Concern Expressed About Public Use of Firehouse Meeting Room

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

A large contingent of the Kewaskum Fire Department attended Monday's meeting of the Kewaskum Village Board to express their concern about, and opposition to, opening the firehouse's meeting room to public use by private and civic groups and other local municipalities.

In beginning the discussion it was noted that, as it stands now, the meeting room does not meet some code requirements which would govern use of the facility by the public. According to a letter received from the building's original architects, it would cost over $12,000 to add a fire wall and other renovations to meet those requirements.

The issue of making the department's meeting room available for public use has come up frequently, according to board president Mary Krueger and Administrator Dan Schmidt. "We have at least three or four inquiries a year from various groups who would like to use the meeting room," said Schmidt. One of the most recent inquiries came from the Town of Kewaskum which would like to rent the room as its polling place for elections.

Krueger told the firemen, "I guess some of our taxpayers are wondering why they can't use a room they're paying for and which appears, to them, not to be used as much as it could be."

Krueger noted the board realized the firehouse would have to have some modifications made and that was why the architects had been called in to do an inspection.

Fire Chief Bob Stoltzmann told the board he would have liked to be present when the engineer went through the building. "Walls and doors will have to be added among other things and I don't feel $12,000 reflects near the cost. The village spent $100,000, on roof repairs to stop all the leaks and now we're going to start cutting holes in it to build a fire wall."

Stoltzmann told the board, contrary to what the public thinks, the room is in frequent use by the department from holding meetings to schooling programs for not only the department itself but with other area fire departments.

The two biggest concerns addressed by the firefighters, beside the need for major renovations and their cost, were safety and security. There are rules about using the firehouse's entrances and exits during rescue and fire calls. One of the firemen noted, what if a group of Boy Scouts was going to use the room and we got a fire call. You know how kids are attracted to fire engines, if the kids were outside playing when the men came rushing into the parking lot someone could get hurt. Sometimes we do get a little excited when we're responding to a call and the last thing we want is to hit someone.

The firemen drew attention to the parking situation. While there is a lot of blacktop around the building, it is needed for the movement of the fire equipment. Parking at the rear of the building is for firemen and at a premium. It fills up when firefighters respond to a call.

As for security, the men felt changes would have to be made in the equipment and storage areas to eliminate any possible tampering, either innocent or criminal. It was also possible that locks would have to be changed on some doors.

Stoltzmann told the trustees,

Chamber of Commerce Announces Home Decorating Contest Winners

And you think you had a tough time fighting the crowds this past week, trying to get your Christmas shopping done! The hardest job this week had to belong to the judges of the Home Decorating Contest! The decorations this year are the decorations... there are lights and decorations everywhere!

It is no wonder it took the judges hours to come up with the winners, but here they are... the personal favorites of this year's judges. Pack up the kids in the car and make sure to take a drive around town and see if you agree.

First prize was awarded to Dr. Cesar and Dr. Aurora Sison at 450 Forest Avenue for their panorama of lights at their residence.

Second prize went to the beautifully decorated home of Alex and Claudia Laubach at 536 Werner Drive.

Third prize went to Larry and Cheryl Ammel who reside at 1127 Edgewood. You won't be able to find anything outside that isn't decorated with lights. It is so gaily decorated it almost resembles a picture book gingerbread house.

Honorably mentions went to the homes of Randy and Wendi Dreher, 320 Main St.; Lee and Barb Schmidt at 1191 Parkview Dr.; and Tom and Evelyn Tromp at 1690 Riverview Dr., and last but certainly not least, the home of Vernon and Mindy Jung at 1195 Hillside.

Because there were so many outstanding homes, the judges also wanted to make special mention of the residences of Dean and Coyla Scheel on Edgewood, Jim and Sue Heisdorf on Milan Dr., Dr. and Mrs. Robert Butler on Fond du Lac Ave. and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Wesenberg on Memorial Dr.

All the above houses and many more were one prettier than the next, and I, for one, am extremely glad I did not have to make the decisions.

With any amount of luck, we'll get some nice warm weather in the coming week and we can get some pictures of the winners for you to see in the paper.

Thank you to all the residents for making Kewaskum resemble Christmas. Some one tell Steven Spielberg, if he ever decides to do a Christmas movie... this is the place to shoot it!

Paper Will Be Day Late for Two Weeks Due to Holidays

The Kewaskum Statesman will be published one day later for the next two weeks due to the Christmas and New Year holidays falling on Wednesday.

Please have your advertising and news copy in no later than Monday noon.

The office will close at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 24 (must help Santa wrap his gifts!) and Tuesday, Dec. 31 (I'm the designated driver).

Thank you for your cooperation.

Two Incumbents Seeking Re-election Three Take Out Papers For Village Board Election

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Incumbent trustees Gary Gavin and Tom McElhatton have confirmed they will seek re-election to the Kewaskum Village Board in the spring election. Gavin will be seeking his second term and McElhatton is an eight-year veteran on the board.

Administrator Dan Schmidt said Harry Roecker has also taken out papers but he had not returned them as of Monday night's meeting.

Incumbent Larry Williams announced at the village board meeting that he will not seek re-election to the board. Williams cited job conflicts as one reason for his decision not to run again.

"Anyone can jump in and run for the job, they'll have no competition from me," stated Williams. For me, who feels I made some rotten decisions while I was on the board but couldn't come to a meeting to tell me their opinions, now is the time for them to see what kind of a job they can do, he noted.

As for the Kewaskum Board of Education, there still were no candidates as of Monday.

Polish a bright red apple, one that stands up easily. Stand the apple up. Remove the apple's core about three-quarters of the way into the apple. Force a long-tapered candle snugly into the apple's center.

Cut two pieces of gold cord that are about 22" long. Hold these cords together and tie them in a bow around the candle's base.

Group several candles together on a bed of non-flammable greenery as a centerpiece, a sideboard or on a mantel.

Village Board

"at their last meeting, the men took an advisory ballot on opening up the meeting room." "Of those present, the vote was 33-0 against the idea."

Trustee Larry Williams told the meeting, "I was the one who brought up this issue because there was talk about remodeling the firehouse." He felt that if this were the case, renovations to the meeting room could be looked into as part of any remodeling project. "According to Dan, the Municipal Building's Community Room is busy and small." The firehouse meeting room was simply being looked at as another area for local groups to meet, he noted.

Trustee Tom McElhatton told the firemen, "We were asked by other taxpayers about using the room and really this was just a study to see if it was feasible." McElhatton agreed with Stoltzmann's comment that the $12,000 figure is under what the actual cost would be.

After an active discussion, the board approved McElhatton's recommendation to turn the issue over to the Public Services Committee for a more thorough review. "The committee can meet with the Chief and officers down there and go through the building," said McElhatton.

In other action the board approved the purchase of a new 1992 replacement police squad from Schwartzburg Chevrolet of West Bend, at a cost of $15,205. Police Chief Richard Knoebel told the board the village was not able to get in on the Milwaukee fleet purchase this year because of a conflict with the bid deadlines. Knoebel advised the board that next year he would schedule the bid applications to coincide with the Milwaukee fleet purchase deadline.

Action on the hiring of another full time police officer was tabled until the January meeting at the request of Chief Knoebel. Knoebel indicated some personnel issues, which came up after the Fire and Police Commission's interviews with the candidates last week, had to be clarified.

Signing of the village's 1992 fire contract with the Town of Auburn was also approved.

In non-action business Schmidt advised the board that the village's property tax bills had been sent out and 4 percent of them have already been turned in.

The Dairy Council of Wisconsin recommends toasting the holidays with some nutritional and driver-safe drinks.

For something bubbly, try serving sparkling cider or grape juice in tall, hollow-stem glasses. They will tickle the nose of any champagne connoisseur and are quite tasty. Best of all, they can be found in most grocery stores so you might want to pick up a bottle or two to just have on hand for any occasion.

For those who prefer more traditional cocktails, tomato or V-8 juice and some spices over ice with a stalk of celery will satisfy most Bloody Mary drinkers, and club soda or tonic water on the rocks with a twist of lime or lemon are thirst-quenching and hangover-free.

Need something warm for a cold night? Try brewing an herbal tea or spiced cider. Many of the teas are caffeine-free and the cider has the added benefit of being nutritional.

For a true holiday drink, why not serve eggnog and put a little tradition back in the celebration. Chances are your guests may not have had it for awhile and would appreciate the treat.

But more importantly, Dairy Council would like you to remember that when the holiday invitation says "bring your own bottle," it doesn't mean alcohol and a selection of any of the above would be welcomed by any host or hostess.

Another Sweet December

December is a happy month ... Of peace and real good will ... The grand finale of our climb ... Across another hill ... The prelude to a brand new year ... And all that it will bring ... December is a joyful month ... To which we tightly cling ... For near its end we celebrate ... The greatest day of all ... Christmas with its carols and its evergreens so tall ... December is the children's month ... When youth runs on a spree ... Waiting on old Santa Claus to fill their hearts with glee ... December welcomes wintertime and dreams of long ago ... Yes, somehow every time it comes ... Deep down inside I glow ... Because it weaves a mellow web of times that I remember ... Thank God that I'm alive to see ... Another sweet December.

Krug Farm Hosts Open House at Historical Site

Bob and Audrey Krug of Campbellsport hosted a special Open-House gathering this past Saturday for friends and relatives whose interest and help have furthered the research of the archeological site located on the Krug farm.

With help from Herman and Barbara Bender, Sue Pfeiffer, Tom Meiklejohn, and others, the couple held an informational meeting on the topic of the Krug-Senn property, one of the most unique and important complexes of ancient stone circles and petroforms found in North America.

The Krug-Senn property, located in rural Campbellsport, Fond du Lac County, is the site of the only medicine wheel known East of the Mississippi and dates between 2,000 and 2,500 years old. Petroforms (stones arranged into animal forms and geometric shapes) are scattered throughout the 15 acre site, with the medicine wheel, or sun circle, serving as an ancient stone calendar that accurately charts the movement of the sun.

The Krug's spoke of their intent to preserve and utilize Fond du Lac county's archeological treasurer, Herman Bender, Fond du Lac researchist, conducted a tour of the site and explained the history behind it; its scientific base; local, national, and possible international potential as a tourism site; as well, as on-going future research.

A buffet style potluck meal was served to a large crowd, and enthusiasm for the future development and research of the Krug-Senn site has spread to the community, and beyond.

Family Support Program Needs Volunteers

Raising a family is no easy job, and for some parents it can be isolating and overwhelming at times.

The Family Center of Washington County needs volunteers for its Home Visitor program. The program trains volunteers to provide support and parenting skills to parents who feel overwhelmed by the demands of parenting young children. The volunteer is a friend to the parent and provides basic child-rearing information, including non-abusive methods of child behavior management.

People who are over 21 years of age and who are either parents themselves or who have extensive early childhood or parent education experience, are needed as home visitors.

The next volunteer training will be held in January. Call 338-9461 to learn more about this volunteer opportunity.

Christmas In Dundee

At a Dundee Mill Committee meeting one night, someone said "Wouldn't it be nice to have an old fashioned Christmas party at the mill".

With the idea of the party and an idea of "Love Light" cards added to raise money for a generator, the proverbial snow ball was rolling.

With a lot of work from committee members and an awful lot of help from business and tavern owners, plus people from the area, the idea turned into a reality.

When we needed a x-mas tree, we were donated two. One from Harold Steffes and one from the Kettle Moraine Correctional Institute. Lights were donated by the Gene Andersons, Lee Sawyer, the John Fords, and Monica Lavey. Trimmings came from everywhere. The trimming of the old mill was fun in itself.

An appreciation Christmas Party was held on Dec. 1 at the Dundee Mill. Festivities began at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Claus and "Billy the Brownie" on hand to greet the kiddies, young and old, until Santa arrived. Hot coffee and cocoa plus trays and trays of cookies helped to lend a spirit of cordiality and to the occasion.

Christmas music filled the air as people visited and children munched and others checked the wooden tree where the Love Light cards were displayed.

The arrival of Santa started everyone bustling around trying to say hello all at one time. The children were then seated on the bench waiting patiently to get their pictures taken with the Claus'es plus "Billy" and get their candy canes. These pictures will bring back memories in years to come of that first Christmas party at the Dundee Mill.

At 3 o'clock, Our Lady of Angels Choir from Armstrong came to fill the Mill with melodious Christmas Carols. It seemed like time stood still and my mind went back to years ago when people joined together to sing those same carols in those one room schools scattered across the state.

When the choir was done, our chairman, LaVern Immel, thanked all the people who were there and sent thanks to all who couldn't make it. He then asked them to step outside for the tree lighting.

As the water started rushing through the turbine and the sound of wheels and belts turning reached their ears, a hush went over the crowd. As the power built, the lights on the first tree and then the second could be seen by all. A burst of applause rose and then the choir began to sing "Oh Christmas Tree". Over 300 lights were dedicated to some special person or family. The turbine not only generated electricity for these "Love Lights" but showed how the people from the small community plus the surrounding areas can generate their love in this season.

The Dundee Mill Committee would like to thank everyone who came and everyone who took part in something as wonderful as the "Love Light Tree" and Mill party. The tribute is to you all for without you it wouldn't have happened.

Eating Tips For The Holiday Rush

Too often during the holiday season, shopping and get-togethers take priority over preparing and eating nutritious meals. The Dairy Council of Wisconsin offers the following suggestions to help you make sure you're getting a balanced diet and eating from all of the food groups.

* From the milk group, eat yogurt for breakfast or for a snack, or top a sandwich with cheese for lunch or dinner.

* From the meat group, snack on nuts or spread peanut butter on crackers or fruit.

