Schedule Senior Citizen Courses at Nutritional Sites

A short course for Senior citizens will be started at five Washington county nutrition sites in January, according to Katherine Rath, Coordinator for the Nutrition program.

Moraine Park Technical Institute has scheduled crafts classes on the following dates:

Jackson, Jan. 9 — 12:30 p.m.; Hartford, Jan. 13 — 10:00 a.m.; Slinger, Jan. 15 — 12:30 p.m.; Kewaskum, Jan. 20 — 12:30 p.m.; West Bend, Jan. 27 — 10:00 a.m.

This is the first of three sessions in the course called "What Seniors Want to Know." A recent survey at the sites indicates a request for more information on social security and medicare. Field representative Clarence Schatzman will present updated information at each location in February. Specific dates and times will be announced later.

Subject for the third part of the short course is "Legal Concerns of the Elderly." Dates and times will be set for each center.

Registration is open to both men and women and will be handled at each site on a first-come, first-served basis. For all three sessions, the fee is $2.00 for persons 62 and over; $3.85 for those under 62. A small amount will be charged for crafts materials the first session.

Terry Dale Backhaus on Dec. 1 was promoted to Production Superintendent of the Nitric Acid Plant, Lake Charles, La. Complex. In his new duties he is directly accountable for the operation of a 50 ton/ony nitric acid plant at the Lake Charles Complex (La.). Their annual sales amount to $7,000,000. Previously Backhaus was the acting production superintendent of the hydrazine department.

Backhaus, a native of Kewaskum, is married to the former Diana Begils of Sulphur, Louisiana. He graduated from Kewaskum High School in 1972, the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where he received his BS in Chemical Engineering in 1977, and is pursuing his MS in Chemical Engineering at McNeese State University at Lake Charles, La. Parents' Night For Incoming Freshmen Jan. 14

On Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1981 at 7:30 p.m. the annual "Parents' Night" for incoming freshmen will be held in the high school cafeteria. All parents who have sons and daughters who will be entering Kewaskum Community High School in the fall of 1981 are invited.

All present eighth graders in our school district will be getting scheduling booklets and information the first week in January. Private school students will meet in the high school on Wednesday, Jan. 7, from 12:45 to 2:45 for this purpose and other students will receive their booklet in school that week.

The purpose of the parents' meeting is to inform them on course offerings, registration procedures and other information that you may be concerned with. There will be a question and answer period at this meeting also.

Local Students Receive Degrees

More than 400 degrees were presented Saturday, December 20, during midyear commencement ceremonies at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

P. Gerald Mills, one of the nation's leading merchandising executives, told the class that its education has helped prepare it for participation in a world undergoing rapid change. Mills, who is being promoted from the head of the Dayton Stores chain to president and chief executive officer of J. L. Hudson Stores chain of Detroit, said employers in the 1980s are interested in people who can "grow on the job and possess skills that can be transferred to other jobs."

He suggested that the liberal arts education may again be considered more important than it has been in recent years as universities have moved to more vocational-oriented programs. (UW-Stevens Point, though it has numerous special career-oriented majors, has the largest liberal arts curriculum outside of Madison and Milwaukee).

The midyear graduates include: James A. Bilgo, 1314 Park View Drive, Kewaskum, BS major in Water Res.-Chem. minor in Chemistry; Jeanne LaMarche, 1338 Roseland Drive, Kewaskum, BS major in Elem. Educ., minor in Music Education; Mary Beth Senn, Route 1, Box 9, Campbellsport, BS major in Home Ec. Educ., minor in Rec.-Food Serv.

Tavern at Boltonville Victim of Armed Robber

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Gilford's Tap, Boltonville, was the scene of another robbery in the Kewaskum area.

Friday night's robbery occurred just before midnight when a young masked man entered Gilford's and walked to the back of the bar. When proprietor Edna Gilford attempted to push him away, the robber displayed a handgun. The youth then opened the register, removed $50 and left the tavern heading west.

A sheriff's detective and deputies searched the area but found nothing. The incident is still under investigation.

Thieves also broke into Degner's Station on Hwys. 84 and 144 in Boltonville late Friday or early Saturday. Approximately $30 in cash was taken. Entry was gained by breaking a window.

Police feel the two incidents may be connected.

"Kick the Habit" Smoking Cessation Workshop at MPTI

Have you made a New Year's resolution to quit smoking? There is no one magic way that works for everybody, but one of the most effective ways to quit is to join a support group. Meeting in a formal program using counseling, audio-visual aids, handouts, group discussion and like techniques has proven effective for many.

If you're trying to quit, why not join Moraine Park Technical Institute's class beginning January 22? The curriculum, planned by the Wisconsin Lung Association, has been proven successful.

Participants will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-9:00 p.m. Tuition is $37.50, payable to the Wisconsin Lung Association in advance of the January 22 date. At registration, students will receive a packet of materials to work with before the first class meeting.

Register in person at MPTI, 2151 N. Main Street, West Bend, or call 334-3413 for more information. Learn to kick the habit!

