Indians Fall Short In Bid to State Tourney

Josh Meyer, above, pitched two excellent games for the Indians last week, first beating Cedar Grove/Belgium and then limiting Campbellsport to five hits in a 7-1 win that advanced KHS to the sectional finals.

WEST BEND — It won't happen this year, but coach Dave Donath is confident his Kewaskum High School baseball team will be going to the WIAA State Tournament within the next couple years.

"It will be fun in the future," Donath predicted Friday evening after competing in the sectional competition at Carl Kuss Field in Regner Park, losing to West Bend 12-5 for the right to advance to the state tourney in Stevens Point.

First, Donath gave credit to the 22-8 Spartans, and rightly so. "They did the right things to get where they're going," Donath said, indicating West has very few flaws. "They've got good pitching. You're not going to come back on a team like this." But he also lauded the efforts of his Indians, who ended up at 12-15, with only two seniors in their lineup. "They didn't quit on me all year. That's what I like about these guys," Donath said.

center plated De Long. De Long faced just four Indians in the first, but they got to him for a run in the second on back-to-back singles by Brandon Prom and Dan Shea, a bunt by Nathan Steiner, which ended up as a base hit because the Spartans left third base open and De Long had nowhere to go with the ball. A bases loaded situation looked promising, but only Prom scored as Garret Donath popped out, Casey Scheel hit into a fielder's choice (scoring the run), and then Josh Meyer grounded out to the pitcher.

West, continually urged by Coach Bill Albrecht not to let up, added another pair of runs in the third on back-to-back walks to Kunick and Schilter, and a double by De Long down the left field line.

Kewaskum came up with a walk, followed by four straight singles in the top of the fourth, producing two runs. Getting involved in the base-hit barrage were Steiner, Donath, Scheel, whose hit gave him two RBI, and Meyer, the pitching hero of the first game, a 7-1 win over arch rival Campbellsport.

This made the score 8-3. The Spartans boosted their lead right back up to seven runs after Hetebrueg led off with a home run in the 370-foot range, and Jamie Wied- Continued on page 24

Authorities say the accident happened as the woman sat by a campfire in her backyard while her husband was inside getting a bucket of water to put out the campfire. The Fond du Lac County

Record Attendance at Washington County Fair

BY JUDY STEFFES
SPECIAL TO THE STATESMAN

Record attendance was registered at this years Washington County Fair. According to Fair Manager Sandy Lang 110,000 people passed through the gates during the six day run of this years fair.

Lang said their biggest day was Saturday when nearly 35,000 people passed through the gates. "About 20,000 people were here for the Journey concert," she said. "We also had five corporate parties and that added another 6000 people to the mix."

The previous attendance record for the Washington County Fair was set last year with 100,000 people. Lang said one of the things that put them 'over the top' was the fact the fair ran six days this year instead of the normal five days.

Overall, officials said the fair was free of major problems. Lang said they would definitely have parking attendants on hand if they decide to start the fair a day early again next year. She said they did not staff the parking lot on Tuesday and they drew more people than expected. The Washington County Sheriff's Department said the parking on Saturday night got a little tight. The fair was forced to shut down the lot on the grounds and fair goers had to look for parking alternatives.

Sheriff's Deputies said some who attended the fair on Saturday parked as far south as Highway C. Others opted for the shuttle, which ran out of UW Washington County, and others paid between $2 and $10 to park on lawns and in fields surrounding the fair park.

In other fair related activities, Ashley Schowalter of Jackson was crowned this year's Fairest of the Fair. Schowalter beat out five other contestants including Courtney Timblin of Kewaskum, who finished up as runner up.

and members of the F.F.A. The top price paid in the beef auction was $4 a pound. Gordy Boucher paid $5,420 for the overall champion steer, which was raised by Hunter Flanders. Kewaskum Frozen Foods paid $2.25 a pound for the blue ribbon steer raised by Jaclyn Schulz. The local meat market also bought animals from Kyle and Kevin Banaszak.

In the swine category, Thunder Pallet paid $5.50 a pound for the overall champion pig raised by Katherine Etta. The overall grand champion sheep, which was raised by Theresa Ratzel, garnered $6 a pound. Rural Insurance bought Ratzel's 140-pound pig.

In the Fair Park Pavilion, arts and crafts were on display. In the open class categories Nancy Bertucci of Germantown won a grand champion ribbon for her handmade quilt. The quilt featured a red, white, and blue flag pattern. In the foods category Phyllis Wendt of West Bend won a grand champion purple ribbon for her quick coffee cake and Di-

The carnival rides at this year's fair were given rave reviews. The Fair Park replaced Tip-Top-Shows with Rainbow Valley. The new carnival took up less green space then the previous vendor however none of the workers were allowed to smoke cigarettes while manning a game or a ride. Parents also said the carnival workers were courteous and helped many kids on and off the rides.

County Sheriff's Deputies reported one instance of 'weird but true.' That happened while they were passing out plastic badges. Deputies say a young man asked for a badge. He later returned and stated he was working under cover. The man then lifted his shirt and showed the deputies he had pinned the badge to his nipple. The man ended up working for the 'Body Works' booth, which was a piercing and tattooing shop out of Milwaukee.

The Town of Scott has agreed upon conditional approval for installation of a cell tower at the intersection of State Highway 28 and County Road A, on property owned by the town. The conditional approval was necessary in order to work out contract details. The next step is to have US Cellular meet with the Town Planning commission for terms of a conditional use permit. They will be meeting on Tuesday, August 3, at 8:00 p.m. Starting date for the project may be in 2004 or possibly be delayed until 2005, dependent upon US Cellular budget. The board anticipates a rental fee of $750 per month, adjustable annually with the CPI Index, with renewable increments every 5 years.

James McChain, County Road XX reported motorcycle problems occurring in his neighborhood. The group "moved in" on June 10th and is creating dust and extreme noise in the area. They usually begin their activity on his neighbor's property and run between the hours of 6 and 8:30 p.m. on weekends.

The board advised that McChain get pictures of the activity and notify the town constable so enforcement of the nuisance ordinance can be utilized.

The youth of Salem United Church of Christ on May 23rd celebrated their efforts to make a difference in the lives of people who have suffered from natural disasters - floods, tornadoes, avalanches, and other tragedies. They have addressed this issue through their weekly Sunday School offerings by helping to raise money for blankets to go to those in need supplied by Church World Service (CWS).

Each time a young person's gift was $10, a sheep was displayed on the church's Church World Service blanket display, which represented two blankets. The church is proud that the kids alone were able to donate 44 blankets.

The congregation of Salem United Church of Christ was invited by the youth of the church to meet or beat their goal to reach out and help those in need of disaster response. The youth along with the adult members of the church donated a total of $614.60 to help blanket the world with love.

Church World Service is a relief development and refugee assistance ministry of 35 Protestant, Orthodox and Anglican denominations and communions. Founded in 1946, Church World Service works in partnership with indigenous organizations in more than 80 countries world-wide supporting the sustainable self-help development of poor people meeting emergency and addressing the root cause of poverty and powerlessness.

