Vandals Destroy Spirit of the Holiday Season

By GERRY MUELLER

Christmas is supposed to be the time of peace and good will but instead, for many property owners in Kewaskum and throughout the county, it is becoming a time of anger and bitterness.

The targets of that anger are vandals who, for the last two weeks, have either stolen or damaged a variety of residential Christmas decorations.

The Kewaskum Police Department alone has received almost a dozen complaints regarding theft or damage of everything from flood lights to plywood yard ornaments. "It's senseless vandalism," stated Kewaskum Police Chief Richard Knoebel, "it's going on all over the county."

Knoebel said he did not think it was just the actions of juveniles. "You have to have a car the way they're hitting all over the village." This is no longer kid pranks, it's criminal damage to, or theft of property, he noted. What they don't steal, they are damaging.

Knoebel said juveniles apprehended can be fined $25 per incident and/or sent to Juvenile Intake. Individuals over 18 can be arrested and fined $91 per incident.

"If anyone sees or hears anything suspicious I wish they would contact us immediately," said Knoebel, "any information leading to an arrest would be appreciated." During normal office hours calls can be directed to the police department at 626-2323. After hours calls should be made to the Washington County Sheriff's Department dispatcher at 338-4411, who will relay the call to the officer on duty.

"It's really a shame," said Knoebel, "The Chamber of Commerce is trying hard to get the residents involved in their community." People have really gone all out this year to decorate their homes, he noted, and then you have senseless incidents like this.

Monday night was scheduled for the judging of the home decorations contest. Knoebel indicated he would be putting both the marked and unmarked squads on the road as both a deterrent and, if necessary, to apprehend any individuals caught in the act of vandalizing or stealing ornaments.

Due to the extremely cold weather, the photos of the winners of the Christmas Decorating Contest will be published in next week's issue.

1989 Outstanding Conservation Farmers of Area Recognized

The Kewaskum Kiwanis have selected the Marvin Marquardt and the Gerald Van Beek families as their 1989 Outstanding Conservation farmers. The award was established in 1958 to recognize the soil conservation efforts of farm families living within the Kewaskum School District. To date 62 farms have been recognized for their conservation efforts. The award is presented as a part of the Kiwanis annual farm city meeting. Marvin and Lucille Marquardt own and operate a 146 acre dairy farm in Farmington township. They crop over 100 acres and milk 30 cows. Marquardt's developed their conservation plan in 1965 and established 26 acres of contour strips that same year. In addition to strips, the Marquardt's use crop rotations and reduced tillage to control

Weekend Accident Injures Five

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

An accident early Sunday afternoon injured five people, one of them seriously.

A Washington County Sheriff's Department spokesperson said the accident, involving a truck and car, occurred at 1:36 p.m., on Highway 41, just south of Canary Road.

According to the department's report, a vehicle driven by Gregory Bauer, 40, of 1931 Greentree Road, West Bend, had been stopped on the shoulder of the southbound lanes of Highway 41, about 40 feet south of Canary Road. Bauer reportedly attempted to make a U-turn across the two southbound lanes back to Canary Road when he drove into the path of a southbound car driven by Wade Mattice, 24, of South Milwaukee.

Bauer, Mattice and three passengers in the Mattice vehicle, Debbie Ziegenhagen, 18, and Craig Morowski, 20, of South Milwaukee and Cherie Aldertone, 23, of West Allis all sustained injuries and were transported by two Kewaskum ambulances to St. Joseph's Community Hospital, West Bend.

A spokesperson at the hospital said Mattice, Ziegenhagen and Morowski were treated and released. Aldertone was transferred to the Milwaukee County Medical Complex where she was still in critical condition Tuesday as the result of multiple trauma. The hospital said it had no record of treating Bauer.

The Sheriff's Department said Bauer was cited for Operating a Vehicle While Intoxicated.

Village of Kewaskum NEWS NOTES 'Snow and Ice Removal'

The snow and ice season has arrived bringing along some problems. To alleviate the problem or to clarify a few items let us refer to the Municipal Code, Chapter 8.09, which covers "Snow and Ice Removal."

I. Sidewalks to be kept clear. The owner or occupant of any lot or parcel shall promptly each day remove all snow and ice which may have fallen or accumulated upon when ice has so formed that it cannot be removed, the owner or occupant shall keep the same sprinkled with a material which will prevent the sidewalk from being dangerous to pedestrians. If the owner or occupant fails to comply with this subsection, the Superintendent of Public Works shall cause the snow or ice to be removed or sprinkled as required in this section and the cost thereof assessed against the property as a special tax.

II. Snow not to be deposited in the streets. No person shall cause to be deposited snow from his premises or sidewalk abutting thereon onto any street in the Village without a permit from the Superintendent of Public Works who may require to be paid a fee sufficient to reimburse the Village for the cost of removal of such snow.

III. Other sidewalk hazards. This is the deposit of or washing of gravel from a private driveway onto a sidewalk. We ask that this gravel also be removed promptly. It should be noted that not only does this gravel create a hazard on the sidewalk, but when it ends up in the gutter it blocks water drainage and eventually blocks/plugs storm sewers.

As for this and all ordinances a penalty is also provided for in Chapter 25.04 of this Municipal Code.

soil erosion. Some extremely steep areas have been left in permanent hay cover. The Marquardt's have also provided areas on the farm to benefit wildlife including leaving the wooded bottom lands along Stoney Creek in a natural condition.

The Gerald Van Beek family owns and operates an 80 acre dairy farm in Wayne township. Van Beek's developed their conservation plan in 1981 and currently use 45 acres of contour strips to control soil loss on their steeper cropland. In addition to strips the Van Beek's use crop rotations and contour farming to complete their conservation system. A diversion has also been constructed above the barn to reduce runoff from the barnyard and driveway areas. It is important to mention that Van Beek's have installed conservation practices on rented land as well as their own in an effort to control soil loss on their entire operation.

The efforts of these family's to control soil erosion are important because the productivity of their land will be maintained for future generations and the lakes and streams near their farms will be protected from pollution by nonpoint source runoff.

Farmington Students Raise Over $1,800 in St. Jude's Marathon

Luke Reindl

Luke Reindl, a Farmington first grader, with the help of his parents and friends, earned $650.00 to contribute to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The program was coordinated by Principal Tom Larsen, and Michele Theisen, a Farmington PTO parent. Luke and forty other students took pledges for each problem they completed in a math funbook, provided by St. Jude's. The books contain approximately 200 problems and are specially designed for each age group. The math problems ranged from tangible tables, puzzles, dot-to-dots, and cartoons, and problems that form codes and messages to be decoded. Over $1,800 was collected and donated to children's cancer research with hopes to help find a cure.

Twenty-eight students collected more than $25.00 each, to win a T-shirt. We also had two students who collected more than $100.00 each. They received a barrel tote bag in addition to their T-shirt.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, located in Memphis, Tennessee, is the largest pediatric facility in the world established solely for the research of catastrophic childhood diseases. It is a non-sectarian interracial institution that accepts its patients on a physician referral basis with no financial burden placed on the patient's family.

Penny Candy Was Part Of Memorable Old-Time Holiday

Penny candy long ago followed the old-fashioned Christmas down memory lane.

Before the turn of the century, sourballs and peppermint canes, typical penny candies, were placed right on the tree. The canes were hung on tree branches; the sourballs hung in little bags or were used to fill the tree's many cornucopias.

German and Swiss Christmas Festivities

German and Swiss Christmas customs are followed in parts of Pennsylvania. A miniature Nativity scene, called a putz (meaning ornament) is usually set up by Moravian families. The Moravians shape cookies in the form of angels, sheep or camels and add them to the putz.

Library Systems to Receive State Aid Payment

MADISON — State Superintendent Herbert J. Grover has announced that Wisconsin public library systems received state aid of about $7.2 million in the first of two payments for 1990 operations.

Wisconsin's 17 library systems will share $9,563,300 during 1990 to provide services mandated by statutes. The Department of Public Instruction's Division for Library Services administers library system aid. The first payment represents 75 percent of the total amount to be distributed.

"Extending public library system services to all state residents has been a goal of this department since legislation enabling the formation of systems was enacted 17 years ago," Grover said. "This year that goal was achieved when Florence County joined the Nicolet Federated Library System. Now, all 72 counties and 372 public libraries in the state are members of public library systems."

Grover also praised the people who serve on library system boards for their efforts to improve library service throughout the state. Public Library systems are governed by boards of trustees appointed by participating counties' boards of supervisors. "These boards help make public library system services effective and responsive in meeting the informational needs of all Wisconsin citizens," he said.

Public library systems are county and multicounty organizations designed to improve library services and increase access to library materials. Although required to provide certain services, systems have latitude in developing programs to meet the needs of their individual system service area. System library services include:

Ensuring that system residents have access to all public libraries within the system.

Responding to user requests through interloan of library materials.

Fostering cooperation among public, school, academic, and special libraries.

Coordinating planning for library automation, collection development, and services to special-need populations.

Member libraries also receive delivery services, consulting resources, and continuing education opportunities for librarians.

The first payment for 1990 Wisconsin Public Library System Aid included Mid-Wisconsin Federated Library System — Dodge, Fond du Lac, Jefferson and Washington counties — $454,700.

You often hear about the Internal Revenue Service looking for people who owe tax money, but the IRS is now trying to find people who should have received money and didn't — people who didn't get their tax refunds from their 1988 Federal income tax returns.

According to Marilyn Day, Assistant Director of the Milwaukee (Wisconsin) District of IRS, 605 refund checks worth a total of $281,383.83 were returned by the Postal Service in Wisconsin because postal carriers were unable to deliver them. Forty-four of the checks were worth over $1,000. The largest check is for $64,640.82.

When a refund is returned by the Postal Service, the IRS attempts to find the taxpayer and deliver the checks; but there are always some people who cannot be found. Those taxpayers may have moved or changed their last names during the year and failed to notify the IRS — or their handwriting may be unreadable.

If you think you are one of those taxpayers whose refund checks couldn't be delivered, please contact the Internal Revenue Service immediately. If you live in the Milwaukee metropolitan area, call 271-3780. If you're calling from elsewhere in the state, call the IRS, toll-free, at 1-800-424-1040.

Cutouts from this year's Christmas cards can make intriguing decorations on next year's Christmas wrappings. Cut out silhouettes of angels, Santas, the Three Wise Men, whatever appeals to you.

Senate Approves Kohl-Obey Plan Raising Rural Hospital Payments

WASHINGTON — The Senate has passed a proposal by Sen. Herb Kohl and Rep. David Obey that would sharply increase Medicare payments to rural hospitals.

The legislation by the Wisconsin Democrats was contained in the Budget Reconciliation Bill that cleared the Senate by an 87-7 margin and now heads for a House-Senate conference.

"This is wonderful news to rural hospitals in Wisconsin and throughout the United States," Kohl said following the vote. "This is an important first step to help rural hospitals meet their costs and keep their doors open."

In May, Kohl and Obey introduced legislation aimed at helping rural hospitals narrow the inequities in the Medicare payment schedule that allows a lower reimbursement to rural hospitals than urban hospitals for the same procedures.

In the Reconciliation Bill, the Senate agreed to increase payments to rural hospitals by 3 percent above the so-called market basket for fiscal year 1990, which began Sept. 1.

Reimbursements for hospitals in suburban areas will be 1.4 percent below the market basket.

Straub Places 2nd In Wrestling Event At UW-Whitewater

Like most of the Warhawk teams, the undefeated University of Wisconsin-Whitewater wrestling team wrapped up its first semester schedule last Saturday. UW-W competed in the Wisconsin Collegiate Open hosted by UW-Parkside in Kenosha. The Open is not a team scored event.

Before the Wisconsin Collegiate, on Wednesday, the Warhawks upped their dual meet mark to 3-0 with a 48-3 win over Carthage College in Williams Center. Whitewater won nine of the ten weight classes against Carthage. The roll call of UW-W victories included: 142 Rich Straub pin in 1:42.

Lake Maps Available For Ice Fishermen

Ice Fishermen! No more cutting through a foot of ice to find 6 inches of water underneath. An index of over 2500 Wisconsin Mapped Lakes will help many Ice Fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A lake map is actually a hydrographic chart. So what's a hydrographic chart? A hydrographic chart is simply a high-faluting term for a map showing the various depths of a lake along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing... such as kind of lake bottom (sand, mud, gravel, etc...)

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a Wisconsin Hydrographic Chart you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom.

The index is available at no charge by sending a self-addressed, stamped (45c) No. 10 business envelope to: Wisconsin Ice Fishing, Box 5096, Madison, Wisconsin 53705-0096.

"Don't grieve for me, I'm only resting,
And you'll see me again someday."

Always loved and deeply missed by your wife Elda, family and grandchildren.

Beltone Introduces Powerful In-The-Canal Hearing Aid

Small hearing aids are no longer only for small hearing losses.

