Three Incumbents Not Running

Two File for School Board, Three for Village

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Kewaskum School District residents will see two incumbent names missing on this spring's school board ballot as John Tessar and Richard Theusch apparently have decided not to seek re-election. John Spoerl, clerk of the board of education, said, as of Tuesday's 5:00 p.m. deadline, he had not received any notice that either intended to run for re-election.

Running for the two open seats on the Board of Education will be Mrs. Colleen Narbotovics of Route 1, Adell, and Mrs. Norma Serwe of rural Campbellsport.

Narbotovics, a longtime resident of Beechwood, has three children, one in school and two at home. "I think I can do a good job of getting quality education for all the schools, not just certain ones," stated Narbotovics.

Mrs. Serwe, an English instructor at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, has one child who will begin school next fall. "I have no great innovative ideas," said Serwe, "I would just like to see some of the ideas and programs brought up by other board members put into action. Many good ideas were defeated by that 4-3 vote."

Village Board electors will see Mary Krueger running for the trusteeship being vacated by incumbent Jeff Rohrer, who decided not to seek re-election. Krueger is employed at the Sison Medical Clinic.

Incumbents Village President Gerald Stollenwerk and Trustees Paul Blumer and David Nigh will be seeking re-election.

Fire Causes Heavy Damage To Kewaskum Residence

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

A fire early Sunday morning destroyed the interior and contents of the Michael Janz home at 113 Prospect Street, Kewaskum, the former Harold Meisenheimer residence.

The fire was discovered at 3:11 a.m. by Kewaskum Police Officer Thomas Bauer during his routine patrol. While patrolling a nearby street, Bauer noticed a considerable amount of smoke coming from the Prospect Street area. On entering the street, Bauer saw smoke coming from the Janz home and turned in the alarm.

Fire Chief Augie Bilgo stated the fire was totally contained within the home when firemen arrived. The aluminum siding and unbroken windows gave an oven-effect to the blaze, holding the fire in and burning or melting the home interior and its contents.

Bilgo said preliminary indications are the fire was electrical in origin, noting the fire apparently started in the basement near a sauna tub where a popped breaker was found. The living room floor directly over the sauna was completely burned through, indicating the fire had been burning several hours before detected.

No one was at home at the time of the fire. Janz, owner of the property, had left Saturday night at approximately 8:00 p.m., returning home Sunday while the Fire Department was battling the blaze. One of the first concerns of the firemen, according to Bilgo, was that Janz may have been in the house.

Thirty firemen answered the call to fight the fire and keep it from spreading to the Al Krewald home which is only six feet away from the Janz residence. Firefighters were on duty until 7:40 a.m. Sunday.

Damage loss due to the fire is expected to be well over $20,000.

KEA Injunction Request Denied

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

An attempt by the Kewaskum Education Association, which represents district teachers, to stop the Kewaskum School District from changing dental insurance carriers failed in Washington County Court last Thursday.

In a hearing before Judge James Schwalbach, in Circuit Court Branch II, on Wednesday, the KEA sought to obtain a Temporary Injunction which would have prevented the District from switching carriers of the union's dental insurance coverage.

At the school district's last meeting, representatives of the KEA voiced concern that the new carrier would not provide the same quality or amount of coverage as that being presently provided through the teachers union insurance firm. School Board members had passed a motion to change carriers when a review of the two bids submitted indicated there would be an approximate saving of $15,000.00 to the District if it went with the new carrier.

Judge Schwalbach handed down his decision Thursday morning denying the KEA's request for the injunction, thereby allowing the district to proceed with its plans to switch from WEA Insurance Trust to Blue Cross-Blue Shield for its dental insurance coverage.

Incoming Freshmen Parents Night Monday

Middle School Toy Drive Successful

A toy drive by pupils of the Kewaskum Middle School was termed very successful by student council advisor, Jim Borusky.

Many new and usable toys and clothing items such as caps, mittens and sweaters were collected and given to local families whose prospects of a happy Christmas holiday were improved.

The Middle School student council originated the idea and council members appealed to their classmates for good usable items. Many were received and as a result many young children in the Kewaskum area are now playing with new games, dolls, teddy bears and are wearing warm mittens, hats and scarves.

'Toys for Tots' Program Successful

The 1982 "Toys for Tots" program provided toys for over 295 children in Washington County. Over 200 families benefited from the generosity of people in our county, which provided Christmas smiles for many children.

