New Law Effects Election Deadline for Filing Village Nomination Papers Extended

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

Due to the new election law, the deadline for filing nomination papers for the position of Kewaskum Village Board Trustee has been extended by 72 hours, giving candidates until 5 p.m. Friday, January 5, to seek a seat on the board.

According to recent changes in the election laws, those who currently hold an office and do not wish to seek re-election must file a Declaration of Non-Candidacy by the same deadline which applies to candidates seeking re-election (December 23).

Current village trustee Charles Waala, who served only one term on the board, failed to declare he was not running for another term, and no papers were filed by the December 23rd deadline. Although the incumbent (Waala) can no longer file nomination papers, all other candidates for the office are eligible for the extension.

Trustee Robert Beisbier will not be seeking another term on the board in the April 4th election, having served the village for the past five years. The remaining trustee up for re-election, David Goeden, will run again, as well as former trustee Gary Gavin, who was defeated last April after four years on the board.

As of Wednesday morning, current board president Robert Wagner, is running unopposed.

Three Incumbents, One Newcomer Will Appear On School Board Ballot

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

The deadline has passed for filing nomination papers for those candidates seeking a seat on the Kewaskum Board of Education. Two, three year terms and one, one year term will expire this year.

As of 5 p.m. Tuesday, three incumbents and one newcomer will appear on the ballot April 4th, 1995.

Seeking re-election are

Karen Sparks, John Schulte and Ray Engelking. Sparks was appointed in 1993 to fill the vacancy left by Janet Wolfenberg. Schulte has been serving on the board since 1989 and Ray Engelking won as a write-in candidate in 1991.

The latest addition to the list of candidates is Mary Anderra of 2705 East Moraine Drive, Kewaskum.

Town of Scott Board Approves Tax Levy at December Meeting

By Bernadette Mondloch

Town of Scott taxpayers have approved a tax levy of $3.16 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation. This was three cents higher than originally proposed by the town board.

A portion of the increase came about due to a motion by Lynes Fellenz and supported by other property owners in attendance that the clerk salary be raised $600 more than the proposed budget called for. The budget indicated $4,900 as the clerk salary beginning after the April election. It will now be $5,500.

Fellenz, along with members of the board, and the others agreed that clerks' duties are increasing year after year, while compensation stays the same despite the job changes.

A $1,000 budget increase was also added to accommodate the hiring of a new assessor. In December, 1992, the town hired Assessor Carlyle Van Driest of Cedar Grove at a cost of $4,500 per year. Difficulty in "getting in touch with Van Driest, and some differences of opinion" on assessing matters, caused the board to look for a replacement.

Ernest Matthies Appraisals, Athelstein, took over on January 1, at a contract price of not more than $5,000. Matthies held this position with the town for two years prior to Van Driest.

An additional $900 was also approved for the Batavia First Responders, adding another increase to the 1995 budget. Extra money is needed to pay for "shots" and papers needed for new responders.

Comparisons of the 1994 and 1995 budgets, indicate increases in other departments. Town Board salaries which go into effect after the April election has added $1,150, $500 anticipated postage costs, $300 for liability insurance, $2,000 in loan payments, and $12,790 in the capital outlay category.

In 1995 capital outlay will involve $40,425 need for support of the building project for the Random Lake Library and $30,000 for recycling equipment.

Money for the library will be borrowed as soon as the exact amount is known. Dale Burke explained plans for purchase of equipment needed to begin processing

Turn Your Treasure Into a 'Dream Scene'

Arlene and Edgar Landess pose with some of the painted saws featured at Dream Scenes.

A wooden corner collectible in the shape of a cow, decorated with a quiet country scene -- one of Arlene's newest patterns.

One of Arlene's specialties is painting scenes on saws, some passed down through generations in families.

Circular saw blades are also available at Dream Scenes, painted in a variety of wildlife or nature scenes.