We give thanks that the people of Salem United Church of Christ can make a difference in the lives of people who are in need when a natural disaster affects their lives. Reaching out is important for everyone.

Kiwanis Pow-Wow A Success

The Kewaskum Kiwanis "Pow Wow" Pete Peterson golf outing was an outstanding success!

Held at the Golf Club at Camelot on July 15th, over 120 golfers and dinner guests were in attendance. The beautiful weather was complimented by a delicious steak dinner and many, many door, golf and raffle prizes.

The Kiwanis Club would like to thank all those individuals and businesses who contributed prizes and money to the event. Without this support the Pow-Wow would not be nearly as successful. The club also extends special thanks and appreciation to the management of Camelot who contributed an extra round of golf to each participant as well as a gift pack of golf balls and tees. Estimated value of this gift was in excess of $3,800.

Plans are already being made for the next Pow-Wow to be held on July 21, 2005.

Individuals from Pat's Jiffy Stop were also evacuated from the gas station across the street. Everyone was allowed back in the building before noon. No injuries were reported

Miller's Migrating Mascot

BY SHERI BALDIKOWSKI
STATESMAN FEATURES EDITOR
sbaldikowski@kewaskumstatesman.com

Former Kewaskum resident, Connie Miller, daughter of Pearl and the late Fred Miller, has gained quite a bit of notoriety since last October and it is all due to a little, stuffed, English bulldog named AMS. Connie, who has taught learning disabled middle school children in Antigo, Wisconsin since 1977, was looking for a clever way to teach her students about their country. So using a train theme, she launched the school mascot, AMS (short for Antigo Middle School,) on Amtrak for the 2003/2004 school year.

Now AMS was no stranger to the road as previously, in 1996, he traveled by Greyhound (no relation) to Green Bay. Then, in 1977, he and Miller went on a ten-day summer truck convoy with trucker, Thurley Riley. Not knowing the meaning of the word "stay", AMS headed out with another truck driver in 1999 for the whole school year. So, with all this travel "savvy," there simply was no better candidate for the train trip than AMS.

Under the guidance of Amtrak employees watching over him, AMS was sent on his way from Portage, Wisconsin, resting comfortably in a pet carrier with a disposable camera and self-addressed envelopes.

AMS was decorated with souvenirs and dozens of letters and photographs were sent back to Connie's class in Antigo. He became quite the little celebrity in Texas by being made an honorary Texan, meeting the Longview Mayor, and staying at the exclusive St. Regis Hotel in Houston. It was also in Texas that Connie was asked to join him at an upscale Houston restaurant, Oulsie's Table.

AMS brought a lot of smiles to Amtrak employees as he logged on over 20,000 miles across the country with them, before returning back home to Antigo in May.

Miller, who is legally blind, also has quite an interesting background.

She has been a teacher for 32 years, and has always taught in a sighted school, to students with learning disabilities. She feels her disability has played a key role in her quest for alternative teaching methods. Sending a toy mascot out into the world is not a new idea, but Connie thinks it helps her students remember and learn things easier. It also enables them to relate better to the cities in the United States.

Ever since Miller was hired at Antigo Middle School, her alternative teaching methods have been recognized as being truly unique. On a typical day as her students file into her classroom, Connie identifies them by voice. When a student has a question or knows an answer, they call out their name as opposed to an unseen hand being raised.

Absentees are recorded on the blackboard by Connie who writes with her right hand while she touches the blackboard with her left hand so she knows where she is writing. She marks off each writing segment on the blackboard with a magnet, so she will know where to start again on the blackboard for the next entry.

Reading lessons are accomplished in a different way also, with the aid of a computer program that reads text out loud while the students read along with the words on the screen. Students read their writing assignments out loud to Connie and she corrects them audibly. But to add diversity, she mixes it up sometimes and has the students correct each other's papers, while other times she relies on her assistant, Gail Bishop.

AMS was only a part of the train learning experience as Miller's entire classroom was covered with train paraphernalia. Besides the numerous books, drawings and videos about trains throughout her classroom, she also had the students chairs arranged like train booths or ticket booths. Even the door to her classroom demonstrated the gateway to her theme by being decorated like the front of a locomotive.

Every year Connie has a different "learning" theme and her former students come back to see what the current year's decorations will be. However, Connie does not reveal the next year's theme until school resumes in fall.

Connie has turned learning around for many of her students who have gone from hating math and reading, to loving it. Many of her former students accolade her as one of their best teachers.

The road for Connie Miller was not easy but she ensued and went forward to accomplish great things despite her blindness. When Connie was born premature, she was put in an incubator filled with pure oxygen. This was back in the time when it was unknown that too much oxygen could lead to blindness in infants. Her first eight years were spent in Kewaskum in which time she also attended Cardinal Stritch College to learn the alphabet by feeling tactile books.

Miller moved to Apple Valley, California with her parents and sister, Candi, when she was eight and attended sighted schools, earning her teaching certificate at Pomona College in Claremont, California.

daughter, Joan, moved back to Kewaskum in 1974. She taught eighth grade at Kewaskum's Holy Trinity School, while studying and receiving her master's degree from Cardinal Stritch College in Milwaukee in their Learning Disabilities Program.

However, even with these impressive credentials, when Miller wanted to move on, she was surprised at the numerous rejections she received from the Wisconsin School Districts, who were apprehensive about hiring a teacher that had approximately only five percent vision by this time.

Finally, in 1977, Antigo took a chance on Connie and the rest is history. Whether it is her yearly themes or her specialized teaching techniques, the school is not sure, but one thing is for sure, her students all care a great deal for her and they DO learn math and reading in her class.

Since the article on AMS the bulldog was printed in USA Today in February of 2004, Connie has been interviewed by a National Radio talk show host and also had a story on the local CBS affiliate news station in Antigo. The article has been picked up from as far away as Australia, Africa, New Zealand, and the Caribbean and has even had some press in English newspapers in Rome. She also was approached to be the keynote speaker in Waukegan, Illinois at the YWCA Convention. Last April a feature article was done on Miller and printed in the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

One of Connie's highest honors, however, was being nominated for the annual "Disney Hand" teacher of the year award. Since 1989, Disney's prestigious awards have saluted only 450 exemplary teachers in pre-kindergarten through twelfth grade for innovative teaching methods that actively engage students in learning.