The Kewaskum Jaycees coordinated the "Toys for Tots" contribution effort in the Kewaskum area. The Jaycees and West Bend Jaycettes want to especially thank Kennelly Pharmacy, Sentry, and Rosenheimer's for placing barrels at prominent places in their stores so that area families could donate toys to needy children.

This type of giving is needed in these hard economic times, and thanks are extended to all those who donated to "Toys for Tots."

Kewaskum police arrested and issued a leaving the scene of an accident citation to a West Bend man in connection with an accident Dec. 23. The man allegedly drove into the window of Miller's Furniture Store at Forest and Fond du Lac Avenues, causing $1,000 worth of damage.

Dear Friends

Most families decide in advance upon a doctor in whom they have confidence to call in an emergency. In like manner, it is wise to decide upon a funeral director in whom you can place your confidence in time of need. Select this man in advance, when good judgment is not upset by the stress of your grief.

been criticized on several occasions for maintaining 24-hour police patrols. If it hadn't been for Officer Bauer being on the job, it could have been a far more serious situation, noted Schmidt, especially with the closeness of the Al Krewald home. Had the fire gone undetected it might have spread to other homes.

The board approved a request by Bilgo to seek bids for a new tank for the Fire Department's tank truck which hauls water to rural fires. Bilgo said the new tank was needed because the present unit does not meet legal requirements in that the truck is overweight for the size chassis and the tank also does not contain baffles as required by law.

Bilgo told the board he has a prospective buyer for the old tank and money from the sale will defray part of the village's cost of purchasing the new unit.

Bilgo said a switch to a new smaller tank would not jeopardize any fire protection since the new pumper truck has a large capacity tank than the old unit.

Administrator Schmidt also noted, meeting the new laws will benefit those areas using the village's fire service since it will improve the Fire Department's fire rating, thereby lowering insurance rates slightly.

In other action the board approved Resolution 83-1, which supports the Washington County Board of Supervisors to continue their efforts to establish a county-wide landfill site or incinerator.

Dan Schmidt told the board that, as a private citizen, he had written a letter suggesting the DNR consider looking into state-owned land for possible landfill sites. Schmidt said he felt there were several suitable areas in nearby state land which could be used, and since it is the DNR who is pressuring communities about landfills, they could assist in finding possible sites on state land.

The board approved a contract with Clayton Brown and Associates to act as financial consultants for the village's TIF district.

The board also adopted Ordinance 83-1 which requires abandoned wells to be filled and sealed.

New Ice Skating Pond Popular; Cost Down

Municipal Roof Repairs Completed

By GERRY MUELLER
 Statesman Staff Writer

Village Administrator Dan Schmidt informed the Kewaskum Village Board that repairs to three sections of the Municipal Building roof have been completed.

The repair work will eliminate the leaking problems which have plagued the building for several years.

Trustee Jeff Rohrer, Chairman of the Parks and Recreation Committee, gave a short report on the new iceskating pond at the Kiwanis Park. Rohrer said he was happy to see the new pond was being actively used by village residents, with large numbers of skaters at the pond during his spot checks. Another piece of good news was the cost for the pond construction came in well below anticipated figures. The sum of $1,500 had been budgeted for development, but final costs show the village was able to bring the actual price-tag down to $907.00.

The board unanimously agreed with the recommendation of Police Chief Don Hlavaty that the village no longer maintain a skating area at the river.

Hlavaty noted he has always been concerned that someone might go through the ice and with the new pond at Kiwanis Park, there is no need for skaters to use the river.

President Jerry Stollenwerk told Public Works Superintendent Augie Bilgo that his department should no longer plow and maintain the river skating area. From now on, anyone skating on the river does so at their own risk.

Trustee Dick Schmidt told the board he would like to go on record commending Police Officer Thomas Bauer for his alert action involving the Michael Janz fire over the weekend.

Schmidt said the village has

Today's Medicine

By Gregory G. Ogi, D.V.M.

