JET Could Mean a Big Financial Investment for School District

By Gerry Mueller
Statesman Staff Writer

The Kewaskum Board of Education, Monday night, heard a lengthy presentation by several members of the Kewaskum School District's Joint Educational Technology Plan (JET) committee and the bottom line would mean a big commitment on the part of the district.

The committee consisting of parents, teachers, administration and local business representatives, met for three days in November and the results of their brainstorming session were brought to the board in a formal report.

In the briefest and simplest explanation, the forty-page document presented to the board details of JET's mission to expand and increase electronic technologies (basically the use of computer systems) in all areas of the school district's environment from classroom use of computers by students to instructors using computers in their courses as teaching aids and district staff using them for all their record keeping and reporting.

Included in the report was a cost estimate to implement the committee's recommendations. For 1992-93, based on current prices, the cost is projected to be $50,000. For 1993-94, the projection is again $50,000. For 1994-95, the cost estimate is $210,000. "This is an estimate of the things we would like to have the money to do," stated District Administrator Dr. David Heather.

High School teacher Kevin Chambers and head of the high school library served on the committee. He told the board he wanted his students to be "lifelong learners". Chambers stated, "Books will always be a part of the educational system, but computers are the technology tools of today and the future". "My goal for my students is to know what's out there and learn how to use it."

In supporting the comments of the committee members, Heather told the board, "everywhere you go everyone has a computer, nobody has files anymore, they're obsolete."

Board member John Schulte told Heather, "I can see the benefits easily but most people can't rationalize this and the bottom line is the dollar."

Heather told the board "We are presenting the district technology plan for approval but not for fiscal authorization." The board told Heather they would approve the plan if it was clearly understood that they were not approving or authorizing any financial commitment to the plan.

In other business the board voted down Heather's recommendation to participate in the Satellite Educational Resource Consortium (SERC). The program provides high school courses, via satellite, in various areas including languages, economics, etc.

Board member Paul Seymour told Heather the cost, of about $13,000, including equipment and tuition for nine students was not justified to him.

Board member Ruth Schmitt told fellow board members she was aware of other districts who were in the consortium and enthusiastic about it. Schmitt said even if the district did not participate in SERC, she would at least like to see it purchase the dish and receiving equipment which would allow the district to make use of the free courses and

Valley Banks to Lend $1.1 Billion Dollars to Wisconsin Businesses and Consumers

KEWASKUM, WI — Valley Bancorporation intends to lend $1.1 billion dollars to Wisconsin businesses and consumers in 1992, according to Peter M. Platten, III, President and Chief Executive Officer. Platten said it will be a balanced commitment to fuel the economy for both credit-worthy businesses and consumers. Valley will report quarterly on its success in reaching the $1.1 billion goal, he promised.

"We recognize that one of the principal functions of any bank is to make sure business and consumers have access to the money they need to keep economic activity at a healthy level," Platten said. "We're fortunate in Wisconsin that both our economy and our banks are in good shape."

This is very important to us because all of Valley's banking offices are located in Wisconsin, therefore our success is tied to the state's economy. This commitment represents our vote of confidence in the Wisconsin economy during 1992," he said.

Platten said figures from the Wisconsin Department of Development indicated that, on average, every million dollars of economic activity or investment supports just over 34 jobs in the workplace. From a different perspective, the National Association of Realtors estimates that the economic value to a community of the sale of a new home is 3.5 times the price of the home.

The Kewaskum Board of Education approved 1991-92 raises for the district's administrative and non-union employees Monday night. Increases for the nine individuals affected ranged from 5.07 percent to 12.91 percent with some personnel receiving additional compensation for extra duties.

While District Administrator David Heather's base salary increase was 5.07 percent or $3,200, he will receive an additional $3,800 for acting as business manager, bringing his total salary hike up to 7.2 percent. Heather's raise will increase his total salary to $66,300.

Food Services Supervisor Kathy Robinson received a 6.02 percent or $809 raise, from $13,441 to $14,250.

Buildings and Grounds Superintendent Fred Boehlke received a 6.03 percent or $2,048 increase, going from $33,952 to $36,000.

Kewaskum Middle School principal David Jones received a 6.22 percent or $2,590 raise, from $41,610 to $44,200.

Administrative secretary Jeanne Jacak was given a 6.5 percent raise, $1,551, increasing her salary from $23,874 to $25,425. Jacak will also receive an additional $333 in compensation for extra business duties, bringing her total salary to $26,758.

District bookkeeper Deb Russell also received a 6.5 percent or $1,517 raise, from $23,346 to $24,863, plus an additional $667 for extra duties, for a total 91-92 salary of $26,530.

Farmington/Wayne principal Tom Larsen was given a 6.54 percent or $2,924 raise from $44,676 to $47,600.

Kewaskum Elementary School principal Richard Zarling received an 11.05 percent or $5,170 increase, from $46,830 to $52,000. Zarling also serves as the district's director of special education and because of that, approximately one-fourth of his salary and fringe benefits are reimbursed by the state for directing the Exceptional Education Needs (EEN) program.

Curriculum coordinator Connie Strand received a 12.91 percent or $5,260 salary hike from $40,740 to $46,000 for the position of full-time coordinator. Prior to this school year, Strand had been employed as a half-time teacher and half-time curriculum coordinator.

Kewaskum High School principal Charles Heidner, who was hired for the 1991-92 school year, was not affected by the wage review. His salary is $53,500.

The above salaries do not reflect fringe benefits such as health, dental insurance, etc., which the employees also receive.

Snow Causes Series of County Accidents

By Gerry Mueller
Statesman Staff Writer

That unfamiliar white stuff caused a rash of accidents in Washington County Monday. A Washington County Sheriff's Department spokesperson said the department had responded to 34 incidents including accidents and vehicles in the ditch.

Sheriff's deputies and the Kewaskum Fire Department responded to an accident at approximately 9 p.m. in the Town of Farmington. A northbound vehicle driven by Dawn Schicker, W1590 Brazelton, Kewaskum, was involved in a one-car accident.

According to an incomplete report, the accident occurred on Forest View Road, approximately 3/10ths of a mile north of Highway 28. Schicker apparently lost control of her car due to the snow conditions. The vehicle left the road on the east side and struck a tree. The Jaws of Life were used to extricate Schicker from the car. Three youngsters were unofficially reported riding in the car. No further information was available.

February Exhibitions Now On Display at West Bend Gallery

Paintings and prints by 18 artists from Leningrad will be on display at the West Bend Gallery of Fine Arts until February 23. Titled, WHAT IS NOT FORBIDDEN IS ALLOWED: CONTEMPORARY SOVIET ART, the exhibition features 52 works by members of the Tovarishchestvo, the Fellowship for Experimental Art. Formed in 1981, the Tovarishchestvo is a group of unofficial artists who banded together to form a professional association of creative artists. "Unofficial" in this instance does not mean illegal or underground; it simply means the artist is not a member of the governmental-sanctioned Union of Artists of the USSR and therefore the work they produce is not limited by any governmental regulation.

