Two Vacancies Filled on Town of Kewaskum Board of Appeals

By Andrew R. Kuehl
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Town of Kewaskum recently filled two vacancies on their board of appeals. The vacancies arose after the deaths of Jacob Schmidt and Harry Johannsen.

The first term, that of Jacob Schmidt was set to expire in 2003. Schmidt was the chairman of the board of appeals as well. David Dorn was appointed and will finish the term.

Harry Johannsen's term will expire in 2004. Jack Peters was chosen by the board as the replacement.

"All the candidates had good qualities," stated town chairman Scott Sager.

Appeals board member John Meisser was also re-appointed and will serve until April of 2005.

Members of the Board of Appeals are paid on a per diem of $40. The position is a three year term.

The next meeting of the town board and planning commission will take place on March 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Kewaskum Town Hall located at 9019 Kettle Moraine Drive. For more information please contact Sandra Stern, town clerk at 626-2566.

Architects Present Second Plan to Ad-Hoc Committee

Only 21 of 51 acres can be built on.

The Ad Hoc Committee was addressed with this issue at last Wednesday night's meeting by Bray and Associate's architects Raymond Haen and Stephen Kuhnen. The two schools are situated on 51.5 acres of land and 30.5 of those acres are on a floodplain. This was determined after the schools were recently surveyed. This is the problem facing the district and architects as most of the available land has already been built on.

According to Brey and Associates architects, ideally, the Middle School alone should be on 25 acres of land with one additional acre per 100 students and the High School should have 50 acres.

The second plan architects presented was very different from the first set. The revised plans call for the auditorium to act as a connector between the two schools. There would be a hallway around the front where the lobby would be that would connect the schools as well as serve as the hallway to the band classrooms for each of the schools and some storage areas.

To the back of the high school where the library is currently, there will be seven classrooms built, including tech ed, and drafting rooms. To the southwest side of the front of the school an auxiliary gym is proposed, as it was in the first plan. It was stated by a citizen that gym space throughout the entire district is tight with all of the activities going on.

Also there would be an additional science room and classroom built on the southeast side of the front of the building.

There would also be remodeling done to the school. The weight room would be extended into what is now the health room, which would move to the drafting room. Rose Hall would be converted into a IMC (Instructional Media Center) with a large group instruction area. The restrooms will also be remod-

KES "Principal Chats" Next Week

The community is reminded that Kewaskum Elementary School principal Kieth Kriewaldt will again be hosting two "Principal Chats" at KES on March 19th at 8 a.m. and March 21st at 4 p.m.

This is an excellent opportunity for parents and community members to voice their concerns and "chat" with principal Kriewaldt directly.

School District Receives Two Offers for Beechwood School

Two offers for Beechwood school were presented to the Board of Education at Monday night's school board meeting.

The first offer was for $20,000 as is. This offer was brought to business manager Paul Reichert last week. The second offer was brought in Monday afternoon and was for $35,000 with a contingency that if an inspection within 10 days showed major defects in the building, the buyer could back out.

Beechwood school has been on the market for almost nine months. Board Member Mary Meisser stated that she "was inclined to wait," stating that the right buyer may come along in a year.

With that, yearly costs to upkeep the school were discussed. To cut the grass and snowplow with very minimal electrical costs, it's costing the district approximately $3000-$4000 per year.

The board decided to let the first offer expire Tuesday and meet again to discuss the second offer. They will do so in a closed session at their next board meeting.

The board approved Special Ed teacher Katie Schmanski's request to take maternity leave for the entire 2002-2003 school year.

They also approved instructional contracts for Scott Jornlin to replace Sasha Strack in English and Sandy Stern for Farmington first and second grade. Both positions are school year only.

An extra-curricular contract for Michael Marsala was also approved. He will be replacing Carol Martin as the assistant girls soccer coach.

Kewaskum and Wayne Elementary School principal Kieth Kriewaldt addressed the board with a problem for next year's half-day kindergarten. As it stands now, there are only two children enrolled in half-day classes.

He proposed not offering a separate half-day program, but incorporate it into the full day program. There would not be a transportation problem, as they could share buses with the four-year-old kindergarten students.

"It's just a fluke this year," stated Kriewaldt. He expects there to be more of an enrollment in the half-day program in future years and does not want to end the program altogether.