* From the fruit and vegetable group, order a salad when eating out, top lunch or dinner sandwiches with lettuce and tomato, or cut up some raw vegetables to tote along on a shopping trip or snack on between meals.

* From the grain group, snack on crackers, unsweetened cereal or seasonal cereal party mixes made with unsweetened cereal, nuts and fruit.

Making sure to eat nutritious meals will keep your energy level high during the busy holiday season so you can stay healthy and enjoy all the fun.

Dairy Council of Wisconsin is a non-profit nutritional marketing and communication association funded by the dairy industry.

Ornaments That Anyone Can Make

It is necessary to keep small hands busy at this busy time of the year. If children can "help" during the Christmas season, then they feel so much more a part of the pre-season hustle and are less inclined to bicker among themselves.

An easy project that encourages creativity is the making of Christmas Tree ornaments.

Gather scraps of burlap, calico, oilcloth, or any other soft material that you have handy. Old buttons, scraps of rick-rack, buttons, fringe, and velvet ribbons can serve as garnishments.

Glue together two cone-shaped paper cups and trim with scrap material. To cover a cone with cloth, make a semicircle pattern with the radius equal to the measurement from the tip to the rim of the cup. Glue the material to the cup matching edges. Cover edges where material meets with strips of sewing trim, gold foil paper or additional material.

Finally, decorate the cones with odds and ends you uncovered in your sewing basket and hang the new ornament from the tree with ribbon or thread strung through the tip.

Nutritious Holiday Meals

The holidays are approaching and so are all those delicious meals and treats. But don't despair, you can make it through the season without breaking the scale with a little bit of prior planning.

According to the Dairy Council of Wisconsin, holiday meals, such as a traditional Thanksgiving dinner, are generally well-balanced and quite nutritious. When the food groups of milk, meat, fruits, vegetables and grains are represented, the meal is ripe with protein, vitamins, carbohydrates and calcium — all the essential ingredients for a healthy human existence.

To help ensure you serve up a nutritional platter, list the food groups on a piece of paper and then cross each one off as you include it in your menu planning.

As for snacking this season, consider serving fruits and raw vegetables with a yogurt dip, or cheese wedges and crackers as a tasty, nutritious and lowfat alternative. Your waistline and company will thank you.

The most common first name of U.S. presidents is James.

Gift Giving For The Health Of It

Stuck on gift ideas for those hard to buy for loved ones? This year why not give them something for the health of it?

Dairy Council of Wisconsin has several suggestions that are not only healthy, but easy on the budget. For something anyone would enjoy, fill a basket with cheese, whole grain crackers or fresh fruit. You can make it as large or small as the budget will allow. A basil, parsley or chive plant in a pretty pot will brighten up any kitchen sill and add some flavor to the winter meals as well. For someone who may have trouble getting out in the bad weather, a basket of unique shelf-stable foods is a great gift and fun too.

To help promote regular exercise, try giving exercise equipment, sportswear or even a membership to a fitness center. If that's not feasible, how about an audio cassette of lively music to workout to, or better yet, an exercise recording on a cassette or video.

Many television stations broadcast exercise and aerobic programs on a daily basis. You could record them yourself and make your own tape saving yourself several dollars.

Another new program available on some cable services is a bike riding video you could also record. It is for stationary bikers who get a little bored riding no where fast. This lets them feel like they're outside riding through the beautiful countryside. A couple tapes of this and a few miles will make anyone feel better.

Dairy Council of Wisconsin is a non-profit nutritional marketing and communication association funded by the dairy industry. DCW serves Wisconsin, northern Illinois and northwest Indiana.

New Cars For Christmas

Are you thinking of buying a new car in the near future? Christmastime is an excellent time to buy one! It not only adds a special Christmas enchantment but is often thought the best time to buy a new car. Salesmen and dealers get hungry. The salesman may not have met his projected quota and as the year ends he gets into the bartering spirit.

City and State taxes are usually levied on your business inventories on December 31st; hence, dealers often try to reduce their stock of cars on hand and may accept low offers. This may especially be true of used cars on the lot.

Weather is also in your favor. Since snow and cold keep buyers away, you'll probably find salesmen ready to bargain.

Here's hoping Christmas to your family will include the car you need!

"The success of our Guaranteed Magnum III and Magnum III-Wet along with our

Most Americans Know Someone Whose Life Was Changed by a Drunk Driver

This holiday season, remember the responsibility involved with drinking and driving. Society has lost patience with those who refuse to recognize that drunk driving kills.

The U.S. Department of Transportation reported drunk drivers killed 22,083 people and injured 335,000 in 1990. They cost Americans $57 billion.

"It's a big problem that receives a lot of attention during the holidays," said Randy Gust, an American Family Insurance Agent from Kewaskum. "Everyone has something at stake."

Many Americans have first-hand experience with drunk drivers. A survey of 9,028 drivers reported that 97 percent knew of someone killed or injured by a drunk driver. The factor most likely to stop them from drinking and driving is the knowledge that they could kill or injure others.

A driver's blood alcohol concentration (BAC), which shows a driver's level of intoxication, predicts a driver's immediate future. In 1989, 40 percent of all drivers with a BAC over 0.10 involved in accidents were killed.

Drivers arrested with a BAC higher than 0.10 may lose their license. Drunk drivers may also lose their insurance, or at the very least must pay insurance premiums twice their usual rates.

Studies show that a BAC as low as .002 percent is enough to slow a driver's reaction time significantly.

Weekend nights, a popular time for holiday parties, have the highest incidence of alcohol related accidents. More than half of all drivers killed on weekends have BAC's of 0.10 percent or more. Alcohol involvement is highest between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. Over 70 percent of all drivers killed during this period had BAC's at or above the legal limit.

"People seem to be more aware of drunk drivers, especially during the holiday," said Gust. "You'd think the number of drunk driving deaths during the holiday months would be higher than at any other time of the year because of all the parties. Actually, the holiday months have the lowest number of alcohol related deaths throughout the year."

"The good news is 40 percent of Americans are drinking less than they were five years ago," added Gust.

Because drunk drivers are unable to make rational decisions, more responsibility is falling on those who allow intoxicated people to drive. Many states hold hosts responsible for damages caused by an intoxicated person if that person was obviously drunk when leaving the host's residence.

The National Alcohol Beverage Control Association reports that "Social Host Liability," is established by statute in 11 states and common law in eight states. "Today, the chances are greater that you will be held liable in court if you knowingly let a drunk person leave your home when you were the one that served the drinks," said Gust.

Drivers can use the designated driver system, call a cab, or have a friend drive them home if they had too much to drink.

Party hosts are encouraged to serve non-alcoholic drinks to designated drivers and others who choose not to drink. But most important is that hosts play the role of a good friend and watch to see who has had one too many.

"Using good judgment," said Gust, "is the difference between a safe and sorry holiday season."

If you are interested in serving a "no-alcohol" beverage during the holidays, here are some recipes for great tasting drinks:

Kewaskum Board of Education president Neal Weare, seated at center left, lost some of his business-like composure at last week's school board meeting when he saw a lavender and pink dinosaur walk into the KHS library. The velor creature handed Weare a ten-foot high bouquet containing dozens of helium balloons and asked everyone to join in singing Happy Birthday. (We hear from some sources that next year Neal will be joining the "over the hill" gang.) The surprise was compliments of Neal's wife. "She got me good this time," he laughed.

Draw the body of a bird on cardboard. Cover the body with pretty foil and press it firmly to the cardboard. Using another color of bright, shiny paper, cut out a tail and comb. Fringe the tail and comb, and curl the fringes slightly. Staple to the body. A rhinestone sequin or pretty button makes a neat eye. Punch a hole at a good balancing point where string or wire can be inserted and looped for hanging.

Kiwanis Presents Outstanding Conservation Farmer Awards

The Kewaskum Kiwanis Club of Kewaskum, has honored two outstanding conservation farm families at their annual farm-city banquet for thirty-three consecutive years.

The farm-city program was organized in 1958. Since then the Kiwanians have presented "Outstanding Conservation Farmer" awards to sixty-six farmers who have excelled in planning and applying soil and water conservation practices and related resource conservation on their farms. Over thirty of these farmers have turned their farming operation over to the next generation practices. The two 1990 conservation awards will be presented to the second generation farmers for the first time. Selections are made by a committee consisting of people representing Kiwanis, SCS, LCD, and UWEX.

According to a letter written twenty-three years ago by Harold Ryan, then the SCS District Conservationist, "prior to this Kiwanis program, very little conservation was practiced in this area. Today, the amount accomplished in these three townships (Wayne, Kewaskum and Farmington) exceeds what is done in all the other ten townships in the country." It is true today that the farmers and their wives who have been honored have sold the benefits of conservation to their neighbors more than anyone else.

The area involved is a rural community consisting of hills and cigar-shaped drumlins of ground moraine and kettle moraine topography extremely vulnerable to water erosion requiring conservation practices. Field trips by Kiwanians and their guests were made to visit farms where conservation practices could be observed as well as areas where conservation was not practiced in order to see the difference. This was done to create more awareness of the value of conservation practices among their members since the majority are village residents.

In presenting the awards at the farm-city banquet, colored aerial and ground slides of practices applied to the awardee's farms were shown to aid in community education of the benefits of soil and water conservation practices. In addition, speakers on subjects relating to the latest in farm technology were invited to bridge the understanding between farm and city people. Along with this, the Kiwanians were fortunate to have as a member all these years Roy Esser, who was Kewaskum High School's Vo-Ag teacher, as Program Chairman of farm-city week. Through the classroom and FFA, dads were inspired to plan and apply conservation practices.

The first federally and state funded Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) research project in Wisconsin was the Kewaskum Creek Watershed where soil erosion and barnyard runoff data was measured and used nation wide. Many of the "conservation farmers" lived in this watershed.

The Kiwanians also donated a large tract of land adjacent to Kewaskum which they developed into a natural park area now known as the Kiwanis Village Park.

The Kewaskum Kiwanis Club of Kewaskum, truly deserves a high commendation for their consistent faithfulness in initiating and maintaining this worthwhile program for thirty-three years. A program that has contributed richly to bringing about better land use and better understanding of the benefits of total resource conservation, not only in Washington County, but in adjacent counties, among city as well as rural people. This is a grass roots activity by a civic group to enhance the objectives of the Soil and Water Conservation Society.

Don Kurer submitted the Kewaskum Kiwanis Club of Kewaskum, to the awards committee to be considered for an SWCS merit award.

Positive Happy Holiday

Remember when Joey had all the artistic talents, or so you thought? You had a Christmas card idea, but you just knew you couldn't draw it—you had to have Joey draw it. You begged and pleaded and promised to give him your favorite pen, until finally Joey drew your candle. But Joey's candle wasn't the candle you had in mind. "Then do it yourself!" he proclaimed. But you just couldn't, and so you cried your childish tears.

How times have changed! The market is full of Christmas cards—almost certainly one can find the special one he wants.

In many ways when we cry, "Christmas is getting too commercial!" we tend to forget the things we really like about Christmas products of today. Perhaps a little more positive Christmas attitudes would make the holidays even happier.

OIL HEAT BEATS LP GAS!

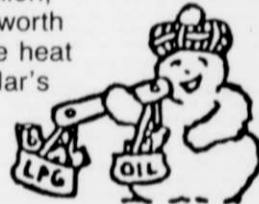

Gallon for Gallon OIL gives you 50% More Heat!

When you buy LP Gas or Fuel Oil, you're really buying heat units!

So if you buy a gallon of LP Gas and it only gets 2/3rds of a gallon of heat compared to a gallon of oil, you're paying 50% more for your LP Gas if both were exactly the same price per gallon.

If LP Gas and Fuel Oil were the exact same price per gallon, you'd have to buy $1.50 worth of LP Gas to get the same heat units you get from a dollar's worth of Fuel Oil!

When you know the facts YOU'LL CHOOSE OIL!

We are proud to expand our service into the Kewaskum, Boltonville, New Fane, Beechwood and Fillmore areas.

Our dedication to our customers will be further enhanced with VERN WIEDMEYER from Kewaskum serving these areas.

Wings Over Wisconsin Sixth Annual Banquet

The Kettle Moraine Chapter of Wings over Wisconsin held their sixth banquet at Amerahn's on October 31. This year's banquet was successful do to all the donors and their donations.

The Wings Committee wants to thank Don Spangenberg for buying the print of the year and Eugene Bohn for buying the gun of the year at our auction. With the money donated and the funds raised at the banquet we are able to achieve some of our local projects.

Number one of our projects is the selling of bird seed at a reduced price. Our bird seed sale is always the second Saturday of the months November through March. We start selling at 9:00 a.m. and stop at 12:00 noon. Usually the people are lined up at 8:00 and usually we run out before 12:00. This year we will probably go through over fifty tons of wild bird seed. We also give free bird seed to the area's nursing homes and elderly housing complexes.

Number two of our projects is the offering of scholarships to local high schools. Kewaskum students are offered the Ronnie Sarauer Memorial Scholarship donated by Wings over Wisconsin Kettle Moraine Chapter. Scholarships are also offered to West Bend East, West Bend West, and Campbellsport high schools.

Number three of our projects is giving away free seed corn and sorgume seed to land owners and wings members for food plots and cover for wildlife. Last year we gave out over one hundred bags of seed. We also hand out wildlife packages which consist of trees and shrubs for wildlife plantings.

Each year we send a couple of students from the local high schools to a DNR workshop. Another project is the donations to the Kewaskum Hunter Safety Course and to the Campbellsport Sportsman Club Hunter Safety course.