On display will be recent paintings from members of the National Watercolor Society. One of our nation's oldest and most prestigious watercolor societies has organized this exhibition of several of its members' works which will be on display at the West Bend Gallery of Fine Arts until February 28. Members of the National Watercolor Society become members only after successfully completing a rigid jurying process which assures the society of a consistent set of standards. Several of the artists who will be represented have had their work featured in national art publication.

The color and whimsy of artist Tom Uebelherr will be on display in the lower gallery. Mr. Uebelherr is one of two Wisconsin Arts Board grant recipients participating in a West Bend Public School residency. The artists, together with students from Green Tree Elementary School, will work on an artistic collaboration entitled, CHANGES AND CHOICES. They will be collaborating with theater artist Marion Lang in a two-week residency designed by art instruction Vicki Ebben as part of a major educational school-wide focus at Green Tree Elementary School.

The West Bend Gallery of Fine Arts is located at 300 South 6th Avenue in downtown West Bend. Normal gallery hours are Wednesday through Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. and Sunday 1:00 - 4:30 p.m. For further information call the gallery at 334-9638.

President Neal Weare told her he felt such a motion at this meeting would not be proper since purchasing the equipment was a separate issue from joining SERC and not on the agenda. Schmitt then asked that the purchase of just the equipment be placed on next month's meeting agenda.

In other action the board approved accepting the retirement resignations of Howard Zemlicka and Chet Czoschke effective at the end of the school year. It also accepted the resignation of Laurie Severson-Curiel.

The board approved a preliminary notice of non-renewal to Joe McGurran, a science/math teacher, for 1992-93. Mrs. Linda Bastable was also granted family leave.

Authorization was given to an administrative request to increase the aide time for the first grade class at Wayne Elementary, from 3 1/2 to 6 1/2 hours per day.

Several concerned parents addressed the board about their children being forced to go out for recess on an extremely cold day last month. The issue was turned over to the Policy-Legislation Committee for review. The parents were advised to attend the committee's next meeting on March 2nd, and discuss the situation with its members.

commitment of this much money for businesses and consumers to invest in new factories, new equipment or new homes represents jobs for Wisconsin," Platten said.

"Even though there is a lot of worry about the condition of the economy," Platten said, "this actually is a good time for many businesses and consumers to borrow, because interest rates are at an 18-year low right now and many economists see a recovery coming by mid-year. We're happy to do business with any credit-worthy individual or business who sees this time in the economic cycle as an attractive opportunity."

Although the loans will be made anywhere Valley does business, based on last year's activity, Gerald H. Zimmel, President and Chief Executive Officer, Valley Bank, Kewaskum, estimated the northern Kettle Moraine area would generate over $30 million of the $1.1 billion.

Valley Bancorporation is the Valley, with assets of $4.0 billion, currently serves Wisconsin through 137 banking offices with additional financial service companies engaged in trust, insurance, brokerage, leasing, credit card servicing and bank operational services. Snowmobile Bridge Will Provide Complete Park Access Year-Round

Campbellsport Sno-Cougars Hold Formal Bridge Opening

Temperatures ranged from 5 to 15 degrees below zero last month when employees of Runge Excavating and Engineering, Campbellsport, worked on installation of the new snowmobile bridge across the Milwaukee River in Campbellsport's Columbus Park.

Runge Employees bolted the two sections of the 12 x 100-foot bridge together. The new bridge now connects the north and south sides of Columbus Park, providing not only a snowmobile trail link but year-round access of the entire park for other recreation enthusiasts.

The Campbellsport Sno-Cougars Snowmobile Club held a ribbon-cutting ceremony last Saturday, marking the formal opening of the new snowmobile bridge recently installed across the Milwaukee River in Campbellsport's Columbus Park. Among the guest dignitaries taking part in the event were Paul Statz, president of the Association of Wisconsin Snowmobile Clubs, Dennis Soerenson, vice-president of the AWSC, Steve Ditter, president of the Fond du Lac County Snowmobile Association and Glen Mueller, AWSC Director for Fond du Lac County.

The 12-foot wide by 100-foot long steel and wood bridge, costing $53,000, was paid for with money from the state Snowmobile Trails Fund. That fund is made up of money collected from the fees of all snowmobiles registered in the state of Wisconsin. Engineering costs for the project, amounting to $1,200, were paid for by the Sno-Cougars.

The new bridge now links a 38-mile section of snowmobile trail from southern Fond du Lac County, north to the St. Cloud trail system in Sheboygan and eventually Calumet Counties.

In a cooperative effort with the Village of Campbellsport and the local Lions and Jaycee clubs, the Sno-Cougars' project was developed. As part of the agreement, snowmobilers will be permitted to travel on a portion of trail through the park, across the bridge and out of the village.

The village will also receive a substantial benefit from the agreement in that the new bridge now connects two sections of the park, the original Columbus Park on the north side of the river, with an additional 14½ acres of land donated by the Campbellsport Lions Club in 1991, for the expansion of the park which is located on the south side of the river. With the installation of the bridge, the entire 60-acre park area will be accessible year-round without users having to travel the roadway to go from one side of the park to the other.

In addressing those attending the ceremony, village president

Richard Heisler said the project was an excellent example of organizations with different interests working together in a way that benefitted the entire community. He noted the bridge was a welcome addition which would help to develop the park and other recreational facilities being planned for it.

AWSC president Paul Statz said he was glad to see snowmobile funds being used for a project which will benefit not only snowmobilers but other recreational enthusiasts.

The Big Click Offers A Portrait of Memorial Day By Wisconsin Photographers

Wisconsin photographers joined forces on Memorial Day weekend, 1991, to capture some powerful images of the people, the places, and the activities that make this state a special place.

Professionals and amateurs alike responded with unparalleled enthusiasm to the project, entitled "The Big Click: Photographing Wisconsin." The request was for pictures of "almost anyone or anything" in Wisconsin, as long as the snapshot was taken within a four day period. Memorial Day Weekend - May 24 through May 27, called to camera owners statewide to share the inspirations of their holiday weekend...and share they did.

Thousands of photos came pouring in, at least 5,000, with participants hopeful their attempts would be included in the culmination of a "photographers dream" book, bound in hardcover with 9x12 glossy reproductions of the chosen images. Images that portray the life and spirit of people making a day - scenes as simple as a young man's haircut or as poignant as an exchange between husband and wife after the official release from duty in Operation Desert Storm.

The photographic reproduction is high quality, and it's sharpness and detail equals that of the published "A Day In The Life" series. The famous Leon's Custard Stand in Milwaukee is shot during a night scene under fluorescent lighting and you'll swear you're there enjoying a cone. This is just one among many familiar scenes in the Big Click.

Cityscapes, landscapes, environmental portraits, parades, soldiers, animals and nature, truckstops, farmers, kids, work and play, carnivals, pow-wows, ethnicity, are both the everyday and unusual subjects seen through the eyes of 67 shutterbugs.

A portrait of Memorial Day wouldn't be complete without the faces of veterans - some uniformed, some marching, and others pictured at the Wisconsin Veteran's Home in King - as a painful reminder of how our country remembers its veterans.

The book is published by Lightworks, a division of Henderson, Collins and Muir, Inc., in association with Broadcast Concepts, Inc. and other Wisconsin sponsors and television station networks - and is available in local bookstores throughout the state.