The Board convened to closed session prior to adjournment.

"We always pray before meals," said Sammy. "Aren't you going to say grace?"

Everyone should express gratitude gladly and generously. By so doing you'll increase your blessings and benefits, and you'll bring glory to God.

As I See It

By Rochelle Pennington

From Tears to Cheers

It has been my experience that one stumbles across life's most profound lessons in the most unexpected places - places like a neighborhood Little League baseball diamond.

Our son's first game of the season was scheduled for an evening in early May on a league that included grades six through eight. While some boys were third-year veterans on the team, our little guy, a sixth grader, was among the new recruits.

The usual crowd of parents had gathered as I took my seat on a weather-eaten plank, third row from the top. Sandwiched between a cotton candy-faced youngster and somebody's mother, I checked the scoreboard. Fourth inning already. As my attention moved from the scoreboard, I glanced at the pitchers mound. Jason Voldner?

Jason was undoubtedly the most well-liked and good natured boy on the team, but athletically, his participation had been limited to the alternating positions of right field or bench - the latter, unfortunately, more frequently. Having spent an uncountable number of hours as a spectator (on an equally uncountable number of varying bleachers), it is my belief that every ball-field has its own version of Jason Voldner. Without exception.

The Jasons of the world show up at a tender young age for their first Saturday morning T-ball practice, oiled glove in hand. By the end of this long awaited "chance to play ball," the heavy-hearted Jasons return home remembering the boy who hit further, the boy who ran faster and the boy who actually knew what he was supposed to do with the glove.

People often ask me if I know the secret of success and if I could tell them how to make their dreams come true. My answer is this: You do it by working.

-Walt Disney

And ability is not only recognized but utilized, allowing for the exceptional players to become even more so, while the Jasons wait their turn to play the seventh inning. Right field. Their allotted playing time is not only limited, it's conditional: only if the team is already winning. If not, the Jasons have simply been waiting to go home. And sometimes they stay there.

Yet here was Jason Voldner pitching what I would say to be the game of his lifetime (had there been anything to compare it to.)

Turning to comment to anyone willing to listen, I now recognized the "somebody's mother" beside me as belonging to Jason. "Such talent," I offered. "I've never seen your son pitch before." In a voice of quiet resolve she responded, "Neither have I," then she continued with this story:

Four weeks ago, she had chauffeured a car full of boys, her son included, to this same baseball diamond for their first spring practice. Just before dusk the next carpool mother dropped Jason off after practice. As the van pulled up, Jason emerged from behind the sliding door.

"His face was a combination of dirt smudges and rain streaks and would have masked from anyone but me that he was upset," she said.

"My immediate concern was for an injury, but there was none."

Probing questions led her no closer to the elusive pain. By bedtime, she knew no more than she did back on the curb. This would change shortly.

She continued, "Sometime in the hours that followed, I was awakened by choking sobs, Jason's sobs. At his bedside, broken words were telling his story. 'Waiting. Eighth grade. Sick of right field. Eighth grade.'"

As Jason's mother calmed her son, he further explained that Matthew, a sixth-grader, was going to play second base "because his dad is coaching"; John, a sixth-grader, was assigned to shortstop "because he's Matthew's friend"; and Brian, yet another sixth-grader, was the new catcher "because his brother is on the team."

I wondered where her story was going and began to squirm uncomfortably knowing that every one of the boys she just named had parents within earshot of our conversation.

Jason continued crying, "Not fair. Not fair. Not fair."

Listening to Jason, his mother's heart ached for him. There should be a word that takes empathy to another level; a word for the exclusive use of parents.

"While Jason was waiting for me to agree with him," said his mother, "I was making the difficult decision not to. One has to be careful when having a direct and lasting effect on another person's negative emotions.

Often times, agreement may appear to be the most caring and loyal means of help, but in reality, it can actually work to the contrary as you reinforce the negative feelings."

What is opportunity, and when does it knock? It never knocks. You can wait a whole lifetime, listening, hoping, and you will hear no knocking.

None at all. You are opportunity, and you must knock on the door leading to your destiny.

