Voc. Ed. Courses Must Change to Meet Present and Future Needs

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Dan Wangerin, Kewaskum High School Local Vocational Education Coordinator, (LVEC) reported to the Kewaskum School Board Monday night, on a recently completed audit of the district's vocational education program. The audit and a related report support the need for Kewaskum to update its programs to meet the current and future needs of its students and area businesses, Wangerin told the board.

Wangerin noted the district had begun to make some revisions and additions, however the entire plan as recommended in the reports will span a five-year period before implementation is complete.

Former students and area businesspeople addressed the board voicing their positive support for voc ed training. Each individual related their own personal experiences, either as an employee or employer, who had hired students who had participated in vocational education programs.

Mr. Roger Gibbons, Division Chairperson, Trades and Technical/Agriculture Department, at Moraine Park Technical Institute, West Bend, who was also at the meeting, voiced his support, telling the board he was glad to hear the district was preparing people for the new technologies.

While Gibbons was happy to hear that 50% of Kewaskum's students go on to post-secondary education, he stated, "I think we should really be concerned about the other 50% that aren't going on to school."

Gibbons told the board that, in the not to distant future, an arrangement may be worked out whereby MPTI-WB will offer to transfer its Welding and Metals Fabrication Department equipment to Kewaskum High School. In exchange for the equipment, MPTI would use Kewaskum's facility to run its evening classes. Gibbons said such an arrangement had already been transacted between MPTI-Beaver Dam and the Beaver Dam High School. It has turned out to be extremely beneficial to both schools, noted Gibbons.

Wangerin said the district has taken the first steps to improve its voc ed programs by approving courses such as Pathways to a Career, and coop Class/Work Experience classes.

Elementary Schools Principal Tom Larsen, who has been instrumental in getting the Olympics of the Mind program off the ground for Kewaskum, updated the board on the excellent showing by the district's teams at recent regional and state meets.

Budget in Fairly Good Shape,' Says Brigham

1987-88 School Budget Up, But Levy Down

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

The Kewaskum Board of Education got its first look at the administration's proposed budget for the 1987-88 school year Monday night, and it carries a price tag of $6,996,622, up 3.6%, or $242,905, over 1986-87.

As predicted earlier this year by District Administrator Penny Kleinhans, she and her staff were working to hold next year's budget increase to between three and four per cent.

Preliminary figures show an increase of 7.67% in the curriculum portion of the budget, while the support services, such as administrative costs for offices, custodial, maintenance, audit, etc., telephone, postage, insurance, workmens compensation, and short term loan interest, were down by 3.06% from last year, resulting in the 3.6% overall increase in total expenditures.

Board member Perry Anker-son asked Business Manager Cherna Gorder, "Do you consider this to be the final version?" Gorder said no, that she already had about twenty changes, but both she and Kleinhans indicated that these revisions were not going to make a significant change in the overall picture.

Two unknowns in the budget are the contract settlements for teachers and support staff employees. While monies have been included in the budget to cover the anticipated wages, the exact cost of these two items will not be known until negotiations between the district and unions representing the two groups are concluded.

In reviewing the proposed budget, Gorder noted the figures show a decrease of 15.07% in revenues listed under Taxes which will result if the State Tax Credit is taken away. She said, however, this would be offset by an increase in the General State Aids area. Gorder said, in the past the State Tax Credit was returned to local municipalities and was shown as such on tax bills. If legislation now pending in Madison is approved, however, these funds will be turned directly over to the school districts in the form of General State Aids.

The budget reflects a proposed 1987-88 tax levy of $3,259,511, for the General Fund and Debt Service levy of $62,000, which is the State Trust Fund loan, for a total levy of $3,321,511. This is a 2.88% decrease from the 1986-87 levy of $3,419,952.

If there is no change in the equalized value figures, the levy will result in a 1987-88 mill rate of $13.27, down 2.85% or 39c from 1986-87.

Gorder and Kleinhans indicated that they hoped the board would set up future meetings to review and discuss the budget in depth. After hearing Gorder's report, Board President Tom Brigham stated, "We're handing the budget over to the new board in fairly good shape."

School

Because of its First Place win in state competition at Stevens Point, the Kewaskum High School team became eligible for the World competition.

In World competition High School O/M Team and its successes, the board approved the allotment of a maximum of $2,000 to cover travel, room and meal expenses for the team and coaches to attend the O/M World Competition at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, Michigan, in May.

Board President Tom Brigham said all the O/M teams and coaches were to be congratulated on their efforts in recent competitions.

In other business, the board reviewed fourteen new and revised policies covering a variety of issues including job descriptions, graduation requirements, teacher professional time, and student alcohol and drug abuse.

The board also approved two recommendations of the Finance and Transportation - Buildings and Grounds Committee. The first recommendation was to purchase a new floor scrubber and polisher for the high school at a cost of $5,100. Buildings Superintendent Fred Boehlke noted that because of the length of time it takes with the present equipment, polishing is done only during school breaks or on a Saturday. With the new equipment, Boehlke said cleaning could be done twice as often because of the reduction in work hours needed to do the job.

The board also approved the purchase of new carpeting for the open classroom area, band room, and north and south entrances at the Middle School at a cost of $18,690. The money will come from funds remaining in this year's maintenance budget, left due to the postponing of other projects.

The calendar for the 1987-88 school year was also approved. Classes will begin on August 26, 1987, and end on June 3, 1988.

In other action the board approved funding from the Kewaskum Lions Club for the expansion of the Quest program. The board thanked the club for its continued support of the program.

District Administrator Penny Kleinhans updated the board on the recent theft at the high school. She said the cost of the stolen items and repairs amounted to $946 and a claim had been sent to the insurance company. The incident is still under investigation.

The board also approved two resignations and the hiring of three individuals to fill three coaching positions.

Rejoice at

Dear Diary:

OMERS Time-On-Task Wins Ticket to World

"All the Right Stuff," dear diary....this KHS OM team has it, and a ticket to world competition, Olympics of the Mind in May.

I'm sure I must have felt the same about last year's team.... but a coach never knows when, or if, a team is going to pull it off at the right place, at the right time...it helps to have the judges see it work! And frankly, dear diary, this year's "creative six" seems to relish rewriting scripts, changing props and such, minutes before showtime.

The coach is the inappropriate person to ask: "Are they ready for this?"