There are many diseases one can contract from pets. Everyone has heard of Rabies which is a virus transmitted by the bite or even just the saliva of a diseased animal. Fortunately, this disease has become rare in dogs and cats due to routine vaccination against it. Other diseases which are less familiar to many are actually contracted by humans from animals more often. Toxoplasmosis is a dangerous disease caused by a parasite found in the feces of infected cats. In most people this illness causes no symptoms. However, it is a serious threat to pregnant women, as it can be transmitted to the fetus and result in miscarriage, premature birth, or mental retardation. Ticks and fleas carried by pets can transmit diseases to man, including Typhus, Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, and even Plague. Cat scratch fever is a mild illness transmitted by cats that causes a small pimplelike sore (usually at the sight of a cat scratch) and enlarged lymph nodes.

The best way to protect oneself is to keep one's pet healthy. Be sure their vaccinations are up to date and that they are periodically treated to prevent parasites. Keep your pets out of areas where food is prepared. Also wash your hands after any contact with your pet's feces or urine. If you are pregnant, I would advise that you get someone else to empty your cat's litter box.

Youth Conservation Camps Seeking Help For Summer Work

Wisconsin's Youth Conservation Camps are looking for young men and women between 15 and 19 years of age to participate in salaried summer work camps.

The camps, located near Manitowish Waters, Minong, Montello and Campbellsport, are operated by the Department of Natural Resources to offer a summer work-learn experience in conservation.

There will be two five-week sessions through June, July and August. Enrollees will be paid $3.35 per hour (work is scheduled for 32 hours per week - $3.35 x 32 hours = $107.20). A room and board charge of $27.20 per will be deducted from the salary.

Work activity offered at the summer camp includes projects related to forestry, fish management, wildlife and recreational use areas. The state's four summer work camps enable the DNR to accomplish a wide variety of forestry projects, fish and game habitat development, and recreation area and facility maintenance that otherwise could not be done locally if we relied solely on DNR manpower. The camps provide an educational opportunity for participants because of the experiences and associations each youth will find in group work assignments, educational tours and presentations.

Youths interested in participating in one of the YCC summer camps must apply by March 7th through their high school guidance directors, or by writing directly to the DNR Youth Conservation Camp Section, Box 7921, Madison, WI 53707. Application forms are available in all Wisconsin high schools. The DNR will notify applicants in April or May whether they have been selected to attend one of the camps.

From the School Board President's Desk....

What are some of the issues the Citizen Long Range Planning Committee is going to examine? What is this competency-based testing controversy all about?

In last week's column I announced the members of a Citizen Long Range Planning Committee. I have charged them with the task of investigating issues that concern the district and reporting their findings to the Board in order to aid the Board in making our decisions on these issues. It seemed more efficient for me to appoint one committee to research the issues for the Board than to appoint several different committees. Some of the subjects I have suggested that the district needs more information about are cooperative programs with other districts, computer purchases, high school smoking rules, open versus closed campus concepts, competency-based testing, handbook revision, the eight-period day, our extra-curricular program, and our overall testing program. The committee will be holding public hearings on specific issues so that all the people in the district have the opportunity to voice their thoughts on the issues. As you can see, the committee will be working in several areas with the teachers and administration on issues facing our district. For all practical purposes, the committee will be doing the leg work for the Board.

The competency-based testing issue is facing the Board right now. Should the Kewaskum School District just sign up for the tests to be given starting in 1985, or should the District become involved, along with well over one hundred other school districts, in the pilot program in 1983 which will test various questions and which will determine the competency requirements on various levels?

I lean toward becoming involved now for two reasons. First of all, our District is currently examining our entire curriculum. It would be quite frustrating if, after all this work, our curriculum did not match the expectations of the competency tests, and we would, thus, have to redo our entire curriculum. The second reason I favor becoming involved now is that we would have some input as to what the expected standards would become. State government, in general, is not known for being particularly responsive to district concerns, and I am certain that the Department of Public Instruction will not listen to complaints or suggestions in 1985 from districts who chose not to be involved in 1983. It's something like the little red hen fable — if you don't help raise the grain, you don't get any of the bread. Our involvement in the competency-based pilot program will cost us only time — there is no fee. I feel the district should become involved.

Congress Appoints Kasten to Small Business Committee

In the midst of the mid-December scramble for plum committee assignments, Bob Kasten, R-Wis., was appointed to the Senate Small Business Committee.

A former businessman himself, Kasten said he understands the impact federal policies have on the small-business community. "The stability of the U.S. economy is dependent on the success and growth of small business in America," he said.

"Wisconsin alone has nearly 200,000 small businesses, employing over one and one-half million people," Kasten said.

