Summer School Enrollment Up

By Noel Stollenwerk

KEWASKUM — The number of students enrolling in the Kewaskum School District's Summer School Program at the Middle School continues to climb, KMS Principal David Jones told the School Board at its monthly meeting last Monday.

The 1992 session drew a total of 345 students participating in 23 different classes, up from 292 pupils in 1991 and 195 in 1990. But Jones was quick to point out that the numbers won't be rising much in the future.

"We were pretty well packed," Jones said of the arrangement at KMS, which is designed to hold a maximum of approximately 350 students.

Jones thanked the Board for approving the installation of sand volleyball courts, saying that the courts "were very popular." He also suggested a couple of possible changes for next year, including the shortening of the length of classes, which would allow students to add more subjects to their schedule.

KMS Assistant Principal Christopher Ruhm also spoke at the meeting, highlighting the major changes in discipline procedures. Ruhm noted the changes have been effective thus far, especially a new 'parole system,' allowing students serving in-school suspensions to end the punishments early with good behavior and homework completion.

KHS Principal Charles Heidner, along with faculty member Gloria Kjer, reported to the Board problems regarding the high school tutoring program, which is presently lacking sufficient help.

Kjer pointed out that the program is having trouble matching student's needs with appropriate teachers during certain hours of the day. Because many teachers' schedules are already full, with classes and/or study halls, there is little help available in tutoring labs.

Possible solutions to the problem were discussed, including hiring additional supervisory aides, which would be responsible for study hall classes. This would allow teachers in charge of study halls to spend those hours in labs, tutoring students. No action was taken on the matter however.

United Way Exceeds Goal; Kewaskum, Regal Ware Are 'Shining Stars'

$785,061.00 — just $61 dollars over the goal, but it was a true Campaign Celebration for the United Way of Washington County on November 12 as division totals to date were announced and tallied.

"What a spectacular finish to a challenging year," said Paul Christensen, county-wide campaign chairman. "It's great to see that Washington County DOES care," he said. Most notably, Regal Ware had a large increase in employee and corporate giving. Other large gifts were received from the School District, Valley Bank, Marigold Foods, and Miller's Furniture. The Kewaskum community total was $38,152 or 111 percent of the $34,500 goal.

"We are very pleased with Kewaskum's efforts, and thank our volunteers for their hard work in making our success so spectacular," said Gerry Kiefer, Kewaskum Division, chairperson.

According to Christensen, "The real winners are the 27 agencies who are now guaranteed 1993 funding as determined by our allocation process earlier this year. Due to the generosity of individual, business and employee donors, we have had yet another successful year for United Way."

Collected funds to date reflect a five percent increase over pledges and gifts given to the 1991 campaign. Christensen commented, "Every year, agency needs always outweigh dollars United Way can provide." Funds will continue to be collected through December 31.

Drug Investigation Results in Arrests

On November 9, 1992, Sheriff Schulteis announced that an ongoing investigation conducted jointly by the Washington County Sheriff's Department, Racine County Sheriff's Department and Dodge County Sheriff's Department resulted in the arrest of three adult males on Friday and Saturday, November 7 and 8.

These arrests were made as a result of an investigation into a major marijuana trafficking operation. The arrest included a 37 year old male from rural Theresa, a 31 year old male from Mayville and a 34 year old male from the Town of Addison. Charges are pending against all three subjects.

In conjunction with these three arrests, a total of thirty-four (34) pounds of marijuana was seized, having an approximate street value of $130,560.00. Nine (9) pounds of this marijuana along with $9,000 in cash was seized during the execution of a search warrant at a Dodge County residence on Saturday, November 7, 1992.

This search warrant was executed with the assistance of the Dodge County S.W.A.T. team and a Milwaukee County Sheriff's Department drug detector dog. Also, seized in conjunction with this investigation were four vehicles and a firearm.

This matter remains under investigation by the Washington County Multi-jurisdictional Drug Enforcement Unit which is supported in part by a grant which includes $77,000.00 in federal funding. This $77,000.00 represents approximately 75 percent of the total grant award.

Excerpts From As I Remember

by Marvin Martin

Back to the river, on the north side of the street, the building right next to the river was used as an office for the mill, and later on the pocketbook factory moved there.

On the east corner of Parkview was a barber shop. Next was a home, then a tailor shop.

