Campbellsport's Bishop Schlaefer Talks About His Nicaraguan Ordeal

Bishop Salvator Schlaefer

(Statesman Photo)

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

"We were invited to accompany the Miskitos in their exodus from their homes in Nicaragua to the safety of camps in Honduras. The decision to move was made by the people themselves, we did not lead them, emphasized Bishop Salvator Schlaefer as he talked with over a dozen TV and news media people during a press conference held Monday at the Campbellsport Community Hall.

The interview was opened by Campbellsport Village President Phil Ketter who said the conference was arranged to allow the media their opportunity to question the Bishop on his ordeal. Ketter made it clear the Bishop and his family would not grant any further interviews after Monday's meeting. "They've had a merry Christmas but they have also gone through a hard, trying time," said Ketter.

Schlaefer was bombarded with questions ranging from his feelings regarding the Nicaraguan government to his future plans. Schlaefer said last Monday's evacuation was unexpected as he conducted mass and performed baptisms in a remote Miskito village. It wasn't until about midnight that word came the Indians were being evacuated to Honduras. About 1,000 Indians began their march to Honduras and we were invited to join them, we were not forced into the journey.

The "we" Bishop Schlaefer referred to included himself, Father Wendolin Schaefer of Milwaukee and two Miskito Indian Deacons. "When we realized we were the only four left in the village and our return route was blocked because of the bridges being blown up by the Indians to slow the army's advance, we decided to get in our jeep and join the Indians."

Schlaefer was asked how he thought the rumors of his death came about. He thought possibly the discovery of his abandoned jeep was the basis for the story. Schlaefer told reporters the jeep was left behind when he and his three companions caught up with the Indians. "The road just came to an end," said the Bishop, "and there was no other alternative but to walk."

Schlaefer credited the Indians with his successful completion of the trip. "The Indians carried me the last leg of the journey because my feet became sore and swollen from Bamboo barb cuts and the difficulty of the paths we followed," noted Schlaefer. He told the Indians that the paths were so overgrown with bamboo and brush "they were fit for only pigs to travel not humans." Schlaefer

To All the Volunteer Firemen - Thank You!

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

This is a thank you to all those volunteer firemen who go out to fight countless fires with little or no recognition and certainly no great monetary rewards.

As I sat in my nice warm house this past week-end, I listened to the scanner calling out its requests for help. Besides the police and plowing calls came urgent pleas. One was a call to a chimney fire on Fillmore Road. The dispatcher said the roads were drifted shut but help was being sought to clear them, so the volunteer firemen could get in to fight the blaze. Besides that, the temperature was sub-zero and "Old Man Winter" was providing unbelievable wind chills of minus 30, minus 40, minus 50 degrees. Before a county plow got there, private citizens were responding with their own equipment, from tractors to trucks.

I felt sorry for the stricken family, but then I said thank goodness for those volunteer firemen. Private citizens who are willing to leave their jobs and homes, to get up in the middle of the night, to go out in sub-zero temperatures, battling not only the fire but equipment which, at times, refuses to work as if to say, let's go home, nothing or no one should be out in weather like this.

Many people who are dependent on these men take them for granted. They think that it's just a matter of making that emergency call and the firemen respond. They do not stop to think that these people are not just sitting around the firehouse waiting for a call. They are individuals with their own jobs and responsibilities who undergo intensive training and are freely giving of their own time and lives to aid a neighbor or friend.

I used the Fillmore incident as an example but every volunteer department in the area was out on calls this week. Kewaskum battled a trailer fire and assisted at a house fire. Area fire department rescue squads had ambulance runs, the list goes on and the calls were answered.

It's the time of year for us to think about, and count our blessings. One of those blessings has to be those men and women who are willing to serve our communities as volunteer firefighters.

I am not ignoring our police, town or county workers, they too, have put in long, hard, cold hours. But for them it is part of a paid job they chose to do. To our volunteers who see very little in their pockets for their time and efforts, THANK YOU.

Just a closing thought, when it comes round to that time of year when tickets for firemen's picnics seem to come at you in a never-ending supply, think back to this winter when these same people who are trying to sell you a ticket were out in -30 weather trying to save yours, or your neighbor's home.

It has become a standing joke in our house that we have enough tickets for various organizations to paper it umpteen times over, but I cannot think of any money better spent than that which goes to our volunteer fire departments.

Zehrens Plan to Rebuild Home Damaged by Fire

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Zehren, St. Kilian, whose home was damaged by fire on Monday, Dec. 19, are now living in a trailer at their residence since Monday of this week.

They had been staying with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Zehren, Lake Bernice Drive, rural Allenton. The Zehrens plan to rebuild their home which is located on the Washington-Fond du Lac county line.

The Zehrens home was severely damaged in a fire which was detected by Mr. Zehren when he arrived home shortly before noon on Monday.

He said he "smelled a little smoke and could hear it crackling in the attic."

