Exodus House Rezoning Request Denied by Board

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

After an 1½ hour public hearing filled with voices of opposition, the Kewaskum Village Board Monday night voted unanimously, 7-0, against rezoning the Kleineschay property at 1338 Midland.

The house was to have been used in expansion of the Exodus House Transition Care Facility. The half-way house for recovering alcoholics would have been increased from 16 to 24 beds.

Mike Doherty, spokesman for people in the home's area, presented petitions with approximately 129 signatures from residents who were opposed to the rezoning request. Major points listed as their reasons for opposition ran from lowering of property values and concern for the influence on their children to traffic congestion on the surrounding streets. Doherty asked why the home had not been put on the market. He said he knew of two families who were interested in purchasing the home. Otto said Mrs. Kleineschay's daughter had offered the property to them because of the help and consideration shown her mother by people from the Exodus House while she lived in the home.

Although everyone who spoke had nothing but good words and praise for Mr. Otto and his program, no one wanted to see it enlarged at its present site. Although the Doherty family moved in after Exodus was in operation, Mrs. Doherty said at the time they did not know about the program and were against any further expansion. Mr. and Mrs. Travis Canfield, who also spoke against the rezoning, said they had negotiated with Exodus for purchase of their property, but plans were dropped when they felt there would be problems as suggested at the hearing.

Trustee Jeff Rohrer asked Otto if any alternate sites had been considered. Otto said two homes north of Exodus House on Fond du Lac Avenue had been considered, but both would require extensive and costly remodeling and repair to make them suitable for his program.

Residents in the area felt that if the home were allowed to expand now, eventually there would be more requests to increase the number serviced by this center. Otto said the home could not increase the beyond the 24-bed figure unless the Kewaskum population increased substantially. Otto felt this was not likely in the near future. However, a concerned resident said that future might not be that far off, referring to the rapid development of the Bel-Ric subdivision on the southwest, the new subdivision on the northwest, the new condominium under construction and the proposed Meadow Creek apartment complex.

Although most of the people attending the hearing were against rezoning, several people spoke in favor of it. Mrs. Sue Ostram said she had worked at Exodus House and was for the expansion. Ostram said she lived near the old opera house, presently called John &

Preliminary Figures for 1981 Budget Presented

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Village Administrator Dan Schmidt presented the preliminary budget for 1981 at Monday night's village board meeting.

After some trimming in almost all departments, Schmidt presented a budget of $870,660.00. This figure can still change if Federal Revenue Sharing goes into effect and the Public Service Commission grants the village's request for sewer and water rate increases.

Schmidt said funds for the second squad car were left in the budget because monies were available, but in a projected 1982 budget, revenues would be even lower, thus making a second squad definitely out of the question at that time.

Schmidt said the approximate tax rate will be $28.49 per $1,000.00, a 20% increase over last year's figure of $23.63 per $1,000.00. Village rates will be $8.49, compared to $6.47 last year. County taxes increased 31c. Schmidt said the proposed budget reductions enable him to cut 50c per thousand out of the budget.

Formal hearing of the 1981 budget will be held December 1.

After a short discussion of the proposed Cable TV ordinance the board decided against adoption at this time. Several points were brought up which Village Board President Jerry Stollenwerk felt should be checked into and clarified.

The board decided to have the representative from River Band Cable Vision meet with them and answer any questions. Stollenwerk directed Schmidt to set up a meeting between the board, Cable TV Committee and Cable Vision as soon as possible.

Schmidt asked the board to consider setting up a policy regarding refuse and garbage collection. Schmidt felt with a specific policy setting standards for refuse collection, the village would be able to save work time by requiring crushing and bundling of boxes and cardboard, having suitable containers stacking brush, etc. A saving of approximately $1,000.00 per year could be realized by such a program. Trustee Paul Blumer said he would work with Schmidt and Public Works Superintendent Augie Bilgo to develop this policy.

The board voted approval of a Class "A" liquor license to James Boegel, who will operate the former Coulter Liquor Mart.

The board granted a building permit to Regal Ware, Inc. for conversion of the old Minz Supply building to the new Regal Outlet Store.

The board then adjourned to closed session to review police contract negotiations.

Memories...

The Statesman welcomes readers to submit photos for the "Memories" feature. Photos should show life in the olden days in this area. Deliver or mail to The Statesman, 250 Main St., Kewaskum, WI 53040. Photos can be picked up again after publication.

Here's another old picture of Kewaskum's Main Street east of the railroad tracks, dated 1914. Note the unpaved street, railroad crossing gates, signalman's tower on the right from where the gates were operated, the old village hall on the right with the fire alarm bell in the tower [now the Czaja building], and the old hotel building on the left which has been remodeled and is now Flynn's Bar.

The picture was taken just at the time some flying machine was soaring over the village, probably as the result of some trick photography.

Junior Jargon

Christmas designs, arrangements and ideas were the topic of discussion at the November Kewaskum Junior Woman's Club. Mary Bohn of Bits and Pieces in West Bend showed the trick to making attractive bows easily. She also gave ideas for the back-to-nature look for holidays and emphasized that floral arrangements should be well-balanced and everything should point toward the center of the arrangement.