A technological breakthrough at Beltone Electronics Corp. has prompted the introduction of the most powerful in-the-canal instrument available on the market today, the Beltone Opera Max.

"People like the in-the-canal instruments best, because they're smallest and least noticeable," said Tom Thompson, owner of the Beltone Hearing Aid Center located at 2395 W. Washington in West Bend.

"Before, only individuals with milder hearing losses could be correctly fit with in-the-canal aids. Now, the Opera Max allows individuals with moderate and moderately severe hearing losses to wear these tiny instruments," he added.

Thompson said that despite its tiny size, the new Beltone Opera Max is more powerful than many in-the-ear and behind-the-ear styles. Plus, it's even less noticeable than conventional in-the-canal instruments.

"Advances in design have made it possible for this aid to better follow the ear's natural contours, allowing it to sit deeper in the ear canal and be more natural-looking," said Thompson.

The Opera Max features Beltone's revolutionary Sentry Wax Guard System (TM), which virtually eliminates the common problem of wax buildup. Thompson said that until the Sentry, wax buildup was the number-one cause for in-the-canal instrument failure. Each Beltone Opera Max is also equipped with the exclusive Beltone Cushion-Lock (TM), receiver mounting system for greater stability and performance.

The new Beltone Opera Max is available now from the Beltone Hearing Aid Service Center located at Kennelly Pharmacy, 927 Fond du Lac in Kewaskum.

To schedule a free, electronic hearing evaluation, please call us at 626-8001.

Headquartered in Chicago, Beltone Electronics Corp. was founded in 1940 and has sold more than three million hearing aids.

The tallest cut Christmas tree is said to be one erected at the Northgate Shopping Center in Seattle, Washington, for the holiday season in 1950. It was a 221-foot Douglas fir.

The popular singer, who has produced 27 different recordings, is known for his vocal interpretations of old and new sacred music. Loving's recordings are on his own Music Plant label and his latest release is titled, "Revived."

Sacred music takes about half of Loving's ministering time. When he's not on the road, he's at North Central Bible College in Minneapolis where he serves as the chairman of the Department of Communications. Loving has a master's degree in journalism from Ball State University and he is enrolled in the doctoral program at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois.

New Hotline Number For Farmers Assistance

The Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) Farmers Assistance Hotline announces a new toll-free hotline number, (800) 942-2474.

"Since the hotline was created in February 1986, DATCP has provided thousands of farmers and service agencies with information on farm financial programs, legal information, and numerous other topics," says Pam Raschein, Farmers Assistance Program coordinator.

A new direct hotline number allows callers to reach the hotline without using an operator. "Not only will this option save the caller time, but it will cost the department less to offer the service," stated Raschein. "This improvement moves us toward our goal of offering the best service possible to Wisconsin farmers."

Callers can reach the Farmers Assistant Hotline by calling (800) 942-2474 toll-free, or (608) 266-2678. Program office hours are Monday through Friday, from 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Messages can be left during evening and weekend hours.

Advent Represents Four Prophecies

The four weeks of Advent preceding Christmas represent the four great prophecies concerning the coming of the Saviour in the Old Testament.

The first promise of the Redeemer was made in paradise after the fall of our first parents; the woman and her Son would crush the head of the serpent.

The second promise is found in the story of Abraham. This patriarch was chosen as the father of a new nation, and in his seed all the nations of the earth would be blessed. Out of the nation of Abraham the family of David was selected, and out of this family the Saviour of the world would be born, fulfilling the third promise.

Lastly, out of David's family a person was to spring forth, the Virgin Mother of Christ: "A virgin shall bring forth a Son and His name shall be called Emmanuel, God with us."

Corn Belt Research Construction Underway

Dairyland Seed's construction of a new Corn Belt Research Breeding Station will help the company to develop higher yielding hybrid corn and soybean varieties.

Construction of a new Corn Belt Research Breeding Station for Dairyland Seed was begun this fall. The focus of the Gibson City effort will be on DSR soybean research and DX hybrid corn research.

Groundbreaking took place in September and completion is anticipated by the first of the year. According to Dairyland Executive Vice-President, Tom Strachota, "There'll be seven primary functions provided by this research facility."

Functions include an office area for the research staff, in-house laboratory testing, a climate-controlled cold storage vault for maintaining germ plasm, a seed set-up area where tens of thousands of test packets of seeds will be packaged annually, a storage area where whole soybean plants will be stored before they are individually thrashed, a custom designed drying system for reducing moisture in the hybrid corn and soybean test varieties, and a greenhouse complex for disease and insect screening research.

Strachota stated the cost for this research station would be "well into the six digits," although he declined to specify the exact cost. He indicated that the expansion of Dairyland's Cornbelt research facility at Gibson City was due to the increased demand among farmers for higher yielding hybrid corn and soybean varieties that provide genetic defense against today's yield reducing disease and insects. "Farmers are looking for built-in genetic defense rather than the use of herbicides and pesticides to overcome yield loss," said Strachota.

He indicated that the popularity of the DSR soybean lineup and DX hybrid corn lineup justified the expansion of this research facility at this time.

For more information, contact Dairyland Seed Co., Inc. P.O. Box 958, West Bend, Wisconsin 53095 or call (414) 338-0163.

Miller Brewing Announces Super Bowl Sweepstakes Winner

MILWAUKEE (Dec. 18, 1989) — While the National Football League's elite teams continue to battle for playoff berths and the chance to earn a trip to Super Bowl XXIV, William Rogina of Oak Creek can start packing his bags for the big game in New Orleans on Jan. 28.

Rogina won his trip for two to Super Bowl XXIV by finding a special certificate hidden inside one of 50 special cases of 12- and 24-packs of Miller Lite cans hidden nationwide. Miller Lite is the only beer brand featuring the Super Bowl XXIV logo on its packaging.

Rogina's prize includes two tickets to the Super Bowl, airfare and accommodations plus spending money. Miller Lite is awarding a quarter-million dollars in prize packages between Nov. 5 and Jan. 27, the day before the Super Bowl.

The consumer promotion is part of Miller Brewing Company's biggest Super Bowl promotion in history. The program includes seven new television commercials in which the Miller Lite All-Stars take to the gridiron to settle the ongoing "tastes great — less filling" debate.

The campaign features Miller Lite All-Star veterans such as Larry Csonka, Bert Jones and L.C. Greenwood plus new Miller Lite All-Stars and former NFL stars Randy White, Joe Washington, Joe Klecko and Dwight Clark. Sitcom stars George Wendt and Richard Moll also play prominent roles in the spots.

The campaign reaches an action-paced conclusion on Jan. 14 during the NFC Championship Game telecast on CBS-TV when the outcome of the Miller Lite contest is decided and the winning team takes home a case of Miller Lite.

Rogina may appear in Miller Lite advertising as the company also plans to use some of the campaign's early Super Bowl ticket winners in special print advertisements.

Miller is a wholly owned subsidiary of Philip Morris Companies Inc. Principal beer brands include Miller High Life, Miller Lite, Miller Genuine Draft, Lowenbrau, Magnum, Meister Brau and Milwaukee's Best.

The following policies were presented to the board and public for the first reading: #1400R-Guidelines for Questioning of Students by Non-school Personnel; #4116.13-Drug Free Workplace; #4152.8-Unpaid Leaves of Absence; #4240-Support Staff Leaves and Absences; #5113.2-Attendance -Full-time Students Defined; #5141.2-Student Medication Policy; #5135-Management of School Activity Funds; #9361.1-Regular Meetings.

Dr. David Heather presented the board and public with information regarding possible attendance boundary changes for the 90-91 and 91-92 school years.

The proposed boundary changes will be explained at each attendance center in the future during a PTO meeting or other special meeting. Parents of those children affected will be contacted via a letter in the mail.

Ron Beimborn requested Dr. Heather to provide the board with facts and figures regarding what it would take to reopen Beechwood School. These figures should be compiled without taking into consideration any boundary changes - the figures should only reflect the elimination of overcrowding at Farmington Elementary.

John Schulte asked Dr. Heather to prepare a list of needs and costs if the K-3 classes district-wide were limited to 20 students per class.

Mrs. Schmitt questioned whether Mr. Beimborn wanted information pertaining to grades K-3 only at Beechwood. Mr. Beimborn replied that there were several possibilities - maybe only 5th and 6th grade should be taught at Beechwood. He reiterated that he'd like Dr. Heather to check into all options.

Dr. Heather said the information would be made available at the January board meeting.

Schulte/Nowak motion that the board adopt a policy to hire one full-time instructional aide to help in classes of 26 students or more with a cap of 30 students in K-3 classes - this to take effect second semester 1990.

Dr. Heather highlighted the information that had been distributed to the board and audience. He stressed that numbers were purely arbitrary and there are no facts available to prove that class size alone is the sole factor in enhancing or detracting from learning.

About ten parents and teachers from the audience took turns drawing the board's attention to specific circumstances, providing information compiled from other districts regarding aides and class sizes, and requesting that the board commit to adding aides where needed in grades K-3.

Having had sufficient discussion, President Weare asked for a vote. Motion failed 2-5 with Mr. Ankerson, Mrs. Schmitt, Mr. Nowak, Mr. Beimborn and Mr. Seymour voting no.

Kevin Kapp, who faced Eric Kirsch, had a tough match. Unable to do anything in the 1st period, it wasn't until the second period when Kapp was able to escape and reverse Kirsch. Kirsch, however, proved to be too tough for Kapp, defeating him 3-15.

Josh Kurtz lost a close match to David Rarstead. Almost pinning Kurtz in the second period, Rarstead kept the hold on tight and won the match with a close score of 7-8.

FARMING A HAZARDOUS OCCUPATION

Farming has been identified as one of the most hazardous and stressful occupations. This leads to the potential for many farm accidents resulting in deaths and serious injury.

As the busy spring planting season approaches we will be approaching one of the most critical times of the year for farm accidents. An accident will happen this year on one out of every five Wisconsin Farms.

Every year farm accidents disable 200,000 farmers in the United States. Many injuries are fatal. Accidents can happen in seconds, but their consequences may last a lifetime. Children with their lack of experience and short attention span are often the victims.

What leads up to farm accidents, why do farmers who have worked for years without a mishap suddenly make tragic mistakes? Although three out of 4 accidents involve tractors and equipment, machinery is rarely at fault. Usually human factors, haste, stress, fatigue, worry or depression are to blame. Avoiding accidents is largely a matter of habit of drilling yourself until safety becomes second nature and teach every one else on the farm to do the same.

If accidents do occur knowing how to respond, who to call and how to deal with the situation is critical to saving lives and reducing injury. All family members should be aware of what procedures to take if an accident should occur. Some suggestions include making a listing of all emergency numbers and posting them near a telephone, so that anyone has quick access to them. Each family members should be aware how to call for help, including, how to give specific directions to where the help is needed. This may include street address, fire number or other appropriate directions. Valuable time can be lost by response teams if inadequate directions are provided. Younger or inexperienced workers should be given adequate instructions on how to safely operate and work with pieces of machinery around livestock or other concerns. When individuals are working alone away from the building area some periodic method of communication and checkup should be established to reduce the potential for problems.

Family members should be aware of the basics of first aid to provide assistance if and when accidents should occur.

Most accidents don't just happen. If a little planning or common sense had been utilized, the accident or injury probably would not have occurred. Make safety a part of your daily farming practices and your potential for injury will certainly be less.

Poor 3rd Quarter Dooms Indian Girls

The Kewaskum girls' basketball team played well for most of the game against Kiel last week, but a dry spell in the third quarter proved costly in the Indians' 43-42 loss.

After leading 22-16 at the half, the Indians went to a smaller lineup, to possibly add some much-needed spark to the rebounding game. But instead, the strategy backfired as Kewaskum could not score a single point until only two minutes remained in the quarter, by which time Kiel had run off 12 straight points to take a 28-22 lead. The Kiel lead remained at 6, 32-26, at the end of the third quarter.

Kewaskum began mounting their comeback midway through the fourth, as Pam Osterbrink hit a pair of baskets to cut the Raider lead to 38-36.

With under a minute to play in the game, Nicole Doherty scored to give the Indians the lead, 40-39. Immediately, Kiel answered as their star, Terry Steffen, hit a pair of free throws to put her team back on top by one.

The Indians committed a turnover which led to another Raider basket, giving them a 43-40 lead. Debbie Rempel hit a clutch hoop late, but a last-ditch effort by the Indians to pull out a victory, went for naught as Osterbrink couldn't get a shot away as time expired.

Kewaskum, whose record fell to 0-2 in conference, were led by Osterbrink, who hit for 14 points, while Doherty added 8 and Rempel 7.

Steffan scored a game high 18 points for Kiel, while Kelly Schuler added 14 for the Raiders, who improved their record to 6-3, 2-1 in conference.

