Mobile Home Park Residents Seeking Hook-Up to Village Sewer System

Three Phase Plan for New Sidewalks

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Administrator Dan Schmidt advised the Village Board Monday night, that the village's new sidewalk extension program has been broken down into three phases of construction for completion over the next two years.

After meetings between Schmidt, Public Works Superintendent Augie Bilgo and the village's consulting engineers, a plan has been developed which may see all new sidewalk construction completed by 1988.

Street by street, Schmidt reviewed the project with the trustees, advising them of the work to be done as well as addressing individual areas which will present specific and/or major problems out of the ordinary in completing the capital improvements program.

Schmidt informed the board that Phase One would consist of all the sidewalk work west of highway 45, and north of the creek, Phase Two would be Bel-Ric subdivision, all of the old parts of the village and east of the river, Phase Three would be comprised of all the major problem areas throughout the village.

Plans/are for phases one and two to be completed this year with target completion dates of August 8th, and September 8th. Phase three would be held off until 1988.

Schmidt said it was anticipated the first two phases would take approximately 90 days each to complete. There are not as many problems in phase one as two, so the time element should balance out, noted Schmidt.

Phase three, will take both time and work, Schmidt indicated. These are areas such as Milan Drive and Stark Street where there is considerable work to be done such as the removal of trees, some because they have been planted on right-of-way land, or moving of utility poles and hydrants. In other areas, grading or filling may be needed such as along portions of Werner Drive.

Other trouble spots include Prospect Drive near its Highway 45 intersection and Riverview Drive in the Schaefer Trucking - Riverview Inn area where space is the problem.

Schmidt said all the areas in phase three will be studied further to determine how each individual situation will have to be handled. He also told the board, the village is not addressing any areas which do not have curb and gutter. He referred to sections like the Knights Avenue area where there are still vacant lots.

Schmidt and Bilgo are scheduled to meet with the engineers again next week. Schmidt told the board the village is hoping to advertise for bids in March, with awarding of bids April 20th, and construction to begin shortly thereafter.

Public hearings on the project will be held early in April.

In other business, Schmidt advised the board that the village has been approached by the lawyer of the new Kewaskum Mobile Home Park Association with a request to allow the park to hook up to the village's sewer system.

Schmidt said the attorney asked if the village would consider going with a contractual agreement rather than a sanitary sewer district. "Both Attorney Kiefer and I recommend going with a sanitary sewer district," said Schmidt. Past experience has taught us that a contractual agreement could end up costing the village money in the event the other party does not live up to their side of the agreement. If the park would fail to pay for its service, the village would have to go to court and probably would not get all the money due it, plus there would be the expense of court and legal costs, he noted.

With a sanitary sewer district, said Schmidt, any unpaid bills would be handed over to the Town of Kewaskum who would put them on the tax bill. Then if the park defaulted the county could purchase for the delinquent taxes.

The board asked Schmidt what costs the village would be faced with in this situation. He indicated none. It will be up to the association or whoever the owner is, to hire engineers and lawyers to draw up the necessary plans and handle all the aspects of creating the sanitary sewer district. These plans would then be presented to the village's engineers for review and approval. The costs of the village engineers' time will also have to be paid for by the group or individual who presents the plan. We are not obligated to provide any assistance, noted Schmidt. No way do the taxpayers of Kewaskum have to pay for any of this.

Any plans for a sanitary sewer district must meet all the specifications in the Village of Kewaskum's ordinances. That district would also be responsible for all lines necessary to hook up to the village's system.

Schmidt was asked if the park had asked about hook-up to the village water line. He said he had not received as such request so far.

In committee reports, Trustee Richard Schmidt informed the board that 487 new library cards have been issued so far this year. He also advised the trustees that the village had received its first payment of $2,000 from the Countywide Library System. "From now on, the payment will be according to usage," he said.

Schmidt also asked for and received board approval to advertise for a student aide to work a few hours each week

Work Completed on KES Wheelchair Lift

Construction work was recently completed on the installation of a wheelchair lift at Kewaskum Elementary School. Richard Zarling, KES Principal, is shown in front of the lift.

The lift will now enable students and visitors who are confined to a wheelchair and cannot travel the stairways, to reach the main and lower levels of the school including the gym area.

The lift is in compliance with a state mandate which requires public buildings to be accessible to handicapped persons.

Historical Society Elects Officers

On Tuesday, Jan. 20, the Kewaskum Historical Society held three annual elections. Jake Schmidt was elected as President. Three incumbents were re-elected, Dolores Kleinke, Vice-President, Minerva Martin, Secretary and Sylvester Schmidt, Treasurer.

The Society would like to thank Dan Schmidt, who has been President of the society since its' beginning. He has taken the society from just an idea; to what we are today. We have an award winning museum and an authentic log house museum. Our Early Farm Days, the second weekend in September brings people from many miles away.

Dan's dedication to the society and preserving the past, is greatly appreciated.

Our next meeting will be on Tuesday, Feb. 17, at 8:00 p.m., in the Kewaskum Municipal Library. The public is invited.

Completes Three Months of Study Sidewalks At Cedar Lake Home Campus

Yasu Maruyamano recently completed 3 months of extensive study on the Cedar Lake Home Campus and has returned to his native Japan. His role was that of student and seeker of knowledge and new methods while at the Cedar Lake Home Tri-Campus.

Yasu holds an administrative position at the Japan Senior Citizens Welfare Organization, a non-profit agency providing services in retirement living. The organization presently operates six retirement communities.

Their organization's philosophy is expressed in the phrase "YuYu-No-Sato." YuYu meaning "living contentedly and independently" and Sato meaning "well integrated, small community."

Yasu was selected to represent the Japan Senior Citizens Welfare Organization because of his ability to comprehend complex ideas and objectively evaluate new suggestions. The Cedar Lake Home Campus was selected as a training site by the Japanese organization for its creative care programming, its leadership in health care, for its total team concept, and spiritual and continuing maturing philosophies. A year ago, a delegation from Japan traveled to the United States on a fact finding tour. Last summer, a representative from the Japan Senior Citizens Welfare Organization came to West Bend to lay the foundation for Yasu's three month study.