1983 Yarns of Yesteryear Contest

Wisconsin residents who remember the hard work, happy times, and challenging experiences of the "olden days" are invited to enter their reminiscences in the tenth annual YARNS OF YESTERYEAR Contest.

Sponsored by the University of Wisconsin-Extension Arts Development Unit and the Wisconsin Regional Writers Association, the contest is open to all Wisconsin residents, age 60 and over. Entries may tell of family, friends, or activities of bygone days or they may be historical stories with a personal slant.

Entries must be postmarked no later than March 1, 1983. Only one manuscript, original and unpublished, may be submitted. It may be typed or neatly handwritten; the word limits are 500 to 1500 words. Since manuscripts will not be returned, contestants are advised to make and keep a personal copy.

Entrants are also asked to prepare a separate cover page with the title of their manuscript, their name, address (including county) telephone number, age (optional), the name and address of their local newspaper, and the number of words in their entry.

Prizes ranging from $25 to $5 will be awarded the top ten winners at the Wisconsin Regional Writers Association Spring conference in May. Ten memberships in the association and twenty honorable mention certificates will also be awarded. Additional cash awards will be given by Stanton and Lee Publishers for the best entries in the "Winners' Circle," a special competition for those who have previously won contest prizes. A new prize, The Alice Converse Award of $10, will be given to the oldest contestant submitting and entry this year.

Judges for the contest will be: Howard Kanetzke, School Publications Editor, Wisconsin State Historical Society; Frank Custer, local history buff and feature writer for several Madison publications; Elizabeth Durbin, former editor of the Ocooch Mountain News and Wisconsin Academy Review; Clarice Dunn, free lance writer and first YARNS OF YESTERYEAR Contest Director; and Mark Lefebvre, Editor-in-Chief, and Doug Bradley, Editor of Stanton and Lee Publishers, Inc.

Entries or requests for further information about the contest may be sent to Gen Lewis, Director, YARNS OF YESTERYEAR CONTEST, 610 Langdon, Room 722, Madison, WI 53706.

For ideas and suggestions as to the types of stories to write, contestants may wish to read selections in WE WERE CHILDREN THEN, volumes I and II, and anthologies of previous YARNS OF YESTERYEAR Contest entries, available at bookstores and libraries throughout the state.

Wetlands Hearings Scheduled in County

The Washington County Park and Planning Commission has scheduled four hearings to be held in January to provide landowners with an opportunity to review wetlands maps.

The hearings were held on January 4th at the Addison Town Hall, and are scheduled January 11th at the Erin Town Hall, January 17th at the Jackson Town Hall, and January 27th in the Auditorium of the Washington County Courthouse. All hearings start at 8:00 p.m.

In 1978, the Wisconsin Legislature passed legislation requiring that all wetlands within the state be inventoried and mapped. This process has taken some time, and the preliminary maps have now been received by Washington County. The process allows for landowners to review the maps and have their input on the accuracy of the mapping process.

At the present time Wisconsin does not have a comprehensive wetlands law affecting most of the wetlands in the state. Some areas do come under the jurisdiction of the Shoreland and Flood Plain Zoning Law. If the Wisconsin Legislature were to pass some legislation in the future, these maps would be used to implement that legislation.

The maps have been developed on a township by township basis, but the meetings will be held on an area basis so individuals living outside the townships where the meetings are held can attend the one that is most convenient to them. Copies of the maps are also available at the Land Use and Parks Department and can be examined during normal business hours.

Individuals having further questions can contact either the Land Use and Parks Department or the Washington County UW-Extension.

SUPPORT IN INFANT AND CHILD DEATH MEETING

Support in Infant and Child Death, a parent support group, meets on the 2nd Thursday of each month. The next meeting will be on Thursday, January 13, at 7 p.m. at the Planned Parenthood office on the second floor of the old section of St. Joseph's Community Hospital, West Bend.

This month's meeting will be an informal gathering of parents who have lost children at any time from miscarriage through the teen years. Parents are invited to share as much of their experience and feelings as they wish. SIICD meetings simply provide a compassionate atmosphere; parents offer support to others who feel the pain, fear, and sadness that the death of a child brings. It helps to know that others have had the same feelings.

Anyone who has felt the loss of a child at any age, including miscarriage and stillbirth, is cordially invited. For more information, please call 338-1303.