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

Imagine dream-like scenes of loons on a lake, quiet country churches in a backdrop of snow, or a rustic cabin hidden between the pines. Now picture them painted on relics from the past... antique milk cans, saw blades, fly sprayers, irons and oil cans... those hidden treasures found at flea markets or old farmers' rummage sales.

Arlene and Edgar Landess of Kewaskum merged their talents to create their own line of collectibles, combining art, crafts, and antiques into decorative items for the home. They call it, "Dream Scenes," a fitting name for Arlene's gift of creating a mood through her paintings.

The couple set up a workshop in the basement of their home, located at 8281 Sandy Ridge Road, having moved here from Pewaukee four years ago. "We always loved the area, and used to bring the children out here to go camping," Arlene explains, a parent of six, and grandparent to almost 13 (the latest is due in three months).

She started out years ago with a paint by number set when she was laid up and looking for something to occupy her time. "I didn't really like it, it was too boring, so Edgar brought home some real paints one day and I did a scene with two deer."

She recently gave that away to one of her daughters. Through the years, Landess kept experimenting with the medium, learning what worked and what didn't through trial and error. She calls it, "learning the hard way... I didn't have anyone to teach me."

Landess started painting saws, and that seemed to catch on. The word spread and people began bringing her their own saws passed down from grandfather, to father, to son; some with ornate wooden handles that when refinished, added to the beauty of the piece. They became so popular that Wings Over Wisconsin commissions her to do painted saw blades for their fund raisers and special banquets.

She works strictly with acrylic paints, preferring the way they apply to the surface of the objects she works with.

Throughout the summer, in-between weekend craft fairs, the couple hunt through flea markets and rummage sales, keeping an eye out for anything Arlene might paint on... old pitchers, kerosene torches, cast iron frying pans, watering cans, are what Edgar calls, "finding a treasure." Recently she started working with pieces of cypress wood, constantly coming up with new ideas for her collection.

Edgar helps with the sanding down of the saws, the milk cans, all the old metal pieces, as well as cutting out the wooden figures Arlene also works with. Recently retired from Consolidated Freightways, he's collected 35 milk cans to work with for the time being.

"The good ones, without dents or damage, are hard to find," he says. He also restores the saw handles. She recently finished a six-foot, two man saw for an Amish couple who wanted a scene of their home painted onto it. "Twice a year, we travel to Amish country when they have their quilt auctions," Arlene states. "I often get orders to paint their houses onto saws, custom orders are very popular. People bring me pictures all the time of something that holds a special meaning for them, and I'm happy to work with them."

Arlene prefers to do something different each time, but does repeat some paintings that seem to be in demand. Her rendition of a train engine with three cars, as well as a certain scene with loons on a lake, sell as fast as she can paint them. She concentrates mostly on wildlife and nature scenes, wolves, hawks, deer, baby seals, rabbits, are just some examples of her reoccurring subjects as well as naturescapes, from western and desert themes to a cabin on a lake at sunset.

Her painted wooden figures come in a variety of designs, some from patterns and others she creates herself. Most recent is her new line of Amish collectible figurines and houses, done in country colors. There are so many different items, it's difficult to begin to list them all. She's also started working on wooden angels that hang on the wall. "I'm always anxious to begin any new wood patterns they introduce," she says.

Never for lack of something to do, the couple spends most of their time each day in the workshop. "Usually when it's still dary out I'm up and working," Arlene points out. "I make a cup of coffee and start in on my orders," which come in from all over the state.

Their work can be found at the Loonery on Oak Street in Wisconsin Dells, and they are regulars at the annual Homemade Creations Craft Fairs and Kettle Kountry Kolers Festival, both in Kewaskum.

Moraine Musicians To Meet Monday

On Monday, January 9, at 7 p.m., the Moraine Musicians will meet at the UWWC Theater for their third meeting of the year.