State competition a few weeks ago at Stevens Point was trial by fire. The team had no real grasp of how good they were and how creative their problem solution is, because there was no competition at regionals....but luck was with 'em. Six high school teams competed in the Omer to the Rescue problem at state....like I said, luck.

One of the teams, all girls, developed a hover craft with large baggies and possibly a leaf-blower inverted as the power source....very creative, to say the least. Kewaskum team gave them gold stars for that problem solution. Another team up against KHS was late for their starting time because they had participated in two long-range problems ... good grief. So when KHS' starting time arrived, the coach retreats to deal with anxieties and nervous indigestion.

Would you believe, dear diary, chanting an ancient ritual about bravery and such in the ladies lounge? As I remember it sounded something like: "after all this time and energy spent learning to work together effectively as a team, let them pull it off so that they feel good about it." That, or something similar, is probably in my coach's manual.

To think on their feet, to make decisions in difficult or unexpected situations....that's what Olympics of the Mind is all about. Creative problem solving.

That word "creative" sometimes litters of visions of churning out literary lions, or a genius of the art world, or at least a design engineer or two....you know the type, Leonardo Da Vinci, OM style.

Not so. Having earned a head of grey hair with this team, I am more convinced that ever that the most important trait an OMER can contribute is commitment to the task - being creative and clever and not being there to do what has to be done - just doesn't get it. Above average intelligence and an interest or ability in some field like art or the sciences are two other important traits for OMERS...it helps if you can do an old soft shoe routine or have cut-and-past skills.

I tell you, dear diary, fatigue is an almost overwhelming emotion by the end of the day at state competition....this coupled with the fact that the computers tallying scores were behind, so everything was on hold....waiting to hear winners announced was slightly short of classic stress syndrome. And it had been a bad day for the middle school team .... nothing had gone right for them in their problem solution. So there we sat, trying hard not to hope too high....

When the emcee announced that Leighton Peterson had won the coveted Renatra Fusca award for individual creativity, we all did the Kewaskum ritual yell. Because I wear two hats, the recipient allowed me to hug him in front of all those people.

And the winner is ..... Becky Morlen, Mitch Gebheim, Scott Kulas, George Walz, Greg Weddig and Leighton Peterson. Dear diary, they deserved it. Next week, start working on props again.

Human Growth and Development Advisory Committee for School District Meets

The Human Growth and Development Advisory Committee for the Kewaskum School District recently met to begin discussion of the goals and objectives for the K-12 human growth and development curriculum for the district. The 18 member committee of parents, community representatives, clergy, health care professionals, students and school staff, appointed by the Board of Education in November, 1986, is chaired by Ann Enright, parent representative, and Carol Martin, teacher representative.

The committee met again recently with Nancy Winkler, CESA 6 human growth and development coordinator, to begin examination of the current programs.

The committee has divided into 3 subcommittees - one for elementary, another for middle, and the third to work on the high school program review. Other parent and school staff representatives have been invited to assist with the work of these subcommittees.

The committee will be proposing a policy statement to the Board of Education in the next few months and reviewing curriculum documents and learning materials, proposing inservice plans, and establishing parent communication procedures as part of their work.

The meetings of this committee are open to the community and will continue to be announced in the weekly events columns of the newspapers in West Bend and Kewaskum. Due to a resignation of one committee member, the advisory committee is soliciting names for the replacement of one community representative and for the possible addition to the clergy representation. All names will be presented to the Board of Education at a future meeting. If you are interested and would be available to attend meetings (usually a.m.), you are encouraged to contact one of the chairs or Julie Backus, Director of Instruction.

ASPIRIN vs STROKE

It is known that a small daily dose of aspirin reduces the incidence of strokes. Modern Medicine reports, a daily aspirin reduces the severity of strokes even more than it reduces their number. Preliminary clinical studies suggest that daily aspirin cuts the number of strokes that are severe [fatal or paralyzing types] by 80%.

Kewaskum Fire Department Hosts Badger Firemen's Association Meeting, Banquet

By Morrie Belger

On Sunday, April 5, the Badger Firemen's Association held their spring meeting. It was hosted by the Kewaskum Fire Department in the meeting room at the fire station.

The day started off with an open house at 1:00 p.m. for all the Badger Firemen's Association Department members to view Kewaskum's equipment and station. They were impressed.

At 2:00 to 3:30 p.m. the meeting was held involving the state's feeling towards the volunteer fire departments having hazardous material drills and burnings. Due to state cuts, schooling for the departments has also been cut or hard to find. There were also some changes in the Association's Constitution of By-Laws. There were 89 delegates from 32 departments who attended the meeting.

At 5:30 a memorial service was held at Amerahn for all members who have died over the past year and for those who have served in the past. It was noted that one member has lost his life in the line of duty during the past year. He was Captain Richard Ziemer from the Glendale Fire Department.

The 225 association members then enjoyed an excellent dinner prepared by the Homeplate Catering Service of Kewaskum. Awards were presented for the Badger Bowling Tournament and the Association Fireman of the Year award was presented to Leo "Smiley" Daniels of the Hartford Fire Department.

The Badger Firemen's Association banquet held at the Amerahn was attended by 225 members.

Lunch with Easter Bunny Enjoyed at Landmark

On Saturday, April 11th, the Easter Bunny paid a visit to the Landmark Inn to the delight of 20 children (and adults). During an enjoyable lunch in the gaily decorated dining room, the Easter Bunny met the children and passed out a gift to each one.

Although there were a few shy children at first, by the time the games started everyone was having fun. The Easter Bunny and children played musical chairs, drop the clothspin in the jar and pin the egg in the Easter Basket. Everyone won at something and received a prize.

Amber King won the egg hunt, with Justin Rose coming in second. With a wave of his furry paw and a reminder to "Eat Your Vegetables," the

Kewaskum Frozen Foods Continues Award Winning Tradition

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

In keeping with its constant goal to offer the best quality products Kewaskum Frozen Foods has again won awards for two of its meat products. At the 43rd Annual Wisconsin Meat Product Show held in conjunction with the state convention of the Wisconsin Association of Meat Processors at Lake Geneva on April 4th, the company was presented with the 1987 'Champion' awards for both its Bratwurst and Uncooked Summer Sausage.

The Wisconsin event is the largest meat product show in the United States. It involves smaller scale meat processing plants from throughout the state.

