T. Kewaskum Plan Commission concerned with border control

BY ANDREW KUEHL
 STATESMAN MANAGING EDITOR
 akuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

TOWN OF KEWASKUM- The Town of Kewaskum Plan Commission members are getting worried their township will soon be gobbled up by developers wanting to take their land into the Village of Kewaskum. Commissioners held a discussion Monday evening on handling the recent influx of annexations taking place.

"Our hands are tied, the town has no rights regarding annexation," the town chairman told members of the commission. Chairman Lettow later referred to the village being the "predator".

A number of the commissioners entertained the idea of inviting landowners who abut the village of Kewaskum to a meeting to find out what their intentions are regarding their land and see how the town could make it beneficial to keep them (landowners) in the township.

"We want to let the residents know that there are alternatives to annexation," said Lettow.

Supervisor and plan commission member Jim Koepke cited two problems with losing land zoned R-1 through the annexation process. Property in the R-1 zoning are more valuable and thus by annexation the town loses its highest tax bracket.

Another idea thrown into the pot was creating an "estate" type zoning requiring higher acreage to retain the country flare in the township. The idea was not ruled out but many commissioners didn't voice much enthusiasm for the plan.

Commissioners later asked if both municipalities could hold a joint meeting to open a dialog on what the village's intentions are regarding annexation. Chairman Lettow stated he would look into the matter.

Further discussion on the matter and possibly a joint meeting will be on September's agenda. Information from the town's monthly board meeting will be included in next week's edition.

Former village commissioner dies

Martin had skills, personality for village commissioner job

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Not only did the late Margaret "Ma" Browne teach William "Bill" Martin many of the skills he needed to carry out the duties as village commissioner, the KHS teacher put in a good word so her former student would be selected for the position he would hold for 33 years.

Martin, a lifelong resident of Kewaskum and an unofficial ambassador for the community, died early last Friday morning at the Samaritan Home in West Bend. He was 90 years old.

"They (village officials) called and asked her (Browne) about his qualifications, Dorothy Martin, Bill's wife of nearly 58 years, said Saturday evening, relaying the story of how her husband applied for the position of commissioner after being one of Brown's top students in typing and bookkeeping.

"She told them Bill was the only one they should consider," Dorothy Martin said.

In those days, the early 1950s, there were no secretaries or accountants or assistants to lean on. It was pretty much a one-person job.

What was Martin in charge of? "Everything," Dorothy Martin said. "He conducted all the meetings, took care of the books ... And he did his own typing."

Martin also had to go house to house to read meters before sending out the water bills.

Even tax collecting was done differently for a few people in the village, according to Dorothy Martin, who recalled how one rather eccentric elderly lady would call her husband to come over and pick up her tax payment.

"He'd go over and get it,"

Dorothy Martin said. "It was all in cash," which was a bit unusual because, "She never trusted anybody."

Martin was born and educated in Kewaskum, graduating from KHS in the class with Harold "Mixie" Marx, Linda Kroncke, and Ruth Gruhle. After high school, he took a job driving a Shell Oil truck for his brother, Arnold. But when the job opened in musketees, Bill, "Little Foot (Ray Ziemet) and Ray Smith," Dorothy Martin said, indicating, "Ray had a car."

The two started dating about a year later, and they were married in September of 1946.

While the Martins never had any children of their own, Bill always loved their nieces and nephews, and, "He loved to play Santa who said, "Those were fun years."

The Martins enjoyed going out for dinner and spending time together. At her home at Maple Dale Manor and more recently at Samaritan where Bill had been a resident for several months, people would ask her, "Don't you ever fight?" and she would answer, "No, what is there to fight about."

The two have always been very active at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Kewaskum. For years, Bill Martin served as a lector and an usher at the Church, and he was a lifelong member in the Knights of Columbus Fr. Casper Rehr Council 1964 in West Bend, serving as commander of the Fourth Degree of KCs for several years.

Martin was a member of the volunteer fire department for 41 years and once served as assistant chief.

In his capacity as commissioner, Martin served on several state committees and ended up as the president of Wisconsin Municipalities.

"He was always good at telling jokes," Dorothy Martin said, indicating he also was competent at public speaking even without notes.