Kewaskum Junior Women welcomed new members in a candlelight installation ceremony. Newly installed women include Jeanne Slaughenhoup, Amy Pamperin, Sue Schmitz and Wendy Weyers.

Club activities for November and December include a cookie and craft exchange among members. The Education Committee encourages members to participate in Project Post Card during the week of November 23 by mailing postcards to the television networks indicating likes and dislikes.

The Home Life Committee has collected items for a Thanksgiving basket for a family in need in Kewaskum. Clothing and toys were also collected for the family children. The Conservation Committee announced that by calling 1-800-362-9696 any citizen can check to see how various bills are doing in Congress.

Exodus House

Dee's (formerly Apollo's Lyre) and she would rather have the Exodus House for neighbors. Ostram stated "if we could trade them for John & Dee's, I'd take them right now." Ostram said "we've done everything but stand on our heads to get rid of the saloon with all its vandalism and problems" and she did not think it was right to stop the growth of a program which had done nothing but good and had received no bad complaints against it.

Farmington School Principal Tom Larsen said in 1979, when he was organizing a 8-12 year old football league, no one in Kewaskum was willing to volunteer as officials. Larsen went to Otto and got several men who gave their time and did an excellent job.

Police Chief Don Hlavaty said in the four years of Exodus' existence, there had been no problems.

Trustee Dave Nigh said his concern was what if Otto goes to another community, would the facility continue to run as well as it does now. When asked if these additional men could be helped at some other facility, Otto said no, all centers were filled to capacity and that was why he had received a permit to expand in Kewaskum.

Village Board President Gerald Stollenwerk told Otto, if you weren't running such a good facility it would not be a difficult decision. Trustee Don Mlodzik motioned to deny rezoning, seconded by Rohrer. The vote was 6-0 against the request.

KHS Students Tour College Campuses

St. John's
United Church of Christ
Boltonville, WI

St. John's United Church of Christ in Boltonville celebrated its 75th anniversary on Sunday, October 26, with a commemorative service. The congregation and pastors enjoyed a social after the service.

During the seventy-five years many dedicated pastors served the small rural congregation. Pastoral duties have been shared with neighboring congregations through the years. A three point charge with St. John's, Beechwood, St. Paul's, Silver Creek, and Boltonville remained in effect from 1939 to 1962. From 1962 until 1975 St. Martin's, Fillmore, and St.

John's, Boltonville, were a two point charge. In July 1975 five congregations joined to form the five Star Larger Parish to finish the pastoral services for their members.

The five churches are: St. John's, Random Lake; St. Paul's, Silver Creek; St. John's, Beechwood; St. Martin's, Fillmore and St. John's, Boltonville.

Two full time pastors serve the five congregations and one part-time pastor assists in Sunday worship services. The full time pastors are Rev. John Klühd and Rev. William Kesting.

The marriage vows of Judy L. Wesenberg and Harlow C. Reseburg II were blessed during a 2 p.m. ceremony at St. John's Lutheran Church, New Fane, on August 23. Officiating the ceremony were Vicar Robert Lindau and Pastor Robert Wilcken.

The wedding party exited the church under crossed sabers performed by the Wisconsin Rifles Civil War Unit of which the bridegroom is a member.

Bridal escorts were Harlow C. Reseburg III and Matthew J. Reseburg, sons of the bridegroom.

Bonnie Burmeister, cousin of the bride was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Judy Becker, friend of the bride and Jean Robrahn, friends of the bride. Buffy Reseburg, niece of the bridegroom was the flower-girl.

Gary Dorzok, friend of the bridegroom was best man. Mike Reseburg and John Reseburg, brothers of the bridegroom, were groomsmen.

Ushering duties were shared by Randall Glass, cousin of the bride and Edwin Gutermann, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A reception, dinner, and dance at Hinn's Hall, New Fane followed the ceremony.

The newlyweds are residing at Rt. 1, 30-80, Random Lake.

The bride graduated from Kewaskum High School. The bridegroom graduated from West Bend High School.

Watching his dad change into a tux, the little lad said: "Please don't wear that coat with the shiny lapels. Whenever you wear it, you don't feel good the next day."

Two fellows were seated at a bar, lifting a few, when one confided: "I don't really know who I am. You see, I was left on a doorstep." "Good heavens," the other exclaimed, "maybe you're a milk bottle."

First Session Of MPTI Family Life Series Held

If you want to do something for your family, develop open, honest, free-flowing communication and activity. And add to it an understanding that there is time to be a couple, time to be yourself, and time to be alone once in a while to recharge your batteries.

This was the message West Bend psychotherapist Richard Potter left with men and women who enrolled for the Moraine Park Technical Institute Family Environment Improvement course Monday night.

Discussing Changes and Stresses in the Family, Potter intertwined an optimistic note throughout the evening. "We have the knowledge, we can rebuild the family; all we need is commitment," he stated.

And communication is the key to develop that commitment. "We need quality, loving, effective communication," he added.