-Dr. Maxwell Maltz

"So first I explained to Jason that until we were ready to assist the coach with his responsibilities, we would trust his judgments. Secondly, I reminded him how seldom we passed the vacant lot on the corner of our block without finding the three sixth-graders in question involved in a random, unscheduled game of ball. Playing infield is not about being in the sixth grade or the eighth I told him; it's about working hard and ability, not preferential treatment. I asked him if his teacher gives him an 'A' just for showing up or if the workers at his dad's job get promoted 'just because.' I explained that all through life, one is going to come into contact with individuals possessing a focused ambition for what they are pursuing - on the ball field, in the classroom, in the workplace. Some even possess natural talent."

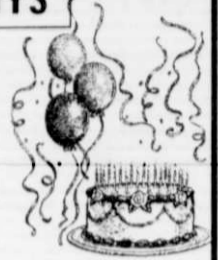

"Does this mean you are unable to achieve what they have? Certainly not. You simply have to choose to work harder. Resentment, blame and excuses only point potential."

Finally, Jason's mother tucked her son back into bed with the words, "You're disappointed that the coach doesn't believe in you, Jason, but before you can expect others to believe in you, you have to believe in yourself. The coach is basing his placements on the performance he has seen thus far. If you truly feel you deserve a position other than right field, then prove it." With those words she kissed him goodnight.

She smiled as she watched the next pitch, then said, "We spoke more in those few minutes that night than we have pretty much in these past weeks since. Our contact recently has been through notes written by Jason and left behind on the kitchen table: "Gone to practice. Gone to prove it."

She paused, "And he did."

On Saturday, Feb. 23rd, four Kewaskum eighth graders, Jessica Alexandra, Nicole Braun, Samantha Czerwinski, and Nicole Stern, accompanied by their teacher Frau Diemer, traveled to Ripon, to participate in a state wide German speaking contest held at Ripon college. In order to qualify for state competition, the students had to score at least 38 points out of 40 at the regional competition held at Rufus King High School on Dec. 15. Qualifying for state competition were Nicole Braun, Samantha Czerwinski, and Nicole Stern.

The girls performed very well at state with Nicole Braun receiving second place in the middle school division and Nicole Stern receiving an honorable mention.

Ad-Hoc Meeting

eled. The additions to the high school would include approximately 46,000 square feet. The remodeling includes all upgrades to meet ADA hardware and signage requirements, exterior building maintenance, reroofing of the 1966 addition, plumbing upgrades, HVAC upgrades and electrical upgrades. This alone will cost taxpayers approximately $1,902,000.

The additions and remodeling will cost approximately $12,188,672. This, however, does not include flooring, paint, ceiling tiles, etc.

Kewaskum Middle School additions call for a new gym to the front of the existing gym and six classrooms to the back of the school. This is all there is room for. Once these additions are made, there will be very little room to expand.

The idea of putting the gym to the west of the building was explored, but it could not be done due to the required 75 foot setback from the Milwaukee River. The existing storage shed to the west of the school is already non-compliant with this.

The six classrooms would be four general classrooms and a health and an art room. The gym is badly needed by the middle school.

The gym that they have now is too small for some gym activities. The ceiling is also very low which makes it very hard to play things like volleyball.

The existing gym would be turned into a library and cafeteria. The cafeteria now is in a hallway and students have to walk between tables to get the classrooms located behind the cafeteria.

The existing library would be turned into more classrooms. Remodeling for the middle school also includes permanent walls being put up in the main part of the school. Now there are retractable walls between most of the classrooms.

The middle school plan calls for approximately 14,897 square feet of additions. The additions will cost approximately $1,382,700. Total remodeling, construction and upgrades similar to the high schools, will cost approximately $3,482,772.

Costs of constructing new schools were also explored. A new middle school would cost approximately $12,844,476. This does not include the cost of land. The school would be approximately 123,288 square feet and in a House Concept hold approximately 530 students and in a regular 6-7-8 building hold 483.

Costs of a new high school were considerably more. The high school would be approximately 247,619 square feet and could house 800 students. Costs for a new high school would be approximately $27,018,761. This does not include the athletic facilities on the campus. To move the existing facilities and to build baseball and softball diamonds would cost approximately $1,665,000.

Other ideas explored were not building any additions except the auditorium and making the high school and middle school campus solely a high school or making the high school the middle school and using the middle school for storage.

Even with the additions to the school, there would only be room for an additional 150-200 students.

Bray and Associates will be back again on April 3 at 7 p.m. to present a third revised plan. The meeting location will be announced at a later date. All community members are encouraged to attend whether for or against these ideas.