Another project the local chapter is doing is to set up a ten square mile area to release the new Jilin pheasant the DNR and Wings over Wisconsin have brought over from China and are raising at the Poynette game farm. Before we can release any pheasants we have to meet certain DNR requirements. Certain amounts of land have to be set aside for food plots, cover, and nesting areas.

UWWC Men Down Fox Valley

By Statesman Sports Writer

WEST BEND — The UW-Washington County men's basketball program took another step towards respectability here, last Monday night.

The Wildcats, at a severe disadvantage height wise, played a near flawless game against UW-Fox Valley combining a tough defense with a new offense to produce a 72-70 win over their foes, which came into the game riding a six-game winning streak.

"They were really tall," Wildcat coach Tom Brigham said, referring to the front line that went 6-8, 6-7, 6-6, and two guards that were over six foot tall. "We just played a sound fundamental game."

The Wildcats found themselves down by a point, 32-31 at the half, but came out strong in the second 20 minutes. UWWC shot 46 percent from the floor in the second half, quickly gaining the upper hand, which was also thanks in part to the Wildcat defense.

UWWC had 11 steals in the second half, while committing just three turnovers themselves. For the game, UWWC turned the ball over just 11 times.

"We played real well, both offensively and defensively," Brigham went on to say. "We put in a new offense...a flex offense, and it worked out real nicely."

Dave Swanson led the Wildcats offensively, with 26 points on the strength of four three-pointers. Joo Han also chipped in a pair of three's in a 14 point total, while Terry Howell had another solid game, contributing 14 points, 13 rebounds, and three steals.

Scott Armes had 26 points to lead Fox Valley while Doug Werch added 21. Fox Valley outscored UWWC 8-2 at the free throw line, as the Wildcats attempted just three charity tosses.

"I don't know what it is," Brigham said regarding his conservation since 1956 when Ralph took over management of the farm from his father. In the spring of 1957, 14 acres of contour strips and 1000' of grassed waterway were applied to the farm. In 1990 Ralph agreed to participate with the Milwaukee River Watershed Program. As a result an additional 8 acres of contour strips and a buffer strip along a stream were applied to the farm. The buffer strip is a 50 ft wide strip of hay that is maintained along the edge of the stream. The hay slows cropland runoff and reduces the amount of sediment and nutrients that reaches the stream. The hay strip remains productive cropland yet protects the water quality of the adjoining stream.

Duane and Linda Nickel operate a 300 acre dairy farm in Section 30 of Wayne Township. The Nickels are a second generation award winner. Duane's father, Roland won this award in 1976. Duane and Linda have maintained the 2800 ft. of diversions, 1650 ft. of grassed waterways and 60 acres of contour strips previous applied to the farm. This summer the Nickels constructed a manure storage with a ramped entrance. The storage is capable of handling up to 6 months of manure produced by their 83 cows and additional young stock.

The manure will be safely stored and applied to cropland when it can be worked into the soil. Incorporating the manure will reduce the nutrients contained in runoff there by increasing its value as a fertilizer. The storage allows manure to be managed as a valuable source of fertilizer instead of a waste that needs to be disposed of each day.

The extraordinary effort of these family farms to control soil erosion and animal waste runoff are important to all of us. Through their efforts the productivity of the land is being maintained for future generations and the lakes and streams of Washington County are a little cleaner.

The Kewaskum Kiwanis have named Ralph and Shirley Kurth and Duane and Linda Nickel as their 1991 Outstanding Conservation Farmers.

The award was established in 1958 to recognize the soil conservation efforts of family farms located within the Kewaskum school district. The award is presented as part of the Kiwanis Annual Farm City Meeting. To date 66 farms have been recognized for their conservation efforts. In 1991 the Kewaskum Kiwanis were recognized nationally by the Soil and Water Conservation Society of America for their support of conservation.

Ralph and Shirley Kurth operate a 93 acre dairy/livestock farm in Section 4 of Farmington. The Kurth's have been active in team's inability to get to the foul line. Manitowoc was whistled for just eight fouls the entire game, compared to UWWC's 19.

The win gave the Cats a 1-3 mark in the Wisconsin Collegiate Conference, while they improved to 2-4 overall.

Indian Boys Downed in Conference Opener

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM — It was a tough way to open the conference season, playing the pre-season favorite, but the Kewaskum boys basketball squad had the luxury of playing their fourth straight home game to help them in their quest.

And while the home-court advantage helped in the early going, it was just a matter of time before Two Rivers' potent attack got untracked. It did, and the Indians fell victim to the Raiders, 76-60.

The loss came in the Eastern Wisconsin opener for the Indians, and left them with a 2-2 mark overall. Two Rivers, which had been upset in their first EW contest, moved to 1-1 in conference.

"We played terrible defense," Indian coach Jim Westphal said of the effort. "They are very, very quick... have explosive quickness. We just couldn't stop them."

The loss offset a brilliant performance by the Indians' Matt Seiser. The 6-0 guard poured in 27 points to lead both teams, but even more key for the Indians was the lack of scoring done by their main offensive weapon, Joel Fleischman.

"He's really drawing a crowd much of the time," said Westphal, regarding his senior forward, who was held to just six points by the Raiders. "They did a real good job on him. When they went to the zone, they really took Joel out of it."

Seiser got the Indians off to a good start in the opening period, pouring in ten points to help Kewaskum to a 20-15 advantage after the first.

The Raider defense tightened in the second quarter, though, as they held the Indians to half of their first quarter total in forging ahead of the hosts. Chad Cook helped keep the Indians close, hitting a pair of three-pointers in the quarter, and the Indians were down by just one, 31-30 at intermission.

"We got out to a real fast start, I think we missed just one or two shots in the first quarter," Westphal explained. "They switched to their zone, and once they slowed things down, we got real tentative."

The Raiders continued to keep the Indians in check during the third, as the Indians were held to just one field goal try most times down the court. In fact, the Raiders, for the game, held a huge 30-14 advantage on the boards.

The Two Rivers lead extended to 51-41 heading into the final stanza, when Fleischman was whistled for a couple of quick fouls, his fourth and fifth, sending him to the bench with over 5:00 still to play.

"I think he's just trying to do too much, both offensively and defensively," Westphal said of Fleischman's foul trouble.

The Indians were able to cut the lead under ten just once after that, and the Raiders converted free throws to pull away down the stretch. For the game, Two Rivers held a 16-6 scoring margin at the line.

Westphal sees similarities between Seiser's performance against Two Rivers and what happened with Fleischman early last season, when teams were focusing on stopping Mark Felix.

"This year, everybody's trying to stop Joel, and their forgetting about Matt," Westphal said, adding "He really had a tremendous game. He was very tough. He has that quick first step, and that makes him very tough to guard."

In addition to Seiser's big night, Cook also hit double figures for the Indians, hitting for 11 points, including three 3-pointers. Ryan Boegel also "showed he can play," according to Westphal, as he contributed six points.

For the Raiders, Jamie Spindler led the way with 23 points, while Teague Maxfield added 16 and Jeff Kopetsky 13. "We have trouble guarding big post players," Westphal said in reference to Spindler's big outing, while Kopetsky "is just a super ballplayer," according to Westphal.

The Indians traveled to Kiel on Tuesday, and then return home this Friday to host Sheboygan Falls in their final game before the Holidays.

Indian Girls Fade After Quick Start

By Statesman Sports Writer

TWO RIVERS — The myth of the slow start after the long bus ride can finally be put to rest.

The Kewaskum girls basketball team got off to a flying start in their game at Two Rivers last Thursday night, but the Indians couldn't keep the fire burning, as they faded against the Raiders, eventually losing 54-38.

It has long been a cliché that the long drive to Two Rivers has had an adverse effect on Indian players in all sports, affecting their ability to start out quickly against the Raiders.

But the Indian girls came out firing against the hosts, building an early 10-2 lead midway through the first quarter. But some foul trouble hampered the Indian effort, and Two Rivers came back just as quick.

"We started out real well," Indian coach Glenn Eichstedt said of the fast start by his team. "But then we started to fall into their game plan and what they wanted to do. Plus we got into some foul trouble and that hurt us."

Starters Robyn Winninghoff and Terry Vogt were each saddled with three personal fouls early in the second quarter, and the Raiders used their absence to even things at 10, after one quarter of play.

With the Indians' height advantage being negated by having Winninghoff on the bench, the momentum stayed in Two Rivers' favor in the second, as it outscored the Indians 15-6 to take a 25-16 halftime lead.

"We looked at it after the game, and after we had the 10-2 lead, we had 21 possessions after that in the first half," Eichstedt went on. "In those 21 possessions, we had 12 turnovers."

The two teams battled evenly throughout the third quarter, as Two Rivers answered every Indian challenge. The hosts then went to a delay offense in the final stanza, forcing the Indians to foul. The Raiders then converted their free throws down the stretch to hold on and hand the Indians their fifth straight loss.

In fact, the Raiders dominance at the free throw line was the difference in the game. From the field the Indians out shot the Raiders 32 percent to 24 percent and had just one less basket.

But it was a different story at the line, where Two Rivers outscored the Indians 21-8, while being whistled for 17 fouls, compared to Kewaskum's 24.

Despite the foul trouble that allowed her to play just over two quarters, Winninghoff led the Indians offensively with 12 points, and Christa Fleischman had another nice outing, contributing seven in the losing cause. Tammy Schmidt and Vogt picked up the slack rebounding, each collecting seven boards, while Bonnie Schlice and Ginger Wiesner contributed four and three steals, respectively.

Gwen Gates led Two Rivers with 13 points, while Beth Peterson added eight.

Indians Downed by Experienced Raiders

By Statesman Sports Writer

TWO RIVERS — It was not a very good week for Kewaskum high school sports teams in their various contests with Two Rivers.

Both the Indian varsity basketball teams came away as 16-point losers to the Raiders, and to add to the misery, the Indians wrestlers were just as unsuccessful, as they lost to the Raiders 49-17.

"Our kids did alright," said Indian coach John Nell, who wasn't overly discouraged by the loss. "We had some close matches, but we just couldn't pull them out."

"They had four or five seniors, and then four more juniors," Nell reported. "We're going out against more experienced wrestlers and that makes a big difference. Our kids just need some more time out on the mat."

A pair of Indian grapplers, senior Kevin Kapp (125) and junior Josh Kurtz (145) remained unbeaten on the year, as they both posted wins over their foes.

Kapp dominated the Raiders' Derek Downing, as he posted a 18-2 technical fall over Downing, while Kurtz continued his winning ways with a 2:41 pin over Dale Mirkes.

"Kapp had a great match," Nell said of his lone senior on the squad. As for Kurtz, "He also wrestled real well. He really didn't have a difficult time in his match."

The other lone win came at 152 where freshman Rich Farchione pinned Jeremy Peterson in just 1:30. "He just did an outstanding job," Nell said of the young wrestler.

The loss dropped the Indians to 1-1 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference, and they are now 3-2 overall, with the Indians traveling to Sheboygan Falls this Thursday, and then taking part in an invitational in Oshkosh over the Christmas break.

"They've got some kids that have been around, so they'll be tough," Nell said of the Falcons, adding "It won't get any easier."

Deer Season 1991

Poor weather in the Campbellsport area, and throughout the State, kept the gun deer kill lower than last year. Campbellsport registration totals were down from 1990 when 146 registered on opening day and only 50 for the opener in 1991. The hunting improved with the better weather, but the totals were down considerably compared to 1990, when 577 deer were registered for the 9 day season in our area and only 345 deer registered in 1991. It shows about a 40 percent drop in the gun kill compared to the 1990's totals.

Why the drop in kill? Weather, fewer hunters, and a drop in hunters choice perraits available in Unit 69. The number of available permits dropped from 4525 in 1990 to only 2225 in 1991.

The first time muzzle loader season, which ran from Dec. 2nd thru Dec. 8th, for antlerless deer only resulted in only one deer being registered in our area, that one taken by Daniel Casey of Campbellsport.

The early bow season registration was at 107 in our area compared to 105 in 1990. Deer numbers should be up in 1992 if the winter is not too rough.

Senior guard Chad Cook (24) drives the lane late in the Indians' 71-59 win over Ozaukee. Cook scored 19 points to lead the Indians. Joel Fleischman (32) and Scott Paulson (50) are ready to rebound if Cook misses. He didn't.

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM — It started fast, and it finished strong, and for the Kewaskum boys basketball team, that was good enough on this night.

The Indians used their full court press to open up a big lead against Ozaukee, here, last Tuesday night, and then converted its free throws down the stretch to hold on the post a 71-59 victory over the Warriors.

The win was the second straight for the Indians, giving them a 2-1 mark on the year, while Ozaukee remained winless, at 0-4.

Indians seniors Joel Fleischman and Matt Seiser got the Indians started offensively in the opening quarter, scoring all but two of their team's points as Kewaskum opened up a 23-11 advantage in the first.

Defensively, Seiser, along with senior guards Chad Cook and Kim Marx, were hounding the Warriors with the press, producing a flurry of turnovers.

"We did a good job with our press in the first quarter," Indian coach Jim Westphal said of the early success. "We were playing very intense defense."

The Indians went to a fresh five man lineup in the second period, and the Warriors did a better job of handling the fullcourt pressure. Ozaukee pulled to within five, at 29-24, before Westphal returned his starters to the floor.

"I was hoping the second string would come in and pick right up where we had left off," Westphal said of his decision to make wholesale substitutions in the second. "But we had a mental let-down."

Cook answered with a three-pointer, leading the Indians on a 7-0 run to end the first half, and give the Indians a 36-24 cushion at the intermission.

"They made some adjustments in the second," Westphal said regarding Ozaukee's improvement in handling the Indian pressure. Warrior center Mitch Jacoby "really started hurting us inside."

