The 88-page booklet also contains information on Wisconsin's homestead credit program and the farmland preservation credit program.

The guide, in addition to serving as an aid in filling out income tax forms, is a useful year-round reference on federal, state and local taxes—property, sales, inheritance, gift, excise and social security. The booklet also contains some interstate tax comparisons.

Effective Jan. 1 Low Income State Families Will Receive Bonus Food Stamps at No Cost

Effective January 1, 1979, new federal regulations provide that low income Wisconsin families will no longer buy part of their Food Stamp allotment. Instead, they will receive a portion of their allotment, the bonus stamps, at no cost.

Until January 1, they must continue to pay up to 88% of the cost of the stamps they use in order to get the free, or bonus, stamps that make the program so useful.

Recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) who have been having the purchase price of their non-bonus stamps deducted from their AFDC checks will notice a comparable increase in their grant checks in January.

Bernard Stumbras, Administrator of the Division of Economic Assistance, a unit of the State's Department of Health and Social Services, said today that the elimination of the cash purchase requirement was one of two welcome major changes in the Food Stamp program. The other will eventually eliminate some households that are comparatively well off but still meet current eligibility standards.

"We know that many people never took advantage of the extra purchasing power Food Stamps could give them because it had always been necessary for them to purchase such a large proportion of the stamps from their very limited incomes. The working poor were particularly affected in this manner.

"Now I think people who declined to utilize the program in the past because of the monthly investment it required should re-evaluate the situation.

"If they are still getting a card or letter authorizing them to receive Food Stamps, they should be sure to pick up the bonus stamps to which they are entitled at the nearest Food Stamp office in their county.

"If they have signed a statement to the effect that they were not then interested in receiving Food Stamps, they should notify their county department of social services they wish to receive the free stamps in January."

Stumbras said that, with the possible exception of people whose incomes improve during December, everyone now receiving Food Stamps should receive at least as many bonus stamps in January as in December.

Some, he said, will receive slightly more because bonus levels and the income eligibility levels have gone up slightly, reflecting the increased cost of food in the last six months.

(Net income standards applicable January 1, 1979, will be, for a one-person household - $279; two-person - $367; three-person - $507; four-person - $640; five-person - $760; six-person - $913; seven-person - $1007; eight-person - $1153).

Stumbras said that some persons who may have been ineligible to participate in the Food Stamp program in the past may now meet the January standards and should re-apply after January 1.

"However," he said, "while the elimination of the purchase requirement will make the Food Stamp program more accessible to very low income households, it will also end the eligibility of many people with higher incomes who are now in the program."

He said that county agencies will begin recertifying, or checking the eligibility status, of everyone in the program after March 1, 1979. Between March 1 and June 30, all participating households will have their eligibility checked against new, more stringent standards. Because future acceptable income levels will be lower and because of the manner in which deductions will be figured, many people with earned income, and especially those up near the top of the scale, will no longer be eligible, Stumbras said.

Series of Programs For Dairy Farmers Scheduled in County

Dairy farmers in Washington County and the surrounding area will have an opportunity to be updated on some of the dairy management techniques that can affect the profitability of a dairy operation.

A series of three programs has been scheduled by Jack Trzebiatowski, Washington County Agricultural Agent, for dairymen. The programs will be held on Tuesday, January 9, 16 and 23, starting at 8:00 p.m. The program on the 9th and 23rd will be at the Addison Town Hall in Allenton, and the January 16th program at Sacred Heart Church basement in Allenton.

A number of University of Wisconsin-Extension specialists from Dairy Science, Veterinary Science, Agricultural Engineering and Agronomy Department will participate in the program.

The program for January 9 will discuss "Calf and Youngstock Health and Simple Vaccination" with Dr. John Anderson, D.V.M., University of Wisconsin-Extension Veterinarian; and "Calf and Youngstock Housing, Cold vs. Warm, and Calf Hutches" with Dan Meyer, University of Wisconsin-Extension Agricultural Engineer.