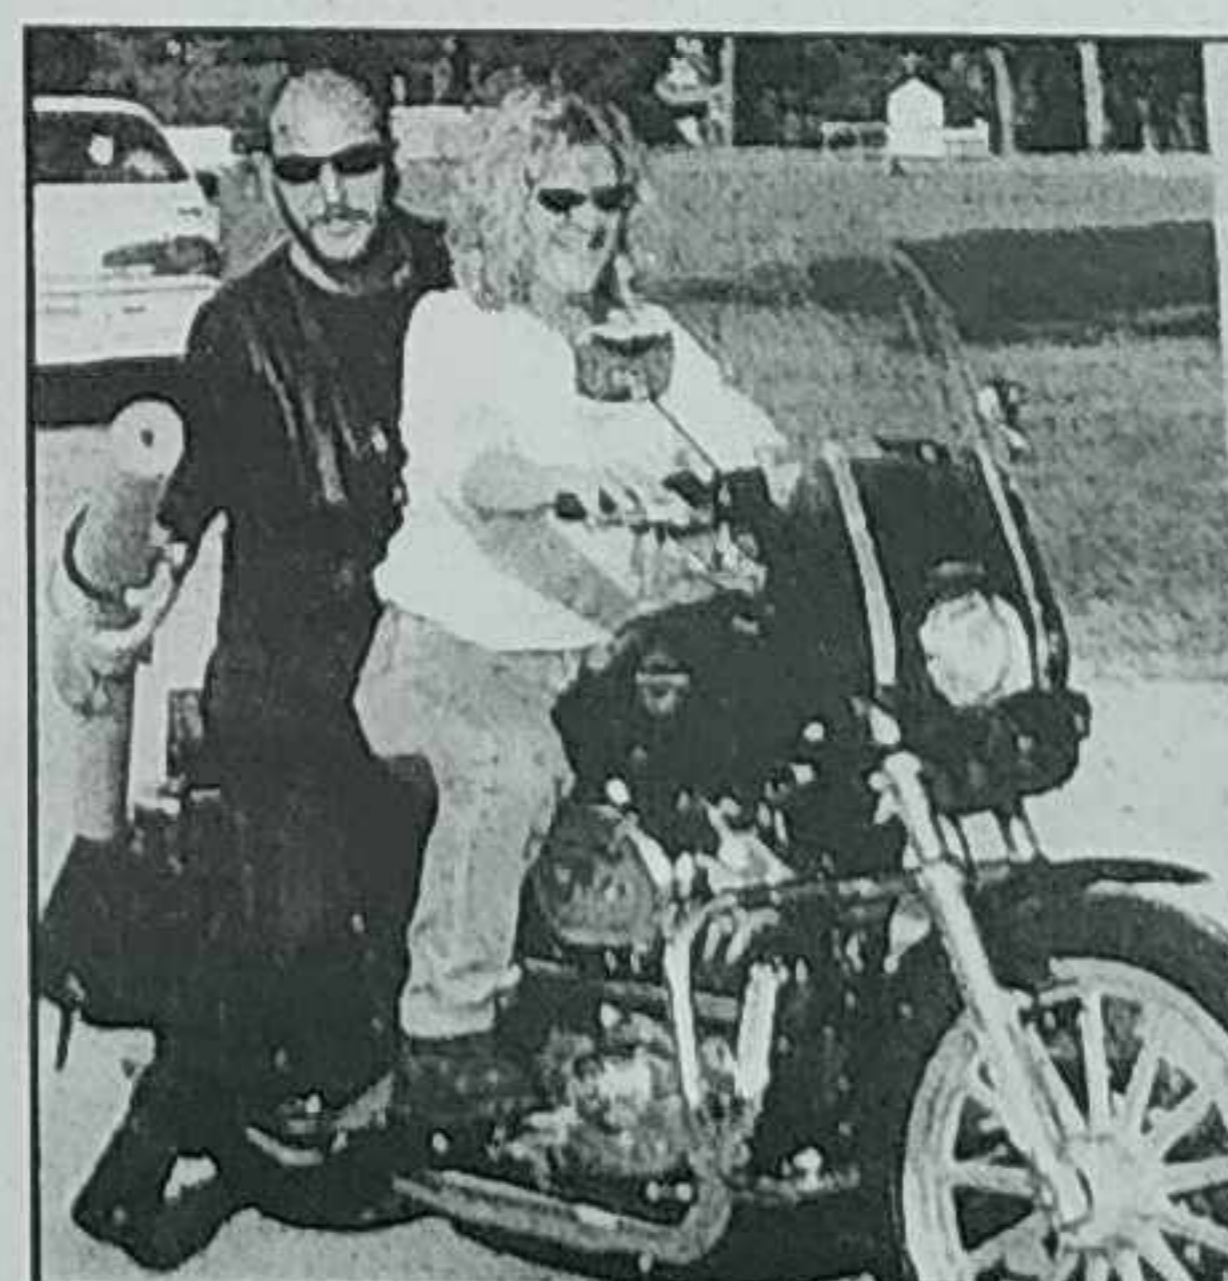

The focus of the Disney Hand Teachers Award is to recognize the teaching profession, showcase creativity in the classroom and honor those who can develop creative teaching strategies in their school district. Therefore, to even be considered for this award is a real "feather" in Miller's cap.

Connie's intelligence and persistence help her achieve what she aspires to get done as witnessed by the notoriety that "AMS" received. She feels being blind just presents new challenges in reaching those goals and objectives. It is obvious that Connie views life as "just a bowl of cherries," and her glass is always "half full" instead of "half empty."

Wisconsin State Firefighters Memorial Poker Run Saturday

The Wisconsin State Firefighters Memorial Fund Raising Committee is hosting a Poker Run along with Bob's Harley-Davidson, Cambellsport, Kekoskee, Juneau, Ashippun, and Richfield Fire Departments on Saturday, July 31, 2004.

Registration begins at 8:30 AM, Presentation of colors at 11 AM, Ride begins at 11:30 AM. The cost is $25.00 for a single rider cycle and $40.00 for a two-rider cycle.

All the proceeds from this fund raiser will go towards the construction of the Wisconsin State Firefighters Memorial in Wisconsin Rapids. This memorial is dedicated to those that have died in the line of duty, along with a tribute to those that have made a significant impact on the fire service in Wisconsin.

It is anticipated the center piece of the park-- a statue of two firefighters pulling on a third trapped firefighter will be completed by September 3rd. At that time, the statue will take a tour of the state of Wisconsin on its way home to Wisconsin Rapids.

"Corporate support has been great," said Ron Naab, the fund raising chair. "Businesses such as Pepsi Cola, WOW Distributing Company, Country Mart of Richfield, Kwik-Trip, Hansen's Piggly Wiggly, Schulteis Sanitation, Bob's Harley-Davidson and many more have donated money, food, merchandise, and much more," Naab went on to say.

If the weather is good, the committee expects a very big turnout of firefighters and civilians from all over the state. Every fire department has been asked to wear a department shirt. "The ride is not limited to motorcycles only, one can ride in the convoy with a car, truck or motorcycle," said Terry Beine, a member of the steering committee for the Poker Run.

At Bob's there will be a very impressive kick-off with the presentation of colors. When the convoy arrives at Richfield, there will be a short memorial service to honor those that have died while serving others and their community, followed by a reception in Richfield Firefighters Park [to the rear of Fire Station #1 on STH 175] featuring music by the "Badger Crew."

"We have plenty of food and beverages for those that attend. The party is not limited to only riders, the general public is invited to support this fund drive," said Dennis Sprenger of the Richfield Fire Department. There will be raffles for many items and services during the night along with some other very entertaining venues.

For more information visit the W.S.F.M. website-- www.wsfm.org or call Ron Naab 262-629-9749.