In the third, the Warriors again chipped away at the Indian lead, cutting the margin to 42-36 late in the quarter. But the Indians once again reponded, running off five straight points to head into the fourth with a 47-36 lead.

The teams traded several baskets at the beginning of the fourth, and the Indians led 53-44 when Fleischman picked up his fourth personal foul with just over five minutes to play.

With Fleischman out of the lineup, the Warriors ran off five straight points to make it 53-49. And just one minute after pulling his best offensive player, Westphal inserted Fleischman back into the lineup.

"He's kind of a key to what we're doing on the floor," Westphal said of Fleischman. "He's a leader out there, so I had to get him back in there."

Fleischman quickly hit to make it 55-49, but Jacoby converted a three-point play, cutting the deficit to just three.

But a Fleischman to Cook pass produced a layup, while a Scott Paulson basket made it 61-54. And then Cook sealed Ozaukee's fate with his clutch shooting from the line.

The 5-8 point guard made six straight free throws down the stretch to help the Indians hold off the Warriors. As a team, the Indians hit eight of eight charity tosses in the final quarter, and nine of ten for the game.

Cook and Seiser led the Indians in scoring, with 19 and 18 points, respectively, while Fleischman chipped in 13, 11 coming in the opening quarter. Jacoby led the Warriors with 17 points, while Dave Watry added 15.

Two Rivers Sweeps JV's, Frosh Girls

By Statesman Sports Writer

TWO RIVERS — It was a clean sweep for the Two Rivers girls basketball teams here, last Thursday night.

While the Raider varsity was busy taking care of the Indians in the main event, the two younger Raider squads were having equal success in their game against Kewaskum, with the JV's winning 42-16, and the frosh victorious 43-22.

"We didn't score at all in the second quarter," Indian JV coach Keith Amundson said regarding his team's demise. Missy Radtke led the JV's with seven points, while Greta Kuphal added four, as the JV's dropped to 1-5 overall, now 0-1 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference.

"Poor ball handling and passing took us out of the game from the beginning," freshman boss Ken Soerens said regarding the freshman's first loss of the season. Shelly Williams and Chrissy Neumann shared scoring honors for the Indians, each putting in six points. The loss dropped the frosh's mark to 2-1 overall.

Freshman Boys Unbeaten, JV Win

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM — While it took three games to do it, the Kewaskum JV boys basketball team broke into the winning column here, last Tuesday, while the Indian freshman scored their second straight win of the year.

The JV boys ripped Ozaukee 55-20, using a big third quarter to pull away, while the Indian freshman jumped out to a 23-10 lead at the half and coasted to an easy 54-30 win over the Warriors.

The Indian JV's were led by James Zautner who scored nine, and Steve Johann, who added eight. The freshman were led by David Gosa, who led all scorers with 13 points. Travis Jacak added nine for the Indians.

The wins improved the freshman record to 2-0 on the year, while the JV's moved to 1-2.

Here's a Classic Cooked Egg Nog That's Entirely Safe

No need to skip homemade egg nog because you've been told raw eggs are unsafe.

"Egg nog made from a cooked custard base is entirely safe," says Tami Karls, poultry marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP).

Just in time for the holidays, the American Egg Board has developed this egg nog recipe with a stirred custard base that may be served hot or cold.

Classic Cooked Egg Nog

6 eggs
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 teaspoon salt, optional
 1 quart milk*, divided
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Garnishes or Stir-Ins, optional

In large saucepan, beat together eggs, sugar and salt. Stir in 2 cups of the milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and just coats a metal spoon. Remove from heat. Stirred custard should not boil. Stir in remaining 2 cups milk and vanilla. Cover and refrigerate until thoroughly chilled, several hours or overnight. Just before serving, pour into bowl or pitcher. Garnish or add stir-ins, if desired. Serve immediately.

* For faster preparation, heat milk until very warm before stirring milk into eggs and sugar.

Garnishes and Stir-Ins

Choose one or several: mint extract, whipped cream, cinnamon sticks, chocolate curls, fruit juice or nectar, ground nutmeg, maraschino cherries, peppermint sticks or candy canes.

Eggs, like any other perishable foods are safe, if handled and cooked correctly, says Karls. To insure food safety in all egg recipes, follow these tips for proper egg handling.

* Buy grade A or AA eggs from refrigerated cases.

* When buying eggs, check to make sure they are clean, and free from cracks.

* Also, check the pack date and expiration dates. These are located on either end of the carton and use a dating system that begins with January 1 as number 1 and ending with December 31 as 365. The pack date is required by all U.S. Department of Agriculture inspected egg plants. The expiration date, although not required, is less than or equal to 30 days after the pack date. Use eggs within four or five weeks of the pack date.

* Get eggs home quickly and refrigerate them promptly with the large ends up in their cartons on an inside shelf.

* Keep eggs refrigerated at 40 F or lower until you are ready to use them.

* Discard any unclean, cracked, broken or leaking eggs.

* Use eggs straight from the refrigerator for all recipes except when preparing recipes that call for eggs to be combined with fat and sugar. With these recipes, remove eggs from the refrigerator about 30 minutes before using them.

* Be sure your hands, work surface and equipment are clean before preparing any food. And thoroughly clean equipment again with hot, soapy water before reusing them for another food.

* Immediately consume, refrigerate or freeze cooked dishes made with perishable foods of any kind.

For more information on egg handling or additional entirely safe egg recipes, contact Tami Karls, 608/266-7181.

Merry Xmas?

Did you ever wonder how we came to use the abbreviated version of Christmas? This tradition actually began in the early years of the Christian Church. In Greek, X is the first letter of Christ's name and it was frequently used as a holy symbol.

Donate for Life

At this time of year, everyone is asking for donations — from the Salvation Army Bell-ringers to the Christmas Seals Organization. But there is one group that needs your donations as a matter of life and death and it's not your money that they are looking for — it's your blood!

No, it's not the Transylvania Trust — it's the Red Cross.

Volunteer blood donations always plunge to a very low level during the holidays. The downtrend is acute because we're so busy with activities outside our normal routine and simply do not schedule ourselves to donate blood.

The Red Cross blood program suffers a below demand shortage which results in a postponement of all but the most urgent surgery needs, and at a time when the accident rate begins to climb.

To combat this shortage the American Red Cross intensifies their program of collections in communities, and hopefully prevents dangerous emergencies.

So resolve to make a gift of your blood this holiday season and invite a friend to go with you to contribute, too. While you're at it, join a blood "bank account" for your own use whenever needed. You could save a life — you could also save thousands of dollars in a future emergency.

Sweet Tooth Trick

Say you have a sweet tooth that just won't quit? Do you have a yen for peppermint candies all year round? Then here's an idea you're sure to "sink your teeth into."

Use individually wrapped candy canes to decorate your tree. For an extra touch, twist red and white velvet bows around each cane. When Christmas is done, you don't have to pack up the ornaments and worry about having them break or crack. You just break them up yourself and fill up your candy jar for a taste treat you can enjoy long after Christmas is gone.

NOEL

May the peace of that blessed night be with you and yours. We're wishing you much joy!

 wishes for a joyous and safe Christmas. We hope that the new year finds you, and the

Tips for Selecting Good Toys

Your children are clamoring for the latest "hot toys" advertised on the Saturday morning cartoon shows. And when you wander through a toy department, you're overwhelmed by the selection.

With 150,000 toys on the market, how do you know what to buy? What's safe? What's appropriate for your children's ages and interests? What will unleash their imaginations?

To help you select good toys, BRIO Scanditoy Corp. has drawn up a list of things to consider when you're toy shopping. These basic guidelines combine common sense with knowledge gained from years of experience observing children at play.

BRIO Scanditoy Corp., headquartered in Milwaukee, is the United States subsidiary of Sweden-based BRIO AB, the world's largest wooden toy manufacturer. A number of BRIO toys have earned national awards for quality, durability, safety and

In selecting a toy, consider:

- Safety. Safe toys have no sharp edges and do not propel objects. Parts are securely fastened, and there are no harmful chemicals or flammable materials. Remember, too, to supervise the play area. A "safe toy" may be used in an unsafe way or pose a hazard for a child too young to play with it, such as a toddler playing with small pieces.

- Multiple uses. An open-ended toy, such as blocks or a building set, encourages children to create their own play. It can be used in different ways by children of different ages. There's no right or wrong way; children use their imaginations and develop at their own pace. In contrast, a closed or structured toy usually has limited use, curbing a child's creativity.

- Durability. The toy should be well made of quality materials. If a toy breaks, it may have a negative impact on a child because it suggests that he is destructive. He's also disappointed because he has lost a favorite plaything and the chance to fully explore it.

- Sensory appeal. Sounds, textures, colors and shapes add to a toy's interest and help children develop their senses.

- Age appropriateness. Choose toys appropriate for the child's age. Most children get toys that are too old for them. Too often, we push them to that one higher level, which can be frustrating and undermine their self-esteem.

- The child's interests. Look at what your child likes. Let him lead you. If he's always playing with construction toys inside, you may want to buy him a ball to encourage him to go outside, to give him a different opportunity. But if he doesn't show he wants to go out, don't buy him a whole set of ice hockey equipment.

- The child's abilities. Children need to be encouraged. But if they're asked to leap six feet and they've never leap more than two feet, they're not going to try it. Two-feet-two is a possibility. Challenge them, but give them a goal they can achieve.

- Social interaction. A good toy can include others. Children sometimes like to play with other children and with adults. Some of their toys should encourage parent-child interaction.

- Empowerment. Children learn by doing. They discover they can affect their environment. Children are empowered through the accomplishments and successes of play.

- Moderation. Children often have too many toys and that can be both overwhelming and overstimulating. Choose a few open-ended toys that offer many different play experiences rather than buying a lot of toys. Also, rotate the toys available for play and store others for future use.

Popcorn & Cranberry Garland

An all time favorite, this is a fun and easy project in which even the smallest member of the family can take part. The trick is to pop the popcorn a day in advance so it will be easy to string.

You will need:
 A bowl of day-old popcorn
 A bag of fresh cranberries
 Needles and thread

Tie a knot in the end of the thread and start stringing popcorn alternating with the cranberries. You will be surprised just how beautiful they will look on your tree.

Ice Cream Cone Horns of Plenty

Try making a completely edible horn of plenty with a sugar cone. They resemble the cornucopias often seen on English Christmas trees and small children take particular delight in them.

You will need:
 1 pointed ice-cream cone for each horn
 Assortment of small lightweight candies
 Nylon net in bright colors
 Rubber band
 Gift wrap ribbon
 Tiny artificial flowers, if desired

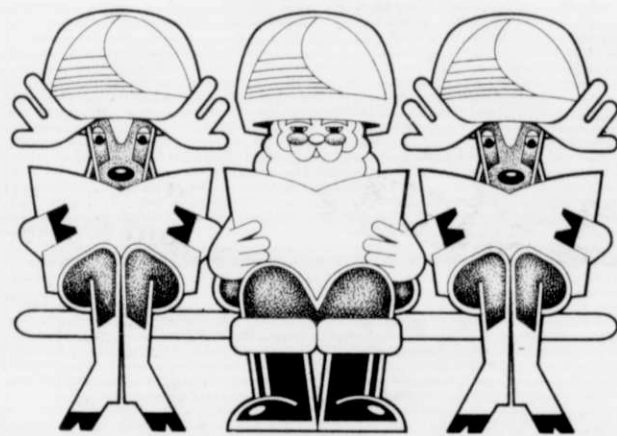

Cut the net in squares large enough to cover the cone completely and to form a ruffle around the top when gathered. Allow one for each horn.

Fill the cone with candies, then stand the cone, pointed end down, in the center of the square of net. Bring the net up around the cone, gathering the edges into a ruffle at the top. Secure with the rubber band. Cut the ribbon into lengths about two feet long and fold in half. About three inches from the folded end, make a knot to form a hanging loop. Tie the rest of the ribbon tightly around the rubber band. Finish with a bow.

The artificial flowers can be placed under the ribbon if desired.

Merry Christmas!

Take Your Turn As a Designated Driver This Holiday Season, AAA Suggests

The best way to avoid a nightmarish ending to an enjoyable holiday party is to make sure you or someone else in your group is a designated driver, the American Automobile Association suggests.

The holiday season is a joyful time, but joy can turn to tragedy when parties, alcohol and driving are mixed. According to statistics from the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, 763 people across the state were killed in traffic crashes last year. More than 43 percent of these people died in alcohol-related crashes. More than 75 percent of the fatalities occurring between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. involved alcohol. December — with its holiday parties — ranked second in the number of alcohol-related crashes recorded in a month during 1990.

"As people have become more aware of the safety hazards and legal ramifications of drinking and driving," said Joe Laubmeier, public relations coordinator for Triple-A Wisconsin, "the designated - driver concept has increased in popularity."

Laubmeier explained that not too many years ago, many party guests sneered at anyone who said, "No thanks, I'm driving."

"Today, the person who stays sober — the designated driver — is socially accepted," he said. "The designated - driver concept not only promotes safety, it also allows everyone to have a good time without worrying about how they're going to get home," he said.

Putting your own designated driver program to work is easy, according to Laubmeier. One person in a group of three or four persons agrees not to drink alcohol or use other impairing drugs at a party or social event so that he or she can drive the other group members home safely. At the next party or event, someone else takes a turn.

Party hosts should seek designated drivers from among their guests whenever alcohol is served, Laubmeier said. As guests arrive at a party, encourage one person from each group to act as the designated driver. Have a variety of non-alcoholic beverages available, and award a small gift to those who agree to be designated drivers. Hosts may also want to collect keys and explain that no keys will be returned to intoxicated guests at the end of the night, he suggested.