Bone in the human body is constantly in a process of exchange - of giving up some of its calcium and taking in new calcium. Bone is a body tissue, dependent upon nutrients in daily meals as a source of material for rebuilding.

When calcium in your bloodstream drops below a certain level, mechanisms are triggered to take calcium from your bone, weakening the bone. So your body needs new calcium daily from your food.

Burglars who attempted to rob the local post office early Tuesday morning were unsuccessful, for reason that they were frightened away while at work to break into the rear window of the post office. Mrs. Edward E. Miller, who resides a short distance west, arose about 3:30 a.m. to care for her baby, and in lighting the kitchen lights, the reflection of which could be seen at the rear of the post office where the burglars were at work trying to pry the window open, frightened them away.

Roman Smith, our popular and well known ice dealer, last week completed the building of a new ice sawing machine.

A deal was closed last week whereby the A.L. Rosenheimer Realty firm sold the former Edward Ferber 120 acre farm in the Town of Auburn to Norbert Gatzke.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kleinschmidt of Kewaskum on December 14. A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kudek on December 22.

Drinking in the New Year Does Not Have to Cause a 'Hangover'

Drinking in the New Year does not have to cause a "hangover" if one is a knowledgeable drinker, according to Joseph Barboriak, Sc.D., professor of pharmacology and preventive medicine at the Medical College of Wisconsin.

Current statistics indicate that 80 percent of the adult U.S. population drink some form of alcoholic beverage. That figure is higher in young adults, up to 90 percent. A recent national survey of the male population showed that of the social drinkers, 45 percent can have over five drinks at one sitting, an amount that can lead to blood alcohol levels higher than the legal limit (0.1 percent of alcohol in the blood).

Dr. Barboriak, who has conducted extensive research on the effects of alcohol on the body, particularly the heart, points out that sensible intake of alcohol can prevent or reduce side effects.

"If you acquaint yourself with the facts before you go partying on all those special occasions year round and adhere to the following guidelines you will tolerate the effects of alcohol without harming yourself or your companions," Dr. Barboriak says. "If you need alcohol to relax or put you in the party mood you can achieve this by drinking well within your limits," he adds.

First know your alcohol tolerance. This depends on your age, sex and weight. If alcohol is taken in rapid succession, it takes three to five drinks for an average, healthy 175 lb. male and two to three drinks for an average, healthy 120 lb. female to reach the level of legal intoxication. Persons over 50 years do not metabolize the alcohol as efficiently, hence their tolerance to alcohol is lower.

Sip your drink. Do not go bottoms up. The body needs time to metabolize the alcohol. It takes up to six hours to rid the alcohol from the system once the legal intoxication level is reached. An average, healthy person probably can drink a quart of whiskey a day without getting intoxicated if he/she were to sip it over a 24 hour period.

- Do not drink on an empty stomach. In a fasting state alcohol is absorbed much faster.

- Do not exercise after drinking, especially if you have a tendency towards heart problems. More oxygen is required to metabolize the alcohol making less available at the time of exercise. Generally, as smoking is attendant with alcohol intake, it further depletes the oxygen supply in the blood. Exercising after drinking will put an additional load on the heart, when the oxygen supply is already low.

- Drink less at higher altitudes. Drinkers should note that alcohol tolerance is lower at higher altitudes, and compensate accordingly. Skiing and drinking don't mix.

- If you are pregnant, the best advice is don't drink. While more information is needed on the alcohol-fetal syndrome, it is known that babies of women who drink during pregnancy do not weigh as much as babies of women who do not drink and may also have more serious problems.

- And finally, if you are a teetotaler and have thought of drinking because recent studies indicate that moderate drinking is good for the heart, first do some checking. See if there is alcoholism in the family because it can be hereditary. Also, if changes in heart function are noted following drinking contact a physician.

The Marx IGA store on Main Street has been sold by John Marx to his son, Harold, who took over the business on January 1, according to an announcement made known by Mr. Marx this week. Harold Marx has been assisting his father in the operation of the store for a number of years. John Marx was in the business for more than 50 years. For the past 44 years he owned and operated the store and before that was in business with his late father.

Sunday, January 1, was the date of change of ownership of the St. Kilian store and tavern, the former owner and operator, Orville Strachota, selling to Lambert Jacak, a well liked and known resident near St. Kilian, who was previously engaged in farming. Orville Strachota will continue with his seed and wool business which he operated along with the store and tavern since taking it over from his late father, Simon Strachota, in 1940. It is his plan to further expand the seed business and processing plant at St. Kilian, with the installation of additional cleaning and seed testing equipment in the near future. Strachota also operates a licensed and bonded seed warehouse in St. Kilian. In 1952 he had the only such licensed seed and bonded warehouse in Wisconsin approved to process and store seeds for the U.S. Government. In addition, Strachota also operates the St. Kilian cheese factory which he reopened in the fall of 1951, having leased it until July 16, 1955, when he took over active operations of the plant. Present operations are at the rate of over one million pounds of cheese annually.

On Thursday evening, December 29, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stowers of West Bend, announced the engagement of their daughter, Blanche, to Earl Dreher, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dreher, Sr., of Kewaskum.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Mielke of Fredonia announce the engagement of their daughter, Gladys Catherine, to David Ebert, son of John Ebert of Campbellsport.