Yasu was particularly interested in learning more about the philosophy of the total team and the frame work of beliefs that govern the staff of the Tri-Campuses. He became involved in the Activity Therapies programs, learning how a resident is encouraged and included in a variety of recreational, educational, spiritual and social learning experiences. Yasu plans to take his findings to Japan and apply them within the "YuYu-No-Sato" system of rehabilitation and wellness.

When asking Yasu about his favorite experiences here in the States, he immediately mentioned eating beef, finding people who freely expressed love and kindness, and catching the spirit of learning and growing! He enjoys American music, with Simon and Garfunkel, Bob Dylan and Neil Sedaka being among his favorites.

"We hope Yasu will take a positive image of our Western culture home with him, as well as a host of new ideas and directives for ministering to the elderly of Japan," shares Sheryl Aicher, Coordinator of Education at the Cedar Lake Home Campus.

assisting the librarians in various duties. Schmidt noted there was still quite a lot of work to be done related to the new system and expansion of the library itself.

Administrator Schmidt reviewed a report on building permits for 1986. The total of 79 was up 16 over 1985. Of the residential permits, three were new homes compared to 0 in 1985, eleven garages in 1986, six in 1985, 43 additions in 1986, compared to 41 in 1985. Mercantile included one new filling station, equal to 1985, eleven additions compared to six in 1985, and one razing, with 0 in 1985. Manufacturing alterations remained at two in 1985 and 1986. Non-taxable properties, Schools and Churches three in 1986 and 0 in 1985. Public buildings dropped from three in 1985 to one in 1986.

Schmidt informed the board he had been contacted by the City of West Bend asking if a board member would be willing to serve on its Incineration Project Committee. The city of West Bend is looking into building its own facility now that the county has dropped its plan.

Trustees Mary Krueger and Paul Blumer volunteered to serve, pending the outcome of the village board election. Krueger told the board she felt the project was very important for the whole area and the village should show its support by having someone from Kewaskum on the committee. Public Works Superintendent Augie Bilgo agreed with Krueger, "It's very important, if we can get it in this area within 7-10 miles of the village, it would really benefit us too."

In other business Krueger informed the board that Representative John Merkt is trying to introduce a bill which would require residents to register prior to an election if they wish to vote. The board instructed Schmidt to draft a resolution voicing its opposition to the proposal. The board felt the bill was directed at rural communities rather than larger municipalities. With the townships in Washington County being computerized, the board felt such a bill would be unnecessary.

As chairman of the Administrative Committee Krueger advised the board that the village's insurance premiums have gone up $7,090, or 18%, even with its taking larger deductibles this year.

The board then adjourned to closed session.

Memories...

The above picture shows the dance hall, the bandstand and a concession stand at the old North Side Park. There was also a dining hall. The park was one of the most popular spots in the area for large groups to hold their outings.

Many fraternal orders from Milwaukee arrived by train to spend the day at the park. The train pulled into a special siding that was located near the area where Regal Ware, Inc. now has their large plant.

The park was owned and operated by the family of the late Joe Eberle. Note the two young lads standing at the concession stand dressed in their finest suit of clothes and each wearing a hat.

Rep. York Here to Promote National Meat Week

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Representative Dwight York, 59th Assembly District, Lomira, was in town last week to help promote National Meat Week, which runs from February 1st, through the 7th.

York was a guest at Kewaskum Frozen Foods where he was on hand to talk with customers reminding consumers that meat makes an important contribution to the economy of the state as well as the country's nutritional health and diet.

The supply and variety of meat continues to increase and consumers can choose from beef, pork, lamb, and a host of processed meats.

Researchers continue their studies into ways to meet the demands of today's meat buyers who are looking for leaner, more cholesterol free meats to meet more health conscious eating trends.

Despite continually changing eating preferences and lifestyles, meat still remains the highlight of the American meal.

Kewaskum Frozen Foods, which is a member of the Wisconsin Association of Meat Processors has, over the years, maintained a reputation for quality products by winning countless awards both on the state and national levels. They would like to remind shoppers that meat continues to be one of the best values on their grocery list.

York Appointed To Committees

Representative Dwight York (R-Lomira) has been appointed to the Assembly Committees on Education, as ranking member; Housing and Securities; and Health.

York, who represents the 59th Assembly District, is serving his second term in the State Assembly this session. "With a new Republican Governor in office, this session of the Legislature is going to be very important for the citizens of our State, as we will be focusing on the control of state spending and a reduction in taxes," York stated. "With Wisconsin's economy at a very critical point, we must focus our attention in boosting our business climate, creating jobs, and helping out the farm economy," York stated. "We can only do this by getting our State's finances back in order," noted York.

"With so many issues facing the citizens of Wisconsin during the next two years, I would like any constituents to feel free to contact me in regard to any concerns or questions they may have on issues affecting them," York stated. You can reach Representative York by writing to: State Capitol, Room 334 North, P.O. Box 8953, Madison, WI 53708; or by phoning (608) 267-2367. You can also reach him through the toll-free Legislative Hotline number 1-800-362-9696.

Scouts Spend Cold Weekend at Camp

Lisa Delaney, weekend coordinator at Camp Silverbrook, answers a question about snow shoeing for assistant scoutmaster Dennis Giese.

Scouts of Troop 744 spent the coldest weekend of this season at Camp Silverbrook in West Bend. Below zero temperatures limited the activities; however, the scouts were able to do some ice fishing, sledding, and cross-country skiing.

Lisa Delaney, the weekend coordinator at Camp Silverbrook, spent some time away from the Girl Scouts showing the Boy Scouts different types of snow shoes and explained how to use them. Later the Boy Scouts were able to try their skills at snow shoeing.

Saturday evening the scouts went bowling at Lighthouse Lanes.

Troop 744 will be selling candybars throughout the

Local Wings Over Wisconsin Chapter Sponsor Bird Seed Sale

The Kettle Moraine Chapter of Wings Over Wisconsin will be having their next Wild Bird Seed Sale on Sat., Feb. 7. 25 lb. bags will be on sale for $2.00 each. There will be a two-bag limit per person, on a first come, first serve basis. The sale will start at 9:00 and go until 12:00 noon, or until the seed is gone. Location is the Amerhan Hall parking lot in Kewaskum. Our last months distribution went over quite well. We started our sale at 9 o'clock and in 45 minutes, 200 bags were gone. We doubled our order for this month.

