Winter Parking Starts December 1, Parking Tickets Double

By Andrew R. Kuehl
Staff Writer/Photographer

As of January 1, 2002 parking tickets in the village will double. This is the first time in 30 years the cost of a parking ticket has been raised. Previous to the $5 ticket, $3 tickets were issued.

Police chief Richard Knoebel gave the village board the following recommendations for fines.

Basic Parking Fines
$10 if paid within five days
$20 paid within six-28 days
$30 if paid after 28 days

Parking on Private Property
$15 if paid within five days
$25 paid within six-28 days
$35 if paid after 28 days

Handicap Parking Violations
$25 if paid within five days
$35 paid within six-28 days

$45 if paid after 28 days

A comparison study was done and the only municipality that was lower than Kewaskum was Hartford at $3, $5 and $10. West Bend and Saukville was the highest.

The chief also reminded the board that winter parking restriction will take place on Saturday, December 1. A complete copy of the ordinance will be in next weeks Statesman.

'Noise Without a Purpose' Hot Topic at Town of Scott Meeting

A small group of Town of Sherman residents attended the Town Board meeting to make a request for the adoption of an "Unnecessary Noise Ordinance."

What seems to be a strange name for an ordinance was actually a suggestion from an officer of the Sheboygan County Sheriff's Department. Spokes person for the group, Barbara Morin said that the neighborhood has been plagued with loud mufflers, bon fires, excessive loud music, and gun shots, all hours of the day and night. This is not a new problem to the neighborhood and has been brought to the board's attention from time to time during the past ten plus years. Some of the problems have been worked out between the involved parties while others have not.

The problem appears to grow as new residents move into the area, purchasing land, and enjoying activities with no concern on how it affects their neighbors.

Morin told of four-wheelers (trucks) racing around the section in the vicinity of Cranberry Road and Brazelton Drive with loud mufflers, and some with no muffler at all. Most recently after calling the Sheriff's Department for assistance she experienced a 2 1/2 hour of wait. The trucks were no longer in the vicinity and she was advised that if the town had an "Unnecessary Noise Ordinance" a citation could be issued, but without the ordinance, nothing could be done.

Several times during the dialog, those who spoke referred to the disturbance as a "noise without a purpose." There was also some concern about the number of unlicensed vehicles involved in these activities. Some are brought to the area on trailers and at times as many as eight vehicles have lined up to get on the property to "rip around" on their private race track, with no concern for those around them. One of these areas being used is being done on "wet lands," another possible violation.

Supervisor Ivan Kumrow will be contacting the Army Corp of Engineers to verify that such activities being conducted in wetlands, is a violation of zoning and other regulations. Board members agreed that something must be done to maintain Community control. Chairman Steve Jung said "We are not here to hang somebody but we want something for everyone."

In the mean time the board will be collecting copies of nuisance or noise ordinances being used by neighboring towns and a committee will be established to examine these ordinances in an attempt to put together something which can be used in the Town of Scott.

The Batavia Athletic Association will begin grading an area at the park in preparation of establishing an ice skating rink. It is hoped that expenses for this endeavor will be supported by fund raisers and by means of a state grant. In order to obtain a grant, they must establish a five year plan for the park area.

The association has drawn up a plan which could include a 2nd ball diamond, a soccer field, concession stand, bathrooms and a pavilion. If the grant is approved, the association would need to provide 50% of the funding.

The next fund raiser will be a Winter Festival to be held on January 4th and 5th. Plans include skating with a nearby bon fire, a Friday night teen dance, Craft fair on Saturday for both adult and kids crafts, and an adult dance on Saturday night.

The Beechwood Fire Department's newly acquired Utility truck has arrived. The cost of the truck was $23,500. The department announced to the board that it is prepared to pay off the building addition loan. This would be an early payment.

A conditional use permit was approved for Jeff Haack, which would allow a house to be built on a 40 acre lot in Section 32, at such time as he becomes the legal owner of the property in question and provided the transfer of ownership is accomplished by January 1, 2002. This property is currently held in an estate.

Road report indicates that all pot holes have been repaired. Shouldering is complete on Cranberry, Maple Tree, Boltonville Road, Brazelton, Trout Spring and Crooked Lake Drive. New street name signs and road signs have been installed and trucks and sander are ready for the first snowfall.

An Amazing Attitude of Gratitude

We need to dwarf our troubles and magnify our blessings.

-Humphrey B. Neill

The reporters were gathered and waiting, anxious to question Benjamin Weir, a missionary who had been taken hostage in Lebanon. He was about to be released after 16 months of miserable imprisonment.

When Weir finally took his place in the center of attention, he greeted the reporters at this initial interview with unspeakable joy at being reunited with freedom.

The first question was asked, the first response given. And then a deafening silence fell on all those gathered as the humble man's words resonated beyond hearing and into hearts.

Make the most of the best and the least of the worst.