The January 16 program will discuss "Looking Inside the Plant to See What the Cow Will Eat" with Dr. Dwayne Rohweder, University of Wisconsin-Extension Agronomy Department; and "Feeding to Make a Profit" with Dr. Terry Howard, University of Wisconsin-Extension Dairy Science Department.

The January 23 program will discuss "Let DHIA Help You Make More Profit" with Dr. Clarence Olson, University of Wisconsin-Extension Dairy Science Department; and "How to Select Sires With a High Profit Potential" with Dr. Tony Sendelback, University of Wisconsin-Extension Dairy Science Department.

Because the present economic situation in dairying is rather good, this is not the time to forget or postpone sound dairy herd management practices. With a little extra effort to get the herd shipshape, you can enjoy extra profit now and become prepared for such times when the price-cost situation is less favorable.

Dairying is a family affair, so is this program. Wives, sons and daughters are invited to attend this program.

A minimum of twenty people must pre-register to attend these programs or they will be cancelled.

Materials and registration materials for this program are

When you see a drug advertised and wish to use it for self-medication, a pharmacist can give you the pros and cons on your use of the drug product. For example, a patient taking a prescription tranquilizer would be cautioned against using a non-prescription antihistamine that could bring on extreme drowsiness. An ulcer patient would be directed away from aspirin, as it could aggravate the ulcer. Pharmacists are trained to detect situations that, unknown to the patron, may require a physician's attention.

The Gray Well Drilling Company of Milwaukee finished their job of drilling last week, after going down a depth of 405 feet having 375 feet of water. On Friday morning they started to test out the well and after continuous pumping until Tuesday at the rate of 170 gallons per minute, the lowest the water could be lowered at any one time was 15 feet. It is estimated by the company that the well is good for at least 600 gallons a minute. This exceptional flow of water at that depth, has gone beyond all expectations, and it is said by the well drillers to be one of the best wells in this section of the state.

Mrs. Amelia M.F. Oppermann, nee Krueger, passed away in death at her home in the Town of Auburn, on Thursday, December 27.

The Kewaskum High School basketball team has made a very good record so far this season winning four out of five games including two conference games. As a result, they are tie for first place with Lomira in the Tri-County League.

A 1978 graduate of West Bend East High School, he joined the Marine Corps in April 1978.

Stress Control Workshop at MPTI

Moraine Park Technical Institute has scheduled a Stress Control Workshop the first week in January.

The twenty hour workshop is directed by Richard A. Detert. The emphasis will be on the total person concept as applied to maintaining wellness. An overview of stress, causes of stress, distress and how stress affects one's health will be covered. Various relaxation skills will be introduced as one means of controlling the stress response.

Stress Control begins January 4 at 9:00 a.m. and runs until 4:10 p.m. that afternoon. The next day, January 5, participants will re-convene from 9:00 a.m. - 4:10 p.m. The wrap-up of the workshop will occur the next day, January 6, from 9:00 a.m. - 3:10 p.m.

Mr. Detert received his M.S. from the University of Wisconsin with a major in School Health Education and a Special Emphasis in Stress Control and Relaxation Techniques. His preparation in the area of stress control involves over two hundred hours of classroom or teaching experience including presenting this workshop in La Crosse, Sparta and West Bend. Detert has worked with Meyer Friedman, author of Type A Behavior and Your Heart and various other experts in the field of stress control and relaxation skills.

Call 334-3413 to register for this workshop. The $6.50 fee is payable the first day of class. Lunch is not provided.

Sheep shearing classes

The Department of Meat and Animal Science of the University of Wisconsin-Extension is again scheduling two schools for individuals that would like to learn the art of shearing sheep. The sessions will be held at Spooner on Monday, Jan. 29 and Tuesday, Jan. 30, and in Madison on Thursday, Feb. 1 and Friday, Feb. 2.

Due to limitations in personnel and space, each school will be limited to about 20 students. Persons interested should make the reservations for these schools as soon as possible.