This year 715 products were entered by 62 plants in the 17 product categories of the show. The competition was judged by meat scientists from the University of Wisconsin and Michigan State University, and by visiting meat processors from nearby states.

The strong interest in the product show is a reflection of the important role of sausage and processed meat in Wisconsin's meat industry. The state ranks third in the nation in total sausage production.

Wisconsin not only excels in quantity, but quality as well. In 1986, 25% of the awards given out at the National Cured Meat Championship of the American Association of Meat Processors, held in Reno, Nevada, went to Wisconsin plants.

Kewaskum Frozen Foods owners Bob Beisbier and Dave Nigh, are pleased to be able to offer top quality products and services to their customers.

New Two-Year Norman A. Schowalter Scholarship Available This Fall

WEST BEND — Students completing their first two years of college this spring at the UW Center - Washington County will be eligible for a new two-year $4,000 Norman A. Schowalter scholarship, UWWC Dean Robert Thompson announced.

Starting with the fall semester 1987, one transferring will be selected each year to receive $1,000 per semester to finish work on a Bachelor's degree at a college of his or her choice. The scholarship will be renewable for up to four semesters.

Scholarship money is being provided by Community Trust, which was established by Schowalter in 1953 and award gifts and grants, primarily to local organizations and causes. Thompson termed the scholarship "a fitting recognition of Schowalter's interest in UWWC."

He said, "Community Trust has been a regular contributor to the UWWC Foundation, the group that oversees the school's scholarship program. Schowalter helped establish the Foundation and served on the board until the time of his death."

A spokesman for the Community Trust Board of Trustees said, "Norman was a greater believer in West Bend and the people who came here before us. He saw UWWC as a way to help people go and get an education even if they did not have the means. The Scholarship fund in his name identifies his interest in the students and faculty."

In explaining why the scholarships are designed to help juniors and seniors, the spokesman said that most UWWC students can save money by living at home during their first two years of college and "not many are denied an education due to the lack of funds."

"The real pinch," he added, "comes in the last two years with the higher costs of tuition, transportation, room and board and books. That's what we're hoping to be helping. We want to help eligible students continue beyond the local campus — not drop away."

Financial needs is one of the three main criteria to be used in selecting scholarship recipients. Other criteria are academic achievement — a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 (B), and participation in such areas as extracurricular activities, community service or work experience.

Scholarships will be renewable each semester contingent upon students maintaining their grades and staying enrolled in programs leading to a Bachelor's degree.

The first scholarship winner will be announced on May 22 during the annual UWWC convocation program. Selection will be made by Dean Thompson based upon recommendations from a Scholarship Committee.

Schowalter was a native of Washington County, growing up in a family of six boys on a farm south of Jackson. He spent his entire career with the West Bend Company, retiring as purchasing agent. He was active in many schools, church and charitable institutions, and had special interests in St. Joseph's Community Hospital, The Threshold, the Kettle Moraine YMCA and the West Bend Community Memorial Library.

Thompson said that the Norman A. Schowalter scholarship will strengthen the efforts of the UW System to encourage more students to complete their freshmen and sophomore years at a two-year center.

The Community Trust spokesman said Schowalter would have supported such thinking. He said, "The more we do to help local students, the more we do to keep a strong educational institution. We want UWWC to be one of the best."

Probably one of the happiest men alive these days is a vegetarian studying the prices in a meat market.

Family Changes Challenge Home And Community

By Joyce Albrecht
Extension Home Economist

Remember the TV families of the "Dick Van Dyke Show" and "Father Knows Best"? These families may still exist in reruns, but they're no longer typical.

The wife who stays home with the kids while her husband works describes only about one of every seven Wisconsin families. Married women, including mothers of young children, have entered the work force in record numbers.

Washington County has not escaped the impact of these national and state-wide trends. The 1980 census found that more than 60% of Washington County women with school-age children were working for pay and 51% of mothers with children under six were in the work force in that year. And those numbers are said to be growing.

These demographic changes bring new challenges.

Take child care, a major concern of working parents.

The biggest recent change has been the shift away from home-centered child care to babysitters in other homes or group day-care centers. In 1958, more than half of the children under six whose mothers worked full time, were cared for in their own homes, usually by a relative. By the late 1970s, 29% of the children of working mothers stayed home, almost half were cared for in someone else's home, and 15% were sent to day-care centers.

Some women work part-time so they'll be home when their children return from school, but many must make other arrangements. A University of Wisconsin-Madison study found that one-third of fifth and sixth graders were unsupervised by adults after school.

Are the children of working mothers adversely affected by their mothers' absence? Despite the on-going debate, research to date shows few differences between the children of working and non-working mothers. Other factors, such as the adequacy and consistency of the child care and attention parents give devoted to their children, may be more important than whether the mother is employed.

Housework roles have also shifted in recent years. As women have taken jobs outside the home, husbands have assumed more housekeeping and child care duties. But search shows that women still shoulder the primary responsibility for home and child care even when they work full time.

Families are eating fewer meals at home. In 1960, Americans spent about one quarter of their food dollars on meals away from home; by 1985 the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated the proportion had grown to 42 cents of every food dollar. Because food bought away from home costs considerably more than home-made, some of the extra income of working families is being lost to higher food spending.

Research has not demonstrated a clear connection between the employment of wives and happy marriages. Arguments run both ways. A husband may feel threatened by his wife's success. The stress of juggling home and work responsibilities may take a toll on the wife.

On the positive side, the extra income earned by the wife helps the family's finances, a primary cause of marital conflict. The satisfaction the working wife may gain from earning her own money and having a more varied and stimulating life is believed to contribute to happier marriages.

These changes affecting families are also affecting community life. Volunteer organizations have traditionally relied on homemakers' help, but working wives don't have the extra time for these activities. Socializing among neighbors may decline as both husbands and wives shift the center of their social life to their workplace, causing a decline in the amount of time and effort spent on community activities.

Community leaders may soon have to take up the issue of quality day care and after-school care for children. Business owners may need to consider flexible hours for parents who must care for their children.

Anthony, small son of Mr. and Mrs. George Strohmeier of the Town of Wayne had a narrow escape from serious injury late Wednesday afternoon when he was struck by an automobile in front of the Rex Garage in this village. While crossing the street with his father the little fellow ran ahead, as children will do, when he was struck by the oncoming car, knocking him to the pavement. Had the automobile been traveling fast or had the brakes been faulty, the lad might have been killed as the front wheels were only inches from his head when the car was halted. Fortunately he was found to have sustained only minor cuts and bruises.