Then, on the northwest corner of that street, was the Bilgo home, then an open lot, the Miller Pharmacy which later became a picture studio and appliance shop.

Directly west was a furniture store, which burned down and was replaced by a home.

Continuing, the next place was the tin shop, later used for a shoe shop and a flower shop. This has also been destroyed by fire.

On the northwest corner of Peace Church parking lot was Joe Eberle's tavern and bowling alley (two lanes). This was known as Eberle's Alley.

Next, on the west side of that alley was Gary Wright's Paint Shop. He was an artist and painted wagons and other decorative things. It later became a shoe shop and now houses The Kewaskum Statesman's office.

Next was the Ziegler Tavern which later became an electric store and later was a Gambles Store.

Then was the Mayer Shoe Shop. Next was a home and later on, the telephone office was next to that.

Then was the Heppie Building. This was a shoe shop, later a delicatessen store and then a post office.

The next place was Stellpflug market, and next to that, the Central Hotel which was later the Barrel Haus Tavern, which just burned down this year. A baker shop was on the east side of the Central Hotel for a short time.

Hazelwood Appearing In Augsburg College Theatre Production

Minneapolis... John Hazelwood of Kewaskum is playing the part of Leonardo in Augsburg College's production of "Blood Wedding" which opened November 13. John, the son of John Sr. and Carol Hazelwood, is a junior at Augsburg, majoring in Theatre. His other theatre credits at Augsburg include performances in "Streetcar Named Desire," "The Bear," and "Rosie's Cafe." "Blood Wedding," by Spaniard Federico Garcia Lorca, is set in Andalusia, the southwestern region of Spain. A wedding is soon to take place, but the night before the ceremony a former lover of the bride steals her away. Nature had meant for these two to be together, but a greedy society tries to frustrate nature's plan. As a result, tragedy is set in motion.

Garcia Lorca is the most translated poet in Spanish history. He is known for writing with great eloquence about life and the earth versus the monied forces of darkness and death. His talent brought about his downfall. Garcia Lorca was assassinated in 1936, at the age of 37, by the Fascist government of Spain.

"Blood Wedding" is being directed by Dr. Maxine Klein, a visiting director at Augsburg. Dr. Klein has won an Obie, and has directed off-off-Broadway, off-Broadway and on-Broadway.

"Blood Wedding" played November 13-15 and will also play November 19-21 at 7 p.m. and November 22 at 2 p.m. Performances are at the Tjornhom-Nelson Theatre, Foss Center, at the corner of Riverside Avenue and 22nd Avenue in Minneapolis. Tickets are $5.

Habit is habit, and not to be flung out of the window by any man, but coaxed downstairs a step at a time.

Industrial Screen Printing Program At Moraine Park

Persons interested in a future in screen printing should register now for the January 1993 Industrial Screen Printing program at Moraine Park Technical College's West Bend campus.

Industrial Screen Printing is a 24-week vocational diploma program that prepares students for entry-level jobs in the screen printing industry. Students learn to build screens, set up screen printing presses, and operate hand-fed presses. They also learn about finishing processes and how to dry and cure products. Students also benefit from a paid internship program.

Graduates of the program enter the work force prepared to become an assistant or full-time screen press operator. Workers with additional training and experience have an opportunity for advancement to automated presses and multiple-color web presses.

If you or someone you know is interested in enrolling in the Industrial Screen Printing program or would like more information, call Gerry Skalecki at the West Bend campus at (414) 334-0909.

Letters to the Editor

Letter to the Editor:

The area can once again take pride in a tremendous accomplishment.

On a recent Friday evening, at Frank's On The Lake, we joined together for Joe and Deanna Volz and their family. The fund to help them with expenses for Joe's upcoming cancer surgery now stands around $15,000 thanks to a caring community and a great committee.

On September 23, we met with Carl, Jeannette and Chris Plum, Sue Schmitt, Ruth Menke, Carolyn Gum, and Diane Schraufnagel with an idea to put together something to help the Volz family. Individuals and businesses joined in with donations and cash and together we accomplished what none of us could have done alone.

