Roadside Test for Intoxication Went Into Effect July 1 in Wisconsin

Effective July 1, motorists who are stopped by local and state traffic officers may be asked to submit to a roadside test for intoxication if the officer has reason to believe the motorist may be operating his vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants, it was emphasized by Randall Fleming of the Washington County Sheriff's Department, who also serves as Washington County Highway Safety Coordinator.

"Use of the PBT (preliminary breath test) device is allowed under the stronger implied consent laws passed by the 1977 legislature and signed by Acting Governor Martin J. Schreiber," Fleming explained.

"The PBT is about the size of a pocket calculator, and it is designed to obtain a breath test reading at the roadside," he added.

"If the PBT shows a blood alcohol level of 0.1 per cent or higher, an arrest may be made and the suspect taken to the nearest police station equipped with a 'breathalyzer' for a more precise test which will be admissible in court as proof of intoxication," he continued.

The Governor's Office of Highway Safety has funded purchase of 1,000 prearrest screening devices, at a cost of $270 each. About 300 are in the field now, ready for use starting July 1. As the remaining devices are received, they will be delivered to police agencies whose personnel have been trained in their utilization.

In recent weeks the chemical test section of the State Patrol has conducted training sessions in Ashland, Fennimore, Fond du Lac, Green Bay, LaCrosse, Madison, Menomonie, Milwaukee, Rice Lake, Wausau and Whitewater.

Similar sessions will be conducted in coming weeks at Fond du Lac, Green Bay, Madison, Milwaukee and Waukesha. One officer from each police agency participating is certified as an instructor to train his fellow officers in the use of both the PBT devices and the more sophisticated breathalyzer machines.

"Officers are not going to harass motorists, but they are going to be on the alert for those drivers who by various actions mark themselves as targets for enforcement attention," Fleming stressed.

"That motorist who is spotted weaving across centerlines, coming to a 'rolling' instead of complete stop at STOP signs, driving recklessly, exceeding speed limits or attempting to elude an officer can expect to be singled out for special attention, he declared.

Wisconsin has become the 15th state to authorize use of pre-arrest screening devices, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Such states in the midwest include Indiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"Under Wisconsin's new law a motorist may refuse to take the preliminary pre-screening breath test if he or she agrees to take a quantitative test at the nearest police station of breath, blood or urine," Fleming said.

Penalties for refusing to submit to either of the tests are:

- First refusal within 5 years -

6 months driver license revocation, with reinstatement after 3 months if the person successfully completes rehabilitation and/or a group dynamics traffic safety school.

• Second and subsequent revocation within 5 years - 1 year revocation, with reinstatement after 6 months if rehabilitation or traffic school has been taken.

"Under Wisconsin's old law, the person refusing to submit to a test for intoxication faced suspension of license for 60 days," Fleming explained.

"After July 1 this year, such refusal will result in a 6 month revocation," he added.

"There's a big difference between 'suspension' and 'revocation'," he continued.

After a person has been suspended, he or she may be reinstated upon filing a $10 reinstatement fee with the state department of transportation and may be required to meet with a driver improvement analyst.

When revoked, a person has to start the entire driver licensing process all over again - taking the written, vision and road tests; paying a $25 reinstatement fee; paying $2 exam fees; and providing proof of future financial responsibility. In addition, he or she may be required to meet with a driver improvement analyst.

"Penalties for conviction on the charge of operating a vehicle while intoxicated also have been increased," it was pointed out by the local highway safety coordinator.

Conviction penalties are, starting July 1:

• On first OWI conviction in 5 years, a $100 to $500 forfeiture and 90 day to 6 month revocation of driving privileges. On successful completion of safety school and/or rehabilitation, all but the first $100 of the forfeiture and the license revocation may be waived.

• On second OWI conviction in 5 years, a $250 to $1,000 fine, 5 days to 6 months in the County jail, and a 1 year revocation of license. On successful completion of safety school and/or rehabilitation, all but the first $250 fine, all or part of the jail sentence, and the last 9 months of license revocation may be waived.

• On third OWI conviction within 5 years, the guilty drunk driver can be fined $500 to $2,000 and sentenced to jail for 30 days to as long as one year. In such cases, safety school and/or rehabilitation may not be in lieu of any part of either fine or imprisonment.