Laubmeier urged motorists to support the designated - driver concept by asking local bars and restaurants to promote the program. Some establishments have devised innovative efforts to provide safe rides for patrons during the holiday season, he said.

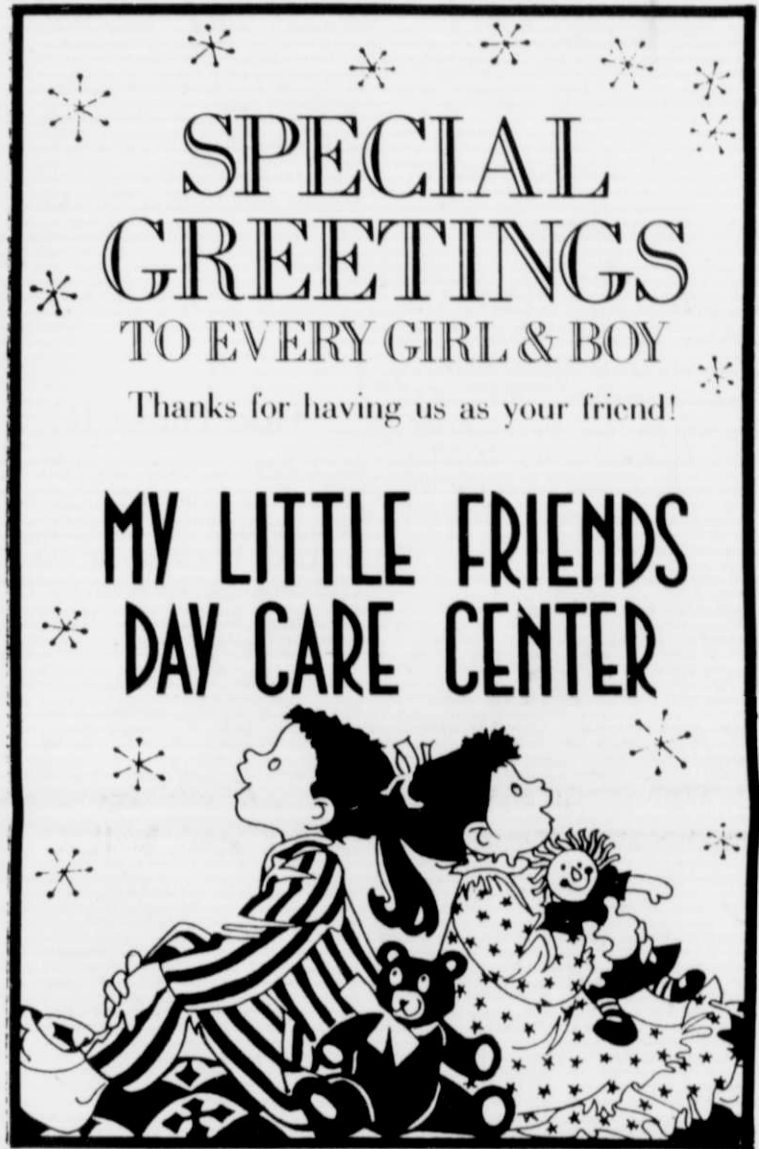

Although the concept is simple and increasing in popularity, not all groups use designated drivers. Laubmeier explained that "some people are afraid that they will miss out on something if they volunteer to take a turn driving. What they don't realize is that taking turns within a group of friends or relatives saves lives. It is much better to miss out on a hangover once in a while than to miss a dear friend because of a vehicle crash."

Thanks, friends.

Candlelight Skiing Sheds Unique Light on Winter Sports

WISCONSIN DELLS, WI — As many as 3,000 nocturnal cross-country skiers are expected to glide along candlelit trails through Mirror Lake State Park, Fern Dell Road, Baraboo, during the 6th annual Mirror Lake State Park Candlelight Ski events. This winter's ski will be held 6 to 9 p.m., January 4 & 18, and Feb. 1, 1992.

Specially made candles are used each year to light two of Mirror Lake State Park's cross-country ski trails. The candles are set along the trails to provide guidance and a unique, serene atmosphere for skiers.

The Mirror Lake State Park Candlelight Ski event was developed five winters ago after Mirror Lake State Park Superintendent Jerry Trumm learned about electrically lit ski trails in other states. Under the direction of Trumm and local motel manager Les Bremer, the annual Mirror Lake event became the first known candlelight skiing in the nation.

Admission to the event is a Wisconsin State Park sticker or a daily tag. Daily tag costs are $4.00 per vehicle for Wisconsin residents and $6.00 per vehicle for out-of-state residents.

For more information about the Mirror Lake State Park Candlelight Skiing event, call 608/254-2333. For information about ski rental, accommodations and dining in the Wisconsin Dells area, contact the Wisconsin Dells Visitor and Convention Bureau toll-free at 1-800-22-DELLS, Ext. R.

Luminarias

Luminarias are sand-weighted paper bags with lighted candles inside them. They are set along the edges of walks or rooftops. This form of decoration has made a comeback in recent years, though it has been around for centuries. When the Spaniards first colonized New Mexico, they lacked the traditional festival lights and the people began making small bonfires of bright-burning pinon. These little fires on Christmas Eve lighted the processions to Midnight Mass and were placed in front of homes so the Christ Child could find his way.

If you plan to use luminarias, this year, remember that they are effective only if they are made in large numbers and placed close together. A light wind would not prevent their use, but do not attempt to use them when it is raining or snowing.

God Bless It!

"I have always thought of Christmas time, when it has come around... as a good time; a kind of forgiving time, charitable and pleasant; the only time I know of, in the long calendar of the year, when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut-up hearts freely, and to think of people below them as if they were really fellow passengers to the grave, and not another race of creatures bound on other journeys. And therefore, though it has never put a scrap of gold or silver in my pocket, I believe that it has done me good; and I say, God Bless it!"

Some Toys Can Make A Child Lose Sight Of Things

A child's favorite gift may be his / her WORST enemy. It could cause serious eye injury or even blindness, warns Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin.

Last year more than 13,000 children sustained eye injuries while playing with toys. Nearly all of those injuries could have been prevented.

Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin asks you to make eye and general safety a priority when you're shopping for children's toys and gifts during the holiday season.

Please consider these safety tips:

- * read age, instruction and safety labels.

- * consider a child's ABILITY rather than just age

- * check toys for breakage, defects and potential hazards.

- * repair or throw away damaged or dangerous toys

- * help a child to use and store toys safely.

Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin also asks the gift giver to make time to play with the child. The child will enjoy the experience more and learn to play safely in the process.

Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin has produced a brochure, titled "Some Toys Can Make A Child Lose Sight of Things," which details a child's development and interests by age category, emphasizing safe toy and gift tips.

To receive a copy of the brochure send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to; Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin, SAFE TOY TIPS, 759 N Milwaukee, Milwaukee, WI 53202.

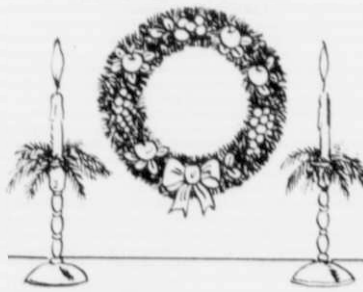

Prevent Blindness - Wisconsin provides free screenings, public and professional education. We save sight. Call (414) 765-0505.

Letters to Santa

You might like to start a new tradition in your family this year by introducing a "Letter to Santa" night.

Gather your family together and instruct them to write their very own letters to Santa. The letters should tell about each person's year as well as include their "wish list." When the letters are completed, everyone tucks his letter inside a shoe left outside his bedroom. Sometime during the night one of Santa's helpers comes around, takes the letter and leaves some candy or other special treat.

If you start early in your children's lives, many fond memories will be recorded in your child's own handwriting, making for the start of a Christmas Scrapbook that will become priceless in later years.

Creative Christmas Mantel

Create a lovely Christmas touch for your fireplace mantel, or a buffet, etc.

Place sprigs of greenery around the candle cups of two tall candle sticks.

Make a wreath to hang beside the candlesticks out of sprigs of greenery. Group together bunches of artificial grapes, apples, small baubles and small magnolia-type leaves that you have spray-painted gold; attach to the wreath.

Champagne, Anyone?

Getting ready to toast the New Year? If you're having champagne, you may be concerned about the correct way to open the bottle. Just follow these easy steps for a perfect glass of bubbly:

1. Remove wire and foil in one action.
2. Grip bottom of bottle with one hand and hold thumb on cork with other hand. Twist bottle back and forth to loosen cork, keeping bottle at 45° angle.
3. As pressure forces cork out, continue to hold it firmly.
4. Pour in two motions, letting foam subside after first pouring.

Happy popping to you!!

Create Your Own Christmas Ornaments

With manufactured Christmas decorations not available in America until the 1870s, the earliest trees were adorned with ribbons, fruit, gilded nuts, homemade paper and tin ornaments, cornucopias holding candies and nuts, and small toys for children.

Then, as now, the enjoyment of holiday decorating came as much from the opportunity to exercise creativity as from the final outcome. The writer of Cassell's Household Guide, published in 1871, asserted that half the pleasure of "decking the halls," lay in "giving scope to one's taste and ingenuity, new ideas springing up and developing themselves as the occasion arises, till the worker finds delight in the work."

In fact, until the turn of the century, the majority of Christmas tree trimmings were homemade. In St. Nicholas, a monthly children's magazine published in America between 1873 and 1940, youngsters were instructed on how to make ornaments ranging from tissue paper snowflakes and gilded popcorn strands, to monkeys made of raisins strung on wire and dressed in cotton hats and shirts.

Whether you opt to string popcorn or cranberries or to undertake a more involved project, homemade trimmings for the tree add a special touch. Even young children can be involved in simple tasks, such as creating the paper chain described below.

PAPER CHAINS

"These are very useful in giving a light, fairy-like effect to a room, and taking off the somewhat sombre effect of dark evergreens. The making of them will furnish amusement to the younger members of the family, as they are made very easily. The links are formed of strips of rather thick paper of various colours, about six inches long, and from half an inch to an inch wide.

One link being made of red paper, a strip of green is through it and the ends pasted together (your children would probably prefer the quicker stapler).

The directions below for creating a Cloth Christmas Wreath and Papier Mache Christmas Balls are reproduced from The Joy of Christmas (Baron's), by Helen Feingold and Mary Lee Grisanti.

CLOTH CHRISTMAS WREATHS

Use 2 yards each of a solid-color, calico or small print cotton fabric; you will also need heavy-duty sewing thread and 2-inch-wide velvet or grosgrain ribbon. Crush each material lengthwise into a bulky rope. Secure the ends and wrap the sewing thread loosely around and around the rope to keep the fabric in place. Tie the three ropes together and braid. Tie end of braid and bring ends together, shaping a ring; sew ends. At intervals, clip thread holding fabric in place and remove. Sew back of wreath onto a wire ring or wire coat hanger bent into a ring. Tie a ribbon bow and sew in place over the joining. Dried flowers, small pine cones, artificial berries and other small ornaments can be pushed into the folds of the fabric. Hang wreath on a nail. After the holidays, the wreath can be dismantled and the fabric used for sewing.

PAPIER-MACHE CHRISTMAS BALLS

Tear newspaper into 1-inch-wide strips (tearing rather than cutting allows paper to be molded more smoothly). Prepare wallpaper paste according to package directions and place in a bowl. Run paper strips through paste until wet and well coated. Stroke off excess glue and place strips over a small orange, rubber ball or plastic foam ball until it is completely covered with a layer 1/4 inch thick. Place on a rack in a warm, dry place (a radiator, hot air register or near the furnace is ideal) and let dry several hours. With a single-edge razor blade, cut through the paper around the center of the ball and twist to remove from mold. (if using plastic foam, omit this step).

Put the halves back together, insert a loop for hanging and cover the sash with more strips of wet paper. If you like, paste and apply color pictures from magazines, pretty cutouts from old Christmas cards, or other colored papers. Let dry for several hours. Paint as desired with acrylic colors, let dry and then brush with spray or lacquer. Abstract patterns, stripes, polka dots, funny faces, Christmas scenes, glitter, flowers, holly leaves, solid colors, words and sayings, anything goes!

Salvation Army Provides Care At Christmas

For millions of Americans, Christmas is a time of rejoicing and family celebration. But for many others, the only Christmas cheer they will know is provided by The Salvation Army.

A single mother and her five young children were recently evicted. They will have something to eat and a warm place to sleep on Christmas Eve, however, because The Salvation Army cares enough to provide food and temporary shelter.

An elderly man has spent an entire year in a nursing home without receiving a single visitor. He will be cheered this Christmas because The Salvation Army cares enough to pay him a call.

A three-year-old's father just lost his job. She will receive a few carefully wrapped gifts because The Salvation Army cares enough to collect donated toys.

Scenes like these are repeated countless times throughout the nation. This Christmas, more than six million people will bring their needs to The Salvation Army. Locally, more people will ask for some kind of help.

The Army's work is motivated by a love of God as well as a practical concern for the needs of all people, regardless of race, creed, color, sex or age. Acting upon the words of Jesus Christ, "Inasmuch as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto Me" (Matthew 25:40), the Army provides a wealth of services, including food, shelter, clothing and counsel.

"We really do believe that 'Sharing is Caring,'" said Lt. Colonel Gordon A. Spicer, Divisional Commander of The Salvation Army's Wisconsin and Upper Michigan Division. "We care about the needs and concerns of our neighbors, and want to share whatever we can offer. We welcome your involvement in our programs, whether you are in need of assistance or are interested in helping us make a difference. Our doors are open to all."

No Place Like Home For Family Fun

Looking for a change from the couch-potato afternoon? Here are some fun, safe, entertaining alternatives to try when the weather keeps the kids inside.