St. Matthew's Students Hold Science Fair

Students at Campbellsport's St. Matthew's School participated in their Science Fair 2002. "Preparing Our Children for the Challenges of the 21st Century," held on March 7. This exciting event encouraged students to think like young scientists. Students designed projects using scientific methods to solve problems. Projects represented future challenges and solutions. The educational benefits are numerous as students develop skills in writing, oral presentation, creative thinking and problem solving. The students enjoyed this unique opportunity for scientific discovery. Pictured in the center of the photo above is St. Matthew's fourth grader, Cody Gremminger.

News From The Capitol

By Congressman Jim Sensenbrenner

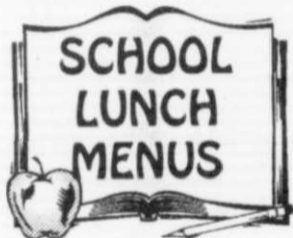

Sensenbrenner Receives Award From 60 Plus Association

WASHINGTON, DC - On February 28, during a ceremony at the United States Capitol, Representative F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, JR., (R-Menomonee Falls), was awarded the "Guardian of Seniors' Rights" award by the 60 Plus Association. The 60 Plus Association is a non-partisan seniors advocacy group with a free enterprise, less government, less taxes approach to seniors' issues. Top priorities of 60 Plus include ending the federal estate tax and saving Social Security for the young. The organization has more than half a million members nationally, with 10,000 in Wisconsin and nearly 1,000 in Representative Sensenbrenner's congressional district.

its repeal is good riddance and we thank Rep. Sensenbrenner for his strong efforts to 'kill' the death tax," Martin concluded.

"I am honored to once again be a recipient of this award from 60 Plus," said Representative Sensenbrenner. "As the elected official for Wisconsin's Ninth District, it is my job to represent my district's interests as best I can. Being recognized for my work on behalf of my seniors means a lot to me. There are numerous pieces of legislation in Congress that affect them, and I will continue to work hard to represent the best interests of seniors in Wisconsin's Ninth District," concluded Representative Sensenbrenner.

According to Jim Martin, President of the 60 Plus Association, Representative Sensenbrenner, "can be depended on to protect Social Security and Medicare and to support a prescription drug benefit for seniors." He continued, "It was Ben Franklin who famously said there are two certainties in life, taxes and death. But because you can still be taxed when you die, there are now three certainties, taxes, death and taxes after death. 60 Plus decided to bestow a Ben Franklin award on Sensenbrenner and others who worked to get rid of that third certainty, taxes after death. Why should Uncle Sam, not even a blood relative, be the first claimant in line instead of your loved ones. This was a gruesome tax to impose, and

Business as Usual at Town of Addison Meeting

By Andrew R. Kuehl
Staff Writer/Photographer

The Town of Addison Town Board met Thursday, February 21 and discussed their monthly agenda items.

The first order of business was the discussion of a certified survey map (CSM) from Jeremy Pfeifer in section five of the town. Pfeifer wants to attach land to an existing parcel he already owns. He will be erecting a garage on the property. The plan commission gave him a favorable recommendation for the project.

The town board approved the CSM unanimously.

The board then discussed, in length the purchase of a safety net for the baseball diamond. The current net is in dire need of repair and is also a safety issue for a neighbor who has had many balls end up in his yard. The money for this project will come from the park fund.

Town chairman Robert Bingen said he wanted to see the town purchase a net that will last and can be raised and lowered. Bids were received from Page Electric and a few other contractors. The item was tabled until receiving a bid for a net that can be raised and lowered.

The park use agreement with the Allenton Youth Organization was tabled as a member of the organization was unable to attend the meeting.

The revaluation of all real and personal property was discussed. It was deemed that the town needed to do a market adjustment on all property in the town and they would have this done by Grota Appraisals, LLC at a cost of $19.50 per property, a total cost of $21,000.

Another discussion revolved around the town will face the burden of doing

March - April Recycling Dates

Recycling pick-up for Town of Addison residents will be Friday, March 22nd, April 5th and 19th.

Have recycling items at the curb by 6:45 a.m.

The Town of Addison clean-up day is scheduled for April 15th from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Town residents may bring tree brush, scrap iron, old metal appliances to 542 Main Street in Allenton. More information on the day will be published in April.

a re-assessment in three to four years which would involve an appraiser doing a walk through of all the properties in the town. The board decided at that time they would let the project out for bidding.