The Christian Mothers and human Concerns Committee of St. Matthew's took care of lunch and a bake sale. Loehrs Locker, Straubs Piggly Wiggly, and Kettle Moraine Bakery (Campbellsport), Sentry Foods, (Kewaskum), and Pick 'n Save (West Bend), donated everything from the meat right down to cups and plastic forks. Sponsors picked up the reduced cost of Evergreen and Laser DJ Service. Gary Frank, Regal Ware, Inc., General Beverage, Pat Reilly, and many others were very generous. Gina Mueller ran those last minute errands the last few days. Others joined us in seeking or giving donations, selling and buying raffle tickets, and helping with the many needs at the benefit dance.

Travis Felch, Brian Mielke, and Chris, Caleb, and Sheldon Trowbridge gave up their hair to aid the fund.

Joe's union, A.I.W. No. 849 was a great help with their raffle number, popcorn machine, donations, and support. Create A Button made the "Help Joe" buttons at cost. Pete and Gwen Kober of NSP Graphics made possible the promotional tee shirts for the committee and Volz family. Many people donated and purchased auction items. Catholic Knights Insurance Branch No. 315 and Aid Association for Lutherans No. 6935 have promised a total of $2500 in matching funds along with their sponsorship.

Of course, we relied on the media to get the message out. Thanks to KFIZ, WBKV, Star Cablevision, Action Advertising, The Reporter, Kewaskum Statesman, West Bend News, Campbellsport News, local and area churches and others who promoted the benefit. At the recent raffle drawing we awarded nearly 100 prizes to purchasers of tickets. The fund will remain open at Bank One in Campbellsport through the end of the year.

It's never possible to name each and every name so on behalf of the Volz family and ourselves, we wish to thank everyone who helped to make this event a success. We ask your continued prayers for Joe's successful surgery and recovery when he goes to Houston.

Jane Beck
Joann Schrauth

To the Editor:

One hundred eighty-five children dressed as ghosts, witches, clowns and other creatures attended our Halloween Party on October 31. Kewaskum Girl Scout Troop 57 entertained the children with a spooky Halloween story and Troop 25 with games and face painting. Children enjoyed Creepy Cartoons, Halloween bingo and other fun games. At the games each child received lots of candy and toys.

The Farmington PTO would like to thank the following businesses for their generous donations: West Bend Savings and Loan, Random Lake Co-Operative, Movie Mill, Kerry's Korner, Grandma & Grandpa's, Beechwood Rest Home, Beechwood Cheese Factory, Beechwood Fire Dept., Tillie Schultz, Sentry Foods in Kewaskum, Hardee's, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Classic Mold Design, Kemp's, Super Saver, and DARE program of the Washington County Sheriff's Department.

We would also like to thank all the parents who donated candy, cookies, prizes, decorations, and most of all their time. Many parents and students of all ages put in a lot of time to put on a fun and exciting Halloween Party for our children.

Thank You

IT'S A FACT!

If you take drugs and drive, your driving ability will be greatly impaired—and if you've been taking a combination of drugs and alcohol, the effect on your driving is even greater, experts agree.

Many people know that police officers conduct tests that can tell if a driver is under the influence of alcohol. Did you know specially trained officers can also tell if a driver is under the influence of drugs such as marijuana, heroin or cocaine? Those officers are called Drug Recognition Experts (DREs) and they've been trained by the Department of Transportation to conduct tests that can determine what category of drugs a driver has been abusing. If you're caught, you could go to jail.

Tips Make Holiday Dinner Preparation Safe, Simple

By Joyce Albrecht,
Washington County
Extension Home Economist

Whether it's a get-together for four or forty, many holiday hosts consider meal preparation about as enjoyable as having a tooth pulled.

But by planning carefully and following rules for safe poultry preparation, you may find yourself spending more time with your guests and less time in the kitchen, according to Joyce Albrecht, Extension Home Economist.

"Holiday meals are probably not the best time to try a lot of new, elaborate recipes," Albrecht said.

"Remember, a turkey is a larger piece of meat than most of us are used to preparing. On top of that, you may be feeling that you're performing for all the relatives."

Choosing simple dishes that can be prepared in advance, or asking relatives to provide the side dishes can ease tensions in the kitchen.

Planning before you shop also helps. You should figure on one pound of turkey for each person. If you are feeding more than 20 people, you may want to buy two smaller turkeys. Two smaller birds cook faster and probably will fit more easily in your oven or pans.