Letter to The Editor

Dear Editor:

When gambling was first passed in the state of Wisconsin, I was enthused. Not only because it would help the Wisconsin economy by creating new jobs, easing the tax burden and bringing more money into the state, but also that the owners of the gambling establishments would have to be Wisconsin residents. Now, from what I'm reading in the papers and watching on the news, the big New York corporation that was brought in to manage the Fox Valley Greyhound Park, is trying to take it over.

Apparently, from what I am reading, Delaware North Corporation wants to kick-out the owner from Wisconsin and take the race track over themselves. I understand the same thing happened in Kenosha. Now, all the money from the Kenosha dog track is going to some corporation in Alabama. If the legislature is going to allow out-of-state corporations to run those Wisconsin establishments, they better go back to Madison and see what state their paycheck comes from.

The legislature must go back and make sure that ownership of these gambling establishments stay with people in the state of Wisconsin. I think it's time the governor steps in and takes control of this situation. I want to see this money staying in Wisconsin, not New York. As we were told in the beginning, this was going to relieve some of the tax pressure and help our economy. How can that happen if an outside corporation takes over ownership of the Fox Valley Greyhound Park and takes the money out of the state? If we allow this situation to continue at Fox Valley Greyhound Park, every other state will benefit except the Wisconsin tax payers. Is this what the legislature meant when they proposed the law — I think NOT!!!

Sincerely,
Tom Donnelly

Lehman Receives Legislator of The Year Award

MADISON... At the January 22nd Annual Meeting of the K-8/Union High School District Administrators, Representative Michael Lehman (R-Hartford) was named "Legislator of the Year."

The award was presented by Cheryl Monnahan representing the Hartford High School Board. The board nominated Representative Lehman for this award as an appreciation for his efforts in communicating with the board and administration on current issues and seeking their input. Representative Lehman also worked with fellow colleagues to see that TIF reimbursement was reestablished to school districts and has worked to see that lines of communication have remained open with school board members and DNR officials in finding a solution for cleaning up underground contamination due to leaking fuel tanks.

In accepting this award Lehman stated, "I am proud to have the opportunity to serve the 59th Assembly District and will continue to keep the line of communication open to all who are involved in the education system so that their concerns can be addressed as we look at restructuring Wisconsin's educational system."

Lehman also commended the school board members for running for office and keeping to their commitment of getting involved and working with their local school system and residents to see that quality education is provided within their area. "Education is the most important factor in our success as an individual, as a state and as a nation," stated Lehman.

KHS Student Council Rock for Cystic Fibrosis

The Kewaskum High School Student Council is planning a very special event. We want to have a fund raiser. Not just an ordinary fundraiser. We have a special reason. Our purpose is to raise money for Cystic Fibrosis.

Cystic Fibrosis is a deadly disease where your glands produce too much mucous which results in your lungs and other vital organs clogging. Cystic Fibrosis mostly affects children. We need the communities help. Our event is scheduled to take place February 21st all day long and into the boys basketball game later that evening.

We've chosen to do a Rock-A-Thon!!! On an alternating basis one student from every class will rock the night away (in a rocking chair that is!!!). They will be collecting pledges starting February 12th and the night of the 21st at the boys basketball game against Plymouth, there will be buckets set up for you to put your change into.

It is an event that you will not want to miss. Please support us by pledging. You could be saving a life. A drop in the bucket is all that we are asking for.

Calves, cows and pigs, all shipped in ordinary stock cars, were frozen to death at Oakfield Friday morning when an oil car jumped the track and held up the stock car train for three hours. The accident occurred about two miles north of the village and the cattle cars were hauled into the village yard where they remained until traffic on the line resumed. The bleating of the freezing animals could be heard for blocks. Oakfield residents. W.A. Meiklejohn, local representative of the Wisconsin Humane Society was notified and took up the matter with officials of the Chicago and Northwestern road.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Ev. Peace Church in this village on Tuesday when Miss Lorina Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Schaefer, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Arthur Petermann, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Petermann of the Town of Auburn.

WE Unveils 'Green Lights' Program

MILWAUKEE... It's "Green Lights" for energy-efficient illumination.

Wisconsin Electric Power Co. has recently unveiled a new cooperative program encouraging Wisconsin businesses to take measures to benefit the environment. They can do so by purchasing energy-efficient lighting as partners in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Green Lights program.

Participation in this program, which is made easier by Wisconsin Electric's Smart Money for Business Program incentives, is co-sponsored by WE and supported by the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin (PSCW).

Wisconsin Electric, a Green Lights partner, recently introduced the program to Milwaukee business executives. Companies that agree to become Green Lights partners sign an agreement with EPA to install energy-efficient lighting "wherever it is profitable and does not compromise lighting quality." Wisconsin Electric's Smart Money Energy Program provides flexible financing to businesses in its service territory to help them purchase qualifying energy-efficient lighting.

Green Lights targets lighting because lighting accounts for about 25 percent of electricity used in the United States. Lighting for industry, stores, offices and warehouses represents as much as 90 percent of total lighting electricity use.

William Kelly, EPA administrator, says the Green Lights program is a unique partnership between business and government.

"EPA's Green Lights program is an opportunity to prove to the nation that business and government can work together to improve the global environment and increase economic competitiveness. The challenges of environmental quality, energy security and economic growth require our best common efforts," he said.

"We're committed to supporting and nurturing our state's environment and its businesses," said Richard A. Abdo, chairman and chief executive officer of Wisconsin Electric. "We believe the Green Lights Program enables businesses to save money, while benefiting the environment."

PSCW Commissioner Cheryl Parrino has indicated the Green Lights program "not only makes good business sense for the corporate partners, but it also makes good sense for our environmental future."

According to EPA, if energy-efficient lighting were used everywhere it were profitable, the electricity used for lighting would be cut by 50 percent and aggregate national electricity demand would be reduced by 10 percent.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of DORIS BARTELT, who passed away one year ago, Feb. 11, 1991:

God saw her getting tired
And cure was not to be.
So He put his arm to her,
And whispered "come with Me"
With tearful eyes we watched her suffer.

Although we loved her dearly,
We could not make her stay.
A golden heart stopped beating.
Hard working hands to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us that

He only takes the best.
Sadly missed by husband and the family.

VINCE'S MONUMENTS

Dear Dr. Sylvia,

I have a 15-year-old daughter and a 12-year-old son. Andrea enjoys teasing everyone in the family, including her brother, John, but it wears on her brother. He gets short-tempered and sometimes so angry that he hits her and is really violent. How can we handle this? They are both nice kids.

Mom, Tired of Fighting

Dear Mom,

Sibling rivalry is a natural part of family life, and if it doesn't show itself in some arguing or fighting, it will be exhibited in more subtle ways. However, the teasing and hitting out you describe seems to have become a truly unpleasant ritual. Furthermore, teenagers can often be talked to about the problem. You have undoubtedly tried that already.