A fifth daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Kilian Honeck, Jr., Kewaskum, Monday, January 2.

Lydia, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Guth, came near drowning last Saturday in the creek near her home. She was coasting down a hill with her sled and got on the ice which broke through. The water in the creek was not very deep and she managed to get out without any bad results.

A marriage license was issued by the county clerk to Kilian Strobel of Campbellsport and Miss Mary Fellenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fellenz of St. Michaels.

L. Rosenheimer received a 6 horse power International gasoline engine on trucks this week which they now have on exhibition.

CHERRY PIE GETS SPECIAL TREATMENT

Cherry pie ranks high on almost everyone's list of favorite desserts, and here's a version that deserves top billing. Underneath a juicy layer of ripe cherries in Cherry Special Pie is a delicate filling of sweetened cream cheese combined with whipped dessert topping. The airy cheesecake-like filling is poured into the crust and frozen until just before serving time. That's when you add the luscious cherry layer.

For those who like pie crusts that are easy to prepare, yet a little out of the ordinary, you've found a winner here. The crunchy crust is a clever concoction of corn flakes, melted chocolate and butter that's pressed into place in the pie pan while still warm.

CHERRY SPECIAL PIE 8 to 10 servings

1/4 cup butter or margarine	1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup corn syrup	1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup semi-sweet chocolate morsels	1 package (2 oz.) dessert topping mix
2 cups corn flakes	1/2 cup chopped pecans, optional
4 packages (3 oz. each) cream cheese, softened	1 can (1 lb. 5 oz.) cherry pie filling

Melt butter, corn syrup and chocolate morsels together in 3-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth. Remove from heat. Stir in corn flakes until well coated. Gently press mixture into buttered 9-inch pie plate to form crust. (As mixture cools, it handles easier and stays in place.) Chill.

Combine softened cream cheese, sugar and vanilla, mixing until well blended. Prepare dessert topping mix as directed on package. Fold dessert topping and pecans, if desired, into cheese mixture. Pour into crust and freeze. Before serving, top with cherry pie filling.

For easier cutting, let stand in refrigerator 30 minutes.

Boy Scouts Offer New Merit Badge

Boy Scouts in the Bay-Lakes Council now share with other Scouts across the country the opportunity to earn a new merit badge emphasizing Scouting's awareness of the needs of handicapped persons.

"The Handicapped Awareness merit badge is the 119th merit badge offered by the Boy Scouts of America," said Paul Bannon, Director of Activities. "Although it has been under study officially by the BSA for four years, the idea of a badge to increase awareness of the needs of the handicapped first came up about 10 years ago." The badge is adapted from the symbol of access showing a stylized figure in a wheelchair within a circle.

"We want to understand the whole group of disabilities," Bannon said, "and this includes the emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded as well as those with physical handicaps." One requirement for earning the badge is for a Scout to study what is being done to train, employ, and educate persons with physical, sensory, mental, or emotional handicaps. This can be done by visiting an agency that works with handicapped persons.

A Scout also must try to put himself in the place of the handicapped by conducting activities under conditions simulating sight, hearing, manual, and mobility impairment.

In addition, a Scout must spend 15 hours within three months working with groups serving the handicapped and analyzing their views and concerns. Finally he is asked to work toward greater understanding and awareness of persons with handicapping conditions.

Alcohol on the Farm Seminar Scheduled

Topics to be covered will be farm tractor engine conversion to alternative fuels; feeding distillers' by-products to dairy, swine, or beef; and discussion on alcohol fuels in relation to agriculture in Wisconsin. A glass still will be in operation as well as an alcohol powered car will be on exhibit. The seminar will start at 9:00 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m. Registration fee will be $4.45. Call 887-1101 to reserve a place in the seminar or send registration fees to MPTI - Beaver Dam Campus, 700 Gould Street, Beaver Dam, WI 53916.

Scouting Anniversary Week To Salute Volunteers

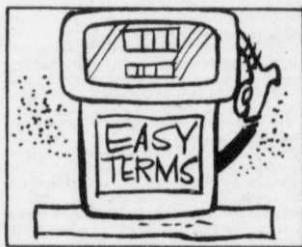

Volunteer leaders in the Bay-Lakes Council, Boy Scouts of America, will receive special recognition during Scouting Anniversary Week, February 8-14, 1981.

"This special emphasis is to recognize the more than 12,000 men and women in 23 counties in Eastern and Northeastern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan who serve as volunteers in all phases of the Scouting program," Paul Bucklin, Council Executive said. "These are the men and women who are committed to making Scouting happen for our young people through community organizations using the Scouting program as part of their own youth work, as well as others who have volunteered at the district and council levels."

Many other activities also are being planned for that week, which will celebrate the 71st anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. Planning for these activities is being done through volunteer leadership in the council's twelve districts.

Among the traditional activities for the annual observance are Cub Scout blue and gold banquets, Boy Scout parent's Nights and courts of honor, and Explorer family nights or open houses. In addition, Scout Sabbath and Scout Sunday are an important part of the week's events.