The angel of death reached out and took a beloved aged resident of the Town of Wayne, Mrs. Katie Schaub, nee Arnet, at her home on April 13.

Spelling and achievement contests for the Town of Auburn were held last Friday afternoon at the New Fane school under the direction of Miss Minerva Sommerfeld. Winners were: Spelling - First, Marie Krahn of Gage School; Second, Edward Kohlschmidt of East Valley School. Achievement - First, Eva Mae Buss of Gage School and Second Virginia Trapp of New Prospect School.

A large number of relatives and friends were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garbisch in the Town of Scott on April 4, in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Frana, to Raymond Justman of Theresa.

American Cancer Society Volunteers To Distribute Information on Cancer

An American Cancer Society volunteer might be knocking on your door sometime between April 26, 1987 and May 15, 1987 with some good news about early detection of breast cancer, as part of the Society's 1987 Residential Education and Fund-raising Crusade.

According to Wm. C. Bailey, Chairman of this year's Residential "C-Days" in Washington County, the purpose of the drive is to distribute lifesaving information on cancer, as well as to raise funds for the Society's research, education, and service programs.

This year, like last year, the volunteers will be providing educational materials as they relate to Cancer and will not be asking for a donation at the door. This is an attempt to have more volunteers involved in the distribution of the information.

The theme of this year's drive is mammography - a highly effective tool in the early detection of breast cancer. A mammogram is a low-dose X-ray of the breast which can detect tumors as small as a freckle. "A mammogram can reveal a breast cancer before it becomes large enough to be felt," Bailey said. "Then, if a tumor is detected, it can be removed through less extensive forms of surgery and when the survival rate is highest." According to Bailey, chances of survival can approach 100 percent if breast cancer is detected at its onset.

The American Cancer Society urges women without symptoms between the ages of 35 to 39 to get a baseline mammogram, for future comparisons. Women between the ages of 40 to 49 should undergo this test every one to two years, as recommended by their physician. Women 50 and over should have mammograms taken annually.

Bailey said volunteers will distribute the folder, "Now, Breast Cancer Has Virtually Nowhere to Hide" to many Washington County residents. The Society's guidelines are included in the pamphlet.

Bailey said to assure the success of distributing this life saving booklet that he still needs volunteers who live in subdivisions or complexes throughout the county to help their friends, neighbors and themselves by volunteering to make sure the area where they live is covered. Bailey asks that if you would like to help in this year's crusade to please call him at M&I First National Bank, 338-0611 or at home - 334-9316.

— BICYCLING — A Serious Business

Just like driving a car, driving a bicycle is a responsibility that should be taken seriously, says the Wisconsin Council of Safety (WCS).

Cyclists must follow the same rules of the road as the cars, but they are at more risk when it comes to injury. While biking should be fun, this is one pastime where safety is particularly important. Each year, about 1,000 people are killed in bicycle accidents.

In conjunction with National Bicycle Safety Week, April 19-25, WCS offers the following tips:

- 1) Wear a helmet every time you get on a bicycle and make sure child passengers do, too. About 75 percent of all bicycle-related fatalities are caused by head injuries.
- 2) Drive defensively by expecting the unexpected.
- 3) Keep your bicycle in good shape - drive a safe bike.
- 4) Wear bright-colored clothing during the day, and wear light-colored clothing and use a headlight and taillight at night.
- 5) Ride with traffic on the right hand side of the road.
- 6) Obey all traffic regulations, sign and signals.
- 7) Use hand signals to indicate turns and stops.

The WCS is a division of Wisconsin Manufacturers and Commerce.

Early Delivery of Social Security Checks

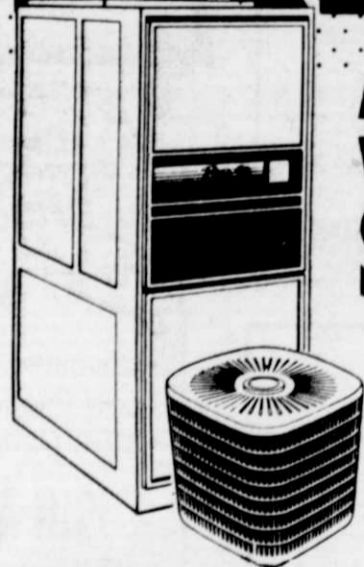

Monthly social security checks which are normally delivered on the third of May will be delivered on May 1st instead, according to Dave Becker, Manager of the West Bend Social Security office.

"Benefit checks are mailed early when the usual delivery date falls on a Saturday, Sunday or legal Holiday," Becker said. "In these instances, the checks are dated and delivered on the first day before the third of the month that is not a Saturday, Sunday or Holiday."

Becker stated that this procedure helps reduce the problems that people have when they receive their checks and their banks are closed. These situations occur several times during the year, and Becker advised that SSA would provide similar information about future early checks delivery dates as they occur.

Pot holders will stay cleaner longer if given a heavy treatment of spray starch.

Assertiveness Training at UWWC

Since 1975, Alice Iaquina has been helping people take responsibility for making their dreams come true through training. Starting April 22, she will begin five Wednesday evening sessions on beginning assertiveness training at the UW Center - Washington County.

"One of the beauties of being assertive is that you don't wait for your dreams to come true," Iaquina said. "You make them happen now. You set up your goals and do it."

For the mother of three, who is about to become a grandmother, dreams include things like skydiving, whitewater rafting, tennis, motorcycling, snorkeling and a recent trip to Tahiti.

Assertiveness, Iaquina said, is "a real positive life style - not a skill you pull out and then put back in a drawer."

The life style involves "being in control" of your own life rather than being "a victim," she said. "It means standing up for your own rights without infringing on the rights of others."

Instead of being assertive, Iaquina sees many people reacting to life passively - "doing a slow burn" or aggressively - "blowing up."

Learning to be assertive involves accepting responsibility for one's own life, she said. "One of the main things I do is get students to own what they're saying. People tend to say 'I' - 'I need' and 'I want.'"

Over the years, Iaquina has discovered that her students are not lacking in their "ability to succeed, but in how they feel about themselves." Many, she said, are "very successful financially, but emotionally something is not working."

Half of the people coming to the class, she said, are facing major life problems like coping with a dead-end job, ending a long-term relationship, dealing with manipulative relations between parents and adult children, regardless of age, starting a new business or handling marriage problems or chemical dependency.

