State Budget Deficit Has Strong Local Effects

By Judy Steffes

If neighbors in the Village of Kewaskum are wondering how the latest plan to reduce the $1.1 billion state deficit will affect the community, they only have to look as far as their leader. "This has me the most alarmed and concerned of any of the budget type things I've ever seen," said Village Administrator Dan Schmidt.

A plan by Governor Scott McCallum includes cutting $350 million in aid to cities, towns, villages and counties in each of the first two years of the proposal. McCallum's idea is intended to balance Wisconsin's budget and at the same time end the $1.1 billion deficit. The proposal by the Republican governor also includes cuts in funding for the University of Wisconsin System and borrowing $794 million from the state's tobacco settlement payments.

Although the other proposals would have statewide ramifications, Schmidt said it is the elimination of state shared revenue that scares him. "If the total shared revenue is removed it's a loss of $354,000 to the Village. That kind of hit would be devastating for Kewaskum, even if they took it over two years it would equal about an 18% decrease," he said.

Figures show the 2002 village budget is $21.8 million and if McCallum's plan comes to fruition, Schmidt said that would put a lot of programs in jeopardy. "The first programs to go would be the quality of life type programs, the ones related to the parks. The necessary service programs, like garbage and recycling, would be the secondary ones affected," he said.

Village President, John Kenworthy shares Schmidt's concerns. "Obviously cuts can't be made with the police or fire departments or some of the essential services with water and sewage." Kenworthy said, it will be the quality of life issues that fall victim to spending cuts. However, for the village, that is a double edge sword because it is those things that make people want to move to the community of Kewaskum. "Neighbors love our parks and to possibly not mow the grass as often or close the municipal pool for the summer. That would be a tragedy, because where are our kids going to go," he said.

Kenworthy said, the bottom line is "there are things we are going to have to look at that we don't want to look at," such as fireworks. "Every year we have a big fireworks display in Kewaskum on the third of July, it's one of the best displays in this area and basically the money that funds the show right now, is money we're not going to have." Kenworthy said, although the village administration is not a Scrooge they are far from having the bankroll of a Daddy Warbucks. "I'm sorry to say, but the village may soon not have the kind of money that they can just burn up."

If state shared revenue were removed, other communities around Washington County would also be hit hard. Figures from the Wisconsin Department of Revenue show Hartford would take a $1.2 million hit. The City of West Bend would lose $2.5 million in funding and officials in Washington County say they would lose about $1.24 million.

Schmidt said, when it comes right down to it, the ones to blame for the billion dollar shortfall are not the smaller communities but the big wigs in Madison. "The billions of dollars that the state is short, they (the state Legislature) spent the money, local municipalities did not spend the money," said Schmidt realizing no matter who is to blame the effects will still be the same. "We're going to feel the pain no matter what. They're taking away our shared revenue and with the freeze on the levy, that won't even allow us to maintain status quo," said Schmidt who felt punished, even though he worked hard to keep the fluff out of Kewaskum's final figures.

Kenworthy said, whether McCallum knows it or not, his proposal is doing more than just tightening the budget belt of small towns and villages. "This proposal is actually taking away any incentive for future growth," said Kenworthy who also felt the plan would do every-

Eden Calf Barn Destroyed

The above photo depicts a calf barn in flames at the Daniel and Shirley Rose Farm on Highway 45 just south of the village of Eden. The barn was a complete loss. Fifteen calves were able to be rescued from the blaze. Eden Fire Department responded to the fire and received mutual aid from Campbellsport, Mount Calvary and Kewaskum. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Town of Kewaskum Rezones for New Premier Auto Center

By Andrew R. Kuehl
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Town of Kewaskum opened their January plan commission and town board meetings with five town residents before them who heard of the plans for a new used car dealership locating at the town's boundary line.

Bob Hackbarth Jr. of Premier Auto Center which is currently located in the Village of Kewaskum on Prospect Street addressed the board and showed detailed plans for his new larger showroom that will include storage for automobiles as well as a full service used car dealership. The site Hackbarth plans to build on was formerly used by Henry Timblin Trucking as a parking facility for their semi trucks.

The land was formerly zoned A-1 (agricultural open space). In order for the construction Hackbarth needed to have the property rezoned to B-1 (business district).

One member asked about the issue of a driveway. Hackbarth and Chairman Scott Sager said he would be using the same driveway the Timblin's did that also leads to the Amoco station.

thing to stifle the economy from within. "It's going to be counterproductive because people are going to shut-down their buying and it will be an awful time for the state."

Schmidt said, if the plan comes to pass then he predicts a "dim future." "In the end the Village, as well as all the other communities, are going to have to look at other ways to try and reduce their total budget. How we do that, to make up for the extent of loss of revenue, is mind boggling." Kenworthy, on the other hand, sees a revolt. "The public taxpayers are not going to stand for this. We have a lot of smart people in Wisconsin and they can see the guise of what's happening here and they won't let Governor McCallum get away with this."

McCallum's proposal is currently being reviewed by the Legislature.

Judy Steffes is a freelance writer and News Director at WBKV/WBWI Radio in West Bend.

The plan commission gave a favorable recommendation in spite of the fact the Village of Kewaskum did not like the idea of the storage garages. The village threatened that if Hackbarth ever wanted to annex into the village he may have to raze the garages.

Hackbarth will come to the town board with a site plan at their February 18 meeting.

Two Vacancies on Town of Kewaskum Board of Appeals

The Town of Kewaskum is looking for two town residents who can fill vacancies left on the board of appeals. The vacancies arose after the deaths of Jacob Schmidt and Harry Johannsen.

The terms are set to expire in 2003 and 2004. The board meets as needed and members are paid on a per diem of $40. The position is a three year term.

Any interested town of Kewaskum residents can contact the town hall at 626-2566 or contact town chairperson Scott Sager at 334-3729.

Open Enrollment Application Period is February 4 to 22

Parents who wish to choose the public school district their children will attend next year face an important application window of February 4 to February 22, 2002.

Under the full-time public school open enrollment program, parents must apply to the school district they wish their children to attend during the application period. Early and late applications are not accepted. Parents will be informed no later than April 5, 2002 whether their open enrollment applications have been approved or denied.