Other activities planned to celebrate the anniversary will be announced during the next few weeks in each local community.

The way gasoline prices keep climbing, you may someday have to buy a full tank of gas on the layaway plan.

Now Is the Time to Check Your Woodburning Equipment

If you're burning wood this winter to help lower your heating bills, it's time to make a check of your woodburning equipment.

A few minutes of attention now can save considerable trouble later this winter.

No woodburning system is completely safe and fireproof, but the safety and efficiency of a woodburner can be significantly improved by some timely maintenance and a working knowledge of the rules.

Follow this checklist to get the most out of your woodburning equipment, while reducing the danger of fire:

*Carefully follow manufacturers' instructions when installing woodburning equipment.

*Make sure your chimney is a Class A All-Fuel metal chimney, or a tile-lined masonry chimney. These are the only two types of chimneys suitable for woodburning!

*Learn local building codes and insurance specifications before installing your woodburner. Before you light the first fire, have a local building inspector and insurance company representative inspect the installation and approve it in writing.

*Make sure there is adequate clearance between your stove and nearby combustible surfaces or materials—at least 36 inches for radiant heaters, and at least 18 inches for circulating heaters. Also protect the floor under the stove with a non-flammable material.

*Store firewood away from the heater. Don't try to dry wet, frozen or green wood on or near the stove.

*Stovepipes of at least 26 gauge metal are recommended—24 gauge is even better. Stovepipes runs should be kept short, with sections fastened together by 3 or 4 sheet metal screws.

*Equip your home with at least one properly working smoke detector and a Class ABC Dry Chemical fire extinguisher.

*Inspect your chimney. Each chimney flue should have only one heating device attached.

*Promptly repair loose masonry joints, a cracked cap or other defects. Black streaks on the outside of the masonry indicate smoke, creosote or moisture requiring immediate repairs.

*Consider equipping your chimney with a spark arresting screen on top to help prevent roof fires, and a rain cap to prevent moisture damage.

*Check your chimney for soot or creosote deposits. Use a flashlight to look down the flue. If the chimney needs cleaning, you can use chimney brushes to fit your flues, or you can tie tire chains to a long rope and run the chains up and down the flue until the deposits are worked loose.

*Be prepared for a fire. Make sure everyone in the household knows how to recognize a chimney fire (sucking sounds, a loud roar and shaking pipes), and knows what to do in case of fire.

*If you think you have a chimney fire, call the fire department immediately. Then cut off the fire's air supply by closing any air intake vents in your woodstove. Close the stove pipe damper. Evacuate the house, leaving one adult behind to check the attic and upper floors for signs of fire. Outside, family members should watch for signs of fire on the roof or in areas surrounding the home.

*If there is a clear danger of the house catching fire, discharge the fire extinguisher into the stove.

For important additional information on woodstove safety and efficiency, types of firewood and choosing woodburning equipment, ask for the "Wood for Homes Heating" publication series from the Washington County Extension Office.

Pork Producers Aid Area Micro Classes

Crown pork roasts are an easy, elegant, economical change of fare. The center may be filled with a cooked vegetable such as glazed onions and peas, or a sausage, apple, or fruit dressing may be preferred.

Whatever your choice the crown roast will be a picture pretty meal for holiday or family entertaining, easily prepared in your microwave.

A Microwave Cooking Class will begin on January 13 at MPTI at Kewaskum High School. All classes are scheduled to start at 7:00 p.m. Call 626-2166 to register for the class.

STRAIGHT TALK on Teeth

A PUBLIC SERVICE OF THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF ORTHODONTISTS

THE THUMB AND ORTHODONTICS

X-rays have shown that babies sometimes begin thumb sucking even before birth.

Thumb sucking during infancy may be considered normal and usually stops at about 1½ to 2 years. Up to 3½ or 4 years this habit usually isn't considered a serious orthodontic problem.

So far, so good.

But, if around age 5 a child continues prolonged and intense thumb sucking, the habit may disturb the pliable bone structure of his or her mouth. This, in turn, may cause permanent tooth buds (which are developing beneath the "baby teeth") to be pushed forward. If this happens, the permanent upper front teeth, which usually appear about age 6½ or 7, may come in out of place.

If the thumb sucking habit persists, parents are advised to consult an orthodontist who will recommend a method of treatment to break the habit. The orthodontist will also be able to determine whether the teeth or jaws have been adversely affected by the habit.

In some cases, he may recommend early treatment to reduce the severity of the problem. This early treatment may prevent the need for more extensive orthodontic treatment as a teenager or adult.

There are two basic causes of crooked, crowded or poorly-aligned teeth. One of these is heredity—a cause that doesn't lend itself to prevention. The other is habits such as thumb sucking. In this instance, your orthodontist can help.

To learn more about thumb sucking and orthodontics, you are invited to write to The American Association of Orthodontists, 460 North Lindbergh Blvd., Saint Louis, MO 63141, asking for the free booklet, "It's Just a Habit."

In passive solar heating, the sun's energy enters a house and heats the building without the use of mechanical devices. The heat moves within a building by conduction, convection and radiation.