"I think the course acts like a catalyst for people," Iaquina said. A key reason, she said, is its offering of "a safe haven" for practicing "honesty and direct confrontation ... what we say in the classroom stays in the classroom."

About two-thirds of those enrolling in assertiveness training are women. Iaquina sees women as increasingly ready to believe "they are responsible for themselves." For such women, she said, life is no longer a shifting of dependency from "the cradle to daddy to a husband."

Men entering the class tend to have learned that their life styles have not been effective in their business or personal worlds, Iaquina said. For them, she added, change can mean "giving up the illusion of being in control of others."

Classes can produce some interesting husband-wife and mother-daughter enrollingments. "One of the most interesting combinations was a husband, wife and mother-in-law," Iaquina said.

Ages have ranged from the mid-teens to the elderly with all ages facing similar problems.

Iaquina said, "One of my oldest students was retired and was trying to deal with her mother. She said it was like trying to be a teenager again."

Iaquina likes having family members in class. "They benefit by learning skills at the same time," she said. And she likes having "a total mixture" of different kinds of people in her classes. "They learn from each other," she said.

She describes her role with the class as a facilitator rather than a teacher. "This is not a lecture class. People have to believe in their capability of solving their own problems. It's their lives."

Iaquina's professional training at UW Parkside and UW Milwaukee is in sociology, psychology, speech and writing. Much of her training for the class, she said, came from "becoming very assertive myself through the school of hard knocks."

Assertiveness training, she said, "parallels the life processes I have been experiencing since I was 20 years old."

The success of her courses, she believes, is due in part of her ability to "identify with my students in a way someone who has led a charmed life cannot."

Iaquina carefully avoids letting the classes turn into therapy sessions by defining her facilitator role at the beginning. "Many times I refer students to therapists for things like sexual abuse or eating disorders," she said.

She expresses deep satisfaction in working with "the human clay" through assertiveness courses. "I just get such a charge out of seeing people think for themselves," she said.

What is the greatest obstacle to enrolling in assertiveness training? "Everyone wants to present a public image of 'happily ever after,'" Iaquina said.

But she believes public images must change in order to make dreams come true. "If you always do what you've always done, you'll always get what you've always gotten," she said.

Department of Transportation Says 'The Check is in the Mail'

When the state Department of Transportation advises town clerks and municipal treasurers that "the check is in the mail," it's one of the state's best kept secrets.

Ronald R. Fiedler, DOT Secretary, said that while his agency mails about 40 percent of fuel tax and registration fee revenues back to local agencies, most motorists assume that their user fees are kept by the state for use on freeways and other major state highways.

"Although few people know it, their user fees actually pay a part of the cost of plowing snow and patching potholes on the street in front of their homes, as well as on the Interstate and other state roads," Fiedler said. Over the past 12 months, local governments received more than 190.4 million from the state transportation fund to help pay the cost of building and maintaining local roads and bridges.

The 2,039 checks mailed April 1 totaled $47.6, and went to every town, village, city and county in the state. The largest check, for $788,964, went to Milwaukee County, while the smallest, for $276, went to the Sauk County village of Lime Ridge (pop 191).

In the current local aids payment, one of four each year, 1,267 towns share $10.3 million; 393 villages received a total of $2.9 million; 188 cities received $19 million, and Wisconsin's 72 counties shared $13.2 million. In addition, $2.2 million was sent to 119 communities to help pay the cost of plowing snow and other maintenance on portions of state highways that are within urban boundaries.

Local governments also receive transportation revenues for other programs such as public transit, elderly and handicapped transportation, airports and harbors, as well as state and federal funds for specific highway and bridge construction projects.

Letter to The Editor...

To: All Kewaskum School District Residents

I wish to thank all the voters who supported me throughout my campaign and for electing me to the school board. The best part for me has been to meet and to talk with so many special people. I look forward to the challenge of providing a good education for our children at a price we can afford.

The results of this election clearly mandate that changes must be made. The changes that will be made will not change the current educational programs. The numbers of personnel in charge will be looked at first, as well as setting educational priorities that best suit our school district.

I will work very hard at being a good representative of the people of this district. Thank you for believing in me.

Sincerely,
Ruth A. Schmitt

Use Care When Buying Pesticides

"Farmers should be careful when buying pesticides and extremely cautious of telephone solicitors urging them to buy 'bargain priced' herbicides," warns Ned Zuelsdorff, pesticide specialist with Wisconsin's Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP).

According to Zuelsdorff, telephone solicitors are again contacting Wisconsin farmers and attempting to convince them to purchase "a product less expensive than other herbicides with familiar brand names."

"The problem is that these salesmen often make false and misleading claims about what their product will do," adds Zuelsdorff.

DATCP has received complaints recently from farmers who have purchased products not labeled for the uses that were stated over the phone. Salesmen often claim the products are nontoxic to people and livestock and can be used for weed control in cropfields and pastures. The products being received are commonly very dilute herbicides which are only approved for use on noncrop areas including fence-rows and industrial sites.

"Using these pesticides on crops or sites not identified on the labels is prohibited under state and federal laws," advises Zuelsdorff. He also points out that misrepresenting pesticides is a state law violation but in this case difficult to enforce because many of the companies are located outside Wisconsin, their sales people are difficult to identify and all claims are verbal.

Zuelsdorff urges farmers to request copies of pesticide product labels prior to purchasing any products solicited over the phone. If a problem is suspected, farmers should contact DATCP at (608) 266-2295 and report the date of the call, salesperson's name, company name and phone number, pesticide product name and EPA registration number. When dealing with telephone solicitors, he also recommends farmers ask whether the company is licensed to distribute products in Wisconsin.

... about your Social Security

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS FOR WOMEN

By Dave Becker, Branch Manager, West Bend

In general, the amount of your Social Security monthly payment is based on your earnings in Social Security-covered employment. This feature of the program is particularly relevant for women who may choose to remain at home if they have young children.

Entitlement to Social Security benefits in your own right depends on the amount of credits you have from covered employment. The specific amount depends on when you reach 62, become disabled, or for your survivors to get benefits, your age at death. If you stop working before you have earned a sufficient number of Social Security credits, you will not be eligible for benefits; however, the credits you have already earned remain on your work record, and any additional credits earned at any time in the future will be added to the credits already on your record.