We would like to apologize to the people who came to get bird seed and found out we were sold out. Our funds only allow us to sell so much each month. Wings sells the seed for about one-half of what they paid for it.

Hazlewood, Sr., 1093 Fairfield Court, West Bend.

Seventy-four students from 19 communities have been named to the fall semester 1986 Dean's List at the University of Wisconsin Center — Washington County.

In announcing the list, UWWC Dean Robert Thompson noted that about one-in-ten of the 777 students enrolled last fall earned honor-level grades.

Fifty-six full-time and 18 part-time students were honored for earning grade point averages of 3.5 (B+) or better. Full-time students are enrolled for 12 or more credits. To be eligible for the Dean's List, part-time students must be enrolled for a minimum of 3 credits and have earned at least 15 credits with a cumulative grade point average (GPA) of 3.5.

Four full-time and 14 part-time students received "highest honors" for straight A (4.0) averages. Twenty-one full-time students and one part-timer merited "high honors" for grade points ranging from 3.75 to 3.99. Thirty-one full-time and three part-time students qualified for "honors" with 3.5 to 3.74 GPAs.

The fall Dean's List includes graduates of 26 high schools.

Dean's List members, grouped by communities and honors, are as follows. The name of one student receiving high honors was omitted at the student's request.

Allenton: Honors — Kenneth Gresser, 6193 Fireside Road.

Campbellsport: High Honors — Leah Kuphal, 9080 Highway W; Kathryn Thomas Uelmen 265 Ladwig.

Kewaskum: Highest Honors — Victor Sese, 808 Pleasantwood Dr. High Honors — Ricky Steiner, 8677 Kettleview Drive. Honors — Susan Maki, 4139 Ridge Road; John Gundrum, 1930 Stony Creek Drive; DuWayne Verch, 8275 Sandy Ridge Road.

WAVERLY (IOWA) — Some 186 Wartburg College students have been named to the Dean's List for the Fall Term, according to Dr. Edwin H. Welch, provost of the college.

In order to be named to the Dean's List, a student must earn a grade point average of 3.5 or better (on a 4.0 basis, i.e., A=4, B=3, C=2, etc.), elect to take no pass/D/no credit options and earn credit in at least four courses.

The Dean's List includes 36 freshmen, 33 sophomores, 60 juniors, 56 seniors and one special student.

Included on the Dean's List was Jandelyn Hazlewood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John

Record Enrollment at UWWC This Spring

A record 731 students are enrolled this spring at the University of Wisconsin Center — Washington County.

The total, compiled on Jan. 30 at the end of the first week of the spring semester, surpasses the previous record enrollment of 711 set in 1985. Last year 689 students registered for the spring semester.

Along with a higher student headcount, spring students are carrying more courses than ever before — a total of 8,340 credits compared to 7,500 in the spring of 1985.

According to Mike Murphy, director of student services at UWWC, nearly a third (47) of 155 spring class sections had filled up by the end of the first week of classes.

Another measure of the heavier course load on campus this spring, Murphy said, is the full-time equivalent (FTE) count of students. FTE is determined by dividing the total number credits being carried by the student body by 15 credits, the equivalent of a full-time course load.

The 1987 spring FTE is 556, up 56 (11%) from 1985 when the last record enrollment was set.

tell them, you've just left a democratic society and joined the orchestra."

Other board officers are Susan Goebel, 4185 German Village Road, West Bend, vice president; John Regenfuss, 4225 Hawthorne Drive, Saukville, treasurer; Arthur Hoberg, 818 East Badger Lane, West Bend, secretary; and Dolores Bruni, 733 Sherman Way, West Bend, president-elect.

Rounding out the board are Jack Anderson, 228 North 6th Ave., West Bend; Jerry Beerends, 7113 Mt. Pleasant Drive, West Bend; Mary Goeks, W60 N329 Hilbert Ave., Cedarburg; and Leo Schlaefel, 1350 Bobolink Lane, West Bend.

Three of the nine directors are orchestra members, as provided by the new bylaws: Christie, Bruni and Beerends.

The board's second meeting was set for 7:30 p.m., Jan. 17, at UWWC. Spring orchestra rehearsals begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursdays, at UWWC, starting Jan. 29.

Moraine Symphony Orchestra Organizes Corporation; Elects Board of Directors

After 18 years of existence, the Moraine Symphony Orchestra has voted to shift to a more professional status by organizing as a not-for-profit corporation and electing a board of directors.

In explaining the reason for the shift, conductor Albert Asch of West Bend said the group has grown beyond its original purpose of providing "a place for orchestra musicians in the area to meet once a week and make music together."

Since then, he said, the group has grown "both in numbers and competency," and is performing more concerts and more difficult arrangements. "Clearly, it is time for a reassessment of our aims," he said.

"...While we shouldn't ignore the recreational aspects of Thursday nights, it is becoming evident we can improve as a performing unit with productive rehearsals."

UW Center — Washington Orchestra provides the 46-member orchestra with a conductor and rehearsal and concert space. Asch, an associate professor of music at UWWC, has served as conductor since founding the group.

At the Jan. 15 organizational meeting of the board, Asch told the new directors that a prime objective will be "to establish a yearly budget and meet it." Funds are needed, he said, to build the orchestra's library, pay guest artists, engage a paid manager, and help make the orchestra eligible for matching grants for special projects.

In addition, he said to the new directors, "You must be prepared, in the future, to hire and pay a conductor. When the time comes that I am no longer at UWWC, and if my replacement is not an orchestra conductor, you will have to do something."

Elected president of the board was Joyce Christie of 1528 Green Valley Road, Grafton, a cellist with the orchestra for 17 years and president of the symphony for three years.

After her election, Christie said the board should help provide "a bigger outlook" for the orchestra and help members avoid "getting involved in all the little details" of running things. "We like to play our instruments," she said.

Asch had a joking comment to underline this new shared authority for the orchestra's direction. "For several years I was the dictator," he laughed. When new people joined, I'd

PTO Honors Kewaskum Teachers on National Teacher Appreciation Day

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

In an effort to give visible recognition to the work and dedication of teachers on National Teachers' Appreciation Day, the Kewaskum PTO acknowledged their contributions to education by presenting each teacher at Kewaskum Elementary School with a flower.