On one occasion, she recalled how someone didn't show up for a convention, and the officials came over and asked, "Bill, can you lead the invocation?"

Martin, who once won an extemporaneous speaking contest, was happy to oblige.

As far as hobbies, Martin enjoyed fishing, and, "He was a big bowler. We had a whole shelf of trophies," Dorothy Martin said.

In his later years, Martin helped his wife run the weekly bingo games at Maple Dale Manor.

When Martin celebrated his 90th birthday last November, there was a huge party with family and friends in attendance. His health began to fail this past winter after he came down with pneumonia.

A funeral Mass for Martin was held at Holy Trinity Church on Sunday evening. A complete obituary is included on page 14.

Former Village of Kewaskum Commissioner, William "Bill" Martin

the village, it was just what Martin was looking for because he was a "people person" and because he had a knack with figures.

The Martins were already married when Bill took his dream job. They met after Dorothy moved to Kewaskum to take a waitress job at the Republican Hotel where her uncle was a bartender. After moving to Kewaskum, she met her eventual husband going to the movies in West Bend with several other young people, including his two best friends.

"They were like the three Claus," Dorothy said, reporting how she had six brothers and sisters who lived in Beloit, and, "He played Santa Claus for all of their children."

He would call up the children and tell them Santa was at their home. Then, one year, one of them said, "That sounds just like Uncle Bill," Dorothy said.

One Christmas, a niece received a nursing kit for a gift, and she bandaged Bill up to repair Bill's imaginary injuries, according to Dorothy,

The youth Habitat crew consisted of Nate and Nicole Behring, Ericka and Lora Jo

Peace Church is very supportive of their Habitat program and welcomes members of the community to join them on the 2005 trip.

Wash. Cty Habitat for Humanity named as Executive Director

As of July 15th, 2004, Russ Wanta of West Bend has been hired as Habitat for Humanity of Washington County's first Executive Director. Wanta joins Habitat after completing a one year absence from the community supporting his wife as a Fulbright teacher in Germany.

Wanta has been a resident of West Bend since 1990 when his wife was hired as a German/English teacher at West Bend High School. He founded Pedal Moraine Cycle and Fitness in 1991 and sold the business in November of 2002.

Wanta was raised in Madison and has a degree in Architecture from the University of Wisconsin - Milwaukee. During his summers, he worked construction in Madison. After receiving his degree and before starting Pedal Moraine, Wanta worked as a project manager in a commercial interiors firm in Wauwatosa. Wanta and his wife Laurie have three children who will all be attending McLane School this coming year. Samantha is 10, Celina, 8 and Theran is 5.

Inspired by numerous Habitat for Humanity mission trips throughout the country, Wanta, along with a small group of Washington County residents, were instrumental in the application process started in 1995. He served as the chair of the steering committee and subsequently served as the affiliate's first Board President.

Since affiliation in December of 1998, Habitat has built three new homes, renovated one, and has established two warehouse facilities in Washington County. Wanta will operate out of donated office space at the Immanuel United Church of Christ house annex located at 236 5th Ave. in West Bend.

When asked Why Habitat? Wanta responds, "It is a perfect fit for me, I get to put my faith into action daily, lead a program that believes in providing a hand-up rather than a hand-out, and serve my neighbor in need by helping them break the vicious cycle of poverty."

If you are interested in talking with Wanta about participation in this unique ministry please feel free to contact hm at 262-334-181 or via e-mail at habitatruss@hnet.net.

It's hard to believe that it's been 17 years since the late Pastor James Bettin organized the first Peace UCC Habitat crew. What started out as a mission trip for teenagers has turned into one youth trip and one adult trip every summer with the average group around 20 people.

In June, Peace United Church of Christ's youth traveled to Sparta, Illinois and in July the adults went to Terre Haute, Indiana. Friends from area churches joined them again this year. They worked on two new houses, building walls and putting on the roof and siding, installing windows and doors, insulating, painting a shed, building a deck and caulking joints.

One of the best things about going on a Habitat trip is seeing the homeowner's reaction when they see their home at the end of the work week. They can see their dream of moving into a decent house is a lot closer than they thought. They're always very appreciative of all the work that the groups do.