Students should be physically large enough to handle sheep and be able to take part in the two-day course. There will be a shepherds clinic with each of the two schools held in the evenings of the first day at each school, which is part of the school, and will be from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

Persons interested in attending the Sheep Shearing Schools should contact JHack Trzebiatowski at the Washington County UW-Extension Office, P.O. Box 537, West Bend, Wis. 53095; phone 334-3491, 644-5204 or 342-2929, Extension 263, for enrollment forms. Registration for the two schools will close on January 10, 1979.

Sensenbrenner Announces Resignation And Plans for Legislative Transition

Congressman-elect Jim Sensenbrenner (R - 9th District) Friday submitted his resignation from the Wisconsin Senate so that Acting Governor Martin Schreiber may order a special election for his vacated 4th District seat to be held coincidentally with the nonpartisan spring elections. Sensenbrenner also announced provisions to continue service to 4th District constituents until the vacancy is filled.

"Legislation passed last year at the request of Milwaukee officials extended the time period between the call for a special election and the election itself," Sensenbrenner explained. "Thus, special elections for the 4th and 20th Senate districts could not be held at the time of the regular spring elections unless resignations from those seats were received by December 16. However, the special bill passed this week will enable the Governor to waive the new requirements and save the taxpayers the expense of an extra election this spring," Sensenbrenner added.

The Senate Organization Committee has decided to maintain an office in the capitol for the constituents of the 4th Senate District until a successor is sworn in," Sensenbrenner reported. That office will respond to constituent requests for publications and will be staffed by Mrs. Shirley Jacobs, a current Sensenbrenner staff aide.

"My Congressional office will complete action on problems handled initially by my Senate office, as well as new ones arising," Sensenbrenner said. "Constituents needing help should contact my Brookfield office at 333 Bishops Way, Brookfield, WI 53005; telephone (414) 784-1111."

When Stephen Foster first wrote "The Old Folks at Home" it originally began "Way down upon the Pee Dee River."

Two County Students Nominated for Admission to U.S. Service Academies

(WASHINGTON, D.C.) - Two Washington County students have been nominated by Congressman Bob Kasten (R-Wis.) for admission to the U.S. service academies.

Susan Kasten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, W153 N11685 Kurt Dr., Germantown, is a competing alternate to the U.S. Air Force and U.S. Military Academies and a nominee to the Merchant Marine Academy.

Jerold Kosey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Budd Meisenheimer 6965 W. Waterford Rd., Hartford, is a competing alternate to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

They are among 33 students recommended by the Ninth District Congressional Appointments Commission for District vacancies at the Air Force, Naval, Military and Merchant Marine Academies, whose classes begin next June.

The Appointments Commission is composed of 18 community leaders from the six counties in the District. Members of the Commission interviewed each candidate and made recommendations based on an applicant's high school academic record, college board scores and participation and leadership in extracurricular activities.

One principal nominee was designated for each vacancy. If the principal nominee does not qualify, the alternates compete equally for the vacancy.

A senior at Washington High School, Brown is a member of the National Honor Society, the School Board Nutritional Standards Committee and is treasurer of the Student Council. She was selected to attend Badger Girls State last summer.

Kosey is a senior at Hartford Kosey High School. He was president of the chess club in 1977 and has received his chess club pin and letter. As a member of the 4-H Club he has received a 4-H Aerospace award. He is also active in the Audio-Visual Club and Latin Club.

Kasten has submitted the nominations to the academies, which will conduct the final examinations.

He is permitted to nominate ten candidates for each District vacancy at the academies. In 1979 there are two vacancies at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, two vacancies at the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, one vacancy at the U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs and six state vacancies for the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point.

In the case of the Merchant Marine Academy, the Congressional nominees compete in a nation-wide examination, and all nominees from the State of Wisconsin will be in competition for six vacancies allotted to the state.

Each academy is an accredited four-year academic institution which awards a Bachelor of Science degree.

4-H Learns From Animal Projects

Four-H'ers learn from animal projects. This is shown in a survey taken this past year of 4-H animal projects and parents in Wisconsin.