Songs and Stories of the Lumberjack at State Parks

Escanaba, Michigan based folksinger, Bill Jamerson, will be performing a musical program "Songs and Stories of the Lumberjack" at the Kettle Moraine State Parks. The performance will take place at the Pike Lake Unit on Friday, August 6th at 8 p.m. and at the Northern Unit on August 7 at 7 p.m. Performing with his guitar, Jamerson will be playing and singing traditional lumberjack songs plus a couple original songs about the Civilian Conservation Corps who were largely responsible for replanting the national forests during the Great Depression.

Some of the songs Jamerson performs are "A Lumberjack's Life," "The Story of Jack Haggerty," "Boys in the Pine," "Riverjack's Grave," "Sixteen Men in a Pine Slab Bunk," and "The Little Eau Pleine." The stories and songs depict life in the lumbercamps, from the food they ate to their many jobs in the woods. There are songs about living in a bunkhouse, broken hearted lumberjacks and the dangerous job of river hogs. The songs range from foot stomping jigs to soulful ballads. Many of the songs are based on real events and were passed on from camp to camp over many states. Jamerson also tells bunkhouse stories that were often told on the "deacon's bench," including tall tales of the dangerous hoop snake, the side hill gulger and the story of "Pete Bateese" who outwitted a pack of wolves.

Jamerson is a former award winning PBS filmmaker who was Michigan's leading producer of programs on Michigan history in the 1990's. He now performs musical programs in schools, libraries, festivals and community concerts. His songs are about people both ordinary and extra-ordinary, about events that helped shape who we are as Americans. His songs contain stories of strength, wit and charm. They

MAY MURPHY THIBAUDEAU

May Murphy Thibaudeau, 96, died on Friday, July 23, 2004, at St. Luke's South Hospital, Cudahy, Wis.

May Murphy Thibaudeau was born on May 8, 1908, in a company house at Nasboro, Wis., where her father, Hugh I. Murphy, was a stone quarry superintendent.

She was a graduate from St. Mary's Springs Academy in 1925. She attended Milwaukee State Teachers College in 1926 and 1927. She returned in 1972 to receive a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

In 1941 she married Raymond J. Thibaudeau. The marriage produced seven children. He preceded her in death on Oct. 25, 1994.

After teaching at one-room schools in Fond du Lac County, fourth grade in city schools of Peshtigo and third grade at St. Mary's School in South Milwaukee, May Murphy Thibaudeau accompanied by her husband, began the travel and research needed to write an organized account of Frederick Layton, the man who in 1888 made viewing art by the public west of New York possible. As a child, she had stayed for a short period in the Layton home where her father's sister, Kate Murphy, was the housekeeper. This research provided the information needed when Layton was designated an ideal art patron by the Smithsonian. The book is titled, "For The Good of Others: Life and Times of Frederick Layton"

In 1893, 13 men in South Milwaukee, feeling certain that they would be employed by Bucyrue Erie, which had gotten the contract to make shovels for the Colebra Cut in the Panama Canal from the French government, mortgaged their homes to get money to build St. Mary's Church. For the one hundredth anniversary, Thibaudeau wrote a play, "Anonymous Men," that was well received.

Other books told of the Irish settlers in Sheboygan County, "I Shall Not Die I Shall Live on In You," life during World War II, a book of poetry, a children's book and many short articles.

She is survived by daughters, Adele F. Thibaudeau OSE, of Milwaukee, Yvonne (Gordon) Moyer of North Miami, Fla., Clairese (Gregg) Huenekens of Libertyville, Ill., Camille (James) Meyers of Kenosha, Valerie (Wayne) Graczyk of Fond du Lac, and Marguerite (Peter) Rekittke of Berlin, Germany; one son, Raymond "Hugh" (Diane) Thibaudeau of Marietta, Ga.; grandchildren, Amy Huenekens, Chad Huenekens, Michelle Moyer, Monique Moyer, Madelyn Moyer, Laura Meyers, Justin Meyers, Eva Graczyk, Heidi Graczyk, Christiana Rekittke, Johannes Rekittke, Emma Thibaudeau and Clair Thibaudeau; four great-grandchildren; relatives and friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Hugh I. Murphy and Laura Brown Murphy; and her husband, Raymond J. Thibaudeau.

May Murphy Thibaudeau will be buried at Dundee, where her mother, grandparents and husband are interred.

A Mass of Christian Burial will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 29, 2004, at Divine Mercy Church of South Milwaukee. The Rev. James Lovacz will officiate. Burial will be at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 30, 2004, at the Sacred Heart Cemetery, Dundee, where her mother, grandparents and husband are interred.

Visitation will be from 4 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, July 29, 2004, at Divine Mercy Catholic Church, formerly St. Mary's Catholic Church, on Manitoba and 13th Ave., South Milwaukee.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be directed to the May Murphy Thibaudeau Writers Award at Thomas More High School, 2601 E. Morgan Ave., Milwaukee, WI 53221.

Twohig Funeral Home, Fond du Lac, is serving the family.

If you have siblings – or even if you don't – you know how tight that bond can be. Maybe you fought like crazy as kids, maybe you haven't spoken in years, but if your sibling really needed you, chances are, you'd run to the rescue. You'd do almost anything for your brother or sister, but would you keep silent about a murder? That's one of the questions in the new novel "One False Move" by Alex Kava (c.2004, Mira Books).

Jared Barnett has been in trouble almost all his life. For the past few years, Barnett's been in prison for a brutal murder, but now, thanks to sleazy Attorney Max Kramer and a witness who recants, Barnett is out of jail. Almost as soon as he becomes a free man, he calls his sister, Melanie Starks, and tells her he needs her help.

Melanie has tried hard to put her past behind her. She and Jared grew up in an abusive home, but they survived it together. Melanie has worked hard to keep herself in shape, and she's raised a son, Charlie, who's now seventeen years old. Charlie's a scammer with a goofy adolescent sense of humor, and a whiz at theft – an art he learned from his mother – and Mel, who taught him well, adores him.

Grace Wenninghoff is the attorney who put Jared Barnett behind bars, and she's nervous about Barnett's release. Barnett keeps popping up in the places that Grace regularly visits. Could Jared Barnett be stalking Grace?

Crime novelist Andrew Kane has a serious case of writer's block. No idea seems like a good idea for his next novel, and the broken collar bone he's recovering from isn't helping his mood. Kane's pal, cop Tommy Pakula, has a remote cabin, though, and that might be just the place to get the ol' brain jump-started. When a planned bank robbery goes bad, Melanie notices that Jared keeps yelling to someone on his cell phone. Who is it that gets Jared so riled? As Melanie is reluctantly pulled deeper into Jared's scheme, everyone becomes entangled into a tornado of crime that includes a cross-country killing spree, a man who seems to want to be caught, and one very unforgettable week.

While I don't normally like a book with so darn many characters, I really enjoyed "One False Move". Melanie is the most unlikely heroine you'll ever meet in any book. She's a criminal and she admits it, but although she tries hard to be a better person, you get the impression that she's shrugged her shoulders and goes with the flow. Her resignation at her lot in life is rather appealing, because it's something you don't find in very many crime novel "bad guys".

