Board Reverses Beechwood Closing Decision Again

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

On a four to two vote, with the board member Kim Peterson absent, the Kewaskum School Board voted to approve keeping Beechwood Elementary open and operating as it did in the 1983-84 school year.

At Monday night's meeting, board member Neal Weare's motion to rescind the board's action of June 11th to close Beechwood passed when Tom Brigham reversed his stand and voted with members Ralph Horner, John Spoerl and Weare to keep the school open.

While Weare made the motion, it was Brigham who spent close to an hour justifying his reasons for changing his vote. He told the meeting, that contrary to an article in the West Bend News, he had not talked to other board members who eventually convinced him to change his mind, nor was he pressured by the years, I've developed thick enough skin to withstand pressure." He said he "had some concerns over some of the information that had come to him." Brigham stated, "some of the information was inaccurate and inadequate." He referred to a report of the student capacity percentages at the various elementary schools.

Brigham said it appeared Farmington, Kewaskum and Wayne used a different formula to figure those numbers and, had the same formula been used for Beechwood, their enrollment would be 80% of capacity, not 62% as reported.

Brigham went on to say he believed the district would have a $40,000 savings and all the children would have an equal education and not be crowded. Brigham stated, "perhaps that was false information or misinterpretation on my part, perhaps it was wrong information or not enough information. I am not placing the blame on anybody, I am just looking at the facts and perceiving them as I see them today."

He listed the alternatives discussed in reassigning the Beechwood students. Brigham indicated moving all the Beechwood students to Kewaskum would cost $40,000, and if we move them all to Farmington, we will be crowded and short 1.5 classrooms. Brigham thought the third alternative of splitting the Beechwood students between Farmington and Kewaskum until enrollment had dropped enough at Farmington to accept them, or sixth graders were sent to the

School Board Approves Supplier Contracts

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

While nearly a dozen items from various committees were on Monday's school board agenda, only four saw any real action by the members.

On a 6-0 vote, the board approved the bids of Strobel Oil to furnish gas and oil, and Engelhardt and Sons to supply milk to the district for the 1984-85 school year.

Board member Ralph Horner questioned Business Manager Cherna Gorder on why she had recommended Strobel rather than the company who had submitted the lowest bid. She said that because there was very little difference in the prices bid, it is a standard practice in Kewaskum and most other districts to award the bid to a local company, so that revenues end up being returned to the community. Gorder noted Engelhardt had been the only company to bid on the milk contract.

Horner's inquiries were based on his feelings that the district strictly adhere to a policy that all purchases for services and materials be done on a competitive bid basis.

In following that policy, Gorder informed the board she had taken out a $200,000 short term loan from Valley Bank after shopping around for the best interest rate. She told the board she had received three quotes with rates of 7.5%, 7.75% and 11%. While M & I

Bank had the lowest rate, there was only a difference of $27 between them and second low bidder Valley Bank. Gorder said she opted to go with Valley because it would have cost the district more than $27 in paperwork, time and travel to go with M & I.

Acting on other items from the Finance-Transportation-Buildings and Grounds Committee, the board voted to approve a two-year contract with Johnson Bus Company. On a 4-2 vote, the board approved installation of a concrete floor in the new pole building at a cost of $2,400. Horner and John Spoerl voted no.

In discussing the purchase of a new lawn mower and installation of walls at Farmington, no action was taken. Horner told the board no specific recommendation had been made so he felt they should be returned to committee rather than the board voting on them. He also questioned whether competitive bids had been sought on these items.

A proposal containing contracts for the administrative staff was presented for board approval. Again no action was taken when Horner questioned a portion of District Administrator John Long's contract. Long said he had no problem discussing his contract at the open meeting. Horner then asked Long if he would hold him liable for things he might say. Long

Young Man Killed in Crash

A 20-year-old Campbellsport man, Daniel Morgan, 333 Mill St., died early Saturday morning as the result of internal injuries after being involved in a one-car accident north of Kewaskum in the Town of Auburn.

Morgan was westbound on County Trunk Y, .4 of a mile east of Maple Drive, when his vehicle struck the end of a bridge. The accident occurred at 12:20 a.m. Morgan was alone in the car, according to the Fond du Lac County Sheriff's Department.