Explaining differences between the extended family of the past and the nuclear family today, Potter noted that children today are not surrounded by as many support systems, as their parents and grandparents.

But remember that parenting is a quality job, not a quantity one, he stated. Parenting is incumbent on both parents. Both need to give quality attention. "Build in some family time," he suggested. Develop this time by doing things together and having time to talk available on a regular basis.

Noting the increased numbers of single parent and step parent families, the psychotherapist said that today children live in a different world, and openly discuss these occurrences with their friends. "Change in the family is constant," he said. And flexibility is necessary, he believes.

Remember the mental health concept of good self-worth, he urged his audience. Each person needs a feeling that he counts, a feeling that he's worthwhile. Love yourself, so you can love others. Balance the concepts of how to be a person in a family, and how to have a family and to be a person.

If unemployment is a stress you are facing, communicate with your spouse; talk about what it is that you need; share the pain and let anger and disillusionment out, Potter said.

Domestic violence and another inciter of domestic problems, alcohol, were discussed. Potter sees it as a catalyst for a lot of problems between people. Anger and hate come out, because a person doesn't think straight after a few drinks. "Make a commitment to yourselves to talk when you're not drinking," he advised.

A question about TV prompted these remarks: "TV takes so much time from yourself, from your family. Make a conscious effort to devote time to activities other than TV." Children, between 8 and 14 especially, need a lot of family communication. Use better communication rather than power in decision-making about TV viewing, he recommended.

Two more sessions remain for the MPTI Family Life series. On Monday, November 24, West Bend school psychologist Michael Breen will discuss "Building Your Child's Self Esteem."

The final class on Monday, December 1, is "Communication with Your Teen Ager," by Kenneth Schermacher, well known speaker in Parent and Teacher Effectiveness Training, also a school psychologist.

Classes are held at West Bend High School, Room E 108 from 7 to 9 p.m. Men and women who want to enroll for the remaining sessions may do so, on a first-come, first-served basis for the remaining spaces. The fee is $3.85. Contact MPTI, 2151 N. Main, West Bend, or call 334-3413.

Donna Lehmann Places Second In Miss Snowflake Pageant

Miss Kewaskum Sno-Chief, Donna Lehmann, shown here with the trophy she received for placing second in the Miss Snowflake Pageant.

On the weekend of October 31-November 2, the Association of Wisconsin Snowmobile Clubs (A.W.S.C.) held their annual workshops in Oshkosh at the Pioneer Inn. New laws and regulations of the sport, new law-enforcement costs and cooking on the trail demonstrations were some of the interesting sessions.

Friday night the welcome party was held to get acquainted with other club members and to elect the 1981 Miss Snowflake of A.W.S.C. This year 22 girls from all over the state of Wisconsin competed in this event. Along with the resume which they had already written for the contest, the girls are interviewed and the queen is selected.

The A.W.S.C. Miss Snowflake for 1981 is 18-year-old Diane Glaza from the Rudolph River Rovers of Rudolph, Wisconsin. The Kewaskum Sno-Chief Queen for 1980, 17-year-old Donna Lehmann, daughter of William and Clare Lehmann, 3970 Hwy. H, Kewaskum, competed in this event. The club had a winner when it chose Donna to represent them, because she was named second runner-up in the pageant.

Donna, who is a conscientious, well-mannered and beautiful young adult, was chosen at the Kewaskum Sno-Chief Sno-Ball last February and will continue to reign until February 21, 1981. The contest is open to any girl, (or their parents) who are members of the club, single, and 16 to 21 years of age. Entry blanks are available at Wes and Rosie's or from Jeanne Goeden. Call 334-9549 for more information. Deadline is February 1, 1981.

Congratulations and continued success to Donna in all her endeavors.

XYZ Club News

The XYZ Club (Senior Citizens) of Kewaskum will not hold their regular Wednesday meeting on November 26, because of the Thanksgiving Holiday.

A Christmas party is being planned for Wednesday, December 17. The party will be held at the Homestead Supper Club, Kewaskum, with a smorgasbord being served at 11:30 a.m. Reservations must be made by December 10. Members can call 626-4079 for more information.

The safe art of Wood Burning

Your chimney

If you heated your home with wood last winter or are considering wood heat for the coming winter, now is the time to check your chimney. It is an equal partner with your wood stove or furnace, and must be clean and structurally sound to operate safely.

A listed low heat appliance chimney suitable for use with solid fuels, sometimes called a "class A" chimney, is a must. The lined masonry or insulated, factory-built metal chimneys are generally recommended by manufacturers of wood burning stoves and furnaces. Thermosyphon triple wall (as compared to insulated) factory-built metal chimneys are fine for fireplaces, but need more cleaning with an airtight stove or furnace. Such chimneys usually have a lower internal temperature and cause greater creosote build-up.

An existing chimney must be inspected for loose mortar and leaks. If any deficiencies exist they must be corrected.

A chimney that leaks air at inspection ports, cleanouts or unused connection holes will encourage creosote formation because the cool air entering will lower the flue temperature. If your chimney has an unused flue hole, seal it tightly with a non-combustible flue stop. Make sure the chimney cleanout door has a tight seal to prevent cold air from entering and weakening the draft. It is not unusual to see a large knot of creosote forming adjacent to or above an air leak into the chimney.