Before the presentations were made, Jan Martinson, on behalf of the PTO read the following message over the school's public address system. "The future of America depends upon the education of our youth, and the quality of education depends upon our teachers. Therefore, Congress has passed a resolution designating today, January 28th, as National Teacher Appreciation Day. So on behalf of our children, the Kewaskum Elementary School PTO would like to say thank you with this small token of appreciation. It seems the most appropriate day to remember the statement of Christa McAuliffe which we all believe the KES teachers fulfill, 'I touch the future, I teach'."

Later in the morning members of the PTO hosted a short social in the teacher's lounge where they served punch and sweet rolls.

Mrs. Martinson and Mrs. Barbara Breitag passed out the flowers and Mrs. Carole Connor and Mrs. Cheryl Ammel were in charge of the social and decorations which were put up throughout the school.

This sign placed on the Kewaskum Elementary School teacher's lounge door was one of many placed throughout the school by members of the PTO.

MPTI's Child Care Programs Meet Important Need in Today's Society

The number of American families in which both parents are employed outside the home is growing. As this trend continues, a dramatic change is occurring in the field of child care.

Many families are finding that a child care center no longer meets their needs. Parents with business and professional careers don't always have routine work schedules. They need a more flexible child care situation than is offered by most day-care centers. Many parents want more personal and consistent care for their children than that found in larger child care centers.

To meet these particular child care needs, more parents are looking for professionally-trained "nannies" to provide child care on a live-in basis. The problem is one of supply and demand.

"Already, positions for in-home child care providers exceed the supply by 200 to one," says Dr. Jean Fleming, recently retired Home Economics chairperson at Moraine Park Technical Institute.

This statistic emphasizes the need for trained child care providers and prompted Fleming to develop MPTI's new tiered cluster of child care programs. One of the programs in the cluster is the one-semester Family Day Care Program designed for people who wish to be licensed to provide day care in their own homes.

Another one-year program, Infant and Child Specialist, prepares people to work on a daily basis in the child's home. The Child Care Associate - Nanny Program is a comprehensive two-year "nanny" program intended to meet the growing demand for live-in child care.

Not only is this sequenced cluster of child care training programs unique within Wisconsin, but MPTI is also one of only a handful of colleges or institutes in America to offer a two-year nanny program.

A key component of these programs is "Tiny Tech," a new child care facility at MPTI. Completed last fall, the MPTI child care center provides quality care for children and serves as a lab for students in the child care programs.

Instructor Barb Otis is delighted that Tiny Tech is located on campus: "Instructors work closely with Tiny Tech. It makes our teaching more effective, and gives us some continuity."

There are 32 full-time and six part-time students enrolled currently in the child care programs. Ten are enrolled in the two-year Child Care Associate - Nanny Program.

One of these "nanny" students is Mary Schmidt of Eden. She's learning about child development, CPR, driving safety, nutrition and planning activities for children of various ages. "I've also learned how to say 'Good job,' 50 different ways," says Schmidt.

When she graduates, Schmidt can look forward to an occupation for which benefits and compensation can include room and board, use of a car, insurance, paid vacation, opportunities to travel with the family she lives with and a salary anywhere from $800 to $1500 a month.

Already, MPTI's child care programs are being praised around the nation. In August, Fleming outlined the MPTI program at the International Nanny Conference in California. Since then, she has gotten letters from educators as far away as California and New York asking for more information.

When Tiny Tech opened its doors last fall, many came to mark the occasion, including Donna Dixon, home economics consultant for the Wisconsin Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education. At that time Dixon said, "You as a community can be proud of this facility and your child care programs. You're in the forefront in the nation where child care is concerned. The United States is the only first world country that doesn't provide child care from birth. You're on the cutting edge."

MPTI District Director John Shanahan agreed: "Quality child care is important not just to individual families but to society as well."

Persons interested in finding out more about Moraine Park's child care programs should contact counselor Don Smeaton at (414) 922-8611.

IRS Extends Phone Assistance Hours

The Internal Revenue Service has extended its hours of telephone help on taxes because of the high demand according to Fred Brehmer, Taxpayer Service Division Chief in Milwaukee.

The tax help lines will be available from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The service will continue through the tax deadline on April 15, Brehmer said.

The increased demand for IRS help is the result of the new tax law, the new W-4 withholding certificate, and the normal workload associated with the tax filing period. On Tuesday, January 20, the office answered 4,919 calls while another 3,000 callers received busy signals. Brehmer hopes the added hours will allow the agency to answer all taxpayer questions on a timely basis.

An alternative to personal help is the IRS automated information system. By calling 1-800-554-4477, taxpayers can listen to any one of about 150 recorded tax messages. This service is available to callers with push-button (tone signalling) phones 24 hours per day, seven days per week. Callers with other types of phones may use the system any Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

FISH WISCONSIN

By Jim Addis, Director
DNR Bureau of Fish Management

I've decided to liven up your winter by whetting your appetite for fishing in Wisconsin this summer. Some of you are going to have elevated blood pressure and be hyperventilating about the observation I am about to relay to you.

Well, every year we hear reports of "world record" muskies being caught in DNR nets. These are usually just rumors, but not this time.

Last spring, a DNR fisheries work crew was collecting fish on Lake Wissota in Chippewa County so the fish could be analyzed for mercury contamination. While going about its task, the crew stunned a b-i-i-g musky with its electro-shocking equipment. The musky rolled to the surface and laid there for 15 to 20 seconds. The astounded crew estimated the fish weighed between 70 and 80 pounds.

Oh sure, you say. But Mel Kohls, the DNR fisheries technician assigned to fish manager Joe Kurz at Chippewa Falls, and John Sours, a seasonal employee, that seen their share of big fish before this. Just earlier that week they had netted a 53-inch fish on the Cornell Flowage.

Both men reported they were awe-struck by the size of the musky they shocked. It proved too big to safely land in the nets they had on board, so rather than risk injuring it, the men just watched the musky recover the move away.

Since Mel and John were unable to land the musky, we will never know its precise size. I usually shy away from reporting this sort of near miss because of the doubt that must linger. Also, it's not my goal to send hordes of hungry trophy hunters to Lake Wissota.