He said the fire apparently started in the attic besides the pipe of a woodburning stove. According to Zehren, the flues are double-walled insulated pipe. There was very little fire in the stove itself, he said.

The woodburner is located in the recreation room of the split-level home. Zehren said the house was built in 1976 shortly after he underwent open-heart bypass surgery.

The Kohlsville Fire Department fought the fire with

Town of Kewaskum Revaluation to Begin

The revaluation of all taxable real estate and personal property in the Town of Kewaskum will begin in January. The Appraisers will carry a letter of identification from the Town and the Town Board urges property owners to cooperate by permitting the authorized Appraisers to inspect their property.

The Appraisers will be measuring the exterior dimensions of all buildings inspecting the interiors of all buildings to list the physical data needed to make an accurate appraisal.

The revaluation is being done by Bowmar Appraisal Inc. of Appleton, Wisconsin. The revaluation is being made to correct inequities which may have developed over the years in the assessed valuations placed on properties in the Town. When completed, the assessed values will represent 100% of market value. Bowmar will be sending out individual notices of the new assessed values. Taxpayers, at this time, prior to the Board of Review will have the opportunity to meet with the Appraiser if they have any questions concerning their new assessed values.

said the Indians then agreed to clear the way with their machettes.

The Bishop was asked if he felt his life was in danger at any time. He said the first two days they heard shooting at the rear, but he was assured by the Indians that he was well protected and that it was probably the rear-guard fighting off the approaching army.

The Bishop confirmed he had received a phone call from President Reagan. When asked what the conversation was about, he said it was private. He did say the President felt the Indians have shown they wanted a more democratic form of government. "They voted with their feet, walking out," the Bishop quoted the President.

Over 22,000 Indians are now in Honduras camps, helped by various organizations said the Bishop, but they all hope to return to their homes in Nicaragua some day.

Bishop Schlaefer said he hoped to return to Central America in about two weeks, but for now he would spend a few days in the hospital to rest and heal. He also planned to spend time with his mother, Mrs. Matt Schlaefer, and other sisters and brothers including Dr. Anthony Schlaefer of Campbellsport and Sister Cecelia of Fond du Lac, who is a Professor of Music at Marian College. He also has a brother, Rev. Austin Schlaefer of Saginaw, Michigan.

Assault Charges Dropped

First-degree sexual assault charges against four area men were dismissed last Tuesday at the request of the victim of the alleged assault, who said in a letter that she has been unable to overcome difficulties testifying about the incident which occurred last March 23.

Accused were: Kenneth P. Dippel, 22, of 7449 County D; Nickie J. Fuchs, 25, of 8668 Sandy Ridge Road, Kewaskum; Peter S. Gumm, 23, of 7657 Nenno Road, Allenton; and Brian P. Peterson, 20, of 645 18th Ave., West Bend. All were in the courtroom Tuesday.

An identical charge against a fifth man, Mark W. Kraemer, 23, of 4203 Hacker Dr., West Bend, will also be dropped, Washington County District Attorney David Resheske said. Kraemer's case was to be tried separately.

The five men were accused of assaulting the 20-year-old Town of Hartford woman over a four-hour period at a Town of Wayne farmhouse the night of March 23.

Red Cross Schedules CPR, 1st Aid Classes

The West Bend Red Cross has scheduled Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation Classes and a Multimedia First Aid Class.

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) is a combination of artificial respiration and artificial circulation used to keep a victim of cardiac arrest alive until medical assistance arrives. The first four minutes after a heart attack are the most crucial. A CPR course will teach you how to handle this emergency and how to recognize the signs and symptoms of a possible heart attack victim.

The CPR class is scheduled for three Thursdays starting January 5th, continuing on the 12th and completing on the 19th. There is a morning class from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. and an evening class from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. We have a refresher course scheduled also. This is a Lecture Discussion CPR class starting January 26th, continuing on February 2nd and completing on February 9th from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. All classes will be conducted in the community room of the West Bend Marine Bank. Cost of the book $4.25.

The Multimedia First Aid Class is scheduled for two Monday evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. starting January 30th and completing on February 6th at the Marine Bank. Multimedia First Aid is a combination of films demonstrating how to care for emergencies, a programmed workbook in which you learn to do additional skills and you practice under the guidance of an instructor.

Multimedia First Aid meets the requirements of OSHA, of 1970.

To enroll in any of these classes, call the West Bend Red Cross at 334-5687.

Prevent Fire

Your HEALTH TIP

from Tom Leitzke, R.P.H.

During cold weather, there is the temptation to take off the chill by soaking in very hot water. This actually promotes dry skin by opening up the pores which releases the skin's natural protective oils. Instead, use superfatted soap or a transparent glycerine soap in a tub of warm water. You may also smooth on body lotion after the bath. By avoiding the very hot water, you will warm up without drying out your skin.