Albrecht said defrosting in the refrigerator is safest, but you must allow 24 hours for every five pounds of turkey. A completely thawed bird will hold another day or two in the refrigerator after it is defrosted. Fresh turkeys should be cooked within a day or two of purchase.

To thaw the turkey faster, submerge it in a sink full of cold water, allowing 30 minutes per pound of meat.

Turkeys should be baked at 325 degrees until the internal temperature in the inner thigh reaches 180 degrees and the breast is 170 degrees. Allow 15-18 minutes per pound for an unstuffed turkey.

Other tips Albrecht suggested for safe, simple preparation of holiday turkeys include:

— If you have a covered grill, consider grilling the bird outside in a protected area. This frees up the kitchen and the oven for preparing other dishes.

— Bake stuffing separately in a covered casserole for safer, easier preparation. If you stuff the turkey, do it right before cooking.

— If you roast the turkey the day before the holiday meal, you must debone the cooked bird and refrigerate the meat in shallow containers. Then reheat the meat the next day in the oven or microwave.

— If the turkey is done early, cover it with foil and keep it in the oven at 200 degrees, checking that the bird's temperature never goes below 150 degrees.

— If the turkey isn't done when it should be, relax. Turn the oven up slightly and keep the door closed to prevent heat escaping. You can heat up side dishes at the last minute in the microwave so everything comes to the table hot.

Turn Off TV... Tune In to Family

By Joyce Albrecht, UW-Extension Home Economist

Did you know that:
*97 percent of all households in the U.S. have at least one TV set?

*the average child watches 28 hours of TV per week?

*90 percent of those 28 hours are watched on weekdays?

*by age 18, the average child has seen 25,000 murders?

*the average person born into a home with a TV set, by age 70 will have spent 7 years watching TV?

The cost of programming a Saturday morning cartoon program is $300,000?

TV has become the new electronic family member. The sad thing is children often don't know the neighbors next door, but consider the Huxtables on the Cosby Show as familiar friends. Hours of passive TV watching makes risk taking and social relationships difficult. Children gravitate immediately to the TV set and can sit down before a blank screen "hypnotized" by expectation. This potential addition is one of the chief reasons children can be easily exploited by this "plugged in drug."

The shift from parent-child interaction to TV viewing kids is affecting the American Family. The American family does not spend a great deal of time together interacting with each other. The couch potato kids are affected from physical fitness to education.

Within the past 20 years, the problem of obesity has risen by 54 percent in children and nearly 40 percent in adolescents, according to the Center for Child Adolescent Obesity at the University of California. Children who spend hours watching television don't get as much physical activity and don't explore new activities and interests.

What can you do? Schedule TV viewing. Decide how much programming you are willing to let a child watch. Maybe on Sunday, read through the TV section as a family and decide what shows will be watched. Circle the programs. Of you have strong objections to certain programs, say so and explain why you feel as you do.

Watch with children. Talk together about the program and relate it to your own lives. Ask the children, "Are the people on TV like anybody you know? Do you know housewives who talk to their toilet bowls? What do you like about the program?" Really listen to the children's comments. Consider taking the TV out of the living room and out of bedrooms. Put it where it is less available and more easily controlled.

Encourage alternate activities. Visit the library together to look at picture books, look up answers in reference books and start enjoying the newspaper together. Decide how TV viewing can be an inspiring and a spring board for family projects like locating places on maps, hiking together, and exploring nature.

Television has been called "chewing gum for the eyes" and "the plug-in drug." The potential for abuse lies in the fact that it is so easy to sit down and allow ourselves to be entertained. The solution is probably not to abolish the TV set from the house. Children are going to have to learn to be responsible consumers of TV, and the best place to learn is at home. Remember that children form habits from what they see.

As parents and children spend more time together they will create a bond. Spending time together allows time to strengthen your beliefs, develop security and a feeling of identity and belonging within the family structure.

Holiday Hints

Five Secrets For Perfect Turkey Carving

After removing the leg and last two wing joints, make a deep horizontal "base cut" into the breast, above the wing.

Then, slice in a vertical direction, down through the breast, to the horizontal "base cut."

Courtesy EdgeCraft Corp.