Be aware that this book contains an awful lot of language that might make you squirm, and a few really bloody scenes. If you don't mind that, "One False Move" is a book you'll truly like.

I have a fish story to share with you. It's not one of those fish stories where the size of the fish grows each time the story is told. It's a story of how bad things often happen to good people.

My friend, let's call her "Karen" to protect her identity, has a 10 year-old son, "Jack" who was eager to go fishing with his dad on Father's Day this summer. Because Dad wasn't planning on doing any fishing himself and Jack was still young enough to fish without a license, they headed off to the beautiful brown shore of the Milwaukee River, without stopping for a license.

As it was told to me, Jack was having trouble casting, so his sportsman-like father took control of the pole to cast for Jack. As luck would have it, that one time that Dad cast out for Jack, he was being watched – probably not for his undoubtedly professional style. After Dad handed the pole back to Jack, two park Rangers appeared – not to wish him a happy Father's Day – to check his fishing license.

Dad explained to the Rangers that he was not fishing, but he was just there spending a quiet Sunday morning watching his son fish. The Rangers quickly pointed out that they saw Dad with a pole, casting out and issued him a quiet Sunday morning citation. Dad showed the Rangers that he and his son weren't catching any fish. Anything Jack caught was thrown back into the river. No deal. The park Rangers, who were probably being paid time and a half didn't buy it. They wished him a happy Father's Day and went on their way to find their next innocent victim. Probably a mother and daughter who were picnicking on a blue and white checkered blanket instead of a red and white checkered blanket – illegal picnicking.

A few days later, a letter arrived at my friend's home from the Rangers. It wasn't a Father's Day card. It was a ticket for $180. Karen, said she could run a red light twice and get ticketed for less than that. An innocent Sunday morning fishing trip cost them half a canoe, without the paddles!

This story prompted a conversation on the sport of catch and release fishing. I still don't get it. You get all dressed up, pack a tackle box full of dead bugs and worms, stand or sit somewhere for hours on end in the blazing sun, or pouring rain and then you finally catch a fish, give yourself a big hooray and throw it back. You get nothing!

That's why there isn't a sport called catch-and-release shopping. You don't spend hours in an air conditioned mall to find the perfect outfit, try it on to find it fits perfectly and then put it back on the rack and walk away totally satisfied. That will never happen. You don't need a license to shop and the clerk-rangers are there to help you find more perfect outfits!

I've sent my husband out fishing for dinner, while I go shopping. I'm taking the van, he's taking a canoe! Enjoy!

Bush Tax Cuts Boost Employment in Wisconsin

WASHINGTON - Wisconsin employers continued to hire in May, adding 8,900 jobs, according to a new report from the Labor Department. Many analysts claim that the increases in employment around the country are a result of the growth tax policies promoted by the Bush Administration and in Congress. In fact, over the past year, employment has increased in 46 states and the unemployment rate has declined in 47 states.

Since the 2003 tax cut was implemented last June, 60,800 private sector jobs have been created for Wisconsin residents. The state unemployment rate has declined from its peak of 5.6 in July to 5.0. Along with the steady increase in employment, after tax incomes are also rising, leaving consumers feeling confident in moving forward.

"The tax cut has finally returned money back into the hands of the people who earn it and the economic benefits are now following," said Grover Norquist, president of Americans for Tax Reform and taxpayer advocate. "Cutting taxes on savings and investment has led to record breaking job growth, just as the Reagan tax cuts did in the 1980's."

Nationally, the employment numbers have surged. Last month a remarkable 248,000 jobs were added to the American workforce. Since the tax cut last June, 1.4 million jobs have been created around the U.S. The current unemployment rate is down from 6.1 percent to 5.6 percent which is lower than the averages of the 70s, 80s and 90s. It is evident that the success statistics of Wisconsin are not alone in their economic turnaround.

"Pessimism has never created a job in America," continued Norquist. "Those who continue to call for repealing the tax cuts and talk down America's growing economy for political purposes are providing no benefit to American taxpayers or the economy. The economy skyrocketed following the tax cut and it's no coincidence this surge in job growth followed. To keep this momentum going the Bush cuts should be made permanent.

Substitute Training For Degree Holders

Are you looking for a job opportunity that offers flexibility, variety and the chance to share your talents and experience? Many schools are hiring individuals with college degrees, but not teaching degrees, to work as substitute teachers. Substitute teaching offers the chance to become more involved with the schools in your district, to work on the days that fit into your schedule, to decide the age group of students you are comfortable working with, and to choose the classes you would like to teach, without taking home any work related problems.

To help decide if substitute teaching is something you would like to pursue, a valuable Substitute Teacher Training Seminar is being offered in the area. The presenters are Sherry Petersen and Sandy Mayernick, D.P.I. endorsed instructors, and active substitute teachers themselves. This one day, comprehensive program will be held on Tuesday, August 24, 2004, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Lakeland College, W3718 South Drive, Plymouth. A Bachelor's Degree in any area is all you need to participate. The seminar will introduce you to the field of substitute teaching by covering the general expectations of a substitute teacher, pertinent information on health issues, successful discipline techniques, hints for working with students who have special needs, along with many ideas, tips, and recommendations to acquaint you with this rewarding career.

For further information about his training seminar, or to register to attend, please contact Sandy at 262-968-4422 or Sherry at 262-968-4302. Registration deadline is August 14, 2004. This program will fulfill the Department of Public Instruction's (DPI) requirement of training for persons with a Bachelor's Degree (but not a teaching degree) and will qualify you for a three-year substitute teacher permit. Please register early - attendance will be limited. All you need is your college degree and a positive attitude! See how you can make a difference in a child's life!

From Kewaskum to South Dakota...On a Bike?

Judy Steffes in her biking ensemble from Mountain Outfitters of West Bend.

WBKV's Judy Steffes recently went on a bicycle tour to Mount Rushmore in South Dakota. She left July 1st. Here are portions of her travel journal:

Day two of my trek to South Dakota. I'm writing from the Prairie Du Sac Library in Prairie Du Sac. The place used to be a fire station. Have 37 miles under my belt so far. It's 10:15 a.m. and I'm hoping to get in a good 80 miles today.

Made it out of town on Thursday by 10:30 a.m. First major rest stop was off Hwy 33 in Horicon at the Kwik Trip. Interesting that the gas station on the east end of Horicon had regular and mid-grade at $1.89 a gallon. But then seven blocks west and around the turn the Kwik Trip had prices at $1.87.

Plotted my course while sitting in the sun. Toured the store and found they are selling some unique cookies, trying to make a buck on Horicon's annoying goose population. The plastic container next to the register was tagged 'Duck - duck - poo.' The clerk said it was microwave chocolate chip cookie dough, with one end dipped in powdered sugar. Obviously, the cookie was made to look like a duck or goose dropping. 'REALLY GOOD', she said. I took her word for it.