"These are tough laws, but they are needed and they will be enforced to remove the abusive drinker who drives from the public roadways," Fleming concluded.

The irritating juice from poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac puts hundreds in the hospital every summer, and sends thousands more to doctors to get relief from pain and itching. Symptoms include swelling and inflammation, also blisters. As soon as possible, wash exposed areas several times with soap and warm water. Calamine lotion may give some relief. Identify the irritating leaves in an encyclopedia so that contact with them can be avoided.

Cedar Lake Home Gets Totem Pole

The Cedar Lake Home Campus now has a unique addition for its Learning Center - a ten foot high, hand carved totem pole.

The Program-Education Committee, composed of community members, has been active in planning the Learning Center and its program. The committee selected a totem pole as an art object to help remind us of our Native American heritage.

Don Stettler, Campus Education Coordinator, says the totem pole is in keeping with the uniqueness of the Learning Center's program in stimulating thought and feelings of reverence.

Leo Smith III, Fountain City, Wis., is one of a handful of wood and stone artisans. His original totem pole design for Cedar Lake Home captures the spirit of the Potawatomi Tribe who were native to this area. The style in totem poles seen in the Pacific Northwest are widely copied and would not be in keeping with our area.

Important to this totem pole design is that it takes animal life native to the area into consideration. Leo Smith III chose three species signifying the waters (fish), the earth (turtle), and the sky (bittern). The totem pole also has cattails to symbolize the earth, clouds to illustrate the sky, and waves to show water. Not only do these symbolize the three strata of human experience, but more specifically, they are closely linked with the waterways and wetlands, upon which the Potawatomi counted on for subsistence.

The ten foot high totem pole is carved out of cedar wood which is native to our area. Traditionally, Indians thought of cedar as sacred wood and would use the smoke from it to purify their bodies.

The first circus was established in 1769 by an ex-cavalry sergeant in Lambeth, London. No admission was charged, but a collection was taken after each performance.

County Board Passes New Land Division Amendments

Washington County's new land division amendments are a step in the right direction, but they won't make the county's water clean, according to two County Board members.

To approach that goal, other agricultural and urban nonpoint pollution must be controlled. Nonpoint pollution is the runoff from farm, construction and urban land uses.

The land division amendments, passed unanimously by the Washington County Board on June 13, are aimed at reducing runoff from construction sites, where 10 to 100 times more soil per acre may be lost than from farm fields. But since far more farming than construction takes place in the county, agriculture accounts for approximately 50-55 per cent of the sediment pollution, according to Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission figures.

Supervisors Reuben Schmahl and John Kohl say voluntary programs to control farm land runoff should be given a chance in the county. If the programs fail, the two agree that regulation will be necessary, and that the county, not the state or federal government, should make the rules.

Schmahl, County Board chairman from Jackson, said in an interview that all county residents must realize that water quality problems are everyone's problems and everyone has to help solve them.

Concerning agriculture he said, "I'd like to see efforts made for voluntary controls. If we don't make the effort now, it's going to be legislated."

John Kohl, supervisor from Richfield, also favors voluntary agricultural programs, but believes regulation will come eventually. He would like the county to make those rules. "It works better if control is local. We know our people and their problems better (than the state or federal government does)."

Neither Kohl nor Schmahl thinks the county should have to budget funds to reach the federal goal of fishable, swimmable water by 1983. This year the state will contribute $3600 in matching funds to the county, but that may barely cover the cost of improving one barnyard, said Schmahl.

Since 1976 the Washington County Project (WCP) has studied erosion and sediment problems in the county to determine pollution sources, possible solutions and ways to carry out needed changes. University of Wisconsin-Madison, UW-Extension and the State Board of Soil and Water Conservation Districts sponsor the project, with funding from the Environmental Protection Agency.

Federal regulations require each state to develop "208 plans" for controlling nonpoint pollution. Public review meetings are going on around the state and should be completed by Nov. 1. It is not known whether the programs will be voluntary, regulatory or a combination of the two.

Fred Madison, WCP director, says that for the most part traditional conservation farming methods do a good job of reducing farmland sediment. These methods include contour plowing, strip cropping, grass waterways, reduced tillage, diversion channels and wind breaks.