The 4-H members learn in two ways. They learn about animals and they learn about themselves and others.

Questions were asked of members and of parents what they felt they had learned from the 4-H experience. Patience in working with an animal was mentioned by 81 per cent of the members responding. Other things which many members indicated they learned included: grooming and training an animal, understanding and respecting animals and how to select an animal.

There was some difference in responses between members who raised different kinds of animals. For example, members raising meat animals such as beef, sheep and swine indicated they learned about the cost of keeping an animal. Members that raised animals primarily for recreation did not indicate that they learned very much about the cost of keeping an animal.

Very few mentioned that they learned about careers with animals, animal reproduction or health needs of animals.

The adult volunteer 4-H leaders are to be commended for the excellent job they are doing in teaching through the animal project. On the other hand, as one leader said when he looked over the results of the survey, "It looks as if we're doing a pretty good job of teaching patience and grooming and training of animals, but it looks like we ought to spend a little more time helping youth understand health and nutrition and animal reproduction."

In addition to learning about animals, the 4-H experience helps members learn about themselves and others. Some of the things which members indicated they learned a lot about were getting along with others, developing a sense of values and goals, taking more responsibility, influencing and leading others, making new friends, having a feeling of being really good at something and working with adults.

The animal projects are one of the opportunities in 4-H. Adults can use animal projects to help youth learn and grow.

'Take It Easy' Is Snow Shoveling Rule

The winter snows are here again, and millions of householders are faced once more with clearing walks and driveways.

Snow shoveling requires a lot of energy and muscle. Pushing a stalled auto out of a drift is even more demanding.

Once again the American Medical Association reminds men of middle age and beyond, especially those who are overweight and lead sedentary lives, to take it easy in clearing away the snow from walks and drives.

If you're in good health, snow shoveling actually is good exercise—if you take it easy. This could mean getting up half an hour earlier on the morning of a fresh snow fall, to allow time for leisurely shoveling, with frequent brief rest periods. The frantic, hurried approach to clearing the drive in an effort to get to work on time most definitely is not good for health.

Most common serious health result of overexertion from snow shoveling is a heart attack. If your heart is sound, it likely won't be damaged. But if you already are prone to a heart attack, the extra exertion can trigger it.

Unless you have had a recent checkup, however, you cannot be certain you aren't a likely candidate for heart trouble. Take it easy. Don't be ashamed to invest in a machine that blows or scrapes aside the snow, with a small engine substituting for muscle power. Or hire the neighborhood lad down the street to shovel your walks.

Snow shoveling can be good for you, if you use common sense. Exercise and fresh air in the winter are important to maintaining health. Just don't overdo it.

Change in Assessment Date Creates Hardship for Farmers, Mink Breeders

(MADISON)—Legislation recently changed the state's yearly assessment date from May 1 to January 1, beginning in 1979. This change has created a great deal of hardship for producers of agricultural commodities and mink breeders.

"The January assessment date is clearly unworkable for farmers and assessors alike," State Representative Gervase Hephner (D-6th Assembly District) commented. "Therefore, I have prepared legislation which would create exemptions from the property tax on hides and pelts and certain farm crops which are in the hands of the grower on January 1."

Items subject to exemption in the legislation include all unmanufactured leaf tobacco; harvested agricultural crops such as corn, soybeans and hay, and the seed used in their production; hides and pelts of fur-bearing animals raised on mink ranches, etc.; and feed supplements owned by growers, used in feeding on farms and not for sale.

Legislative action on the bill in January is extremely important to avoid placing a heavy tax burden on farmers for the coming year. If this legislation is not passed, all farm commodities in the hands of the grower will not be assessed and taxed," Hephner explained.

Corn farmers and mink ranchers and assessors have been particularly troubled by the difficulties raised by a January assessment date, which falls in the middle of the corn season if one has held his corn, and will affect the mink ranchers in an unfair manner also.