Express Shoots Past Kewaskum In Lakes Game

OCONOMOWOC — The Oconomowoc Express sent Kewaskum home with another loss, 147-108, in Land O'Lakes action here Sunday night. The win evens Coony's record at 1-1 while Kewaskum drops to 0-3.

Unlike their first two games, Kewaskum hung close in this one for the first three quarters. The Express took a narrow 35-31 first-quarter lead, and increased it to 66-57 at the half and 92-80 after three quarters before exploding with a 55-point fourth quarter.

The Express converted 13 of 20 free throws for 65.0 percent, while Kewaskum was 16 of 22 for 72.7 percent.

Craig Marshall delivered 32 points for the Express, Cole Braun 27, Craig Janny 22, and Norm Roth 20. Doug Peller had 37 for Kewaskum, Tony Pirozzoli 30, and Mike Goldsworthy 21.

The Lakes league now breaks for two weeks for the holidays. Kewaskum will host Cedarburg in their next game on January 7.

Indian Boys Lose Another Close One

KIEL — The Indian boy's basketball team followed in the varsity girls' footsteps as they also squandered a lead and fell to Kiel by a single point, 59-58.

The Indian girls' team held a six-point halftime lead, but wound up losing 43-42, on Tuesday.

On Thursday, the Indian boys held a six-point lead in the fourth quarter, but they couldn't hold on, and had their record fall below .500, at 2-3, 0-2 in conference.

The first quarter saw the two teams play even, ending in a 12-12 tie, and Kiel nudged ahead in the second to hold a slim 29-26 lead at the half.

The Indians caught fire in the third period, as they outscored the Raiders 20-15, and held a 46-44 cushion going into the final period.

Kiel drew even in the fourth, and eventually took the lead from the Indians in a tight battle. With under a half-minute to play and Kiel holding a 59-58 lead, Brian Leitheiser came short on a jumper, as did Mark Felix on the rebound. The Indians got one more opportunity, however, as the Raider's Jason Strebe missed a free throw attempt.

Felix grabbed the ball and launched a prayer that came within inches of being answered as the ball harmlessly hit the rim and bounced to the floor, giving the Raiders a hard-fought win.

Indian 6-4 senior Rich Radtke led his team with 17 points and six rebounds, while Leitheiser chipped in 13, including 12 in the second half. The Indian's leading scorer on the season, 6-4 center Steve Gerhartz was held to just 9 points, although he remained a force on the boards, coming up with 11 rebounds.

Strebe led the Raiders with 17 points, to go along with 4 blocked shots. Dean Meyer also added 17, including 13 in the second half.

Here's Prayer For Christmas

St. Francis of Assisi is perhaps best remembered for his influence on the caroling tradition. He was, however, a great friend to animals and a writer of note. He is given credit for authorship of this Christmas Prayer:

Lord, make me an instrument of Thy Peace

Where there is hatred, let me sow love.

Where there is injury, pardon. Where there is doubt, faith. Where there is despair, Hope. Where there is darkness, light. Where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master, Grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console;

To be understood, as to understand;

To be loved, as to love;

For it is in giving that we receive,

It is in pardoning that we are pardoned,

And it is in dying that we are born to Eternal Life.

CHRISTMAS HOLDS TRUE MEANING

Some say we have lost the true meaning of Christmas, that the holiday has become too commercial. Nothing can be farther from the truth. Jesus himself said it . . .

"For the Son of man is come to seek and save that which was lost."

We have not lost the meaning of Christmas; it remains, it flourishes. We see it all around us. We need only look through the open door of a church, search the eyes of a child, reach out in some way to touch the heart of a friend or relative.

The spirit of Christmas lives within all mankind. We may disguise it, fail to recognize it openly, but within the heart there lies a knowledge that Christmas marks more than the birth of a child; it pronounces a fulfillment of the promise of God.

Nothing can be more certain; nothing has so well stood the test of centuries to remain forever the same.

A Gift of Love

Surely the shepherds wanted to bring gifts to honor the Baby Jesus, but since they had little money what could they bring? Perhaps it could be a handmade rattle, a calendar carved in wood, or a tiny bell—maybe it could be a baby lamb—the finest of the flock. Whatever their gift was, it was brought in love and love counted.

It was quite different with the kings of the East. The Magi brought rich gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. Unbeknown to the rich kings these gifts would help provide a living for Mary and Joseph and Baby Jesus when they must flee to Egypt for two years.

Proper Selection of Trees and Shrubs Can Help to Minimize Electric Bills

Planting the right tree in the right place won't leave you out on a limb — and without electricity — when the tree matures.

"The proper selection of trees and shrubs you intend to plant on your property will enhance the environment, help ensure reliable electrical service and can even help minimize your electric bills," said Dale Konieczka, system forester at Wisconsin Electric Power Co. "At the same time, a haphazard planting of trees and shrubs could directly endanger your home and its utilities in the future."

Small trees and shrubs that will reach a mature height of 15 feet or less will not pose a future power line clearance problem or threaten electric service. And, checking with Diggers Hotline (344-5111 in the Milwaukee area, toll free at 1-800-242-8511 elsewhere in Wisconsin; in Michigan, call MISS DIG at 1-800-482-7171) for the location of underground power lines will help avoid striking power lines when planting.

Planting certain trees and shrubs also can help keep down your electric bill.

Deciduous trees (those that lose their leaves) planted on the west and southwest sides of your house will shade roof and wall surfaces in the summer, offering natural air conditioning for your house, Konieczka advised. In the winter, the bare branches will let most of the sunshine through to warm the house.

"A windbreak of evergreens planted to the north and west of your house can help achieve energy savings during the winter," he said. "The correct plantings around the base of house can create a dead air space that will help insulate."

More information on where to plant and recommendations on what to plant on your property is available in a free booklet from Wisconsin Electric, "The Right Tree in the Right Place." To get your copy, call Wisconsin Electric's Energy Facts Phone at 221-2000. Outside the Milwaukee area, call toll-free at 1-800-222-9288.

In Czechoslovakia a girl tells her fortune by putting a cherry twig in water on Dec. 4. If it blossoms before Christmas Eve, she will marry sometime that year, World Book Encyclopedia explains.

Country Christmas

Ted Keyes almost laughed out loud at the bitter reaction of the other passengers when the driver told them the big bus was stranded in the small mountain community of Hillside.

Ted didn't care about the delay. He wasn't "going home" for Christmas as most of his fellow passengers were. He was going to King City to take a new job, and he had a week to get there.

He followed the others as they filed out of the bus and ran the short distance into the general store, eager to escape the fury of the winter storm as quickly as possible.

Somber Group

They gathered about the potbellied stove, quiet, oblivious of one another, each wrapped in his own unhappy thoughts.

A big man, elderly, yet straight as a ramrod, entered from a back room.

"Welcome, folks, welcome. Nice to have so much company on Christmas Eve. Ma's putting on the big coffee pot and making some hot chocolate for the kiddies. Don't go reaching for your wallets. This'll be compliments of Ben Flowers, who wishes you one and all a Merry Christmas. If any of you want to make phone calls, reversing the charges, of course, phone's out there in the kitchen. Now, just make yourself to home."

There was a mad rush toward the kitchen. Ted found himself an unoccupied chair near the stove and relaxed.

He was suddenly conscious of the fact that Ben Flowers was shoveling more coal into the stove and that the noise had awakened him. Two youngsters were sleeping on a pallet in one corner. An old man puffed on his pipe on the opposite side of the stove. No one else was in sight.

"Where is everyone?"

"Gone to church. Little mission up the road. Minister came down and issued invitations to a special service. Tried to wake you, but you're a sound sleeper, son. In fact, I had to slam this stove door five or six times to wake you."

"Why?"
 "Just thought you might give me a hand. I ain't as young as I used to be, I found that out. Come along, will you?"

The Tree

Ted followed the man through the kitchen. The old man pointed to a Christmas tree resting against the back porch.

"Cut that tree and brought it down from the hill. Tuckered me out, for sure. Help me get it in, will you?"

"You're putting up a tree on Christmas morning?"

"Yep, first one in several years. Me and Ma sorta got out of the habit, son, not having any folks or any youngsters about. Now, this stop over that is such a bother to you is a real occasion for us. We just gotta have a tree, son, and that's all there is to it."

Like Christmas

After that, it was just like Christmas, Ted and Ben Flowers finished the tree, then retired to the kitchen to drink coffee and watch Mrs. Flowers prepare a Christmas meal—turkey, dressing, cranberries, all the things Ted remembered as part of Christmas during his childhood days.

The church-goers returned to find that Mrs. Flowers had wrapped a small gift for each one—actually two gifts were left over, because she had erred in her count of those in attendance. No one seemed to notice.

It was an unusual Christmas dinner—served in the early morning, on paper plates. Ted always remembered how everyone had eaten heartily and had happily said goodbye to the old couple at the country store. Someday soon he would write the Fosters and tell them that they'd made quite a scene in King City when the bus roared into town with all of the passengers singing Christmas Carols and shouting "Merry Christmas" to everyone in sight.

Christmas of Lights

In the 19th Century Christmases in Western Europe glowed with light:

In Spain, children scattered through city streets carrying lamps on poles to light the way for the Three Kings who brought gifts.

In Italy the flames of candles lit ornate church creches.

In Germany, halls were purposefully kept dark so that children would be dazzled as they burst into a room where bright candles burned on the Christmas tree.

In Sweden, young girls wore bonnets of candles as they brought music and hot drinks at 2 a.m. on St. Lucias Day, December 13.

In France, windows blazed with light on Christmas night as the yule log was ceremoniously ignited.

Guard Against Toy-Related Eye Injuries This Holiday Season

When shopping for children's holiday gifts, beware of dangerous toys that threaten the eyes, warns The National Society to Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin. An estimated 21,000 eye injuries were linked to toys and sports equipment used by children last year. Three-quarters of these accidents were suffered by children under the age of 15.

Playthings with pieces that shoot or fly off are particularly dangerous to eyes and should be avoided. A U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission survey of hospital emergency rooms indicated that children under the age of 15 were the victims of eye injuries predominantly from slingshots or slingpropelled toys and toy weapons with projectiles. BB and pellet guns are particularly hazardous to children's eyes and should not be considered toys. Not only are the number of children's BB and pellet gun eye injuries high, they are also severe, often resulting in the loss of the eye.

According to Prevent Blindness-Wisconsin, 90 percent of all eye injuries are preventable. Adults can protect children from eye damage, or even the loss of an eye, by several means:

1. Choose toys and games carefully. Factors such as strength, coordination and ability to follow instruction should be taken into account.

2. Teach children how to play safely with toys and supervise their use. It's important that a child understands how to use a toy and does not take a "harmless" plaything and make it dangerous. (For example, by pulling rubber tips off darts or throwing a toy airplane at another child.)

3. Insist that children have and use protective eyewear for games that require them. Baseball, basketball, football and racquet sports are the source of a great many injuries to children.

4. Be aware of the risks posed by gifts for older children as well. Chemistry and science sets, craft and hobby kits often involve projects requiring safety glasses. Activities such as wood burning, mixing chemicals, and use of fast acting glues are a few examples.

For Holiday Fun, Select A "Choose-And-Cut" Tree

For holiday fun, select a "choose-and-cut" tree from a nearby tree farm, says Bob Williams, marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP).

According to Williams, driving to the country to choose and cut your own fresh Christmas tree isn't the only way to find a tree, but it's a growing trend throughout the country, especially in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is the third largest producer of Christmas trees in the U.S., harvesting three and a quarter million a year. Almost 300,000 of these trees are sold within the state, with a growing number being the "choose-and-cut" trees.

"Many families begin a lifelong tradition with just one visit to a 'choose-and-cut' operation," says Williams. "It's a great way for you to get your family into a new holiday custom that's both fun and educational."

Prices on trees vary according to the location of the farm, quality of the tree, and the method of pricing. "Some operations charge by the foot while others have a fixed fee per tree," points out Williams. "We urge tree shoppers to call ahead to get prices and cutting times."

For a free directory of "choose-and-cut" tree farms, send a stamped self-addressed business-size envelope to "Choose-and-Cut Trees" DATCP, P.O. Box 8911, Madison, WI 53708, or the Wisconsin Christmas Tree Producers Association, P.O. Box 105, Arlington, WI 53911, 608/635-7734. County Extension Offices also have information on local "choose-and-cut" operations.

In parts of Scotland, it was believed that steel was a great defense against elves.

Christmas Day has been a date on which noteworthy events have occurred

December 25th is best known, of course, as Christmas—declared centuries ago as the day of Christ's birth. But, while no one can say for certain if accuracy has kept pace with tradition, numerous other noteworthy events have in fact occurred on Christmas Day.

In the year 800 A.D., Charlemagne was crowned Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire by Pope Leo III on Christmas Day. And, in 1066, another world-renowned leader, William the Conqueror, fresh from his success at the Battle of Hastings, ascended the throne of England on December 25th.