"A DEALER YOU CAN TRUST"

Clarence A. Schwartz, Sheriff

OPERATION SANTA CLAUS

Washington County Sheriff Clarence Schwartz advised in a recent news release of the success of "Operation Santa Claus." The project involved the delivery of food baskets and toys of twenty-four area needy families by Washington County Sheriff's Deputies.

The deliveries took just over three hours from the initial stages of gathering up the quantities of food and toys until the last packages were delivered.

The Sheriff went on to state that the deliveries were made by eight Deputy Sheriffs who volunteered their time in an effort to help a few who are less fortunate during the Christmas season.

The families who received the packages were selected by the Department of Social Services based on their need. The Department of Social Services was also responsible for acquiring the toys and food stuffs from a variety of area donors.

Sheriff Schwartz commended the Deputies involved for taking time out during the busy season and making an extra effort to help others. The "Santa Clauses" (dressed in brown uniforms) were Lieutenant Richard Hulbert; Sergeants Allen Blank and Thomas Martin; and deputies Mark Jansen, Steven Braun, Richard Feldschneider, Timothy Ewing and James Barber.

WHAT TO DO ON THE APPROACH OF AN EMERGENCY VEHICLE

Perhaps one of the most frustrating situations encountered by Sheriff's Deputies and other operators of emergency vehicles is trying to weed their way through traffic to an emergency while operating with their red lights and siren, stated Washington County Sheriff Clarence Schwartz in a recent release.

Often times it seems the driving public is oblivious to the flashing red lights and howling siren and gives little consideration, more often than not, that the emergency vehicle is responding to a life and death matter.

Sheriff Schwartz wanted to make it clear that all vehicles are required to yield to an emergency vehicle. That is to move as far as is practical to the right side of the roadway, stop, and remain stopped until the emergency vehicle has passed. This applies to vehicles traveling toward the emergency vehicle, as well as in the same direction. All too often, vehicles traveling toward the emergency vehicle fail to comply with this law and in a sense are the worst violators.

In most cases, a driver approaching from the opposite direction is able to see the red lights far in advance of a driver traveling in the same direction. Drivers traveling in the same direction too seldom check their rear view mirrors, and because of the sound barrier provided, and often with their radio on, do not realize they are being overtaken by an emergency vehicle until it is directly behind them.

Sheriff Schwartz concluded by stating that drivers should check their rear view mirrors often, and be alert for approaching emergency vehicles, which include police vehicles, ambulances and fire trucks. He also emphasized that all drivers traveling in both directions should immediately pull to the right and stop when they encounter an emergency vehicle. This will give the squad car, fire truck, or ambulance the little extra room it needs to proceed safely on its way to its emergency call.

Sheriff Schwartz also related that it is illegal to follow an emergency vehicle closer than 500 feet and to park or stop within 300 feet of a fire or other emergency unit, where fire apparatus has responded.

CONGRESS LOVES 'PORK BARREL' PROJECTS

Every Congress seems to fall in love with the idea of creating or keeping alive public works projects of various types to keep its Members and the special interest groups happy. The Congress which adjourned before Christmas was no exception, for in its rush to go home, it provided millions of tax dollars to several worthless projects.

Part of the problem was that in the waning hours of the session, Senators and Representatives wanted to pass certain favorite bills, but in order to do so had to bow to some of their greedy colleagues who wanted their "pet" projects to be continued. The unstated threat: "Support my dam (or whatever) and I won't block that bill you've been so concerned about."

That's a major weakness of "lame duck" sessions, where Senators and Representatives on their way out have nothing to lose by getting pay raises and special projects for themselves and their colleagues approved. Many bills get so many "goodies" attached, they look like Christmas trees.

This does not serve the public interest, especially when you add the fact some of these public works projects are wasteful and environmentally questionable.

Early in the "lame duck" session, the House had the wisdom to vote down the Garrison Diversion Project in North Dakota, the O'Neill Project in Nebraska, and the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee, though it failed to kill the Stonewall Jackson Dam and the TennTom Waterway projects in Alabama and Mississippi. I voted against all these projects, for we do not need them.

Unfortunately, the Senate restored all or at least part of the funds for all these stupid projects, putting the authorization and funding for them in the Continuing Resolution, which kept all federal agencies and programs alive.

Because they were in the Resolution, a majority of the House swallowed hard and voted for the package, even though they may have hated these projects, rather than let the federal government collapse.