Many people ask why volunteers give up a whole week of vacation time to go build a house. The reason is that when you help a family to live in a decent house it gives them a chance for a better way of life. In the end, it's better for the whole community. A Habitat house is not free. The owners have an interest free mortgage payable to the local Habitat affiliate and they are required to work at least 300 hours on their house. After they move into their house, they're instructed on how to take care of

Skippers beware...truancy ordinance now in effect

BY NICOLE KUEHL
STATESMAN STAFF
nkuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

Eagle hopeful Tyler Stamm of Kewaskum Troop 744, asked the Village Board Monday night to allow use of Kiwanis Park on Friday, August 12, 2005 for a community outdoor movie. Stamm is planning the project as his last step to earning his Eagle Scout ranking. More details on this event will be in an upcoming edition of the Statesman.

After being approached by administrators of the Kewaskum School district to put a truancy ordinance in effect, high school principal Christine Horbas and Police Chief Dick Knoebel met to write an ordinance. The ordinance was unanimously approved by the board.

Horbas stated that by state statute, 10% of the student population is considered habitual truants. Habitual truants are students who are truant for part or all of five or more days during the course of a semester. Parents must call in a student in order for them to be excused from school. Horbas also stated that this will not take away the 10 so called "personal days" a student is allowed. The personal days must be pre-planned.

Violators of the ordinance will be required to attend a court date where a judge will give them a sentence that could include paying a fine, losing their license - hunting, fishing or driving, being put under "house-arrest" where they may not be out without a parent or whatever else the judge may see fit.

Parents may also be ticketed if they are found to be contributing to the truancy of their child. Parents also must attend the court date with their child, whether or not they are being held accountable for contributing to the child's truancy.

In other village-school related news, the board decided that parking on Parkview Drive will be restricted during school hours. The neighbors have had problems with students blocking their driveways and busses are having problems at St. Lucas. Signs will be put up on both sides of the street allowing for a two hour parking limit between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. on school days.

In Village construction news Village Administrator Dan Schmidt reported on some change orders for two of the construction projects taking place in the Village.

Changes to the Riverview Drive project were approximately $8,500 more and changes for Hwy. H were approximately $3,200. Schmidt pointed out that when you are talking about such huge and costly projects, there are bound to be unanticipated cost differences, both good and bad.

The board also approved the Certified Survey Maps for Tom Timblin's new development off of Timblin and Memorial Drives. The plan commission, at an earlier meeting gave their nod of approval.

However, there were a few changes that needed to be made to the final plan and the approval was conditional based upon these changes being made.

The board also discussed a policy for recognizing Village employees for their years of service. This policy will not have any effect on how the village recognizes employees upon retirement, just for their length of service. Employees will be recognized for their service in five-year increments.

Finally, the board decided to rededicate the "Welcome to Kewaskum" sign on Hwy. 45 at the entrance to the Village. A ceremony will be held at 8 a.m. on Saturday, September 18 to honor those who helped in the project.

W.B. Mayor will not seek another term

West Bend Mayor Mike Miller announced this week he will not seek another run for office. Miller made the statement during an event at Cedar Ridge Thursday evening.

Miller was last elected in April 2002 when he beat defeated Alderman Tom O'Meara. Miller is in his sixth term as mayor of West Bend.

Crash in T. Addison causes natural gas leak

There was a bit of excitement early Sunday morning for neighbors in the Town of Addison, as a car crashed into a natural gas pipeline. The crash happened around 3 a.m. near Cedarview and Aurora Roads.

Three homes in the area had to be evacuated. The Allenton Fire Department was called to the scene. The driver of the vehicle fled on foot.

Authorities are still looking for the person responsible.

West Bend receives four downtown hotel proposals

The city of West Bend has received four proposals for a downtown hotel. According to "minutes" from the downtown development progress meeting the city has received proposals from Arlington Property Development, I-D-M, Bob Schulz and the Summer Company out of Green Bay.

I-D-M is the company the city was initially working with, however, Mayor Miller says the city decided to explore their options when I-D-M started dragging their feet on the deal.

Charlie Hillman who heads up the Economic Development Committee says he's a bit "put off" that the downtown hotel project is taking so long. "I certainly think we have to get moving on this," he said.