It's always reassuring to know, though, that Wisconsin still has a lot of water that can produce trophy fish, even though world and state record fish are unusual. They represent a combination of growth potential contributed by their genes, wily behavior derived from heredity and experience, productive waters offering the right food and shelter, and a large dose of luck.

Record fish also usually come from big, deep waters that are hard to fish. Flowages, especially, seem to produce more than their share of big fish, partly because they're so fertile and partly because they contain so much underwater structure that changes over time.

There is no way to know just how many record-size musky, walleye and bass we may have out in our lakes and streams. But I'm convinced that they are still there to be taken by those anglers who take the time to search for them.

Without doubt, they're hard to catch. You don't live to be a record-size musky by striking every lure or bait that slides past your nose.

That's why most trophy hunters develop special methods to hunt for trophy fish. They generally use bigger lures and baits, and often fish at times when the rest of us find the weather too harsh. Since their methods are selective, trophy hunters may have to catch fewer fish than the rest of us so they get a chance at a big one. Most of those I know are really a special breed.

Even though few of us can expect to catch a record fish, the possibility that we may keep our enthusiasm up. I for one will be thinking of the big fish that Mel and John spotted in Wisconsin during the whole winter. Maybe I can somehow get Joe Kurz to take me out there some evening this summer.

Until then, I will be sitting here in Madison contenting myself with ice fishing on frozen Lake Mendota, contemplating a whole year ahead of Wisconsin fishing challenges that may include a chance for a big musky.

Time for a National Salute

By Thomas K. Turnage
Administrator of Veterans Affairs

As the Nation prepares for the bicentennial celebration of our Constitution, our thoughts focus on those brave men and women who have protected that living document — our veterans.

Many still bear the scars of war and remain hospitalized. They served their country proudly and courageously around the world and now, for many of them, their world has narrowed to a few hospital surroundings.

The week of February 8-14 the Nation will observe National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans. It is a time to show our love and gratitude to these brave men and women by visiting them and letting them know that they are appreciated every day of the year.

As Administrator of Veterans Affairs it is my sincere hope that citizens nationwide will make a special effort to visit our hospitalized veterans. These individuals who have sacrificed so much in defense of our country deserve to receive the personal appreciation of their fellow citizens.

It is my strong belief that as benefactors of their service, it is everyone's responsibility to show these men and women that they are not forgotten. For nothing hurts like being forgotten.

Appropriately, this national observance falls on Valentine's Day — a traditional day of loving, caring and sharing. It should also be a time of remembering. Remembering the contributions and sacrifices these individuals have made for their country. Nothing helps like being remembered.

The observance should touch not only veterans but also those Americans willing to open their hearts and share a warm "thank you" to the men and women of valor. National Salute gives everyone an opportunity to let veterans know that there is always enough time to share and care for them. Please contact your nearest VA hospital and ask about visiting our veterans during National Salute week or any week of the year.

They courageously protected our freedom. May our expression of love and appreciation help heal their wounds.

UWWC to Remove Hazardous Materials

Removal of tons of hazardous waste accumulations from University of Wisconsin campuses to out-state disposal sites is underway in a $501,100 cleanup directed by the UW System's Hazardous Substances Management Program.

The first shipments were made early this winter from UW-Milwaukee and UW-Madison. Shipments from the system's other 24 institutions, including the UW Center - Washington County, will be regionally coordinated and continue into spring.

UWWC Dean Robert Thompson said, "Any dangers to students, staff and public have been minimized. All steps are being taken to remove the materials as swiftly as possible."

A hazardous materials management coordinator will assist with the clean-up on each campus and help ensure that work is done safely and efficiently. Dr. Sami Saad, professor of bacteriology and botany, has been designated as coordinator at UWWC.

Wastes to be removed across the system include highly corrosive, ignitable, toxic or radioactive substances generated in departments ranging from chemistry and biology to medicine and art.

The cleanup was initiated in response to an October 1985 survey by the Department of Administration of hazardous materials within state agencies. More than 137 tons were found in UW System buildings. At UWWC, hazardous wastes are being inventoried and prepared for shipment.

Of particular concern across the state was the discovery of aging chemicals such as ethyl ether and picric acid, which are unstable and may be explosive.

These and other hazardous wastes have accumulated over the years in storage areas, stock rooms, classrooms, laboratories, shops and garages, because most institutions did not have the resources or expertise to properly dispose of them.

At UWWC, wastes originated in the biology, chemistry and art departments and in the operation of the physical plant. Saad praised UWWC faculty members for their cooperation in "providing us with a list of chemicals in storage and in use at UWWC.

Last summer, the State Building Commission allocated funds to begin removal of hazardous wastes from all UW institutions. Since then, waste disposal firms have been selected, and each campus has designated a temporary storage facility for the central collection of wastes.

In preparation for the system cleanup, Saad and other coordinators were appointed more than a year ago. They have worked to locate and utilize temporary storage space in cooperation with affected departments.

A two-day training session sponsored by the UW System was held in early November to give coordinators information and instruction on regulations, safe handling techniques, and the use of protective equipment and respirators.

Saad said, "It's about time that we remove these chemicals from our campus so that it becomes a safer place. In the future, we may have to change some of our laboratories and some of our teaching methods because of this."

To award a statewide contract for hazardous waste treatment and disposal, UW System developed unique bid specifications and inspected 18 treatment, storage and disposal facilities throughout the country. Last November, two Chicago area firms - Chemical Waste Management and Emergency Services Corp. - were chosen to do the cleanup.

The UW cleanup is part of its Hazardous Substances Management Program initiated in June 1985 in response to sweeping changes in regulations for hazardous substances. The changes brought colleges and universities under strict standards for the management and disposal of such substances and greatly increased the liability for violations.

Federal laws put a 90-day deadline on the packaging and proper disposing of a chemical substance, after it has been identified as hazardous or toxic. Each violation could bring a fine of up to $50,000 per day and a prison term of up to five years.

Along with waste disposal, the new UW program provides training and information for anyone working with hazardous substances.