The vehicle then skidded across the highway and went into the ditch on the north side of the road and rolled over.

The promotion was held during November and December. Each lady who received a "Just Wonderful" permanent during that period was given an opportunity to win the watch.

The village will pay for the first parcel of land $500 and for the second parcel $200. As soon as the present owners can deliver clear titles and warranty deeds to the village, the final payment will be made.

Two Chicago and Northwestern passenger trains were derailed on Tuesday, the first one about three miles north of Campbellsport, when a tire of one of the drive wheels of the engine fell off of train No. 102, southbound, due at Kewaskum about 3:20 a.m. As the train was going at a slow rate of speed up a grade, only the engine left the rails. No one was injured. The second derailment occurred at the south switch at Campbellsport when the engine of an extra passenger train, northbound, shortly after noon left the rails. A wrecking train and crew from Milwaukee were rushed to the scene. In order that the track could be repaired at the first derailment, it was necessary to hoist the engine off the ground.

Law Enforcement to Be Alert for Drunk Drivers on New Year's Eve

New Year's Eve partygoers have been warned that apprehending drunken drivers again will be the Wisconsin State Patrol's highest enforcement priority in its effort to keep highways safe for everyone.

Society no longer tolerates driving while "high, feeling no pain, with a buzz on, mellow, hammered, or smashed," said Col. Howard Goetsch, deputy administrator of the State Patrol, adding that an intoxicated driver behind the wheel of a motor vehicle "too often kills or maims innocent people who happen to be in their path."

Troopers are very well-trained to detect the drinking driver, the Patrol official said. More than 31,000 drunk drivers have been arrested in Wisconsin during the last 12 months.

"Drunken drivers will be arrested," Goetsch emphasized. "Patrol policy has long dictated that no warning tickets will be issued to the drunken driver."

From January through July of 1983, 133 drunk drivers caused 150 fatalities, or 40 percent of the toll.

Of the 775 traffic deaths in 1982, 42 percent died in crashes in which 281 at-fault drivers were either charged with drunken driving or whose blood tested at .10 percent blood alcohol concentration or above. During 1981, 411, or about 44 percent, were killed in accidents in which the at-fault driver was drunk.

Goetsch reminded drivers that the many personal consequences of an "Operating While Intoxicated" (OWI) arrest and conviction should be extra reasons to stay sober behind the wheel.

"If the stigma and guilt associated with OWI are without meaning, then the trauma of an accident or arrest, one's presence in court, the loss of driver's license and greatly increased insurance rates ought to deter one from driving after drinking," he added.

He advised that if hosting a holiday party, measure all drinks and don't be in too much of a hurry to refill the glasses. Close the bar an hour before guests leave and serve non-alcoholic beverages and food, he said.

In an effort to encourage sober driving during the holidays, Tavern League member bars and nightclubs are cooperating in a statewide "Designated Driver" promotion. Customers coming in groups are asked to pick one person to be the designated driver. That person is given an "I'm The Driver" sticker to wear and is served one free alcoholic drink and all of the non-alcoholic drinks he or she can consume all night long, free of charge.

The La Crosse County Tavern League enlisted local taxi companies to offer discount rates to those people whose driving ability is impaired.

The Milwaukee County Transit System, through a grant from the Pabst Brewing Company, will offer free bus rides from 8 p.m., Dec. 31, to 4 a.m., Jan. 1. Last year almost 44,000 people took advantage of this means of travel on New Year's Eve.

The City of Madison bus system will offer free rides from 6 p.m., Dec. 31, to 4 a.m., Jan. 1. Twenty-three sponsors are assisting the city in this effort.

The sport of skiing is said to have begun in Telemark, Norway about 1860.

Weight-Control Program Begins Jan. 9 in County

Did you over-indulge over the holidays? Do you need to lose a few pounds? This is a great time to begin a weight-control program!

The 1984 Project Hope Program is about to begin! The ten session weight control program will provide information for sensible weight-loss through maintaining a well-balanced diet, behavior modification and sharing of diet tips.

Topics to be included are:
- ready, set, hope
- calorie control
- when you eat out
- how to look terrific
- relationships and your self-image

The Project Hope Program will begin Monday, January 9, 1984 at 9:00 p.m. The program will be held in the upstairs meeting room at the U.W. Extension Office, Courthouse Annex II, 515 East Washington Street in West Bend.

The cost of the 10 week program is $5.00. The fee will cover a computer analysis, materials and incentives for losing weight.

Pre-registration is required to reserve a spot. If you are interested in participating in the program, please call Shelby Maier at the U.W. Extension Office, 338-4479, 644-5204 or 342-2929.

Celebrate New Year's Eve Wisely

Washington County Sheriff Clarence Schwartz offers the following suggestions for celebrating New Year's Eve wisely so you will be around to see the start of 1984 in good shape:

If you are planning to drive to a party where you expect to be served intoxicants, pace your drinks so that you will not be staggering to your car when it comes time to drive home, or better yet designate one person as the driver who is not drinking. If you are hosting a party for friends in your own home, keep in mind that being a good host means more than being a bartender.