Passive building designs are easy to understand, build and operate. They should be used with energy efficient building techniques which incorporate adequate insulation, heat storage and a backup conventional heating system. Existing homes can often be adapted to passive solar principles.

In our northern climates, passive solar heating systems usually incorporate four important design components including glazing, a thermal storage mass, window insulation and shading.

Window glass is the best and most commonly used glazing material although many types of plastics are now available for use to allow the sun's rays to enter a building.

Masonry materials such as brick, stone or concrete are typically used as thermal storage masses since they have a high capacity for heat storage. The stored heat is slowly released at a later time when indoor temperatures cool down. Water can also be used as a heat storage material.

It is common knowledge that a glazing material that lets sunlight in also lets heat back out when the sun sets. Therefore, passive solar designs include movable insulation on the inside or outside of a window. Insulated shades or shutters can be opened to allow sunlight in during the day and closed to reduce heat loss at night.

Finally, shading is incorporated in passive solar designs to prevent overheating during the summer months. Building overhangs, movable screens and trees are used to provide this protection.

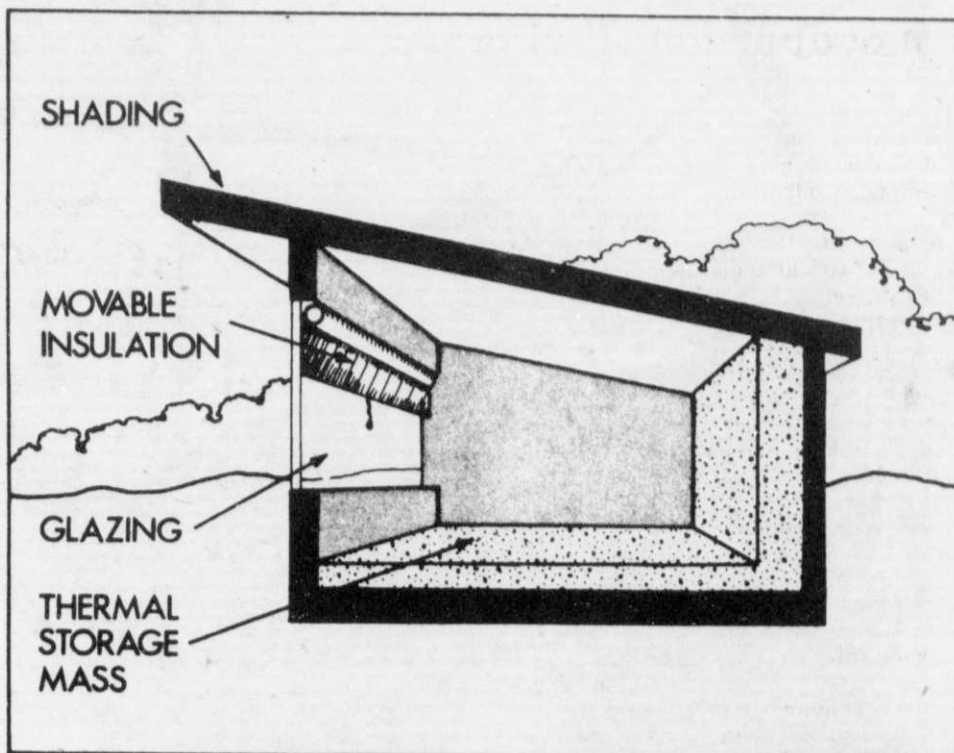

Three general examples of using the sun's energy for passive heating include direct gain, thermal mass wall and an attached sunspace.

The simplest passive solar system is direct gain. This is the method used today in many existing homes. Up to 50% of the home's south wall can be window space without needing to increase a building's thermal mass. The main problem with direct gain is the difficulty in controlling temperature extremes.

A thermal mass wall system is created by locating a thermal mass (masonry or water) within several inches of south-facing glazing. Circulation of heated air occurs around the wall and the wall also stores heat which is released during evening hours. Although this system reduces temperature extremes found in the direct gain method, it does eliminate views out of south facing windows.

An attached sunspace passive solar system is created when glazing is moved several feet away from the thermal mass wall of a home. The sunspace may also be used as a greenhouse for winter plant production.

For more background information on passive solar heating contact the Washington County UW-Extension office and ask for the bulletin "Passive Solar Heating for the Home." A more detailed booklet, "Passive Variations," available from the Division of Housing, Department of Development, P. O. Box 7970, Madison, WI 53707 will also be helpful.

Kathy Young, senior electrical engineering technician at Wisconsin Electric Power Co., designed the utility's new Pike Lake Substation. Prior to startup of the facility, she checked over the equipment which will bolster the electricity supply in the Hartford, Wis., area. [Wisconsin Electric photo, December 1980]

WEST BEND, Wis. — A new distribution substation placed in operation near Hartford, Wis., by Wisconsin Electric Power Company will serve the growing demand for electricity in that area, Art Falk, manager of the utility's West Bend District, said this week.

He said the new substation also would prevent overloading of neighboring stations, and improve voltage levels.