"I'm a little disappointed to see the lag on TIF five and nine. The River Shores development is moving ahead full speed and I think the downtown hotel is the linchpin for the deal that will do great things for that part of West Bend."

Copies of the hotel proposals are being forwarded for review. The city is looking to develop a boutique style hotel which is being planned for Veterans Avenue.

Neighbors in the downtown area can also plainly see the demolition of the old West Bend Company is in full swing. One of the buildings across from Regner Park is being demolished. The site will be the home for the new Rivershores Development. That development will include a mix of condos, lofts and apartments.

Bomb Scare in Campbellsport

Campbellsport police officers and Fond du Lac County Sheriffs Deputies had their hands full Wednesday after a suspicious briefcase was found outside of National Exchange Bank in the downtown area.

Police received the call at 9:10 a.m. and a joint Brown and Outagamie County bomb squad was called from its station at the PGA Championship to handle the situation. The squad used a water blast to open the briefcase after evacuating the area. No explosives were found and business returned to normal later that afternoon.

Buddenhagen no world traveler even though he's logged 500,000 miles

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Here's a trivia question for you. Who has covered 500,000 miles in his car and never left the Village of Kewaskum?

The answer is Officer Bob Buddenhagen, who is just wrapping up 30 years working for the Kewaskum Police Department.

That's right, while patrolling and keeping our village a relatively safe place to live, Buddenhagen has logged the equivalent of 20 trips around the world.

"That's verified ... That's a lot of miles in the village," Buddenhagen, a native of West Bend, said, indicating becoming a police officer was not something he had dreamed about since being a young boy or even a vocation he thought about during his high school days or right after he graduated in 1968.

"No, that's wasn't my first instinct," Buddenhagen said. "I had no goals except to make money." He actually worked at several different jobs, including pumping gas, construction, and working at Schober's (Alpine Photo) before moving into law enforcement.

A high school friendship with current Police Chief Dick Knoebel was a major reason why Buddenhagen ended up working as a policeman. He said he and his friends frequented Steve and Mary's in Kewaskum after graduation and while en route through Kewaskum, "We'd see him (Knoebel) running radar." At the time, Knoebel was working as a patrolman in the village.

When Knoebel got married, Buddenhagen was asked to bartend for the reception, which he was happy to do. One of the guests that evening was the late Donald Hlavaty, who was the chief of police at the time.

Hlavaty was looking for a patrolman at the time, so, "I kinda gave a few extra drinks to the chief," Buddenhagen said, indicating he later applied for the post but there was one other applicant for the post and he had a college education.

"I did better on the test than he did, but he got the job," Buddenhagen recalls. The new patrolman wanted to be a juvenile officer, however, so he didn't stay long in the village, and Chief Hlavaty called to offer Buddenhagen the job.

After weighing Alpine's offer of a raise against the benefits a municipality offers, Buddenhagen said, "I took it (the patrolman post)."

To prepare for the work, Buddenhagen was sent to the Wisconsin State Patrol Academy in Fort McCoy. "I was on the dean's list," he said about his experience at the Academy, indicating his other training came on the job.

For 23 years, Buddenhagen worked the night shift, which isn't exactly "cushy" because of all the fights and domestic disturbances that take place at night. Buddenhagen recalls how he and patrolman Tom Bauer "knew exactly where we were going" on weekend nights, listing three former "watering holes" as the arenas for the weekend fights.

Buddenhagen has been fortunate to survive so many years of night work, and he attributes this to the fact he has always tried to use common sense in dealing with people.

"You treat the people like you want to be treated," he said, realizing he often saw people at their worst moments, so he tried hard to be patient, understanding and yet firm.

Currently Buddenhagen works days, and even though he could retire in January when he reaches 55, he said, "I might be around for another two years ... I still enjoy the work."

Another thing Buddenhagen enjoys is spending time with his wife, Mary Jane, and daughters, Ann and Julie. Ann currently works for West Bend Mutual, and Julie completed training at the Waukesha Technical Police Academy in spring and was recently sworn in as a police officer for the Village of Pewaukee.

"I got to pin the badge on her," Buddenhagen said proudly, although admitting a little apprehension because of the danger that can come with the job.