Crossing the Atlantic, in 1492, Christopher Columbus's ship, the Santa Maria, landed on the island of Hispaniola, today occupied jointly by Haiti and the Dominican Republic, on Christmas Eve.

Columbus left a colony of his sailors behind and headed back to Spain, convinced he had found not a "new world" but a short cut to the Far East.

One of the most famous occurrences of the American Revolution happened on Christmas evening in 1776, when George Washington and his troops crossed the Delaware River from their encampment in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, into New Jersey.

There was good reason for this—Washington rightly assumed that the Hessian troops employed by the British and ensconced across the river would be in the midst of celebrations and therefore less alert to forays by the revolutionary army.

Christmas —A Renewed Promise

In a hallow opening at the summit of some mountains lay the town of Nazareth. In the center of a heap of huts built without style a fountain spued forth. No doubt Mary was there almost every day, jar on her shoulder, filing in with her companions. She held a secret within but soon it became evident that she carried a little one. Each mother-to-be longed to be the mother of the promised Messiah.

One day Mary rode away on a donkey to Bethlehem to pay taxes according to the decree— when she returned to the fountain, jar on her shoulder, she mingled with the rest but with a special joy. To her and to Joseph would be the solemn training of Baby Jesus. Many things were hidden from Mary. Had she known the days of heartbreak that would be hers when her son would be tortured and nailed to a cross, the burden may have been too great to bear.

To us, this Christmas, comes the tidings of great joy that Christ was born to give us strength for our burdens and to promise us a new earth where all tears will be forgotten.

"A Visit From St. Nicholas" ("Twas the night before Christmas...") was written by Clement Moore in 1822 as a Christmas gift to his children.

Christmas In Italy

In Italy, instead of Santa Claus coming down the chimney, according to a legend, a kind, aged fairy queen, called La Befana, comes down the chimney with gifts for the children. Instead of listening for the reindeer patter, the children listen for the bell the queen is supposed to ring. Small wafers, called Magi Cakes, are eaten by the Italians, with fried eels, pork and chicken at Christmastime.

Don't Toy with Your Child's Safety

At Christmastime, children and toys go together like Santa and his eight reindeer. Unfortunately, toy-related injuries are as much a part of the holiday season as children and their toys.

In 1988, an estimated 142,000 children under age 15 were treated in emergency rooms for toy-related injuries, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Most injuries, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC). Most injuries occurred when children choked on small toys or toy parts, or fell on, tripped on or were hit by toys.

But your family's holiday pleasure needn't be spoiled by a child's injury because, with an extra measure of care from parents, most of these injuries can be prevented.

"The key to safe child's play is a responsible adult's decision to buy appropriate toys, supervise their use and make sure they're properly stored," says Dr. Murray Katcher, a pediatrician at the University of Wisconsin Children's Hospital and assistant professor of pediatrics at the UW Medical School.

An expert in childhood injuries, Katcher says that when shopping for toys, parents should choose them with their child's interests and development level in mind. Most toy-related injuries involve children who may have been too young to use the toys as intended, he says.

Other frequent causes of injury are aspiration and ingestion of toy parts. Infants and toddlers often bite or break off toy pieces and put them in their mouths, eyes or ears. In 1988, 12 of the nation's 22 toy-related deaths reported by the CPSC involved children choking on balloons, balls or marbles or toy parts.

"It's important for parents to inspect toys for sturdiness and durability," Dr. Katcher says. To avoid these and other dangers, parents should observe the following guidelines when purchasing toys:

* Choose toys that suit the child's age. Use age recommendations on toy packages as a guide, and look for other safety messages and warnings.

Read instructions. They should be clear to parents and, when appropriate, to the child.

* Buy sturdy toys. Make sure seams on cloth dolls are well-sewn. Eyes, noses and other small parts should be tightly secured.

* Avoid toys with small parts that children can put in their mouths, toys with long strings and cords, and toys that shoot or propel objects that might injure the eyes and face or become lodged in the throat.

* Inspect toys for sharp points and edges.

* Look for the words "non toxic" on painted toys, "flame retardant/flame resistant" on fabrics, and UL (Underwriters Laboratories) approved" on electric toys.

* Remember: Electric toys with heating elements are recommended only for children 8 years and older and should be used only with adult supervision.

Parental supervision shouldn't end with the toy's purchase, Katcher says. After toys are unwrapped, parents also must supervise their use and storage. This involves a safety check of toy chests, which should have ventilation holes for fresh air and lids that stay open when raised.

To prevent injuries from tripping or falling, parents should teach their children to store toys in their toy chests or on shelves. Toys intended for older children should be placed out of younger children's reach.

"Protecting children from unsafe toys is everyone's responsibility," Katcher says. "Careful toy selection and proper supervision are still the best ways to avoid toy-related injuries and ensure a safe holiday season."

Christmas Is Sharing

Children can have the feeling of achievement if long before the holidays they can start a savings. As Christmas approaches, the children can learn to balance the Christmas budget by not overspending, but keeping within their limits.

True giving hurts just a tid bit. To see his own savings dwindle as he gives to others is true giving. His giving helps him to become less selfish. Also, children can be taught to receive joy from giving out of their own savings to charities.

Planning allowances and projects by which the children can save for their own Christmas shopping can be one of the greatest gifts a parent can give his child—for truly unselfishness brings the greatest joy throughout life—from the toddler to the tottery!

Santa in the Chimney

Cover a light bulb with strips of paper that have been dipped in a flour paste. Let this dry, and paint on facial features. Glue cotton on for eyebrows, mustache, and beard.

Make a tube of stiff paper that is big enough around for the light bulb to be inserted into. Set the tube in a round oatmeal box. Set this into a small square box. Stuff box with newspapers to hold the head and tube in place. Form shoulders by padding around the neck with cotton.

Staple on crepe paper or cloth to make a coat. Gather a tube of cloth at the end and trim with a cotton ball for the hat; put cotton around the large end to fit over his head. and stuff tubes for his arms, then trim with cotton at the cuffs. Pin the arms to the shoulders. Put a black belt on, and a silver buckle. Paint the square box like bricks on a chimney.

HERRIGES OIL

Eat, drink and be merry...and be slim, too.

Holidays are often celebrated with plenty of food and drink, yet we never cease to hear about being slim and fit. For many people, these mixed messages cause confusion and stress.

Typically, holiday and other family celebrations center on big meals and "family tradition" foods. To most people, it may not seem like Thanksgiving or Christmas without the turkey, pumpkin pie and cookies. Yet many people often feel guilty indulging in these special foods.

Such thoughts should be kept in perspective, says Judith McNeely, psychologist and acting director of psychology at University of Wisconsin Hospital and Clinics' Eating Disorders Clinic. McNeely warns that over-emphasizing the food-related aspects of the holidays may lead to either over-indulgence or denial of any food.

Too much emphasis on food can also distract from the importance of family and friends during holidays and other celebrations, she says. "Directing the emphasis back to the people and away from food is a healthy change."

Associating food with certain memories and feelings often dates back to childhood. Many people not only remember celebrating holidays with special foods, but also recall having a bad feeling "fixed" by food. Because people identify specific foods with certain emotions, they may associate eating with warmth, nurturing or happiness and turn to food when they are feeling anxious or depressed.

"Again, this must be put in perspective. I don't recommend foregoing all traditions and having no food at get-togethers, but let people, not food, be the focus," says McNeely.

To help deemphasize the importance of food, McNeely recommends keeping some of the family traditions, but also adding a few new ones such as altering family recipes for lower-calorie foods or choosing one main dish rather than three.

Another alternative is planning parties that center on an activity, such as a tree-trimming or sledding party, rather than eating.

Most people do not eat during the year as they do during the holidays, so it's OK to allow some "treats" in moderation. Denying all extras may set some people up for further problems, including binge eating, McNeely says.

Planning to include some traditional holiday foods also provides a framework for determining where, when and how much food to have. Dieters then may not feel as guilty as they might for breaking their diets, and, hopefully, this technique won't promote habits of eating these foods in large quantities.

McNeely also offers these entertaining and party-going tips for people who are watching their weight:

* Don't stand next to the food. Mingle with guests and engage in conversation.

* Feel comfortable saying no to food.

* Drink and eat in moderation.

* Don't feel compelled to cook or bake excessively. Ask others to bring foods and to take leftovers home.

* Plan parties that don't center on food.

* Don't feel pressured to fix traditional menus. Allow yourself to be creative, using your own recipes or substituting low-calorie and low-fat ingredients in some family-favorite recipes.

* Don't deny yourself everything. Be realistic and plan to have some treats.

* Don't criticize yourself if you eat more than you planned. Get past it and plan what you can do differently next time.

* Remember that holidays aren't just for eating. Food can be a part of celebrations, but there's more to holidays than full plates and bulging stomachs.

Dating of Christmas Desserts

Plum pudding and mince pie were originally called Christmas pudding and Christmas pie. The mixture of spices is supposedly a symbol of the offerings brought by the Wise Men to the Christ Child. The Christmas pie was in years past made in the shape of a manger.

Christmas Cheese Cones

Arrange a couple of delicious "pine cones" on a serving board with a sprig of evergreen at the top:

Parmesan Cheese Spread

- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 4 (3-oz.) pkgs. softened cream cheese
- 1/4 cup real mayonnaise
- 1/8 tsp. garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp. crushed oregano leaves

Mix all ingredients. Chill. Form in the shape of a pine cone. Garnish with nuts. Serve with crackers and fruit.

Sara Foster leaned through the doorway and for a moment watched her husband intently putting the final touches on a wood carving.

"Supper's ready, Sam."
"Be there in a moment," the man said, setting his work aside. He turned his wheelchair around to face her, but she had disappeared into the kitchen again. "Where's the boy?" he asked.

"In his room asleep. I let him in the yard a while this afternoon after the snow fell and he was all tucked out."

Sam didn't say anything. He was glad Timothy was sleeping. Somehow, the boy never thought to ask about the bright red wagon until the supper hour. And, he never had the courage to tell the lad that he had made a foolish promise and there was no more possibility of a red wagon for Christmas than there was that the temperature would reach a hundred degrees on Christmas Day.

He maneuvered his chair into the kitchen, gave a short "thanks" and quietly plunged into the plate of greens and pork. He hoped Sara wouldn't say anything about the wagon, either.

Someday, maybe, he'd learn to keep his big mouth shut. Maybe, someday. Three years now, since he had lost his legs in a mining accident, he hadn't changed a bit. Still making promises almost impossible to keep.

The morning before Christmas dawned bright and clear. In the late afternoon, it began to snow and Sara Foster hummed a Christmas tune as she went about her kitchen chores. The old red rooster, long a family friend, was dropped into the boiling pot and she set about the making of dumplings.

Young Timmie busied himself on the cabin floor, meticulously fitting together the pieces of a wooden jigsaw puzzle.

Sam Foster sat by the window, gazing idly across the hills and valleys. "Sara, come here," he called.

She stood by his side and he pointed in the direction of the Valley Road. "There's a car in trouble down there. I saw it slip off the road into the ditch. Someone may be hurt. I think you should go see."

Wrapping herself in Sam's old Army coat and tossing a kerchief across her head, the woman opened the door, letting in a blast of cold air and a small snow flurry. "Watch the things on the stove for me, Sam. I shouldn't be long."

Sam Foster spent the next hour or so wheeling himself back and forth between the kitchen and the front window. He saw his wife trudge back up the hill but, instead of coming into the cabin she went into the barn, emerging a few moments later with Big Red, the tired old mule, and then the return trip down the hill.

It was well after dark when

Sara Foster entered the cabin.

Sam was finishing the task of setting plates around the kitchen table. "I imagine, since you didn't say so earlier, no one was hurt. If not, why didn't the fellow you helped come up after that mule himself?"

"Wasn't a fella. Was a woman. A grandma. She wasn't hurt; just slipped off the road. I put her back on her way again. She wanted to pay me, but I didn't take any money."

Sam looked at her curiously. "Your time and work was worth something."

Sara smiled. "Indeed it was. It was worth very much." She leaned low to whisper in her husband's ear. "She had a bright red wagon in her car. Was taking it to her grandchildren. I took that as she said she could get another one in town."

Sam Foster grinned. "Well, I'll be..." He paused, then wheeled to the doorway. "Hey, Timmie, boy, put up that puzzle and come to supper. Don't you know this is Christmas Eve, boy? There'll be no red wagon for boys who don't go to bed when they should."

You Can Make Taxes Less Taxing for Yourself and Others

Doing taxes can make you feel great. Especially when they're someone else's. The Internal Revenue Service is once again looking for a "few good volunteers" for the 1990 tax season. If you enjoy public contact and like to work with numbers, chances are you can become a trained VITA volunteer. Volunteers include everyone from professional accountants to students, retired persons to homemakers, and people who are simply interested in learning the current tax laws and in helping others.

VITA, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program, is celebrating its 20th anniversary in Wisconsin. For 20 years, taxpayers who cannot make out their own tax returns or cannot afford to pay for such a service have been able to turn to VITA for free tax help.