A 1982 graduate of Campbellsport High School, Morgan had lettered in golf for four years and was the team's MVP his senior season. He had been an employee of Serigraph Sales in West Bend.

Morgan was the third Campbellsport area young man killed in traffic accidents in the same area within the past month. Another young man and a youth lost their lives in motorcycle-car crashes in July.

Middle School, would have a traumatic effect on the students.

Brigham said another concern was "the lateness of where we are today." He noted, the teachers are going to class in a week-and-a-half not sure of who they would have in their classes.

Referring to the lawsuit, Brigham stated, "the basic premise of the lawsuit was this, does the Board of Education have the right to close a school? We do, and I don't think there was any doubt in my mind or anybody else's on this board that we did not have that right and this was affirmed by the court. We do have that right. I felt it essential that it go to court to have that decided because this issue is not settled, the concept of consolidation. I had doubts and questions, but I felt the lawsuit had to be settled once and for all."

Brigham said the logistics of Long's proposal were correct. "And the logistics of the proposal as I see it were simply this, because of enrollments and because of money. One is that we move all sixth graders into the Middle School where we would have to physically change the structure, we close Beechwood School and we move Beechwood into Farmington. Down the road you close Wayne and move them in Kewaskum. Logistically, it's a correct procedure. Logically, at this time, I cannot accept it. I cannot go along with what we did, what I did, on June 11th. I don't think we're ready to look at, or to frame the whole picture of what has been proposed."

Referring to another comment, Brigham said, "I certainly think the board will be able to function in the future. The whole issue here, and I want to make this perfectly clear, is not an issue of one side winning over another side. I don't think it's Clara Trapp versus Tom Brigham or the School Board. It could be anybody. I think it's an issue of money and numbers, an issue of budget and enrollment. The day is going to come, and it may be very, very soon, that a merger is going to have to take place and we're going to have to prepare ourselves for this merger and this move."

In concluding his comments Brigham said he looked back on the situation and perhaps he was premature.

Board President Jean Goeden then asked Business Manager Cherna Gorder what costs would be involved for Beechwood. Gorder said it would result in $40,000 to open the school, $8,000 for busing and $20,000 for additional teachers. Gorder indicated the budget would probably have to be increased at least $8,000 because the state aids involved would not be received until next year.

Gorder also informed the board that because of the electors' vote at the annual meeting to increase the 1984-85 budget by $76,000, the tax levy would go up from the initially proposed increase of 6.18% to 8.75%.

indicated there was a good possibility he might. On the basis of the two men's comments, Tom Brigham motioned the contracts be discussed further in a closed session following the meeting. However, because board member Neal Weare felt the issue had not been properly addressed in the motion, the closed session was cancelled and no action taken.

Discussion and action on policies regarding financial affairs presented by Horner were not acted upon because some members felt they should be studied by committees set up to look into such questions.

Horner also presented an item regarding district practices in hiring support staff. Long told the meeting he knew the question would come up since a district family had complained that their son was not hired for a certain job but instead Long's son was. The board also sent that item to committee for review.

Weare then made a motion to form a task force to study district-wide needs. While Brigham seconded the motion for purposes of discussion, he felt there was no need for the task force since a committee had already been formed for that purpose. The motion was vetoed five to one.

In other action, the board accepted the resignations of six teachers, Jane Vesper, Cathy Johnson, William Stangl, Kathleen Schnyder, Roy Peterson and Don Potter. Long told the board all the jobs had been filled except for two physical education positions.

Brigham read a letter of commendation from the American Heart Association recognizing the efforts of the Farmington, Wayne and Beechwood Schools students in raising $3,000 for the association.

Brigham also read a letter from Mark and Connie Schoofs commending Kewaskum teachers Mary Pearson and Mr. Uelmann.

Jon Etta represented the Kewaskum FFA at the National Hampshire Show July 17th. His registered Hampshire Hog placed 5th and his Crossbred Hog placed 8th. Hogs were exhibited from sixteen different states and Canada.

Of course, the Washington County Fair saw a lot of Kewaskum FFA'ers take home blue ribbons. Members that exhibited at the fair were as follows:

Sheep: Renee Kapp and Mike Arndt.

Swine: John Schmitt, John Nowak, Jon Etta, Tony Matenaer, Tim Lindberg, Brian Jung, Darryl Pufahl, Brian

Ruplinger, Pat Ruplinger.