Located on Hall Road and County K, east of Hartford, the new $450,000 substation will serve the area around Pike Lake and the south side of the city of Hartford (excluding the Hartford Municipal Utility service area), south to Waterford Road and west to Taylor Road.

The Pike Lake Substation is designed to blend into the surrounding rural area. Electrical components are enclosed within a structure of dark brown wall panels with light brown masonry. There is no fence around the station.

The incoming 26,400-volt supply lines and outgoing

8,320-volt feeder lines are underground, Falk said. He explained that when large quantities of electricity are transported over long distances, it is more economical to use high voltages.

But eventually the voltage has to be stepped down in order to be used by residential and commercial customers. This step-down takes place in substations where voltage is lowered for distribution through supply lines to neighborhood transformers, then reduced for individual customer use.

Other operations of the facility, he said, include switching electrical load when necessary to bypass problems either within the station or on outgoing supply lines to maintain a reliable supply of electricity to customers.

January 27 - 9:00 to 12:00 noon.

The clinics will be held in the Community Health Nursing Service office at 515 East Washington Street, West Bend.

Not-So-Obvious Heat Loss in Homes

By Dan A. Wilson
Resource Agent
UW-Extension, West Bend

You've painted and puttied. You've caulked and carpeted. You've repaired and remolded. Finally, your house seems ready for winter.

But even these steps aren't enough if you've only concentrated on the obvious energy wasters. Experts say even small cracks and uninsulated crannies can add up to major energy waste for your home.

It's time to doublecheck some not-so-obvious areas before you consider your home weatherproofed.

CAULK — Caulking is the simplest and least expensive way to begin weatherproofing a home. In many homes, up to 30 percent of total heat loss can be traced to air leaks through window and door casings, foundation sills and other cracks.

If you've only caulked around your windows and doors, consider caulking:

- between window and door drip caps and the siding (the drip cap is the ledge hanging over the top of the window or door).

- where storm windows meet the window frame.

- at corners formed by siding.
- at the sill joist where the wall structure meets the foundation.

- around exterior openings like outside faucets, electrical outlets and clothes-dryer vents.

- where pipes and wires penetrate the ceiling below an unheated attic.

- around basement windows.
- where the chimney meets the siding.

WEATHERSTRIPPING — Caulk if you want a permanent seal, but weatherstrip areas that must be moved, like a window sash and frame.

When weatherstripping, remember to:

- weatherstrip all doors between heated and unheated areas.

- weatherstrip all four edges of each door.

- weatherstrip the attic door.

- consider weatherstripping around the garage door to keep out cold air.

- weatherstrip doors leading to unused rooms if you don't plan on heating them.

INSULATION — Insulation is the most complicated and expensive method of weatherizing a home! Unless you choose proven materials and install them properly, insulating can cause more problems than it solves.

Upgrade your insulation in this order, taking the easiest and least expensive steps first. Insulate attics or ceilings, the top of your foundation wall, floors over unheated areas, exposed foundation wall and uninsulated frame walls.

While insulating frame walls and exposed foundation walls are major projects for most do-it-yourselfers, you can still easily upgrade your insulation in spots your builder might have missed.

Consider these steps:

- Adding insulation to the attic. If you are a do-it-yourselfer, remember that adding insulation isn't always simple. Vapor barriers, attic ventilation and the safety of different materials all must be considered. Poorly installed insulation can damage roof beams and ruin your insulation investment.

- Install insulation between pipes or ducts and outside walls to keep them warm. Wrap exposed ducts with either standard insulation batts or special duct wrap. Tight spots can be insulated with pieces of insulation pulled or cut from a blanket or batt.

- Insulate walls that separate living space from an unheated garage.

- Insulate floors above unheated cold spaces. If you don't, heat will be conducted downward through the floor. Cold floors also make the room seem colder, causing you to turn up the thermostat.

- Insulate crawl spaces, but remember to allow for a square foot of ventilation for every 150 square feet you insulate.

- Before you insulate, get the facts. The Washington County UW-Extension office has several fact sheets that can help you do the job right.

The first prepared mix marketed in America was Bisquick, introduced in 1931. It was inspired by a railroad chef who kept a batch of biscuit dough handy for passengers who got hungry at odd hours.

4-H NEWS

By Robert Stodola
4-H and Youth Agent

Many people besides parents influence a child's development. In the past 40-50 years, our institutions, such as schools, have taken a greater role in child rearing. As a result, parents have often felt unsure about how they raise their own children.

There's a growing feeling that the family should be a bigger part of children's lives. 4-H shares the feeling — it encourages parents to be involved in their children's learning.

Parents feel good about teaching and working with their kids with the help of 4-H. The home and community are natural places for children to learn about life. Parents and others, as 4-H "home helpers," can teach lessons about day-to-day living. Family activities provide many such learning opportunities.

It's true that 4-H activities have sometimes separated youth and adults, encouraging members to do their own work without parent help. Now we're encouraging 4-H members to look to their parents and others close to them for the help they need.

4-H clubs and leaders should consider the entire family when planning 4-H activities. New programs aren't required, just minor changes in existing ones, to give all family members a chance to take part.