The board discussed the hiring of a full time Department of Public Works employee to replace retiring Bob Walters. Town Clerk Ellen Wolf reported that they already received an excess of 50 applications for the position.

Supervisor Art Weis stated "I don't think we should hire someone right off the bat. Let's wait until May or June and see where we're at."

The board agreed with Weis and decided to review the applications and discuss it again in April.

Just like many towns and municipalities Addison had to discuss their plan of action in case Governor McCallum decides to follow through with his plan of cutting shared revenue from municipalities to make up for his $1.1 billion budget deficit.

The amount of $92,600 will be cut from the Addison budget this year if McCallum's plan passes.

Bingen stated he thought the town would be fine short term, by cutting some money from dedicated funds for future projects. However, long term could cause problems for the town as those future projects will come and the town will need to have the money to complete those projects.

The town board then approved a motion to stop paying for verification on the signatures of every check the town writes. Currently they pay $25 a month for this service. Board members felt it was not needed. It was also noted that the town pays a fee for each check they write and deposit.

Normally the interest on the accounts covered the fees but with rates down this has not been the case.

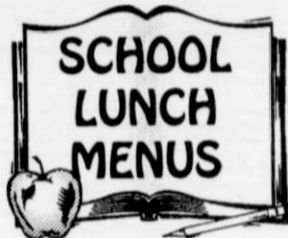

Two operators licenses were approved. One was approved upon the completion of a background check.

Under miscellaneous business it was noted that town residents are using town dumpsters and causing them to be dumped more frequently. This is a huge burden for the town as more tax dollars will have to be allocated for the dumpings.

It was noted that it is a $300 fine for dumping waste into a dumpster without permission of the owner.

The next town board meeting will be Thursday, March 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Old-fashioned St. Paddy's Day salutations courtesy of Isabelle Muckerheide.

WEAR GREEN ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY, BUT REMEMBER WHY

The legend of St. Patrick has come down to us in such a form as to make us concentrate on its more whimsical aspects rather than its serious message. The greeting card racks sprout shamrocks and little men in green suits. Regardless of our ethnic backgrounds, we all become "Irish" on that day and don green garments. Hibernian melodies emanate from the radio stations. With all of that, we tend to forget the story of St. Patrick's perilous journey to Ireland to persuade the people to go and worship God, and that under much safer conditions we could do the same thing. So, when you go to your House of Worship, try to bring a friend or neighbor with you, and you'll both receive the blessings that St. Patrick spoke of so long ago.

Brenda O'Malley is home making dinner, as usual, when Tim Finnegan arrives at her door.

"Brenda, may I come in?" he asks. "I've somethin' to tell ya."

"Of course you can come in, you're always welcome, Tim. But where's my husband?"

"That's what I'm here to be tellin' ya, Brenda. There was an accident down at the Guinness brewery..."

"Oh, God, No!" cries Brenda. "Please don't tell me..."

"I must, Brenda. Your husband Sean is dead and gone. I'm sorry."

Finally, she looked up at Tim. "How did it happen, Tim?"

"It was terrible, Brenda. He fell into a vat of Guinness Stout and drowned."

"Oh my dear Jesus! But you must tell me true, Tim. Did he at least go quickly?"

"Well, no Brenda... no. Fact is, he got out three times to to the bathroom."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Statesman Readers,

If you made it to the Kewaskum High School Chamber Concert on March 4, you had the first look at the Swing Choir's new uniforms.

The Swing Choir would like to thank MeriLou Chambers, Lisa Lickel, Jill Werdermann, Elizabeth Werdermann, Cora Werdermann, Maggie Herriges and Heidi Terlinden, for the many hours spent on making the costumes. Also, a "thank you" to Mrs. Mary Koch for the use of her room and supplies.

Kewaskum's Music Department doesn't have a large fund and buying new dresses was not affordable. So, a few dedicated people made them at almost one tenth of the cost! The dresses didn't turn out exactly as planned, but it's a nice change to get the girls out of tuxedo shirts and bow ties.

On Sunday, March 9, the dresses were again put to use in the Solo Ensemble competition held in Campbellsport. The Swing Choir was given a first place rating and is now going to perform at the state level.