Dairy: Jim Schulz, Bev Schulz, Andy Degnitz.

On August 1st, the FFA officers had their picnic. They set up committees and planned programs for the 1984-85 schedule.

On Wednesday, August 8th, several Kewaskum FFA members and their advisor, David Rizzardi, attended the Wisconsin State Fair. Jon Etta exhibited swine at the fair. His registered Yorkshire Gilt was awarded Grand Champion. His registered Hampshire Boar was awarded Reserve Champion.

On the average, there are five right-handers for every left-hander.

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Even if you had a program you wouldn't have been able to tell who the players were in MiJa's Country Inn's Second Annual Ladies Mudwrestling Tourney.

Over 800 spectators traveled to New Fane Sunday to watch 33 gals participate in an afternoon of knock-down, slide-around fun. Eight teams, one all the way from Green Bay, took part in the afternoon long event. Team sponsors included Rolling S Tavern, MiJa's, Lurch's, Kuhn's Cycle, Function Junction and Loch's Bar.

The overall contest winner was Kim Tessar of MiJa's team. Tori Schrauth of Rolling S and Kara Weinreich of MiJa's tied for divisional title honors.

The tournament ended with the mighty Claude Johann winning a match over a 97 pound female who had never lost a meet before. The battling opponent turned out to be a pig which really didn't even want to get into the ring with Claude. Johann won the opportunity to take part in the match which promised him a choice of $25 or the chance to take his mystery opponent home for the night if he won the match.

The crowd watched as one contestant tried to pin her opponent.

If mud packs are good for the skin, these gals should have really good complexions all over.

West Bend Red Cross Schedules First Aid Course, CPR Class

The West Bend Red Cross has scheduled a Multimedia First Aid Course and a Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation class.

Multimedia Standard First Aid is a coordinated instructional system consisting of motion picture films, instructor led practice sessions, and a programmed workbook. The course outline consists of how to do mouth to mouth resuscitation, how to handle choking and poison victims, how to control bleeding and how to bandage and splint, and transfer a victim. Multimedia First Aid meets the standards of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

The course is scheduled for two Wednesday Evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. on August 22nd and August 29th. Cost of the Multimedia Workbook is $3.25, cost of the Standard First Aid Book, $4.75 and cost of the bandages, $2.00. If you have any of the supplies you need not purchase them.

CPR - Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation is a combination of artificial respiration and artificial circulation performed on a victim whose heart and breathing has stopped. The first four minutes after a cardiac arrest is the most crucial as brain damage can occur anytime after that. The average citizen, trained in CPR can make the difference between life and death.

The CPR course is scheduled for 3 Thursday evenings, starting September 6th, 13th and completing on the 20th from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. This is a Modular course, you work at your own pace. The cost of the books is $4.25.

Coming to Japan Like Coming to Another Planet

The following news story was sent in by JOSN Jesse James Averill, USS Cochrane DDG-21, FPO San Francisco, CA 96662, who is serving with the US Navy in Japan. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken "Buck" Averill of Kewaskum. The article was mailed on Aug. 5.

Japan is a small island country, located just off the coast of China, and on the opposite side of the world as Kewaskum. Its customs and cultures are radically different than those of the Western world. As a famous author so splendidly put it, "Coming to Japan is not like coming to another country, it's like coming to another planet."

When entering Japan, the first thing one notices is the large amount of people. Area-wise, Japan is about the size of California. The trouble stems from the fact that 80 per cent of the land is too mountainous for mass population, 16 per cent is used for agriculture and three per cent of the land is buildings, streets, and other construction. That leaves one per cent of the land, or about the size of New Jersey, for 117.5 million people, which is roughly half the population of the United States. You can see where over-population becomes a problem. The houses are built very close together with little room left for a good game of lawn jarts.

Because of this close proximity, the Japanese have a special kind of trusting unity that can only come from such closeness. Crime is almost non-existent. Crime can't exist with such a large population or else chaos would abound. Also, because of their close quarters, the Japanese are extremely honest people. For example, you are walking down the street in Tokyo, a city of more than 3.5 million people, and you drop your wallet. If a Japanese person would find it, he would chase you down the street, follow you to your hotel room or use whatever means possible to track you down and return your wallet, completely intact. Let's face it, if that would happen in America, there's a good chance you would never see that wallet again. The Japanese probably never heard of the saying "finders keepers, losers weepers."