Chief of Police Dick Knoebel will be presenting Buddenhagen a certificate of appreciation, and he also lauded his friend's work on the force.

"He's a good employee. He's a good officer," Knoebel said. "Common sense is what a good officer needs ... the ability to deal with people, and a lot of times, a good sense of humor." Buddenhagen had all three, he said, indicating he often sends new officers with Buddenhagen for field training.

There haven't been a lot of new police employees in recent years, however, with Knoebel set to complete 32 years in December, Tom Bauer working on his 31st year, and now Buddenhagen hitting 30.

"We have a very veteran police department," Knoebel said.

And what is being planned for Buddenhagen on Aug. 22nd, the anniversary date for joining the force? Nothing special, Buddenhagen said. "The only thing I want is my name up on the (Mobil) car wash ... To me, this is just another job."

Bausch finds Australia to her liking

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

If the 2003 Kewaskum High School graduation speaker suggested classmates should not pass up on opportunities to broaden their educations and experience other cultures, the message certainly hit home with Lori Bausch, who is currently studying in Australia and thinking of staying there to finish her undergraduate degree.

Bausch attended UW-Eau Claire her first year of college starting in the field of exercise science, but then, because of an opening in the study abroad program, she got the chance to go to Australia a year before she originally intended to.

About 15 percent of the Eau Claire students participate in a study abroad program, according to Bausch, who said, "The two programs they offer in Australia are the most popular they have."

While attending a meeting for the 2005 study program, a woman from the international office at Lismore took Bausch aside and told her it would be better for her to try for the fall 2004 program, especially since she was interested in playing rugby in Australia.

Bausch said she quickly filled out an application, and even though the deadline had passed, she found out in less than two days that she was accepted.

"Soon after, I began e-mailing the head of the Department of Exercise Science at Southern Cross University (in Lismore) and I arranged to get an internship the following semester ... so I changed my status for a yearlong program," Bausch said.

Bausch left for Australia in mid-June but before arriving there, the 30 students from Eau Claire all stopped in Fiji for a week to break up the trip.

"We stayed on Robinson Crusoe Island. The resort staff and its visitors were the only people residing on the island. It was a unique experience, but I loved it," Bausch said, reporting the group slept in huts containing several bunks, but she opted instead to spend her nights in a hammock on the beach.

"We washed up with a bucket shower and could only use limited water because of the drought," Bausch went on, explaining Fiji was in the midst of a long drought and the one in Australia lasted over four months until it rained recently.

During the days, there was time for many water activities, like snorkeling, hand line fishing and the group also climbed coconut trees and played sand volleyball and danced.

"The workers were so courteous, and they'd join in on the sand volleyball and dancing," Bausch said, going on that about a two dozen of the students went inland for a day to a school where each class put on a song and dance for them. There the college students were able to observe the traditional dress of the people and the poor conditions of their buildings.

The Eau Claire students chipped in and raised nearly $300 to donate to the school and the community they visited.

"We also had a kava ceremony to show that we wanted to be treated as equals and friends of the Fijians," Bausch said, explaining one very important lesson she learned while in Fiji is how the natives' religion centers around taking care of each other.

"I learned that when someone has nowhere to sleep or nothing to eat, the people will graciously invite you in, expecting nothing in return. It is one way in which they serve God, hoping for his many blessings," Bausch said. "My entire experience was very influential and everyone in the group intends on returning. We made several friends there, not only within our group, but with the staff and with visitors from across the world, many from London."

Now that her studies have started, Bausch is immersed in classroom work. "I have arranged my course schedule so I only attend classes Monday through Wednesday, and once rugby ends, I will be road tripping often," Bausch said, reporting several of her classes have field trips. "I will be going to Meebunn-bia next weekend and camping outdoors for some days for my Outdoor Ed class. It is suppose to be a very physically and mentally challenging course, but I am very excited for the adventures I will be taking."

After just a few weeks of class in Lismore, which is located about 300 miles north of Sydney, Bausch hasn't determined whether academics are harder in Australia or in the United States, but, "the grading is definitely harder here," she said, explaining their grading system goes HD for High Distinction, D for Distinction, S for Satisfactory, C for Credit and F for fail.