In addition to the subdivision erosion amendments, the WCP drafted an ordinance that would require farmers to use any of these or other methods, if necessary, to keep average soil loss of any farming unit to three tons per acre. The proposed ordinance has been reviewed by the Soil and Water Conservation District supervisors, but no action has been taken.

Schmahl and Kohl say that subdivision amendments just passed will help conserve soil and water resources in unincorporated areas of Washington County.

The Washington County Project is working with incorporated areas to adopt similar ordinances, Madison says. The Village of Germantown is in the process of adoption. The Town of Jackson already has such an ordinance.

"We're moving ahead as fast as we can," said Kohl about the county's nonpoint pollution control efforts. "We're doing everything we can. The subdivision ordinances will be a great help."

'Peanuts'

Peanuts was named by residents at Friendship House on the Cedar Lake Home Campus, in honor of President Carter. Peanuts, a toy poodle, is the mascot for the home and travels from household to household making friends and bringing joy. "I just love him," says Nina Wiedow.

4-H Club News

RIVERSIDE 4-H

Our June meeting was brought to order by President Debra Fry on the 7th. Since June is Dairy Month we answered roll call by naming our favorite dairy product. Most popular - ice cream.

The following members of our club will be taking part in "Anything Goes," at the County Fair: Captain, Jeff Matter; Debra Fry, Doug Fry, Rick Standish. The substitutes are Randy Standish, Lynda Fry, Dan Schiefelbein and Tim Standish.

Our club will also be making a booth. Several members have volunteered to be on the committee. Several titles were mentioned during the discussion. We will leave it up to the committee to decide.

The Fair books were handed out by Doug Fry. Mrs. Roden, our leader, handed out demonstration booklets.

After the meeting, we had a demonstration on baking oatmeal cookies by Colleen Shaw. After the demonstration we all got a treat of a glass of milk and oatmeal cookies. Colleen did a good job. It being Dairy Month, we all enjoyed the treat.

Our next meeting will be July 5 at 7:00 p.m.

Residents Now Have Flag

Kettle Heights, the independent living community for retirees on the Cedar Lake Home Campus, now has a village flag.

The flag was designed by Ken and Harriet Jahncke, the embroidery was done by Norma Bergmann and the sewing by Alice Kaun, all of whom reside in Kettle Heights.

Residents of Kettle Heights approved the design and presented it to the Campus Resident Council who passed the concept.

The flags will be flown on special occasions and days in Kettle Heights.

Each color of the flag represents a part of the residents life on campus. According to Ken Jahncke, the green and white theme of the flag represents the Cedar Lake Home colors. The white background stands for purity, the red for courage, hardiness, heart and volunteer services, and the yellow cross, which is the most luminous color of the spectrum reminds viewers to live as Christians. The key on the flag is shown as a welcome to their new home and the beauty of the Kettle Moraine area is represented by the trees on the flag.

The flag was designed to welcome people to a Christian friendly home among nature's beauty of trees, and signifies pure living with courage, hardiness and volunteer service of love to one another.

There are 45 residents in Kettle Heights.

Gehl Company Provides Booklets to County Fifth Graders

Page 12
Kewaskum Statesman
Friday, July 7, 1978

A total of 2,000 environmental booklets were provided by the Gehl Company recently to all the fifth grade students in Washington County.

This year's booklet is entitled, "America's Conservation District, the Idea that worked!" They are published by the Soil Conservation Society of America and distributed to the schools by the Washington County Soil and Water Conservation District Junior Board.

The booklet explains how the dust storms in the 1930's spurred the nation to action to pass the first soil conservation legislation in 1935 establishing the Soil Conservation Service. It tells how the SCS works directly with landowners on erosion problems through local conservation districts whose boundaries are usually the same as the county. So today there are nearly 3,000 local districts in the U. S., Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Titles of some of the booklets distributed through the Gehl Company in past years were "Food and the Land," "Plants, How They Improve Our Environment," "Working Together for a Livable Land" and "The Earth, Our Home in Space."

vation District, Slinger High School. Seated are fifth grade members of Mr. Reynolds class reviewing SCSA environmental educational booklets.

Goodwill Reaches Goal After Fire Loss

Goodwill Industries, Milwaukee Area, Inc. has made up the loss sustained by a warehouse fire last July. Roger Matthews, Executive Director of the rehabilitation agency announced today, that the goal of 250,000 pounds of clothing has been reached. This amount is in addition to the normal monthly collection of about 700,000 pounds.