Temptations to sneak through projects like these for "the folks back home" are hard to resist, especially when the Member can point to it with pride and say how many new jobs and dollars it brought to his constituents. All in all, however, they are poor public policy, and give Congress a deservedly bad reputation.

Congressman Petri Sworn In Jan. 3

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Tom Petri was sworn in January 3, for his third term as Representative of Wisconsin's Sixth District.

"I feel very fortunate to have been chosen again to represent my district," Petri said afterwards. "I hope to prove myself worthy of the voters' trust over the next two years. Our country is facing serious challenges and it will take a lot of hard work to really do the job that needs to be done."

Petri said that Congress will have to find a way to reduce projected federal deficits. "If we have huge deficits, we're going to have enormous federal borrowing requirements," he said. "That will end up driving interest rates back up, denying money to individuals and businesses that want to expand and hire people."

"Congress has the ability to cut the deficits, but it may not have the will," Petri continued. "There are enormous spending pressures in Washington. It's going to take an awful lot of hard work on the part of a majority of us in Congress to get a handle on spending by setting priorities across the board in defense and domestic programs."

"We have to do a better job of living within our means in order to put people back to work," Petri concluded.

BALANCE SHEET GUIDES FAMILIES TOWARD THEIR FINANCIAL GOALS

Knowing where you are is essential to planning where you're going. While traveling, a map serves to chart progress. In money management, the family balance sheet can do the same.

A balance sheet outlines the family's net worth, a simple calculation indicating where the family is financially. Knowing your net worth can help you evaluate your situation and set clear goals.

Net worth is the fair market value of your assets, or all that you own, minus your liabilities, or all that you owe.

Even if you have little cash, you may be surprised at your net worth. Rising real estate values, for example, have dramatically boosted the net worth of many families who own their homes.

To figure your net worth, draw up your own family balance sheet. In one column, list the value of the things you own. Estimate the amount you could get for selling your house, other real estate, furnishings, car and personal property such as clothing or sporting goods. Add to this the cash value of life insurance policies, fringe benefits and retirement plans. Also list the current value of stocks and bonds, the value of your share in any businesses and all money owed you. Finally, add the balances in your saving and checking accounts and cash on hand. The sum is the value of your assets, or all that you own.

Now subtract your liabilities. Determine what you owe on your house, furnishings, car and other belongings. List any amounts you may have borrowed against your life insurance or retirement plans. Also list amounts you owe on securities or business investments, personal loans, unpaid bills, insurance premiums and taxes. Subtract them from your assets. The difference is your net worth.

If your assets exceed your liabilities, you're probably in good financial shape. Calculating net worth annually will help you document your progress toward financial goals.

If your liabilities exceed your assets, keeping your eye on the bottom line is even more important. Knowing what you own and owe puts your financial situation into perspective. The figures can motivate you to rein in spending and develop a realistic budget.

It's important to understand why liabilities exceed assets. A college student incurring debts to finance an education probably will be better off in the long run than one who is simply overspending.

Regardless of your situation, you can whittle away at the liabilities by planning spending carefully and staying within your budget. Document your progress by periodically figuring your net worth and you'll eventually see your assets surpass the liabilities.

Different families have different goals. One family may save for a down payment on a house while another family's priority may be an emergency fund to draw on if a breadwinner is laid off.

Regardless of your goals, the family balance sheet is an important tool to guide you toward them.

AMPI Opposes 50c Assessment

Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's leading dairy farmer cooperative, filed opposition January 3, against the U.S. Department of Agriculture's program to collect 50 cents/hundredweight on all milk marketed. "Amicus Curiae" (friend of court) testimony was presented by Sydney Berde, attorney for AMPI, at a hearing before Federal District Judge Matthew Perry in Columbus, South Carolina. On December 21, Judge Perry had authorized a temporary restraining order freezing USDA's plans to collect the assessment.

"AMPI stands totally and unequivocally against this ill-conceived assessment that costs U.S. dairy farmers more than $1.8 million each day of implementation," declared AMPI President Irvin Elkin, a dairy farmer from Amery, Wisconsin. "Our testimony emphasized the fact that the assessment only aggravates the very problem it is supposed to correct — surplus milk conditions. Because of severe cash-flow pressures, many dairy farm families will have no choice but to increase their milk production in the short-run."

"Over the long-run, the assessment runs the risk of forcing many dairy farm families out-of-business which would jeopardize America's milk productive capacity and mean higher prices for consumers," continued Elkin. "Clearly, the assessment represents poor policy for dairy farmers, consumers and taxpayers alike."