"Few people get an 'HD', which is like an A on our scale, but an A is actually equal to two grades lower (than HD)," Bausch said, indicating what she likes best about Australian classes is being judged on critical analysis of experiences/readings.

"Several units require that you maintain an ongoing journal to record different perspectives which have personally been observed or have been observed through conversation with other people, so that issues are explored thoroughly," Bausch said.

Adjustments are part of any overseas study program, and in Bausch's mind, the major ones have been getting used to the metric system, Australian terminology and the nine-hour time difference between there and her home.

"I've called friends to wish them a happy birthday, and they accuse me of being a day early, which is the correct date where I am," Bausch said, reporting a couple other interesting experiences as meeting a koala bear on her way to class one day and having a magpie steal her breakfast "right out of my frying pan."

The idea of not being required to take a lot of general studies courses, as is the case in the United States, has prompted Bausch to look into obtaining her degree in Australia, and she said, "I know my family has doubts but they are supportive of whatever I decide to do. I promised to return home at least once a year, and they are planning to visit me with in the next year."

If she does stay, Bausch has considered majoring in Human Movement, but making that decision is not a priority at this point.

"I actually am not fretting the fact I do not know what my plans are down the road," Bausch said. "My single most important goal is true happiness to be honest. I have always been a high stress person, and I am doing things to alter my lifestyle in order to alleviate life's stress."

Note: Bausch welcomes Kewaskum area residents to periodically check the pictures of Australia she will have on her website at <http://photos.yahoo.com/bauschables>

Ramthun receives full scholarship to Alverno College

Deborah Ramthun

MILWAUKEE - Twenty-eight top high school seniors across the state have been awarded full-year scholarships to Alverno College through the unequalled, newly-established Alverno Scholars of Wisconsin program.

This unique program is funded by the Reiman Family Foundation and offers a year's tuition to one young woman from each of Wisconsin's 72 counties. The program is designed to draw the best and brightest from around the state and will provide financial assistance to some families who may not otherwise be able to afford the college of their choice.

Great colleges have great donors. The vision of Roy and Bobbi Reiman and the generosity of the Reiman Family Foundation inspired the Alverno Scholars of Wisconsin project. The Reimans' interest in providing statewide educational access to one of the nation's finest women's colleges made it possible for these 28 young women to attend Alverno this fall.

Deborah Ramthun, a 2004 graduate of Kewaskum High School, received one of these scholarships.

Encouraged by the program's successful initial response, the Reiman Family Foundation has offered a renewal donation for the Alverno Scholars of Wisconsin program for the 2005-2006 academic year. Informational packets will be mailed in September. Interested students, or those who know students who may qualify, can learn more by visiting www.alverno.edu and clicking on the Alverno Scholars calling under "News from Alverno" on the homepage. Information is also available by calling the college admission's office 800-933-3401.

Dine in and carry outs are available in 2-piece or 3-piece meals. Music in the pavilion will feature Dr. Bob and the Neighbors while Road Trip will be entertaining in the Big Tent.

Saturday nights entertainment features Miss Bobby Keeler Band in the pavilion at 6:30 p.m. and The Boogie Men take the stage at 9:00 p.m. in the Big Tent.

Local 4-H'ers attend 2004 state conference

By Jill Schmitt

One June 21, 2004, nine Washington County Delegates went to the State 4-H Youth Conference in Madison to represent Washington County 4-H. The delegates stayed at the University of Wisconsin - Madison campus for four days. They attended seminars to meet new people and learn new things. Many of the seminars were held on campus, but some were at various other locations. Some of the seminars included windsurfing, rock climbing, juggling, cartooning, public speaking, federal jury duty, medical careers, companion animals and photo workshop.

The delegates from across the state also had free time to meet and share new ideas. Each day closed with an assembly followed by a theme dance. The assemblies were fun. A different speaker/performer came each night, such as the 4-H Drama Company, Showcase Singers, and a Talent Show. The theme dances were a big hit among the 4-H'ers. There was also volleyball, basketball and a movie to go to if you didn't want to dance. Many of the delegates also had free time to take a walk down State Street.

Departure was sad for everyone because it meant leaving behind new friends you may never see again and facing the prospect of maybe never returning to the conference. I can speak for everyone when I say that it was a great experience and I would love to go back.