First, you will want to do some observation. Notice if Andrea's teasing is truly good-natured or if it is aimed directly at John's weak or vulnerable characteristics. If the first is true, you should have a one-to-one talk with John. If the second is the case, your personal tete-a-tete should be with Andrea. My guess is that Andrea will be your target and that she is attempting to maintain her "good girl, number one" status in the family. Here's a conversation you could try. Be sure to make it very personal and never within earshot of her brother or your spouse:

"Andrea, we've always valued your kindness and sensitivity, and we even appreciate your teasing sense of humor. However, I've been noticing that the teasing you're doing with John doesn't sound like the kind person you really are. You're really targeting the very problems that John is trying to work on. Furthermore, the teasing isn't even terribly funny. I guess I can't really blame John for getting angry. What's even worse is that your mean teasing is getting to be a habit. I'm afraid you'll find yourself teasing your friends in the same way, and you won't even realize you're hurting them. I just don't like it if the real you. I'd really like that if I could help you to get over this bad habit because kindness is a quality I've always valued in you. We could even practice some nice things to say that would help John to feel better about himself."

Here's a sample personal conversation for John if the teasing is humorous and not mean, and he is truly overreacting. This conversation should not take place right after the incident, but at a calmer time:

"John, I know it really gets to you when Andrea teases you, and in a sense, she knows just the buttons to push to get you in trouble. When you hit her, of course, we have to take her side because we can't encourage your violence, and we really want you to grow up to be a gentleman. So in a sense, she wins every time you lose your temper. Also, I worry that your bad temper at home might start bad temper with friends at school, and that will surely cause you many more serious problems.

Here are some suggestions you might try. You may have some more. After you try some of these, we could talk about how they worked or you could invent some new ones.

1. You could notice how your dad and I respond to Andrea's teasing and try some of dad's or my techniques.

2. You could take a walk or go into another room every time she teases. Either act "cool" as if you don't care, or if you're angry inside, take a run outside or punch your pillow behind your closed door so she doesn't even know she has gotten to you.

3. You could try saying something really nice to her. I know you're really sensitive and kind, and she might not know how to accept a compliment at first, but after you've said something nice to her a few times, she might even decide it's her turn to return a nice compliment.

John, let's take a walk on Saturday, and you could let me know which ideas you've tried or if you've thought of any more.

As you can tell, this approach will work better with teenagers. If you're having problems with younger children, there are other suggestions in my book entitled How to Parent So Children Will Learn. Whether it's teenagers or younger children, the more you mediate between them, the more they'll argue for your attention and try to get you on their side. These simple conversations are used to put you in an alliance with them without making their sister or brother appear to be the lesser sibling.

THE SANDHILL WILDLIFE DEMONSTRATION AREA

★FIFTH IN THE SERIES★

By Bob Cooney, UW-Madison Ag Press Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the fifth in a series of stories on rural sociologist Tom Heberlein's work with gun deer hunters at the Sandhill Wildlife Demonstration Area. Heberlein surveyed about 2,800 hunters who took part in experimental hunts at Sandhill over 11 years. The stories cover hunters' marksmanship and lack thereof, hunting techniques that proved effective at Sandhill, and makings of a satisfying hunt, and how crowding influenced hunters and hunted at Sandhill.

Deer-Hunt Crowding Not All Bad

Wisconsin's northwoods whitetail population has skyrocketed in recent years, and more hunters seem to be following the deer herd north. That's good news for game managers trying to rein in the northern deer herd, but some long-time hunters are getting nervous as they see more blaze orange each deer season in once-isolated areas.

More hunters don't necessarily mean less satisfaction, according to an 11-year study of deer hunters at Sandhill Wildlife Demonstration Area. Feeling crowded decreased satisfaction somewhat for successful hunters at Sandhill... but the successful hunters were still pretty happy with their hunts, reports Tom Heberlein, a rural sociologist at the UW-Madison College of Agricultural and Life Sciences.

Seeing deer, getting shots, and being a member of a successful party increased satisfaction for unsuccessful hunters. In antlerless-only hunts, higher hunter density meant more deer movement... which should please hunters who had bonus tags to fill this year.

Heberlein and his colleagues surveyed nearly 2,800 hunters who had finished one-day hunts under one of three season frameworks: antlerless-only, either-sex, or mixed (some hunters had either-sex tags, others had antlerless-only). They had hunted in areas containing four to 30 hunters per square mile.

Increasing hunter density in antlerless-only hunts improved satisfaction and quality ratings because hunters saw, shot at, and bagged more deer, Heberlein reports. Sandhill hunters moved more when they had antlerless-only tags, and moving hunters usually move deer. In either-sex hunting, hunter density did not affect seeing, shooting and bagging. That's because hunters were more likely to stay put and wait for a big buck to come by, he says.

In an antlerless-only hunt at Sandhill, more hunters bagged deer in crowded areas (22 hunters per square mile) than in less crowded areas (12 hunters per square mile). The high-density hunters were also more satisfied with the hunt. Heberlein repeated the experiment in an either-sex hunt. This time, hunters in crowded areas weren't as happy as hunters in less crowded areas, and success was lower in the crowded areas.

These two experiments didn't contradict each other. Further experiments showed that hunter density had different effects, depending on the season framework, according to Heberlein. In antlerless-only hunts, increasing hunter density increased the number of deer seen. In either-sex hunting, deer density determined the number of deer seen.

Increasing hunter density increased the perception of crowding about equally for both types of hunts. Crowding reduced satisfaction for both groups, but not enough to offset the gains in satisfaction for antlerless-only hunters. For either-sex hunters, higher hunter densities had little effect on shots at deer or the number of deer seen, and made the hunters feel more crowded. "For antlerless-only hunters, hunter density increases are a net positive, while for either-sex hunters they are a net negative," Heberlein concluded.

Nearly two-thirds of the Sandhill hunters said they preferred to see six or fewer hunters in the field. About 17 percent of hunters preferred to see no other hunters, while 18 percent preferred to see 11 or more other hunters. That kind of spread makes setting a "social carrying capacity" difficult in hunting situations, Heberlein points out.

On the average, Sandhill hunters in low-density areas (less than 10 hunters per square mile) saw eight other hunters in the field; those in medium-density areas (10 to 19 per square mile) saw about 10 other hunters; those in high-density areas (more than 19 hunters per square mile) saw 16 other hunters. At low density, 22 percent of the hunters felt crowded; at medium density, 30 percent; at high density, 59 percent. Even at high density, however, 42 percent of the hunters did not think there were enough other hunters to move deer.

Based on his surveys of Sandhill hunters, Heberlein determined that to keep crowding within the "high normal" range for all hunters, managers should aim for no more than 23 hunters per square mile.

A "social carrying capacity" of 23 hunters per square mile can be a useful guide for managers, but should not be an iron-clad

Easing Your Tax Burden

FIRST IN A SERIES

By John T. Ader, IRS

District Director for Wisconsin

Hi, I'm John Ader, IRS District Director for Wisconsin. While I may be an IRS employee, I'm also a taxpayer like you. Every year I go through the same process as you do to prepare my tax return and get it in on time. Each week throughout the filing season, I will try to provide you with helpful hints about things that I do personally to make filing my return as easy as possible.

At the same time, I will share with you the many ways in which we can be of service to you and how we are working hard to make taxes less taxing for you, our customers. I'll try to help you solve tax problems that may arise and, best of all, tell you ways to avoid tax problems.