Featured will be the Heritage Musick and Daunce Society's Heritage Dauncers. They will be performing 18th Century dances, elegantly outfitted in authentic clothing of the Revolutionary War period. They dance graceful minuets, lively country dances, and energetic cotillions and some of the musicians in the audience will be invited to dance with them.

They have performed throughout the United States in historical reenactments, and even travelled to France for a pageant commemorating the French Revolution. The Moraine Musicians who attend will hear and see a valuable history lesson on music and dance from this era. Be sure to be there and be a part of our country's heritage with The Heritage Dauncers.

Members parents are reminded to park only in designated areas or be ticketed by the City of West Bend. Make sure and be there before 7 p.m. or take the chance of not getting a seat. Even worse, late arrivals will miss part of the show, so remember... park correctly, be there early, and enjoy.

Finally -- A New Year's Resolution You Can Keep!

Want to kick off 1995 differently and actually stick to one of your New Year's Resolutions without the burden of counting calories, numbers-crunching or touching your toes? Join the National Kidney Foundation's New Year's Resolution Campaign and sign up to save a life.

Close to 40,000 Americans are currently awaiting a life-saving organ (heart, lung, kidney, liver, pancreas or bone marrow) transplant, and seven to eight people die each day awaiting a transplant. To help ease the plight of organ donation here in the United States, the National Kidney Foundation is urging all Americans to sign Uniform Donor Cards and to discuss that choice with their family members.

"At this time of the year, as people decide to turn over a new leaf, the resolution to become an organ donor and sign an Uniform Organ Donor Card is one that is easy to keep and can help save many lives," points out Allan Roza, M.D., Chairman of the National Kidney Foundation of Wisconsin.

The National Kidney Foundation of Wisconsin provides Uniform Organ Donor cards free of charge and urges all those who sign cards to "talk it over with their loved ones. At the time of donation, it is the next of kin who must sign a donation consent form. When your family knows your wishes, it makes the decision process so much easier," pointed out Dr. Roza.

The National Kidney Foundation of Wisconsin is one of 52 U.S. Affiliates of the National Kidney Foundation, Inc., the major voluntary health organization dedicated to eradicating kidney and urologic diseases, which impact 20 million Americans. The Foundation remains equally committed to ensuring that every American who needs a live-saving organ transplant receives one.

The works of the National Kidney Foundation is funded entirely by the public. To make a year-end, tax-deductible donation or to receive a free donor card or more information about organ donations, call (414) 821-0705 or (800) 543-6393 or write to the National Kidney Foundation of Wisconsin at 280 Regency Court, Suite 100, Brookfield, WI 53045-6165.

Strong Markets, Citizen Support Usher In New Recycling Phase

MADISON -- As Wisconsin enters a new phase of waste reduction and recycling, market demand for most recyclables and citizen support for local recycling programs are at their highest levels since passage of the Waste Reduction and Recycling Law almost five years ago.

"We are moving from voluntary recycling in the residential sector alone to mandatory recycling in all sectors across the state," said Kate Cooper, chief of the Department of Natural Resources Waste Reduction and Recycling Section. "That includes every type of business, hospitals, schools and universities and government institutions."

New recycling requirements began January 1, 1995, when Wisconsin landfills and incinerators no longer accepted 10 recyclable materials: newspapers, office paper, magazines, corrugated cardboard, aluminum, steel, bi-metal or glass containers, #1 and #2 plastic containers and used tires. These items join a list of banned materials that now includes major appliances, used motor oil, vehicle batteries and yard waste.

Meanwhile, market prices for processors who collect and sell recycled aluminum reached a high of $1,060 per ton in 1994, up from a high of $560 per ton in 1993, according to the trade newspaper, American Metal Market. Official Board Markets magazine reported recycled office paper prices as high as $105 per ton, compared to a high of $15 per ton in 1993.

Prices for recycled newsprint and #1 and #2 plastic containers also showed similar growth, according to industry analysts.