•Pack-a-Picnic Vacation—Ask the kids to choose a "faraway" land where they'd like to "picnic." Then, prepare a lunch menu of foods from that country, such as tacos from Mexico, pasta from Italy, or croissants from France. Place a table cloth or blanket on the floor, and let the children dress it with napkins and paper tableware. For atmosphere, tune in to some music from the land you're visiting and let the kids dress up in the kinds of outfits their foreign lunchmates might wear.

•Treasure Hunt—Hide some treats (candy, books, cassette tapes, rented videotapes of favorite movies) in safe, easily accessible places. Draw a map dotted with clues, and send the kids on a scavenger hunt. Children love a challenge and they will eagerly set out on a journey to uncover the hidden treasure.

•All on "Board" for Adventure—Board games are the perfect antidote to bad weather blahs—they're fun and challenging, and come in enough varieties to suit every interest and age. Send the family on an underground adventure where, in the new Hero Quest game, you'll encounter a magical realm filled with gruesome gargoyles, heroic quests and dazzling treasures. Or, if you prefer life in the fast lane, take the family to the stock car races. Everyone will get carried away by the excitement of the Nascar Daytona 500 game; play the cards right and you'll be the first to cross the finish line and win the prize money.

•Aspiring Authors—Instead of telling a story to the kids, ask them to use their imaginations to create a story of their own. Jot down the story as they narrate and when they're finished, show them what you've done. Then, clip art and photos from old magazines to illustrate the story together.

Urn of Fate

An old Italian Christmas tradition called the Urn of Fate might be considered for America's traditional office party.

In Italy, a large ornamental bowl became the receptacle of wrapped gifts for members of the family. When the family assembled, each member took his turn drawing a gift from the urn until all the presents were distributed.

Using this same premise at work, have everyone bring a wrapped gift and place it in a decorated container. Allow each person to select his or her own gift and unwrap it in front of the crowd. It makes for an entertaining, not to mention a surprising evening.

Bake a Batch of Cookies In Special Seasonal Shapes

Everyone, it seems, loves cookies — and who can resist the special treats that appear during the Christmas season? From German Lebkuchen and Dutch Speculaas, redolent of fragrant spices, to the melt-in-your-mouth delicacy of Greek Kourambiedes and Norwegian Spritz Cookies, the variety of shapes and sizes, tastes and textures, seems to be boundless.

You may want to consider baking an assortment of holiday cookies to have on hand for serving to unexpected holiday guests; what could be easier than putting on a pot of coffee and opening up a tin of goodies? Or you may want to package up several dozen as gifts — friends, neighbors and co-workers will all be delighted to receive a sampling of your culinary creativity.

Assemble the cookies in baskets lined with red or green napkins, in small holiday shopping bags or boxes (always use waxed paper or cellophane as a liner), or package them securely in tins.

The recipes below are for cookies in the shape of traditional Christmas symbols. While the preparation process is more involved than that for simple drop cookies, the procedures are explained clearly and are not unduly difficult.

You — and your loved ones — are sure to be pleased with the results when you invest an afternoon in creating Stuffed Stockings, Pistachio Wreaths (recipes reproduced from Better Homes and Gardens Cookies for Christmas, Meredith Publishing) or Viennese Christmas Trees (from The Silver Palate Good Times Cookbook, by Julee Rosso and Sheila Lukins with Sarah Leah Chase, Workman Publishing).

STUFFED STOCKINGS
 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/3 cup shortening
 1/3 cup butter or margarine
 2/3 cup sugar
 1 egg
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Food coloring (3 colors)
 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate pieces
 1/2 cup chopped nuts
Fleecy Icing

Stir together flour, baking powder, and salt. In a large mixer bowl beat shortening and butter or margarine till butter is softened. Add sugar and beat till fluffy. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Add flour mixture and beat till well mixed. Divide dough into thirds. Tint each third with six to eight drops of a different food coloring. Cover and chill about 1 hour or till easy to handle.

On a lightly floured surface roll each third into a 9x6 inch rectangle. Cut each into nine 3x2 inch rectangles. Sprinkle about 1/2 teaspoon each of the chocolate pieces and nuts lengthwise down the center of each rectangle. Bring long sides together, pinching to seal. Pinch ends to seal. Form into a stocking shape.

Place seam side down on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in a 325 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes or till done. Remove and cool. Spread with Fleecy Icing to make cuff, heel, and toe. Makes 27.

Fleecy Icing: Combine 1/2 cup sifted powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon softened butter or margarine, and enough milk (about 2 teaspoons) to make it spreadable.

VIENNESE CHRISTMAS TREES

- 1 1/4 cups (2 1/2 sticks) unsalted butter, room temperature
- 2/3 cup granulated sugar
- 2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1 cup ground almonds
- 3/4 cup skinned toasted hazelnuts, ground
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 cup seedless raspberry jam
- Confectioners' sugar for dusting

1. Cream the butter and granulated sugar in a mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Using a wooden spoon, beat in the flour, almonds, hazelnuts, and cinnamon to make a slightly stiff dough. Wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate at least 1 hour.

2. Preheat oven at 350 degrees. Lightly grease cookie sheets.

3. Roll out the dough 1/8-inch thick on a lightly floured surface. Cut out 24 trees with a 2 1/2- to 3-inch tree-shaped cookie cutter. Place the trees on the prepared cookie sheets.

4. Cut out another 24 trees with the same cutter. Using a 1/4 inch round cutter (such as a plastic drinking straw), cut out a few holes in each of the second batch of trees. Place this batch on lightly greased cookie sheets. If there is any extra dough, roll it out, then cut out an even number of trees. Make holes in half of them.

5. Bake both kinds of trees till lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool completely.

6. When the cookies have cooled, spread the solid trees with a thin layer of the raspberry jam. Dust the trees with the holes with confectioners' sugar and place on the jam-coated trees.

2 1/2 to 3 dozen cookies.

- 2 sticks cinnamon
- 4 cloves
- 1 orange, juiced and strained
- 2 tsp. brown sugar
- orange slices

Combine everything but the orange slices in a saucepan and heat slowly. Serve hot. Garnish with an orange slice. Serves 10.

The Noisy Influence

The Anglo-Saxons believed that something might happen when the New Year burst in. They often climbed the rooftops on New Year's Eve so as to have a good view of such an event.

Plenty of noise is made today on New Year's Eve simply because our primitive ancestors believed that noise would keep evil influences away.

Here's hoping you sew up a fabulous season of cheer!

JIM SCHAUB
Home Improvement

In September of 1897, a young girl whose faith in Santa had been shaken by some of her young friends, asked her father for the facts. Sidestepping the issue, he suggested she write to the Question and Answer department of the New York Sun, a leading evening newspaper.

The Question and Answer department, at a loss for a suitable reply, turned the child's letter over to Francis Pharcellus Church. An aging and unknown editorial writer, he tended to treat religious topics with some skepticism. However, this time he rose to the child's challenge with a response that has become a Christmas classic. It originally appeared as an unsigned editorial in the New York Sun of September 21, 1897. Below are both the child's letter and Church's response, which is still as inspirational today as it was 95 years ago.

Dear Editor,

I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "If you see it in the SUN, it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?

Virginia O'Hanlon

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Clause. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus? It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence.

We should have no enjoyment except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Clause? You might as well not believe in friends! You might get your papa to hire men to watch all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle to see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, not even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, poetry, love, romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus? Thank God, he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay 10 times 10 thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Virginia O'Hanlon went on to become an elementary grade school teacher in the New York City school system.

Toward the end of her career, she was assistant principal and teacher at a special school for chronically ill children in hospitals. Over the years she recalled the SUN editorial as a high point and inspiration in her life. She gave all the credit to Francis Church saying that he was the one who should be remembered, since it was he that "carried the philosophy of hope and love."

A Song

(to be sung with an Eggnog in One Hand and a String of Colored Lights in the Other)

Whatever's happened to Christmas?

It occurs so often now!

When I was six or a little bit more,

Though we popped the corn and we wreathed the door,

Though we trimmed the tinsel bough,
That festival morn, that midnight clear—
They only enveloped us once a year.

While now as the world and I grow older,
Christmas keeps peering 'round my shoulder.

When I was seven or maybe eight,
The year crawled past like a snow-bound freight.
Centuries yawned, I well remember,
Between December and next December.

But now I'm grown-up, more or less
The Yule pulls in like a fast express.
St. Nick's forever cutting a caper.
I'm always knee-deep in tissue paper.

Wherever I look, whenever I listen,
The joy-bells ring and the gift-cards glisten.
While last year's candles are still aglow,
I'm kissed under this year's mistletoe.

I've scarcely, at Macy's, exchanged in snatches,
The monogrammed coasters, the monogrammed matches,
When over again like seasonal symbols
The monogrammed scarves appear at Gimbels.

Let us spread His message of love and peace throughout the land. To all men of good will — a blessed Christmas!

For now so swiftly do they arrive,

100 Years and Still Going Strong

The 1991 holiday season marks the 100th Anniversary of The Salvation Army's traditional red kettle. Last year, in the United States alone, over 7½ million people were assisted through funds collected in the red kettles. So, while Christmas is a time of rejoicing and family celebration for millions of Americans, for millions more, The Salvation Army provides the only Christmas cheer they will know during the holiday season.

Captain Joseph McFee was unaware of the impact he would make to collect donations from passers-by. This tradition, which began on the docks of San Francisco, quickly spread across the country. In 1898, the New York World hailed The Salvation Army kettles as "the newest and most novel device for collecting money." Luckily, for those the collections have aided, the success of the kettle has never worn off.

Today, families are given grocery checks so that they can buy and prepare their own dinners at home. The homeless poor, however, are still invited to share holiday dinners and festivities at hundreds of Salvation Army centers. Thanks to the caring individuals who toss whatever they can afford into the kettle, The Salvation Army is also able to provide gifts and toys to meet other needs so that thousands of people can have a joyful holiday.

In stores, malls, on street corners and other gathering places, uniformed Salvationists and volunteers from all walks of life stand by kettles, welcoming contributions for the needy. Although there is quite a variety of reasons for volunteering during the Christmas campaign, the Army personnel, and many of the volunteers, are motivated by the love of God as well as a practical concern for the needs of all people, regardless of race, creed, color, sex or age.

Judging by the many and various contributions The Salvation Army has received over the years, it is comforting to realize that the tradition of sharing and caring, symbolized by The Salvation Army Christmas kettle, is very much alive and well in all of our communities.

A Time To Lend A Hand

The time has come to lend a hand
And help us with lost sheep.
To dress them warm and give them food
And show them where to sleep.
The food will calm the belly
down
The clothes will warm the skin.
The fellowship of those He's called
Will welcome them as kin.

Come join us now to feed the poor
And help them find their way.
Please give your time and volunteer
A small part of your day.

The way Salvation Army thinks
Is God gives us the chance,
To get up off the sideline chairs
And join right in the dance!

We ask of you to waltz right in
We've plenty here to do.
Just call this number on the phone
And join the loving crew.

And all this Christmas season
long,
Remember all the needs

Of folks who have no clothes or homes -
The ones the Army feeds.
The Bible says to sacrifice
In giving and in praise.
The time has come to take a stand
And follow in God's ways.
But also know that help is close
The Army's always there.
With shelter, clothing, food and,
also,
Fellowship and prayer.

Merry Christmas Togetherness

One of the happiest decisions that the whole family can make during the year is what Christmas tree to choose. This family decision is based upon a lot of loving considerations.

The tree is chosen and set up;
the traditional light, angel, or star is placed at the top. Now the lights are strung and the family steps back to take a look and get into a playful argument as to the fact that there are too many blue lights close together on one side, or not enough baubles at the bottom.

Some like to hang the icicles strand by strand while others toss them by the handfuls.

Keep a merry heart during the holiday season. Good humor can clear up Christmas quarrels that often start because everyone is tired. Happy family togetherness!

Great Gifts

Holiday gifts made with Texas peanuts are the perfect way to stretch the budget and present gifts of love as big as Texas to special family and friends.

The Down Home, Never Fail Texas Peanut Brittle is a recipe for adults to make, or to be right handy if the kids in the kitchen get a hankering to give it a try. There's nothing better than the sweet, rich aroma that comes from the kettle when you're making this all-time favorite.

Double Good Texas Peanut Clusters is an easy microwave recipe that kids can make with a minimum of adult help.

DOWN HOME— NEVER FAIL TEXAS PEANUT BRITTLE

- 2 cups granulated sugar
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup water
- 3 cups raw Spanish peanuts
- 3 teaspoons butter
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking soda

Boil sugar, corn syrup and water until thread spins. Add peanuts, stir continuously after peanuts are added. Cook until mixture turns a brownish-gold color. Remove from heat, add butter, salt and baking soda. Pour onto buttered board, spreading to 1/4 inch thickness. When cool break into pieces. Store in an airtight container.

Dang Crunchy. Plumb Good. Texas Peanuts!

Makes about 2 pounds.

DOUBLE GOOD TEXAS PEANUT CLUSTERS

- 1 cup chocolate chips
 - 1/2 cup creamy peanut butter
 - 1 teaspoon shortening
 - 1 cup roasted peanuts
- Place chocolate chips in a 1 1/2 quart casserole dish. Microwave on Medium 1 1/2 minutes or until melted. Add peanut butter and shortening. Microwave on High 1 minute or until mixture is smooth and creamy. Stir in peanuts. Drop by teaspoonful onto cookie sheet lined with waxed paper. Chill until set. Store in refrigerator. Makes 2 dozen clusters.