Thank you again to all who took the time to care.

Heidi Terlinden

Dear Kewaskum School District Residents:

As I mentioned in last week's letter, in order to provide you the ability to make an informed decision in the April 2 school board election, as a school board candidate, I am writing this letter as the first in a series to let you know my views on issues that are relevant to our district. This letter will deal with the obvious: education.

There has been an unprecedented amount of talk in Washington D.C. and Madison regarding standards, achievement, testing, high school graduation tests, etc. The debate on education has been hot with tensions rising on both sides of the political aisle. What does all this chatter mean to our Kewaskum School District?

Well, I believe that, all the rhetoric aside, what should matter most to our district is to ensure that we provide educational opportunities for our children that will allow them to grow into successful, responsible adult citizens contributing to the benefit of our community, country and the world; that we instill in our students the notion of taking responsibility for their education and determining their own futures; and that we have accountability meaasures in place to ensure excellent results in the classroom. H-m-m-m-m. Pretty tall order. Yes, it is. However, the schools cannot do it alone.

Parents need to take an active part in their child's education -- and not just at the elementary and middle school levels. Equally as crucial is having parents continue that interest throughout their child's high school career as well. Being involved means making sure homework is completed, attending parent/teacher conferences, establishing consequences for disruptive behavior at school, working with the school -- not against it.

Parents must always remember that they are the primary educators of their children. Those who do not take an active interest in their children's education will be on shaky ground if registering a complaint. Only with parents and the schools working together throughout the K-12 years will a child more likely be successful -- and happy.

The School District has its part to play as well. We are to provide a strong, effective curriculum that challenges students beyond mediocrity. This calls for extensive cooperation between administration, teachers, staff, and the School Board. Each of us needs to do a periodic self-evaluation to determine the focus of our actions.

We need to ensure that our focus is not self-serving but is directed toward what is best for our district and the success of our students. Ouch! If done honestly, such self-evaluation can be painful. However, it is also the key to the success of our district.

Regarding specific "hot" curriculum issues: I support a phonics-based reading program in grades K-3, I'm a firm believer in the power and necessity of memorization, and I do not support the use of calculators in the lower grades. I'm pretty traditional in educational matters, but I recognize the need to try other methods if the traditional methods fail.

In addition, I support a human growth and development curriculum that is not only abstinence-based, but chastity-based as well. This message needs to be reinforced at school and at home. Let's make sure our children are taught the value of dignity and self respect. That is the way to promote a no-regrets, positive self image among young people.

All of us -- parents, students, district employees and district residents -- have a role to play in our school district and its success. Some people laugh when I tell them that my goal on the school board is to help make the Kewaskum School District the best district in the state. I believe we can do it because we're just the right size.

Being best in the state does not mean being the richest or spending the most money. It means being creative with what we have and offering no excuses. When the Apollo 13 astronauts were stranded in space, the team at NASA was charged with devising a process the crew could implement to bring themselves home.

The plan could utilize only the limited equipment the astronauts had available to them in that capsule. No excuses were accepted, no hand-wringing about why it wouldn't work was tolerated. The NASA staff was told, "Failure is not an option." After grueling, seemingly hopeless trial and error sessions, they succeeded.

Being highly successful isn't easy but it is very possible. The Kewaskum School District can be the best in the state. All it takes is unselfish commitment by each of us.

If you agree with me, I'd appreciate your vote and God bless you. If you don't agree with me, God bless you anyway.

Sincerely,

Mary Meisser,
Kewaskum
School Board

To the Residents of the Kewaskum School District:

On April 2, you will be asked to vote for three candidates for the Kewaskum School Board. With our youngest daughter now attending the Kewaskum Middle School and having two granddaughters also attending district schools and being a former School Board member, I have again decided to run for the office of School Board. It was both a PRIVILEGE and an HONOR to have served you in the past, for 12 years.

I am proud of my past record while serving on the Board of Education. During that time, I served as Board President for six years and Vice President for three years. In addition to the offices that I held, I also helped design and develop the three standing committees that the Board of Education now operates under. Having served as chairman of the Policy, Legislation, By-Law Committee, I served on Finance, Transportation, Buildings and Grounds, as well as the Negotiations Committee for ten years.

