lot of the ever-popular black and white.

Print dresses and hats with matching unprinted coats will be a big item on the market. In many lines they can be bought together or separately. The costume look is very important. Remember, it started last fall! A white linen coat for spring will be a wise investment. It can be worn with numerous print dresses with a white background as part of a costume.

About Your Home

If you are interested in growing dahlias and are thinking about buying a few new types this spring, you will want to know about last fall's prize winners.

First Lady is a Dresden yellow dahlia, six to eight inches across when field-grown. When carefully tended in a garden, it reaches a diameter of ten inches. Plants are three to four feet high—petals are broad and pointed. The stems are quite strong. The foliage is a dark rich green.

Patricia Ann is a large pink dahlia. Plants grow three feet high with four to eight stalks each. The bloom is five to eight inches across.

Stoptlight is a seven by four inch red dahlia with unusual pointed leaves. The plants grow to five feet in height. The stems should be pinched to six for better blooms.

Mr. President is a blend of salmon rose to empire yellow at the center. The blooms are ten by five inches and the plants grow to four feet with strong stems and foliage. Petals are broad at the base, point at the end and curl.

Arab Queen is a light yellow, cactus-type dahlia with a pink background. It is a ten-inch, straight plant and grows seven feet tall.

Almost all gardeners like to include a few easy-to-grow glads in their gardens. Gladiolus give you more bloom more beauty with less work and trouble than practically any other plant.

A few of this year's prize-winners were: Pearl—a large cream bloom, feathered with rose; Lorelei—a ruffled cream, with a yellow cast; a jaunty-clear rose pink, with a cream throat; Orchid Frills—a ruffled, orchid-colored glad.

Fight Tetanus by Immunity Shots

Most communities do not lose many lives to tetanus anymore. But on the basis of existing knowledge there seems little reason why this disease should claim any lives or why anyone should ever suffer from it.

As most of us know, tetanus or "lockjaw," is caused by only one thing—the tetanus spore which seems to abound in the soil, waiting its chance to get into the human nervous system through an open wound. Hence, any minor scratch, cut, or puncture of the skin should be regarded as potentially dangerous.

The logical way to combat tetanus is to prevent it. Two preventive methods are available. The older way is to wait until a person is injured and then give him a dose of tetanus antitoxin. This results in a temporary immunity lasting only a few weeks, and must be given with every injury. Since many injuries leading to tetanus are so minor that the victim does not even visit a doctor and does not receive antitoxin, this method cannot be relied on.

The surer and safer method is to use tetanus toxoid. This is given before injury occurs, usually as part of a routine immunization program. It confers a more permanent immunity, and is usually administered in a series of three small injections a month apart. "Booster doses" of the toxoid are then advised one year later, and every three or four years thereafter.

Evidence of the success of tetanus prevention was demonstrated during both World War II and the Korean War when our armed forces personnel were required to have toxoid injections upon induction, and in cases of injuries were given booster injections. As a result, tetanus was almost completely eliminated as a cause of death during both these wars.

Parents should make sure their young children have been protected against tetanus and receive booster shots regularly. Veterans of the last two wars should also make it a habit to keep up their immunity through "boosters." Besides these groups, the following, because of the nature of their occupation, should also obtain this protection: All persons exposed

Brides Too?

Bride—Dear, what is the true definition of a groom?

Hubby—Why, a groom is a man who takes care of dumb animals.

Most human beings like change from time to time. Even those who can't afford to buy new things with every changing style may add a dash of variation to their old clothes in one way or another occasionally. New styles are adopted not merely for the sake of social acceptance, but for individuality or relief from monotony.

To meet this demand for variety, manufacturers of eyeglass frames are designing new models constantly. They strive for greater beauty and charm, as well as functional improvement. Today's specs, when properly selected, emphasize the wearer's best features and create an effect of modishness.

Anyone who doubts the fashion importance of eyewear can check it by simply walking down a crowded street and observing the different eye-glass-wearers. He may want to tell a number of them, "You could look so much better if you would only replace those antediluvian specs with smart, up-to-the-minute ones."

Bible Comment:

Pagan Diana Plays Role in Christian Drama

CHRISTIANITY began with devout Jewish souls expecting a Messiah, and earnest disciples believing that they had found the Messiah. The atmosphere and environment of the land was already holy with the glory of Israel. Then, as Christianity spread throughout the Roman world, it soon came into conflict with the rites, literature and great, imposing shrines and temples of paganism.

Nowhere is that conflict so marked nor so vividly depicted as in the story told in Acts, of Saint Paul's preaching in Asia Minor and of the opposition he encountered in Ephesus through the commotion stirred up by worshippers of the Goddess Diana.