The placement of the chimney in a building can have a great effect on the operation of your chimney. Exterior masonry chimneys are not recommended; at their worst they can ice up and close off all draft to your furnace or stove. If you must use an exterior chimney a factory-built insulated metal chimney will usually creosote less.

A tile lined, masonry chimney placed in the center of the house is recommended for best performance. Heat absorbed by the mass of the masonry chimney will be returned to the house and the warm house will help to keep the chimney warm and drawing well. This means less creosote formation and safer operation.

The length of the chimney is also important. A short chimney (less than 20 feet in length) may or may not supply enough draft to operate a wood stove properly.

The height of the chimney should be at least 2 feet above the highest peak of the roof. If the highest peak of the roof is 10 feet or more away from the chimney, the chimney should be at least even with that point. Keep in mind that large trees and surrounding buildings may have an effect on your chimney's draft.

Whatever type chimney is used, it must have as much or more area than the flue areas of the appliances vented through it. Too large of a chimney can also be detrimental. Oversized chimneys can cause excess cooling of the flue gasses resulting in poor draw and water and creosote condensation.

The chimney connector (stovepipe) should be at least the same size as the flue collar, and should remain at least the same diameter from the stove to the chimney. If the flue opening in the chimney is larger than necessary, use a reducer at the chimney, but never decrease the size of the flue outlet on the stove or furnace.

The building codes in some municipalities do not allow multiple connections to chimneys. Check with your local building inspector. If two or more appliances are connected to the same chimney flue, the connectors must enter the chimney at different elevations. Most experts recommend that the wood appliance's stovepipe enter 12" to 24" below that of the gas or oil appliance. If a new hole is to be made in a masonry chimney, be sure that all chimney connectors enter the chimney at different heights. Do not make a new hole directly opposite a hole now in use.

It is most important that you inspect your chimney regularly for any creosote which has accumulated at the cleanout door or on the walls of the chimney. Creosote is flammable and should be removed as it accumulates to prevent a chimney fire.

Save Money on Your Electric Water Heater

A Wisconsin Electric Power Co. plan to boost the monthly credit to customers on the water heater load management program to $4—or $48 per year—has received tentative approval from the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin (PSCW).

The increase from the present $1.50 credit will not become effective, however, until the PSCW takes final action, which is expected later this year.

John McLean, vice president of customer relations, said the increased credit is expected to help attract additional water heating customers to the program. More than 24,000 WE customers have already volunteered to participate.

Under the load management program, Wisconsin Electric installs a device on a customer's water heater which allows the utility to switch the unit off, usually for brief periods, when the demand for electricity is unusually high. Since water heaters store hot water, customers rarely, if ever, experience any inconvenience, he said.

He said it is less costly to operate the load management system to share demand than to fire-up older, less efficient power plants or purchase costly power from other utilities to meet customers demands. Savings over the life of the project are expected to reach $40 million.

Any Wisconsin Electric customer with an electric water heater can contact their local Wisconsin Electric office to volunteer for the program, McLean said. Customers in the program will continue receiving the $1.50 per month credit until the PSCW gives final approval to the $4 per month credit.

County Gets State Grant for Farmland Preservation Plan

Washington County has received a grant from the State of Wisconsin for the preparation of a Farmland Preservation Plan. The plan will identify and suggest farmland areas in Washington County that should be preserved for agricultural production.

Completion of the plan will enable town officials and interested persons in Washington County to develop a program for preserving the county's farmland. It will also qualify farmers for expanded income tax credits as provided for in the Wisconsin Farmland Preservation Act which was enacted in 1977. The Washington County Farmland Preservation Plan is scheduled for completion in 1981.

The county has contracted with the planning consulting firm of Stockham and Vandewalle to work with the county planning staff. A Technical Advisory Committee consisting of Jack Trzebiatowski, Washington County Agricultural Agent; Donald Kurer, Soil Conservation Service, and Donald

E. Sampson, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, was formed to give guidance to the planning effort.

During the planning process input from citizens, property owners, and town officials will be encouraged. Public informational meetings will be announced shortly.

Kenny Rogers TV
Special to Feature
Wisconsin State Fair

The 1980 Wisconsin State Fair will be featured on a CBS television special, Kenny Rogers' America November 20 at 8:00 p.m. Film crews spent 2 days at the Fair where the superstar was booked for two grandstand shows, August 4 and 5, along with Dottie West.

In addition to filming one entire concert (the other one was rained out) the crew filmed Kenny and fairgoers in the dairy barn, on the Giant Slide, touring the midway and visting a variety of food stands. Also filmed was a "Kenny Rogers Look-Alike" contest in which 85 contestants were entered and a press conference attended by local Milwaukee media.

According to Karen Sargent, associate producer of the special, "I'm sure the Fair and all of Milwaukee will be very pleased with the coverage received."