Provide some tasty items for nibbling - cheese bits, crackers, sausage slices, nuts, popcorn, pretzels - to slow down the rate of drink consumption.

Don't rush to refill glasses only half empty; avoid serving doubles; offer soft drinks as an alternate choice; and encourage stimulating conversation along with your holiday meal.

Make sure your guests are in safe condition to drive home. As a good host, don't be afraid to find another ride home for the guest who is clearly not up to driving safely. FRIENDS don't let their friends drive drunk!

The semis arrived from Texas and California Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, December 6 and 7. Over 1200 cases were unloaded in the frigid air

The Ag Shop was full of over 1200 cases of fruit. All fruit was hand inspected. The sale was a huge success and the F.F.A. thanks all the community members who purchased citrus from us. Hope you enjoyed your fruit.

The Kewaskum Chapter of the Future Farmers of America would like to thank everyone in the community who helped make the annual cheese and fruit sale a huge success.

This year the chapter sold 1,200 cases of fruit and over 725 pounds of cheese.

The seniors once again led this year's sale with $350 of sales per person followed closely by the juniors with $325 of sales per person.

The money raised from this year's sale will be used to fund many of the Kewaskum FFA's activities throughout the year. Included in these activities, are the purchase of a new computer for the Ag Department, participation in district and state judging contests, participation in the state and national FFA conventions, the sponsoring of the annual rabies clinic, and the annual parent-member awards banquet.

The Kewaskum FFA feels proud to know it is supported by the fine people of the Kewaskum area year after year.

Today's Medicine

FROSTBITE PROBLEMS
By R. G. Edwards, M.D.

Chilblains occur commonly in patients, especially females with a history of cool limbs in summer as well as in winter. Their cause is unknown and seen mostly in cold, damp climates such as London, England. Acute chilblain manifests itself on the dorsum of the digits, hands or feet, as localized, warm, red, intensely pruritic (itching) swelling that may disappear spontaneously in a few days. Treatment may include the steroid creams to relieve the itchy symptoms.

Frostbite is due to the freezing of tissues which may result in damage to skin, muscles, blood vessels and nerves. Superficial freezing of tissues evidently begin when the temperature of deeper tissues reach 10°C (41°). Exposure to high winds, dampness and general chilling of body makes a frostbite more likely to occur above freezing temperatures. Predisposing factors may include improper clothing, exhaustion and previous cold injury.

The first indication of frostbite is often a sharp, pricking sensation that draws attention to a yellowish, white, numb area of hardened skin. When the freezing is superficial, thawing leads to local reddening, and wheal and flare formation. When freezing involves deep tissues, subcutaneous edema occurs with thawing, followed by the formation of vesicles and large blisters. As edema subsides necrosis and gangrene can become evident. However, in severe cases, it may take two to three months before final demarcation between viable and dead tissue can be ascertained. In the healing phase, a black scar or scab usually covers the area.

Frostbite is preventable and occurs rarely among those who have been instructed how to protect themselves. Prophylactic measures include frequent observance of each other for signs of frostbite; wearing adequate loose fitting dry clothing and mittens; exposure for only brief periods when exercise is not possible, and avoidance of smoking before and during exposure. Feet and socks should be kept dry.

Superficial frostbite can be treated immediately by re-warming; affected areas on face and ears can be warmed with the hands; hands can be placed in the axillae or frostbitten parts can be warmed on the torso of a partner. Frostbitten areas should not be rubbed with snow nor exercised. Treatment of deep frostbite should be delayed until adequate facilities for re-warming are available. Damage to the tissues must be avoided in order that a good cure can be obtained. Medical supervision should be obtained for optimum cure of condition. Sensitivity to cold, paresthesias (numbness), and predilection to repeat frostbite often persist.

General Telephone Files for Usage Sensitive Service in Area Villages

General Telephone filed an amended application on December 15, 1983, with the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin requesting non-optional Usage Sensitive Service on an experimental basis in Campbellsport, Eden, Lomira and Theresa. These exchanges join Arena, Lone Rock, Plain and Spring Green (for which USS filings initially were submitted last October) as participant sites in the firm's first measured service test.

James D. Blanchard, state vice president-general manager, confirmed the Company hopes the experiment, pending PSC approval, will begin March 1, 1984, with all one-party residential and business customers in the four Eastern and four Southwestern Wisconsin exchanges receiving their normal flat-rate bills to pay and USS bills for comparison purposes.

Beginning in June, customers will pay the "measured" or USS bill and will also have the option of requesting detailed local call listings at an additional charge.

Blanchard said, "Under USS, customers are charged a lower rate for local access and then pay for local calls based on: (1) the number of calls made, (2) the duration of the calls, (3) the time of day and (4) distance of band to which the calls are placed."