There is a limitation of applying to no more than three nonresident school districts for each child during the application period. Parents may apply for their children to attend 4-year-old kindergarten under open enrollment only if the resident school district also offers a 4-year-old kindergarten for which the child is eligible.

Transportation is the responsibility of the parent; however, some school districts may elect to provide some transportation.

KHS Basketball Teams to Host 70's and Hawaiian Nights

Show your support for the Kewaskum High School girls and boys basketball teams on February 5th and 8th.

On Tuesday, February 5, pull out the bellbottoms, wide collars and that lovely polyester. The lady Indians will be hosting Random Lake in the Fieldhouse. JV starts at 6 p.m. and varsity follows at 7:30.

On Friday, February 8, pull out those bright colored Hawaiian shirts and shorts

Parents with questions about transportation should call both the resident and nonresident school district offices to find out if any transportation will be provided. Reimbursement of transportation costs is available for low-income parents whose children are eligible for free or reduced-priced lunches under the federal school lunch program.

Parents are reminded that a postmark will not meet the requirement to submit applications before the 4 p.m. February 22 deadline. Inaccurate or incomplete application forms may result in denial of the application. While parents may request enrollment in a specific school or program in the nonresident school district, enrollment is subject to space and other limitations and is not guaranteed.

Most students who attended a nonresident school district under open enrollment last year are not required to reapply for the 2002-03 school year. However, if the student will be entering middle school, junior high school, or high school in the 2002-03 school year, parents should call the nonresident school district to find out if reapplication will be required.

Application forms may be obtained from any public school district, from the Department of Public Instruction, or from the DPI's open enrollment web site at <http://www.dpi.state.wi.us/dpi/dfm/sms/psctoc.html>.

Kewaskum Kiwanis Club Presents 2002 Conservation Awards

The Kewaskum Kiwanis Club honored Melzer Farms and Dobberphul Farm at the Kewaskum Legion Hall Monday night, January 14, 2002 with a banquet held on their behalf. These awards have been presented since 1958 to farm families in the Kewaskum area who have demonstrated a commitment to soil and water conservation. Program chairman, Roy Esser, presented Melzers and Dobberphuls with an award from the Kiwanis Club for their conservation actions. Mary Jo Crass, with the Natural Resources Conservation Service gave a slide presentation highlighting their practices.

Robert and his two sons, John and Mike operate Melzer Farms off Rolling Drive in sections three and four in the town of Wayne. The west farm in section four was purchased in 1870 by Bob's great-great grandfather where John and Lori Melzer now reside. Mike and Shelley Melzer live on the east farm directly across the road.

The Melzers are second time winners of the Kiwanis award. Bob received the award in 1973 shortly after buying the farm from his father and installing good conservation practices. Melzers have implemented and maintained close to 200 acres of contour strips on land they own and operate. The Melzers also use conservation tillage and hay in rotation to help keep their soil losses down. In addition, Melzers maintain grassed waterways for concentrated flows. Bob commented he has seen the benefits of these conservation practices in an increase in topsoil and good soil structure.

In addition to protecting their soil, Melzers have teamed up with the Washington County Land Conservation Department to put together a nutrient management plan on their acreage to utilize the manure produced from their 85 cow dairy operation. A nutrient management plan entails looking at crop nutrient needs, taking credit for plow down hay and taking credit for nutrients already present in the soil and in manure application. With this data, landowners can adjust their commercial fertilizer application rates and thus, protect our resources and their pocket books from over application of nutri-

The second farm honored by the Kewaskum Kiwanis Club was the Dobberphul Farm located off of Boltonville Road in section 21 of the town of Farmington. Ray and Deanna purchased the farm in the fall of 1952 and have since been joined by their son Tim and his wife Missy.

Presently the Dobberphuls milk 50 cows in their double six universal milking parlor. Tim plans on increasing the number of milk cows up to 75 and with Missy's good calf care they should be able to do just that.

The Dobberphuls have also teamed up with the Washington County Land Conservation Department to implement a nutrient management plan on the 200 plus acres they operate. This plan enables them to take credit for on farm nutrient inputs, adjust their fertilizer rates accordingly and protect our natural resources.

The Dobberphuls have made the biggest change to their operation over the last couple of years. They have converted the home farm over to a rotational grazing system which protects the soil and the Wallace Creek that runs through their property. The Pasture is divided into sections (paddocks) and cows are rotated to a different paddock when the grass is grazed down. Each paddock receives a rest period and has plenty of regrowth when the cows are moved back in. Water is piped into each paddock so the animals do not need to have access to Wallace Creek.

Dobberphuls did a lot of the work themselves along with help from family and friends. They have cleared brush for the over 19,000 ft. of perimeter fencing and worked on the cattle lanes and two stream crossing which are part of the rotational grazing system. The crossings protect the banks of the Wallace Creek from erosion.

In addition to the rotational grazing system, the Dobberphuls have overhauled their free stall building by creating bigger stalls and a drive through feeding area.

With the changes the Dobberphuls have implemented over the last few years, their somatic cell count has greatly reduced. In addition to this benefit, Tim mentioned how pleased he is with another perk from the grazing system.

Congratulations to the Melzers and the Dobberphuls for their commitment to farming while protecting our natural resources.

Sweetheart Candlelight Stroll Feb. 14

Are you looking for something unique and special to do with your sweetheart or family this Valentine's Day? How about a lovely stroll through the dark winter woods by candlelight?

If you answered yes to either of these questions, journey to the Greenbush Recreation Area of the Northern Kettle Moraine State Forest on Thursday, February 14, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The Greenbush Recreation Area is located near Greenbush off of Kettle Moraine Drive between Hwy. T and Hwy. 67.

A short trail will be packed and illuminated by candlelight and hopefully, also by the moon and stars. It will be a splendid path for all ages to take a hand-holding leisurely walk. To chase away the chills after your stroll, cuddle up by the warmth of a blazing campfire or wander into the heated Greenbush Shelter. Inside the shelter, you may purchase a steaming cup of coffee, tea or hot chocolate, and a luscious home-made dessert. The perfect way to cap off the evening.