Produced by Ken Kragen and Company, personal management and television production for Rogers, the special will also feature segments filmed on an Iowa farm and a practice session with the Pittsburgh Steelers. The Wisconsin State Fair was the only State Fair filmed.

The Wisconsin State Fair was recommended to Kragen and Company by Bonnie Sugarman of International Creative Management, Rogers' booking agency, because of its size, impressive grounds, cleanliness and family image. The producer, director and other production staff members visited the Fair Park and met with Fair officials several times prior to the filming dates.

The 1980 Wisconsin State Fair received coverage on all three networks. ABC's 20/20 covered the Charlie Daniels Band and NBC televised the Tony Bettenhausen Classic live on Sportsworld.

The 1981 Wisconsin State Fair will be August 6-16.

Workshop at MPTI

Psychologists say food fragrances linger in memory more strongly than tastes. If you'd like your family to cherish the aroma of oven-fresh bread in their memories, consider Moraine Park Technical Institute's short course, Breads Workshop.

Breads begin December 3 at 7:00 p.m. at the Decorah Annex in the Decorah Shopping Center. Tuition is $5.65 for the four week course, payable in advance at MPTI.

Participants will learn a variety of yeast baking methods from instructor Robin Jasinski, with emphasis on types of yeast, correct temperatures, quick mixing methods, breads that can be started ahead, coffee cakes, sweet rolls, breads with whole grains, sour dough and seasonal holiday breads.

Register in person for this course at MPTI, 2151 N. Main Street in West Bend. Students are considered registered upon completion of the registration form and payment of the fee. All registrations are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

Air Force Volunteers Receive Raise in Pay

Young men and women who volunteer for the Air Force will receive the 11.7 percent increase in pay and allowances that became effective October 1.

Bills signed by the President include increased basic pay, housing and subsistence allowances. This totals some $722 beginning monthly pay for a single enlistee, while a newly commissioned second lieutenant will begin earning some $1,194 per month.

Also included in the pay raise, according to Technical Sergeant Tom Gauger, Air Force recruiter at West Bend, is a 25 percent increase in flight pay for all officer and enlisted aircraft crew members. This will amount to some $125 a month for newly commissioned flying officers and some $62 per month for new enlisted crew members.

In addition to pay and allowances, Sergeant Gauger said, Air Force members receive a wide range of entitlements, including free medical and dental care, 30 days of vacation with pay per year, discount prices at base grocery and retail stores, and use of virtually unlimited low-cost recreational facilities. The sergeant added that there are several different education programs available to help members complete both undergraduate and postgraduate programs.

Complete details of the new pay raise and various Air Force enlistment and commissioning opportunities are available from Sergeant Gauger, 105 S. Main St., West Bend, WI, or by calling (414) 338-1663 (collect).

Varsity Scouting Program Comes to Bay-Lakes Council

The Boy Scouts of America has developed a new program for 14 and 15-year old boys. It's called Varsity Scouting and it will be available to chartered organizations in 28 selected councils of the BSA, including the Bay-Lakes Council starting in January.

Douglass E. Wright, Owner and President of Wright and Company of Green Bay, has been named Council Chairman of Varsity Scouting by Council President, Paul H. Groth.

The program is experimental, and as such will undergo careful evaluation and testing to determine its value and effectiveness. The test period will be two years long, from 1981 to 1983.

Planning and development work for Varsity Scouting has been going on since 1975. The ideas and initial planning for Varsity Scouting were conceived and developed by volunteers in Area 2, the Western Region. It was not until April 1980 that the National Office of the BSA began to invest significant professional time in the program.

Varsity Scouting is a program of exciting, challenging activities designed to be fun and to have a positive influence on the character and the physical, mental, and social attitudes of emphasis:

- * Individualized advancement leading to the Eagle Scout Award.

- * High-adventure activity beyond the reach of younger Boy Scouts.

- * Personal development experience in leadership, physical development, citizenship, social, and cultural fields.

- * Service to people and organizations.

- * Special programs and events on a council, regional, or national basis.

Boys associate in squads on a team, are led by a captain and program managers, are supervised and directed by a coach, and may earn a Varsity Scout letter and letters bars.

Varsity Scouting utilizes traditional Boy Scout ideals — including the Scout Oath, Law, motto, and slogan — with additional pledge to honor womanhood, assist the weak and needy, and promote the cause of freedom.

Varsity Scouting embraces traditional Boy Scout principles — including duty to God, country, others, and self — plus the additional principles of respect for personal industry and ambition and recognition of the importance and value of honest work.

Varsity Scouting is a modification of traditional Boy Scouting, tailored specifically for the 14 and 15-year old boys. In the past, the programming and delivery systems of Scouting for the 14 and 15-year old boys have not been appealing and challenging enough to hold many of these youth in the Scouting program. Less than half the boys who participated at younger ages are active in Scouting as 14 and 15-year olds. Yet these same boys are the prime candidates for a meaningful experience in achieving the Eagle Scout Award. Moreover, they are in a stressful period of their lives and can benefit from the wholesome challenges Varsity Scouting provides.