This Thanksgiving or Christmas, you can stand at the head of the table and carve the holiday turkey with grace and ease, thanks to five simple secrets used by top professional chefs:

Secret #1: Cutting beautiful slices depends primarily on using a sharp, non-serrated carving knife. Serrated knives tend to tear meat, producing shreds instead of clean slices. New Chef'sChoice® Trizor™ Professional 10X™ Cutlery, introduced this year by EdgeCraft, is two to three times sharper and stays sharp up to ten times longer than leading European and domestic brands. EdgeCraft offers a slicing knife, paring knife, boning knife, chef's knife and prepare the whole holiday dinner and make sandwiches from the leftovers! For a store near you which carries Chef'sChoice knives, call 800-342-3255.

Secret #2: Whatever knife you use, it's essential to keep it razor sharp in order to carve with grace and ease. Manual sharpening methods and stones are difficult to master and, incorrectly used, can even damage fine cutlery. Thankfully, there's a revolutionary knife sharpener that takes the guesswork out of sharpening and is safe for the finest cutlery. The Chef'sChoice® Diamond Hone® Knife Sharpener from EdgeCraft uses 100% diamond abrasives to produce an incredibly sharp, long-lasting edge in minutes. It will sharpen virtually any knife along the entire length of the blade. Because it resharpenes with insignificant metal removal—some call it "only angel dust"—the sharpener helps preserve fine knives. For a store near you (or mail order catalog) which carries Chef'sChoice sharpeners, call 800-342-3255.

Secret #3: After the turkey is roasted, remove it from the oven and let it cool for 10 to 15 minutes. This makes the meat easier to slice.

Secret #4: Start carving by removing the drumsticks and thighs. Next remove the wings; but only the tip and center sections. Leave the last section of the wing attached to the breast. This provides a good broad base to help prevent the bird from tilting when you slice the breast.

Secret #5: When carving the turkey breast, start by making a deep horizontal (parallel to the platter) "base cut" into the breast, just above the wing bone. Then you can release nice even slices by cutting in a vertical direction down through the breast to the base cut.

The oldest U.S. library is the Harvard University Library. It was founded in 1638.

MILK IS IMPORTANT

Health care professionals and nutritionists are criticizing statements made recently by child care expert Dr. Benjamin Spock that parents should not give milk to their children.

Susan Nitzke, University of Wisconsin-Extension nutrition specialist, and Joyce Albrecht, Extension Home Economist, said they are concerned that these statements are misleading and potentially harmful to children's health. They agree with the American Medical Association that there's no scientific proof to claims that milk could be harmful to some children.

"We think it's important to drink milk because it provides important nutrients like calcium, Vitamin D, protein and riboflavin that are especially important during childhood when bodies are growing and bones are developing," Nitzke said.

"It's unnecessary and impractical for most children to get enough calcium from other food sources. It's possible, but it takes very careful planning and a very cooperative child."

A child would have to eat three cups of chopped broccoli or six ounces of canned salmon (with the bones) to equal the calcium in one cup of milk.

Instead, Joyce Albrecht suggested following the dietary guidelines described in the new U.S.D.A. Food Guide Pyramid.

It recommends that children eat a minimum of three servings of milk, yogurt or cheese each day. One serving equals a cup of milk or yogurt, one and a half ounces of natural cheese or two ounces of processed cheese.

Spock joined the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine, a group advocating preventive medicine and alternatives to animal research, in early October in criticizing milk because of its high fat content and because milk triggers allergies and digestive problems in some people.

The group also cited a study linking milk to juvenile diabetes and said nearly a third of milk supplies may be tainted with antibiotic residues.

But Nitzke and Albrecht said those arguments don't hold water. Many dairy products, such as skim milk are available in fat-free forms. Milk is just one of many foods that can trigger food allergies. Other examples are wheat, corn, peanuts, fish and soybeans.

"No one is suggesting that all Americans cut out wheat or soybeans from their diet because a small group is allergic to them," Nitzke said.

Nitzke also said a possible link between milk and diabetes has been suggested in one preliminary study and that more research is needed before any conclusive recommendations are made.

Food and Drug Administration data from 46 state regional agencies found only two of every ten thousand pasteurized milk samples contained any drug residues.

Albrecht said babies up to 12 months of age should avoid cow's milk. But after age one, milk is an important part of a balanced diet for children.

The calcium in milk is especially important during childhood to assist in building strong bone mass, Albrecht said. By age 25-30, bones have reached peak mass and minerals in bones begin to gradually decrease. That means adults may never make up for calcium deficiencies they suffered as children.