"We are most grateful for the support and concern of our neighbors and friends. None of our programs were curtailed nor lay-offs made during this period. To continue our vocational training programs for the handicapped, we need to maintain donations at a steady level. We urge our contributors to remember Goodwill in the month's ahead," Matthews said.

Goodwill is located at 6055 North 91st St., and has two retail stores, at the North 91st Street location, and at 3305 West Forest Home Avenue.

Too Many Errors As Indians Lose To Hartland, 8-2

It was a case of too many errors as the Kewaskum Indians were defeated at Hartland Thursday evening, 8-2.

Four runs in the fourth inning, all of them unearned, were enough to spell Kewaskum's doom. Pitcher Al Jaeger got the first two batters out and should have had the third on a routine fly ball. But the center fielder dropped the ball, after which four runs crossed the plate. A big hit of the inning was a double by winning pitcher Pat Pomeranz. Several other errors resulted in Hartland scores.

Pomeranz worked the first four innings for Arrowhead before being replaced. He allowed one run in the first frame on a walk to Jaeger, who stole second, took third on an infield out and scored on a passed ball.

John Bemis drove in the Indians' other run with a single in the seventh. He was then attempting to steal second. Kewaskum's only hits besides Bemis' single were one baggers by Mark Strigenz, Ross Krautkramer and Henry Schilter.

Jaeger also pitched only four innings. Left hander Scott Reif finished the game and gave up one hit and one run in the last two innings.

Area Racing News

By Ken Knoll

Tuesday night area race drivers went up to Leo's Speedway in Oshkosh. Mike Melius of Random Lake had a good evening. He was 9th fast qualifier, finished 3rd in his heat and then came on the finish 4th in the 25 lap feature. Willie Goeden of St. Michaels turned in 10th fast time and then finished 3rd in the feature.

Wednesday night at Firemen's Park in Cedarburg, Mike Melius did the best job of area drivers on hand. He was 4th in time, finished 3rd in his heat, and then came on to finish 5th in the 25 lap feature on this ½ mile dirt track. John Reiser of Allenton was 8th in time, 3rd in his heat and then finished 13th in the feature.

Thursday night at Wisconsin International Raceway in Kaukauna, Willie Goeden turned in his best performance on this track. He started out by turning 5th fast time and then winning the 6 lap fast dash. He then topped that off by winning his first feature on this ½ mile paved track. Goeden took the lead on the 9th lap and increased his lead until the end of the 20 lap Feature. Tony Strupp of Slinger also had a good night. Tony turned 2nd quick time, was 5th in the fast dash and then finished 4th in the feature.

Saturday's all day rain forced cancellation of the Late Model and Sportsmen's races at the Hales Corners Speedway in Franklin. The scheduled "Firecracker 50" for Late Models will be run next Saturday.

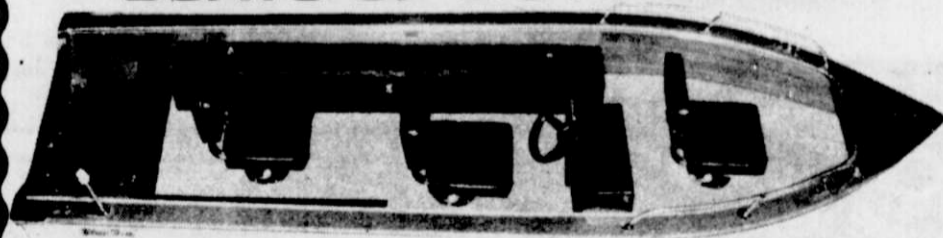

Willie Goeden and Scott Weiss both toured up to Escanaba Speedway in Escanaba, Michigan for the scheduled twin "Firecracker 50's" for late models. Rain also interfered with that race but not before Goeden turned in 4th fast time, won the trophy dash, and then was declared the winner of the rain shortened first 50 lap feature. Goeden took the lead on lap 17 and the race was halted on lap 22. The second 50 lapper was completely washed out. Weiss also found this 3/8 mile asphalt track to his liking. He finished 2nd in his heat which qualified him for the feature. He then finished 8th in the shortened feature. The entire program will be rerun next Saturday.

The scheduled late model races for Sunday night at Slinger Speedway were rained out and run on Monday night.