"Varsity Scouting adheres to the Scouting movement's partnership plan whereby Boy Scouts of America provides the program, related materials, administration and organization, while chartered organizations provide youth members, volunteer adults leadership and a meeting place," Wright said. Community organizations may use Varsity Scouting by joining with Boy Scouts of America through the traditional BSA chartering process. It is available on a first-come basis to any qualified community organizations in the Bay-Lakes Council.

Interested organizations should contact Kent Gibbs, Director of Field Service, at 414-734-5705, or P.O. Box 516, Menasha, WI 54952.

Courtesy Key to Increased Deer Hunting Opportunity

Wisconsin deer hunters are reminded that they alone have the key to more deer hunting opportunities.

As responsible citizens, deer hunters are expected to behave properly both prior to and while hunting. And, there's no better way to exhibit that responsibility than by respecting the rights of others, and that especially includes the rights of landowners.

It is important to remember that private landowners provide the habitat for most of our deer and other wildlife. Hunters are only temporary guests on their property, and hunters hold the key to being invited back as guests again in the future by exhibiting good behavior.

A hunting license is not a key to every farm gate, and a moment's courtesy in asking permission to hunt on private land can be most rewarding and can increase the pleasure and success of the hunt.

A recent nationwide survey conducted for the National Shooting Sports Foundation disclosed that 69 percent of landowners surveyed had an unpleasant experience with a hunter. As a consequence, 50 percent of them posted their land, and its use for hunting was lost.

On the bright side, over 33 percent of the landowners also stated that they would open their land to hunting again if only hunters would present themselves prior to the beginning of the season and ask permission to hunt.

Not bad. One-third would open up their land again in return for a demonstration of courtesy and responsibility on the part of hunters. It's worth thinking about. Ask!

"Life is a jigsaw puzzle with most of the pieces missing."

Some Animals Are Born Running, Others Survive by Making No Scents, Says Book Exploring Mysteries of 'Living Wild'

Only a few human babies walk before they are a year old. While still in the crawling stage, they have parents to protect them.

With wildlife, it's different. Many four-footed creatures can—and must—run almost from the moment of birth. Because most wild animals are less protective of their offspring than humans, nature endows their newborn with a variety of defenses against predators—including the ability to run and jump when barely out of the womb.

This is one of many wonders of the animal kingdom examined in Living Wild, a new book on animal behavior published by the National Wildlife Federation in time for the Christmas tabletop book trade.

But Living Wild, with its 268 color photographs of animals in the wild, is more than a tabletop adornment. In its 208 pages David Robinson, a Great Falls, VA., naturalist and author, explores the dark burrows, the gurgling sea caves, and the windswept aeries of the planet to report on how animals actually live and why they behave as they do.

He reports, for instance, that although the calves of the wildebeest and the giraffe are almost born running, a newborn deer, lacking the speed to outrun its predators, must rely on two other remarkably effective defense mechanisms: a camouflage coloring that makes it almost impossible to see and a lack of odor that makes it impossible to scent.

"A keen-nosed predator may stalk past the motionless little fur ball only a few feet away and never catch a whiff," says Robinson. But—just as remarkable—as quickly as the fawn's running skills develop, so does a body odor.

Apart from mammals, most animals are born without a protective mother watching over them, and never know either of their parents. Parents who love and care for their children, in fact, are in a very small minority. It's much easier simply to abandon newly-laid eggs, and this is the most common practice in the animal kingdom. "It's also the most wasteful," Living Wild points out, "since without a guardian parent, many eggs must be laid so that a few may survive. One female codfish lays so many that the entire Atlantic Ocean would be packed solid with codfish in only a few years if all the eggs hatched and the young survived to adulthood."

The odds for survival improve dramatically when parents look after the egg-filled nest. A bird nestling on its eggs can be a fierce defender against all comers—even its own mate. To avoid squabbles, many shore birds perform elaborate rituals as they relinquish nest-guarding duties to one another. As Living Wild explains, "when a male grey heron returns to the nest, his mate stretches her neck upwards and then stands, engaging him in a noisy ceremony. Boobies swap clumps of seaweed; gannets and penguins bow in solemn formality. A male turnstone offers a pebble; the female picks it up, drops it in the nest, and turns the incubation over to her mate."

Mammal youngsters, especially carnivores, the meat-eating hunters, have more to learn about living wild than other animals. Naturally, it is these babies who have the most protective, attentive parents, and a fairly large proportion of the youngsters' lives are spent in juvenile dependency. The most important factor in this learning process is the strong bond between mother and young. The mother serves as a "walking textbook," says the NWF publication, "a living audiovisual aid in the instruction of the juveniles."

One mammal baby, however, doesn't seem to have much to learn from its parents. Manatees, or sea cows, are vegetarians, so no hunting lessons are necessary. And since they have no enemies, there's nothing to learn about fending off predators. Nonetheless, the manatee calf is probably the most pampered of all animals. Born in the shallow waters off Florida, the calf weighs in at 60 pounds. But it seems light and buoyant when its father—a seven-foot submarine of some 400 pounds—cradles it in his flippers or passes it to the female for nursing.