Now that the filing season is officially here, it is time to start thinking seriously about taxes. Even if you are not ready to sit down and actually start filling out your forms, I'd like to offer a few tips on things you can do now. The most important thing to do is keep good records of everything that may affect your income tax. I have a friend who goes over her records every Christmas, so she will know if any estimated taxes are due in January. She has a simple method of getting records together... she puts them in an envelope throughout the year.

While she uses a single large envelope into which she tosses medical bills, drug store bills, real estate tax bills, dividends and interest statements, etc., my personal system is a bit more elaborate. I use a different envelope for every category. Whether you use one envelope or rule, he says. Management units with higher hunter densities are not necessarily over capacity. The hunters in these units may tolerate contacts with other hunters while hunting, and may not reach the perceived crowding thresholds even at high hunter density. On the other hand, management units in the north with only 10 hunters per square mile may not be far below capacity, according to Heberlein.

A capacity figure of 23 hunters per square mile could provide valuable information to hunters. A map highlighting the high-density management units or state properties could help hunters select areas that fit their preferences.

Hunters at Sandhill in 1991 were allowed to choose high-or-low-hunter density areas in which to hunt. Heberlein expected to find lower levels of perceived crowding in high-density areas under this system.

many, the result is the same. If you keep receipts throughout the year, everything you need is in a single, easy to find location when its time to sit down and start filling in your tax forms yourself, or provide the necessary information to your professional tax preparer.

While the law requires you to keep tax records for at least three years, you should keep some records longer. Especially important are records concerning your home. Did you postpone the capital gains on a previous sale? Have you added a room or landscaped your property? It is also a good idea to keep records of business and investment property, stocks, bonds, etc., which may be subject to capital gains when sold at a later date. Your older records will provide you with your cost basis on which to figure any taxable gain.

Let me add a few other suggestions of records to drop in your tax file throughout the year, starting each January:

*Your monthly statements from banks, savings and loans, brokerages, etc. They will include information on interest earned, dividends, mortgage payments and other tax items.

*A list of your employers during the year to be sure you get a Form W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement," from each before filing your tax return. I wouldn't want you to omit an income source on your return, which could result in expensive penalty and interest charges.

*Your pay stubs to reconstruct your income and tax withholding.

You may have problems getting your W-2 earnings statement early next year. Incidentally, if you leave an employer during the year, ask for a W-2 form so you will be sure to have them.

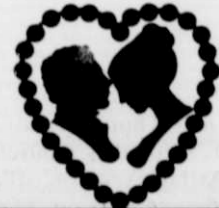

*Any records of tax withheld during the year from such additional income sources as gambling winnings or backup withholding amounts taken from your savings accounts.

*One final thought: if you do banking for a child or a dependent adult, be sure his or her social security number appears first on the account, or else their interest income may show on your tax account.

Next week I'll discuss some things you can do now to get ready to file your return. I'll also tell you what to do if you haven't received your tax forms.

Sweet Treats For Your Sweetheart

LOVE—songs by the score, books by the truck load and psychologists throughout the centuries have pondered this abstract ideal. But it is the chefs and food connoisseurs of the world who will tell you that the best way to a person's heart is through their stomach.

Getting to the heart of the matter this Valentine's Day will therefore be quite easy with two delicious recipes from Blue Bonnet Margarine.

After a romantic candlelit dinner, serve a sensuous Praline Cheesecake or sip espresso while nibbling on Kiss & Tell Linzer cookies. Both sweet treats will leave a lasting impression with your sweetheart.

KISS 'N TELL LINZER COOKIES
Makes about 2 dozen
1 cup Blue Bonnet Margarine, softened
1 cup sugar

Panthers Down Cold Lady Indians

By Statesman Staff Writer

PLYMOUTH — Kewaskum girls basketball coach Glenn Eichstedt has got to be wondering just how bad his team's field goal shooting can get.

The Lady Indians reached a new low in the first half of their tilt with Plymouth here, last Tuesday night. Consequently, the Indians fell behind and were never able to catch the Panthers, losing 42-30.

"It was a strange game," Eichstedt said of the contest. "I felt that we outplayed them and outthrustled them, but the sole difference was in the shooting."

Eichstedt was right on target with his latter observation, as his squad couldn't find the range, especially in the first half. The Indians connected on just three of their 33 field goal tries before intermission, and according to Eichstedt, "30 of those were inside fifteen feet. We were getting the kinds of shots we wanted, they just wouldn't go in."

Still, the Indians used some tough defense to remain within striking distance. After falling behind 14-5 after one quarter of play, the Indians allowed Plymouth just two points in the second stanza, and trailed 16-10 at halftime.

"We really picked up our intensity level in the second quarter defensively," Eichstedt noted, adding that the Indians were allowing the perimeter jumpers, because the Panthers do not have good outside shooters. "If we forced them outside, they weren't going to be effective."

The Indians were just as ineffective, however. "That was our time to make a run, but we just couldn't get any shots to fall."

Plymouth then put the game pretty much out of reach in the third period, taking a commanding 30-16 lead. Kewaskum finally managed to reach double digits in the final frame, but their 14 points weren't nearly enough against the Panthers, who moved to 5-3 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference with the win, despite missing some key players from their lineup.

"They were a little shorthanded," Eichstedt said, noting that Tessa Smith and Jean Johanning, a pair of starters, were out with injuries. Smith's occurred during pre-game warmups.

The Indians wound up shooting just 19 percent from the floor, making just 13 of 65 tries. The Indians did cut down on their turnovers early, but after falling behind, "we started to push the ball upcourt, and we turned it over a few times," according to the Indians boss.

Offensively, Robyn Winningshoff led Kewaskum with 12 points. "She was pretty steady," Eichstedt said of his 6-3 junior. "But no one else really stepped up (offensively)."

Plymouth was led by Heide Miller, who had 15 points. The loss dropped the Indians to 1-8 in the EW, and to 2-14 overall.

Lady Wildcats Split Freshman Girls at .500

By Statesman Sports Writer

WEST BEND — After being stopped by Waukesha Tech. in a rare loss just two days earlier, UW-Washington County's Jenny Meyer came back in a big way against Milwaukee Area Technical College here, last Wednesday night.

Meyer scored 29 points, as she got some help from Michelle Kraus as the Wildcats wore down MATC to win 84-72.

Krause came through big as well, hitting for a triple double in the win. Krause finished with 24 points, 10 rebounds and 11 assists, as UWWC improved to 13-4 overall.

On Monday, Waukesha Tech used a box-and-one to slow Meyer down, and the strategy worked, as the Wildcat center was limited to just 11 points as Waukesha Tech came away with a 43-41 win.

Krause once again had a fine game, hitting for 17 points, but it wasn't enough as UWWC was without the services of one of its top players, former Kewaskum player Kelly Rohlinger, who was out with the flu.

The two non-conference games didn't hurt the Wildcats' first place tie in the WCC - East, in which they sport a 7-2 mark. The Wildcats wind up the season with a home game against Marathon on Saturday.

PLYMOUTH — Free throws can make all the difference in a basketball game, even at the freshman level.

Down 32-31, Kewaskum's Joanne Theusch hit a pair of charity tosses with 15 seconds to play, and then watched as Plymouth missed a pair with :02 left, as the Indians frosh won a thrilling 33-32 decision here, last Tuesday.