Houses in Japan, from the outside, look pretty much the same. They are very plain, with little frills to speak of. The Japanese feel it's what inside the house that counts the most. When entering a Japanese home, it's mandatory that you take off your shoes. If you don't, you've started out on the wrong "foot" already. It's what's inside that makes it a home and the Japanese despise having outside dirt tracked into their comfortable abodes. Many people even have it written in their leases; the shoes must come off at the doorway. If you're walking around outside without shoes, the Japanese will bring a tub of water and a bar of soap for you to clean your feet before entering.

Here again, the attitudes of the Japanese come forth as they display their great amount of pride in the work they do. Many of the products Americans use have the label "Made in Japan" on them. The quality of that particular item is usually very high because of the methods used to make it. Cameras, for instance, are produced in the assembly line fashion. Quality control standards are top-notch right on down the line. If a worker doesn't put together a quality camera, he has to pay for it. So if this worker handles 100 cameras a day and goofs up on one, that's 99 per cent good product turnout. But over the week-long period, that amounts to six cameras that this worker has to pay for. If he's lucky, his paycheck will only cover four of those cameras, so now he's in debt for two cameras. And his wife and kids will not eat those two cameras or anything else for that week. This is why Japan is at the top of the industry in electronics, automobiles and various other lines of production. The workers simply cannot afford to put out anything but the best quality items.

When it comes to education, Japanese children are taught long and hard. They attend classes from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night, six days a week. That amounts to sixty hours of schooling per week compared to thirty hours per week in Kewaskum. The major problem in Japan is that very few high school graduates get a chance to attend college. One has to be invited to attend advanced schools because there just aren't enough schools to go around. Only the extra achievers are allowed to get a college education. One thing is for sure, I'll bet most of the kids in Kewaskum are glad they don't have classes 10 hours a day, six days a week.

Because of its massive population, the main mode of transportation in Japan is the train. If everyone drove around in cars, it would resemble Sentry Foods parking lot the Saturday before a Sunday Christmas. The big problem is finding out where you want to go and what route to take. Because everything in the Japanese language is printed in Kanji, most people unfamiliar with Kanji don't have the foggiest idea of what they're looking at. Since being in Japan, I've found out that you can never be lost in America, only misplaced. There is always a sign or something telling you which way to go. Don't get me wrong, there are signs in Japan. The only thing wrong with them is they make absolutely no sense to you in any way, shape or form. It's very strange being in the middle of Tokyo late at night, with no idea of where you are or how to get where you're supposed to be. The Japanese people try to help out as much as possible, but the language barrier makes conversation truly difficult. Have you ever had anyone say to you, "KON-BAN-WA"? I thought it meant, "Give me all your money American tourist." It turns out that it means "Good Evening."

The language barriers are easily overcome though, if you try to smile, nod your head and speak a little bit of Japanese and English in the same sentence. It takes awhile, but once you get your point across, you really feel like you've accomplished something.

In Japan, you will see many of the traditional, old-fashioned ways intertwining with new, more up-to-date methods and ideas. The older people still wear kimonos and carry out their rituals as their ancestors have done for hundreds of years. The younger folks have adopted a western attitude and style of dress. Yet, the old and the new are blended together in such a subtle way that the drastic changes are noticed only under close scrutiny. Take the age-old custom of bowing, for instance. Occasionally you'll see Japanese men shake hands, but for the most part the tradition of bowing is quite prevalent. It is common to see several men in circle, bobbing up and down for a couple of minutes. What they are doing is trying to distinguish the ranking members of the group and he who bows the least is the highest ranking person. It's really very funny watching these grown men bowing up and down like they're trying to bob for apples from an imaginary basket. It's a tradition that goes back a long, long way.

But when it comes right down to it, the main thing that separates Kewaskum and Japan are the people, their traditions, lifestyles and surroundings. If you are comfortable in the place you're at, if the surroundings suit your likings and the people display warmth and friendliness then home can be where you are. As for me, home is still Kewaskum.