"The calf nurses while the father leaves to feed on the lush vegetation nearby," says Living Wild. "Then he returns and cradles the young sea cow while its mother forages." Between the efforts of the male and female manatee, the calf is cradled almost constantly. And it nurses for nearly two years.

In addition to the mysteries of animal parenthood, Living Wild examines many other patterns of animal behavior. The book is divided into six chapters which examine the survival techniques of various birds, mammals, reptiles, and insects—where and how they find food and shelter, how they communicate and cooperate with one another, and the startling ways in which they choose and win their mates.

Living Wild is available for $12.95 plus 95c handling charge per order from the National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St. NW., Washington, D.C. 20036. After January 1, 1981, the price will increase to $14.95.

"This is an increase of four percent or 425 students over last year's fall semester figure of 10,629 students, and it's the first time that enrollment has passed the 11,000 mark," said Bundy.

Students from this area who are attending UW-EC this fall include John Harvey Kettmann, 9388 Bolton Drive, Kewaskum, sophomore; Suzette Norma Kleinke, 1532 Stark Street, Kewaskum, and Rodney Leonard Schultz, 354 Highway S, Kewaskum, freshmen.

"Say, that's a nasty cut you have on the forehead. How did you get it?" "I bit myself." "Come, come, now — how could you bite yourself on the forehead?" "Easy I stood on a chair."

Even Though It's Easy to Prepare Deerskins for Tanning, 50,000 Are Discarded Every Season

Wisconsin deerhunters throw away an estimated 50,000 deerskins during the hunting season according to Lyn P. Schuette, President of W.B. Place & Co., Hartford, Wisconsin. W.B. Place & Co. has been in the business of tanning deerskins and cowhides for over a centure. Schuette's conservation estimate of 50,000 wasted deerskins results from the fact that most hunters have no knowledge as to how to prepare the skins for eventual tanning. The process for saving the deerskins is simple. All that is needed is two to three pounds of common table salt, a large grocery shopping bag, a newspaper, and a box.

1. Rub the salt on the fleshy side of the deerskin immediately after skinning.
2. Fold the skin in half and then fold it in half again.

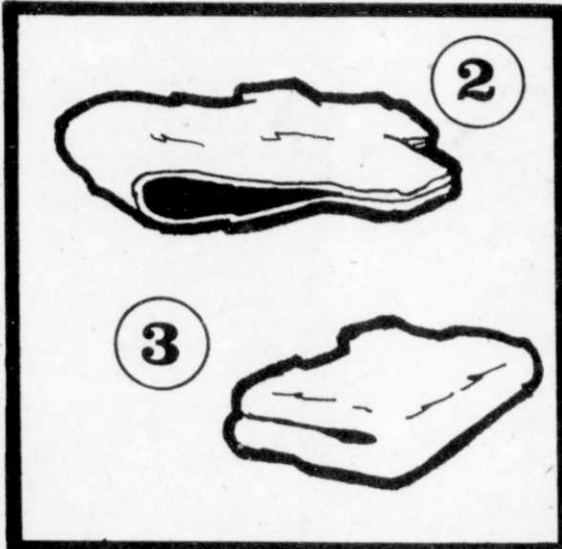

3. Put the skin in the shopping bag and wrap newspaper around it to soak up blood and moisture.
4. Place in box and mail or deliver the skins to any deerskin tanner.

Tanned deerskins are ideal for making coats, mittens, gloves, purses, jackets, vests, bags, moccasins, gun cases, quivers, pants, and shoes.

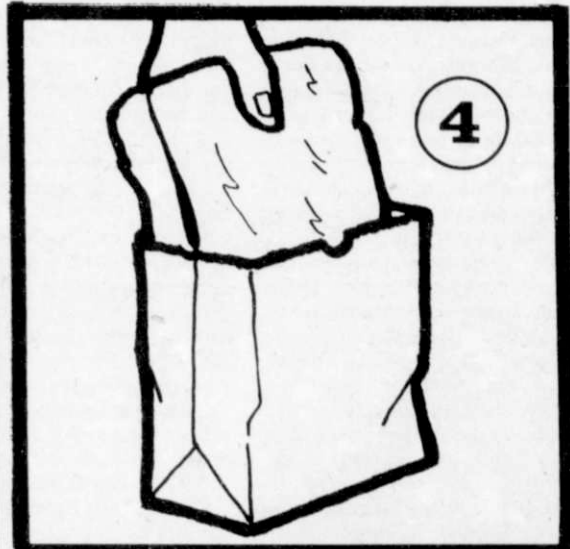

"Wasting this valuable natural resource is really a shame," Schuette concluded, "especially in view of the fact that the process of preparing deerskins for tanning is so simple."

RUB 2 TO 3 LBS. TABLE SALT ON FLESHY SIDE OF HIDE.