And the story has an interesting, modern application. For among the worshippers of the goddess were the silversmiths who made shrines and who, like some today, were more interested in the material profits of religion than in any sincerity of worship. When they saw Paul's mission succeeding, the silversmiths said among themselves, "Our craft is in danger." And, to conceal their self-interest from the people, they cried that "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

This, too, has its modern counterpart, as some still use the cloak of religion to stir up prejudices or advance self-interest. Read, and reread, this great lesson in Acts. Not just for its account of Christianity in conflict with paganism. Oh, no. Read it for its warning against those who would take the noble things of religion and patriotism, and pervert them to their own ends.

Now, With a Brass Rail—

A Yankee sportsman stopped at the hot noontide outside a crofter's cottage in the Highlands and requested a glass of milk. The hospitable Highlander added a dash of whiskey to the glass. The American drank with increasing satisfaction. When he had finished said: "Say, friend, one thousand dollars for that cow!"

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Liberty, Ky. — Nothing happened when Mrs. Lottie Combest put an advertisement in the paper for a lost lawnmower and a fireplace grate. Nothing daunted, she decided to put in another ad to seal a pile of lumber behind her house. When the lumber was sold and removed, the lawnmower and grate were found—at the bottom of the pile.

Stretchable Synthetic Knits Put Elasticity in the Budget

BY EDNA MILES

SIZES are the bane of any housewife's shopping excursion. Getting exactly the right sizes in socks, shirts and pajamas for the male members of the family should be easy—but isn't.

If the fabric isn't sanforized, there must be allowance for shrinkage. And in the interest of the budget, there frequently must be allowance for growth. Sizes, too, run somewhat differently with merchandise from different manufacturers. All in all, a shopping trip can turn into a guessing game.

The new, stretchable knitted fabrics in nylon or a combination of nylon and dacron are removing much of the guesswork. One garment stretches to be right fit for several sizes without sagging or binding. Thus it can span several seasons instead of just a couple of months.

Such fabrics are completely washable (by hand or machine), and need little or no ironing. They're done in both plain and ribbed types and in solid colors and stripes. And they're nice as gifts, since the stretch feature practically does away with the size problem.

S-I-r-e-t-c-h the budget with children's T-shirts such as these. Both are of same size, but stretchable knit fabric insures fit during several seasons of growth.

Ticklers

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

If you spend much time at all with small boats you will, sooner or later, as surely as taxes, fall overboard. The wise sportsman will be prepared for it.

There are many ways to greatly reduce your chances of joining the ranks of unwilling bathers. First of all paint your ship decks. Varnish may give your ship that svelte look, but it has no place underfoot. There are a number of so-called nonskid paints on the market and all of them are useful.

Some commercial men throw sand on the wet paint. This is excellent, if you don't mind wearing through your clothes and surrendering vast areas of skin in the event of a spill.

The best footwear is hobnail boots. Unfortunately most captains take a dim view of these. Rubber soles are the next best thing. Boots in winter and sneakers in the summer. Again, there are the nonskid varieties. Zack Taylor, whose article on boating safety recently appeared in Sports Afield magazine, says that he prefers bare rubber worn smooth. But don't forget that water is a natural lubricant of rubber.

There is nothing that beats the timeworn sea adage, "One hand for you and one hand for the ship." This is a primary rule. But the grab rails of many boats are deplorable. Tiny varnished wood splinters or slim chromium strips are pretty, but they are too meager to hang your life on.

Even worse, you often find great stretches unprotected where you have to leave one rail and lunge desperately for the next. The commercial men use inch pipe—a welcome fistful and every foot of it is braced.

Going overboard is a breath-taking experience and in cold water your strength will be sapped with incredible speed. Add to these factors the immense fright that will grip the bravest man alone in the sea and the power of endurance is reduced easily by half.

A seasoned life guard has said that he would hardly venture over his depth alone. "But give me a life ring, or a plank, and I'll leave for England." A life ring within reach is as important as gas in the tank. And it is the wise man who insists on life jackets for those who cannot swim and who will do one himself.

WALRUS
Odobenus rosmarus

If you can imagine what modern United States would be without cows or earlier United States without bison you may have some idea what some parts of the world might be were there no walrus. We have for the most part eliminated bison from their native haunts and to a great extent feel that we are superior in intelligence to the average Eskimo and yet the Eskimo has seen to it that the harvest is limited to the needs of man and to such an extent that the walrus may continue to maintain its existence. It would seem that in a re-evaluation of ourselves we might well recognize that the Eskimo has shown more sense than have we.