"This is a good time to be a recycler," said Mary Kohrell, markets development specialist for the University of Wisconsin-Extension. "Across the board revenues for recycled items are higher than they've ever been, thanks to the improved economy, luck, and Wisconsin's ongoing support of market development for recyclables."

A large majority of state residents support recycling. A 1993 DNR statewide telephone survey of Wisconsin consumers found that 92% of Wisconsin households are recycling some materials, up from 83% in 1990.

The state's local government units responsible for recycling will enforce local recycling ordinances. As a result, procedures for preparing recyclables may vary from community to community.

The DNR estimates about 200 communities do not yet have a recycling ordinance that meets state requirements. An approved ordinance is necessary in order to meet the definition of an "effective" program. Only local governments with effective programs, are eligible for state recycling grants to help offset some recycling program costs and may dispose of garbage in Wisconsin landfills and incinerators.

"There is still a lot of fine-tuning that needs to be done to make recycling programs efficient and effective," said Cooper. "But the current strong markets and the enthusiasm most people have shown for waste reduction and recycling over the past five years, says a lot for the future success of the programs."

Your Home Needs Wintertime Humidity

Just because your bathroom window gets steamed up when you take a shower, that doesn't mean your home will have enough humidity to make you feel comfortable during the winter.

To stay in a comfortable range, a 2,000 square-foot home needs about 18 gallons of added moisture every day. Some of that moisture can come from activities like cooking and bathing, but you would need to take an impossible 256 showers a day* to account for all the humidity your home needs during cold winter weather, according to Roger Pasch, vice president of engineering for Research Products Corporation, the maker of Aprilaire® whole-house humidifiers.

The most reliable way of maintaining a comfortable humidity level is to install a whole-house humidifier controlled by an automatic humidistat, Pasch said.

He explained that during the winter, cold outside air is constantly infiltrating your home to make up for the warm inside air that's lost to the outside. But, when you heat cold air to 70 degrees, the humidity plummets. Warm air needs much more moisture than cold air to maintain the same relative humidity, so it feels dry. In fact, your home can get down to about six percent relative humidity.

That desert-dry air steals moisture from wherever it can, including your nose, throat and skin. It is the extra evaporation caused by super-dry air that makes you feel chilly when you step out of the nice, steamy bathroom, not necessarily a difference in temperature.

Most experts, including the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, recommend maintaining relative humidity between 30 and 50 percent in the winter. Too little humidity causes physical aggravations, such as a parched nose, throat and skin. It also dries out your home and furnishings and is the cause of those annoying static electric shocks common in the winter. Too much humidity can cause condensation on walls and windows. To avoid that, a humidifier should always be equipped with a humidistat, Pasch said.

There are Aprilaire humidifier models suitable for homes with all types of heating systems, including forced air, hot water, steam, and heat pumps. All Aprilaire humidifiers connect directly to your home's water supply, so they operate completely automatically. Because they have a flow-through drain, there is no reservoir to clean and no standing water that could harbor bacteria or mold.

For more information about how to maintain proper humidity in your home, call the Consumer Information Department at Research Products Corporation, 1-800-545-2219. Ask for the free booklet, Facts on Humidification.

*The 1992 Handbook of the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers (ASHRAE) estimates that about 1/2 pound of water evaporates during a typical shower. That's approximately half a pint. To evaporate 16 gallons of water, you would have to take 256 showers every day.

Town of Scott

and marketing recyclables. The committee is looking to obtain a shredder, a crusher and a baler. This equipment would be able to process multiple materials before marketing. While other towns are collecting only number one and two plastics, this equipment would be able to handle numbers one through seven, thereby reducing the cost for solid waste and producing income by the sale of the recyclables.

The committee is also anticipating income from grants which have been established by the state. It is looking to obtain at least a partial grant for the project.

Town resident Dallas Wixom asked, "How long will it take to be profitable?" He was concerned that the market may drop with the onset of mandatory recycling which went into effect throughout the state on January 1. Committee members said that the town is giving consideration to neighboring municipalities to bring their recyclable material to the Scott site.