Another new business venture will be entered into and another new commercial building will be constructed in our continuously growing, expanded community of Kewaskum. This will be the seventh new business place to be built here within the past year or so, others being the IGA Foodliner, H.J. Lay Lumber Co. buildings, Hon-E-Kor Country Club, Wunderberg Ski Hill Chalet, Ollie's Texaco Service Station and the General Telephone Co. office building. This newest building will be a modern, six-unit, one story motel, with accompanying office and residence to be constructed by Desmond (Des) Smith and his wife, the former Valeria Koerber. It will be located just off of Hwy. 45, on the west side of a town road at the south end of the Kewaskum hill and about 1/2 mile south of the village. The motel will be built on a piece of land purchased by the Smiths containing 475 feet of frontage and running 150 feet in depth. Construction work is scheduled to begin within the next week or two and the motel is expected to be completed and ready for occupancy by the early part of next summer, probably in June.

In another business transaction completed this week, the former Marx IGA store building on Main Street was purchased from the owner, John Marx, by Jack's Appliance, which will be moved there from its present location in the Kewaskum theatre building on Fond du Lac Avenue. Included in the purchase of the building and property is the apartment above the store and the seven-stall car garage at the rear of the structure. Jadro expects to have all of his stock, equipment and fixtures moved into the newly purchased store before March 1.

Carol Schladweiler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schladweiler, Route 1, Kewaskum, was named recipient of the Daughters of the American Revolution good citizenship award at Kewaskum High School.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Alois Bremser, Route 2, Kewaskum, on January 25. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Knoelke, Route 1, Cascade, on January 25.

50 Years Ago

February 5, 1937

Mr. and Mrs. Stoffel and Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Stoffel and family were at Milwaukee Monday evening where they were guests at a celebration in honor of the former's son, Rev. Father Clarence Stoffel on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

Again the grim reaper has thinned the ranks of the pioneers of this section in summoning one of the prominent citizens of the Town of Kewaskum. John Opgenorth, 78, passed into eternal sleep at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. J. Johannes of Ashton, Iowa.

The village of Allenton will soon have a park and recreational center that will be as fine as any in the state. Negotiations are being made at present for the purchase of a 20 acre wooded plot. When completed the park will contain a baseball diamond, swimming pool, children's playground and skating rink.

Members of the local fire department who attended the mid-winter meeting and banquet of the Badger Firemen's Association at Kiel last Thursday evening were: Chief Harry Schaefer, Albert Kocher, Clarence Mertes, Edmund Buslaff, Otto Ramthun Jr., William Schaub, Arnold Martin, Lee Honeck, Alfred Kral and William Schaefer.

A citizens mass meeting will be held in the Village Hall on February 12, called by the village board. This meeting is for the purpose of discussing the fire protection of the village. Every citizen is requested to be present. All are entitled to a voice. No one should be afraid to give their opinion as to what should be done in regard to fire protection.

Station Agent F.C. Gottsleben stated to a Statesman reporter last week that plans for a new depot to be built in this village have been drawn. He is however unable to state how soon the company will commence on this building.

The grim reaper, death, took away another of our old settlers last Monday when Mrs. Wilhelmina Miller, 84, passed away at the home of her son William in this village.

Mrs. Jacob Stahler, 77, died at the home of her son John, three miles south of this village on January 27.

A grand leap year party was given by the Misses Cordelia and Loraine Marshman of Boltonville for their many friends one day this week. The excellent music for the occasion was furnished by George Hiller, to which dancing was the main past time. Those present were the Misses Kathryn Schoofs, Theckla Klunke, Clara Brazelton, Annie and Regina Kohler, Barbara Schneider, Minnie Voeks, Regina Weiss, and Mrs. Eisentraut, and the Messrs. Anton Schladweiler, Math. Herriges, Nic Schneider, Frank Stellflug, Robert Voeks, Joe Kohler, Adolph Oeder, Art Naumann, George Hiller and Charles Eisentraut.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Schoofs last Wednesday.

Free Tax Assistance Available at West Bend

If you can't fill out your income tax forms or can't afford to pay someone to help you, free assistance is available at two local locations in West Bend starting in February.

Both locations will be open from 6 to 8 p.m., one night a week: Mondays, starting Feb. 2, at the UW Center - Washington County and Wednesdays, starting Feb. 4, at the West Bend Community Memorial Library. Both locations will be staffed by specially trained UWWC students working in the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program of the Internal Revenue Service.

VITA (pronounced veye-tah) has been in existence since the late 1960s. Last year about 26,000 people received assistance at about 100 Wisconsin sites.

In January, 13 business and accounting students at UWWC received three days of VITA training for this year's tax season. Bill Hoyer of Wauwatosa, an IRS taxpayer service representative, handled the federal tax training.

After his sessions ended Hoyer praised the VITA program and its volunteers. The program, he said, is "exciting, growing and living," and Wisconsin people are "responding very well." Along with serving those who "can't afford" to pay for tax help, he said, VITA serves those who are unable to fill out forms including the elderly, non-English speaking and handicapped.

The most common question asked of VITA is whether or not a person has to file a return. The elderly, Hoyer said, are often "afraid something will happen if they don't file."

Homestead questions are the "second biggest" concern heard by VITA workers, according to Hoyer.

The third most-common category are general questions such as: "Do I have to report interest?" "Can I take child-care credit?" "Can I claim somebody as my dependent?"

Hoyer said he is impressed by the volunteers he trains. "Americans are seeing a return to volunteerism," he said. "It has always been important to this country."

VITA volunteers may find some special benefits from their efforts, he added, noting that students' service becomes a part of their school record. "That may help when they get out of school and look for a job," he said. "Employers will see that they were willing to help out and had more on the ball. That can pay off."

While Hoyer fields a lot of phone complaints from people who claim the tax system is unfair, he takes a different view. "Taxes are an investment in the future," he said. "You see more and more people getting involved in government to see how taxes are spent."

"That's good. That's how the founding fathers viewed it in the beginning."

VITA volunteers will help prepare federal forms 1040EZ, 1040 A, Form 1040 with A and B, Schedule W and Form 2441; and state forms WI-Z, Form 1A, Form 1 (simple) and Homestead.

TO: The School of Hard Knocks? Does Kewaskum Want a Police State?

First it was a football coach. Then it was a former West Allis policeman. Now it's a sheriff's department detective. How about tossing in a "bouncer" from a local saloon for good measure?

What am I talking about? Why the Kewaskum School Board election, of course! Couldn't you tell? So, why all this tough guy stuff? To protect whom? Against whom? Whose ox is being gored? I never knew that the Kewaskum school system was a school of hard knocks. I am opposed to turning our area into a police state, aren't you? So, what's going on?