Johanns Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Thanksgiving and celebration highlighted the day of June 23, to honor Marvin and Agnes Johann, who renewed their commitment of 50 years of marriage at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Kewaskum.

Their maid of honor, Sally Greul of West Bend, graced the occasion with her presence, as she did in 1934, with her best man Squinty Greuel.

Father Elroy Pesch, O.F.M., a Capuchin priest from Mount Calvary, officiated at the Liturgy. Father Matthew Urban, now residing at the Cousin Center for Retired Priests in Milwaukee, was the concelebrant for the service. Pastor Urban once served as pastor of St. Michael's Parish, where Marvin and Agnes lived for 30 years.

Miss Mary McNamara's beautiful voice as soloist for the Liturgy, was accompanied by an excellent performance on the organ by Lori Schoofs. Richard, Claude and Bill Johann, sons of the couple, and Thomas Johann, grandson, were the ushers. Grandsons Michael Johann and David Schmidt served at the Liturgy. The eldest son, Ronald Johann, welcomed the uncles, aunts and friends to the Liturgy with an introduction of thanksgiving for the gift of parents.

Jennifer Johann, Diane Schmidt and Karen Johann were the lectors for the Liturgy of the Word. Son-in-law Dave Neckuty led the community in prayer with the Prayers of Intercession. Ronald Johann and Gerald Schmidt were the cupbearers for the celebration of the Eucharist.

The grandchildren carried the gifts, such as an apron, wrench, plunger, dishcloth and book, representing the various aspects of the daily lives of Marvin and Agnes, in procession for the Offering of the Gifts, while their daughter, Barbara, carried the Holy Bible, symbolic of their faith in God. The symbolic water and wine was presented by their eldest granddaughter and her husband, Debbie and Chuck Strassburg.

A hand-stitched banner, depicting a symbol of Jesus, the Chi-Rho, and the inscribed words: "Gift of Love," made by their daughter, Mary Neckuty, hung in the sanctuary of the church. The service for the liturgy was prepared by their daughter, Jane Johann.

Following the liturgy, a dinner was shared by the family, relatives and friends of Marvin and Agnes at the Amber Hotel in Campbellsport. Father Francis Eschweiler of St. Mary's Parish, Menomonee Falls, former pastor of St. Michael's Parish and friend of the family, was able to join the guests for dinner. Father Eschweiler, who baptized several of the Johann children, blessed the meal to be celebrated.

A reception followed at the Neckuty residence in Kewaskum, where their son, Richard, provided a tent for the garden party. The afternoon was enhanced with music provided by Uncle Melvin's concertina and Tiny Terlinden's musical window. Fresh smoked coho was prepared by Richard and Jeanne Johann for the feast. The presence of many relatives and friends made the day a memorable one.

Marvin and Agnes lived in Hartford, several years in Jackson, a year in Milwaukee, and 30 years in St. Michaels, where Marvin began Johann Plumbing and Heating Company, which his sons have continued after him. They have now retired to Sand Lake, Phelps, Wisconsin. Since their retirement of bringing up 11 children, the Lord has blessed them with travels to England, the European countries of Belgium, Germany, France, the Swiss Alps and the Eternal City of Rome. They also have been fortunate to visit various Canadian provinces, as well as the Eastern seaboard and the Western States.

Marvin still spends time catching fish to give away and making various furniture pieces for their children and 20 grandchildren: Debbie, Tom and Pam (Richard and Jeannie Johann); David, Andrea and Nick (Diane and Gerald Schmidt); Edward James (Barbara Becker); Sherri, Leann and Candy (Claude Johann); Michael, Lynn and Steve (Ron and Karen Johann); Tanya, Alanna, Nicole, Katie, Valerie, David and Christopher (David and Mary Neckuty).

Agnes is actively writing cards for the many occasions to remember, such as birthdays, for the family members and friends, in her caring, sensitive way, as well as often providing hospitable meals for their many guests.

The children of Marvin and Agnes have been blessed with the goodness of parents who love and care. Two of their children, the eldest sons, Roger and Robert, rest in the hands of God.

The children of Marvin and Agnes Johann wish their parents 50 more years of a great life together!

United Way Goal in County Set at $185,000

Groundwork is being laid for the start of this fall's United Way Campaign. Drive chairman John Meyer said this year's goal is $185,000, an increase of $20,000 over last year's goal. The increase was needed to cover normal increases in operational expenses, decreases in public funding, growth of services provided by the agencies, and special programming.