VITA is sponsored by the Milwaukee District of the IRS and by many other civic-minded organizations. It provides free tax help to lower-income elderly, handicapped, and non-English speaking people. VITA volunteers help those people with their simple Federal and State tax returns.

IRS provides the training. All you need is an aptitude for numbers and the desire to help people. To ensure quality return preparation, all VITA volunteers receive Federal and State tax training each January. The volunteers are tested on their tax knowledge before they assist others at Wisconsin's VITA sites. Last year, more than 16,000 taxpayers received assistance at more than 125 VITA sites throughout the state. VITA sites are geographically located throughout Wisconsin. They open in late January and serve taxpayers throughout the filing season.

Volunteers do make the difference at the Internal Revenue Service. To volunteer your time and make taxes less taxing for someone who needs your help, just call the IRS Taxpayer Education Office in Milwaukee at (414) 291-3302 or call toll-free 1-800-424-1040.

Nationwide, 80,000 people gave something to the IRS this year. And they can't wait until next year to give again.

The train rattled across the Elkhorn Creek bridge and Woody Hansen casually noted that the creek was frozen solid, bank to bank. Like Anna had written, they had suffered a real spell of cold weather around Grandview. It always turned cold at Christmas.

He took his bag from the overhead rack and sat down with it in his lap. Five more minutes and the train would be at the station.

She stood there on the platform, proud and straight, oblivious of the snow that swirled about her, unashamed of the tears of joy that streamed down her face. Billy stood beside her, tall for his age, just as proud and straight.

"Welcome home, Woodrow. We've missed you very much." And she was in his arms.

After a moment, he turned to his son. "Billy."

"Welcome home, dad. I've missed you, too."

They walked through the station and across the square.

The house looked the same, except inside. It had been recently painted. "In honor of your homecoming, dad," Billy pointed out.

"I'm sure of it, son. Now, how about sitting down. I'd like to talk to you for a minute."

Anna put an arm around each of them. "You men can talk while you trim the Christmas tree. It's on the back porch. Will you get it, Billy?"

"Sure, mom." He paused in the doorway. "You don't have to tell me anything dad. Mom has already told me. I know you never stole anything from old Mr. Smith and I know somehow we'll prove you didn't. O.K.? Let's have a good Christmas."

"O.K. Now fetch the tree like a good boy."

Visitors

A few neighbors dropped by in the next couple of days, long-time friends, old schoolmates. They brought Christmas gifts. They were friendly, yet Woody saw in their eyes the things Anna had written about. Woody found himself thinking more and more that it would always be like this and he didn't like the idea at all.

He felt even worse when the phone rang on the afternoon before Christmas. "Woody? Sheriff Cranston. I have something important to talk to you about. I can't get away from the office. Can you get up here in an hour?"

There were four men in the office, Sheriff Cranston, Mr. Wellington Smith, his former employer, and Dan Bailey, editor of the Grandview Gazette. These were solemn men, indeed. At least, Woody thought, they aren't hypocrites.

Dan Bailey spoke first. "Woody, there's a story about you on the front page of the Gazette. It won't be on the streets until tomorrow morning. But we thought you might like to have a copy before then."

Christmas Morn

Billy Hansen was first down the stairs come Christmas morning. He passed up the many gaily-wrapped packages and picked up the copy of the Grandview Gazette which had been carefully placed among his gifts.

He began to read the story headlined "Christmas Gift." It began: "Police in nearby Winchester have reported that a gunman seriously wounded in an attempted filling station holdup has made a beside confession admitting a series of robberies in the tri-county area, including, they say, holdup of Smith's Service, Grandview, three years ago. A respected local citizen, Woodrow Hansen, manager of the station, was convicted of the crime. The amount taken in the robbery was $2,000. Investigators found that Hansen had purchased a car earlier that day for cash, paying $1,950. He was unable to account for the money, other than to say that he had saved it, in cash, to buy his family the new car for Christmas. Sheriff Cranston said it is his belief that further investigation will completely clear Hansen..."

Later in the day, much later, the Hansens opened their gaily-wrapped Christmas presents—and paid host to the good citizens of Grandview.

Champion Card Painter

A cheerful, 76-year-young lady took up a brush one day and started painting pictures. She painted "a batch" of three or four pictures each week until she was 100 years old, and older. Anna Mary Robertson Moses, known as Grandma Moses, became one of the champion Christmas card artists in the world. Around 50 million people have received Christmas greetings with Grandma Moses' prints on them.

Grandma Moses especially liked the scent of hemlock around the Christmas tree, and the smell of varnish on old toys that some thrifty person repainted for a new Christmas toy.

Kewaskum: Part of Pullman's Giant Night Train Mosaic

During America's golden age of railroad travel, Pullman sleeping cars carried nearly 100,000 passengers every night between thousands of communities, and Kewaskum was part of this remarkable system.

In daytime, the yellow and green "400s" stole the show, but the "Iron & Copper Country Express" was the premier night train of the Chicago & North Western through Kewaskum, and this classic flyer and others carried Pullmans from Chicago to Ishpeming, Marquette, Escanaba, and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

This service was part of a nationwide network of "movable hotels," all of which is described in a new book, "Night Trains: The Pullman System in the Golden Years of American Rail Travel," just published by Lakme Press of Chicago. The author, Peter T. Maiken, is a native of Wisconsin.

Before the jet airliner and the automobile stole the show in intercity travel, the Pullman system operated nearly 10,000 cars over a nearly quarter-million-mile network.

Passengers traveled in hotel-like comfort, in open-section berths, single-bunk roomettes, or in luxurious private rooms with two or more berths.

Pullman sleepers traveled to every corner of the land, from Key West, Fla., to Kennebunkport, Ms., San Diego, and Seattle.

To get to Key West, they traveled on the Oversea Extension of the Florida East Coast Railway, 110 miles of track built across the Florida Keys and the blue Caribbean. The extension was destroyed in the terrible Labor Day hurricane of 1935 and subsequently converted into U.S. Highway 1.

In Ohio, Illinois, and Oregon passengers rode sleeping cars carried by electric interurban trains, making their overnight trip entirely under trolley wires.

When air lines were in their infancy, passengers could board Pullmans on the "Airway Limited" in New York and after a full night's rest transfer in Columbus, Ohio, to waiting Ford Trimotor airliners. During daylight hours they flew to Oklahoma, boarded another overnight train for New Mexico, and on the second morning boarded another Trimotor for the final leg to the West Coast. Other trains met "flying boats" that departed for Cuba. Such was state-of-the-art travel in 1929.

Chicago, the nation's rail metropolis, had more than 500 Pullman lines radiating from it, clearly a record. But hundreds of communities across the land — Milwaukee, Green Bay, Ashland, Sturgeon Bay, Fond du Lac — had their own sleepers and were part of the great Pullman system that moved passengers in comfort and safety — when all America traveled by train.

Christmas Bells

I heard the bells on Christmas Day
Their old, familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet
The words repeat
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

And though how, as the day had come,
The belfries of all Christendom
Had rolled along
The unbroken song
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

Till, ringing, singing on its way,
The world revolved from night to day,
A voice, a chime
A chant sublime
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

Then from each black, accursed
mouth,
The cannon thundered in the South,
And with the sound
The carols drowned
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

It was as if an earthquake rent
The hearth-stones of a continent
And made forlorn
The household born
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!

And in despair I bowed my head;
"There is no peace on earth,"
I said;
"For hate is strong,
And mocks the song
Of peace on earth, good-will to men!"

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep:
"God is not dead; nor doth he sleep!"

The Wrong shall fail,
The Right shall prevail,
With peace on earth, good-will to men!

Contributing Christmas Creations

Christmas and all its splendid decorations a few years in the past was not something "imported"— it grew there. Each family member enjoyed contributing something of his or her own creation.
The tree-cutting was a whole family occasion—all taking a walk and agreeing on the best tree to cut.
The whole living room took on a different look as the sofa was moved in order that the pretty tree could be placed in front of the picture-window, and various other pieces of furniture were moved to make way for the room's special center of attention!
Stockings were hung on the hearth that were truly stockings worn by each child.
Even now our Christmas preparations can include the whole family, if we wish.
Merry Christmas helping our children contribute their creations to make it even more joyous for everyone!

Gifts From Your Kitchen

In almost every country of the world, people give and exchange gifts between December fifth and January sixth. The custom of displaying gifts under the Christmas tree dates back only as far as the Victorian Era in England, but midwinter gift giving has a much longer ancestry.

The Magi offered gifts honoring the birth of Christ, and before that the Romans exchanged small gifts and made seasonal offerings to the Emperor. Medieval kings exchanged lavish gifts with one another as political ploys.

But today, Americans search for ways to express affection for their families and friends by offering personalized gifts. Preparing sweet yeast breads is a special art and, by combining this gift from your kitchen with a carefully selected accessory, you will have chosen a winner.

Yeast baking is easier and faster than ever when you use RED STAR® Active Dry Yeast or Red Star® Quick-Rise Yeast — the all-natural yeast that cuts the rising time in half.

Both leavening agents will yield excellent results. Try the very special breads RED STAR® Yeast shares with you from their century old files. The delectable tastes of the breads are traditional, but the time of preparation is modern. Your breads can be prepared ahead of time and frozen. Save the icing and decorating details until just before you present your gifts.

The Holiday Braid is fragrant with the flavors of mace, lemon, raisins and almonds. Present it to your friends on a pretty new cutting board flanked by a china handled bread knife. Wrap it in plastic film and top it with a plaid ribbon and puffy bow.

Candied cherries and nuts garnish the Colonial cherry Wreath. This gift might be sent on its way nestled on a brightly colored platter with a festive jumbo candle in the center, and encased in clear plastic for a Yuletide display.

The Fireside Ring is a snow capped mountain with its coconut topping and Bundt® pan swirl. The ring requires only one 25 minute rise.

Make this the year to present unique personalized gifts. If you have holiday yeast baking questions, call 1-800-445-4746-4. Wisconsin residents, please call 1-800-242-9285.

PUT A KITTEN ON YOUR CHRISTMAS LIST

"Please, please, please, may I have a kitten this Christmas?" What parent hasn't heard that familiar plea? Grant your child's wish this year, but, before you tie the bow to the new kitten's collar be sure your child is ready for the responsibility a pet brings with it.

"A kitten is a wonderful gift for a child, but it can't be treated like a toy," says Ed Lowe, who invented Kitty Litter® brand cat box filler and has owned many a kitten. "The happiest cats are those that are owned by families that give them plenty of love and respect, just as if they were a member of the family."

Mr. Lowe suggests following these tips to make sure your child's new kitten gets off on the right paw in its new family:

- Resist the temptation to surprise your child with the kitten on Christmas morning. The hectic atmosphere may make a real scaredy-cat of your new pet.
- Instead, pick a calmer day to bring the kitten home. Have a room ready for the new arrival with food and water dishes and a clean cat box. Have your child help you set up the room so he can start early learning responsible cat ownership. Leave the kitten in the room, with the door closed, for his first few hours to give him a chance to rest. Then open the door and let him roam to get acquainted with the new surroundings.

- Have your child start the kitten on good cat box habits right away by placing the cat in the cat box and scratching the filler up with his paws. Cats will instinctively use a cat box and your kitten should catch on fast.

- While you're at it, teach your child to scoop any solid wastes out of the cat box every day and to stir the cat box filler to keep the box fresher, longer.

- Try — though it will be difficult — not to pick up the new kitten too much. Encourage your child to let the kitten come to him. A kitten can be skittish and too much attention may make him run and hide.

- Take the new kitten to a veterinarian as soon as possible for a complete check-up and any vaccinations he might need. You may also want to ask about having your kitten spayed or neutered. Make sure your child comes along. Regular veterinary care will be an important part of his new responsibility — caring for his cat.

Get Your Kids on the Road To Fitness, Not Fatness

By Ingrid Lass
UW-Madison
Consumer Press Service

What do you do if you suspect your child of being more fat than fit? Forget carefully counting calories, measuring food portions, and fad diets. Your best bet is to keep fruit in the house instead of twinkies, turn off the television, and send him or her out to play.

Restricting food intake is a last resort, according to Susan Nitzke, University of Wisconsin - Madison extension nutrition specialist.

"Encourage physical activity, and keep plenty of 'good' foods in the house," she says. "But don't make the child feel that food is hard to get at."

Recent studies show that inactivity and genetic predisposition are more important factors than diet in explaining why many children become overweight. In addition, the older the overweight child, the greater the chance that he or she will become an overweight adult. Therefore, the earlier healthy eating and exercise patterns are learned, the more likely your child will lead a life of fitness, not fatness.

Nitzke offers some suggestions to help get children fit instead of fat.

Turn off the television. Children spend an average of 24 hours a week watching television, which is more time spent on any activity with the exception of sleep. In addition to being inactive, children often snack while watching television.