Robert Schulteis, a member of the West Allis County Sheriff's Department, is a candidate for the Kewaskum School Board, and he should not be. Perhaps he is supposed to replace the coach who is not running for re-election. The former West Allis policeman was defeated in the last election, but is trying again. At least, Neal Wear is no longer a policeman. But Schulteis is.

I firmly believe that people in certain kinds of occupations should not run for outside public office. I am thinking particularly of policemen or women, journalists, and judges; and they usually do not. The major reasons are (1) they could suffer a conflict of interest; and, (2) their presence could be intimidating.

Suppose, for example, that someone on the school board or school administration mishandles some money. Or suppose someone there accepts a bribe. Suppose that person is a buddy of the policeman on the board. Suppose, even worse, the policeman is cut in on the deal. Who investigates? The policeman? His other buddies on the police force? There could be conflicts of interests all over the place in this kind of situation.

Suppose, also, that some members of the school board disagree with the policeman on the board over some issues. Couldn't they feel intimidated voting against him? Schulteis is, after all, a lieutenant with the sheriff's department, and they could suffer retaliation. They might find themselves suddenly harassed by the police. And teachers, of course, should not be told by the police what they can teach.

I have discussed these objections with Robert Schulteis, assuring him that this was nothing personal, as I personally do not know him. Schulteis understands, but he refuses to withdraw from the election. He should then be defeated.

There are legitimate places for the police in our society, but the school board is not one of them. I can see the police being called to the schools if there is some kind of disturbance, to preserve order. I can see the police, also, visiting the schools in a community relations program, engaging student support in curbing crime and especially drug abuse. These are worthwhile tasks for the police, besides investigating crime.

But it is bad public policy when they become a part of the school system. They should remain outside the gates, impartial and objective, until called upon.

Schedule Informational Meetings For Washington County Farmers

Informational meetings have been scheduled to discuss farm programs that are available through various agencies for farmers in Washington County. The informational meetings are scheduled for Monday, February 9, at 1:30 p.m. at the Addison Town Hall in Allenton, and Tuesday, February 10, at 1:30 p.m. at the Jackson Town Hall.

A number of farm programs will be discussed at these meetings including the Feed Grain Program allowing farmers to earn Target Price Guarantees, Price Support Protection and Diversion Payments by reducing acreage of feed grains and wheat. The conservation reserve program which takes erodible acres out of production for a period of ten years, priority watersheds which will be addressing the non-point pollution in the various watersheds of the Milwaukee and Oconomowoc river and farmland preservation which provides tax credits to agriculture use.

Many of these programs are

COUNTY ASCS TO CONDUCT INFORMATION MEETINGS

Two information meetings have been scheduled for the farmers in Washington County according to Donald E. Sampson, Director of the Washington County ASCS Office. They will be held on Monday, Feb. 9th at the Addison Town Hall, Allenton and on Tuesday, Feb. 10th at the Jackson Town Hall (Corners of Hwy. 60 and Co. Trk. G).

According to Sampson, it's important that farmers understand what the programs offer. They need to decide which programs and options are best for them.

Many changes have come about which will be addressed. Limited cross compliance and conservation requirements will affect Acreage Reduction Programs as well as the additional diversion option.

Changes regarding eligibility for the Conservation Reserve have been softened, as well as a new cash bonus payment for corn base acreage in 1987. Producers who had land which didn't qualify may be eligible this time. The new and fourth sign-up for the 10 year program is from Feb. 9th thru Feb. 27th. The sign-up for the annual acreage reduction runs thru March 30th.

somewhat complex and decisions to participate or not participate should be made with an understanding of what the program may provide. These meetings will provide an opportunity to receive information about the programs to ask questions and receive information about sign-up for the various programs.

The informational meetings are a cooperative effort of various agencies including UWEX-University of Wisconsin Extension, ASCS-Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, SCS-Soil Conservation Service and the Washington County Land Conservation Department.

Conservation Reserve Signup Program

Wisconsin farmers have another chance, from February 9 to February 27, to put their highly erodible and fragile cropland into USDA's Conservation Reserve Program. Contracts may begin with either the 1987 or 1988 crop years and will run through 10 crop years.

Allen Peil, Chairman of the ASC County Committee, suggests that interested persons apply early at the ASCS Office. They will need to offer specific fields and report the crops grown during the years of 1981 thru 1985. Personnel from Soil Conservation Service will check fields for eligibility. It's best to file the bid later after the eligible fields are identified and measured.

Bidders will find out by mid-March whether their bids will be accepted, says Mr. Peil. At that time the Secretary of Agriculture will announce the maximum rental rate for each of Wisconsin's eight bid pools. Contracts will be approved for all eligible cropland offered, up to a maximum of 25 percent of the cropland in the county, for all bids within the maximum rates set by the Secretary.

In CPR, you get:
* A rent payment each year for ten years ($50,000 maximum). Rent may be paid by commodity certificate, usually in October.

* A one-time BONUS RENT PAYMENT of $2.00 a bushel for each acre of corn base you retire in 1987 during this sign-up. (Paid when contract is approved.)

* Half of the average cost of establishing the required conservation cover on the contract acreage.

Provisions of the 1985 Food Security Act will require farmers to use a conservation plan on their highly erodible land if they wish to receive any federal farm program benefits. A CPR contract may help farmers remain eligible for these benefits by taking problem land out of production but with a guaranteed income.

"You don't get your best crop yields on problem fields," observes Peil and adds: "With today's low grain prices and the uncertainty of future farm programs, farmers may be wise to lock in a guaranteed income from their problem fields with a 10-year CRP contract."

The CRP recognizes that U.S. farmers produce more of most agricultural crops than can be used by domestic and export markets and that a large amount of this over-production comes from erosive land. A successful Conservation Reserve should reduce soil erosion and strengthen crop prices by reducing production. Improved water quality and wildlife habitat are additional benefits.

Land eligible for CRP must have been cropped during at least two of the years 1981-85, be available for crop production now, and have either a serious erosion problem or fragile soil. In some cases, farmers can contract parts of fields. Generally, to enter the Conservation Reserve, the contract signer must have controlled the land since January 1, 1985.