The Texas Peanut Producers Board has prepared a recipe brochure especially for kids. To receive this brochure and to become a member of the Texas Peanut Kids Club, send $1.00 to Texas Peanuts, P.O. Box 398, Gorman, TX 76454. Membership includes a recipe brochure, membership certificate and two collectible stickers.

Use Christmas cards to decorate big boxes that are awkward and expensive to wrap. Cut the illustrations of cards and glue them to boxes.

Gift Giving

According to many historians, exchanging gifts is a custom dating to the ancient Romans. With the birth of Christ and the incident of the gift-bearing Magi, the practice was soon adapted to the Christmas celebration.

The "gift giver" has many faces and is highly individualized with each country. In many countries, the child Jesus is the gift-giver. However, in others an unusual figure impersonates the gift-bringer: in Italy, it is La Befana who distributes the presents; in Russia, it is Babushka; and, of course, in the United States, it is Santa Claus.

TREAT THE BIRDS

The Christmas season can be a difficult time for our feathered friends, the birds, particularly if there is a snow cover. You can trim an outdoor tree and decorate it with meat, vegetables and seeds to share your holiday blessings with cardinals, juncos, sparrows, finches and other birds. Those named above like vegetable seeds, but you can use such things as pine cones dipped in suet, bits of apples or carrots, even pie crusts to attract hungry blue jays, woodpeckers, nutcrackers, chickadees, warblers and brown creepers.

Hysterectomy Technique at St. Luke's Speeds Recovery, Reduces Patient Pain

A new surgical method available at St. Luke's Medical Center in Milwaukee enables physicians to perform a hysterectomy offering women a faster recovery and reduced pain.

Doctors perform the procedure, laparoscopically assisted vaginal hysterectomy, using a laparoscope, a device which can be described as a mini video camera with fiber optic lights. The physician inserts the laparoscope through a small incision in the patient's abdomen to project an image of the uterus upon a television monitor. Specially designed instruments which can cut and staple simultaneously are then used to remove the uterus through the vagina.

"The greatest advantage of this technique to the patient is a reduction in post-operative pain and a quicker recovery," explained Samuel C. Craft, M.D., an OBGYN with a special interest in laparoscopic surgery who performed the first laparoscopically assisted vaginal hysterectomy at St. Luke's in October.

The patient's level of discomfort is minimized because the stapling device greatly reduces the amount of inflammation of surrounding tissue following surgery. With a traditional vaginal hysterectomy, a patient will stay in the hospital two to four days and return to normal routine in two to six weeks. The new technique reduces a patient's hospital stay to one to two days and allows the patient to resume normal activity in one to two weeks.

"Although I believe this will be the preferred form of hysterectomy in years to come, it is not appropriate for all patients," Craft cautioned.

Appropriate patients should have a roomy pelvis with a lowered uterus that is not overly enlarged. This technique is not applicable to women with extensive pelvic scarring due to certain medical conditions, infection or previous surgeries. Laparoscopic surgery also is not appropriate for women with advanced cancer.

For more information on the laparoscopically assisted hysterectomy procedure and to receive a physician referral, contact the Doctor Referral Service at St. Luke's Medical Center, 2900 W. Oklahoma Ave., at 414-649-6565.

Doorway to the Season

What better way to let friends and neighbors know that you have the Christmas spirit than to decorate your front door. A "well-dressed" door does not need to cost a lot of money — just use whatever is handy and seasonal and add a little imagination.

For instance, attach pairs of wide red velvet ribbon strips to the top and bottom of the door (or, if you like, continue the strips on the inside of the door for a duplicate treatment on the inside). Add artificial magnolia leaves or real ones you sprayed yourself.

If there's a light fixture nearby, trim it with velvet ribbon and greens to repeat the color theme of the door.

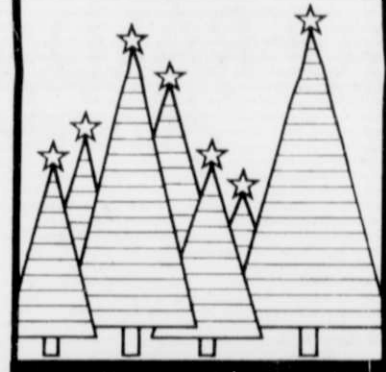

NOEL

The Christmas story inspires all mankind with a message of peace, brotherhood and love.

It is with this spirit of good will, that we express to all of you, our heartfelt wishes for a happy holiday and a warm, wonderful time.

May you treasure each moment of the season as much as we treasure the opportunity to be of service.

The Evolution of American Holiday Customs Is Illustrated in a Re-Created Prairie Village

For all of the nostalgia associated with the notion of "old fashioned" Christmas celebrations, Americans have not always been in unanimous agreement on what form — if any — holiday observances should take. In fact, Christmas was not even declared an official holiday by the state of Indiana until 1875, largely due to the controversy which surrounded both religious and secular observances.

Conner Prairie Settlement in Noblesville, Indiana, recreates mid-western village life in the year 1836, and offers visitors a rare glimpse into the evolution of Christmas celebrations in America.

Eighteenth century settlement patterns in the colonies played an important role in the development of these customs. Where the English Calvinists, Scots-Presbyterians, Ulster Irish, Baptists or Quakers settled, Christmas, for the most part, went unobserved. In the South, where upper-class Englanders struggled to duplicate Old English country traditions, the holiday season became a part of the social fabric. Pennsylvania's German immigrants maintained their Lutheran services and old-country folklore, while the remnants of Dutch culture along New York's Hudson River Valley provided the basis for the development of the American Santa Claus.

The first three decades of the nineteenth century saw a shift in attitude toward Christmas observances. An increasingly sentimental attitude encouraged the celebration of the Christ Child's birth, and the growing number of Methodists and new-style Congregationalists and Baptists incorporated Christmas feasts into their celebration.

Once restricted to a simple New Year's present, holiday gift-giving expanded to include Christmas giving as well. Special books, fruits, decorated boxes, sweets and trinkets were shipped west for the holiday season. And, by 1849, Santa Claus and Kris Kringle were "visiting" in person in Springfield, Illinois, stores.

The Conner Prairie Settlement depicts the new beginnings which were at the heart of village life in the Indiana of 1836. Were the village comprised of Moravians, Hollanders, liberal German Lutherans of sophisticated Englishmen, the season would involve decorations, worship, feasting, some old Christmas tales and some new Christmas stockings — or hats, plates or shoes — into which Kris Kringle, St. Nicholas, Belznickel, or Santa Claus would deposit the children's trinkets.

If, on the other hand, the village were inhabited only by the unchurched, a genuinely traditional secular Christmas would be observed with gunfire and parading from house to house, hard drinking, bawdy singing — and without religious observances or any kind of seasonal decorations.

Conner Prairie interprets the experimentation that was part of the country's emerging social fabric. As specific ethnic Christmas customs developed and influenced each other, and as religious commemorations and secular traditions collided and intermingled, the "traditional" American Christmas was being born.

Shining Christmas Entrance

Place two wide red ribbons together stretching them the length of the outside door. Make three equal stripes down the door.

Spray-paint sprigs of magnolia leaves and branches gold. Attach branches across the top section of the door. Use clusters of red berries or pretty baubles to centers of leaf clusters.

Floating Wreath

When making punch for your holiday party, use a tube cake pan for freezing grapefruit juice or water tinted green with food coloring to which you have added red cherries and mint leaves. When frozen, put in the punch bowl to look like a floating Christmas wreath.

Cookie Exchange

Everyone loves Christmas and the wonderful cakes, cookies and candies that go with it. But not everyone loves to make these treats. It is a time-consuming, not-to-mention expensive, activity that turns out to be more of a chore for the working woman. Well, weep no more, over that hot oven or candy machine. Instead, have a party!

Invite as many friends as you want — the more the merrier! There's only one condition: have them bring a double or triple batch of their favorite cookie or candy recipe. Set all the cookies around the table, and when everyone has gathered, have the group make their way around the "Cookie Table" taking samples of each confection until they have as many dozen as they brought. Don't forget to tell guests on their invitation to bring a container in which to take the cookies home.

A Cookie Exchange is a terrific way to entertain either at home or at the office. You might have a pot of hot apple cider simmering on the sidelines to warm your guests before their return home. Just don't eat all the cookies before they leave!

Cookies Peppernuts

Enjoy an old fashioned Christmas with these old fashioned cookies.

- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup shortening
- 4 tsp. baking soda
- 3 tsp. allspice
- 1 tsp. cloves
- 1 tsp. salt

- 1 qt. sorghum or dark molasses
- 1 1/2 pkgs. anise seed
- 6 cups flour

Cream the sugar and shortening. Add remaining ingredients stirring in a cup of flour at a time until the dough is very stiff. Cover with waxed paper and let sit overnight in the refrigerator.

Take about 1/4 cup of dough at a time and on a floured board knead in a little more flour. Roll out in a pencil shape. Slice on the diagonal and put the cookie cut side down on the greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350° for about 7 minutes. Allow to cool and store in airtight container.

Kris Kringles

A no-bake cookie that really spells Christmas, these chocolate treats are a favorite of all chocoholics.

- 1 cup chocolate chips
- 2 T. butter or margarine
- 1 egg
- 1 cup sifted powdered sugar
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- 1/2 cup chopped dry roasted peanuts

In a saucepan melt the chocolate chips and the butter over low heat, stirring constantly. Take off heat and cool to lukewarm. Beat in the egg until the mixture is smooth and glossy. Add the powdered sugar, salt and vanilla and mix well. Stir in the coconut and nuts. Chill. Form into a 10" log roll. Wrap and chill again until firm. Slice 1/4" thick. Makes about 40 slices.

Sugared Nuts

Once you start eating these sweet treats, you won't want to stop.

- 1 lb. raw peanuts
- 1 1/2 cup sugar
- 3/4 cup water

Combine all ingredients into a saucepan. Cook on medium heat stirring all the while until the liquid is absorbed, about 10 minutes. Put into a buttered jelly roll pan and sprinkle with salt. Bake at 300° for 15 minutes. Stir nuts and bake for another 15 minutes. Cool and store in airtight container.

The Day After the Feast - Turkey Encore

A whole roasted turkey is a timed honored entree for holiday feasts. People yearn for the aroma of turkey and stuffing cooking in the oven and anticipate the sandwiches, hot dishes and soups which may make an appearance after the feast. "Buy an extra large turkey to ensure plenty of 'planned overs.'" Its an economical way to stretch those good tasting flavors and to save time in the kitchen," says Tami Karls, poultry marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP).

After serving, refrigerate or freeze all turkey leftovers as soon as possible — within two hours. When using in "planned over" meals, you may serve turkey hot or cold, and substitute it in other recipes. Turkey breast meat substitutes well for veal or pork, and turkey dark meat is a great alternative for beef, lamb or duck.

Proper cooking and storage will make turkey safe to eat. Remove any stuffing from cooked bird; cool meat, stuffing and gravy quickly; and store each in a separate container. If stored in the coldest part of your refrigerator, you can use leftovers for up to four days. When serving gravy and stuffing a second time, always bring gravy to a boil and heat stuffing thoroughly.

If you choose to freeze turkey, stuffing, or gravy (rather than using them right away), try to use within one month. Turkey will not spoil if used within three to four months, but its quality will deteriorate if not used as soon as possible. Cooked turkey meat stored as chunks will freeze better than diced or shredded meat and have a longer freezer life.

With winter underway, turkey soups and hearty casseroles make satisfying simple meals. "For easy-to-serve meals, prepare soups and hot dishes using leftover turkey and store them in refrigerator or freezer until you are ready to serve them," says Karls.

Tips on Selecting and Caring For Natural Christmas Trees

A natural Christmas tree is often considered the true symbol of a "real" Christmas — a multicultural tradition that more than 36 million Americans celebrate with the fragrance and beauty of a real evergreen tree.

The tree, used as a symbol of life, is a tradition older than Christianity and not exclusive to any one religion. It's a part of holiday customs that involve our senses of sight, touch and smell and our feelings of tradition, hope and good will.

Wisconsin is the third largest producer of Christmas trees in the nation, harvesting more than three and a half million each year. Prior to the 1950s, most family Christmas trees came from the forest; today over 90 percent are plantation grown.

The top Christmas tree producing states are Oregon, Michigan, Wisconsin, California, Pennsylvania and North Carolina. "There should be a good selection of all varieties this season," says Bob Williams, marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP).

The basic rule when purchasing a real tree is to buy fresh one and keep it fresh.

"When buying from a tree lot, test trees for freshness," says Williams. "Run your fingers down a branch, toward the tip—the needles shouldn't come off in your hand. Or place a needle between your thumb and forefingers and try to bend the needle. A needle from a fresh tree should bend rather than break."

To keep your tree fresh once you get it home, saw a new straight cut across the base of the trunk — a cut of about one inch is enough. When a natural tree is harvested, a seal of sap occurs naturally over its stump which keeps moisture in the tree. It's important to break that seal to allow your tree to "drink" in the water needed to keep it fresh throughout the holidays.

Immediately place your tree in a water-holding stand or, if you are not ready to decorate it, in a bucket of water. Don't let the base of the tree dry out or a seal will form and another new cut will be necessary.

A fresh tree will retain its moisture content and thereby keep its fragrance and needles if kept in a stand that has a good water-holding capacity. A tree may absorb from a pint to a gallon of water each day, depending upon its size and condition. Checking the water supply daily and refilling when necessary will prevent the needles from drying and the boughs from drooping.

"Follow these tips and the enjoyment of a real Christmas tree can be yours throughout the holiday season," Williams says.