It was also my privilege to represent the Kewaskum School District as one of about 12 school board members from around the State to sit on the Standards and Assessment Committee for the Wisconsin Association of School Boards (WASB) to develop guidelines on standards and assessments for all 426 school districts statewide. In addition I was asked to serve on the Kewaskum School District Committee for Standards.

A school board member must remember that while only about 30% of the residents have children in school, that they MUST represent ALL the residents of the district and to not carry out their own agenda. In the past, I have had an open door policy to hear your views and concerns and I will continue to have that policy in the future. Not knowing where to go and who to contact can be frustrating. For those of you that have children in the schools, you are given a school calendar each year. In the front is a list of all members of the School Board along with their phone numbers for you to contact. In addition to that, the School District now has its own web site and can be accessed on your computer by the following address: www.kewaskumschools.org

This will give you a list of all the district schools. If you have any questions or concerns or wish to know about any other views I have, please feel free to contact me at 626-2732.

I look forward to serving you and ask for YOUR SUPPORT and VOTE on April 2.

Sincerely,

Neal Weare

Senseless Killings

Hello friends,

A serious problem is taking place in the northern forests and wetlands of the state of Wisconsin. In the past 12 months, at least 10 grey wolves have been illegally shot. Three of those were so far this year. In the following paragraphs, I will try to describe what I have learned and witnessed while putting together this story.

Wednesday, February 27
High 32, Low 16

Matt Weber is the conservation warden for the northern half of Juneau County. Today, Matt showed me where a radio collared alpha male wolf was shot during the nine-day gun deer season last November.

On a piece of private land bordering the Necedah National Wildlife Refuge, the wolf was shot in the stomach. It made it a short distance before a kill shot to the head finished it off. I tried to imagine what must have been going through the poacher's mind as he or she finished off the wolf.

Last November, not far from this location, I spotted a large grey wolf on opening day of the gun deer season. From a distance of 30 yards, we had a two-minute stare down and then we both went our separate ways. Could this have been the same wolf?

Friday, March 1
High 25, Low 10

Brian Ezman is a conservation warden. He covers the northern half of Adams County, a land that is made up of oak forests, a scattering of wetlands and farmland.

On Jan. 7, a grouse hunter came across the carcass of a large male wolf in the Colburn Wildlife Area. Today, Brian showed me where this wolf's life was put to waste. It was in an oak forest with several dry marshes. One of two wolves known to live in Adams County was shot in the hind leg, made it a short distance, and then was finished off.

Since last March, this unnecessary loss of life was confirmed eight other times. It is anybody's guess how many grey wolves were shot and not found. The killers that shot these wolves would more than likely call themselves hunters. In some cases, the shooter more than likely thought they were shooting a coyote. In hunter safety classes, you are taught to know what you are aiming at before you pull the trigger. You should try telling the research crew that lost three of their eight radio collared animals about your uncertain identification mistake.

Wisconsin's grey wolves live a feast-or-famine way of life, generally living on the edge, with a very empty stomach. The alpha male and the alpha female are the brains of the pack. When one is lost, the pack undergoes a major disruption. I have heard every argument in the book from people who hate wolves. The one that never dies is that the Department of Natural Resources trapped wolves in another state and then released them here. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Wisconsin's wolf packs came here on their own four feet from Minnesota.

So no matter what you consider yourself a hunter, wolf hater or an admirer of those that poach them, wolves need to be left alone. Until Wisconsin can sustain 250 wolves, the laws governing their management (including euthanizing problem wolves) are controlled by the federal government. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service calls the shots until 250 wolves can be maintained. They do not allow the killing of problem wolves, only their relocation. Until this past fall, there were close to 250 wolves roaming our forests. Because so many fools have become trigger happy, the feds are keeping control of the situation. More importantly, the boorish wolf killer is giving the law abiding hunter a tarnished name. This is something the anti-hunting groups will use for ammunition.

Could you use $4,000? If you have information regarding a wolf killing, that is the reward. Call (800) TIP-WDNR to make a report.

I hope in these closing paragraphs, I have shown you why I and so many other people feel so strongly about this waste of life.

Think before you pull the trigger!

Sleep Apnea Group to Meet

Dr. Jeffery Smale, a pulmonologist with the West Bend Clinic, will speak Tuesday, March 19, at a meeting of the sleep apnea health awareness group.