Cruised down Hwy 33 into Beaver Dam. Stopped at a fireworks stand to get directions on the back roads tour to Rio. Amy, the attendant, was helpful. She knew all the back roads. She also gave directions via landmarks. I find people either use 'street names' or 'landmarks' when giving directions. Amy was landmarks. She also had a corner on the market regarding 'the long way' or 'a short-cut.'

While she told me the 'long way' I got distracted by the fireworks. Mind still wandering, I wondered how cool it would be to attach a smoke bomb to the rear of my bike and have a picture taken. It would look like I was going like the wind with a streak of white smoke trailing behind my bike. I shared my plan with Amy and she proceeded to sell me a pair of green smoke bombs, the size of a strawberry. She had some clear tape and attached the bomb to the base of my bike pump, which hung a good eight inches off my bike rack.

A guy named Paul pulled up to the stand looking to buy 'the loudest fire cracker they had.' I recruited him for the experiment. He was not really my kind of guy, and I guess I was using him... but, Paul had a lighter. Sorry to say, you don't get much bang for your buck, spending just fifty cents on a pair of smoke bombs.

So we upgraded. Amy had a thing called 'Mammoth Smoke' she was selling for $3.00. She claimed the eight inch smoke bomb would leave a trail of white smoke for up to two minutes. She also ruffled through her purse for a buck. Amy was chipping in 'for the cause.' I figured it must have been a boring day at the fireworks stand.

I coaxed Paul to kick in a dollar as well. Paul stood at the ready with his lighter while Amy worked the tape. I do not remember Paul so much for his spark, or his buck, but he had this shirt. He said it was homemade. It had drawings of eagles heads. They were on either side of the button down shirt, and the necks of the birds came out of his armpits. The eagles looked like he had drawn them with chalk. They were bald eagles and the beaks were biting the button on the pockets on his shirt.

The drawings were O.K. except the profile of the eagle didn't look right. For some reason Paul drew two eyes on the profile. That made the bird lose it's 'majestic' status. The gooly eyed eagle, lost its Goliath appeal and took on more of a Beaugard status.

Paul seemed to like eagles. He had ripped the sleeves off his homemade shirt so he could show off the eagle tattoos on his arms. He must have had the art work done the same year he created his shirt because it was difficult to see the detail of the birds under the thick mat of arm hair. Especially on the back of his arms.

By the time I was about done picking apart Paul's hairy anatomy, Amy finished taping the smoke bomb. The monster bomb looked impressive. It had wavy writing on the outside of the packaging. Kind of like words written in water and then someone sent a ripple through the print.

Amy had my camera, Paul lit the fuse and I was off. I pedaled across the Piggly Wiggly parking lot at what seemed to be 'amazing speed.' Thick, white smoke trailing behind me. Little children started to point and scream 'I want one!' Amy yelled, that if the cops came by I'd be responsible for paying the ticket. Paul grinned and puffed out his chest with eagle shirt, proud that his lighter was responsible for the circus.

After Beaver Dam I passed through Falls River. Nice town, new roads and Pabst signs marked every tavern. Millies Place looked like it had seen better days. Green and gold were popular colors in Falls River. One woman was sporting a very colorful sunflower patten on her culotte. I felt relief in a way, because it seemed she probably used up the entire bolt of that particular material. Down the street, somebody made their car into the General Lee. That was sure to be the chick magnet of Falls River.

Made my way onto Rio. Got in 65 miles on the day. Stayed with Sally Momberg. Sally had pictures of her five grown kids on the wall. Her hobby, was tiring out the grandkids.

Stopped at the Hometown Cafe in Rio this morning for breakfast and directions. The Hometown had a pile of pies on the counter. A clear, plastic lid covered the tower which had pecan on the top, apple in the middle and pumpkin on the base. On the wall were two signs: 'Fishermen and Other Liars gather here.' and 'La Reyna no Cocina.' Nobody at the diner knew how to translate. My waitress said it was something like, 'the cook is the queen.'

The Cafe had 'home toast.' As a matter of fact, the waitress was dumping freshly made loaves on the back counter. They were huge, golden yellow and airy. The bread looked like you could stick a sail in the loaf and float it down the river.

The Rio rotary had gathered at the table behind me. Bunch of smart talkers who said they envied my trip but not my mode of transportation. One of the fellas said he worked at West Bend Mutual. I dropped a couple of names of employees, he said he wasn't familiar with them. His buddies, said he tried not to visit the office on a regular basis.

Through Poynette and onto Lodi. Stopped at the Kwik

Trip and dug an old issue of USA Today out of the garbage. Sat in the sun to catch up on yesterday's news and an old man harped, 'You'll never catch Lance just sitting there!' The guy reminded me of the Dwight Yokum character in the movie 'Slingblade.' His comments were said with spite, but he'd smile... and say he was just kidding.

Mrs. Friendly followed behind. She walked with baby steps and a cane. She wore a black t-shirt that said 'Class of 2000.' When I asked if she really graduated just four years ago she grabbed her black, dyed hair and said, "Are you kidding?? I got this shirt on sale for $5 and it was the only one I could find today." The old lady matched the shirt with very green pants and white moccasins. It was a fashion statement for Lodi.

On the way out of the Kwik Trip the old man stopped on the concrete ramp to the parking lot and yelled, 'COME HERE.' He then took his cane and pointed to a quarter on the ground. His hands were full with a Caribou coffee in one and three Krispy Kreme donuts in the other. He shuffled on. Baby step wife, stumbled to the base of the quarter and looked down through her blue blocker glasses. She shifted her cane from her left hand to her right and back to her left. Getting the quarter was becoming an event of Olympic proportions.

With cane in left hand and right hand braced on a cement parking pylon, the old woman managed to retrieve the quarter. By that time the old man had poured himself into his very wide car. He rolled down the window and yelled, 'Give it here!' I would have paid the old lady fifty cents to drop it and tell him to get it himself.

But who am I kidding, I would have been happier if she had lost the handle, dropped the quarter and moved on. Then I could have picked it up.

Got in a longer ride than expected on Friday. While heading out of Rio I considered staying in Richland Center. Weather was good and so were the roads so I continued to Gays Mills. Lots of hills in these parts. Thinking about adding the book 'Flat Roads of Crawford County' to my littlest library. There was a big climb into Boaz and then a few minor hills through the apple orchard before a big drop into Gays.

The decline had a warning to use low gear. 'It is not that I don't LIKE the downhills, but with the gear and my skinny tires I have as much delicate balance as a waitress serving a tray of drinks while wearing painted on pants and stiletto heels. My top speeds so far have been about 40. I fluttered my brakes while going down and thought it interesting that a Sheriff's Deputy passed me with a wary eye.

Two more turns and I'm still picking up speed. The deputy was now perched, off to my right sitting at a wayside. I was not fluttering the brakes anymore as much as I was strangling them. I feared the friction would heat up the rims and blow the tires. Managed to make it to the bottom of the hill exhausted. Found out later that day that a guy on a motorcycle died on the hill the night before. He crashed at the top, but his bike continued down the mile long hill and came to rest in Shirley Steusey's front yard.