Wisconsin Has Record High Corn Yield

According to information released by the Wisconsin Agricultural Statistics Service, Wisconsin farmers harvested a record 118 bushels of corn per acre in 1986, 11 bushels above 1985 and 10 bushels above the previous record.

"Despite the record high yield, production was three percent under the largest crop which was in 1981," says Paul Orton, statistician with Wisconsin's Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP). Wisconsin harvested 366 million bushels of corn for grain last year for a 2 percent increase over 1985.

On the National level, the 1986 corn for grain production was estimated at 8.25 billion bushels, down 7 percent from 1985's record high, but still the second largest record crop. The U.S. yield is a record high 119.3 bushels per acre, exceeding the previous 118 bushel high set last year.

According to Orton, an early, warm Wisconsin spring followed by a favorable growing season was beneficial for the soybean and hay crops as well. Like corn, soybean yields were record high at 36 bushels per acre and production, at 11.5 million bushels, increased 20 percent from the previous year, but 1986 production remained below the 1984 record because of fewer acres planted.

Hay crops in 1986 progressed rapidly especially during a wetter than normal July and August. Yields of all dry hay averaged 2.93 tons per acre in 1986, down from 3.09 tons a year earlier. More haylage than normal was produced reducing annual dry hay yields to levels associated with the 1970's. Average hay yields during the 1980's have been above 3 tons per acre.

SECOND OPINIONS

Some medical problems require surgery if the patient is to survive and, the sooner the operation is performed, the better. However, other medical problems can be treated either surgically or in some other way and, in any event, are not emergencies; in such cases, even if surgery is eventually found necessary, at least there is time for the patient to obtain a second opinion.

Equally competent physicians may differ about the treatment of choice for a particular condition. If the treating physician recommends surgery for a non-emergency condition, a second opinion might be advisable. Medicare pays for second opinions at the same rate it pays for other services.

All surgery - even surgery that is considered to be minor - involves some risk. If both medical and surgical treatment are expected to be equally effective for a condition, medical treatment would be preferred. And even if it develops that medical treatment is not effective, surgery is always an option.

Patients have a right to a second opinion, and good physicians do not object to this practice. It not only helps the patient make an informed decision about the advisability of surgery, it helps reassure the physician that his or her decision was a correct one.

It is, of course, possible that a second physician will disagree with the recommendation of the first physician. If this occurs, the patient can return to the first physician for a more detailed discussion of the problem or may seek a third opinion. In either case, the patient will be in a better position to decide an important question that may literally be a matter of life and death.

Two Nominations to 'Celebrate Literacy'

This year the WORC made two nominations to Wisconsin State Reading Ass'n. "Celebrate Literacy." The Parent Advisory Council of Lincoln School in Port Washington received the organization's nomination for its project to "target families of students who have a vital need to be exposed to positive reading habits." They then promote reading-at-home.

Eighty families have been contacted, given The Read Aloud Handbook by Jim Trelease, and provided long-term encouragement through workshops.

The individual nomination went to Ruth Ann Bales of West Bend. For three years Ruth Ann has run the annual Book Fair for children at Jackson School. She also organized and published "Cooking With Class," a cookbook composed of contributions from children.

Kettle Moraine's Wild Turkey Transplants Adjusting Well

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

It has been exactly two years since the Department of Natural Resources brought wild turkeys back to the Kettle Moraine, an area that once abounded with the birds until logging and land clearing in the early 1900's took away much of their natural habitat.

The object of the DNR was to establish a self-sustaining population such as the one developed in the southwestern part of the state ten years ago. The project appears to be a success as the original flock of 48 birds released in 1985, has now increased to approximately 200.

Since the birds were released, the DNR has received 308 reports of sightings throughout the Kettle Moraine, from Kewaskum to Glenbeulah. In 1986, there were 138 sightings which included 19 brood sightings, some broods with as many as 15 young.

Dale Katsma, DNR Wildlife Manager, has been keeping close tabs on the turkeys' progress since he helped release the foundation flock in 1985. Barring any unforeseen catastrophe, Katsma noted then, the population should double itself every year. He said a hen can lay anywhere from six to eighteen eggs in one nesting.

The first year the DNR recorded two fatalities of young birds. In one sighting, a hen who chose to nest near a hiking trail was frightened off her nest of over a dozen eggs. She did not return to the nest. Even with minor setbacks such as these, the re-introduction of the wild turkey to the Northern Kettle Moraine is being considered a success.

If the population continues to grow at its present rate, the flock's size should reach 800 birds by the spring of 1989. If that holds true, the forest could be opened to spring turkey hunts in about three years.

This year's mild winter with minimal snow cover, an abundance of nuts in the woods and corn on private land has allowed the birds to winter well.

On state land, the DNR offers sharecrop contracts which require a portion of the harvest be left to provide added food for the turkeys during the winter. In 1986, there were 34 sharecrop contracts covering 1,151 acres in the turkey range of the Northern Kettle Moraine State Forest. These contracts provided 370 acres of corn stubble, 207 acres of standing corn, 366 acres of alfalfa, and 206 acres of small grains.

With the excellent progress of the turkey transplant in the northern unit, the DNR decided to go ahead with a similar project in the southern Kettle Moraine. In 1986, forty-two birds were released and through approximately 200 sightings, they also appear to be thriving.

The DNR is considering putting a proposal for a Kettle Moraine turkey hunt on the spring fish and game questionnaire in the spring of 1988 or 1989.

Indian Girls Lose to Raiders

By Michele Wiedmeyer

The Indian girls basketball team hosted the Two Rivers Raiders on Tuesday evening, only to end the night with a loss, going down 45-63.

The girls played well in the early minutes of the game, jumping out to a 10-5 lead and maintained the lead through the first quarter. But the Raiders battled back, out-scoring the Indians by seven points in the second quarter to lead at the half 27-23.

The second half was dominated by Two Rivers, due to the efforts of Linda Kornely who led the Raiders in scoring with 23 points.

High scorers for Kewaskum included Pam Osterbrink with 8 points, and Christie Kougal and Tracy Theusch each with 7. Osterbrink also pulled down 8 rebounds. Brenda Vetter also played hard for the Indians, coming up with 5 steals and 6 assists.

The Indians now stand at 3-4 in conference play and 5-9 overall.