USS, Blanchard said, has become an extremely emotional issue, but "the higher flat rates looming on the horizon, caused by the many changes in the telephone industry, will be an extremely painful issue affecting many people's pocketbooks. I think the majority of our customers in Campbellsport, Eden, Lomira and Theresa will find themselves pleasantly surprised by USS, once they have the opportunity to compare it with their flat rate bills."

The local service charges requested (not including zone charges, where applicable) will be $8.00 for one-party residential customers, $19.00 for one-party business customers and $27.00 for business systems.

Local calls will be billed at three cents for "connection" (or call set-up) and one cent per minute from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday. A 50 percent discount will be applied to calls placed between 9 p.m. and 8 a.m., Monday through Saturday, and all day on Sundays and holidays.

Slightly higher charges will apply to calls between exchanges. These charges take the place of previous "Extended Area Service" charges which applied to all customers whether they made calls to those bands or not.

General Telephone is not seeking and anticipates no change in its overall revenues because of USS implementation, Blanchard noted. "USS rates are designed to produce no more, and no less, revenue for General Telephone than that which would be produced by flat rates."

"However," he pointed out, "under flat rates, the lower users of local telephone service are subsidizing the high users, since both pay the same flat rate. USS distributes the costs of telephone service to the users of the service. It's simply a fairer method of charging for services received."

In addition, Blanchard said USS promotes more efficient use of telephone switching equipment, smoothing out peaks and valleys in telephone usage by offering customers, through the 50 percent discount, an economic incentive to place calls during low usage periods.

"In the future, this could result in lower costs for customers, since telephone companies would not have to install as much expensive equipment in order to meet peak demands."

"Further," he said, "a majority of customers should receive lower phone bills under USS than they would under flat rates. Wisconsin studies and actual experience with measured service in Illinois lead us to project that 60 percent of all customers will pay less under USS."

Blanchard also noted that some customers will pay more. "However, all customers will have greater control over their telephone bills," he pointed out.

General Telephone will be offering information and programs to customers in the four additional exchanges scheduled for the "experiment" on USS, as well as to other interested customers in its operating territory. Groups interested in additional information should contact, toll-free, Lou Ann Novak at 1-893-7333.

WAYNE CRUSADERS 4-H CLUB

The December 4th meeting of the Wayne Crusaders 4-H Club was called to order at 2:00 p.m. The pledges were led by all members having December birthdays. Roll call was to bring your grandparents and introduce them. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved.

It was decided not to have a January meeting but to have a toboggan party instead. Members will be called when conditions are right for the party.

When the meeting was adjourned, we were all in for a surprise. The club's adopted grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Koenig took over. We all had a lesson in German and sang a few Christmas carols in German. We sang more Christmas carols accompanied on the banjo played by Grandpa Koenig. Grandma Koenig had her wonderful words of wisdom to offer us plus a bit of humor that had all of us in stitches.

Cookies, punch, and coffee were enjoyed by all the grandparents, guests, and members. In this Christmas Season we want to thank God for all grandparents and especially, for Grandpa and Grandma Koenig.

Our next meeting will be the second Tuesday in February at 7:30 p.m.

Wayne Crusaders 4-H Club wishes you a Happy New Year.

... about your Social Security

By David Becker, Social Security Branch Manager in West Bend

EARLY DELIVERY OF SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME CHECKS

Monthly Supplemental Security Income (SSI) checks which are normally delivered on the first day of the month, will be delivered on December 30th, instead, according to Mr. Becker manager of the West Bend Social Security office.

"Benefit checks are mailed early when the usual delivery date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday," Becker said. "In these instances, the checks are dated and delivered on the first day before the first of the month that is not a weekend or holiday."

Becker stated that this procedure helps reduce the problems that people have when they receive their checks and their banks are closed. These situations occur several times during the year, and Becker added that SSA would provide similar information about early check deliveries as they occur.

Notice to Wisconsin Long Distance Users

The Wisconsin Public Service Commission has approved AT&T Communications of Wisconsin as a provider of long distance services between certain geographical areas of Wisconsin. These areas were established by the federal court order which divested Wisconsin Bell from AT&T. The following are the rates, effective at 12:01 a.m., January 1, 1984, for a number of the services to be offered by AT&T Communications of Wisconsin.