This stroll is best for adults and families with children over the age of six years. If you would like more information about this event, please contact Jackie Scharfenberg, Forest Naturalist. She may be reached at the Ice Age Visitor Center from 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. The center's phone number is (920) 533-8322.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

The Bishop Salvator Schlaefter Council #11301, Knights of Columbus, wishes to thank the entire community for the excellent response to the request for blood donations.

Unfortunately, some delay/waiting was experienced near the end of the drive. We are busy people, with things that must be done in a limited time frame, or appointments that must be kept. We observed several individuals who were unable to wait or chose not to register. Be assured that we truly understand and trust that you can find another area drive, or will return to a future drive. Your interest and intent is truly appreciated.

As to the cause(s) of the wait, several things contributed. First of all, there were changes to filling out the initial form, to comply with the new privacy laws. Next, there was a new, more extensive historic screening and testing procedure initiated, which took some time. These changes are made to help insure a safe blood supply. And as always, individuals vary in the time it takes to fill their donation. This cannot be compromised or speeded up.

There also was a concern about adequate staffing of the Red Cross nurses and technicians. I have learned that staff are assigned by the "goal" of the drive. It is assumed that they can handle 17 individuals per hour.

Occasionally this formula works, but reality has a way of confounding the best "laid plans," which it did on Thursday, January 17, 2002.

Our low hour was 12 persons and the high was 29 individuals, thereby causing some backup.

On several occasions, I have seen that a change in procedure does go slower the first time, and by the second time, adjustments and streamlining have taken place. I will be requesting additional staff for the next drive.

We sincerely "Thank" all who responded --- those who were unable to wait and those who had the time and were patient.

108 persons were registered. Of that, 87 were successful (our goal was 85), 16 deferrals, and five unsuccessful. Sincere thanks to these first time donors:

Jim Mielke, Jenny Kranig, Josh Brandl, Tiffany DelPonte, Norbert Weis, Ashley Weeks, Kimberly King, Justin Preisler.

It has been our practice to list all first time donors on a separate form. This form was accidentally picked up by Red Cross Staff, so I do not have all of the names of the "First Time" donors. We are aware of several individuals who registered and were deferred. This certainly is no reflection on the individual, the important thing is the "intent to give." These persons deserve unre-served thanks and we urge you to try again at a future

LIBRARY LEDGER

By Steev Baker
Kewaskum Library Director
www.kewaskum.lib.wi.us

A few years ago, when then-governor Tommy Thompson gave a generous state tax refund, what did you do with your check? Did it go for something you needed—a car payment, groceries, rent; did you use it for one of those modern-day necessities that monthly drain our wallets—the cable bill, internet access, a magazine subscription? More than likely, you did what many people did in those days—you spent the money on something non-essential. Beer. Video games. A new pair of shoes to stack beside the six other pairs you own. But, then, that was the people's money, right? And it went back where it belongs—out of the hands of the government and into the pocket-books of the people. Of course, in a country where the government is "of the people, for the people, and by the people" all this talk of the people's money and the government's money should be moot—but I digress.

The point is this: now the state is millions of dollars over budget and all of that extra money that we saw in the form of a tax rebate could come in real handy to get us out of this mess. Unfortunately, we don't have that money anymore and now budget cuts need to be made in order to make up the difference. So what does this have to do with you? And what does this have to do with the library?

Well, Governor McCallum's plan to tidy-up our budget is to rescind certain agreements made with municipalities and withhold valuable funding that small towns like Kewaskum need in order to make their budget. To further complicate matters, the plan as drafted says that municipalities are not allowed to raise taxes in order to make up for that lost state income. So if the state takes away a few hundred thousand dollars from a village, that village has no way of getting that money back, and non-essentials must be cut from the local budget.

Remember all that great stuff we got with that refund—a new CD, fast food for a month, a collectible action-figure? Those things were part of a trade, a secret deal made with our future selves: instant gratification then for non-essentials now. If this new budget plan passes, then we have forced the municipalities in which we live to cut back or eliminate funding for non-essential services such as community swimming pools, clean and well-managed parks, libraries, senior centers, and a whole host of other activities that make our quality of life better.

While it's certainly too late to give back our state-refunded money, it's not too late to contact your local representatives and voice your support for community programs and libraries. Let them know that you oppose the current proposal and that, with elections coming up, it's in the best interest of the government to act in favor of the people they represent instead of for their own political gain.

Changes in State Law Dominate 2001 Income Tax Revisions

MADISON -- The most significant change affecting both federal and Wisconsin 2001 income taxes was the lowering of tax rates. At the federal level, a new 10% tax bracket was established for the entire year, while other individual income tax rates were reduced beginning July 1. State tax rates were reduced for the second consecutive year.

Explanations of the changes, along with "plain-English" instructions for filing federal and state individual income tax returns for 2001, are included in Taxes 2002, the recently released 94-page tax guide published by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance (WIS-TAX).

Taxes 2002 contains detailed instructions for Wisconsin's homestead credit program, which can benefit low-income homeowners and renters even if they pay little or no income tax, and the farmland preservation program. The book also explains taxes such as estate and gift taxes, excise taxes, property taxes and the state sales tax. Motor vehicle and recreational licenses and fees are also listed.

Taxes 2002 can be purchased directly from the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, 335 W. Wilson St., Madison, WI 53703-3694. The single-copy price is $3.25 (including sales tax and shipping). Quantity discounts are available; contact WISTAX at 608-255-4581 or wistax@wistax.org for prices. Taxes 2002 is also available at selected bookstores.

Federal Income Tax Changes

Among the changes affecting federal taxes on 2001 income are:

- A new 10% income tax bracket is created.
- The income tax rates of 28%, 31%, 36% and 39.6% are reduced to 27.5%, 30.5%, 35.5% and 39.1%.
- The child tax credit is increased to $600 per child (up from $500).
- The alternative minimum tax exemption amount is increased by $2,000 for single taxpayers and $4,000 for joint filers.
- Tax-rate brackets are shifted upwards to adjust for inflation.
- Up to $2,500 of interest on qualified student loans may be deducted in 2001 (up from $2,000).
- The maximum income limit for making deductible contributions to an IRA for taxpayers covered by an employer retirement plan are increased.