SENATOR PETRI CAPITOL REPORTS

Money Available for Energy Conservation

Last month, President Carter signed a national energy bill. For the past year and a half, this bill has been debated. Natural gas prices and energy taxes were the controversial issues addressed in this legislation.

But there are many other, less-publicized sections of the energy bill. While these other parts did not make headline news, they will have a significant impact here in Wisconsin.

NEW PROGRAM

One of these sections establishes a new Energy Conservation Program for schools, hospitals, and local government owned buildings. The program will provide federal funds for energy audits and technical assistance to schools and hospitals for construction, updating and installation of energy conservation equipment.

Federal officials have earmarked $20 million for the State of Wisconsin under this program. The federal grants will cover 50 percent of the cost of conservation efforts. Local governments and school or hospital boards seeking grants will have to come up with 50 percent matching funds.

STATE OFFICE

Wisconsin's Office of State Planning and Energy, in Madison, will handle the distribution of these federal grants. Agency officials say that this is the largest grant program ever to come through the state energy office. The types of projects which may be eligible for federal funding include: modifications to heating and cooling systems; temperature control systems; insulation and other weatherization improvements; and possibly, solar systems.

State officials estimate as many as 10,000 buildings in the state could be eligible for this program. The effectiveness of improvements will be weighed against the costs in determining which grant applications are approved.

CONDUCTING AUDITS

The Office of State Planning and Energy is now conducting a program of preliminary audits on all appropriate buildings. These audits will provide "building profiles" which will help state officials establish guidelines for determining need. Later on, state officials will conduct more comprehensive audits on buildings to identify the improvements that will produce the greatest energy savings for the smallest expense.

Energy officials in Washington hope that this grant program will help cut the energy consumption of schools, hospitals and local government buildings by 10 to 15 percent.

This is a government program that I think will prove useful. I hope school boards and local governments will be able to take advantage of it, as it will be money well spent. Most energy conservation improvements can pay for themselves two or three times over. When steps are taken to eliminate energy waste, the cost of state and local government is curbed, and we contribute to solving the energy problem facing the country.

As recently as 100 years ago, some people were still using a tin kitchen funnel as a hearing aid - though it only worked if you stood right next to it and screamed into it.

SMALL BUSINESS ENERGY SAVINGS

[First in a series of fourteen]

Butcher, baker, candlestick maker...80,000 small businesses in Wisconsin face the same problem: how to keep spiraling energy costs from eating away at their profits.

But before you can solve your energy problems, says Wes Mott, you've got to define them. Mott is coordinator of the University of Wisconsin-Extension's small business energy project.

"You've got to answer two basic questions," he says. "How much energy am I paying for each month? And how is that energy being used?"

ENERGY HOMEWORK

To answer those questions, there is some energy homework you can do yourself. For example, gather all your fuel and utility bills from the last 12 or 15 months. (Ask your fuel dealer or utility for help if you can't find them all). The bills will help you find out just how much you spend for energy to run your business.

Second, says Mott, walk around your business looking hard at energy use. Too many lights? Equipment turned on but not being used? Thermostat settings correct for energy-efficient heating or cooling?

Also check walls, windows, doors, roof and floor. Caulking, weatherstripping, insulation and storm doors and windows can cut heating and cooling costs. Make notes on the areas that need improvement.

PROFESSIONAL HELP

Once you've determined your basic energy situation, says Mott, get help from professionals to plan your energy conservation campaign.

A good place to start is your utility company or a local heating contractor.

Mott's small business energy project is presenting 16 workshops around the state in the next several months (see table) on energy conservation for small businesses.

"Energy specialists at the workshops can show you how to pinpoint energy costs for things like lighting, heating, air conditioning and refrigeration," he says.

Mott points out that about 47 per cent of the total energy used by the average Wisconsin retailer goes for inside and outside lighting. Heating, ventilating and air conditioning represent 35-50 per cent, and refrigeration, if used, can add up to 15-35 per cent.

And if you need extra help after the workshop, you can take advantage of low-cost energy consulting services arranged through the Project's staff. For $25 or less, says Mott, a consultant from one of several engineering firms will travel anywhere in the state to provide up to a full day of energy analysis work.