Theusch led the Indians with 13 points, while Mary Yahr chipped in nine, as the win evened the Indians record at 7-7 on the year.

The JV girls were unable to duplicate the frosh's success, however, as they dropped a 34-30 loss to the Panthers. Greta Kuphal led the JV's with 10 points, and Tricia Butschlick added six, as the JV's fell to 5-11 on the year, including 4-5 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference.

Pay As You Go

You must pay tax on your income as you earn or receive it during the year. You pay-as-you-go either through withholding or estimated tax. Your employer probably withholds the tax from your pay. But if you are self-employed or have income from interest, alimony, prizes, and such, you may have to pay estimated tax. To find out more, call the IRS at 1-800-829-3676 and ask for Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. It's free!

Wild Animals Are Prepared to Handle Winter's Worst Weather

Winter animal feeding can do more harm than good when people don't follow certain guidelines, according to Sarah Hurley, wildlife health specialist for the Department of Natural Resources. Bird and other animal feeders may also interrupt an organism's natural strategies for finding food.

"Many foods that people are putting out don't meet an animal's biological needs," Hurley said. "Also, when an animal concentrates on a single source like a bird feeder, they tend to lose their habitual foraging habits."

This becomes a major problem when people leave for extended periods of time or simply discontinue their animal-feeding practices. If the artificial food sources are terminated once an animal has abandoned its old foraging patterns, starvation could result.

"Once the artificial source is gone, there's no plan B," Hurley said.

Winter feeding can also concentrate many animals together. Organisms in the winter need to eat proportionally more to maintain their body temperature in colder weather. Consequently, animals seek out the easiest food sources to conserve their energy, according to Hurley.

This means sick and healthy animals are often in direct contact with each other, a perfect way for disease to be transmitted. According to Hurley, lower-case Salmonella outbreaks have been documented in birds frequenting feeders, and similar consequences are plausible when people feed other animals such as deer or raccoons.

"Some infectious diseases are spread through contact with fecal matter at places like bird feeders," she said. "Cats and humans and other organisms which come in contact with these feeders may also be susceptible to getting sick."

Hurley offers these suggestions to bird-feeding enthusiasts:

*Once you've started feeding the birds, continue the feeding through the winter until April.

*A variety of seeds will attract a variety of birds to your feeder; fillers alone, such as wheat, hull-ed oats or milo, won't attract birds.

*Keep the feeding stations clean of feces to prevent the spread of disease. Disinfect the feeders each time you refill them; a 5 percent bleach solution works well... let the feeder air dry after you scrub it clean.

Deer feeding has become a large scale operation in the northern half of the state, according to Keith McCaffery, northern forest biologist for the DNR. One grain mill in Tomahawk sold more than 600 tons of deer feed last winter. Typically, the feed consists of 50 percent corn and 50 percent deer pellets, a horse feed-like mixture which McCaffery describes as "pretty balanced stuff" nutritionally for deer.

Feeding deer has positive and negative impacts that, in McCaffery's eyes, can sometimes conflict with each other.

"People appreciate the deer in a different light when they can see them up close; there's certain special ones that frequent a feeding station," he said.

That same point can also be a downfall, though, because people don't like to see deer that they've gotten close to being hunted when November comes.

Feeding does appear to help more deer survive northern Wisconsin's winter, and when spring arrives, young plants shooting up from the forest understory provide a tasty change in diet. This large sustained deer population increases pressure on wild plants, a point that angers some botanists, says McCaffery.

There's also something less wild and majestic about deer eating from feeders, almost like barnyard animals, he said.

"When you take this free-ranging and wild animal, a symbol of the wilderness, and put it under your picture window eating from a feeder, that's just something less," McCaffery said. "It denigrates the animal."

Sam Robbins, author of "Wisconsin Bird Life," said that while certain bird populations have fluctuated slightly from winter feeding, in general, most populations have not changed drastically since bird feeding began.

"Bird feeding has probably contributed to the presence of certain species," Robbins said. "But it's hard to prove a cause-and-effect relationship and say bird feeding is the sole reason for the existence or rise in a population."

House finches, which Robbins said are now nearly overrunning Wisconsin, may partially attribute their population growth in the eastern U.S. to winter feeding. Cardinal and chickadee populations have also seen some increases which coincide with the advent of bird feeding, Robbins said.

Mechanized farming has allowed some corn and other crops to escape harvest, and this also provides food for many animals in the winter that wasn't always present years ago.

"Seeing a mourning dove was very rare during the winter back in the '40's when I first started birding," Robbins said. "There are considerably more now, and I suspect that is due to different farming methods."

According to Hurley, some people incorrectly believe that animals can't cope with winter without human help. Feeding stations are probably more for people to see animals up close than for the animals themselves. She said Wisconsin's native fauna is adapted to deal with cold weather conditions, and while some die during this stressful time of year, most do just fine.

"Not to sound hard-hearted, but that's just the way it is," she said. "Animals die in the spring and summer also, but generally, most deal with the seasons quite well."

The first non-Native American known to have seen what are now the states of Arizona and New Mexico was a Black explorer named Estevanico.

Oostburg Girls Overpower Indians

By Statesman Sports Writer

OOSTBURG — For many years, the Oostburg girls basketball program has been prospering, and here, Thursday night, the Kewaskum Indians learned a quick, hard lesson on just why.

The Flying Dutchmen had four girls hit for double figures, as they outshot and simply overpowered the out-manned Indians, winning easily, 73-42.

"They shoot so well from the outside," Indian coach Glenn Eichstedt said of the hosts, who canned 11 of their first 16 shots from the field. "They are probably the best shooting team that we will face all year."

The Indians, meanwhile, may be one of the worst shooting squads on the Oostburg schedule. Coming off of a 19 percent effort just two days earlier against Plymouth, the Indians opened by missing 15 of their first 18 attempts.

That productivity allowed Oostburg to race to a 23-10 first quarter lead. By halftime, the lead was 42-16, and for all intensive purposes, the game was over.

But true to their nature this season, the Lady Indians would not give up. Instead, they responded with their best single quarter offensive output of the season, scoring 20 points in the third period, as eight different Indians put the ball in the hoop.

"You might think that we'd just hang our heads," Eichstedt said of his team's resiliency. "But we moved the ball around well," although the defense suffered, allowing 17 Oostburg points. "So we really weren't gaining much ground."

A big difference in the game came at the free throw line, where the hosts outscored the Indians 24-3. "That just shows our inability to stop our opponents from making a march to the free throw line," Eichstedt noted.

The Indians did improve their shooting a tad in the second half, as they finished making 19 of 68 shots, for 28 percent. "We showed some flashes of what we are capable of doing," Eichstedt commented, "But we are just too inconsistent."

Robyn Winninghoff led the Indians with a 15-point, 11-rebound effort. "She had another good game," Eichstedt said, also adding that Tammy Schmidt, although scoring just two points, "did a nice job rebounding and maintaining position underneath."

As for the Flying Dutchmen, Lisa Moriarty led the way with 16 points, while Cheri Van Stelle and Melanie Leet had 15, and Danielle Vander Plass had 11.

"They have some good bloodlines there," Eichstedt noted of the Oostburg tradition. Leet's sister, Rebecca now plays for the Wisconsin girls team, while VanderPlas' older brother Dean played for UW-Green Bay's NCA qualifying squad last year, and Van Stelle is just another in the long line of Oostburg standouts from that family.