The biggest changes in Wisconsin's state income tax are the lowering of all income tax rates and the increase in deductions and credits.

• For the 2001 tax year, the tax rates are 4.60%, 6.15%, 6.50% and 6.75% (changed from 4.73%, 6.33%, 6.55% and 6.75%). In addition, the brackets are adjusted for inflation. As a result, incomes up to $8,060 (formerly $7,790) for single taxpayers are taxed at the lowest rate. For married taxpayers, incomes up to $10,750 (formerly $10,390) are taxed at the lowest rate.

• The personal exemption is increased to $700 (up from $600).

• The standard deduction and income phase-out ranges are increased.

• The married couple credit is raised to a maximum of $480 (up from $440).

• For Wisconsin tax purposes, the references to the Internal Revenue Code are not updated.

News From The Capitol

By Rep. Glenn Grothman

A Scary Story From Washington

With all the news about the war on terrorism, the most important and horrible piece of legislation to come out of Washington in at least twenty-five years has not received nearly enough publicity.

The education of our children is arguably the most important function of government. For valid reasons our forefathers in the Tenth Amendment forbade the federal government from dealing with education. The No Child Left Behind Act, signed by President Bush the first week in January, increased spending in elementary and secondary education by 27 percent in one year. This is at a time when federal income tax revenues are down and we must spend large amounts of taxpayer money on our military and rebuilding New York City. Such a massive increase in spending with its attendant increase in the federal bureaucracy (Representative Ron Paul (R-Texas) refers to it as the No Bureaucrat Left Behind Act.) makes it almost impossible to realize Ronald Reagan's dream of getting rid of the Department of Education.

Even scarier is the beginning of mandatory federal testing every year from third through twelfth grade. Of course children should be tested, but those who write the tests largely determine the curriculum. In the early 1990s the first President Bush appointed members of the education establishment to promulgate national standards. The historical standards came back with a far leftward, anti-American tilt depicting America as a racist, evil country. The standards were ordered changed, but one knows that the left-leaning education professors will use every attempt to bring this back. Anticipating the problem, some conservatives had history removed from the test but science has been included. Topics such as global warming, oil drilling, recycling and the effect of American economic development on the environment, all have strong political undertones. It is dangerous that we may have federal bureaucrats requiring our children to answer politicized questions the way they want on a test each year. One benefit our forefathers saw in having a decentralized system was to prevent one group of people from having too much control on the political thought in our country. I can think of no easier way to control what our children think than mandatory federal testing. These requirements apply to even private schools if they receive any federal funds!

The next concern is that this act requires more touchy-feely nonsense in our schools. Schools will get more money for elementary school guidance counselors to second-guess parents. There will be more discussion discouraging "hate" in the public schools. This may sound good, but as a practical matter, it encourages children to think of America inaccurately as a racist, sexist country. We will also encourage children to volunteer during school hours. First of all, this is not true volunteering and secondly, do we want the education establishment determining what groups our children should be volunteering for?

How did this happen? A motion to hold the increase in spending to 11.5 percent failed 326 to 101 with big government Republicans like Tom Petri voting with Democrats for still more. Make sure you thank Congressman Sensenbrenner for voting against the bill as a whole. Federalizing education will result in more bureaucrats and make it much more difficult to do anything innovative in the future. It is a sad under-reported story.

Kewaskum FFA Attends State Leadership Conference

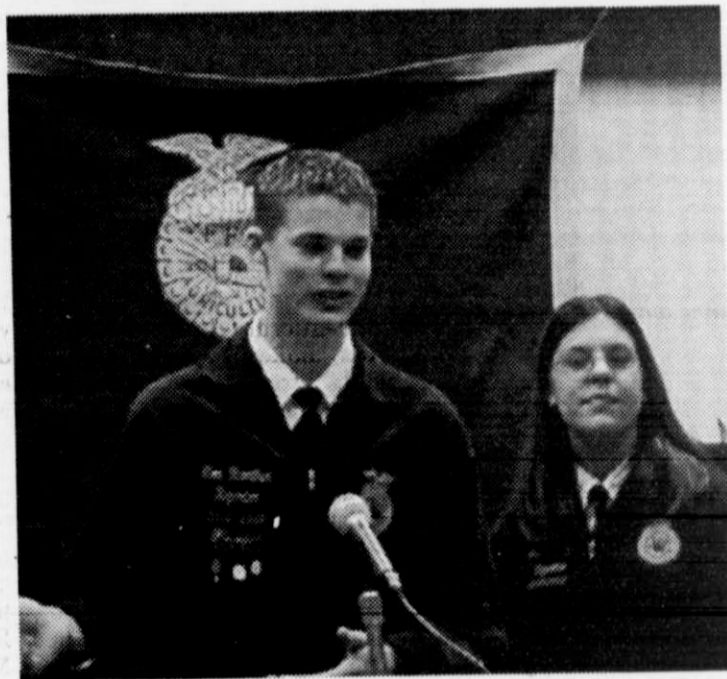

Tom Ramthun, center, and Peter Marx, right, of the Kewaskum FFA Chapter are welcomed to the 2002 FFA Half-Time Conference in Stevens Point by Cortney Peissig, left, from the Colby FFA.

Tom Ramthun and Peter Marx of the Kewaskum FFA Chapter attended the Wisconsin FFA's Half-Time Leadership Conference held at the Holiday Inn in Stevens Point, January 4-5, 2002. More than 390 FFA members, advisors and state FFA officers participated. This year's theme was "FFA - Out of this World." FFA is an organization that helps students realize their full potential and provides valuable experiences that help prepare young people for real-life leadership.

The Half-Time Conference provides FFA chapters leaders from around the state the opportunity to set goals and prepare for the second half of their year of service in their local chapters. FFA members attended workshops focusing on leadership, team building, scholarships, careers and personal development. They also worked in areas such as applying for awards and recruiting new members.

This leadership conference was conducted by the 2001-2002 State FFA Officers. "Half-Time is one of the premier leadership conferences in our state. It allows FFA chapter leaders to develop their leadership skills, learn more about FFA activities and meet people while having fun," said

Six members at the Halftime Conference were chosen to speak at the closing ceremonies. Pictured here is Tom Ramthun, Kewaskum FFA President, giving his speech to try and motivate other officers that attended.