Some counties sponsor family 4-H drama festivals, in which not only 4-H members, but also parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters and others participate. Other 4-H activities can likewise be modified for family participation.

Think about how 4-H projects relate to everyday tasks, like household and yard jobs. Give 4-H members simple project ideas that they can do at home with their parents.

Plan club meetings so parents can attend. Find simple things for families, especially new ones, to do for the club.

The expected lifespan for a mouse is about five years.

J & J AUTO TOPICS
STOPPING-SAFE
Many of our columns give tips and information about how to keep your car running trouble-free. But it's pretty important that your car has stopping power, too.
Checking the brake pedal regularly is a habit that good drivers have. It should have about a half inch free play. The next couple inches should begin braking power. If it takes longer, a simple brake adjustment will usually correct it.
Watch for brake-grab, noisiness and brake pull to one side. These are warnings indicating king-sized troubles. Check the brake fluid regularly, too.
Our routine brake service includes these tips at J & J AUTO SERVICE when you drive over to 450 E. Main. We also check the discs, drums, shoes and cylinders of each wheel when necessary. We'll keep your car 'stopping-safe.'

Free Catalog on Business Education Programs Available From UW-Extension

Business education programs in Washington and Ozaukee Counties and other areas of the state are listed in a new catalog available free from the University of Wisconsin-Extension office in West Bend or Port Washington.

The catalog, "Statewide Business and Management Education Opportunities 1980-81" is available from extension business Agent Chuck Wise.

Wise explains the catalog contains descriptions of over 200 UW-Extension courses, evening programs, correspondence study courses, and conferences on business management topics.

"The courses are geared to helping business men and women improve their efficiency and productivity through improving management skills," says Wise. "The upcoming classes present basic 'how-tos' in almost every area of business. Many will help fulfill inservice education requirements such as in the field of real estate. These courses are offered by UW-Extension in conjunction with UW campuses throughout the state."

Programs cover topics including management leadership skills, supervision, small investor skills, accounting and financial management, labor relations and customer relations, time management, advertising and sales promotion, communication, small business law, tax consideration in business and real estate, collection problems, how to select a mini-computer, and how to manage the smaller, rapidly growing manufacturing firm.

The fees vary according to the length of the program and materials needed. The programs are listed according to 11 geographic areas in the state. Separate sections focus on in-plant programs, correspondence study courses, small business and real estate courses.

Antlers Are a Valuable Appendage, Serving Deer, Squirrels, Even Trees

Caribou in "velvet"

They may look like excess baggage, but nature has adorned most male deer with antlers for some very good reasons, according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. They're handy as weapons in the mating season, serve as "air conditioners" in hot weather, and provide nourishment for other animals after they're shed.

Antlers begin to grow in early spring, starting as soft, swollen pads on the skull, and lengthening into club-like structures, the National Wildlife Federation monthly publication reports. While growing, antlers are covered with a soft brown-haired skin called "velvet." Right under this skin are many tiny blood vessels that carry food and minerals to the growing antlers.

While the antlers are in velvet, they can be hurt very easily. A male deer in velvet is careful to jump out of the way of low-hanging branches. If an antler is knocked against a tree during the velvet stage, it will bleed.

Within four and a half months or so, the antlers are full-sized. On the moose, full-sized can mean more than seven feet wide from tip to tip, and a weight of more than 45 pounds, according to the Ranger Rick report. They attain these impressive proportions in just three to four months, making them the fastest growing tissue known.

During mating, or rutting season, a buck uses his antlers to fight other males. With a quick lunge one male will attack a rival, head on, and lock antlers. After a few minutes of shoving and pushing, during which pieces of antler may be broken, the weaker male will usually retreat, leaving the victor to mate with the female deer in his territory.

Heavy as they are, antlers are helpful during hot weather. "During the summer when a buck's antlers are growing, they act as an air conditioner to help get rid of extra body heat," notes Ranger Rick.

At full size, antlers harden beneath their velvet and the blood supply stops. The dead and dry velvet peels off in strips, aided by the buck's vigorous rubbing against trees and bushes. The antlers are now bone-hard, with furrowed bases and pointed tines, ready for the challenges of the rutting season.

When the mating is over, the antlers suddenly drop from the buck's head, leaving only a pair of bony bases from which next year's set will grow.

This cycle is the same with all of the more than 50 kinds of deer in the world except the Himalayan musk deer, which have long curved teeth to protect them from their enemies, and the Chinese water deer, which have long, sharp tusks. The female caribou and reindeer are the only female deer that grow antlers.

Shed antlers no longer serve the deer, but they are a welcome sight to other forest dwellers. Because they are made of calcium, salt, and other minerals important in the diet of many animals, such creatures as mice, chipmunks, squirrels, and porcupines gnaw away at them. What's left decays and is an enriching addition to the soil, so even plants and trees benefit from antlers.

Whippoorwills have been heard to give their call 1,088 times an hour.