Severe loss of bone mass in adulthood can lead to osteoporosis or brittle bone disease.

For more information on nutrition for children and adults, contact Albrecht at the Washington County U.W. Extension Office, 335-4479; 644-5204 or 342-2929.

Kewaskum players receiving honorable mention included Dennis Terlinden, senior, center and defensive tackle; Marvin Tanck, senior, quarterback and defensive halfback, who missed out by only one vote of making the all-conference team; Ron Strupp, junior, defensive tackle, who also barely missed being named to the all-conference squad in his first year out for football and Perry Koth, junior, halfback. In their own selections made by members of the Indian varsity squad, tackle Dave Ramthun was elected most valuable player on the team by his teammates. Because of the close balloting, tri-captains were picked by the team, namely Tanck, Gundrum and Allen Theusch.

More than 100 police officers of Wisconsin and Michigan Thursday were searching for the unidentified man who shot and killed Albert E. Reif, 33, supervisor of Wisconsin's Kettle Moraine State Forest with headquarters at Mauthe Lake near Kewaskum, on Wednesday in Florence County woods near the Wisconsin-Michigan state line. Reif was slain as he was questioning the man whom Reif and Floyd Sanders of Superior, a Wisconsin conservation warden had encountered near an automobile parked on a remote road between Florence and Iron Mountain, Michigan. Sanders was inspecting the interior of the car when the slayer fired a pistol at Reif. The slayer and Sanders engaged in a fiery gun duel in the woods before Sanders ammunition gave out and he had to flee. Sanders was unhurt. Sheriff Anthony Grell of Florence County said Thursday that there was no trace of the man. Reif was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reif, Sr. of Milwaukee. He had been an employee of the conservation department since 1930. For the last three or four years he was stationed at Mauthe Lake in the Kettle Moraine Forest and had made many friends in this community. He had gone to the Florence County Station to assist in the hunting season only this week.

A total of 39 out of 52 men from Washington County who were examined in Milwaukee on November 14th were inducted by the U.S. Army. The group, which includes James P. Andre of Route 3, Kewaskum, will report at Fort Sheridan, Illinois for military duty on Nov. 27.

A daughter was born to the Alex P. Kudeks of this village on Nov. 1. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Laatsch, Route 1, Kewaskum on Nov. 12. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johann of Route 2, Kewaskum, are the parents of a son born Nov. 13. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Derge of Route 2, Kewaskum, on Nov. 17.

Asthma Is Under-Recognized And Undertreated: UW Expert

MADISON... Nearly two years after an expert panel issued guidelines to improve asthma detection and treatment, a UW Medical School professor who served on the panel says the disease remains under-recognized and is not being treated aggressively enough.

"The message that asthma treatment should be more specific and aggressive needs continued emphasis and reinforcement. No longer is symptom treatment of asthma enough," said Dr. William Busse, a UW Medical school professor of medicine and head of the section of allergy and immunology at UW Hospital and Clinics. He discussed the basis for change in asthma treatment at the First National Conference on Asthma Management October 11-13 in Arlington, Virginia.

Busse served on a national panel that in February of 1991 recommended physicians use anti-inflammatory drugs as a first-line treatment for people with moderate and severe asthma. Unlike bronchodilators, which temporarily relieve asthma symptoms, anti-inflammatories treat the underlying cause of asthma — bronchial inflammation — and prevent the disease from progressing.

The call for more aggressive treatment of asthma comes in the wake of a significant increase in the disease, the number of those hospitalized, and the number of deaths resulting from asthma. Nationwide, 10 to 15 million people have asthma, which constricts the lungs airways and causes wheezing, coughing and breathing problems. Between 1980 and 1987, the incidence of asthma increased 29 percent, and the death rate from this disease rose 31 percent, according to the panel's report.

Two of the most common anti-inflammatory medications are corticosteroids and cromolyn. While corticosteroids traditionally have been used to treat those with severe asthma, expanding their use could reduce moderate cases of asthma to mild ones, Busse said.

A major reason anti-inflammatories haven't been used more widely is that only recently has asthma been recognized to be a disease of inflammation, rather than bronchial spasms, according to Busse. By treating the source of the attacks, rather than merely providing relief, doctors and patients can better prevent future asthma episodes and stave off the long-term deterioration of respiratory function, Busse said.