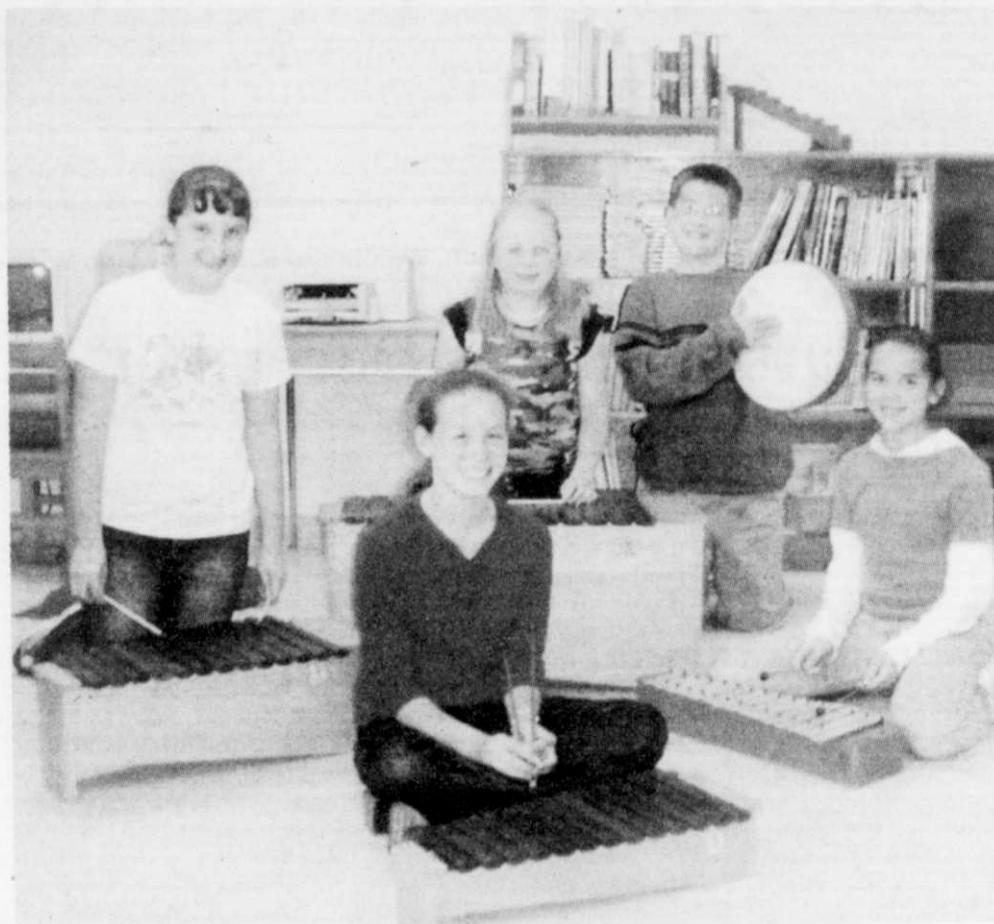

-Robert Louis Stevenson

The reporter's question was simple enough: "How did you spend your time during these long months and keep yourself from boredom and despair?"

Weir's stunning answer? "I spent my time being grateful...and counting blessings, for there was always something I could be thankful for. Some days I got to take a shower. Sometimes there were some vegetables in my food. And I could always be thankful for the love of my family."

The reporter's question was simple enough. So was the answer.

Scientist Says Microbiology Hazards Worse in Space

WEST BEND - The current Anthrax scare needn't alarm the American public quite as much as the media would have us all believe, says Dr. David Koenig, a former NASA microbiologist.

For one thing, he said, Anthrax and other germs on earth tend to "clump" together, making them heavier than air. "They fall into the carpet, and that makes it much harder for them to infect us," Koenig said. "In space, where the pull of gravity is far less, contagion is a big concern."

"You don't want (astronauts) getting sick up there."

Koenig will address these and other issues in a free lecture, "Space Microbiology," now scheduled for 7:30 p.m., December 13, 2001, at the University of Wisconsin - Washington County. The University is located at 400 University Drive, West Bend.

Koenig, who now works as a research scientist at the Kimberly-Clark Corp., in Menasha, worked in the early 1970s as a part of the NASA research team designing the International Space Station, which now orbits the Earth. Among other projects, Koenig helped design water purification systems for the Space Station, and drafted health strategies that could keep astronauts safe in space.

Among his more interesting projects, he said, was working with Russian scientists to find ways to make American water purification systems aboard the Space Shuttle and Russian systems aboard the former space station Mir work together.

It was a lot harder than it sounds, he said.

For one thing, American space borne water purification systems use Iodine to kill bacteria in the water, while Russian systems use a silver compound to kill bacteria. The combination of silver and iodine could be disastrous, as the compounds combine and crystallize in water, he said.

"You put them together and you get rocks," he said.

Working together with his Russian counterparts also taught him lessons about "making do," Koenig said.

American scientists, with comparatively richer taxpayers footing the bills, tend to design beautiful, grand systems to tackle technical problems, he said, while the Russians were far more pragmatic.

"Sometimes it seems like they put things together with duct tape," he said, tongue firmly in cheek, "but they always worked."

For more information on Koenig's lecture, please contact William Breyfogle, UWWC Director of University Relations at 262-335-5233.

Change in KHS Can Collection Dates

The Kewaskum High School junior class members are collecting aluminum cans in conjunction with Milwaukee radio station KISS FM's "High School Spirit" contest.

The winning school will receive a concert by up-and-coming pop sensations City High and Christina Milian on Monday, December 10.