This year's drive will provide funding for 25 agencies, 20 of which are located in Washington County. These local agencies are receiving 97% of this year's budget—local dollars supporting local programs.

The purpose of the annual United Way fund drive is to consolidate fund raising activities for the funded agencies, saving time and area residents the time and energy needed to run 25 small drives.

Volunteers are being lined up in several divisions to supervise collections, provide presentations to area groups, and monitor the distribution of the funds. This year's fund drive will be kicked off September 17th. Further details about the drive kick-off will be announced later.

Your HEALTH TIP

from Tom Leitzke, R.P.H.

ASPIRIN vs BLOOD CLOT

Many physicians advise a small daily dose of aspirin to reduce the chance of stroke or heart attack. Aspirin helps because it slows blood clotting. Clots in coronary arteries cause some heart attacks - clots in brain arteries cause stroke. Researchers find that half an aspirin daily is as effective as bigger doses for slowing blood clotting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

August 9, 1984

Dear Editor,

Many home towns in your area are served by one of Wisconsin's most respected organizations — the Volunteer Fire Department. This August 18 has been declared a national day of recognition for the men and women who voluntarily protect life and property in these departments.

Of the 840 fire departments in Wisconsin, 762 are all-volunteer. Another 40 departments mix paid firefighters, persons on call and volunteers. About 1,800 of our state's communities depend on volunteer protection.

We in the State Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations are proud of the effort made by volunteers in helping with DILHR's fire prevention activities, as well as their firefighting and other duties.

Volunteers give of their spare time and frequently expose themselves to potential loss of life and limb whenever there is a fire or other related incident in their service area.

It is extremely important that volunteers be recognized for this contribution to society. They protect both lives and property. Fire is a dangerous, costly fact-of-life in our society. Last year, DILHR's Fire Prevention Section counted at least 29,175 fires involving structures, outdoor materials and vehicles in Wisconsin, slightly fewer than in 1982.

There were another 78,238 rescue, service, hazardous condition and false alarm calls involving both volunteer and paid fire departments.

Thanks in large measure to the efforts of our firefighters, the number of people who died in fires in Wisconsin last year was reduced to 88, a significant drop from the 136 deaths in 1982.

There are more than 19,000 volunteer firefighters working in Wisconsin, including your home town communities. The State of Wisconsin joins in the celebration of National Volunteer Firefighters Recognition Day on Aug. 18, and hopes all residents of your communities do likewise.

Sincerely,
Ed McClain

Members of the Kiwanis Club, village workers, firemen, truck drivers and other volunteers really pitched in over the weekend to make the new bathing beach on the west side of the river in the park area a sudden reality. Result: the beach is now ready for use by swimmers for the remainder of the season. After removing a gate from the dam and lowering the water level considerably, the work was begun Saturday afternoon when the muck was blown off of the river bottom with fire hoses and the debris and weeds removed with machines and by hand. On Sunday morning, using the village front end loader and grader and shoveling by hand the river bank was cut down and leveled off. In the afternoon between 500 and 600 yards of sand were hauled in and dumped into the river and on the bank. Seven or eight truck drivers volunteered their help and trucks in hauling the sand from the Arnold Bier pit. The sand was pushed into the river with village equipment and late in the afternoon, "Booby" Bohn moved in with his caterpillar from the sand pit where he had been loading trucks and leveled off the sandy beach. The gate was placed back into the dam and all that remained was for the water level to return to its normal height. Because of the dry weather and a few leaks in the dam, the water was slow in rising to its regular level. Money for the necessary items at the beach, including a life guard will be provided from the Kiwanis turkey shoot fund for the remainder of the year. Floats and a raft will be on hand and lights installed by this weekend. The beach adds considerably to the natural beauty of the park.

The Kiwanis Club of Kewaskum has announced that its 7th annual live turkey shoot will be held on Sunday, Sept. 20, at the Bar-N Due Ranch. In addition to the turkey shoot, many other events and activities will be scheduled so that there will be sporting activities and entertainment for all members of the family.