AMPI ranks as the nation's largest dairy farmer cooperative with 33,000 members from 20 states located throughout the midwest, south and southwest, who produce about 12 per cent of the nation's milk supply. AMPI is pursuing the concept of "individual producer incentives" as the most sensible solution to the current dairy situation, and rejects any proposal cutting the current milk price support level.

"The individual dairyman must be given a choice: whether to continue to produce milk at surplus levels and receive a lower price, or whether to cut back production and maintain a higher price," explained Elkin. "That is the fair and equitable way to bring milk production back into balance with consumption."

Elkin noted that dairy farmers have already had milk prices frozen since October, 1980, while production costs have increased continuously with inflation. As a result, the number of dairy farm bankruptcies and foreclosures is increasing.

Some 20,600 AMPI members protested the assessment by sending letters to USDA during the September 25 - November 8, 1982 public comment period — a record response. AMPI is making arrangements to share copies of all its members' letters with their respective U.S. Senators and Representatives as part of the overall effort to pursue a sensible alternative to the assessment plan in the 98th Congress.

CHILDREN LEARN MONEY MANAGEMENT FROM EXPERIENCE, MISTAKES

Parents need to exercise real care in judging their children's spending habits.

A comic book or toy that seems wasteful to a parent may satisfy a child's emotional needs. Parents should consider the child's perspective on the purchase. If the purchase appears to be a mistake, it may be hard to let the child live with it, but the child will learn from the experience.

If a child accidentally or purposefully damages property, have the child pay for its repair or replacement. Parents may make a loan to the child to help cover the cost. Clearly specify the terms of the loan and draw up an agreement, which the child may sign when he/she understands its purpose and terms. Using credit this way teaches responsibility for paying back debts.

It doesn't do any good for parents to become angry at children for losing money. Parents can use the situation to teach responsible money handling techniques. If the money fell out of a pocket, perhaps the child needs a wallet or purse.

Some children are impulse spenders, possibly because their allowances are too large. Other children, however, may spend some of their fixed expenditure money, such as lunch money, on non-essential items.

Perhaps a child doesn't understand the purpose of an allowance, or how to manage it. It's important for them to clearly understand what the allowance should cover. Parents might consider paying the allowance in increments and reducing the number of items the allowance covers until the child learns to plan for both necessary and discretionary expenses.

Most of the money mistakes children make are simply due to lack of experience. Concerned attentive parents can help children learn from their mistakes.

VOTING BY ABSENTEE BALLOT

Any qualified voter, unable to get to the polling place on election day, may ask to vote by absentee ballot. A qualified voter is one who is a U.S. citizen, will be 18 years of age or older on election day, and who has resided in the ward or aldermanic district where voting is desired to be accomplished for at least 10 days prior to the election. If the voter resides in a municipality which requires voter registration, then registration is also a requisite for the voter who is qualified in other respects.

To obtain an absentee ballot, contact the clerk in the city, village or town in which you reside by mail or telephone, or in person, and request an application form. After properly completing and returning the application to the municipal clerk, an absentee ballot will be sent to you along with a postage pre-paid return envelope, or given to you if the application is submitted to the clerk in person. The deadline for receipt of the application by the municipal clerk is 5:00 p.m. on the Friday before election day in the case of applications mailed to the municipal clerk, and 5:00 p.m. on the day before the election in the case of applications made in the clerk's office.

With one exception, the voter who wants to cast an absentee ballot must make a separate application before each election. Voters indefinitely confined to their home or care facility because of illness, age or disability need not file an application before each election; a special statement on the application form can be completed asking that an absentee ballot be automatically mailed to them before each election; if they fail to make and return the ballots sent to them in an election, they must complete another application later on.

Absentee ballots can be voted at home anytime after they arrived in the mail. They can also be voted right in the clerk's office if submitting the application in person. If returning the ballots by mail, the affidavit-certificate must be properly completed and witnessed by two persons. If returning the ballots in person, the affidavit-certificate must be properly completed and subscribed and sworn to by the clerk or the deputy clerk who are authorized to administer oaths. In either case, the marked, sealed ballot must be in the hands of the issuing municipal clerk on or before election day. Any absentee ballot received at the polling place after the polls close or received in incomplete or improper form cannot be counted.