Cheryl Zimmerman, State FFA Executive Director. "We are able to provide young people with an excellent experience to develop their leadership skills and get them excited about Agriculture, Agricultural Education and the FFA."

The Wisconsin FFA Association is comprised of over 250 local chapters in high schools across the state preparing over 16,000 students for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. FFA activities and award programs complement instruction in agriculture education by giving students practical experience in the application of agricultural skills and knowledge gained in classes. The FFA's major objectives are to develop premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.

As I See It

In Sun or Storm, Evergreens Endure

Twenty-one degrees. Not a particularly bad temperature forecast for wintertime in Wisconsin - until the radio weatherman adds those extra little words: "below zero." Brrrrrrrrrrrr.

I watch out my kitchen window as the frigid cold moves across the countryside, challenging all in its path with numbing severity. Submission is evident. Evident, but not everywhere.

Amid this surrounding harshness stand the evergreens, firm and steadfast, with a constancy strengthened from within.

Evergreens. They're everywhere. Some of them have roots and trunks and branches; others have bodies and arms and legs.

Some men have thousands of reasons why they cannot do what they want to do, when all they need is one reason why they can.

-Dr. Willie R. Whitney

Like Wilma Rudolph. Born prematurely in 1940, the 20th of 22 children, she was not expected to survive. She did survive, only to contract both scarlet fever and double pneumonia at age four. Now most children would have died, but not Wilma. She lived through it, but was left paralyzed. Those are the facts.

Despite them, nine-year-old Wilma, determined not only to walk but to run, took her leg braces off and eventually was doing both - and very well at that. By 1956, she had an Olympic bronze medal hanging around her neck, and by 1960 had three Olympic gold. Wilma is an evergreen among us.

Like Todd Hutson. Things weren't going so well for this young man either. First, Todd was involved in a boating accident and had his legs sucked into a propeller, leaving them severely mangled. Then, infection set in. Finally, his right leg had to be amputated - not good news for someone who loved sports and the physical challenge they presented.

Jesus said, "I tell you the truth, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed...nothing will be impossible for you."

-Matthew 17:20-21

Well, Todd Hutson refused to surrender to his injury and, instead, rose above it. Literally. This one-legged fellow started climbing mountains, accomplishing feats greater than any other he had experienced in his life before the accident. And on August 7, 1994 he accomplished his greatest of all. On this day, on the top of Mt. Mauna Kea in Hawaii, Todd Hutson stood triumphantly, having just climbed 50 mountains in 66 days (including Mt. McKinley in Alaska and Mt. Hood in Oregon), beating the previous record by 35 days, set by a climber in perfect health. Todd is an evergreen among us.

Like Glenn Cunningham. Now, Glenn had a bit of Life's severity thrown at him, too. While a child, he was trapped inside a burning schoolhouse. When pulled to safety, he was a breath away from death. He survived, but was told he was paralyzed from the waist down and would never walk again. Those are the facts.

Despite them, Glenn Cunningham dragged his lifeless legs around his yard for years by pulling himself along the fence posts with his upper body until he could stand. And then he could walk, and then he could run...and run he did, breaking the record for the world's fastest mile.

Evergreens. They're everywhere. Some of them have roots and trunks and branches; others have bodies and arms and legs.

Candlelight Ski/Hike

Break your winter cabin fever by traveling to the Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit for the annual Candlelight Ski/Hike on the Zillmer Trails.

The Zillmer Trails are located off of Highway SS between Highway 67 and Highway G near New Prospect. The ski/hike will be held snow or no snow on Saturday, February 2, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The brown loop at Zillmer will be lighted by the soft glow of candle luminaries. If there is snow, the trail will be packed and groomed for cross-country skiing. There will also be plenty of room for those who want to hike by candlelight through the beautiful dark winter woods.

Join fellow skiers and hikers at a roaring campfire to share its warmth. To further chase away the chills, enjoy a cup of hot cider and some cookies provided by the Friends of the Kettle Moraine.

A State Park Vehicle Admission Sticker is required for this event. If you do not already have your 2002 State Park Vehicle Admission Sticker, you may purchase one that night. Annual stickers are $20 and a daily pass is $5 for state residents.

Help Bring Cultures Together

At this time, when racial tolerance could be at its lowest, a cultural exchange program needs your support. Since 1968, Project Self-Help and Awareness has been bringing black children from small, rural and often time poverty-ridden areas in Mississippi to Wisconsin.

Prejudice against blacks and many other minorities is all around us. Even as parents, we try to teach understanding and tolerance, but our children are exposed to other prejudices daily. Through this program, our children can see that black children laugh, cry and play just like they do.

Families who qualify, need only to have love and understanding to participate. The children from Mississippi range from age 6-16, and as stated above, often times come from economically disadvantaged homes. A Wisconsin family is able to choose the age and sex of a child. There is a $40 fee for transportation from Mississippi to Fond du Lac. This also covers insurance during their stay. Dates to choose from this summer are June 9-20, June 27-29, June 16-July 1, July 4-18, and July 11-28.

In a matter of weeks, these children are able to experience and truly enjoy life in Wisconsin. They need not be entertained or taken on trips. Just by taking them into your home and including them in your activities and daily life could mean more to them than any material items they may receive.

Each year, over 100 children return to Northeastern Wisconsin and stay with their previous or new "family." Being free of the poverty and prejudice of Mississippi enables them to forget, for a short time, the stress and disadvantages they face daily in the south.

Please consider hosting a child this summer. There are many children waiting to hear "we have a family for you." Let us all be an example to our friends, family and especially our children. Make them aware that the events of September 11th should help us break down the intolerances our nation faces, rather than increase it. Show your children that the color of ones skin has nothing to do with whom we are inside.