Along those lines, the state is encouraging municipalities to apply for grants which would pick up 50% of the cost, up to $150,000 to implement new recycling and waste reduction ideas.

Road work, which is always another major budget item, will remain the same as last year, $175,000.

After applying $117,545 from State Shared Revenues, $53,487 from Highway Aids, $7,000 earned interest, plus various miscellaneous sources, the town will apply $35,000 of surplus funds, leaving $156,907.87 to be raised for town purposes.

A number of zoning items were resolved by the Scott Town Board at the December meeting. Approval was given to amend Section 3.7 B-1 Business District of the current zoning ordinance to include small business under conditional uses.

A request by Adrian Krahn to rezone a .5 acre parcel located in Section 17 (Beechwood) from A-1 and A-2 to B-3 was approved along with a conditional use permit to operate a tavern and hall with attached residence at that same location.

Otilia Schulz had her 2.05 acre parcel, also located in Beechwood, from R-1 to B-3 and was granted a conditional use permit to operate a tavern and hall, plus residence on that property. One of the conditions was that no more than one dance could be held per week in the hall.

A request from Floyd Klug to rezone a 13.673 acre parcel located in Section 32 from A-1 and A-2 to A-5 was tabled for lack of sufficient information.

Shaun and Kim Eckmann had earlier been denied a zoning change which would have split their property into several parcels, were turned down a second time. This request was for a 25 acre parcel in Section 11 to be rezoned from A-1 to two A-5 parcels. Commenting on the request, Supervisor Richard Bemis said, "The split would be the best use for this land, but according to our rules we can not make the change because of the soils." The town has been using soil types as the major issue when dealing with zoning change requests.

The planning commission had recommended to the town board to deny the change. Supervisor Clarence Janz added, "That's what we have a planning board for so we should follow its recommendations."

In other business:

*Election workers appointed included: Democrats - Adeline Held, Cindy Krause, Elroy Krause, Reuben Harter, Irene Giese and Republicans - Kathleen Arndt, Janice Warnecke, Alice Harter, Marion Becker and Marian Krause.

*A beer license was issued to the Night Flyers Snowmobile Club for a brat fry on January 22.

*Ron Rezell was appointed to the Board of Appeals to fill the unexpired term of James Meyer. The term expires in March of 1996.

*The Batavia and Beechwood Fire Department was hired for fire protection for 1995. An additional $300 was authorized to be paid for the new one ton truck ordered earlier in the year. The reason was that the truck would not be available for several months, but for the additional money, a heavy-duty model of the same truck would be available immediately. Due to the onset of winter, the truck is needed now.

The board approved the following building permits: John Reseburg - home - $83,105; Bruce VanDyke - home - $60,000; Gerald Arndt - corn crib - $5,800; Mike Melius - 30x34 foot shed - $11,000; Bernell Baldwin - re-roof; Tim Edler - garage - $1,000; JASP ADVENTURE - Remodel house - $10,000; JASP ADVENTURE - home addition - $10,000; Nancy Cook - shed - $4,875; Melvin Moths - electric service - $400; Jon Lepp - house - $93,000; Byron Gessner - repair porch; Gary Hahn - pole shed - $8,070.

Campus Notes

OSHKOSH -- This fall's entering freshmen at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh brought with them some high academic expectations.

"Based on their scholastic achievement -- class rank and ACT score -- we have the strongest entering class in the history of the university," said Chancellor John Kerrigan.

Nearly 1,400 freshmen were expected to show up for class on September 7. As expected, that number is down from a year ago because of a downturn in the number of Wisconsin high school graduates. But increased numbers of transfer and graduate students will mean the university will hit its enrollment target set by the UW System Board of Regents.

The university's total enrollment was expected to be about 10,500 on opening day. About 1,600 will be graduate students, up more than 100 over last year.

"We've never had a class with more potential," said Roger Herold, director of enrollment management.