KISS will write a check to all participating schools for the amount of money their cans generate. In addition, KISS will make a $3,000 donation on behalf of the winning school to the Children of 9/11 College Fund.

A&W Iron and Metal, Inc. of West Bend will be recycling all the cans.

The KHS juniors will be collecting cans Wednesday November 21 and Friday November 30. They were originally collecting the cans on Friday, November 23, but due to school being closed for the holiday, the date was changed. Collection will be from 3 to 5 p.m. in the parking lot by the Field House entrance of the High School (southwest corner).

All money raised will go towards this year's prom.

They ask that the cans be crushed if possible. Any and all cans will be accepted.

Please help out! They are asking for everyone's involvement in this event.

LIBRARY LEDGER

By Steev Baker
Kewaskum Library Director
www.kewaskum.lib.wi.us

Since the September 11 attacks, it has been suggested by many that the attitudes of irony, cynicism, and self-deprecation that have marked the X and Y generations are now a thing of the past.

Recent issues of weekly news magazines such as People, Time, and Entertainment Weekly have devoted front-page space to the debate of such issues. And to an extent, they may be right in their suggestions: Jonathon Franzens The Corrections, with its post-modern sensibilities and critical views of the eccentricities of the American Family, has fallen out of favor with a public who would much rather be reassured than shouted-at.

The resulting cultural climate is a strange mixture of renewed patriotism and a lingering Pop-star obsession. As a marked contrast to the current tentative cultural market come several recently-published works of non-fiction.

These collections have in common the basic idea that even the minutiae of life is worthy of reflection and preservation and that every person, no matter how humble their situation, has a story worth sharing. For the next few weeks, I will profile one book per week.

Author and radio personality Paul Auster bows first with his collection of short-short stories I Thought My Father Was God and other true tales from the national story project (the National Story Project is an on-going segment of National Public Radios All Things Considered).

Auster told listeners to NPR that he was looking for short, true stories about the simple and mysterious things in life. This anthology of listener-written vignettes (none of the submitters are professional writers) tell stories of the strange coincidences, happy endings, tragic happenings, and moments of epiphany that make our lives unique but also serve to connect us with our place in history.

Unlike other such collections, I Thought My Father was God has no soupy melodrama or preachy moralizing. Each story is as honest and sincere and real as the life of which it is a part. In the title story, a boy in World War II California remembers the strength of the family bond when a bizarre twist of fate causes a renewed faith in his father.

Airport Story is the tale of a day when everything bad that can happen actually does. A story called Homeless in Prescott, Arizona ends with the short sentence, Pray for me, and is signed eerily B.C.

These are not stories with tidy endings but are instead full of ambiguities and loose threads. Out of the 4000 stories Auster received in his first year with the National Story Project, there are 180 here that represent every facet of life in America. This is the kind of book where you could open to any page at random and have a rich and satisfying read. Its also a great example of the American short story, biography, and essay all rolled into one handy volume. Best of all, Austers book shows how personal history is as powerful as or more powerful than the tabloid-inspired lives of Americas pop-cultural elite.

County Offering Workshops for Seniors on Health Care Coverage

Washington County seniors are facing difficult choices for health care coverage for 2002. The two Medicare HMO's in Washington County are Medicare Blue and Prime Care Gold. Medicare Blue has chosen to terminate coverage effective December 31, 2001 for all enrollees. As of January 1, 2002, they will be back to traditional Medicare coverage.

Federal law does offer protection for these seniors by providing a "guarantee issue" which requires all Medicare Supplemental Insurance plans to accept them without health underwriting. For seniors this allows them access to insurance without any pre-existing condition exclusions and no waiting period for coverage. Seniors have until March 4, 2002 to take advantage of this protection. After that date, the insurance companies are allowed to request health underwriting.

However, Prime Care Gold (Medicare Complete in 2002) will change their coverage significantly in January 2002. There will be a deductible of $350 per day for hospital stays and $150 per day for nursing home/rehabilitation stays. Other deductible amounts will also be charged for various medical cares. These amounts will be applied to the annual $4,800 deductible.

Prime Care Gold (Medicare Complete) enrollees do not have the "guarantee issue" protection because the plan is not terminating coverage. Enrollees can choose to remain in Prime Care Gold (Medicare Complete) or return to traditional Medicare and purchase additional insurance for the deductibles and co-insurance amounts not covered under Medicare.

Washington County Office on Aging will be holding additional workshops to address these concerns and options. Cheryl Gray, Benefit Specialist will conduct the workshops. If seniors have the booklet "Medicare Supplement Insurance Approved Policies," please bring them. No reservations required. Office on Aging can be reached at 335-4497 or Metro 414-342-2929 ext. 4497.

What Tight Budget?

Some newspapers have carried articles about a supposedly tight budget passed by the State Legislature and signed by Governor McCallum in August. As past readers of the column know, that is nonsense. I will focus today on another program exploding out of control - the Student Achievement Guarantee in Education (SAGE.)

The purpose of this program is to lower class sizes in kindergarten through third grade. As recently as spring of 1999, the state spent $15-million on this program. It increased to $18-million in the year ending June 2000 and $61-million in 2003. In the tight budget just passed it will go up to $76-million in the year ending June 2002 and to $95-million in the year ending June 2003. Some tight budget!!!