Project Self-Help and Awareness (PSA) is a non-profit, non-denomination organization. For more background information and personal experiences, visit our web site at www.psaprogram.org. If you do not have access to the Internet and would like an informational packet mailed to you, or have other questions, please call Ann Neumann at 262-626-2936.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of SYL-VESTER FELLEZ, who passed away 22 years, Feb. 6, 1974:

His life is a beautiful memory
His absence a silent grief
He sleeps in Gods beautiful garden
In the sunshine of perfect peace

*Deeply missed by wife,
Gertrude Fellenz*

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of KARL KREIF, who passed away five years ago, Jan. 24, 1997:

Do no ask if we miss him
There is such a vacant place often we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face
Days of sadness still come over us
Tears in silence often flow
If all the world were ours to give
We'd give it, yes and more
To see the face of our loved one
Come smiling at the door.

Sadly missed by Randy, Rita, Rebecca and Rachel.

ORDINANCE NO. 2002-01 AN ORDINANCE ON WELL HEAD PROTECTION

ARTICLE I. IN GENERAL

SEC. 75-1 STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY.

(a) The residents of the Village of Kewaskum depend exclusively on groundwater for a safe drinking water supply. Certain land use practices and activities can seriously threaten or degrade groundwater quality. The purpose of this Well Head Protection Ordinance is to institute land use regulations and restrictions to protect the Village of Kewaskum municipal water supply and well fields, and to promote the public health, safety and general welfare of the residents of the Village of Kewaskum.

(b) Statutory authority of the Village of Kewaskum to enact these regulations was established by the Wisconsin Legislature in 1983, Wisconsin Act 410 (effective May 11, 1984), which specifically added groundwater protection to the statutory authorization for municipal planning and zoning to protect public health, safety and welfare.

SEC. 75-2 DEFINITIONS.

(a) The following words, terms, and phrases, when used in this chapter, shall have the meanings ascribed to them in this section, except when the context clearly indicates a different meaning.

Facility means something created, built, installed, or established to serve a particular purpose.

In no case may the separation distance between the well and a sanitary sewer main be less than 50 feet.

Director of Public Works, Jerry Gilles reported as follows:

1) A water main broke on Riverview Drive near the intersection of Habeck Street last week and was repaired.

2) The Board was informed that the DNR is decertifying the testing procedure on municipal water samples. This would more than likely lead to an increase number of failures of our water testing and as a result add substantial cost.

On a motion by Trustee Robert Stoltzmann, seconded by Trustee Thomas Piwoni and unanimously carried by voice vote, the Board approved the issuance of an Operators License for 2001/2002 upon proper payment of fee and documentation for the following:
Hetzl, Kevin M.

Chairman of the Park & Recreation Committee Mathew Heiser indicated Director of Public Works Jerry Gilles had information regarding the possible lowering of the 3-meter diving board to a 2-meter diving board. The estimated cost of the lowering is $400.00. A substantial amount of discussion on safety concerns, the thrill of a 3-meter board versus a 2-meter board and costs of deepening the swim pond were all reviewed. The group of students present encouraged the Board not to lower the board. On a motion by Trustee Kevin Scheunemann, seconded Trustee Larry Ammel to keep the 3-meter board at 3 meters failed on a roll call vote of 2 Aye to 5 Nay. Some further discussion was held as to liability and safety. The Board directed the Director of Public Works to get some additional information and bring it back to the Board. South Dakota or bust!

Hello friends,

Waubay Lake, which covers 20,000 acres and is located in northeast South Dakota (Robert's County) is one of the most reliable lakes this fisherman has ever fished. I consistently catch good-sized northern pike through the ice. Read on for details.

Friday, January 18
High 12- Low -12-

I was pushing my luck and I knew it. My '84 Jeep Eagle was loaded to the hilt as was the trailer it was pulling. The trailer contained ice gear, food and a 6x12 disassembled ice shanty. We drove across Minnesota in subzero conditions (minus 12-).

My 10-year-old stepson, Travis, and my golden retriever, Pearl, would be my companions for the next five days. We lived on the frozen waters of Wauby Lake. One breakdown and a $50 bill later, Travis, Pearl and I were headed west. We had big fish on our minds.

When we finally reached Grenville, S.D., population under 100, I was about done in. I was living on an hour's sleep in the last 30, and not so confident that my Eagle was in much better shape. After loading up on shiners and fatheads (minnows), Travis and I hit the ice for a two-mile drive to a bay I spent seven days on last January.

With two hours of daylight, a hefty wind out of the northwest and the thermometer hovering at 12 degrees, Travis and I set out six tip-ups, three baited with fatheads and three large shiners on the the others.

Last January, Chris Gesicki and I caught both walleye and northern pike on Wauby, as well as one jumbo perch. As soon as the tip-ups were set, we began the large chore of putting our camp together. About that time, a tip-up with a fathead on it went up, signaling that a hungry fish was trying to steal my minnow. The same flag went up another four times in the next 15 minutes. On the fourth try, I iced an 11-inch perch. Both Travis and I forgot about the windchill and our lack of sleep.

To make a long story short, over the next two hours the fishing for perch and walleye was fantastic. I made a deal with Travis: If he was willing to help build camp with the aid of the Jeep's headlights, I was willing to forget about building camp until after dark.

By dark we had 14 of the fattest 11 to 12 inch perch on the ice that I have ever been a part of catching. We also released 15 walleye that were just under the 16-inch minimum for Wauby Lake. By 10 p.m., the camp was completed, and as if being rewarded for our efforts, we caught a chunky 20-inch walleye.

Saturday, January 19
High 23- Low 8-

This morning, the windchill froze exposed skin very rapidly. Today was the best day of ice fishing I have ever witnessed. We had two Rattle Reels rigged up in our shack, one with a fathead, the other with a shiner. Travis kept busy catching perch while I tried to cook breakfast.

The tip-up that produced a 20-inch walleye last night was hot, and this morning, I had a world-class wrestling match with a good fish. I tried gaffing it, and my gaff broke and ended up at the bottom of Wauby. Five minutes later, I iced a 36-inch, 15-pound gator (northern pike). Travis ended up catching fish that measured 28, 29 and 30 inches. We also caught 18 walleye, all of which were released, along with the 36-inch gator. The perch action was non-stop.

Our day was like a fantasy fishing dream in which everything went perfectly. The stress of yesterday's drive has been replaced by the reality of today's fishing.

Love my job!