- A 75 cent per call charge will apply to directory assistance calls outside the customer's area code, but within the state of Wisconsin (for example, 414 area customers calling directory assistance for the 608 and/or 715 areas). There will be no charge for the first three calls in a billing period. This charge will not apply to persons who are certified disabled, or from coin telephones or hospital patient rooms.
- Day rates for the initial minute of directly dialed long distance calls will range from 33 cents to 63 cents, depending on the distance of the call. Rates for each additional minute of such calls will range from 17 cents to 42 cents, depending on the distance of the call.
- An evening discount of 30% of day rates will apply between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m., Sunday through Friday. A night discount of 50% of day rates will apply between 11 p.m. and 8 a.m., Sunday through Friday, all day Saturday and Sunday until 5 p.m.
- A monthly rate of $8.50 per month is established for an optional state-wide calling service that will be available in most exchanges. Under the plan, 60 minutes of calling will be available during designated times of the day. Each additional 1/10th hour of calling will cost 85 cents. Contact your local telephone company business office for additional information.
- Rates for WATS services will be as follows*:

| Hours | Outward WATS | 800 Service |
|----------------|----------------|---------------|

HISTORY OF THE WISCONSIN DEER HERD

By Dave Weitz,
DNR Public Information Officer in Eau Claire

TOMORROW'S DEER
[Last in a series]

Today, when you ask the experts that deal with deer management in Wisconsin about the number of deer in the state, they'll tell you the deer herd, before the 9-day deer gun season was about 900,000 deer. Ask them to prove it and they'll tout formulas based on registration information, harvest rates, and winter severity.

It wasn't always that way. In 1945, when arguments about how to manage the deer in the state were raging, experts in the Wisconsin Conservation Department and Aldo Leopold of the University of Wisconsin decided to study Chambers Island, a 3,000-acre island off the Door County Peninsula. Deer browse was sadly depleted on the island and the area was obviously overpopulated.

Before they started the hunt, the managers attempted to estimate the number of deer on the 3,000 acres. A seat-of-the-pants estimate they decided on was 200 deer. The hunt started on October 18, 1945 and when the hunt was over, 250 deer had been taken. Checks after the hunt indicated that 50-100 deer were still on the island.

The people that conducted the 1945 hunt were pioneering a new science, game management, and they were inventing methods that are used today by managers.

Today, new tools are in use. Deer registration and the establishment of deer management units throughout the state were keys to the new techniques that allow managers to make accurate estimates not only of the total number of deer in a management unit, but the approximate number of bucks, does, and fawns in the area.

Development of a sex-age-kill formula for reconstructing deer herds from past registration, and refinement of a winter severity index to predict deer losses due to the winter weather has allowed fine-tuning of herd estimates.

The tools that managers use nowadays to come up with population estimates were developed during nearly two decades.

In 1953, deer registration was instituted in Wisconsin for the first time. This provided the first accurate estimates of the statewide deer kill.

In 1954, deer management units, some 77 of them, were developed to facilitate deer pellet count surveys which are designed to determine deer populations in the north. The management units were determined by the type of habitat when possible. Boundaries were main highways. Each contained about 300 to 400 square miles of deer range.

In 1959, deer registration was started on a unit basis so for the first time, biologists could track the number of deer taken from each deer management unit.

In 1959, summer deer observation surveys were commenced. These surveys are conducted from July - September and consist of field Department of Natural Resources and U.S. Forest Service workers keeping track of the numbers of bucks, does, and fawns that are seen. The result is a measure that can be used to indicate trends in fawn production.

In 1959, a sex-age-kill method of reconstructing the deer population and the percentages of bucks, does, and fawns in individual units was developed by researchers based on work done earlier in New York and Michigan.

In 1970-71, a winter severity index, which provides a way to measure the severity of the winter and predict its impact on deer, was developed.

The researchers haven't stopped perfecting their tools. In the future, it's likely that computers can be used to more efficiently calculate the number of quota deer that should be taken from each management unit to maintain it properly and how many hunter choice permits should be issued for each management unit, according to Bill Creed of the Forest Wildlife Research Center at Rhinelander.

He's quick to caution, however, that deer management can't be distilled to pure arithmetic. "You can't predict what will happen after that season is over." The judgement of experienced wildlife managers will still mold decisions on how many deer should be taken from an area.

The population goals for deer management units are based on how many deer the land can support in the northern forest (north of State Highway 64), according to Frank Haberland, chief of big game management for the Department of Natural Resources.

"It's an overwinter deer population where it's been determined over a period of time that this is the level of deer that the land can reasonably sustain under average weather conditions."

It doesn't guarantee that deer won't be hurt, sometimes severely, by bad winters, but these goals will reduce the magnitude of deer losses and limit damage to the habitat that deer must subsist on.

In southern Wisconsin, the unit goals are established differently, according to Haberland. He says it's a matter of human tolerance. "There the carrying capacity has seldom been tested. It's an arbitrary figure that minimizes crop damage complaints and car-deer collisions on the highways."

One measure of those attitudes is a recent editorial in the Boscobel Dial. It said, in part, "The truth is that the state's deer population has been managed so well that in some areas, particularly Iowa county, whitetails have become something of a menace. That county averages three or four, and sometimes more, car-deer collisions a week. Add to this the problems confronted by farmers in keeping deer out of their growing crops and the need to reduce the herd becomes imperative."