You would think before embarking on such a huge increase in spending there would be extensive research showing that student achievement would go up. Unfortunately, Eric Hanushek, professor of economics and public policy at the University of Rochester concluded after reviewing 277 studies that more than seventy percent of the studies showed no conclusive result. Fifteen percent showed improvement and thirteen percent showed an actual negative impact to lowering class size. In other words, the SAGE program doesn't make any difference in student achievement.

At first glance this may seem surprise, but if you think about it the best classes you had as a child were those with a good teacher. No one says my favorite class in high school was the class I had twelve children in - it may have been a class with thirty-two children but the teacher was good. It's not the number of kids in the class; it's what the teacher does in front of the class.

Furthermore, if one reduces class size, one would have to hire teachers who would not otherwise have jobs; presumably poorer teachers. This may be why some studies show efforts at decreasing class size actually harm educational achievement. As a side note, according to the Department of Public Instruction, the number of children per teacher in Wisconsin's classrooms declined from 15.7 to 1 down to 15.0 to 1 from 1996 to 2000 before this program took effect. (This does not mean class sizes were 15.1 to 1 as the number of teachers includes special education, physical education and music teachers.) It seems a strange time for the state to get involved in insisting we must hire more teachers.

In Asian countries, class sizes of over forty are common and they have superior test scores. I am not encouraging American schools to have classes of this size, but it illustrates that it is the method of teaching more than the size of the class which is most relevant. In January, the Legislature will deal with the budget crisis. They will claim they have cut to the bone. If they continue the big increase in this program scheduled for the next school year, you will know they are not serious.

Please let me know what you think on this issue. Contact me here in Madison at 1-888-534-0059.

Thank God For Religious Freedom This Thanksgiving Day!

By Rev. Louis P. Sheldon

Washington, DC - The dramatic rescue last week of eight Christian humanitarian aid workers from the Taliban should remind us on Thanksgiving Day of the wonderful gift of religious freedom we possess in this nation. These Christians faced death in Afghanistan for preaching their faith!

The cruel oppression and murder of Christians and other non-Muslims in many Muslim nations should make us grateful to God for the men and women who founded the United States and gave us a Constitution that protects the religious beliefs of all Americans.

As we spend time with our families on Thanksgiving Day, we should pause and remember the courage of those who crafted a Constitution designed to protect Americans from the kind of religious persecution our ancestors experienced in Britain under the Church of England.

In "The Theme Is Freedom: Religion, Politics, and the American Tradition," author M. Stanton Evans points out that the First Amendment to our Constitution - the amendment that assures religious freedom for all Americans was approved by the House of Representatives on September 24, 1789.

On the very next day, the House passed a resolution calling for a national day of prayer and thanksgiving. The House adopted the following language: "We acknowledge with grateful hearts the many signal favours of Almighty God, especially affording them an opportunity peacefully to establish a constitutional government for their safety and happiness."

Our Founding Fathers had obviously not been exposed to the ACLU's tortured misunderstanding of the idea of "separation of church and state." Our Founders understood the importance of religion as the basis of good government but feared a national church exercising tyrannical powers over the American people.

The House called upon President Washington to issue a proclamation designating a national day of prayer and thanksgiving. In his proclamation, Washington said, "It is the duty of all nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for His benefits and humbly to implore His protection and favor... that great and glorious Being who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that ever will be, that we may then unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people."

In keeping with this spirit of Thanksgiving, Congress (encouraged by House leader Tom DeLay [R-TX]) recently passed a resolution calling for a National Day of Reconciliation to be held in the Capitol Rotunda on December 4. The purpose of this gathering is to allow Members of Congress to meet to ask God for His forgiveness, for reconciliation, unity, and charity for all people of the United States - and to ask God to assist our nation in being "a champion of hope, a vindicator of the defenseless, and a guardian of freedom."

As our nation trucks in hundreds of thousands of humanitarian food packets to Afghanistan this month, and as our courageous military wages a relentless war against the Taliban, let us thank God for the gift of freedom - and especially the freedom to worship without fear of being killed under an oppressive "religious" government.

This Thanksgiving, let us remember the words of Thomas Jefferson on the importance of religious freedom: "Among the most inestimable of our blessings is that... of liberty to worship our Creator in the way we think most agreeable to His will; a liberty deemed in other countries incompatible with good government and yet proved by our experience to be its best support."

A Day on the Marsh

Bill Volkert bird banding a Gray-Slate Junco.

Six Kewaskum Middle School students participated in the first-ever Dodge County Gifted and Talented Consortium's "Day on the Marsh."

Students worked with DNR Scientist and Educator, Bill Volkert and wildlife artist Terrell Knaack from Beaver Dam. Bill Volkert shared his vast knowledge of the marsh and his research in Siberia and Mongolia. The students learned about the history of the marsh, sampled water to test the healthiness of the marsh, watched Bill do bird banding, and hiked through parts of the marsh. It was a "blustery" day on the Marsh and students were able to witness many migrating birds coming in and taking off for their winter destinations.

Those students participating in this activity were: Jacob Lawrence, Kyle Stoffel, Bekki Heberer, Ashley Turner, Jordan Geidel, Samantha Kuphal, and Gifted and Talented Liaison from KMS, Mrs. West.