It would seem offhand that a walrus must have been built from a plan originally drawn by some inebriated cartoonist. Nevertheless, as is usually the case, it is an animal whose structure fits it remarkably to the available food supply and to the environment in which it lives. Its enormous tusks provide excellent tools with which mollusks may be broken loose from the sea bottom. It is these molluscs on which the walrus feeds for the most part. A single tusk of a male walrus may be over 3 feet long and weigh to 9 pounds. The tusk of the female walrus is more slender and bowed.

In the Atlantic, walrus are found in Arctic seas south to Labrador. In the Pacific area, they are found from Bering Sea south of the Pribilof Islands being more abundant on the Siberian side than on the Alaskan shore. There in an annual migration with courtship and mating taking place on the northern migration about a month after the young are born. In the Atlantic group, the young are born from the middle of April to late May; in the Pacific, in May or June. Mating takes place about 11 months before the young are born. A newborn calf is gray, about 4 feet long and no teeth show externally. By August a young walrus may weigh to 120 pounds. Young walrus cling to the mother's neck while she swims and dives. They may nurse for 2 years by which time they have grown tusks which are to 4 inches long and adequate for food getting.

A bull walrus may measure to 12 feet long and may weigh to 3,000 pounds. The female is about 2/3 the size of the male. The animals are practically hairless and tailless. The five toes on the upward flippers bear flat nails and the nose is blunt and provided with coarse bristles. Two hind toes bear both flat nails and pointer nails.

Walrus may feed in water to 300 feet deep almost standing on their heads when doing so. The stomach can only hold about 1 gallon of food. The animals may be found in great herds and may be great noise makers. They have many louse parasites and are preyed upon by killer whales, bears and of course by man. From a walrus carcass, an Eskimo gets valuable oil for light, flesh for food, bones and hide for equipment, intestines for window glass and tusks for sale and trade. So important are the animals for survival to Eskimos that it would seem that white man should in no way interfere with their company except to provide protection where needed. The herds in Hudson Bay and to some extent in Siberia seem to be holding up reasonably well. The National Wildlife Foundation is interested in protecting these animals reasonably just as it is interested in similar rational treatment for other forms of wildlife.—E. Laurence Palmer.

"Uncle John" is 109

"Uncle John" Salling, the only living Confederate soldier in Virginia, gave a recent tip on living to the ripe old age of 109. The 109-year-old veteran has been confined to his daughter's farm home in Scott County, Virginia, for several months.

This became necessary when he fell—some time ago—and broke his right hip. Since that time he has not been able to get out because of the bone break. However, recently, he was given a new wheel chair and managed to get out into the yard.

Upon receiving the chair, he noted that the last few months were the first in his life that he had had to stay indoors any length of time. He credits this health, at his advanced age, Salling still has a full head of black hair, eats three good meals every day and is in generally remarkable condition for his age.

Behind The Scenes in American Business

By Reynolds Knight

Analysts of the steel industry have begun to breathe easier about last-half-of-1955 demand. They are hopeful for reasons which reach far beyond Wall Street or Detroit and Pittsburgh, into the concerns of business large and small everywhere.

First—As of now, large warehouses who stock steel in forms other than the sheet and strip types used by auto makers are staying out of the market. Even though their inventories are low, they don't want to have to bid against the auto makers; but when the auto needs begin to taper off these outlets will be ordering steel to replenish their inventories.

Second—Farm machinery orders are holding up well. The machinery makers say figures showing farm income declining are deceptive to a certain extent, in that although total income is decreasing it is shared by a farm population that is falling faster. This means bigger farms, requiring and able to buy more machines.

Third—Although railroad equipment buying is still low, carloadings and earnings figures are beginning to make better comparisons with a year ago, and railroads are back in the market.

Fourth—No matter what becomes of President Eisenhower's programs for schools and highways, thousands of local programs have reached the contracting stage. That means steel when building opens in earnest, around May.

Put together, these projects also mean a host of local jobs.

ROLLING 'EM UP—Ever give a thought to the collapsible metal tubes which are so much a part of your life?

Chances are you haven't. These unique metal containers have been around so long—more than a hundred years—that they have become taken-for-granted items. Into them go dozens of things: dentifrices, medicines and pharmaceuticals, household and industrial products such as adhesives, greases and wood pastes, cosmetics, shaving creams and even foods.

In 1954 nearly a billion—959,902,704, to be exact—of these light-weight, sanitary, nonrefillable roll-up containers were turned out, a figure just slightly under the 1953 peak. The first such tube was patented in 1841 by an American, John Rand, for paints and other fluids. Molded of lead, it is now in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington. The company which was the first to use Rand's tubes is still in business and using them for the very purpose for which they were first designed.