Now, unit goals (there now are 96 management units) call for about 575,000 deer in the state after the deer seasons are over and about 800,000 before seasons commence.

Creed says that at current levels, the state is about 100,000 over existing goals.

So deer herds will be pared carefully during the next few years. Once adjusted, harvest levels statewide will be somewhat lower than at present.

The result of this herd adjustment in the north country (north of State Highway 64) will be minor because herds there are presently near goals. Fluctuations in the deer populations will continue to be caused by severe winters. The northern deer herd will have ups and downs with bad winters and harvest levels will fluctuate accordingly."

In the south, the result will be "a lower and relatively stable kill," according to Keith McCaffery, deer researcher at the Department of Natural Resources Rhinelander research facility.

The frequency of deer damage may decline in some areas but it won't be halted. The rate of car-deer collisions also will be reduced as the herd is pared, McCaffery says.

Hunter success also will be affected. As an increasing number of hunters go afield for a stabilized number of deer, the percentage of successful hunters will be reduced. "Harvest would stabilize but success rates will go down as hunter numbers go up," McCaffery says.

WE WILL MISS YOU, CLEM

One of the nice men of politics died recently. In room 2183 Rayburn House Office Building, Clement Zablocki suffered a heart attack which led to his death at the age of 71. Zablocki was working in his office in Washington while many of his colleagues were resting with their families during the holiday recess.

Yet in Zablocki, a widower with two grown children, his staff was his family and his constituents were his extended family. For 35 years in the House he served that "big family" called the South Side of Milwaukee. Quite simply, he was a genuine caring public servant, and he did his job well.

As Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Zablocki frequently hosted kings and queens and other dignitaries from all over the world. Yet, to his constituents he was known as "Clem." As the Milwaukee Sentinel's William Janz wrote: "For the politically glib, the allegedly astute, the pretty people of politics, Clem has always been at the other end of the viaduct. A hard worker, he looks like a blue-collar worker in a white-collar shirt. He is without flash or roar and he has never left any fancy steps in the spotlight."

Clem never openly displayed his anger, although on many occasions he had a right to when his colleagues attacked him. For instance, in January 1977, after 18 years as second Ranking Member on Foreign Affairs Committee, Zablocki was in line to succeed the former chairman. But the late Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (D-NY), challenged Zablocki's qualifications to chair the committee. Instead of attacking Rosenthal in return, Zablocki stated his record and let his colleagues decide. He won his chairmanship on a 182-72 vote in the Democratic Caucus.

Soon the active opposition to his chairmanship had evaporated, as his colleagues saw he was a practical and conscientious leader who took his job very seriously. In January 1979, when Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping made his historic visit to Washington, Zablocki impressed his guest and fellow legislators at a reception by greeting Deng with several sentences of well-spoken Chinese. He had spent hours practicing his speech in front of a mirror.

I know I speak for the people of the 4th District, my colleagues, foreign leaders and all who came in contact with Mr. Zablocki when I say: "Clem, we will miss you dearly, but we can take solace in the fact that we are all better people as a result of knowing you."

A DEADLY COCKTAIL

Around the holidays, the following scenario is all too familiar. An intoxicated guest leaves a party alone. On the way home, he is injured in an accident or worse, severely injures someone else. His friends lament, "If only I had driven him home or called a cab."

Unfortunately, many fatalities occur because people feel that they need an abundance of alcohol in their system to have a good time. Since socializing increases during the holidays, people more frequently mix drinking with driving.

You don't have to drink excessively before feeling the effects of alcohol. An average 150 pounder, who drinks either a 12-ounce beer, a 4-ounce glass of wine or a jigger of whiskey can feel "happy" within an hour after the first drink. After only one drink your ability to see in the dark is impaired. After several drinks your sensitivity to color vision is affected and you have serious trouble discerning the color of traffic lights or distinguishing a stop sign. In spite of these impairments, many people make the irresponsible decision to drive and become a real threat to other innocent drivers and pedestrians.

There are five stages of physiological changes that result from excessive drinking: happiness, excitability, confusion, stupor and unconsciousness. The rate at which you progress through these various stages depends on the amount of alcohol you drink, the rate at which you drink and the rate of your metabolism.

It's important that you pace yourself when you drink. The average person can tolerate about an ounce of 80 proof alcohol an hour. Secondly, eat while you drink. Food slows the absorption rate of alcohol into the bloodstream.

The responsible host or hostess should concentrate on preventing a guest from excessive drinking.

- Choose mixers carefully. Use water and fruit juices which have a slower absorption rate than carbonators.

- If you can afford a bartender, hire one. He or she is experienced and can mix according to their clinical perception of which stage various individuals have reached.

- Close the bar early enough to give guests a chance to "sober up." During this time, serve coffee which will give your guests the opportunity to metabolize the alcohol they have consumed before leaving.