Kiwanis Seeking Old Cell Phones

The Kewaskum Kiwanis Club is asking cell phone users to answer the call and turn in used cell phones they no longer need to help raise funds for the various community projects the club sponsors. Collection efforts will begin on November 12.

"The primary goal of our phone drive fundraiser is to collect wireless phones that consumers aren't using anymore," said the club's president Larry Ammel. "With more than 30 million used wireless phones lying idle in American homes and businesses, an individual can turn a used item into new funding that helps support our mission in a simple but effective way."

Any portable cellular or PCS phone is accepted, excluding bag phones of vehicle-installed models. The Kiwanis Club will also take the phone's battery or charger, if available. All donors should deactivate the wireless service of any donated phones before turning them in.

"We're very excited about this new fundraising opportunity," said Ammel. "Not only will it benefit our organization, but donated phones that can't be refurbished are properly recycled to benefit the environment as well."

The public may donate their used wireless phones by mailing them to

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor and Washington County Fair Friends,

During this past week we saw the passing of two fine gentlemen, John Kopp and Maurie Hovland.

Years ago as a 4-H member and later as a county board supervisor, I had the opportunity to observe John's dedication to the youth of the Kohlsville and Barton areas. He was the general leader of the Kohlsville Pioneers 4-H Club. Through his humble and caring way, he showed by example, the true love and art of country and rural living. For many years he was superintendent of crops at the county fair. He also assisted for several weeks a year in transforming the county highway shop area at Slinger into a county fair setting.

Maurie Hovland arrived in 1955 from Kewaunee County to become Washington County's Exterior Agriculture Agent. He brought many new and innovative ideas to the attention of county farmers and rural residents through meetings, news media and visits.

In addition to those duties, he managed the annual county fair at the Slinger site for over 20 years. He managed the fair well on an extremely limited budget and space.

Our Washington County community has been richly blessed by their examples of true community service and involvement.

God said it is time for you to go His way;
He took your hand and said "come with me,"

All you needed to do here is done, the time for your heavenly reward has begun.
Life will have to go on for those left behind,
it will be difficult because so many memories

The Lamplighter Society Comes to Heritage House

Heritage House, a restored turn-of-the century farmhouse located in West Bend, hosts the Lamplighter Society of Cedarburg during its December Open House on Sunday, December 9, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is free admission and hot apple cider and cookies will be served from the house's pantry. Family photographs taken in a horesdrawn sleigh will also be available that day.

The Lamplighter Society is the first strictly civilian Civil War living history organization in the Midwest. Members speak in the first person dialect of that era, wear the clothing, adopt the technology of those times and interact with visitors in order to bring history to life. They will allow visitors of Heritage House an opportunity to show what life was like in the mid 1800s. "The Society will present small vignettes in various rooms of Heritage House, some involving music," said Louise Linn, volunteer coordinator of Heritage House. "People will be greatly entertained by the Lamplighter Society and children, especially, will learn a great deal of history through their interaction."

Heritage House is located at 5595 County Road Z, West Bend, and is part of Cedar Campuses, the regional leader in rehabilitation, education, older adult living and health care.

Czoschke, David Reilly, Chris McEwen, David Sleger, David Schoofs, Nichole Stoffel, Victoria Key, Roseann Czaja, Linda Rauch, Carrie Swanson, Richard Rauch, Frank Lohr, Dan Schmidt and Larry Rasmussen.

Dana Acker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Acker of Kewaskum, will be one of three featured soloists with the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, October 24, at 3 p.m. in Michelsen Concert Hall on campus. He will perform the Concerto for Oboe and String Orchestra by Benedetto Marcello.

each. Normally a newborn calf weighs between 70 to 80 pounds. The chances of triplet calves being born is very rare. According to Mrs. Stoffel, this very unusual event also happened before on their farm 24 years ago.

EWSC Holds 2001 Awards Banquet

By Sheila Karstaedt
EWSC Correspondent

The Eastern Wisconsin Stock Cars held their 41st Annual Point Payoff and Awards Banquet on Saturday, November 3, 2001 at the Millhome Supper Club.

After the introduction of the drivers of all 4 divisions, the 2001 awards were given out. The Best Appearing Car for each division was Butch Hafemann of Campbellsport in the Winged Super Modifieds, Oostburg's JJ Walvoord in the Limited Late Models, Todd Jensema of Sheboygan Falls in the Super Stocks and Belgium's Rich Miske claimed the award for the Mighty 4's.

The Best Appearing Crew were the crews of Winged Super Modified driver Tim Melis, Plymouth, Richard Hed of Sheboygan Falls for the Limited Late Models, and Oostburg's Luke Scholten in the Super Stocks.

Three drivers took home the Hard Luck Award. In the Winged Super Modifieds, it was claimed by Whitelaw's Chuck Tuschl, Dave Schaezter, Sheboygan Falls, took it for the Limited Late Models, and Kewaskum's Dave Holm was awarded it for the Super Stocks.

The Meyer Motor's Most Feature Wins Award was given to the 2001 Winged Super Modified track champion Pete Ostrowski, Milwaukee, with 9 A-Main wins, the Limited Late Model pilot from Sheboygan Falls, Richard Hed with 4 feature wins, and in the Super Stock division, there was a tie between Brian Gilles of Plymouth and Brian Genske of Sheboygan Falls with 3 feature wins each.