Made my way out of Gays this morning, headed for the Mississippi River and the cross into Iowa. Had a good drop from Mt. Sterling into Ferryville. It was similar to the hill out of Boaz only this time I lost my radio signal, the temperature dropped, and at the bottom of the hill there was the top half of the statue of liberty buried in the sand.

Had light showers crossing into Lansing. Interesting bridge over the Mississippi. It is a steel grid with a huge pitch in the middle for boat traffic. With the rain, the crossing was very unsettling. Figured I'd catch breakfast as my reward. Stopped at a diner on the river. Walked in to find a tavern with the restaurant in the back. Sat at the bar to watch the weather and a guy sat down beside me and ordered a captain and coke. It was 9:45 am. I figured I'd forego breakfast and get back on the road, while it was safe.

At the Robey Memorial Library in Waukon. Neat town. Lots of shops. Gas is $1.73 a gallon. Both regular and mid-grade. The Kwik-Trips are now Kwik-Stars. I may try to find a church and spend the night here or continue onto Decorah, which is about twenty miles west. Feeling a little spent today, but I figure the rain and the 113 mi from yesterday are catching up to me. I'll play it by ear.

Saturday July 3rd - - Gays Mills to Decorah, Iowa. 65 miles in 5 hours. I HEART Decorah, Iowa. This city is unbelievable. It's a mix of Norman Rockwell with a hip shot of 20th century groove.

My first stop was an antique store. It was actually in a garage. The owner, Nancy, said she had been living out of her garage for the past 22 years. I don't know why I stopped. I can't buy anything because I'm not about to carry anything else. It was torture. She had a lot of cool things like an orange ash tray resting in a black stand with a golden antelope leaping over the tray. $25.00. There was a Saturday Evening Post of the Beatles, dated March 1964. $20.00.

She had a bunch of old radios stacked neatly on a shelf. Admirals, Musicare, Delco,

A's Gain Split with Oakfield Bike

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT

Talk about contrasting games!

In the opener of a double-header played at Oakfield on Sunday, the Kewaskum Athletics home talent baseball team was blasted 12-0, but in the nightcap, Jim Ziegler's pitching and the clutch hitting of Ty Schill, Jason Strobel and Jake Panzer produced a 2-1 victory over the Oaks.

With the split, the A's are 8-6 in the Rock River League and 12-13 overall.

"We're still fighting for the final playoff spot," Ziegler, one of the Athletics' spokesmen, said Sunday after the marathon day of baseball.

There weren't many highlights in the first game, according to Ziegler, who said, "They (Oaks) scored eight runs in the first inning They just put it in play. They found the holes."

After the rocky first inning, starter Adam Sarauer settled down and only gave up one run the rest of the way.

"We had nine hits. Jake Panzer had two, and all the others had one hit ... Eight out of nine guys had hits," Ziegler went on, noting, "We just couldn't put anything together" against the Oaks, who piled up 18 hits.

In the second game, the A's scored single runs in the first and third innings, then Ziegler and Chris Morgan settled down in a pitchers' duel Ziegler was happy to win.

Leadoff man Ty Schill started the A's off on the right foot, singling in the first inning. Steve Ketter followed with a double, but Schill had to hold at third. He wasn't there for long, however, as player/manager Jason Strobel stroked a single for a 1-0 A's lead.

Schill was the rally igniter again in the third frame. He singled and stole second, then Panzer singled, so Schill moved over to third and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Ketter.

The Oaks' lone run off Ziegler came in the bottom of the third on a hit, stolen base, error and hit. It was an earned run, according to Ziegler, who said he gave up six hits, while striking out two and walking five.

Morgan had an impressive 11 strikeouts and one walk.

He gave up five hits in taking the loss.

"We had a guy on third with two outs in the ninth," Ziegler said, reporting the runner was left stranded, and the Oaks left the bases loaded in the eighth.

The hosts also threatened in the seventh, but Jason Strobel's throw from the outfield was right on the money to gun down Andy Collien, who tried to score from second base.

"There was a collision at the plate. Adam (Sarauer) hung on to get the last out of the inning," Ziegler said.

Another sparkling defensive play was turned in by second baseman Nick Whitty in one of the late innings. Whitty made a great diving play to his left and threw to Ziegler who was covering first.

"We played some good defense in the second game" after committing three errors in the first, Ziegler said.

The As are at Oconomowoc Saturday for their final Tri-County games of the season. On Sunday, they host Rubicon in a key Rock River contest.

Sentinal, and Silvertone. Nancy's favorite pieces were her brown and white transfer ware. They were white dishes with intricate brown patterns.

Nancy let me use her phone to call the pastor in town to see if he would let me stay in the church hall for the night. After several unsuccessful calls Nancy deemed it too much work and said I could stay at her place. "By the way, I'm leaving for the night so would you mind watching my place," she asked. Her home dated back to 1910. Nancy's husband had died several years ago and she was going to visit friends for the fourth of July. I thought that was a lot of trust, established in ten short minutes.

Bicycled around town a bit and saw the neatest things. All the shops on Decorah's Main Street were cool, independent businesses that tried to team with the store next door. LaRana Bistro was Nancy's favorite eatery. They were upper class but comfortable. Wood floor and wood bar with Anchor Steam beer and Guinness on tap. Other selections lined a glass shelf above the back bar including a 16 ounce can of Old Speckled Hen and Schell Pilsner. Their menu was mid-priced and the dessert list started with Carmel Pecan Cheesecake.

The theme they shared with the Spa next door was frogs. The spa was closed but had a frog on the tin sign out front. The restaurant had a black door jam in the shape of a frog and their screen door had a tin sign that read 'Ask for Kleen Maid Bread.'

The ice cream shop in Decorah was called the Whippy Dip. They had two bicycle shops. Mike, from Oneota River Cycles gave me a map and filled up my bottle of bike cleaner. Both, free of charge.

Down the street from the Whippy Dip there were kids floating down the Iowa River on black inner tubes. There were silver baskets of Polly wave petunias hanging from every light pole. There were kids on bicycles. Adults too. Some were giving me the 'evil eye' but I found it was because I was riding in the street. Decorah has marked bike paths on their sidewalks. It was amazing.

Back downtown there was the Magpie Coffee House with no charge Internet. Wade's Window Burgers which was a window, with a menu on the wall. You could order a wide selection of a burger, brat, taco, taco-dog, hot dog, malt or float. The place could have been mistaken for a simple apartment window with a slidy screen. I'm thinking it was an easy place for a health inspector to miss. There were no customer's outside Wades.

On the corner wall of Water and Winnebago was the Dolan Snyder Pharmacy. There was a detailed, color mural of what the corner used to look like in 1898. There picture showed Ben Bear Square. It was a shop with 'fine clothing' written on the front window. There was also a sandwich board on the street that read: This is the place to get your spring suit.

Off the main drag I found the schools. The red brick building was undergoing major construction. The front of the school had Decorah High School engraved near the top of the building. Underneath, in white letters was Decorah Middle School. Next door to the brick building was a series of small trailers. The front door of one had a sign that read 'Mrs. Procter's portable 5th grade.'