Armed with information from the workshops and consultation, you should be ready to plan cost-effective energy conservation projects for your business.

Some are simple and inexpensive, like setting back thermostats and turning out unnecessary lights. Others, like modifications to a furnace or air conditioner, require careful analysis and professional assistance.

In any case, says Mott, you should be able to cut energy use in your business by 15 per cent or more.

The JV meet was also won by Hartland by a one-sided margin, 48-6, but the Indian freshmen won their match by taking four of five matches. Frosh Dave Goeden scored the only pin for Kewaskum over Scott Svartout in the second period.

Index of Mapped Lakes Available For Ice Fishermen

An index of over 2300 Wisconsin Mapped Lakes will help many ice fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A mapped lake is actually a hydrographic map. So what's a hydrographic map? "Hydrographic Maps" is simply a high-faluting term for maps showing the various depths of a lake along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing...such as kind of lake bottom (sand, mud, gravel, etc...)

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a Wisconsin Hydrographic Map you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom. No more cutting through a foot of ice to find 6 inches of water underneath.

The index is available at no charge by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped (28c) envelope to: Wisconsin Lake Maps, Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

Rose Parade and Bowl . . .

Sports Invade Pasadena On New Year's

Gridiron action culminates a day of sports in Pasadena on New Year's Day, 1979 when USC faces Michigan in the 65th Rose Bowl Game, telecast live over NBC-TV at 5 p.m. EST (4 p.m. CST).

PASADENA, CA.—This Southern California community will turn into the sports capital of the nation on New Year's Day, 1979, with the help of the 90th Tournament of Roses Parade and the 65th Rose Bowl Football Game.

The morning will be filled with athletics as the Rose Parade salutes "Our Wonderful World of Sports"—only the second sports-related theme since the parade began in 1890.

The two-hour pageant will feature 60 flower-covered floats depicting sports that range from basketball and baseball to croquet, cricket and Saturday morning armchair quarterbacking.

Twenty-two bands with over 4,000 musicians and 250 equestrian riders will also traverse the 5 1/2-mile route in front of more than 1.5 million curbside spectators and 125 million television viewers worldwide.

Leading the parade as Grand Marshal will be Lathrop K. "Lay" Leishman, who is being honored for his nearly 50 years of service to the Tournament of Roses Association. His father, William, helped build the Rose Bowl stadium in 1922 and, in 1946, the junior Leishman was instrumental in signing the exclusive pact linking the Big Ten and Pacific-10 football conferences in annual Rose Bowl play.

Reigning over the festivities will be the 60th Rose Queen, 17-year-old Catherine Mary Gilzour, and her Royal Court of six princesses. Joining them will be Arthur D. Welsh, president of the Tournament of Roses Association, whose 1,400 volunteer members stage the annual civic celebration.

Sports will continue in the afternoon in Pasadena's historic Rose Bowl stadium, where USC faces Michigan in the "Granddaddy" of all post-season bowl games.

It will mark the fourth Rose Bowl meeting between the two teams in the 85-year history of the classic. It will also be the third consecutive Rose Bowl appearance for Michigan, while USC will be making an unprecedented 22nd visit to Pasadena.

When the two schools first met in 1948, the Wolverines shut out USC, 49-0, as Michigan Coach Fritz Crisler demonstrated for the first time the double platoon system of substitution. The Trojans won the next two meetings, 10-3 in 1970 and 14-6 in 1977.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler has led his team to the Rose Bowl in 1970, 1972, 1977 and 1978, but has never won. USC's John Robinson was victorious in 1977, his rookie year coaching at USC.

The 1979 Rose Parade will be telecast live, beginning at 11:30 a.m. EST (10:30 a.m. CST) over the NBC, CBS, Metromedia, Golden West and Spanish International Television Networks. The Rose Bowl follows exclusively on NBC, beginning at 5 p.m. EST (4 p.m. CST).