"The realization that asthma is a disease of inflammation is a giant leap forward, and patients and the health care community need to be better educated so they can improve disease management," said Busse.

Another obstacle to more widespread use of anti-inflammatories, particularly corticosteroids, is concern over their potential long-term side effects, which include bone thinning, cataracts and high blood pressure. However, these side effects usually occur when corticosteroids are taken in a non-inhaled form; the recommendation for people with moderate asthma is that these drugs be inhaled directly into the airways. The most common side effect with this method is oral thrush — a yeast infection in the mouth — which can be prevented by rinsing the mouth with water after each dose, Busse said.

The panel also recommended that people with moderate or severe asthma use a home peak flow monitor at least once a day to measure how fast air can be blown out of the lungs. This is important because many people can't feel an asthma attack coming on until their airways have narrowed 30 to 40 percent, according to Busse. A peak flow meter detects early changes in airway capacity, allowing time to adjust medications to lessen the severity of an attack or possibly prevent it, he said.

Diet, Not Supplements Will Provide the Best Source of Calcium

Should you be taking a dietary supplement?

Probably not, say nutrition experts at the Dairy Council of Wisconsin (DCW).

Recent studies suggest that calcium, in addition to its well-known bone-building properties, may have other health benefits, such as reducing high blood pressure in certain population groups. But that doesn't mean consumers should head down to the corner drug store for a calcium supplement.

Instead, they should make certain their diets include foods that are rich in calcium, such as milk, cheese, yogurt and other dairy products. An 8-ounce glass of milk provides about 300 milligrams of calcium... more than one-third of the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) for men and women over the age of 25.

To obtain the benefits of increased calcium consumption, such as reduced risk for osteoporosis, DCW nutrition experts suggest eating more calcium-rich foods, because they provide other essential nutrients that calcium supplements do not. Milk, for example, provides protein, riboflavin and vitamins A and D, in addition to calcium. And the vitamin D and lactose in milk help your body put that calcium to use.

"Many people are concerned that they may not be getting enough nutrients from the foods they eat," says Joann Heppes, a registered dietitian and DCW's marketing vice president. "But all the nutrients your body needs are available in our food supply. A balanced diet that includes foods from all five food groups, eaten in moderation, will provide adequate nutrients."

Dairy Council of Wisconsin (DCW) is a non-profit nutrition education and marketing association whose work in Wisconsin, northern Illinois and northwestern Indiana is made possible through funds provided by dairy farmers.

Dundee Mill Park 'Love Light' Cards Available

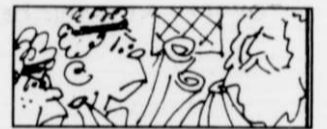

The Dundee Mill Park Committee is selling "Love Light" cards again this year. The idea of the cards is to raise money for much needed work on the mill. The cards are $3.00 or more each and can be purchased for yourself or in memory or honor of loved ones. Each card represents a light on the mill Christmas trees outside. A small card with the donor's name will be hung on the tree inside the mill.

Last year there was over 400 lights on from Dec. 1st until Christmas. Many people who drove by said they felt the warmth generated by the love of each of those purchases.

In order to accomplish this again, help is needed from each of you in the community to brighten the trees. The "Power of Love" is a great way to remember loved ones and let your love shine through the Christmas season.

Remember Christmas is a time of sharing, caring, and remembering. Sharing ourselves and remembering those who have shared a part of our lives. By helping to light up the Dundee Mill Park trees you will be sharing your love and helping the committee to work on the many projects needed to be completed.

"Love Light" cards may be purchased at area businesses or from any mill park member. Tree lighting will be on Dec. 6th, so get your cards early. If anyone has any questions, please call 533-8821 or 533-4099.

The first formal schools were established, historians say, shortly after 3,000 B.C.

'Summer That Wasn't' Was Tough on Goose Populations

By Bob Cooney, UW-Madison Ag News Service

Last year's season is going to be the good old days of Canada goose hunting for a while. The June-1992 blizzard that whumped Hudson Bay apparently wiped out most of the goslings in the area, according to researchers at the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences. The late spring across the far North also disrupted the breeding efforts of geese that didn't get snowed on.