Send them out to play. Give your children sports equipment for their birthdays instead of the latest in video games. Equipment doesn't have to be costly to be fun. A hula hoop, frisbee, jump rope or kite is enough to get children active. Other possibilities include roller skates, mitts and bats, bicycles and badminton equipment. A large rubber ball may not look like a very exciting toy, but you may be pleasantly surprised at how many ways your child plays with it.

Check out local parks and recreation departments. Many of them offer classes for very low fees. Perhaps your child would like to participate in aerobic dance, karate, gymnastics, tennis or other kinds of classes. Have your child join 4-H, boy or girl scouts, or other youth organizations which include physical activities in their programs.

Cook defensively. Although you should not restrict how much your child eats, you can often reduce the caloric content of what he or she eats. Opt for baking, boiling, steaming, broiling, and stir frying instead of pan frying and deep frying. Trim visible fat from meat and skin from poultry before cooking. Read labels to see if there is a good balance of calories and nutrients in foods.

Keep plenty of "good" foods around instead of ones high in calories and low in nutrients.

Food to keep handy for snacking include part-skim mozzarella string cheese, low-fat yogurt, frozen fruit - juice bars, fresh fruits and vegetables, popcorn, bagels and ready-to-eat unsugared cereals. Foods to keep out of the house include doughnuts and pastries, chips, granola bars, snack crackers, chocolate, candy and coldcuts.

Unless supervised by a health care provider, a child should not be put on a low-calorie diet until his or her body has matured. Females are usually physically mature by age 18, and males by age 20, although this can vary quite a bit.

There are also times when seemingly excess weight gain is normal, says Nitzke. For example, children usually gain weight just before a growth spurt, and will grow into the "excess" weight.

The best person to judge whether your child has a serious weight problem is your health care provider. It will be easier for that person to determine if your child is overweight if you have a height-weight history for your child.

Healthy Heart Facts

There are risk factors in heart disease, some you can change some you can not. The factors you can not change are family history and age. Factors you can change are high blood pressure, smoking and elevated blood cholesterol. A stroke or heart attack is not the first symptom of high blood pressure. A person with high blood pressure or elevated blood cholesterol may feel and look fine, there are no signs that may signal these conditions. You can have your blood pressure and cholesterol level tests, this can be done by a doctor, nurse or other health professionals. A blood pressure of 140/ 90 or more is generally considered to be high. The higher the blood pressure the higher the risk of developing heart disease or stroke. If you have high blood pressure take your doctor's advice.

It is a fact that elevated blood cholesterol is related to heart disease. People with blood cholesterol over 265 mg/dl (milligrams per deciliter of blood) may have four times the risk of developing heart disease as those with a level of 190 mg/dl or lower. People who have elevated blood cholesterol and reduce it also reduce their risk of having a heart attack. Reducing the amount of cholesterol in the diet is important. Eating less saturated fats is the most effective dietary means of lowering cholesterol levels. Saturated fats can be found in meats, dairy products such as whole milk, cream, ice cream, cheese, butter and fats used in cooking. A product can state that it has no cholesterol and still be high in saturated fats. Examples of these are usually found in commercial baked foods; look out for coconut oil, palm oil, or a heavy hydrogenated vegetable oil. Make sure you read the labels. The best choice would be to look for polyunsaturated fats. Examples are vegetables high in polyunsaturated fats; safflower, sunflower, corn, and soybean oil.

Heart disease is the number one killer in the United States. This can change by the life style we lead. Eat a proper diet and exercise. You can do something about your health.

Ask About Generic Drugs

MADISON, WI — Many people have a take-charge attitude about their health. One reason is a heightened awareness about proper diet and exercise.

"Another part of the attitude towards managing your health can include medical care and treatment," says Patricia Jackson, Medical Services Manager for the American Family Insurance Group, headquartered in Madison. "For example, when your doctor writes a prescription, don't hesitate to ask if a generic equivalent for that drug is available."

"An informed patient is a doctor's best friend. Doctors want patients to ask questions and as an insurer, we encourage you to ask questions too," she explains. "We want you to make better, informed decisions and the best way is to ask questions about options like generic drugs."

Prescription drugs have two names. One is the brand name assigned to the drug maker. It is trade-marked and can only be used by that manufacturer. The other is the chemical name by which generic equivalent drugs are identified. Generic drugs have the same chemical composition, same active ingredients and the same effects.

All drug manufacturing firms must register with the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and are subject to periodic inspection and monitoring of drug's safety, purity and quality. They must also follow the FDA's Good Manufacturing Practice Regulations that touch on every aspect of drug manufacturing from building maintenance to quality control.

Prescription prices have increased dramatically in the last few years, spiraling upward even faster than the cost of health care. "Generic drugs offer a significant cost saving factor. You're getting a comparable quality product for a better price," Jackson explains. For example, information from a local pharmacy revealed that of three drugs commonly prescribed, the brand-name versions costs 33-38% more than the generic equivalents.

"Those costs savings benefit you and your insurance company. Fewer outlays in medical costs can have a direct, positive impact on your future health premiums," Jackson adds.

Your doctor may have no choice about what to prescribe because only one drug will work. But in many cases, there can be several medications to choose from.

Price comparison is another way to save. Prices vary widely among pharmacies, so call several. Buying generic over-the-counter drugs can save you money too. "You should know what your health care dollar is buying," Jackson adds. "Next time, ask your doctor about a generic equivalent and shop around before filling a prescription."

BEST OF ALL

Particularly at Christmas, the things you can't buy are best of all. What about some token of love, about love itself, and friendship, understanding, a helping hand, prayer...and consideration?

These things are not for sale in any store and they are things most people seem to need most. Let's not permit the crowds and the excitement to crowd Christmas out of our hearts, but keep it where it belongs. Christmas is not found in stores, nor under the tree — it is in the hearts of people.

First President's Gifts To His Children

In 1759, George Washington carefully wrote this list of Christmas gifts for his stepchildren, three-year-old Patsy, and five-year-old John:

- A bird on Bellows
- A Cuckoo
- A turnabout Parrot

- An Aviary

- A Man Smoakg
- A Tunbridge Tea Set
- 3 Neat Tunbridge Toys
- A Neat Book fash Tea Chest
- A box best Household Stuff
- A straw Patch box w. a Glass
- A neat dress'd Wax Baby

Martha Washington Bonbons

- 2 cups light brown sugar
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk or light cream

Slowly cook the sugar and milk mixture until it reaches the softball temperature, around 234 degrees. Pour mixture into a buttered bowl; when cool beat in the butter and vanilla, mixing until creamy. Knead into firm ropes an inch in diameter. Chop into bonbon sizes. Decorate each candy with pieces of cherries, citron, nutmeats, coconut, chocolate chips, or shaved chocolate. Before decorating some, dip into hot melted chocolate.

Some drivers think that the lower the temperature, the slicker ice on the road will be. Ice at 30°F has been proven to be more slick than ice at zero degrees.

Even if you consider yourself the world's best driver, winter weather requires paying added attention to the rules of the road.

Here's some advice from the Independent Insurance Agents of America (IIAA) that can help you drive more safely this holiday season:

- Keep in mind that ice at 30°F has proven to be more slick than ice at zero degrees. Take extra care when driving slick roads and be sure your car has snow tires on.

- Certain items should be placed in the car in case you find yourself stranded, or if your tires lose traction. For lost traction, keep sand, cat litter or some sort of traction mats on hand. Flashlights and blankets, as well as canned drinks and packaged foods, could be lifesavers if your car breaks down on a deserted road.

- Begin driving in winter weather by slowly accelerating to determine if your wheels may spin—if they don't, reduce your speed and drive carefully. If they do, use the steering wheel. Steer the car in the direction you want the front to go and the rest of the car will probably skid out sideways. Do not brake until you have regained control of the steering wheel. Apply gradual pressure on the brakes.

- While driving, remember to keep sufficient distance between you and other cars. It takes three to nine times as far to come to a stop on snow and ice.

- Be sure to have anti-freeze in your windshield washer as well as some in your cooling system.

- If you're stranded, stay with your car. Exercise to keep warm. Use a flashlight. Leave the window open just a crack, if the engine is running, for some fresh air. Use flares if you have them.

HOLLY LEGEND

The early druids used decorations fashioned from boughs of holly to extend a welcome to spirits threatened by frost and winter winds. Britons believed it was unlikely to bring holly into the home before Christmas Eve and for a long time perpetuated a legend which held that the type of holly brought into the home determined who would rule the house in the months ahead — if fair, the wife would dominate; if bad, the husband would hold sway.

The Day The Bells Melted

The American Revolution strengthened the ties among the American people, but even in its revolt it did not utterly destroy the traditions of England, its parent nation.

Many Christmas traditions of England were still kept, although it felt no longer any obligation to follow the court fashions.

But the French revolt was quite different. They tried to reject Christmas along with the monarchy. Worship was suspended on Christmas Day. Church bells were melted for their bronze.

Earning Two Incomes? Wisconsin's IRS Has a Warning for You

Wisconsin taxpayers should know that the IRS is stepping up its activities and initiating special projects designed solely to find taxpayers who are not correctly reporting their income. Special emphasis is being placed on people who "moonlight" or have two jobs.

Lawrence M. Phillips, Director of the Milwaukee District of the Internal Revenue Service, says new and sophisticated equipment is being used to find those taxpayers, in addition to examiners specifically trained in the examination of income.

According to Phillips, many taxpayers who never were audited before are now receiving letters from IRS notifying them of an examination. Phillips says taxpayers who try to "cheat the government out of a few dollars in taxes are finding that the cost is high." Phillips says those taxpayers will often owe additional taxes, plus interest and penalties. They may also lose time from work to appear during an audit and they may have to hire a professional to assist them during that audit.

Phillips cites the example of a taxpayer who failed to report $16,000 in income on his Federal tax return, thus underpaying his taxes by $2,000. The IRS just sent that taxpayer a bill for not properly reporting the income. Taxes + Penalties + Interest = $4,313.

Barbara Kerr, the Public Affairs Officer with the IRS in Wisconsin, acknowledges that the Service is taking a close look at the returns of skilled professionals such as plumbers, painters, electricians, carpenters, teachers, police and fire officials. Kerr says increasing numbers of taxpayers who show these kinds of activities as an occupation are being examined.

According to Kerr, the IRS identifies additional income through various techniques, including reviewing the life style of the taxpayers. "In other words," explains Kerr, "how much did the taxpayer state that he had at his disposal and how much did he actually spend?"

In addition, says Kerr, suppliers have been contacted to identify individuals making larger or unusual purchases. Eventually, customers are contacted to determine who did the work, when it was done, and how much was paid.

In short, warns Kerr, even if taxpayers hid this unreported income in the "mattress" of a second job, the IRS will find it.

No Wheels Moving

One Christmas tradition of the Norwegians was that during that season anything with wheels—wagons, spinning wheels, etc., was not to move. It was thought a great sin against the sun to keep a wheel moving during this time—it could mean that they wanted the sun wheel to move faster. One wonders what would it be like today if this custom were still in effect.

Don't Let Christmas Blues Spoil Your Holiday Season

There's nothing unusual about having the blues at Christmas. There's always pressure on everyone to be happy at Christmas and yet almost everyone can get holiday problems, and almost no one thinks anyone else does.

Most people who become depressed at this time of year aren't suffering from real depression but from temporary sadness. Doctors say that our holiday expectations become unrealistic. It's an expectation unique to the season. Disappointed expectation and social pressures may help explain why people with problems feel them more around Christmas.

NEWSPRINT RECYCLING FACTS

In an effort to increase recycling in Wisconsin, many of the state's newspapers are buying more newsprint from manufacturers who make recycled paper.

"Historically, recycled newsprint has not been the first choice of newspaper publishers because the quality has not been as high as newsprint made of virgin fibers," said J. LeRoy Yorgason, Executive Secretary and Manager of the Wisconsin Newspaper Association.

"But the landfill crisis has made everyone involved take another look at the issue," Yorgason said. "Some newspaper publishers who have never used recycled newsprint are trying samples from the few mills that make it. Mills that make newsprint only from virgin timber are studying how they can add de-inking operations to blend the fiber recovered from old newspapers in with the pulp."

Recycled newsprint has had a reputation of causing problems on printing presses. "We had trouble with web breaks," said Ben Lewis, publisher of the Marshfield News-Herald, "so we stopped buying it three or four years ago. However, last spring we switched to newsprint made of 50% recycled fiber and found it to be a dependable, high quality paper. That's the only newsprint we buy now."

Dan Witte, publisher of News Publishing Company in Black Earth, publishes 14 weekly newspapers and 7 shoppers. He recently purchased a truckload of 50% recycled newsprint and reported that he couldn't tell the difference between his usual newsprint and the recycled paper. "The cost is pretty much the same right now," he said, "and fears that the paper would be more brittle and hard to work with have not materialized."