This year, trees that are sold by Wisconsin Christmas Tree Producers Association members are retail and wholesale lots will carry a new 4- x 5-inch red and white hang tag in the shape of the state of Wisconsin designating the tree as Something Special from Wisconsin. On one side the tag lists producer name, grower information and care instructions. On the other side, the tags, cosponsored by the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, give information that promotes using designated drivers for highway safety.

The "Something Special" logo, registered trademark of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, is used to build upon the state's reputation for quality products and workmanship in an effort to increase sales of Wisconsin products.

Children's Christmas Table

To help create a festive atmosphere at a children's party, fasten four satin streamers to the ceiling above your Christmas table with masking tape or a tack. Then fasten the other ends to four points on the table. Suspend a paper flower bouquet in the center. Finally, tape four more bouquets onto the satin streamers where they meet the table. Bows and streamers can be added to the bouquets for added embellishments.

What A Tree!

The largest Christmas tree ever lighted was 364 feet tall. It was in California's redwood forest and was first decorated on December 21st, 1945.

Be a Friend, Then a Host, AAA Advises

The holidays can be filled with fun and surprises, but a holiday party host doesn't need a surprise phone call reporting that a guest was charged with drunk driving or, worse yet, injured or killed in a traffic crash.

For more than 20 years, the American Automobile Association has sponsored its "First A Friend, Then A Host" campaign to promote safe and joyous holiday parties. This program urges hosts to take responsibility for their guests by combatting excessive drinking and making sure that people who may drink too much don't drive.

"Too often the word 'party' becomes a synonym for excessive consumption of alcohol," said Joe Laubmeier, Triple A public relations coordinator. "It's important for party hosts and guests to realize that you can enjoy holiday fun and good cheer without having to drink a lot of alcohol."

Hosts should take on the responsibility of ensuring not only that party guests have a good time but that they return home safely as well, according to Laubmeier. Hosts should set a good example for their guests by not overindulging themselves. Hosts should either recruit one person in each group to act as a designated driver, or collect car keys from guests as they arrive and explain that no keys will be returned to intoxicated guests.

"Respect the wishes of any guests who choose not to drink," Laubmeier said. "It's especially important not to push drinks on your guests or to rush to fill empty glasses." Offer non-alcoholic options such as juice, coffee, soda and fruit punches to designated drivers and others who prefer not to drink alcohol, he said.

Hosts should remember that beer, wine and hard liquor have the same potential to intoxicate. A 12-ounce can of beer, a 5-ounce glass of wine and a typical 1.5 ounce serving of hard liquor — straight or in a mixed drink — are roughly equal in alcohol content, Laubmeier said.

Hosts who serve alcoholic punches should use non-carbonated bases such as juice or tea instead of carbonated beverages, he suggested. As mixers, sodas increase the rate of alcohol absorption.

Serve plenty of food. By eating high-protein and starchy foods throughout the night, the body will absorb alcohol more slowly, Laubmeier said. Meats and cheeses are good choices, but avoid salty foods that increase thirst. Serve dessert and non-alcoholic beverages well before the guests begin to leave.

The host should make arrangements for any guest who has had too much to drink, Laubmeier said. Suggest ride sharing, overnight stays or taxi service. "Plan to handle any situation with authority and take your role as a friend seriously," he said.

To obtain Triple-A Wisconsin's non-alcoholic holiday-drink recipes, visit your local Triple-A office or call toll free, (800) 236-1300, Ext. 2486. Ask for the brochure, "First A Friend, Then A Host."

Many Have A "Blue Christmas"

According to mental health care experts, common symptoms of Christmas Blues include feelings of irritation and depression that tend to grow stronger as the holidays approach. More and more people experience these intense feelings during the Christmas season.

One explanation may be the sudden contrast between the good feelings of the season and the personal worries and miseries of the individual.

Gift giving and money worries may also cause irritation. Just the general harassment of Christmas — shopping, mailing cards, visiting, decorating — can drain a person's good spirits.

If you seem to be suffering from the Christmas Blues, keep in mind that many other people experience an unhappy holiday — and they'll get over it, too.

Don't Forget About You!

The stress of the holidays can bring you to the edge. To help you deal with stress constructively, take some time for yourself and allow your mind to be distracted. Take a walk, go to a movie, or soak in a hot leisurely bath.

Another good idea is to prioritize. Make a list of the really important things that you want to get done and stick to it. Avoid those chores that are not as critical and can be put off till a later date.

DECK THE HALLS!

Our best wishes to all for a beautiful holiday season and a fun filled New Year. It has been a pride and a pleasure doing business with you.

A Christmas List

*For Christmas this year I'd like a gift
That will last the whole year through.
It's really very simple:
I want to love and be loved by you.
It calls not for fancy paper,
Nor ribbon, nor bright red bow,
Only for arms to hold me
On days when I feel low.
It calls not for any money
Though it's far more precious than gold,
It requires only a shoulder to lean on
While I am growing old.
It cannot be placed with the other gifts
Under our Christmas Tree,
But it can be taken into my heart
Where it will live eternally.*
by Taylor Bryan

maiden had a suitor, custom dictated that no girl would be taken in marriage unless provided with a suitable dowry by her family.

So, without telling their father, the girls began to draw lots to see which one would offer herself for sale on the town auction block to provide dowries for the other two.

Word of their plight reached Nicholas. He waited only for the cover of night before proceeding to their house, where he lowered a small bag of gold through the open window of the eldest girl's room.

Now, whether or not it actually fell into a stocking hanging there to dry, as some tales have it, is not known, but in any case she was soon married. Later, on other dark nights, Nicholas repeated the same act of kindness for the other two daughters — with equally happy results. However, on the third occasion, a noise brought the father to his window just in time to see that it was Nicholas who had saved his family from disgrace.

With love and gratitude in his heart, he kept Nicholas' secret safe for many years.

poor and needy of the little town. His guardians approved of his actions and did not restrain his show of love, which was often expressed in good deeds such as giving away food, clothing, and even money — always in secret and usually at night.

Legend has it that an elderly nobleman (a former friend of Nicholas' parents) had three lovely daughters but had lost all his wealth. Though each

Fireplace Ornamentation

Fireplace adornments should be chosen with care and should reflect the personality of the house and family. From candles and holly to evergreen wreaths, there are countless ways to decorate your fireplace.

For a large area above a fireplace (or any large wall space that requires decoration) try this unusual idea. Put a rose trellis to winter use as a wall tree by inverting it and tying it with spruce branches. Red ornaments on wire stems can be stapled to the frame of the trellis and a square of styrofoam wrapped with red paper can be used for the base. Add your own ideas for that personal touch and you have an uncommon fireplace embellishment.

The Legend of Saint Nicholas

It is the year 270 A.D. The country is Lycia (today a small part of Turkey). Christianity had come only two centuries earlier by the way of the Apostle Paul.

In the little town of Patara, near the sea, was the home of a most devout couple named Epyhanus and his wife, Johane. It was a fine house, with rich farm lands and full of worldly goods. Nevertheless, Epyhanus and Johane felt poor because in thirty years of marriage no children had come to enrich their lives.

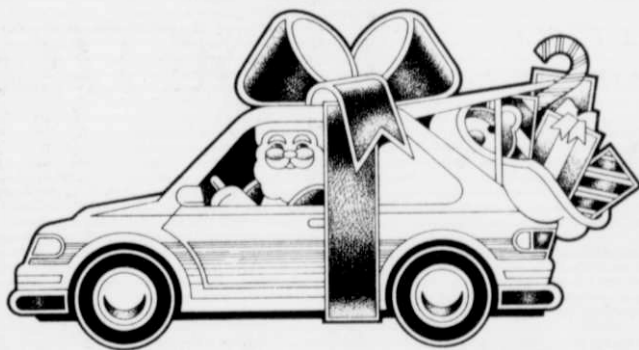

Their many prayers did not go unanswered for a child was born to them and the event was widely hailed as a miracle. The baby boy was named Nicholas, which means "victorious."

Nicholas' boyhood was a normal and happy one until his ninth year, when both of his parents died during a plague that swept the land. Early accounts tell of how he transferred the great love he had for his mother and father to the

A 'Not So Hot' Holiday Gift Idea That May Save Lives

Every year we squander billions of dollars on holiday gifts that seem like a good idea at the time... but end up permanently in closets and basements.

Now, maybe some of us desperately need machines that shoot salads or alarm clocks disguised as homemade bombs. But if you are looking for a practical, inexpensive gift that could save lives, the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) has a suggestion.

"Why not give a smoke detector and include the batteries," says Glen Loyd, DATCP Consumer Specialist. "The initial cost ranges from $10 to $25 dollars.

Smoke detectors are either ionized or photoelectric. Ionized detectors are so sensitive that even smoke from cooking, tobacco and fireplaces can sometimes set them off. This sensitivity suggests not using ionized detectors in these areas.

Photoelectric detectors, on the other hand, are less sensitive because they are triggered only by the larger smoke particles found in heavy smoke.

"Most safety experts recommend that a home have at least one smoke detector installed on or near the ceiling in sleeping areas," explains Loyd.

One final word of caution to people who may be too practical. You'd better supplement the smoke detector with traditional gifts, or you'll see smoke coming out of your loved one's ears.

Officially Christmas

It was not until A.D. 350 that December 25 was made the official date for celebrating Christmas by Pope Julius I. There was naturally some dispute about the proper date of the birth of the Christ Child and not everyone agrees even to this day. However, it seemed fitting at the time that the darkness that had frightened and threatened to defeat the ancient pagans had been forever defeated by the coming of Christ, so that the time of the winter festival should also be the time to celebrate his birth.

Have a Very, Very Merry Christmas!

If Santa is as good to you as you've been to us you're in for a wonderful holiday season! Thank you, friends.

Undying Christmas Love

The whole idea of gift-giving at Christmastime began with God. He gave us the greatest Gift anyone could ever wish for. God showed us the way to love and to have good will in our hearts for all mankind. The depth of God's love is a mystery--we cannot fully understand it. A father giving his son to the mission of dying for one of his friends is so overwhelming, much less letting him die for one of his enemies.

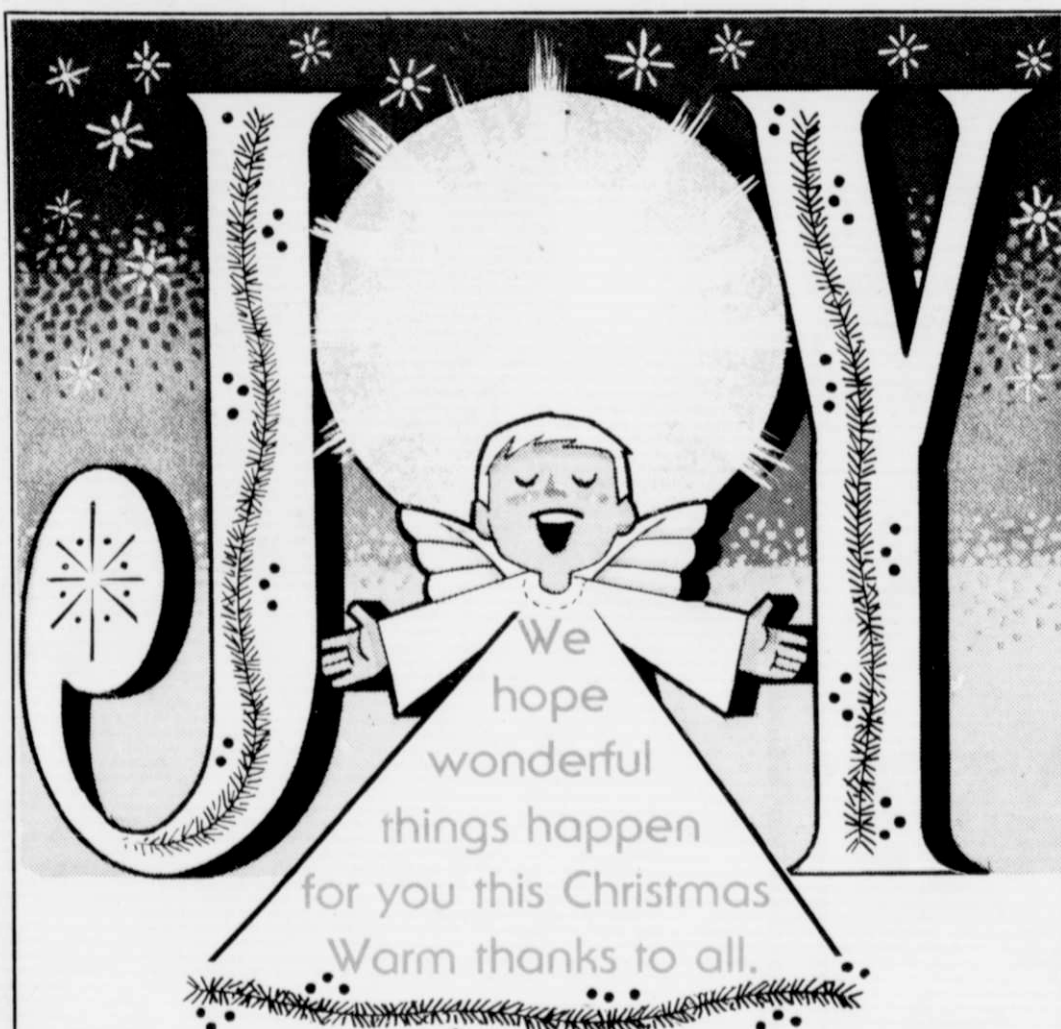

Perhaps we can best explain this Gift with the name used long ago, Emmanuel, meaning "God is with us." By the birth of Jesus, God IS with us.

The true meaning of Christmas can be kept alive in our customs as we remember the past and as we renew the spirit of Christmas by cherishing thoughts of the Christmas Babe and His undying love.