The Most Improved Driver Award went to Oostburg's Brian Portschy in the Winged Super Modifieds, Tim Carmen of Sheboygan Falls for the Limited Late Models, and Elkhart Lake's Super Stock driver Jeff Muehlbauer.

The Tuschl Septic Systems Hard Charger Award for the Winged Super Modifieds was Pete Ostrowski, Milwaukee. Plymouth's Dan Dippel claimed the Bob Akright Memorial Hard Charger Award for the Limited Late Models. The WHBL Super Stock Hard Charger for 2001 was Brian Genske of Sheboygan Falls.

The Winged Super Modified Rookie of the Year was Malone's Tim Warner, Brian Kessler, Plymouth, for the Limited Late Models, and the Super Stock pilot from Sheboygan Falls, Brian Genske.

The Volunteer of the Year Award was claimed by Plymouth's Duane Dippel

(driver of Mighty 4 #5). Duane promoted the club this year by having his car at as many parades as possible and by bringing his car to the Hop for the car show every Thursday night.

The Dickie Berth Memorial Award was awarded to Chuck Tuschl, Whitelaw (pilot of Winged Super Modified #99).

The 2001 EWSC track champions were crowned at the end of the awards program. Pete Ostrowski, Milwaukee, claimed the track title for the Winged Super Modifieds, the Limited Late Model driver from Cedar Grove, Charlie Schmidt, was crowned his first track championship, Plymouth's Brian Gilles claimed the title for the Super Stocks, and Rich Miske was crowned the first Mighty 4 track champion.

As in years past, Eastern Wisconsin Stock Cars would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to all the drivers, pit crews, volunteers, employees, sponsors, families, board members, and FANS for all the support and hours of hard work that was required to make 2001 a successful season for us all.

Have a safe and happy off season and see you at the track in 2002.

Riveredge Offering Adult Ecology Course

NEWBURG - If you're already starting to hunker down for the winter but would rather not hibernate completely, the Riveredge Nature Center, Newburg, is offering a wonderful excuse to get out of the house while giving your mind and spirit a boost at the same times.

There's still time to sign up for the Adult Ecology course, a long-standing Riveredge favorite. The second session, beginning November 29, 2001, features a vegetation survey, mammal study, land use issues discussion, an art project, tracking skills demonstration and more. Adult Ecology meets on Thursday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon.

February 21, 2002 students move into session three focusing on animal behavior, the "whys" of endangered species, and evolution. Also featured is a visit to Riveredge's maple syrup operation where tasting is encouraged. After Easter, geology, soils, soil matters, the vernal pond, a nocturnal frog walk, and wildflowers bring students to the final field trip on June 6.

A background in science is not necessary, and session one is not a prerequisite for sessions two and three. Also, interested individuals may attend one or more classes focusing on a particular topic.

For course and registration details, call the Riveredge Nature Center 262-675-6888 or (metro) 262-375-2715.

Eighth Grade Girls Fall to Hartford

The Kewaskum Middle School's eighth grade girls basketball team brought a three game winning streak into Hartford on Monday, November 12, and came away on the losing end.

Hartford's quick guards and tenacious defense propelled them to a 12-2 lead after the first quarter. A lay-up by Jacque Kwaterski proved to be the only bright spot in the quarter for the Lady Indians.

Kewaskum's second quarter defense held the Wildcats scoreless, as Liz Harris and Liz Dahlen, a Hartford transfer, scored for Kewaskum in the second quarter.

The second half proved to be more of Hartford's relentless attack. Hartford's defense played Kewaskum tough throughout the half, cruising to a 27-13 victory.

Other scorers for Kewaskum included Robbi Bode, April Lettow, Kayla Pierce, and Danielle Yanke. The girls hosted Silverbrook on November 15 and travel to Badger Middle School on November 29.

Eighth Grade Girls Shut Out Silverbrook

The Kewaskum Middle School's eighth grade girls basketball team accomplished a feat not too many teams have ever accomplished; they held an opponent scoreless for an entire game as the defeated Silverbrook last Thursday by a score of 18-0.

Kewaskum's offense had a tough time getting going against Silverbrook's zone defense, but a steal and a long pass by Danielle Yanke to Jacque Kwaterski gave the Indians the only two points they would need all night.

The second quarter featured great team defense. Heather Welch and Robbi Bode provided pressure on the guards, and April Lettow turned her four steals into four points and the Indians headed to the locker room up 10-0.

The Indians continued to dominate in the third quarter, scoring eight more points. The fourth quarter defense held up, giving the Indians their most convincing win of the season and improving their record to four wins and three losses. On the game, the Indians had 23 steals as a team.

Leading all scorers in the game was April Lettow who had six points to go along with her seven steals. Jacque Kwaterski had four points, Sam Czerwinski, Krystal Reider, and Heather Welch each contributed two points in the effort.

Hunters Again Being Asked to Donate Extra Venison to Food Pantries

MADISON - In recent years, state wildlife managers have called on deer hunters to take on the role of deer managers by putting more effort into harvesting antlerless deer - an effort seen as the key to controlling Wisconsin's growing whitetail deer population. With this effort, a second new role is now emerging as hunters donate the extra venison to Wisconsin's food pantries.