Lowering of the river level really provided a "fisheree" without the use of fish poles for the kids over the weekend. The water north of the old dam site was only a few inches deep and the carp and redhorse could barely keep their backs under water. Dozens of boys and girls, and some grownups, too, immediately got hep to the opportunity. They went after the fish with bows and arrows, spears, nets, garden spades and rakes, sticks and all other available devices to bag the fish. Others just chased the fish until they were so pooped out, they could be caught by hand. The poor fish didn't have much chance to escape with all those kids on their tails. We have to laugh yet every time we think of little Joey Fehlhaber, Little League pitcher, chasing a huge carp up the middle of the river with a garden spade. The carp always managed to stay about three feet ahead of Joey until finally the boy was so worn out he lunged at the fish with the spade and plunged into the water. He missed the carp but Terry Koch finished it off with his bow and arrow. There were a lot of wet kids and belly laughs for the spectators who lined the shore, but nearly 200 carp, redhorse and other rough fish were removed. Most of the fish were hauled to the village incinerator but those who wanted them could keep the whoppers.

A very deplorable accident happened at New Fane early last Sunday morning, when Walter Firks, 36, son of Henry Firks, the blacksmith at New Fane, was struck by a hit-and-run car near his home, and the young man succumbed to his injuries about 4:30 Sunday morning. Mr. Firks had gone to the assistance of a motorist who had run out of gasoline, and after finishing this task, he was talking to another man, standing beside an automobile which was headed north. He had one foot on the running board of the parked automobile. Three cars approached close together. Two passed, but the third car swung wide and caught Firks, throwing him against the automobile near which he was standing. The death car went on at a high speed, heading south. A man was arrested Monday night and was charged on Tuesday with injuring a person on the public highway and failing to stop and give assistance and his name and address.

Mom holds up a sturdy pair of brown cords: "Here, Tim, how about these?" "No Way! I'm not wearing those."

The August back-to-school shopping battle has begun. You tell your son he needs some basic pants to go with his tee shirts. He picks out more flashy tee shirts. Meanwhile you're worrying how you're going to afford the Nike tennis shoes, the Packer jacket and the backpack.

Reasoning about the practicality of certain clothes with your kids is a losing battle. And to cite a cliché, even if you win the battle you'll lose the war.

Kids who are old enough not to like certain clothes are old enough to have positive opinions about clothes. They'll wear the clothes they like over and over again, and the others will work their way to the back of the closet.

This is not to say that you should give your kids a free reign over their clothing. But you can compromise. For example, you can keep an eye on good values, durability and quality, and still give the kids more say about color and style.

Or try making a list of what you think your kids need. Then allot an appropriate amount of money for these items and turn them loose to do the shopping. Of course, you'll have to stress that this is it, they'll have to live with their choices.

In reality this is not as easy as it sounds.

Most teens, for example, really believe they need designer jeans and preppy togs, and they'll go to great lengths to convince mom and dad.

These not-so-subtle pressures can place an undo amount of guilt on parents who won't give in to what they perceive as fashion excesses. Or, if the parents do give in to these wants they may feel guilty for allowing the child to spend too much on a garment the parent views as too flashy, trivial and lacking in lasting value.

While parents can't do much about peer pressure at school, they can discuss the issue with their kids. Let them know your concern: that you have a limited amount of money, and it must go to clothes that last.

Perhaps a tour of the clothes closet is in order. Ask your son or daughter to tell you what it is about those worn garments that he or she likes. Do the same with those that aren't worn often.

You might begin to see a pattern in your child's preferences. For example, if your youngster says things like, "these are too tight" or "the elastic makes a red mark in my arm," she may be trying to say that comfort is important.

Usually, the younger child is more concerned about comfort than the teenager. Often the teenager will put up with a certain amount of discomfort in the interest of fashion.

Also look for color groupings. If your son seems to have a great deal of brown, perhaps a new gold sweater would be all that's needed for several new outfits.

The teenage daughter may have some basic color combinations that could be expanded and upgraded to fit today's fashions. A trendy new blouse, a pair of penny loafers and a few accessories might just pull a basic wardrobe together to fit the style of the day.

Next make a list of clothing priorities. The simplest way is for both the youth and the parent to make a separate list of the youth's clothing needs, listing the reasons why each clothing item is needed.