Since the amount of your benefit, as well as that of your family, is based on covered earnings over a period of years, the amount of the monthly payment can be affected if you have a number of years of little or no earnings.

A married woman can receive payments either on her own record; or that of her husband. She receives whichever is larger: a benefit on her own record, or a benefit on her husband's record. A woman who has worked steadily at high earnings might find that her own benefit would be more than a wife's; however, if she had remained at home for several years or had periods of low earnings, she might find it advisable to take the wife's benefit.

The people at the Social Security office will tell her which would be to her advantage.

provide over 80% of the home care for older persons. Research has found that for all but the extremely disabled elderly, it costs less to provide services at home (by the family plus public providers) than in institutions. In future years, policy-makers will need to consider expanding community services for the elderly to better help today's working families keep their older members at home where they prefer to be.

The Washington County Extension Office is a resource for families confronting change in our aging society. A series of bulletins entitled "Your Aging Parent" may help you understand the physical, emotional and mental changes that accompany aging. These bulletins are available from the U.W. Extension Office, phone 338-4479; 644-5204 or 342-2929.

Bodien to Replace Jaberg at Cedar-Haven

The Executive Director of the Cedar Lake Tri-Campus, Reverend L. C. Riesch, announced that Joanne Bodien, Physical Therapist and Coordinator of the Cedar-Haven Rehabilitation Agency (CHRA) since 1981 has been appointed Administrator of that agency. Bodien replaces Steven Jaberg who held that position for two years prior to his appointment as Administrator of the Cedar Lake Home Campus.

Mrs. Bodien completed her Bachelor Degree in Physical Therapy in 1970 at Marquette University. She went on to obtain a Master degree in Vocational Rehabilitation at the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee in 1976. Bodien resides in the Town of Erin with her husband and two children.

Located on the Cedar Lake Campus, Cedar-Haven provides professional services of physical therapy, speech and occupational therapy, as well as counseling services for community persons of all ages. Services are available to business and health care agencies on a contract basis.

Drunk Drivers Responsible for 35.3% of All Highway Fatalities

Drunk driving caused 267 traffic deaths in 1986, according to an analysis of fatal accident reports by the Wisconsin Department of Transportation.

Doug Thompson, chief of the traffic accident section in the Division of Motor Vehicles, said the 267 deaths represented 35.3 percent of the 757 fatalities recorded for 1986.

The 35.3 percent figure is lower than the 37.9 percent of the 1985 fatalities in which the driver at fault was drunk. Percentages for previous years were 34 in 1984; 37 in 1983; 42 in 1982 and 44 in 1981.

The downward trend has coincided with adoption of tougher drinking/driving laws which went into effect in 1982, and other traffic safety measures taken since then, Thompson said.

The DOT study concentrated on those fatal accidents in which the driver most at fault and survived was cited for operating while intoxicated, or fatally injured and whose blood was tested and contained .10 percent or more alcohol concentration. "The 234 drivers who were both drunk and at fault in the accidents were responsible for 267 fatalities, which may have included themselves, their passengers, occupants of other vehicles, pedestrians or cyclists," Thompson said.

The study is on the conservative side, Thompson said. "We are looking only at those cases where cause and effect is most evident. It is possible that there are accidents in which a driver may have been legally drunk, but the sober driver was the cause of the accident. Those situations were not included in the study," he said.

Growing Elderly Population Increases Need for Family Care

By Joyce Albrecht
Extension Home Economist

The elderly are the fastest growing segment of our county's population. The 1980 census counted 7,025 Washington County residents 65 years old and over. Demographers expect that number to increase to 12,057 by 2000, a 70% increase in just 20 years.

Wisconsin's elderly population has grown steadily and dramatically since the turn of the century. In 1900, one out of 20 state residents was over 65; today, that number is about one in eight.

The growth in the state's elderly population is partly the result of low birth rates and partly because more people are living longer. Life expectancy for Wisconsinites is almost 73 years for men and almost 80 for women, compared to 58 and 62 for Americans in 1930.

The elderly aged 85 and older are a small portion of the total elderly population but are increasing most rapidly. Washington County residents 85 and older in 1980 totaled 830, but by 2000 that number is expected to more than double to reach 1780.

People over 85 are more likely than the younger elderly to have a disability and need special help with everyday activities such as shopping or bathing.

One-third of Wisconsin residents over 85 live in nursing homes. As this group grows, their needs will challenge families and communities.

The vast majority of elderly Wisconsinites live in households - either with a spouse, a relative or alone. Only 8% live in nursing homes.

It is more common today for the elderly to live with a sibling or other relative than with their own married children. That's a change over years past. In 1900 about 60% of the elderly lived with a child. By the mid 1970's, that number had dropped to 15%.

Yet research shows that families do not abandon their elderly members. For the elderly in good health, frequent visits, letters or phone calls from adult children are the rule rather than the exception. For the disabled elderly, caregiving by the family is the norm.

For the married elderly, spouses are the main caregivers. Older couples try to keep their household intact as long as possible.

For the elderly without a spouse, the most likely caregiver is an adult daughter. Older persons who are only slightly or moderately handicapped usually stay in their own homes, often alone, and receive help with transportation, meal preparation, shopping and cleaning from nearby children. This type of arrangement allows the elderly to maintain the household independence many say they prefer.

Only the very old or extremely impaired elderly move in with one of their children - usually a daughter and her family. As more women enter the labor force, the number of daughters left home to care for elderly parents is shrinking. In Washington County, more than 40% of adult women are in the work force.

The adult children who take an elderly impaired relative into her home makes many sacrifices. They include not only the financial costs of special diets, rental equipment, and home modification, but also the "opportunity costs" of giving up outside paid employment, social activities and privacy. Over 40% of adult children participating in one survey reported that the time spent in care-giving tasks was at least equal to a full-time job. Caregivers also say they feel isolated, lonely and restricted, and they usually experience bouts of ambivalence, guilt, anger, disappointment or frustration.

Why Nursing Home Insurance?

A program designed to produce poor people would not find much favor among politicians. Yet that is what the current Medicaid program does to old people who confront an extended stay in a nursing home.

Medicaid, the nursing home health insurance of last resort, will only pay the bills after a person spends all their cash and cashes in their assets. Even the government goes after a portion of the income of the person's spouse.