The group, which is open to anyone with sleep apnea, will meet at 7 p.m. at St. Joseph's Community Hospital in conference room A. The free group provides education and discussion for people with this common sleep disorder, and assistance with continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) devices.

Dr. Smale is board certified in internal medicine, pulmonology, and critical care, and is also working toward a certification in sleep medicine. His interest in the relationship of breathing difficulties to sleep problems and the need for proper diagnosis of sleep disorders led to the establishment of the Sleep Disorders Center at the Oakbrook Health Center.

Robert Parmenter, sleep specialist with the Sleep Disorders Center, facilitates the health awareness group.

Sleep apnea is an extremely common disorder that involves the collapse of the breathing passageway during sleep. It affects more than 12 million Americans, according to the National Institutes of health, yet often goes undiagnosed. Snoring may be a symptom of sleep apnea.

The program is free but registration is suggested by calling the hospital's Class Connection Line at 262-306-7888. Walk-ins are also welcome.

The sleep apnea group will meet every third Tuesday of every other month (odd numbered months).

State Agencies to Host Meeting to Address Chronic Wasting Disease

The Department of Natural Resources, in conjunction with two other state agencies, will hold a public information meeting in Mount Horeb on Wednesday, March 20, to brief area residents on their joint response to the presence of Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) in three deer shot in the Town of Vermont during the 2001 gun season.

The meeting will run from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Mt. Horeb High School auditorium, 305 S. Eighth Street, Mt. Horeb.

Representatives from the DNR, the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, and the Department of Health and Family Services will be on hand to give a brief history of events relating to their particular agency starting on February 28 (the date of CWD discovery) and then present an outline of their ongoing and future coordinated response.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation.

On another front, DNR was informed March 7, by the National Veterinary Services Laboratory (NVSL) in Ames, Iowa, that all other deer sampled during the 2001 season tested negative for CWD.

DNR sampled 345 deer statewide, including 82 at Mt. Horeb. The other sampling locations were at Black River Falls, Crivitz, Fence, Spooner and Virqua.

ADDITIONAL DEER WILL BE KILLED FOR TESTING

Based on the information received from the NVSL and data gathered in aerial surveys flown since February 28 over the area in western Dane and eastern Iowa Counties where CWD was detected, wildlife officials have determined that additional disease sampling is necessary to get a clearer picture of the possible extent of the disease in deer in the area.

The sampling effort will be conducted by DNR wildlife management staff with assistance from US Department of Agriculture - Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) and cooperating landowners in the disease surveillance area. DNR wildlife staff will be contacting landowners asking for their cooperation in bringing in deer for testing.

"We're looking at killing around 500 additional deer within a 415 square mile area," said Tom Hauge, director of DNR's wildlife management program. "The sampling will center around where the CWD-infected deer were killed. Landowners contributing samples will be allowed to keep the carcass if they wish to leave it with us for disposal. We will collect the head from all the deer brought in for testing."

CWD is a neurologic disease of deer and elk. It belongs to the family of diseases known as transmissible spongiform encephalopathies (TSE's) or prion diseases. It attacks the brain of infected deer and elk, causing the animals to become emaciated, display abnormal behavior, lose bodily functions and die.

A World Health Organization (WHO) panel of experts reviewed all the available information on CWD and concluded that there is no scientific evidence that CWD can infect humans. Yet, WHO also says no part of a deer or elk with evidence of CWD should be eaten by people or animals.

"Ultimately, whether or not you continue to eat venison harvested in the area of these positive CWD findings is up to you and your family," added Dr. James Kazmierczak, an epidemiologist with the Department of Health and Family Services.

All three samples testing positive for CWD were taken from deer killed in Deer Management Unit 70A (Dane and Iowa Counties) and, more specifically, within several miles of each other in Dane County.

CWD has been known to occur in deer and elk in North America for decades. It occurs in wild deer and elk primarily in northeastern Colorado and adjacent parts of Wyoming and Nebraska. CWD has also been found on elk farms in Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Saskatchewan.

State officials note that CWD is no threat to cattle or sheep and, in spite of ongoing surveillance for similar syndromes in humans, there has never been an instance of people contracting a prion disease from butchering or eating meat from CWD-infected animals.

Additional information on CWD in wildlife can be found on the DNR website www.dnr.state.wi.us under Natural Resources and then Wildlife - Wildlife Health.