Ran into a man named Lanny at the VFW. "It's short for Landis," he said. Landis was a retired barber who reminded me of the lead singer from The Blues Travelers. He had a round face and square glasses that magnified his eyes. It looked like he had heavy lids and bulging eyes, kind of like a turtle.

Landis was 61 years old and said he returned home to the place where he got his first job as a barber at age 17. "Everyone wanted their hair cut like Elvis," he said. The Beatles came along and put him out of business. "Nobody came in for a hair cut because it took them three months to just grow it out."

Landis was sporting a white ponytail. It was pretty unkept for a former barber. He also had white pork chop sideburns. His whiskers blended with the long hair coming out of his ears. Landis also had white, Nike running shoes that probably never ran a step. He also had black socks, kind of like Michael Jordan but with his doughy white legs they just did not seem Jordanisque. He had some unfortunate black shorts and a black shirt, silver and turquoise bracelet and a straw cowboy hat.

Landis clicked his teeth together when he talked. I think he was popping his ill fitting dentures back into place. He drank Miller tap beers and smoked Marlboro lights and had a rubber band for his hair wrapped around his lighter.

He said he felt comfortable in Decorah. He told me to go look at the minuteman statue at the courthouse square. He said it was a target for high school pranks. The latest was a kid who scaled the statue and put a white baseball cap atop the minute man's head. He said the kid fell while climbing down and broke both his arms.

I walked across the street and down the block to the statue. It was about two and a half stories tall and on top of the gray, concrete minute man was a white baseball cap.

After getting past my obvious obsession with my new best friend Landis, I decided to move on and notice other things about Iowa.

Stay tuned next week to see what Judy noticed about Iowa.

Parrent Stops Astros in Their Tracks

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT

Relief pitcher Josh Parrent gave the Kewaskum Athletics home-talent baseball team a real shot in the arm with his performance Saturday afternoon.

After Nick Whitty, fresh from the Campbellsport High varsity season, was able to limit visiting Hustisford to two runs in two innings of work, Parrent came on to hold the Astros to three runs in the third and single runs in the fifth and seventh innings, helping the A's to an 11-7 victory in Tri-County League action.

"He's not overpowering, but he's good," Jake Panzer, one of the team's spokesperson said after the game. "He had eight strikeouts."

In his seven innings of work, Parrent walked just three Astros and gave up five hits. Two of those hits came in the top of the ninth, but not to worry, Parrent got a pair of Astros to fly out after the first hit, and he notched a strikeout for the final out of the game.

"It was a good game. The bats came alive today," Panzer said. One of the loudest bats was the one swung by player/manager Jason Strobel, who went 2x4, with three RBI and three runs scored.

Strobel lifted the Athletics to a 6-5 lead in the bottom of the third with his bases-loaded double. Panzer had reached base on an error, then Adam Sarauer singled and Steve Ketter drew a walk to fill the bases.

After Strobel's turn at the plate, Matt Parrent delivered a clutch RBI single, and later Jim Ziegler singled him home for a five-run inning.

The two runs the A's already had on the board in the second were kind of a gift, according to Panzer and Ziegler, who explained Astro starter Bill Bynum got a case of the pitching "yips," with wild pitches allowing the two runs to score.

The A's added two insurance runs in the fourth and single runs in the sixth and eighth innings, then let Parrent work his magic on the Astros' hitters.

Panzer went 2x5, with one run scored, while Parrent added a pair of hits that produced a run, and he scored twice. Ziegler contributed to the offense with two hits, a pair of RBI and one run scored.

About the only weak area Saturday was the defense, which committed five miscues, but the end result was what the A's were after, and they are now 3-6 in Tri-County play.

A trio of Athletics see action in All-Star contest

The Rock River League held its all-star game on Sunday, July 18th in Hartford. The North team continued its domination over the South with a 5-1 victory, and all three representatives from the A's saw action.

Steve Ketter started as the designated hitter, and he went 1x2. Jason Strobel was one of the starting outfielders, and he also had a hit.

Jim Ziegler got one inning of work on the mound, and he put the South hitters down in order.

"It was just three ground balls," Ziegler said, reporting winning pitcher, Herring of Hartford, did not allow any hits in his two innings. "We only gave up four or five hits."

Indians' State Bid

meyer singled Hausmann (who was walked) home.

Walks definitely hurt the Indians, according to Donath, who said, "Last time I checked, we gave up five walks and had one hit batsman ... and there were probably a couple more walks."

The Indians battled back to score one run in the top of the fifth, and it could have been an even bigger inning, considering they had the bases loaded with no outs.

After Matt Parrent worked De Long for a free pass to first and Prom singled to center field, Albrecht decided it was his turn to make a pitching change. He turned to Ross Hausmann, who walked the first man he faced, Shea.

Steiner came up next and went down on strikes for the first out, then Donath slapped a shot down the line at third which was gobbled up by Alex Schroeder, who dove to tag the bag for the second out.

Hausmann then got Scheel to ground out to third.

After a quiet sixth inning, the Indians got their fifth run in the seventh thanks to Shea, who blasted a dinger which carried at least 360 feet.

Donath said the freshman Shea, who was 2x4 in the contest, has just tapped the surface of his potential.

The Indians wound up with 12 hits, including two by Prom, Steiner, Donath and Scheel.

This is the first time West qualified for state under Albrecht, who took over the program four years ago. The Spartans' last state appearance was in 1990.

Meyer stops Cougars

In the opener, the Indians took advantage of some early miscues by the Cougars, along with a couple key extra base hits, to eliminate Cambellsport (13-18) by a score of 7-1.

Leadoff man Meyer wasted no time getting on base, as he singled on the first pitch from Trevor Schill.

The next man up, Tim Trott, hit a chopper right back to the mound, but Schill threw it into center field, so both runners were safe. Jon Olla bunted them safely to second and third, and then Matt Parrent slapped a single to right field, scoring two runs, and Prom and Shea followed with back-to-back doubles to the wall in left field, lighting up the scoreboard two more times.

With a 4-0 lead, Meyer just relaxed, threw strikes and let his defense do a lot of the work. He gave up just five hits, and only in the second inning did the Cougars have more than one hit.

Nate Sippel and Drew Lichtensteiger both singled in the inning and advanced to second and third, but Meyer got Nick Whitty on strikes, so the Cougars left empty handed.

CHS broke up Meyer's bid for a shutout in the bottom of the sixth on a walk, a single by Sippel and two straight walks that forced in the run.

"He did a great job ... but he scared me a little with a few walks," Donath said, indicating he originally planned to pitch Meyer just three innings in the first game, but allowed him to finish because "Josh was throwing good, and we had to get to the next game."

Trott wound up going 2x4, with Parrent, Prom and Shea also all collecting two hits.

Kewaskum advanced to the sectional by virtue of its 9-2 win over Cedar Grove/Belgium on Tuesday. Meyer also pitched that victory, giving up just four hits in six innings.

Parrent went 3x4 in the contest and had two RBI. "He hit three ropes," Donath said.