Many of the elderly think Medicare will pay for their nursing home care. But Medicare only paid for 1 percent of the nursing home care in Wisconsin last year.

Some of the elderly think the Medigap policy they purchase may cover some nursing home care, but these policies do not.

A few of the elderly know that they have no coverage through Medicare or Medigap policies. They may have nursing home insurance. If they did, they found few policies available in Wisconsin because our regulations have been so strict, only limited policies have been available.

It's time for government to tell the truth to the elderly. First, it should be widely publicized that Medicare does not cover nursing home care. Second, people should know the requirements of Medicaid and be told of the dire financial consequences of an extended nursing home stay. And third, private nursing home insurance should be encouraged.

It is very unlikely that a federal or state program will become available that will not require complete financial depletion as a condition of paying for nursing home care. Therefore, it makes sense for the state to help make private nursing home insurance more available.

The state should regulate it so it is not a rip-off. However, it is insurance for an expensive form of care and the customer should expect to pay most of the initial costs and some ongoing costs of an extended nursing home stay.

Medical Society Endows MPTI Scholarship Fund

The Washington County Medical Society has endowed a scholarship fund with $5,000 for Moraine Park Technical Institute's Associate Degree Nursing Program in West Bend.

Dr. J. David Lewis, president of the society, presented the $5,000 check to Josephine Roehrborn, instructional manager/service occupations at MPTI's West Bend campus.

"We hope the existence of this fund will encourage others to donate to it. We'd like to see it expand," Lewis said.

Recipients of the scholarship must be academically able, enrolled for a minimum of eight credits in the MPTI Associate Degree Nursing Program, residents of Washington County and show financial need.

Roehrborn praised Dr. Lewis and the Medical Society, noting that the fund comes at a time when the American Hospital Association has predicted a shortage of registered nurses.

TRADE DEFICITS

In America, among our freedoms is the freedom to choose how we wish to spend our resources...in other words, economic freedom. This requires an open trade policy. By restricting imports, we restrict trade and invite retaliation by other countries which can cause a nightmare of job losses and economic dislocations. Much, if not most, proposed legislation is protectionist in nature. These proposals would raise prices to consumers and limit the products on the marketplace.

We need a tax and economic policy which encourages increases in productivity, capital improvements, and job opportunities. This results in lower unit costs which make us more competitive against foreign enterprises.

It is not the federal government's job to tell you what to buy. However, in my own case, I try to buy American. As consumers, at minimum, we can factor into our buying decisions the consideration for American manufactured and grown products. For example, one of the reasons people buy foreign automobiles is the price. If we enact protectionist policies, the foreign cars will cost more and possibly the domestic cars might increase in price because of less competition. Some of the people who desire protectionist trade policies are those who would be most adversely affected.

So, a little more consideration by every American consumer for the product made by his or her family, friend or neighbor would go a long way in helping our trade deficit problem. Just consider American, whether buying cheese, beer or a car. This will help maintain freedom of the marketplace for all of us without restricting our products or abolish the markets for our products in foreign lands.

Blue Books Available From Rep. Panzer

State Representative Mary Panzer (R-West Bend) said she still has a limited number of 1985-86 Wisconsin Blue Books available.

The Blue Book is a valuable resource tool for those seeking information about the state and its government and is particularly useful in schools, libraries and local government offices. Many individuals find the book interesting and informative.

Anyone who does not have a Blue Book and would like one may write to Representative Mary Panzer, P.O. Box 8953, Madison, WI 53708 and one will be sent by return mail. They will be distributed on a first come, first serve basis.

Representative Panzer said the 1987-88 Blue Books will not be available until this fall.

Stitt Announces Signal Improvements At Dodge Co. Crossing

Senator Donald Stitt has announced that the Soo Line railroad has been ordered to make safety improvements at its Badger Road grade crossing in the Town of Lomira, just west of US 41 in Dodge County.

The order was issued by Commissioner Joseph Sweda following a study of the safety record at the crossing.

The order requires the railroad to install automatic 12-inch flashing light signals, with automatic train-sensing devices capable of measuring the speed of oncoming trains and activating the signals accordingly.

The safety study found that the current protective devices, which consist of crossbucks and stop signs, are inadequate to protect and promote the public safety. Approximately 1,000 vehicles and 8-10 trains use the crossing daily.

The railroad was given a year in which to complete plans and install the signals. In the meantime, the Commissioner had ordered the Town of Lomira to continue to maintain the stop signs.

Stitt said the study was initiated by petition of local residents following a personal injury accident at the crossing in 1986.

Panzer Announces State Approval Of Fond du Lac Armory Construction

State Representative Mary E. Panzer (R-West Bend) announced that plans for a $1.5 million armory to be built in Fond du Lac were approved by the State Building Commission Tuesday.

Panzer said that the Building Commission, chaired by Governor Tommy Thompson, gave the go-ahead for a state expenditure of $496,000 for the Army National Guard facility to be located on Sullivan Drive on the city's southwest side. The remaining $1,004,000, according to Panzer, will come from federal funding.

"The Fond du Lac armory employs two to three full-time employees and several part-time employees, with the federal payroll of $500,000," Panzer stated. "In addition to those jobs, the construction of a new building should create a 'trickle down' effect for local businesses." Panzer pointed out that local building contractors and designers will be able to put in bids for the project.

The National Guard has been leasing space in Fond du Lac but has not been very visible in the area because of the lack of a full facility. General Ray Matera of the Wisconsin National Guard told Panzer that the new armory will help interested recruits, who, prior to now, did not know a Fond du Lac Office existed. Matera said equipment for training will be brought in as well.

The final finishing date for the new armory has not been announced, as the bidding process is just beginning.

Friends of Abused Families Planning Future Fund Raisers

Fundraising goals were set by the Board of Directors of Friends of Abused Families at their monthly meeting March 30. The group meets to raise approximately $50,000 in operating capital for 1987. If successful, the agency will be able to keep the new 24 hour shelter for battered women and their children open without any interruption or reduction in services.

The board voted to create an ad hoc local fund raising committee. Its responsibility will be to direct two money making projects and organize individual corporate giving for short term 1987 funding which will hopefully build program resources for 1988 and beyond. The two projects given board approval were publishing a cookbook and holding a benefit dance. The cookbook project will start immediately. Favorite recipes are being solicited. Persons are encouraged to call the FRIENDS office 334-7298 for more details and recipe forms. A cookbook committee will be formed this week. Eight volunteers are needed immediately to serve as section editors. Any persons who enjoy good eating, have a little practice reading recipes and would like to help FRIENDS raise operating money for the shelter are excellent candidates for the cookbook committee. Executive Director Joan Michaud, who is a home economist, with sales and marketing experience will be available to advise the cookbook committee. She was with 3 special event cookbooklets and helped various organizations in Maine coordinate their cookbook publishing projects.