Efforts to improve the student academic profile have included academic and leadership scholarships and student recruiting efforts aimed at attracting top students. Those efforts included a special, by-invitation-only Preview Day for outstanding students and their parents.

Incoming freshmen at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh for the 1994 fall semester included the following area students:

Free Informational Meeting At Dyslexia Institute Jan. 10

The Wisconsin Dyslexia Institute will hold a free informational meeting open to the general public at the University of Wisconsin-Washington County on Tuesday, January 10, at 7 p.m. in Room 274. The topic of the meeting will be "Teaching Dyslexic Children and Adults."

This meeting is most appropriate for people who have difficulty completing a task on time, following directions, or have trouble with spelling, writing and reading. These individuals may be handicapped with the "hidden handicap" called dyslexia.

Dyslexia is a language-based disorder affecting 15% of the population. It is characterized by difficulty in learning to read, write and spell. Persons affected are often misunderstood and wrongly thought of as careless, lazy or stupid. It is not uncommon for persons with dyslexia to exhibit exceptional talent in the visual and performing arts, crafts and mechanics, and areas that call for holistic thinking and problem solving. Early identification and appropriate instruction can mean the difference between a productive life and a life of illiteracy and frustration.

In addition to instructional services, WDI also offers evaluations for dyslexia, instructor training programs, a resource library that is open to the public, and cooperative community education for a better understanding of dyslexia.

Wisconsin Gas Opens New Pay Station in West Bend

MILWAUKEE - Three Bank One branches in West Bend will serve as Wisconsin Gas bill paying stations as of November 15. The utility established the bill paying stations as a convenience to West Bend area customers.

"Customers accustomed to paying their bills in the West Bend office now have three new options," said John Nelson, manager of consumer affairs and customer centers for Wisconsin Gas. The gas company closed its West Bend office on November 4.

The bill paying stations are located at Bank One branch offices at the following locations: 801 W. Washington, West Bend; 600 W. Paradise Drive, West Bend; 2412 W. Washington, West Bend.

Nelson said the gas company has six bill paying stations in the West Bend area.

Customers who would like a complete listing of pay stations in their area can call Wisconsin Gas toll-free at 1-800-261-DIAL (3425). Customers who prefer to mail their payments should send them to the address printed on their gas bill.

Wisconsin Gas Company, a subsidiary of WICOR, is the largest natural gas distributor in the state, serving nearly half a million customers in 487 communities.

Interest in model railroading as a hobby began after the Chicago World's Fair of 1933-34. Model railroad exhibits at the fair spurred this interest.

First Step in Handling Picky Eaters: Don't Worry

Mealtime can become a battleground if there's a picky eater in your family, but it doesn't have to be.

"Parents often are concerned that their children aren't getting enough to eat, or that they're not getting proper nutrients," says Laura Wilford, a registered dietitian and vice president of planning and evaluation for Dairy Council of Wisconsin -- and a mother of two young children. "Studies show when children are offered a variety of healthful food choices, they not only eat enough, they eat well."

"When parents realize they can't force or cajole their children's mouths, they can stop worrying about it and start enjoying mealtime as a time for the family to be together," she says.

DCW nutrition experts offer the following tips for encouraging a picky eater:

*Unless a child is not growing properly, don't worry about his or her eating habits. Serve a variety of foods from all five food groups: bread, cereal, rice and pasta; vegetable; fruit; meat, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nuts; and milk, yogurt and cheese. Let the child decide which foods to eat, and how much.

*Don't let a child's eating habits become an issue. Too much attention to a child's eating can lead to obesity or eating disorders later.

*Don't use food to reward, punish, pacify or entertain. Also, don't reward children for eating, or punish them for not eating.

*Serve the same foods to everyone, but in a "kid-friendly" manner. For example, children tend to prefer mild-flavored foods, so whenever possible, have adults add seasonings or spices to their preference at the table. Serve sauces on the side. Help children cut foods that are difficult to chew into bite-size pieces.