Then compare and discuss the two lists. Unless the son or daughter is old enough to have some understanding of clothing costs, your list should estimate costs, since this may be one of your major concerns. From this discussion should come a clearer understanding of the priorities of you and your child, and hopefully, a compromise. Finally, merge the two lists by rank-ordering clothing priorities.

If your daughter insists on designer jeans, find out why. Is it the fit or just the label? Suggest that an alternative to paying $35 for Jordache jeans might be to purchase some good fitting no-names and stitch on a label from a pair of old jeans.

For the 12-year-old who wants an "Izod" polo shirt with the alligator patch, cheaper alternative might be to buy a plain cotton knit shirt and a sew-on alligator patch. Or for the "Star Wars" enthusiast, purchase basic tee shirts and iron-on transfers of "R2-D2" and Luke Skywalker.

Now with list in hand, you and the kids - preferably one of them at a time - are set to go shopping. (That is, unless you are trusting enough to give them the cash to do their own). Obviously, the youth's age will determine how much supervision he or she will need.

If they're still too young to have strong clothing preferences, you may not want to bring them shopping. They might rather be playing at home or with friends rather than hanging on clothes racks and trying to divert mom or dad to the toy section.

Before setting out, make sure you're armed with the child's measurements - height, weight, chest, waist and inseam. Even if the child elects to help pick out his or her own clothes, you both may get restless if the child has to try everything on. You may also want to bring a tape measure, since many stores give sizes in terms of "slim" or "petite."

For the fast growing youngsters, you can still buy certain clothes on the large side that will fit well for a couple years. For example, a crew neck sweater one size larger can be layered over shirts and turtle-necks. Another alternative for the child who doesn't care much about clothes is to purchase a few basics and launder more often.

For the fashion conscious teenager, consider large blouses, which can be sashed and belted to avoid the "sack" look until they fit better next year.

Larson Appointed To New Task Force

Richard A. Larson, chairman and president, West Bend Savings, has been appointed to a newly-organized Task Force on Broader Earnings Opportunities for Savings Institutions.

The Task Force was created by the United States League of Savings Institutions to seek new profit opportunities and greater earnings flexibility for the nation's 3,500 savings institutions.

League chairman Paul W. Prior said the 28-member Task Force would develop ways to assist savings institution managements in their evaluation of alternative service and profit strategies.

Some of the issues the Task Force will explore include new corporate opportunities, expanded authority for savings institution service corporations, and legislative and regulatory changes.

"Although savings institutions will retain their primary role as home mortgage lenders, we must not close the door to any ideas that may contribute to increased profitability," the League chairman stated.

Savings business leaders such as Larson "have the experience and insight to make a major contribution to the business' future," Prior said.

IN MEMORY
 In loving memory of my husband, our father and grandfather, Robert Gross, who passed away two years ago, August 18, 1982:
 More and more each day we miss him,
 Friends may think the wound is healed;
 But little do they know the sorrow
 Lies within our hearts concealed.
 Sadly missed by the family

IN MEMORY
 In remembrance of Adeline Volm: August 18, 1975.
 Although it has been 9 years,
 We try to smile, but there are tears.
 Memories are all we have of you,
 But remember, we miss you, too.

Softball Tourney Provides Donation To Cancer Society

The American Cancer Society recently received a generous donation from an over 30 softball tournament held at Ron Rohlinger Field in Campbell sport.

Dave Feucht and Chuck Rondorf organized the tournament to raise money for the Cancer Society in memory of Dave's wife, Nancy "Joedy" Feucht. Nancy, a mother of four children, died of cancer on January 30, 1984, at the age of 37.

"On behalf of the American Cancer Society, I would like to thank the friends and relatives of the Feucht family, the businesses, organizations, and teams that helped support this event," said Mike Fenske, area executive director. "It takes the cooperation and dedication of many people to make an event like this a successful one. This is truly a special gift," Fenske added.

The money raised will help support the research and patient service programs of the American Cancer Society. The A.C.S. is one of the largest sources of cancer research McCollow had trouble in the sand trap, and the match ended on the 17th hole.

McCollow was also a finalist in the June match play-handicap tournament for the Marge Allen trophy, losing in a close game to Judi Mottl.

The August Championship tournament has now begun, with flights in Class A, B and C posted in the women's locker room at the club.