Fish Habitat - A Very Fragile Resource

By Mike Staggs,
Director, DNR Bureau of Fisheries Management and Habitat Protection

I caught my last trout of the season at 6:30 p.m. on September 30, the last day of the 2001 season on the creek that runs through the sledge wetland by my house. Like a lot of people, I hadn't felt like fishing since September 11 - but on that date I realized I better get out and do some trout fishing or hang it up for the year.

For some reason, catching that trout broke the funk for me - let's face it, the year 2001 was a sobering one for use all. Events at the national level have caused us all to review our personal priorities and focus more on enjoying and protecting the things that are truly important to us. But the experience of catching that trout reminded me that fishing remains an important way for me to connect with family and friends, and to appreciate the wonderful natural resources that make Wisconsin special. Perhaps you'll agree.

Wading through the creek that late autumn afternoon also gave me some time to reflect on fish and fishing, and the things that I and my colleagues in the DNR fisheries program do to try and make these better. I kept coming back to thinking just how fragile the good things in life really can be.

You see, 2001 was also a sobering year for our trout program. In recent years, we've celebrated some amazing successes in restoring and enhancing trout fisheries across the state, the result of improvements in farming practices, changes in land use, partnerships between state fisheries crews and conservation groups to improve habitat, and an aggressive program to stock wild trout in streams with improved water quality. We've used Inland Trout Stamp funds to restore or improve the habitat in hundreds of miles of trout streams. We have expanded our DNR wild trout stocking program to rebuild naturally reproducing populations. And we've worked with anglers to encourage catch-and-release and improve trout fishing regulations. Together we've been able to restore over 810 miles of streams to trout waters since 1980!

But we were also reminded of just how fragile these cold water resources are. In June, we discovered a major fish kill on Black Earth Creek in Dane County - one of our state's most famous trout fisheries. There were also several other major fish kills in trout streams across the state and we suspect all were caused by polluted runoff, also known as non-point source pollution. While these incidents are isolated and each of the streams will recover over the next few years - they very vividly show that our valuable trout resources are still entirely dependent on rural and urban residents using good land use practices and maintaining outstanding water quality.

On a national level we are being asked to get involved - and that is true on a more local level also. Wisconsin's anglers can be a leading force in protecting our fragile aquatic resources. Support regulatory initiatives and grant programs intended to protect water quality from polluted runoff. The Natural Resources Board considered adopting rules designed to reduce polluted runoff at its January 22 meeting in Madison. If the board members approved the rules, they're sent to the Legislature for review, including a public hearing.

Keep an eye out for fish kills or illegal pollution while you are fishing and report them immediately to your local DNR office or warden. And get involved with your local trout fishing clubs and help them with trout stream restoration and protection programs in your area.

I ended up releasing that trout - somehow on that last hour of the last day of the season it did not seem right to keep a fish that had successfully escaped all the earlier anglers that year, including me. But hey, the habitat and water quality in my stream are good so I know that trout will be waiting for me next season - another year wiser and that much harder to catch.

Spearers Need to Use Caution; Ice Conditions Poor Shorter Daily Spearing Hours Should Extend Winnebago Sturgeon Season

OSHKOSH -- Fisheries biologists and conservation wardens aren't willing to predict prospects for the 2002 sturgeon spearing season on Lake Winnebago because Wisconsin's weather has been so unpredictable -- and so unseasonable.

However, new, shorter daily spearing hours will likely mean that the 2002 sturgeon spearing season, which opens February 9, could run longer than the record setting two day seasons experienced in each of the last two years.

Ice and water clarity conditions could stretch the season even further into February, state conservation wardens say.

"At this point, it's almost impossible to say how the season will unfold," says Todd Schaller, the Department of Natural Resources conservation warden supervisor in Oshkosh. "So much depends on the weather in the next two weeks -- if we have the same ice and water conditions as last year, then it's likely to go three or four days because the shorter spearing hours will stretch the harvest out. But if the water clarity and ice conditions don't improve, those factors can take it beyond that time."

Spearers' prospects this year, as every year, depend on ice conditions that allow them to get their ice shanties out onto the lake and good water clarity, which makes it easier for people to spear the sturgeon, Schaller says.

Ron Bruch, DNR's sturgeon biologist in Oshkosh, says that reports as of January 22, indicate that ice conditions are poor due to the warm winter this far. "Water clarity on Lake Winnebago is poor to fair at the moment, four to eight feet, but improving weekly," Bruch says. "If the ice does improve and the water continues to clear, we should have a good season."

The 2002 Lake Winnebago spearing season opens February 9 and runs through February 25 unless spearers reach or exceed the harvest caps set to protect the sturgeon population from overharvest. DNR limits the annual harvest of sturgeon to five percent of the adult population because the fish are so late-maturing -- females don't spawn until they are 20 to 25 years, and then only once every three to five years -- and removing too many adults would cause the population to crash.

DNR shuts the season down the day after spearers have reached or exceeded 80 percent of any one of three harvest caps: 400 adult females, 400 juvenile females and 1,375 males.

Bruch hopes a series of new, permanent harvest rules and shorter spearing hours effective for 2002, will help achieve the goals of maintaining the harvest at or below allowable harvest levels, and preventing a repeat of last year, when spearers exceeded the harvest cap for adult females by 52 percent.

"We hope the new regulations and the emergency spearing hours will help keep the harvest in check, although we will continue to work on the problem after the season by examining other harvest and effort control options," Bruch says.

Spearing hours begin at 6:30 a.m., and end at 12:30 p.m. each day the season is open, instead of midnight and 6 p.m., as has been the case in past years. In addition, spearers who are successful in killing a sturgeon must register it at a registration station by 1:30 p.m. instead of 6 p.m.

In 2001, spearers registered 1,590 sturgeon in a season that lasted only two days. In 2000, spearers registered 2,517 sturgeon in a season that also lasted a record two days and that also included the upriver lakes of Poygan and Butte des Morts.

The 2002 sturgeon spearing season will be the 71st consecutive season on Lake Winnebago since the first season was held in the winter of 1931-32, Bruch says. In that year, there was no harvest cap and the season ran all winter. In subsequent years, as pressure increased on the fishery, biologists controlled the harvest primarily by reducing the amount of time spearers could spear from all winter, to two months, to now, two weeks in February with the harvest cap system triggering the season to shut down even sooner.