"We have been buying recycled paper for 17% of our total newsprint purchases," says Robert James, senior vice president of Journal Communications in Milwaukee. "We hope to buy more as our other suppliers start producing it."

Some Wisconsin publishers have complained that newsprint made of 100% old newspapers caused problems for them. A.L. Peterman of the Delavan Enterprise said that newsprint made from 100% recycled pulp gave him problems with "lint" on the press.

Fran Piech, production manager of Brown County Publishing in Denmark complained of the same problem.

"The Daily Citizen in Beaver Dam is printed entirely on newsprint made from old newspapers," said publisher Jim Conley. "However, we don't use it for runs over 10,000 because of web breaks and linting problems," he said.

Jim Burgess, publisher of the Wisconsin State Journal in Madison, says that about 10% of the newsprint currently purchased by Madison Newspapers Inc., is recycled paper. "We have a contract to buy recycled paper for about 10% of our newsprint purchases," Burgess said. "That paper is made entirely of pulp derived from old newspapers, and it seems to run well on our presses."

Total newsprint consumption in the U.S. last year was 12.3 million metric tonnes, more than half of which was made in Canada. Only eight manufacturers (9 paper mills) are now producing recycled newsprint in North America, ANPA records show. Their combined output of 1,750,000 metric tons in 1988 was only 14% of the newsprint consumed in the United States.

Nearly all of the recycled newsprint purchased for use in Wisconsin comes from the nearby mills of FSC Paper Company in Illinois, Quebec & Ontario Company in Ontario (Canada), and Manistique Papers Inc. in Michigan. Manistique produces newsprint made entirely from old magazines.

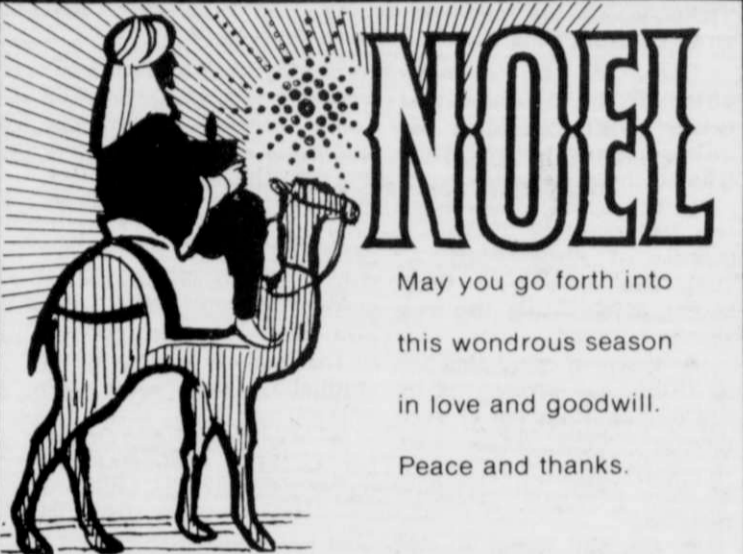

Wisconsin's legislature is now considering a bill that mandates recycling and product bans to reduce pressure on landfills (SB 300). As introduced, three pages of that bill deal with newsprint and require publishers to purchase more recycled paper. A compromise amendment with newspaper publishers was reached last week, stretching original 5-year guidelines to 10 years. In announcing that compromise, Senate Majority Leader Joseph Strohl emphasized that the provisions agreed to will definitely increase the purchase of recycled newsprint in the state, and make it possible to keep most of the newspaper out of our landfills.

The compromise is built upon two sets of guidelines reaching up to the year 2001. These guidelines measure the amount of recycled pulp in the newsprint purchased during a calendar year, expressed as a percentage. If a publisher purchases 1000 tons of newsprint, and the guideline calls for 5% recycled pulp content, then 50 tons of old paper must be used in making the pulp for the newsprint purchased. That can be 1000 tons of 95% virgin fiber blended with 5% recycled paper pulp, or 950 tons of virgin newsprint and 50 tons of 100% recycled pulp, or mixtures in between.

The first set of guidelines applies to each newsprint consumer (principally each newspaper) and is based on national projections of the availability of recycled newsprint.

Estimates based on data from the American Paper Institute in New York show that approximately 19% of the newsprint produced in North America in the year 2000 will contain recycled fiber. Some of this will be 100% recycled, but much of it will be a blend of virgin pulp with recycled fiber.

The individual guidelines require each purchaser of newsprint in Wisconsin to have a 5% recycled pulp content by 1991. Since many newspapers are not currently using any recycled newsprint, this will require all of them to begin using the product. By the year 2001, a company must buy enough recycled newsprint to equal 17% recycled pulp in the total amount purchased. Since many manufacturers will use a blend of virgin and recycled fiber, this means that newspapers will need to buy recycled paper more than 25% of their annual volume.

Many newsprint buyers will buy much more than national averages, however, some state average goals have been set considerably higher. These goals measure the aggregate purchases of all newsprint buyers in the state, and can be reached if more recycled newsprint is available in Wisconsin than in other states. The statewide average goals are set at 10% in 1991, 25% in 1993 40% in 1995 and reach 45% by 2001.

Each newsprint consumer is required by the bill to report newsprint purchases during every calendar year to the Department of Natural Resources. These reports will be a public record, and will show whether each newspaper is meeting the guidelines. The DNR will total all of the numbers and prepare the aggregate report to show how well the industry is meeting the statewide average goals.

Both the guidelines for each newsprint consumer and the statewide average goals are based on voluntary compliance. Only if recycled newsprint is not available at competitive prices and comparable quality can a publisher be excused from the guidelines.

"We consider the guidelines for individual newspapers are responsible and obligatory for members of the Wisconsin Newspaper Association," said Yorgason. "There is no question that each newspaper publisher feels responsible for meeting those guidelines and will meet them," he said.

"If we can find recycled newsprint available in sufficient quantities, we expect to meet the statewide average goals, too," Yorgason said. "Technology to produce recycled newsprint has improved tremendously in the past few years, and our publishers will be looking for a dependable supply of newsprint containing recycled fiber. Every WNA member is asking suppliers to either build a new mill or add de-inking facilities to existing mills to use old newspapers for pulp."

Lief Christensen, president of Manistique Papers Inc., warns that the newsprint industry cannot respond overnight. "It takes about 5 years and $400 million to build a new mill," he said. "To install a de-inking operation at an existing mill takes about 2-3 years and $20 to $80 million. Add to that the time it takes to make an economic and environmental study and you can see that it will take 10 years to bring stability to this market."

Old newspapers are being used in other products besides newsprint. The largest markets have been exports to Asian countries and in domestic manufacturing of cellulose insulation, paperboard, boxes, and tissue paper. Recently, markets for animal bedding, packaging (egg cartons, etc) and seed mulch for highway plantings have been using increasing amounts of old newspapers.

Until 1988, 35% of old newspapers have been recycled. With a national goal of 50%, a glut of old newspapers has hit recyclers and reduced their market value to zero. Other markets are now being stimulated as newsprint manufacturerers gear up for higher use of old newspapers.

Swiss Bellringers Welcome Holiday

Mention Switzerland and one thinks of watches, cheese, yodelers and mountain climbers. But, if it's Christmas, one cannot miss the bell-ringing.

One of the most famous of Swiss traditions is bell-ringing. It begins when the mountaineers of the Canton of Valais signal a welcome to the holiday and, as their ringing bells echo from mountain to mountain, other villages join the competition, each trying for the most beautiful — or loudest — notes.

FASTER WAYS WITH MICROWAVES

Make the holiday season even more special this year with festive treats made in the microwave oven. Tested by Whirlpool home economists, these easy recipes are a great addition to a buffet table. Or place them in a decorated gift box for that personal touch. They take only minutes to make, so you can spend your precious holiday time with family and friends.

CRYSTALLIZED ORANGE NUTS

total cooking time: 14 minutes

- 1/4 c. orange juice
- 1 c. sugar
- 2 c. pecan halves

Combine sugar and orange juice in a 2-qt. (12x7) glass baking dish and mix well. Stir in pecans. Cook on MEDIUM HIGH for 6 minutes. Stir and continue cooking for 8 minutes until syrup crystallizes. Spread and separate glazed nuts on buttered cookie sheet. Cool.

CHRISTMAS WREATH COOKIES

total cooking time: 3 minutes

- 20 large marshmallows
- 1/2 c. margarine
- 1/4 t. green food coloring
- 6 c. corn flakes
- Red cinnamon candies

In a 3-qt. glass mixing bowl, melt butter and marshmallows on HIGH for 3 minutes or until marshmallows are melted. Add food coloring and mix well. Add corn flakes and mix until all flakes are coated with syrup. Form cookie into a ball the size of a golf ball, then shape into a wreath. Place on waxed paper and decorate with cinnamon candies while still warm. If mixture cools before all wreaths are made, put back into the oven and heat for 30 seconds on HIGH.

CRANBERRY BREAD

- |                        |                          |
|------------------------|--------------------------|
| 2 c. all-purpose flour | 1 c. chopped cranberries |
| 3/4 t. salt            | 1/2 c. chopped nuts      |
| 3/4 t. baking powder   | 1/2 t. cinnamon          |
| 1 egg                  | 1 T. sugar               |
| 1/2 c. white sugar     | topping:                 |
| 1/2 c. brown sugar     | 2 t. sugar               |
| 1 c. buttermilk        | 1/2 t. cinnamon          |
|                        | 1 T. chopped nuts        |

Chop cranberries; add 1 T. sugar and 1/2 t. cinnamon. Set aside. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder together. Beat egg and sugars until light and fluffy. Slowly add dry ingredients, alternating with buttermilk. Add cranberry mixture and nuts. Pour into an 8" greased glass tube pan. Combine topping ingredients and sprinkle on top. Cook on MEDIUM for 12 min., rotating dish 1/4 turn twice. Cook on HIGH for 1 min. or until bread tests done. Cool for 10 min. Invert on plate, then turn bread "topping side" up.

MICRO TIP: What's quick, easy and gets a smile? Whirlpool home economists think it's caramelized apples made in the microwave oven. Just place unwrapped caramels from a 14-oz. package into a deep 1-qt. bowl. Warm, uncovered, at HIGH for 2 1/2 minutes, stirring often after 1 minute. Insert sticks into 6 apples; dip into hot melted caramel to coat. Place on buttered waxed paper to cool. Sprinkle the paper first with chopped nuts or coconut if desired.

Make Ahead Holiday Food

Keep a supply of chopped onion on hand for fast casseroles, salads, etc.

Make soups ahead of time and freeze.

You can whip cream several days before a party then mound on waxed paper-lined baking sheets to freeze until firm; then transfer them to plastic bags or freezer containers and return to the freezer. Before serving, let them stand for 20 minutes.

Sandwiches can be frozen for quick lunches.

A Gift Of Service

Sometimes it is hard to know what kind of present someone will appreciate. Why not think of a gift of service you can do for someone, like wash and/or wax someone's car, rake someone's leaves, make someone a couple dozen cookies or a pie, etc. Write this "certificate" to someone, "GOOD FOR ONE CAR WASH SOMETIME IN JANUARY," etc. Roll up the certificate in pretty wrapping paper and tie a festive bow around it to hang on the Christmas tree.

Christmas Memories

As we experience the warmth and wonder of this festive season, may all that is Christmas embrace you and yours.

CHRISTMAS

As long as there are pine trees growing on a hill,
As long as there are firesides with candle on a sill,
As long as there are reindeer, snowflakes glistening white,
As long as there is a Santa Claus, there will be a Christmas night.
As long as happy children sing with pure delight
the age-old song of goodwill to men, there will be a Christmas night.
As long as there are wise men who choose to be star-led,
and loving hearts made ready to crown the Christmas head,
As long as there is tinsel and wrappings gay and bright,
and church bells chime throughout the land,
there will be a Christmas night.

Wisconsin Winter Words of Wisdom

Wheeling through a Wisconsin winter won't be a worry if you follow these wise words from our winter warriors (those friendly folks who keep the plows humming on our highways).

First, plan in advance. Locate several alternate routes to get to grandma's house, that important meeting across the state, or your favorite ski lodge. But keep in mind that not all roads are created — or maintained — equally. You may want to select the route that has the least bad weather and the best plowed roads.

"We have divided our roads into three general levels of maintenance for DOT's snow-plowing schedules," explained Ted Stephenson, Wisconsin's DOT chief maintenance engineer. "We plow them according to priority and traffic counts."

Class One roads carry more than 5,000 vehicles daily and should have full width bare pavement as soon as possible after a winter storm. Since over 2,590 miles of state highways fall into this class, the bulk of your travels should be able to follow routes that are plowed on a twenty-four hour basis, seven days a week.

Class Two roads carry between 1,000 and 5,000 vehicles daily and should have bare pavement for traffic in both directions as soon as possible after a winter storm. More than 6,000 additional miles of state roads fall into this category, making your travel good at least on weekdays. Class Two roads will have reduced service between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. Monday through Saturday and all day Sunday.