THINGS TO COME — Now the retail store owner can have do-it-yourself reflecting signs. A kit contains sheeting and alphabets of letters to be traced and cut out. . . A duplicating stamp for making tags and labels produces 100 1x3-inch imprints from each master copy. . . A three-wheeled plastic automobile, shown at the Auto Sports show last week, costs $1,000 and runs 41.5 miles on a gallon of gasoline. . . Prefabricated fireplaces can now be purchased for $350 apiece, if one would improve your home.

HOUSING CHECKUP — Albert M. Cole, Federal Housing administrator, is keeping an eye on the continuing housing boom. Latest report: Perfectly healthy. . . Cole made a study of the unusual amount of building activity which took place in the normally slack winter months. He reported to the other government economic units concerned that he found no saturation of the market, apart from a few scattered apartment vacancies. Credit was not excessive.

The other groups making their independent surveys are the Council of Economic Advisors, the Department of Commerce, the Treasury Department, and the Federal Reserve Board. The permanent federal units think the boom is a healthy one; the Economic Advisers feel some restrictions on lending might be in order about May.

BITS O' BUSINESS — Steel scrap prices advanced, generally a dollar a ton. . . Tourists in Western Europe will spend $500 million this year, says a report to the United Nations. . . ### A 'Make-Do' Bookcase NEWLYWEDS on restricted budgets sometimes have to "make do" when it comes to their home furnishings. An item they need is a bookcase. Here's one that's functional, yet attractive.

As shown in the illustration, the bookcase framework is a series of 1 by 2-inch pieces of lumber, with sides, backs and shelf surfaces of Masonite 3/16" tempered Presdwood, a smooth, splinter-free material that may be painted or tinted.

The shelves merely are laid in place without fasteners, or they may be nailed down for a permanent installation. They may be painted or left in their natural color, a rich brown. The doors are Masonite "Peg-Board" panels. Note that the hinges are fastened through some of the numerous holes in this popular panel.

Note the triangular pieces of Tempered Presdwood at the corners, where they serve to brace the unit.

For a copy of a similar plan, useful in building storage shelf units, write to Home Service Bureau, Suite 2037, 111 West Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill., requesting Plan No. AE-276.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A COFFEE TABLE

Using 6-inch lumber or hardwood plywood for the top, and 2 by 2-inch lumber for the legs and frame, the home craftsman can make an attractive coffee table for porch or recreation room.

The table shown here uses glue and dowel joints, but the table also may be made using glue and screws. If boards are used for the top, they should be edge-glued to produce a smooth continuous surface.