- Serve enough food at the party and encourage your guests to nibble while they drink.

- Never pressure someone to have a drink and never give an obviously intoxicated person more to drink. In addition, a good host or hostess will stay sober in order to see that no more drinks too much or leaves the party so intoxicated that they endanger their lives and the lives of others.

If, in spite of your efforts, a guest becomes intoxicated, either drive him/her home, call a cab, or make arrangements for him/her to stay overnight.

Turkey Hunting Permits Mailed

Turkey hunting permits for the spring, 1984 season were mailed to successful applicants on December 15th and 16th, according to Ron Nicklaus, Mississippi River Wildlife Manager at La Crosse.

There were 6,284 applications for the 1950 permits available in five turkey management units for the season which has three periods, April 19-23, April 26-30 and May 3-7.

Indian Girls Drubbed At Two Rivers, 82-47

The Kewaskum girls arrived home late last Tuesday night from the long trip to Two Rivers, where they were ripped by the host Raiders, 82-47, in their last game before the holidays.

The Raiders used a full court press throughout the entire game, which was too much for the Indians, in their convincing victory. The Indians were also without the services of starting forward Holly Kempf, who was ill. Her scoring and rebounding were missed.

A slow first quarter hurt Kewaskum, in which Two Rivers ran up 23 points while the Indians came up with only seven. The next three quarters were better offensively for the losers but the Raiders continued to roll and outscore the Indians in every period.

For Kewaskum, Julie Koepke and soph Lisa Fusek were the only players to score in double figures. Both scored 10 points. Two Rivers had three players who scored over 10, namely Lisa Belongia with 13, Jill Vanderbloemen 12 and Holly Wiese, who was the game's top scorer with 26.

Wiese, the third leading scorer in the conference last season, really hurt the Indians. She had 11 of the Raiders' 35 baskets and her team shot over 50 percent. Two Rivers was able to use a lot of players and tired Kewaskum out.

Koepke again led Kewaskum in rebounds with 10, while Fusek was held to just two. Sophomore Brenda Kober, recovering from illness and an injury, also played well. She had four points and five rebounds.

The setback gave the Indian girls a 1-2 record in conference and 2-3 overall.

The Two Rivers JVs and freshmen also won for a sweep over the Indians. The JVs lost, 51-21, and the frosh 54-43.

The girls host Hartford in a 6:15 p.m. game Tuesday, Jan. 3, and return to Eastern Wisconsin play at New Holstein Thursday, Jan. 5.

Indians Resume Play at Hartford

The Kewaskum Indians will return to basketball action following the holiday recess Tuesday night, Jan. 3, with a non-conference game at Hartford against the Orioles of the Little Ten Conference. Hartford upset West Bend West (whom the Indians also beat earlier) last Tuesday, 88-64. It was the first conference loss for West.

Kewaskum will return to Eastern Wisconsin Conference play next Friday, Jan. 6, when they host a powerful New Holstein team, which is tied for first place.

Wisconsin Will Be Represented in Tournament of Roses Parade

For the first time in 20 years, Wisconsin will be represented in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California, when a float cosponsored by Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL), Appleton, rolls down Orange Grove Boulevard in one of the most photographed events in the world.

The 1984 parade theme is: A Salute to the Volunteer. AAL was asked to participate, in part, because the Association has built one of the largest volunteer networks in the country.

AAL's more than 1.3 million members are organized in local branches where they are given the support they need to conduct humanitarian, service and social projects for individuals and institutions in their local communities. Last year, AAL volunteers conducted 110,000 branch activities attended by more than 5 million people.

We're delighted to be participating in the Tournament of Roses Parade," said E. James Dreyer, vice president of corporate communications, "because we think it will give our volunteers the national exposure they deserve. But we're also interested in supporting the entire volunteer community, which will get a big boost from the parade."

In announcing the parade theme last spring at a White House reception for exemplary volunteers, President Reagan stated: "We are confident this Tournament of Roses salute will stimulate millions of additional Americans to respond by volunteering in their own communities."

More than 1 million spectators will line the parade route winding through Pasadena beginning at 9:30 a.m. CST, Monday, Jan. 2. The parade and the Rose Bowl football game usually are held on Jan. 1, but the date falls on a Sunday this season. The parade festivities are broadcast by the three major commercial television networks, so viewership is estimated at 150 million worldwide.

AAL's float partner is VOLUNTEER: The National Center for Citizen Involvement, Washington, D.C., the only national organization which exists for the sole purpose on encouraging and strengthening more effective volunteers to solve local problems. The group sponsors National Volunteer Week and the President's Volunteer Action Awards.

The AAL/VOLUNTEER float will be the third of 60 floats in the parade, immediately preceding a flower-draped car carrying Parade Marshal Danny Kaye. As many as 1 million petals may be needed to cover the 50-foot float, which will feature a revolving hexagon depicting the many faces of volunteerism.