Wisconsin Mapped Lakes Available

MADISON, WI — An index of over 2500 Wisconsin Mapped Lakes will help many Ice Fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A mapped lake is actually a hydrographic map. So what's a hydrographic map? "Hydrographic Maps" is simply a high-faluting term for maps showing the various depths of a lake along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing...such as kind of lake bottom (sand, mud, gravel, etc...)

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a Wisconsin Hydrographic Map you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom. No more cutting through a foot of ice to find 6 inches of water underneath.

The index is available at no charge by sending a large, self-addressed, stamped (28c) envelope to: Wisconsin Lake Maps, Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

HAPPY-GO-LUCKY 4-H CLUB

Happy-Go-Lucky 4-H Club held their monthly meeting on December 9. We all met at the Farmington Town Hall, boarded a bus, and went to the Samaritan Home to sing Christmas carols. Our first stop at the Samaritan Home was our adopted grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wiermann, where we gave them a gift and sang a number of Christmas carols for them. After that we made two other stops at lobby areas in the Samaritan Home and sang for the groups of people gathered there. After our return to the town hall we enjoyed cocoa and cookies while presents were exchanged.

Super Bowl Super Stars

Former Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr has the best completion record in Super Bowl history, completing 69.6 percent of his passes in Super Bowl I. The Packers beat Kansas City 35-10.

Only the Miami Dolphins have played in three consecutive Super Bowl games. They lost to Dallas in Super Bowl VI, but beat Washington and Minnesota the following two years.

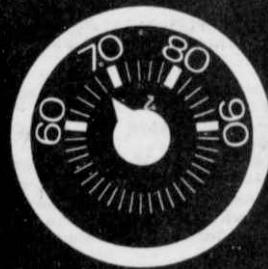

75-yard pass plays from Baltimore's Johnny Unitas to John Mackey in Super Bowl V, and from Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw to John Stallworth in Super Bowl XIII, share the Super Bowl record for the longest pass completion.

Pittsburgh's Franco Harris has gained 468 net yards in four Super Bowl games to hold the Super Bowl record. According to A-T-O Inc.'s Rawlings Sporting Goods Company, the Steelers won all four games, also a record.

Perennially Tough Cougar Wrestlers Defeat Indians

Victories via the pin route in the first three weight classes gave always tough Campbellsport the impetus it needed to defeat host Kewaskum, 40-15, in high school wrestling action last Tuesday night. The Indians gave the Cougars, winners of numerous championships in recent years, a battle before going down.

Kewaskum won 4 of 11 matches, including one over a previously unbeaten Cougar senior. With their strength in the lower weights in the first three matches, Campbellsport jumped off to an 18-0 lead on pins by Dean Flitter (98), Ray Del Ponte (105) and Mark Westemeier (112). All are undefeated with 7-0 records.

Kewaskum came through with its first win when Scott Klein won a 5-2 decision over Tim Grahl at 119 in a thrilling match in which Klein came from behind. Still unbeaten, Klein is now 6-0.

In his best performance of the season, Wayne Boudreau followed with a 9-5 decision over Jon Koerble.

The two other Kewaskum wins came at 145 and 185. Christ Cochran, who had been undefeated at 145, lost a 9-5 decision to the Indians' Dave Goeden. Goeden is now 5-1 for the season.

Scott Durian scored Kewaskum's only pin of the night in 46 seconds over Andy Cochran. The Cougars had a pin at 167 by Mike Lindsley over freshman Steve Seitz.

Earl Sippel at 155 stopped Bob Bastian's seven match streak with a 5-1 decision.

The Indians are now 3-3 for the year before resuming action after the holidays.

New Fishing Pamphlet Good For Two Years

The new Wisconsin fishing pamphlet lists the regulations for both the 1981 and 1982 fishing seasons, and anglers are encouraged to retain their copy for the next two years.

The pamphlet may be picked up along with your 1981 fishing license which will be available by mid-December at Department of Natural Resources and County Clerk's offices and most other license sales outlets throughout the state.

The regulations are being printed for a two year period rather than annually as in the past as a cost saving measure. A saving of about $23,000 will be realized by printing a two year supply of pamphlets rather than having a separate press run each year. Printing a two year supply will assure that copies of the pamphlet will be available in 1982 as well as for 1981.

A supplement to the pamphlet will be printed listing any regulations changes which may be made for 1982. Changes listed in the supplement also will be printed on the back of the 1982 fishing license.

Printing the regulation pamphlet on a two year basis will not limit the Department's ability to adopt new regulations. The same rule making process as in the past will remain in effect providing for the annual fish and game hearings and ample opportunities for input from citizens and advisory groups. If the need for an emergency regulation arises, an emergency order may be issued by the Natural Resources Board as has been done in the past.

There usually are few regulations changes made from year to year. Last year for instance, there were no major statewide fishing regulation changes and only seven local changes.

The hunting regulations pamphlet also will be printed for a two year period beginning with the 1981-'82 seasons. Printing costs comparable to those for the fishing regulations pamphlet are expected to be realized.

Comments or suggestions on the new two-year fishing pamphlet are welcomed. Contact the Bureau of Fish Management, Department of Natural Resources, Box 7921, Madison, Wisconsin 53707. Phone (608) 266-1877.