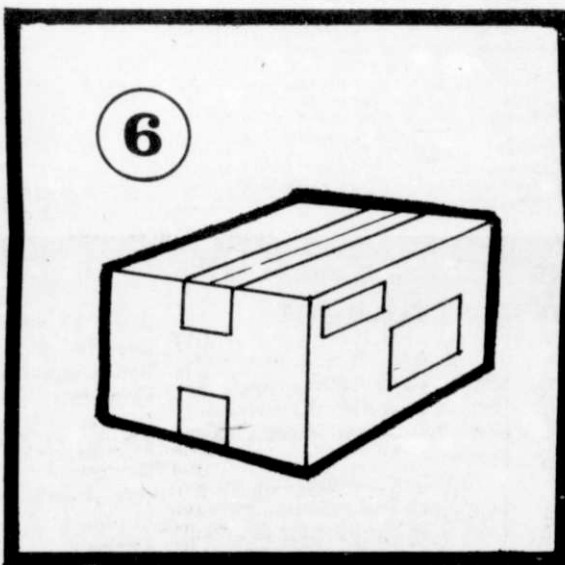

FOLD FLESH SIDE IN. FOLD AGAIN.

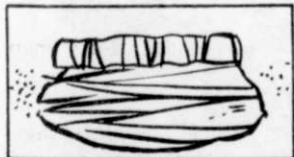

PLACE IN LARGE PAPER GROCERY BAG.

WRAP IN NEWSPAPERS

PLACE IN CARDBOARD BOX FOR SHIPPING.

A good wetting now and then is said to prevent basketware from becoming brittle.

Slinger Edges Indians in Double Overtime in Opener

In an exciting non-conference basketball opener for both teams, former Scenic Moraine rivals, Slinger, now of the Parkland Conference, and Kewaskum, now of the Eastern Wisconsin loop, wound up in a tie in regulation time and battled into double overtime with the Owls finally emerging as the winners here Tuesday night, 75-73.

When regulation time ended, the score was knotted at 65-65. In the first overtime, with just one second left on the clock, the Indians' Dale Wodsedalek made the first of two free throws, then missed the second which would have won the game, and the period again ended in a tie, 69-69. With 10 seconds left in the second overtime, Slinger's Randy Hess made two free throws, Kewaskum missed a last second shot and the Owls came out the victors, 75-73.

Both teams showed the usual first game jitters but there was also some good play. Slinger took a 15-12 lead in the first quarter but the Indians controlled the second period, led by Brian Larsen's hot shooting, and were ahead at halftime by 7 points, 34-27.

In the second half, Slinger's press began working and they closed the gap, taking a one point lead going into the last quarter. A four-point play later helped the Owls to a six point lead, 64-58. They scored only one point the rest of the period and Kewaskum again tied it up. Jim Rohlinger's jumper gave the Indians the lead but Hess' basket put the game into overtime.

Larsen was high scorer for the Indians with a fine 22-point performance and played well on defense. Rohlinger was next with 15. Slinger had five players in double figures, Jerry Lofy leading the way with 18.

Kewaskum easily won the JV game, 45-21, over Slinger. Dan Dean was high with 16 points and Mike Heisdorf had 11.

Friday night Kewaskum hosts Campbellsport of the Flyway Conference and Tuesday they play West Bend East of the Little Ten there.

KHS Girls Win at Slinger

While the Kewaskum boys were battling it out with Slinger at home, the Indian girls were playing at Slinger Tuesday in their opener. The KHS gals got their season off to a good start with a 47-36 victory over the Owls. It was also the debut for new Kewaskum coach Ken Soerens.

Two Rivers State Champions In Division III

Two Rivers, undefeated Eastern Wisconsin Conference champions, showed the caliber of team Kewaskum and other conference schools were up against this season when they went on to win the WIAA state high school Division III football championship in the playoff finals Saturday.

Two Rivers defeated Rice Lake in the finals at Goerke Field, Stevens Point, 17-15, for the state title. The Raiders reached the finals by beating Little Chute the week before in the semi-finals, 20-17, at Menasha.

Two Rivers' huge team, led by all-conference 245-pound, 6-4 tackle Dennis Jacobs, won the title contest over Rice Lake on Chris Cayemberg's 28-yard field goal with 36 seconds remaining. The Raiders, who had six players named to the all-conference squad, finished the season with a perfect 11-0 record. There are 24 seniors on the squad, who as juniors also helped the Raiders to the semi-finals last season in which they lost to Edgerton.

Incidentally, the Kewaskum Indians lost their conference game to Two Rivers this season, 48-0.

The Slinger game plan, under new coach Dee Freeman, was to hold down the scoring of Indian aces Linda Larsen and Jill Yearling. They succeeded in holding Yearling to 12 points but tall Miss Larsen, who hauled down quite a few offensive rebounds for easy baskets, scored 21 of her team's points. Larsen also had several blocked shots.

The Owls held the Indians to a one point margin in the first quarter, 10-9, but tired in the second period, in which they were outscored 10-3, giving Kewaskum a 20-12 lead at the intermission. They came back in the second half to narrow the gap to six points on two occasions.

Vicki Zalewski and Jean Breuer paced the Owls with 12 points apiece. Zalewski also had 13 rebounds. Yearling got 12 rebounds for the winners. KHS had a 41 per cent shooting average in the second half.

Kewaskum plays at West Bend East Thursday night and Plymouth comes here Tuesday.