Class Three roads in the state system carry fewer than 1,000 vehicles daily and will have a single lane of bare pavement near the center of the highway as soon as possible after a winter storm. Fewer than 3,000 miles of state roads fall into this category, which will receive no service between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. Monday through Saturday and none on Sunday. So if your destination lies on one of these less-traveled roads, you may want to plan to arrive during daylight hours when the plows have had time to clear your way.

To help you identify the best routes to follow, the DOT is producing a new brochure that shows all the roads it plows, and the level of maintenance for each. It should be available at information centers, State Patrol headquarters and motor vehicle licensing stations throughout the state, shortly before the holiday season at year's end.

Second, here are some further words of wisdom to remember once you've chosen the optimum route:

Try not to travel alone — travel in convoys with other vehicles, if possible.

Keep the gasoline tank as full as possible. If your vehicle becomes stranded, a full tank should allow you to run the motor and heat the vehicle.

Make sure your headlights, tail lights and windows are clear of snow and ice so you can see and be seen.

Drive defensively and no faster than road and weather conditions allow — if the road conditions exceed your ability to drive safely, don't drive at all!

Third, if your vehicle should become stalled, here are some survival tips:

Keep calm.

Stay in the vehicle — don't try to walk out of a blizzard, since disorientation comes quickly with blowing snow.

Avoid overexertion and exposure — better to wait for the worst of the storm to blow over before you try to dig out of a drift.

Beware of carbon monoxide — run the engine and heater for brief periods and only with a down-wind window open slightly for ventilation. Make sure the exhaust pipe has not been blocked with snow.

Exercise from time to time by moving around and clapping your hands. Use your winter storm car kit: Blankets, towels and spare clothing, including mittens, gloves and boots; First aid kit; Windshield scraper; Flashlight; Bag of sand or cat litter; Signal flares or distress flags; Shovel; High-calorie, non-perishable food (such as nuts, dried fruit or candy); Booster cables for battery; Basic repair tools; Portable radio with working batteries; Matches and candles for heat, and empty coffee cans to hold the candles safely.

Finally, the Wisconsin State Patrol wants you to have the best weather information available. To find out what current winter weather road conditions are like in your area, you can call one of three numbers to receive state-wide road reports: If you live in the Madison area, call (608) 246-7580; If you live in the Milwaukee area, call (414) 785-7140; Elsewhere in the state, call 1-800-762-3947. The message will be the same of all three lines.

Russia Celebrates Christmas

No meat was served for 40 days prior to Christmas, by the Russians in the 19th Century.

Then on the day before Christmas no food was served at all until the first evening star appeared. After Mass they feasted on pastрами, geese, duck, quail, and pigs.

Tangerines and apples were strung up. Walnuts, dipped in egg white, and then rolled in sheets of gold foil were hung by threads. Dolls were made of candy and dried fruits.

A frosty Christmas meant a rich grain harvest for next year, to many Russians. If the skies stayed dark, the cows would be productive, and starry skies promised a good crop of peas.

Advent is time of anticipation Tourism...Alive and Well In Washington County?

In the Christian liturgy, Advent is the four-week period leading up to Christmas. It is a time of preparation and of waiting; as such, it can provide an opportunity for families to anticipate the coming of Christmas with special observances.

An Advent wreath is a beautiful reminder of the joy that is to come. It takes its origins from pagan times, when the sun-worshipping tribes of northern Europe would wind greens around a cartwheel and decorate it with lights to appease the sun god during dark winter days.

Today, Christians look upon the Advent wreath as a symbol of the light which is to come at Christmas time. The wreath's circular shape symbolizes God's unending eternity. The evergreen represents our immortality and God's unchanging nature. The four candles remind us of the hundreds of years mankind waited for the coming of Christ.

During the first and second weeks of Advent, violet candles are lit, symbolizing longing and expectation. A rose candle, symbolizing joy and hope because Christmas is near, is lit during the third week of Advent. A violet candle is lit during the final week of Advent to complete the cycle of anticipation.

On Christmas Eve, four white candles replace the rose and violet candles, as a sign of the coming of the light of the world, Jesus.

Another Advent custom that children enjoy is the Advent calendar. This calendar features tiny little windows for each day of the Advent season. As the youngster opens each window, he or she finds a special message or picture inside. Not only does the calendar help youngsters to "count down" to the big day, it can also be instructive and entertaining.

Yet another Advent custom is the Jesse tree, so named for the father of King David, an ancestor of Jesus. It is the family tree of Jesus in a way, for it is adorned with symbols of His ancestors and prophecies foretelling His coming.

Among the symbols that can be used are tablets of the law, the key of David, Noah's ark, the apple and the Star of David. These symbols can be either attached to a real tree or to a tree made of construction paper. The Jesse tree is another way of enhancing the Advent season for the whole family.

Is the tourism industry alive and well in Washington County? A survey has been prepared by Wisconsin Bell in cooperation with the Washington County Tourism Council and Washington County Department of Economic Development and has recently been mailed to tourism-related businesses in the county.

The purpose of the survey is to assess the strengths and weaknesses of our community as it relates to tourism, and with community participation, develop a long-term plan to enhance and support visitor activity in the area.

When we think of a tourist, we need to think of a visitor. Tourists are those visitors in our community who are on vacation, on business trips, visiting friends or relatives, participating or attending a special event, sight-seeing or passing through enroute to another location. These visitors spend money in the community, which contributes to the economy in many ways. The tourism industry - the fastest growing service industry - accounted for $4.7 billion in sales in Wisconsin last year, second only to manufacturing.

Over 400 businesses in Washington County have been mailed a survey form. These included businesses offering food and dining; lodging; selected retail services; and those providing recreational and other attraction activities to visitors. Surveys are to be completed and returned by November 30 to the Office of Economic Development,

A DECEMBER MEMORIAL

It was decided that December 25 was probably the most correct date for Jesus' birth after St. Cyril made an investigation around A.D. 340. Then, Pope Julius accepted this date and established a festival in Rome which was also accepted by every nation in Christendom.

Many Bible scholars believe that December is not the season the shepherds would be on the hillsides of Israel, etc., and feel it is almost certain not to be December 25; nevertheless, this is the day set aside to especially remember our Redeemer's birth.

New Winter Recreation Guide Promises Adventure

MADISON — Wisconsin's newest winter recreation guide is hot off the press and ready for delivery to more than 350,000 Wisconsin-bound winter vacationers.

At 144 pages the winter guide is "the biggest and best winter recreation guide we've ever produced," says Governor Tommy G. Thompson. "The new winter book's scope and four-color format make it the centerpiece of Wisconsin's most ambitious winter promotion campaign in history. We're going to put a copy of Wisconsin Winter Adventures into the hands of more than 350,000 winter vacationers looking to spend their time and money in Wisconsin."

For the first time the new winter book combines Wisconsin's fall and winter calendar of events with the statewide directory of skiing and snowmobiling facilities. The fall and winter calendar includes events from September through March while the directory lists the state's 37 downhill skiing facilities, over 300 cross-country facilities, and snowmobile trail systems in every county of the state.

The 40-page winter calendar of events covers the period of September, 1989 through March, 1990 and includes everything from the "Kiss A Pig" contest in Tomahawk (November 17) to the Badger State Winter Games in Wausau (February 2-4). The calendar section includes listings of ongoing events, changing exhibits and fairs, as well as an extensive listing of theatre, music and dance performances scheduled throughout the state.

The listings for downhill, cross-country and snowmobile facilities comprise a separate 70-page directory within the new winter guide. More than 300 cross-country facilities are arranged alphabetically by city. The state's 37 downhill sites are arranged alphabetically by name, while snowmobile trails are listed alphabetically by county. A handy cross-reference index and a unique color-coding system "will make the directory easy to use for those interested in a specific facility; and for those vacationing in a more general area of the state," said Governor Thompson.

All facility listings include travel directions from nearby cities as well as coordinates referenced to the state highway map, along with mailing addresses, hours of operation and telephone numbers. Cross country and snowmobile trail listings include trail mileage and available services. Downhill listings include the hill's vertical drop and longest run as well as the number of chair lifts, rope tows, ski rental, chalet and lodging information.

For the first time the winter guide will feature a listing of Wisconsin sleigh ride operators. This popular activity and others, such as winter camping, winter SCUBA diving and ice fishing are highlighted in the book.

The new winter guide is generously illustrated with high-quality, four-color photographs showcasing Wisconsin in its winter finest. Special sections highlight Wisconsin's state and national parks, snow and ice sculpture, dining, accommodations, museums, galleries and theaters, amateur and professional sports, and the state's traditional holiday celebrations.

According to the governor, "Wisconsin Winter Adventures is packed with the kind of information travelers request and is presented in a style that's fresh and appealing. We want to let our guests know when you vacation in Wisconsin...You're Among Friends."

Bayberry Candle Burns For Luck

To learn your luck for the year they say,

Burn a bayberry dip on Christmas day.

If the flame burns bright and the light shines clear,

Good luck will be yours throughout the year.

One of the early traditions of our country was that of burning a bayberry candle on Christmas Eve to assure a long and happy life.

Early settlers discovered that the bayberry gave off a wax that would make fine candles — an important discovery because animal fats were important as food and for other uses. Consequently, animal fats were preserved as much as possible and children were assigned the task of gathering bayberries for candle-making.

Use Christmas cards to decorate big boxes that are awkward and expensive to wrap. Cut the illustrations of cards and glue them to boxes.

Now Is the Time to Start Stocking Your Bird Feeders

MADISON, WI — Seed, feeder and cover diversity are the keys to a successful winter bird feeding station, according to Mark Martin, management specialist with the Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Endangered Resources.

"The seeds that certain birds prefer correlate with what they are naturally adapted to eat," Martin said. "That's why you'll attract more kinds of birds if you put out different kinds of seeds in different kinds of feeders."

Birds attracted to winter feeders are seed-eating species such as finches, cardinals and nuthatches. These birds spend the winter in Wisconsin because they are naturally adapted to find seeds even in the snow, or because the increased popularity in bird feeding provides them a food source they wouldn't find under normal conditions.

Insect-eating species like warblers migrate to warm areas where insects are available throughout the winter months.

"Cardinals didn't used to be found in Wisconsin, but they've moved north with the food source," Martin said. "Finches such as pine siskins and redpolls move with their food source too. They'll stay in an area if seeds are available."

Martin offered several tips that will help attract more birds to your feeder this winter:

- * Start feeding in late October and continue until the weather clears in April.

- * Goldfinches flock to niger seed. This black, oily seed imported from India also attracts siskins and redpolls.

- * Red and white proso millet is popular with ground-feeding birds like juncos, cardinals, sparrows, doves and finches.

- * Sunflower hearts, also called fines, provide energy that birds convert to body heat. Because the hulls are removed, sunflower hearts attract a wide variety of birds, including grosbeaks, chickadees and crossbills.

- * Small, black sunflower seeds, with hulls still intact, are higher in oil than striped sunflower seeds and attract many species.

- * Cracked corn is an inexpensive food high in calories, carbohydrates and vitamin A. It attracts ground-feeding birds like doves and white-throated sparrows.

- * Suet, hung from a tree in a suet feeder or old potato sack, attracts woodpeckers.

- * Birds need water and grit too. Grit, which helps birds digest and extract necessary nutrients from their food, is available at most farm stores.

Water heating devices can be purchased at most garden and hardware stores.

- * Fillers such as wheat, hulled oats and milo don't attract birds, but are often added to inexpensive bird seed mixes.

- * Some birds prefer to feed on the ground and others on a perch. Scattering seed on the ground, as well as providing low feeders and hanging feeders with perches, will attract the widest range of birds. To create a more diverse feeding area, put ground feed in a different area each week. Make sure to clean all feeders and remove seed left on the ground at least weekly.

- * Birds need to be safe from predators while feeding. A yard including trees, shrubs, vines and wildflowers will attract many species.

- * Squirrels are inevitable. Divert them from bird feeders by scattering ear corn on the ground.

"If you start feeding, make sure to continue through the winter," Martin said. "This is especially important in rural areas where your feeding station may be the only one around."

- 3 eggs
- 1/4 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Chocolate leaves for garnish

Other garnishes: 1 slice candied pineapple, about 6 dried apricot halves, 4 candied green cherries, and 12 cranberries

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. In small bowl with mixer at low speed, beat butter or margarine, 1/4 cup flour, and 2 tablespoons sugar until well mixed. Press mixture into bottom of 10" by 3" springform pan. Bake 10 minutes or until crust is lightly browned. Cool on wire rack.

2. Turn oven control to 325° F. In large bowl with mixer at low speed, beat cream cheese just until smooth. Add eggs, milk, lemon peel, salt, 1/4 cup sugar, and 2 tablespoons flour; beat 3 minutes longer, occasionally scraping bowl with rubber spatula.