*Encourage children to try new foods, but don't force them. Offer new foods with familiar foods, and at the beginning of the meal, when children are most hungry.

*Be sure children come to the table ready to eat. Stimulate their appetites with plenty of exercise and fresh air. Limit snacks to 1-1/2 to two hours before mealtime, and be sure snack foods contribute to children's nutritional needs.

*Allow children to help plan and prepare meals.

*Set a good example yourself.

*Include milk with meals. It's a familiar favorite with youngsters, and the calcium, protein, riboflavin and other nutrients in milk make it an important part of your whole family's healthful diet. What's more, it's convenient - always ice cold in your refrigerator.

Finally, Wilford says, "Relax, maintain your sense of humor and remember, this too, shall pass."

Dairy Council of Wisconsin is a non-profit nutrition education, marketing and communications association whose work in Wisconsin, northern Illinois and Northwest Indiana is made possible through funds provided by dairy farmers.

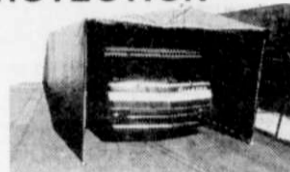

Some historians believe that an Englishman named William Russell eventually bought the Mayflower, the ship the Pilgrims sailed to America for, and used its hull as a barn roof. The barn still stands in a village outside of London.

Big Classic Basketball Challenge

The Badger Middle school's gymnasium will be the scene for the Second Annual "Wendy's/AM 1470 WBKV/Pure Country 92.5 Excalibur Big Classic Basketball Challenge."

On Friday, January 27, 1995 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. a basketball competition will be held between the faculty of West Bend's High School and a team from local radio stations WBKV/WBWI.

The high school staff will be coached by West Bend's very own Mayor Michael Miller. The radio station team will be coached by former Milwaukee Bucks legend, Junior Bridgeman. East and West High School cheerleaders will be on hand to entertain the audience and motivate the team members.

Tickets for the event are $2.00 in advance or $2.50 at the door on the night of the game. Tickets can be purchased at the Wendy's in West Bend, the East/West High School or WBKV/WBWI radio station. All proceeds will go toward the Wendy's Excalibur Scholarship Fund.

Half-time activities will include a corporate 3 point shoot out with all losers donating $25.00 to the fund.

Also, this year two autographed basketballs will be awarded to some lucky individuals.

"When we moved into West Bend, we were pleased to see the high standards set for education," said Andre Bynum, Marketing Director for Bridgeman Foods, Inc. "Naturally, we wanted to support the enthusiasm that the community held for the education of it's young people. This basketball game is a way that we can involve the entire community and raise funds for the Wendy's Excalibur Scholarship Fund."

SCS Renamed NRCS to Reflect Broader Resource Mission

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service has had a name change to the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). The new agency was authorized as part of USDA's reorganization in October by Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy.

While the agency has focused on soil conservation for the past 60 years, it has also been the key federal agency to offer technical help on private lands for improvements to water, wildlife habitat, forest lands, grasslands, wetlands, and forest lands through USDA programs.

The new Natural Resources Conservation Service will continue to have responsibility for all the programs of the former Soil Conservation Service. In addition, several other programs have been transferred to it: the Wetlands Reserve Program, the Water Bank Program, the Forestry Incentives Program, the Colorado River Salinity Control Program, and the Farms for the Future Program.

The Natural Resources Conservation Service will increasingly look at all resources on private lands as its resource conservationists help private landowners on a voluntary basis.

The United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) prohibits discrimination in its programs on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, and marital or familial status. USDA is an equal employment opportunity employer.

NRCS will continue to be co-located with Washington County Land Conservation Department at 333 E. Washington, Suite 3200, West Bend. If you have any questions or comments please call District Conservationist Patrick Murphy at 335-4800.

Orders Being Taken for Native Trees, Shrubs and Prairie Flowers

Order forms are now available for anyone interested in planting native trees, shrubs or prairie flowers next spring.