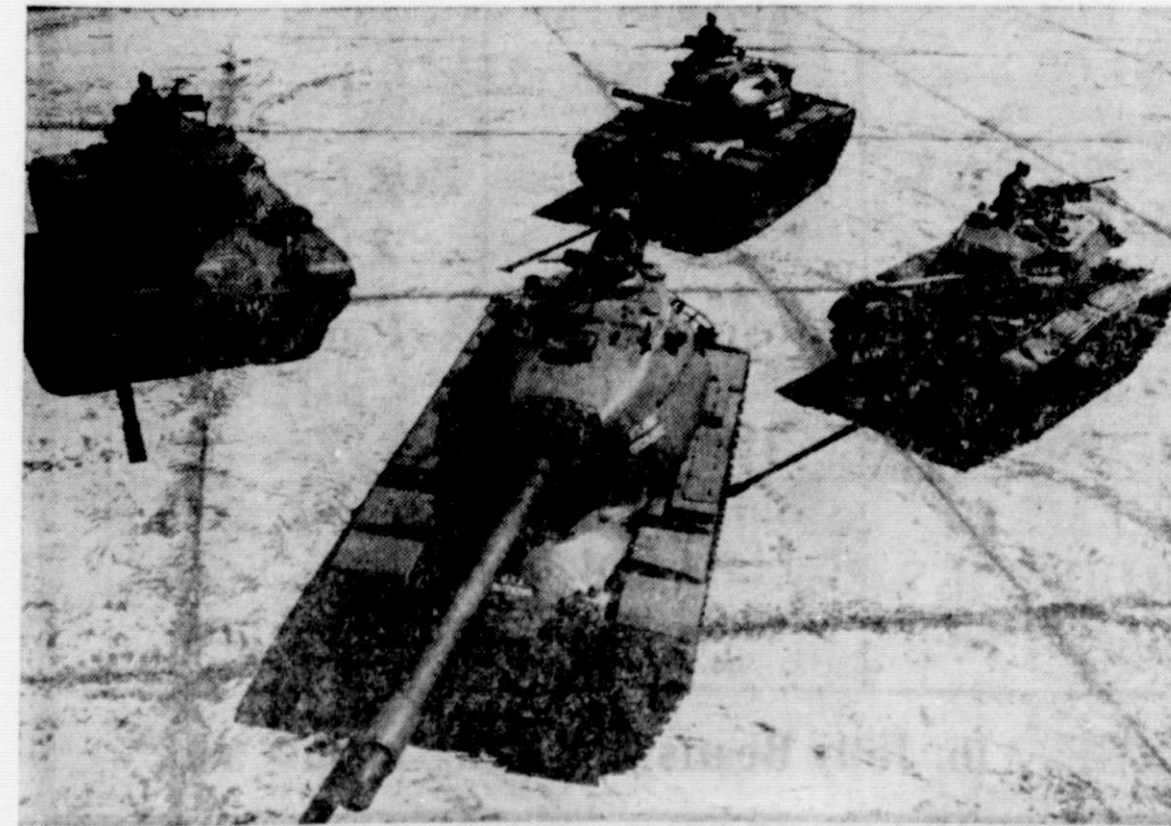

Measure all stock carefully, using a square, before cutting to length. The entire frame may be fastened together at one time, using five bar clamps to hold it until the glue has set. Or, it may be assembled piecemeal, using one clamp at each joint, in which case it would be well to allow the glue to set for 12 hours before removing the clamp. All joints should be checked and re-glued with a square before being permitted to set.

The top is fastened to the frame with No. 10 flathead wood screws, from beneath. Sand the finished project with a fine grade paper before varnishing.

In the foreground is the mammoth 60-ton T43, whose 120-millimeter gun is big enough to break down any door. Left to right behind the land dreadnaught is the Patton 47, the Patton 48 and the Walker Bulldog M41. Each has speed, maneuverability and tough hide.

UNDERWATER SHUTTER-BUG

With the exception of submarine sailors, most men who follow the sea would prefer to do it above water, not below. But Thomas H. Vaughan, Jr., photographer's mate second class, USN, of 8 S. Broad St., Penns Grove, N. J., has done more work under the sea than on top of it. . . without benefit of a submarine.

In fact he would prefer to have as little to do with submarines as possible since he is probably the only person nearly torpedoed by one.

It happened while Vaughan was stationed with the Navy's Underwater Photographic Team in Key West, Fla. Approximately 30 miles out of Key West, he dropped over the side of a boat to photograph a submarine making torpedo firing runs. As the sub passed by, one of the "tiffish" took a wrong turn and headed for Vaughan. It missed by inches.

The Underwater Photographic Team was loaned to Walt Disney Productions to give technical advice in filming underwater scenes for "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," near Nassau in the Bahama Islands.

They also operated with the National Geographic Society, photographing life in the Chesapeake Bay area while testing underwater equipment for the Navy.

NOT "BURROWING" TROUBLE—Trinca's no donkey, she's a smart burro who knows the wisdom of the NEW adage, "an apple a day keeps the doctor at play," and takes her daily ration from owner Dr. Laurel Foxworthy, of Bellevue, Wash. Trinca has the run of the house, is considered as much a pet as the doctor's four dogs.

RECOMMENDS CO. FARMERS CHECK FREQUENTLY, AVOID LOSSES IN STORED GRAIN
To the many farmers of Washington county who have grain stored on their farms, Erwin A. Russell, chairman of the Washington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, urges frequent and careful inspection of the grain.
He points out specifically that grain lost or reduced in quality through carelessness and neglect while in storage deprives the farmer of the protection he expected to receive when he took out a Commodity Credit Corporation loan. At settlement time the farmer is credited with grain of the quality and amount at the time the grain is delivered, regardless of what the quality and amount might have been when the loan was taken out.
Frequent inspection of farm-stored grain, the chairman points out, plus immediate action to correct whatever may be revealed by the inspection is the only way to be safe.
Heating, insects, birds, and rodents are particularly to be guarded against. He cautions that cold weather is no protection against heating and that heating often provides favorable conditions for grain-damaging insects. Heating usually results when the moisture content of the stored grain is too high.

Birds and rodents do their damage when the storage structure is not tight enough to keep them out. Keeping bins in good repair will keep out the birds and modern poisons are available to take care of the rats.
Chairman Russell suggests that the county extension agent is a good source of information on the most effective means for preparing structures, conditioning grain for storage, and on control measures if and when losses have already started.