Despite the decreasing season length, dramatic increases in spearer participation and improvements in spearing conditions and Lake Winnebago water clarity have led to much larger harvests than in past years, Bruch says. The current average annual harvest of sturgeon in the spear fishery on Lake Winnebago of 1,400 fish nearly doubles the average harvest level a decade ago.

The minimum size limit for lake sturgeon spearing is 36 inches. Spearers are advised to be sure of the size of their fish before they throw their spear. Also spearers are reminded that it is illegal to use another person's sturgeon spearing tag. DNR Law Enforcement officials will be heavily patrolling the lake every day of the season. If anyone witnesses any illegal activities they are asked to contact their local game wardens or call 1-800-TIP-WDNR.

RULE CHANGES FOR 2002 STURGEON SPEARING SEASON

Spearers participating in the 2002 Lake Winnebago sturgeon season that begins on February 9 face new rules and new spearing hours to help prevent overharvest of the slow-growing, late maturing females, according to Wisconsin Conservation Warden Supervisor Todd Schaller. The new rules are:

* Spearing hours begin at 6:30 a.m., and end at 12:30 p.m. each day the season is open, instead of midnight and 6 p.m., as has been the case in past years. In addition, spearers who are successful in killing a sturgeon must register it at a registration station by 1:30 p.m. instead of 6 p.m. The season opens on February 9 and runs until February 25, or until the harvest cap is reached.

* The new spearing hours regulation makes it illegal to: spear for sturgeon or possess or control a spear or similar device within a fishing shelter on Lake Winnebago system waters from 12:30 p.m. until 6:30 a.m. of the following day. If the spear is in the shelter people must be outside the shelter, if people are in the shelter, the spear must be outside the shelter.

* Sturgeon spearers on the Lake Winnebago system will be prohibited from using or possessing artificial lights to shine into the water 48 hours before and continuing through the open sturgeon spearing season.

* Spearing holes will be limited to a total area of 48 square feet or less for sturgeon spearing.

Wardens also caution spearers to pay attention to ice conditions and to take precautions to stay safe. They note that spearers on the east side of Lake Winnebago have reported better ice conditions and that some were driving trucks on the ice, while spearers have reported poor ice conditions on the west side of the lake and say they are planning to use snowmobiles or all-terrain vehicles.

WBKV's 'Helping Hungry Families' A Great Success

Once again, West Bend's WBKV "Helping Hungry Families" food and money drive was a great success.

For a five week period, everytime a listener dropped off a bag of canned goods/non-perishable food items or a minimum of $2.00 donation to Friends of Abused Families, they received an entry into WBKV's "Huge Prize Package" drawing.

There was over $600 in toys, CD's, gift certificates, books, etc. in the grand prize package, with two additional smaller ones. There was also random drawings for six-foot Subway party subs.

In all, almost a thousand pounds of food was gathered for the Full Shelf Food Pantry in memory of Joe Schmidt, a dedicated volunteer who passed away in October. In addition, about $500 was raised for Friends.

"This is the sixth year we've done this," according to Classic Country BKV morning man, Bob Bonenfant.

"We'd also like to thank Old-Fashioned Bakery of West Bend for being part of the food drive again this year."

Listeners who dropped off food at the bakery received a free donut or money off on a food purchase.

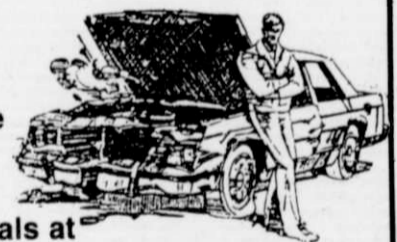

"This is a very satisfying endeavor that we're proud to be a part of," added Bonenfant.

Winner of the "Big Prize Package" was Marion Lemke of West Bend. Other winners included Lisa Goehring, Bea Boldt and Tootie Hall, all of West Bend, and Deann McWilliams of Allenton.

140,000 Hunters to Receive Spring Wild Turkey Permits

MADISON -- More than 140,000 permits will be issued to wild turkey hunters for the spring 2002 Wisconsin turkey hunting season, which is divided into six hunting periods between April 10 through May 19.

Since successful reintroduction efforts began in Wisconsin starting in 1976, the wild turkey has continued to expand its range. As a result, two new hunting zones will open for the spring 2002 season, bringing the total number of turkey hunting zones to 43. The two newest zones received nearly 3,000 applications.

"As long as turkeys continue to spread into new habitat and their population numbers expand, the number of turkey hunting opportunities will also grow," said Keith Warnke, wildlife biologist and head of the DNR's turkey management program. "Obviously, there's a limit out there somewhere but we haven't hit it yet and interest in this game bird is growing every season."

Licensing information from the Department of Natural Resources automated licensing issuance system (ALIS) shows that 156,519 turkey harvest permit applications were received -- an increase of 11 percent over 2001 with 140,542 hunters receiving permits for the spring 2002 season. This includes just over 19,000 hunters who received a second permit. This compares to 132,318 hunters drawing permits in

Turkey permits are starting to be mailed out to successful applicants this week and will continue to be mailed out over the next two weeks. Applicants should wait at least a couple of weeks before calling DNR service centers to check on their permit status.

The number of permits for each of the 43 turkey hunting zones is determined by several factors, says Warnke.

"We take productivity, harvest information, hunter success rates, spring weather, winter weather, the ratio of adult and juvenile males and females in the season's harvest and also look at the trends in these figures over several years to determine if a zone's population is growing, declining or stable. At the zone level, this gives game managers a snapshot of what's going on in the zone."

"While the number of permits issued did go up for 2002, a big factor in more hunters receiving permits is that hunters are learning how to increase their chances in the drawing process by being more flexible in their choice of which hunting time period."

Both Warnke and department conservation wardens remind all hunters that the first thing to concern themselves with during their hunt is hunting safety.

"There are special circumstances unique to turkey hunting," Warnke said. "The use of bait while turkey hunting is illegal and unethical and because hunters are calling and wearing camouflage, it is even more critical that they make absolutely positive identification of their target and what's beyond it."