"Many hunters are taking advantage of the food pantry program to extend the enjoyment of their sport and donate venison to families in need," said Tom Hauge, chief of the Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Management Bureau. "We realize we can't ask hunters to kill additional deer beyond what they can use in their homes -- ethical hunters wouldn't do that anyway. This program provides an outlet for extra venison, helps people who need assistance in feeding their families and costs the hunter nothing except time, time they enjoy spending anyway in a favorite pastime."

The idea of donating venison to a pantry program has been around for a number of years and was actually begun in Wisconsin hunting groups. Groups like Green Bay's Hunt for the Hungry and central Wisconsin's Hunter Against Hunger have already established local donation programs.

The department's contribution to the program was to develop a larger network of meat packers, making the program available over a wider area and providing more promotion of the program.

It couldn't be simpler.

After a deer is legally harvested, the hunter tags, field dresses and registers the kill, then simply drops it off at a participating meat processor. The processor's costs are paid mainly by the state's Wildlife Damage Abatement and Claims Program which is funded by hunter dollars through a one dollar hunting license surcharge and bonus antlerless tag sales.

Hunters are encouraged to call the processor before dropping off their deer to make sure the processor is able to accept it.

The program was extremely successful over the 2000 hunting season. Hunters donated 7,765 deer delivering over 350,000 pounds of venison to food pantry shelves.

Lee Dudek, of Green Bay's Hunt For The Hungry, reports that 130 deer have been donated through his program to date. "Last year at this time, we had 190 deer in the fold. Taking into account the fewer Zone-T hunting opportunities, the current economic times causing more hunters to keep the deer, and less than great weather conditions during the four day Zone-T hunt, we are grateful for the progress at this time."

Andy Birch, Marinette County Wildlife Damage Technician, reports that 38 deer have been donated as of November 6th in his county. "Comments from the processors are that the deer people are bringing in this year seem to be a bit larger than last year. The processors also said they were surprised at the number of donations this early on in the year. I think that at this time last year we only had about half as many deer despite hunters having two free tags instead of just one, as the case is this year. The food pantries are absolutely ecstatic about receiving the venison and are already asking about Wisconsin Deer Donation 2002!"

In 2001, hunters receive one free antlerless deer harvest tag with each archery and each gun license. Additional bonus antlerless permits are available for $12 each. Nonresident permits are $20 each. The permits can be purchased until the supply for a given deer management unit is exhausted.

Eighth Grade Girls Defeat Slinger, 29-25

Kewaskum's eighth grade girls basketball team posted their second straight win when they downed Slinger 29-25 last Tuesday.

Kewaskum's relentless full court pressure gave Slinger fits. Behind Sammie Czerwinski's four first quarter points, Kewaskum pushed the lead to 11-4 going into the second quarter.

Solid ball handling in the second quarter by Danielle Yanke increased the lead to 19-11 heading into half-time.

In the second half, Slinger began their full court press. Kewaskum struggled early, but after some adjustments during a time-out, they were able to regroup and hold on to their lead.

The fourth quarter was a free throw battle. Slinger made five of 14 free throws to close the gap. Liz Harris and Jacque Kwaterski made some key free throws in the final frame to hold off the Slinger attack.

Leading scorers were Czerwinski with a season high 10 points, Yanke with six points, Kwaterski with four points, Robbi Bode, Jamie Vogt, Heather Welch and April Lettow each scored two points.

Erica Mueller led the rebound department with seven and Kwaterski had six boards.

Vogt, Yanke and Czerwinski all had three steals apiece.

Summer-Like Weather Greets Hunters for Deer Season Opener

MADISON -- Hunters participating in the opening Wisconsin's nine-day regular gun deer season were treated to unseasonably warm temperatures that made for great conditions to enjoy the out-of-doors, but left many hunters scrambling to find ways of cooling down the deer they shot.

Early indications from registration stations across the state called Saturday afternoon indicated hunters were bringing deer in right away to be registered so the carcasses could be cooled down to preserve the venison.

Many stations reported hunters were having an excellent year shooting bucks, especially in the northern half of the state, where deer were still solidly in the midst of their mating season, call "the rut."

Despite large numbers of antlerless permits available -- each hunter received one free antlerless permit with their hunting license that could be used in specially designated Zone T hunting units, because of high deer populations -- many stations reported an apparent drop in antlerless deer registration compared to last year.

Wildlife managers said that was likely a combination of warm weather and the fact that bucks were still in rut.

Chuck McCullough, a Department of Natural Resources wildlife manager in Ladysmith, said he had registered a larger percentage of three-to-five-year old deer instead of the usual one-to-two-year olds. "We've had quite a few in with very nice racks. There are a lot of deer, so hunters are able to be a bit more choosy."

During the rut, which is often over before the gun deer season begins, bucks actively pursue does, so a hunter who sees a doe will often let it go in hopes that a buck is following close behind.

McCullough said things were very busy right from the early part of the day because of the warm weather and that as in many other areas, the store where he was working had been selling a lot of ice. "The big message is that folks who shot deer are not waiting to get them to the processor. Folks are pretty business-like, because they are hot and tired and anxious to get the meat preserved."