That's life (and death) in the great outdoors. The geese will recover, although they'll need a few years to rebuild their numbers. In the meantime, Wisconsin hunters will see fewer tags and lower bags, according to University of Wisconsin-Madison wildlife ecologists Don Rusch and Scott Craven.

Most of the Canada geese that migrate through Wisconsin belong to the Mississippi Valley Population, which nests on the southwestern shore of Hudson Bay and the western shore of James Bay. The MVP probably lost most of its goslings to the snowstorm. Most adult birds survived.

Hunters who got eight tags for the Horicon Zone last year probably only got one or two this year... a 75 percent drop. The overall goose population didn't drop by 75 percent, but the number of goslings probably fell more than 75 percent. Tag numbers follow gosling production.

HOW BAD WAS IT ON THE GOOSE BREEDING GROUNDS?

The younger the goslings, the worse they fare in snow. Goslings at Hudson Bay were about 5 to 8 days old when they got plastered by six to eight inches of snow in late June. Parents will brood goslings in cold weather, but the youngsters have to eat. They can't find food in the snow, and they get wet. If the snow persists, the goslings die of hypothermia and starvation.

In a normal year, about half of the goslings die before migration. A lot more than half probably died this year around Hudson Bay, according to Rusch.

The storm covered most of the coastal area of Hudson Bay, but missed part of James Bay, another Mississippi Valley Population breeding area, according to banding crews at the scene. James Bay contains one-third of the range, and may have had 50 percent gosling survival. The other two-thirds of the range saw little or no survival.

Canada geese don't re-nest... they only have time and energy for one attempt. Females arrive at their breeding grounds carrying just enough nutrients in their bodies to allow them to lay and incubate a clutch of eggs, Rusch says. The goslings hatch when the first green growth occurs and quickly join the adults on a feeding binge.

Snowstorms or no, a late spring is bad news for geese. Extended cold weather forces females to use their stored energy to maintain themselves instead of laying eggs. Longer waits mean fewer nesting attempts and fewer eggs laid.

Rusch was on Baffin Island in August this year, and the banding crew captured 1,299 adults and one juvenile. A normal capture ratio would be 500 adults and 800 young. In a helicopter survey of Baffin Island, researchers say only 10 goslings among 35,000 Canada geese. They found NO young among 200,000 snow geese. These birds weren't snowed on, but the late spring reduced the number of nesting geese to almost zero.

In normal years, about half of the harvest is young geese, explains Rusch, who is director of the Wisconsin Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit. These juvenile birds won't breed for three or four years, making them "surplus" as far as maintaining the population.

The age ratio is crucial to the population's well-being. If few juveniles migrate, then most of the birds shot will be breeders. Taking too many breeders would hurt future reproduction, compared with shooting young non-breeders. Normally, juvenile geese make up less than one-third of the fall flight, but one-half of the harvest... they're much more likely to get shot.

In setting harvest goals, managers consider the size of the population, the percentage of young birds, and whether to build, maintain or reduce the population. If you want to maintain a certain level and poor reproduction reduces recruitment, then you can't take a lot of geese for a while.

"You can't deplete the breeding stock and expect to maintain a healthy population," Craven says. "It would be like a farmer who loses his calves and then sells off his breeding cows... you won't have any later."

Goose watchers at Horicon Marsh will see a lot of geese and probably won't notice any difference this year, Craven says. However, decoys may not dupe as many birds, because more will be experienced, wary adults.

Canada goose populations aren't in any danger, say the researchers. The MVP's recovery time will depend on how many adults are shot, as well as the weather. Even with ideal weather, we could see reduced quotas for the next few years, say Craven and Rusch.

In nature, something eventually slaps high populations back to lower numbers. What happened this year isn't unusual, and it will happen again, Craven says. The good news is that with this game bird, the management system can respond quickly to reduce the harvest quota and minimize the impact of a weather disaster.

Rusch and his graduate students are involved in long-term banding studies of all goose populations that use the Mississippi Flyway. This includes all the Canada geese that migrate through Wisconsin. UW-Madison wildlife ecologists have studied the eastern prairie population of Canada geese at Churchill, Manitoba for 25 years. They are starting a study at James Bay and have one underway at Baffin Island.

The UW-Madison researchers work on these studies with Canadian natural resource agencies, Ducks Unlimited, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the 14 states of the Mississippi Flyway Council.