The loss dropped the Indians to 2-15 overall, while Oostburg is now 13-3. The Indians get back

The New Fane Kettle Riders Snowmobile Club celebrated its 20th anniversary recently with a free dance at the Twin H Country Bar and Hall in New Fane.

Members from other local clubs, landowners, former members and friends were all invited to the festivities which featured the music of the Normie Dogs band, followed by a free lunch and a slice of anniversary cake.

Among the highlights of the evening were a display of pictures depicting just a few events in the 20-year existence of the club and comments from the club's past presidents. The Kettle Riders held their celebration in the very same hall where the club was formed in 1972.

Through the efforts of dedicated members, and even more dedicated leadership, the club has grown and strengthened over the years. The club is not only actively involved in the sport of snowmobiling, it has been and continues to be concerned about its community and residents. The club has been involved in many service projects including hosting rides for Big Brothers, sponsoring snowmobile safety courses and swimming lessons for youngsters, annually delivering Christmas gift baskets to the Beechwood Rest Home and other senior citizens.

Over the years, the club and its members have also donated both money and their time to help area families and individuals in need as the result of unforeseen emergencies.

The Kettle Riders annually of-

Kapp, Kurtz Crowned Conference Champs

By Statesman Sports Writer

KIEL — One was pretty much expected, but both just go to show that hard work definitely does pay off.

The Kewaskum wrestling team came home with a pair of champions from the Eastern Wisconsin Conference Meet held here, last Saturday afternoon. The Indians took fourth as a team, behind runaway winner Plymouth (187 points), the host Raiders (115) and Two Rivers (109), coming up with 106 points.

Indian coach John Nell had come to expect a title from 145 pound Josh Kurtz, who ran his season mark to 23-1 with three easy wins, the last of which came in a highly unusual manner.

After disposing of wrestlers from Kiel and Plymouth with first and second period pins, respectively, Kurtz was pitted against Sheboygan Falls' Brent Bender in the finals. Kurtz had beaten Bender by a 7-1 count in their first meeting. But Kurtz never even got a chance to take the mat and go for his third pin.

"The kid forfeited to him," Nell said of the unusual championship match. "Their coach told me that he was hurt, and didn't want to take a chance in the finals," even though Bender had wrestled a pair of matches earlier and didn't seem to be affected.

Although disappointed that his top wrestler didn't get to show his stuff in the finals, Nell was ecstatic to report that his 125-pounder and lone senior on the squad, Kevin Kapp, also brought home a conference title.

"He had a real good day," Nell said of Kapp, who decisioned Two Rivers' John Warner 7-5 in the finals, capping off a 3-0 tournament. It was the culmination of four years of sticking with the sport, after winning just one match his freshman year.

"He's paid his dues," Nell said the dedicated Kapp. "He's worked so hard, I was just really happy for Kevin."

Mark Dzedzic capped off a fine year as well, as he took second in the meet, losing to two-time state qualifier Chad Knoenic of Plymouth in the finals of the 130-pound class. Dzedzic had beaten Shannon Carpenter (SF) and Larry Meyer (Chil.) earlier in the day.

"He beat two real good kids," Nell said of Dzedzic's preliminary matches. Dzedzic, coming off of knee surgery, "is coming around nicely," according to his coach.

Taking thirds for the Indians were Rich Farchione at 152 pounds, Mark Morell at 171, and Todd Muckerheide at 189.

Muckerheide "was in a very tough weight class," said Nell, and lost to New Holstein's Jason Buechle in the semifinals, before coming back to down TR's Daryl Morjian in the consolation championship. "He handled him pretty well."

Morell, meanwhile, was in-involved in a bit of controversy in his semifinal match with SF's Tim Arnoldy. "There were a lot of points flowing," Nell said of the match, which the scorer's table had 20-9 in Morell's favor.

Nell said that the match was much closer, and he thought that it actually was tied 16-all. But officials decided that Arnoldy was the winner by a 16-15 margin. "You hate to see that," Nell said of the mistake, but Morell handled it well, coming back to pin Kiel's Joe Fitzgerald for third. Farchione "had a good tournament. He did a real nice job," said Nell. After losing to a Plymouth wrestler sporting a 28-2 mark on the year, Farchione beat SF's Matt Adamavich for third. "That (third) is real good for a freshman," Nell noted.

Chad Muckerheide ended up with a fourth in the 160 pound class, which "I felt was the toughest," Nell pointed out. Placing fifth was Brian Redig (103), while Jake Thull (112) and Brad Jackson (140) took sixths.

"Our kids wrestled very well," Nell concluded. "I'm real happy with where we're at right now," as the Indians head into Regional competition here, this Saturday.

Cook Scores 32, but Indians still Fall

By Statesman Sports Writer

LOMIRA — You've heard many times that one player is no match for an entire team. That old adage held up true to form here, last Tuesday night.

Senior guard Chad Cook put on a show, scoring 32 points for Kewaskum, but Lomira in turn had four players hit for double figures and that was enough to down the Indians, 84-75.

Cook was a one-man wrecking crew for the Indians, connecting on 11 of 24 shots, including a three-pointer, and adding a nine-of-ten effort from the free throw line.

"He had a career game," Indian coach Jim Westphal said of his point guard. "It was just our poor shooting that did us in. We just didn't make any easy shots."

Westphal was referring to the opening minutes especially, when his squad missed its first three shots - all layups. In all, Westphal figures that the Indians missed at least five or six bona fide layups in the game.

Despite the poor shooting, the Indians held a slim 19-18 lead after one quarter of play. But foul trouble in the second quarter put the Indians at a severe disadvantage.

By halftime, the Indians three biggest players were saddled by at least three fouls apiece. Adam Laatsch (6-3) had three, while Scott Paulson (6-2) and Ryan Ramthun (6-1) each collected four.

Lomira took advantage of the situation, both on the boards and at the free throw line. Jon Luedtke was the main beneficiary, as he sank nine free throws in the first half, and had 17 points by intermission. By that time, the Lions had opened up a 41-31 lead.

"That really hurt us," Westphal said of the foul problems, although offensively, the Indians were doing some good things. "We were moving well, and it looked like we'd get off to a good start. It was just poor shooting."

The Indians chipped away at the deficit in the second half, cutting the margin to 55-48 heading into the fourth. The Indians then got to within one point, at 70-69, when an untimely call sidelined the Indians for good.

Luedtke drove to the basket and was fouled, and after the foul threw up a shot that fell through. The officials allowed the continuation basket, much to the chagrin of Westphal. Luedtke made the free throw, and after an Indian miss at the other end, Lomira scored again to put the game out of reach.

"It looked like we were going to pull it out," Westphal said of the continuation call. "That really hurt us."

Cook did his best to keep the Indians close in the second half, scoring 10 of the team's 17 points in the third quarter, and then adding another 13 in the final stanza.

But the only other Indian to reach double digits was forward Joel Fleischman, who popped in 12 points to go along with his 10 rebounds.

"They shot very well," Westphal said of the Lions, who he hadn't had a chance to scout beforehand. "I heard that they weren't a great shooting team, but everything that they threw up went in."