All registration stations reported runs on ice, hunters joking about taking their deer to the processor and then going golfing, or hunters looking to buy blaze-orange T-shirts. One station reported a local mink farmer was renting space to hunters in his cooler.

Bruce Bacon, a DNR wildlife manager working a registration station in Clam Lake, said that by mid-afternoon, he was working in shirt sleeves and that standing in a sheltered place in the sun felt like it was "80-some degrees," even though actual temperatures were in the mid 60s to low 70s.

"The weather is unbelievable, and no one is in a hurry to fill their antlerless permits because they don't want to take care of the meat in this heat. Hunters seem happy but they are concerned about meat spoilage. The number one question is 'what should we do with our deer?'" Bacon said. A number of deer processors in the area had begun skinning and quartering deer right away so they could get them into refrigerated storage, he said.

DNR deer ecologist Bill Mytton said the opening day reports are what was expected considering the unusual weather.

"Most of the hunter groups I talked with today were bringing fewer deer than they usually do. I expect our opening weekend total will be down from last year's pace but it is really too early to estimate what the harvest will be. What is important is that folks were out there having fun," Mytton said. "We hope folks will continue to hunt through the nine-day season and after temperatures drop that they will fill their antlerless tags."

DNR Wildlife Health Veterinarian Julia Langenberg, collecting blood and tissue samples from deer registered in Crivitz, reported the deer she were seeing "were big and healthy." Other DNR wildlife biologists and technicians around the state also reported larger, healthier deer.

State Conservation Warden Barb Wolf reported that some hunters thought they shot the biggest doe they'd ever seen near the state line in Rock County early this morning. It turned out to be a calf elk, a cow calf weighing about 225 pounds. The elk is an apparent escapee from a game farm and may relate to some reports of elk in the Beloit area in the last couple weeks. "Even in the south, where they're not likely to encounter an elk, hunters should still be careful about what they shoot. The way the animal was turned to him, the hunter didn't see the yellow tag on the ear. Hunter safety advocates remind hunters to always be sure of their target BEFORE shooting," Wolf said.

State Conservation Wardens say there were two reported fatal incidents that were being investigated: one in Vernon and one in Adams county. Details were not available for either incident Saturday. Sheriff's departments are the primary investigating authority in all firearms deaths and will conduct the preliminary investigation of these incidents with the cooperation of conservation wardens.

Gun deer season remains an extremely important tradition and activity in Wisconsin. In 2001, 688,412 people bought Gun Deer, Sports or Conservation Patron licenses in order to participate in the hunt. That figure is only slightly down from last year's total of 694,712 and only about 11,000 fewer than the 1990 record sales of 699,275. Bow deer licenses are not included in the total.

Thirty-one percent of this year's gun deer licenses were sold in the week before the season, with 60,366 licenses sold the Friday before the season started. In Wisconsin, thousands of licenses are sold in every county of the state, but heaviest sales are in Brown, Dane, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, La Crosse, Marathon, Milwaukee, Outagamie, Rock, Washington, Waukesha, Winnebago and Wood counties. Deer gun hunters in Wisconsin represent all 50 U.S. states and 52 hunters hail from foreign countries.

Hunters were being urged to cool down their deer as soon as possible, especially as warmer temperatures were forecast to continue through Sunday. Hunters could pack the deer's chest cavity with ice to help preserve the meat, or take the carcass to a processor or other facility that has refrigerated storage. The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection has a publication on preserving deer during warm weather on their web site at <http://datep.state.wi.us/fs/consumerinfo/food/publications/>.

In Washington County, Kathy Broecker of Kewaskum was helping her husband, Al, register deer at Al's Taxidermy Studio and said the weather was the story. "Everybody wants to get the deer in as soon as they can to take them to the butcher -- that's all they've been talking about number-wise, they're coming in faster now with the warm weather. We do have a few more than what we had last year at this time. Usually they wait till the end of the day. They've been talking about just how hot it is dragging them out. They can't believe the weather. As soon as the sun came out, you could tell the deer stopped running. It was nice and frosty this morning. As soon as the sun came out you had to drive them out."

Broecker's seen more does than bucks, but a noticeable trend among the bucks. "A lot of the bucks are coming in with broken racks. You can tell they've been broken a while."

GOLDENSELECT LIVING BENEFITS are not available in all states. They are subject to certain restrictions and limitations. GOLDENSELECT products are sold by prospectus only, which includes complete information about charges, expenses and risk factors. Variable annuities are long-term investment vehicles designed for retirement purposes. Variable annuity contracts and policies, and underlying portfolio shares or securities which fund contracts, are not insured by the FDIC. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Early withdrawals may be subject to surrender charges. Withdrawals of taxable amounts are subject to ordinary income tax, and if taken prior to age 59 ½, a 10% IRS penalty may apply. Withdrawals have the effect of reducing the death benefit. Withdrawals from a fixed account may be subject to a Market Value Adjustment (MVA). The variable annuity is only liquid to the extent that the contract provides for limited withdrawals without surrender charges. A prospectus can be obtained from Golden American Life Insurance Company by calling (800) 243-3706. Please read the prospectus carefully before investing. GOLDENSELECT products are issued by Golden American Life Insurance Company and distributed by Directed Services, Inc., member NASD.