The Washington County Land Conservation Department is taking orders on a first come, first serve basis from now until March 3, 1995. This new program was started in 1993 to encourage local planting of native woodland and prairie species, while meeting a demand for low priced seed and planting stock.

The 28 species of trees and shrubs are bare root transplants averaging 1-2/2-3' in size. Prices average $.60 - $.70 each depending on the species and quantity ordered. A minimum of 10 per species and 30 total trees or shrubs must be ordered.

Prairie seed is sold by the pound in three special mixes native to wet and dry sites in the area. Two mixes contain a 50/50 ratio of native grasses and wild flowers. The 30-40 species in each mix which will eventually provide a variety of color throughout the growing season and cost $70.00/pound. The third mix is made up solely of native grasses and sells for $23.00/pound. A pound of any mix will cover up to 3,000-4,000 square feet of area.

All orders must be paid in advance. Pick-up of orders will be in mid-April, 1995 at the County Fairgrounds in Slinger. For order forms or further information, call 335-4800 or write: Washington County Land Conservation Department, 333 E. Washington St., Suite 3200, West Bend, WI 53095.

LAUGH LINES

Slightly overweight woman tourist asked a sales-girl in Paris where she could find the perfume counter.

Briskly the girl stepped out, and started toward the perfume bar.

"Just walk this way," she waggled.

"If I could walk that way," muttered the woman, "I wouldn't be needing the perfume."

A 1994 readership survey conducted by the UW-Oshkosh School of Journalism reveals that Wisconsin residents depend on NEWSPAPERS twice as often as the second leader—television—for information about products they're interested in. Turkey Hunters Have Successful Fall Season

MADISON -- While turkey hunters had a successful 1994 fall season in Wisconsin, harvesting 3,896 turkeys, preliminary figures compiled by the Department of Natural Resources indicate a new fall season framework did not significantly increase hunter success rates.

This was the first fall hunt with a single season that ran from October 10 through November 6. In previous years, the fall season was separated into four periods, and hunters had to apply for a permit to hunt in one of those periods.

"The average hunter success rate for the fall season was 22 percent, with hunter success rates of 20 percent or higher in a number of zones," says Bill Vander Zouwen, DNR wildlife ecology section chief.

Success rates for earlier fall seasons averaged about 20 percent, Vander Zouwen said. Fort McCoy held its first fall turkey hunt this year, with 54 turkeys harvested, for a success rate of 22.6 percent.

The DNR reduced permit levels for the fall 1994 season because of the possibility of increased success rates and increased hunter interference associated with the straight 28-day season. Relatively poor reproduction due to the wet spring in 1993 resulted in slightly lower spring 1994 hunter success rates, and was another reason for the 1994 fall permit reductions, Vander Zouwen said.

"Based on 1994 fall harvest results, we now know that success rates and hen harvest rates did not increase. The harvest was distributed evenly throughout the four-week period, and all indications are that there were few interference problems with this season framework," Vander Zouwen said.

Based on those results and surveys that indicated the turkey population had the best reproduction in years this past summer, the department has raised the preliminary permit numbers for next fall.

The preliminary total for fall 1995 permits is 30,100, Vander Zouwen said. The department will set final fall permit levels after reviewing results of a turkey hunter questionnaire and results of the spring 1995 turkey season, he said.

Neumanns Honored by East Central/Select Sires

East Central/Select Sires honored Roger and Ann Neumann of Kewaskum, for their herd's outstanding production. At an annual meeting held in West Bend, Roger and Ann received a bronze award for ranking 15% above the state's production average for milk, fat and protein.

In 1994, the 73 herd averaged 23,261 pounds of milk, 847 pounds of fat and 745 pounds of protein on an official Dairy Herd Improvement test. As members of the cooperative, Roger and Ann rely on East Central/Select Sires to provide top-of-the-line dairy genetics at affordable prices.