Luedtke led the Lions with 23 points, while Craig Zangl, Sam Scharpf and Jason Meyer added 19, 18 and 11 points, respectively.

JV Boys Win

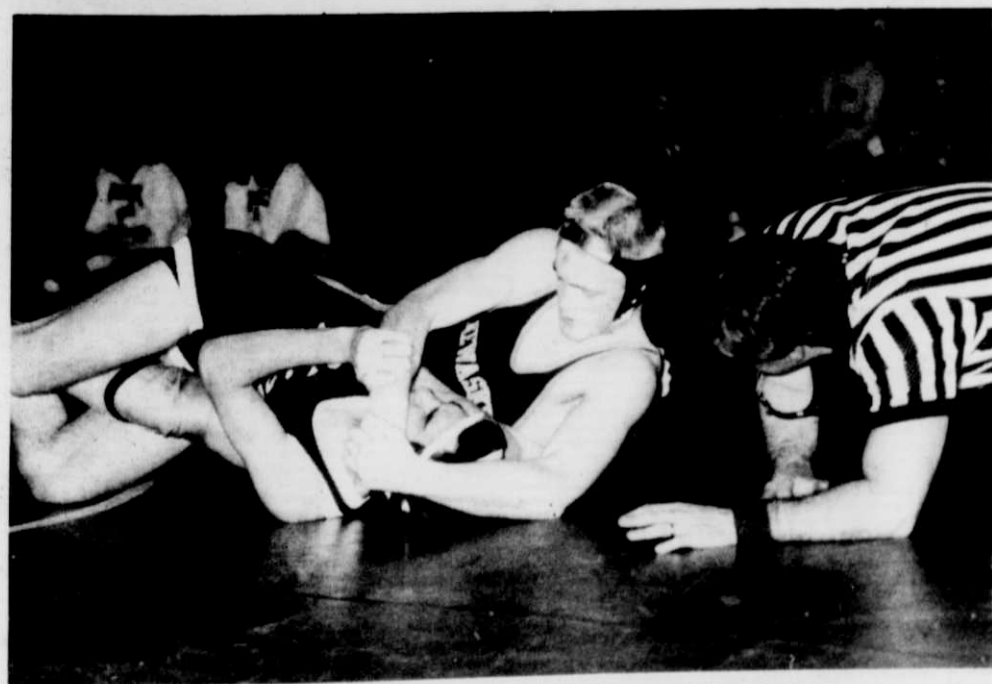

By Statesman Sports Writer

LOMIRA — The Kewaskum JV boys basketball team picked up a non-conference win last Tuesday night, as they defeated Lomira 59-48 behind the strength of a big second half.

James Zautner led the Indians with 23 points, while teammate Beau Coulter added 12.

Kewaskum's senior Kevin Kapp, puts Jesse Jaehning of Kiel to his back for points, to win the match by major decision 16-2.

Indians Shock Previously Undefeated Kiel

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM - It's getting to the point where Kewaskum boys basketball coach Jim Westphal really doesn't know what to expect when his team takes the floor.

"You just don't know who's going to show up," Westphal said after his team provided its latest shocker. The Indians held previously undefeated and Eastern Wisconsin Conference leading Kiel to just 25 percent shooting from the floor to knock off the Raiders, 61-49 here, last Friday night.

It's not that Westphal was completely taken back by the huge upset. He figured the Indians would be able to give Kiel a run for their money, especially after the Indians had led the Raiders most of the way in their initial meeting, before choking in the final 2:00 to lose 56-51.

"We knew we could play with them," he said recalling the first meeting, in which the Raiders had trouble shooting over the Kewaskum zone defense. "I thought we could give them some problems with our zone, and we did. They shot very poor... they were very frustrated."

The Raiders connected on just 19 of their 74 shots from the floor, and even more glowing was the fact that they hit just one of 14 three-point attempts in the final stanza. The Indians, who led by just two at halftime (27-25), were making their free throws down the stretch to post their biggest win of the season.

"We got a lot of easy layups too," Westphal said, pointing out that his team had one of their better shooting efforts of late, making 19 of 40 shots. Kiel had entered the game leading the EW in fewest points allowed (43.3) and opponents field goal percentage (37.1).

The win came despite 24 turnovers by the hosts. "That's amazing," Westphal said, trying to understand how the turnovers weren't lethal.

One of the biggest reasons was a big Indian edge in the third quarter. Kewaskum's defense allowed the Raiders just seven points in stretching its lead to 40-32 heading into the fourth.

Another reason was free throw shooting. While the Indians connected on just 66 percent of their tries, they still outscored the Raiders 20-7 at the line.

"We had a real good team effort," the Indian boss went on. Three Indians reached double figures, led by Kim Marx and Chad Cook, who each had 13, and Joel Fleischman, "who had a really big game," according to Westphal, with 12 points and 13 rebounds. Matt Seiser, who came into the game as the EW's leading scorer, added nine points.

"Everybody contributed. We had real good balance," said Westphal, who went on to mention that junior center Ryan Boegel made his return from knee surgery, chipping in five points. "He did a real good job for his first game back. He's a real factor at 6-5... makes them change their shot."

Just as important was the defensive work that the Indians did on Kiel's Brian Neils, who came into the game averaging 17 points per game. "We held him to nine," Westphal reported, "We just did a real nice job defensively on him."

"We did a real nice job of shutting back," Westphal said, referring to his team's loss at Lomira just three days earlier.

The win gives the Indians a 2-6 mark in the EW, while Kiel falls to 8-1. After road games this Tuesday at Sheboygan Falls and Friday at Chilton, the Indians (6-10 overall) return home Friday, Feb. 21, when they host Plymouth.

Promotion Friday Against Tigers

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM - While they will have their cut-out for them on the court, the Kewaskum girls basketball team will get to have a little bit of fun off the court Friday, Feb. 14, when they host Chilton.

It will be Saturday Slammers and Shooters Night at the game, as there will be a special exhibition by some youngsters whom have taken part in a special camp the past couple of weeks. The campers, first through sixth graders, will take part in a pre-game demonstration with a hot-shots exhibition and also a dribbling exhibition.

Also on Friday, the girls team from the 1981-82 campaign that finished second in the WIAA State Tournament will be honored in a special ceremony during halftime.

Many will remember the Indians' quest for the state crown that year. After beating Denmark in the semifinals 57-11, the Indians came up short in the championship game to a very good Portage squad, 52-36.

The Indian team, as well as this year's team will be available after the game for an autograph session.

Softball Leagues Forming

By Statesman Sports Writer

KEWASKUM - There may be six more weeks of winter left, but it's not too early to begin planning for this summer's softball leagues.

The Kewaskum Softball Association has begun the process of taking applications of those teams that are interested in participating in softball leagues at Kewaskum Kiwanis Community Park.

Men's leagues will be forming to play on Tuesday and Thursday nights, while a women's league is slated for Monday nights.

If you are interested in getting a team together to play in any of the three leagues, please contact Rick Krahn at 626-2736 or Noel Stollenwerk at 626-4485 to reserve your spot. Teams will be placed in each league requested on a first come, first-serve basis.

Team and player fees, as well as rules and regulations of the leagues will be available in the coming weeks.