Preliminary work exploring dates, locations and interests in a Benefit Dinner Dance with Auction is being done by two extremely talented music and stage performers, Diane Cook and Mary Jo Hilyard. Both women also serve on FRIENDS Board of Directors. Hilyard, an occupational therapist with Curative Services in Milwaukee is FRIENDS' Board President. Hilyard has volunteered her band to play for the benefit. Big Band arrangements for Ballroom Dancing are the specialty of the musicians Hilyard will lead. She herself is a vocalist and keyboard specialist. Diane Cook, a local Daycare and Preschool Provider, is well known in the community for her theatrical roles with Musical Masquers. She has been checking on locations, dates and food catering costs for the benefit dance. A general chairperson and subcommittee members are needed. Volunteers who would help with tickets, auction, dance contests and various fun mixers, decorations, menu arrangements, donations and publicity are sought. Anyone willing to help should call the FRIENDS office or contact any board member. The Dance Planning Committee will need to meet very soon to make definite plans.

Since the start of 1987, the FRIENDS agency has experienced a dramatic increase in individuals calling the crisis line for help with domestic violence and sexual assault situations and mothers and children seeking shelter. 25 women and 33 children have been given emergency housing at the shelter so far this year. During 1986 when a Safe Home network provided 3 day crisis housing for victims of domestic violence 3 women and 3 children spent 2 days each at volunteer Safe Homes. At the shelter, clients can stay up to 30 days. During that time individual counseling and advocacy sessions help the residents to define goals for themselves and to make arrangements to rebuild their lives. Support groups meet weekly for women in crisis. New programs emphasizing non-violent parenting are now available for mothers in shelter and clients in the community. The agency's Children's Advocate, Pat Mrozinski, has initiated a support group for children at the shelter. While the mothers meet separately their youngsters also have a chance to explore feelings, understand patterns of family behavior improve their self esteem and know that they are not alone with problems.

Other child related activities in the community include teaching day care providers about helping and understanding children living in situations where domestic violence/abuse is occurring. Children's programs are part of the agency's prevention component, designed to break the re-occurring cycle of violence in families. With treatment and education of the youthful victims they will be equipped with the skills to build their own violent free relationships.

Sheriff Warns of Credit Card Scam

Two schemes involving credit cards are hitting Washington County, according to Sheriff Clarence A. Schwartz, who advises residents to carefully guard their credit card numbers.

The first fraud involves the Corum Group of Boulder, Colorado. Corum tries to sell you a list of banks that offer low interest credit cards. The list costs $137. The Better Business Bureau of Milwaukee reports that all the consumer gets is a list of five or six banks. Because the company is not affiliated with these banks, the consumer has to apply to each of them, and may or may not get a card. Financial magazines regularly print lists and carry advertisements that include this information, at far less than the $137 demanded by Corum.

Sheriff Schwartz reports that the department has received several inquiries from residents about Corum. Corum telephones potential customers, then asks the customer to call back, using a 800 number.

The Sheriff's Department also reminds residents that they should refuse to provide their credit card number to strangers who call on the telephone. The numbers can be used to defraud numbers. A claim that you have won a sweepstakes or other contest, and your credit card number is needed to "verify" your eligibility is a clear case of fraud.

Generally, it is safe to order merchandise by phone when it is the consumer who initiates the phone call and orders from a reputable retailer.

Sen. Stitt Reports On Strategic Plan For State Parks

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recently prepared a long-range strategic plan for the Wisconsin state park system. Based on 13,650 questionnaire responses, the plan will be used to guide the park system to the year 2000.

Traditionally, the park system has had a three part mission of resource protection, outdoor recreation, and outdoor education. The strategic plan will enhance services in all three areas.

In the area of resource protection, the DNR hopes to acquire more land for state parks and improve the maintenance of our existing parks. It intends to leave 90% of the land undeveloped to allow park visitors to enjoy the land in its natural state.

The DNR expects to improve outdoor recreation by developing 1,100 more campsites. Reservations will be accepted by telephone and credit card.

To reach more people to take advantage of the park system, the DNR will improve park access for people with disabilities. Videotapes of parks will be produced and shown to people in hospitals, nursing homes and senior citizens centers.

The strategic plan also calls for improving campsites facilities. Rustic cabins may be built, more shower and electrical hookups installed, and additional concessions provided.

Finally, toward achieving its educational mission, the park system plans to work closely with schools and other agencies. More naturalists will be available to answer visitors' questions, and study guides and other publications on the environment will be produced.

We in Wisconsin have been very fortunate to have such wonderful parks in our own backyard. The park system's strategic plan assures us that we will all be able to enjoy them for many years to come.

Prizes to Be Given for Returning Fish Tags

Anglers! If you have tags from fish caught in Long Lake, Fond du Lac County, you may miss your golden opportunity to win one of many prizes to be given away by the Long Lake Fishing Club. For each tag returned, your name will be entered once in the drawing which will be held in June to award prizes which are being provided by the fishing club to encourage cooperation with a Department of Natural Resources study of the fishery on this popular lake. Prizes will consist of fishing tackle and accessories.

In April 1986, Department of Natural Resources tagged 581 northern pike, 342 largemouth bass, and 145 walleye as part of a study to determine the population of fish in Long Lake and to measure the effect that anglers have on heavily fished lakes. Throughout the fishing season, a creel census was conducted to learn how many people fished Long Lake and what they were catching. The creel clerk also collected tags from anglers catching tagged fish. Also, tag return boxes are located at accesses around the lake for anglers to deposit tags.

So far, anglers have returned 190 tags from fish they caught. The accuracy of this study depends on anglers' cooperation in reporting tagged fish caught. The Department of Natural Resources is asking that all anglers who caught tagged fish in Long Lake between May 1986 and April 1987 return the tags to either the creel census clerk, the tag boxes or mail to Department of Natural Resources, 1210 N. Palmatory Street, Horicon, WI 53032. Get your name entered in the drawing for the excellent prizes.