Look to a gown of gold, and you will at least get a sleeve of it.

Gov. announces $820,000 for state dairy entrepreneurs as part of 'Grow Wisconsin' plan

-Sir Walter Scott

WATERLOO - During a tour of the Crave Brothers Farmstead Cheese plant today, Governor Jim Doyle announced $820,000 in grant money available to dairy producers and processors as part of his "Grow Wisconsin" initiative to re-invigorate dairy.

"I am committed to the long-term growth and profitability of Wisconsin dairy businesses," Governor Doyle said. "This grant money is an investment in the future. It provides a way for both farmers and cheese makers to implement innovations that will keep dairy strong well into the future."

The $820,000 in grants will target the following areas:

- * Grants of up to $50,000 for dairy businesses introducing new dairy products, entering new markets, or implementing innovations in their supply chain. Examples of types of projects might include launching a new product or product line, entering a new or differentiated market for Wisconsin, or developing a system for reducing costs within the business supply chain.

- * Grants of up to $25,000 for local organizations proposing to improve business competitiveness of dairy farming in their area. Examples might include: creation of agricultural development zones that promote dairy farm development, creation of new systems to provide capital for dairy modernization, programs to match cash crop farms with dairy farms to enhance farm incomes.

- * Grants of up to $7,500 for dairy producers seeking professional services in modernizing their dairy facilities. Funds will be available both for developing a business plan to modernize a dairy facility, as well as implementing that business plan - including professional service costs for risk management, financial management, engineering, and labor management.

- * Grants of up to $7,500 for dairy farmers transitioning to intensively managed grazing operations. Funds could be used for professional service costs for grazing system layout, parlor engineering, or financial planning.

The $820,000 in grant money is part of the Wisconsin Value Added Dairy Initiative to reinvigorate dairy in Wisconsin. It is funded by two million of federal money matched by in-kind contributions of agencies and organizations within Wisconsin's dairy sector. Governor Doyle thanked Senator Herb Kohl and Representative Dave Obey for their leadership in securing federal funding in support of the dairy industry.

The rest of the four million Value Added Dairy Initiative funding will support:

- * The Dairy Business Innovation Center - offering technical assistance to farmers and cheese processors for product development, business planning, or market development.

- * Grow Wisconsin Dairy Team - coordinating and focusing resources for dairy farmers modernizing their businesses and processors looking to streamline the supply chain.

Governor Doyle also commended the Crave Brothers Farmstead Cheese operation for being a successful working model of a modern family dairy. The Crave family markets award-winning specialty cheese made in their farm-

Marines, sailors help unearth evidence of Saddam's crimes

AL ANBAR PROVINCE, Iraq -- Marines in Iraq assisted the Kuwaiti government to uncover several mass graves during July to locate the bodies of 87 people missing since the Gulf War.

The digs were supported by Task Force Justice, a I Marine Expeditionary Force team that helps gather evidence of war crimes committed by Saddam Hussein by unearthing remains of those killed during his regime.

For one of the recoveries July 15-19, the Justice Department's Regime Crimes Liaison Office in Baghdad tapped the I MEF to erect a temporary camp in the middle of the Iraqi desert and provide security for the excavation. An Iraqi man associated with some of the murders tipped off the grave's location, said Army Maj. Kate Van Auken, 37, one of the office's liaisons.

Providing much of the help, elements of the 1st Force Service Support Group trucked through the desert in waves. The first group got there in the morning and set up security and communications, said 1st Lt. Austin Mroczek, the site commander.

The rest of the troops convoyed to the camp that afternoon. Several hours after they arrived, the Marines as well as Navy Seabees had transformed the once barren area into a camp for 91 troops - all of whom slumbered under the stars.

The Seabees, from Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 14, based out of Jacksonville, Fla., used a backhoe to dig fighting holes and trash pits for the brief stay.

Marines from 3rd Battalion, 24th Marine Regiment's Weapons Company, part of a reserve infantry unit based out of Springfield, Mo., with support from elements of motor transportation detachments from Ebensburg and Erie, Pa., established several observation points around the perimeter of the camp.

The temperature aside, troops seemed happy to be doing their part to help convict Hussein and aid the Kuwaiti people. This dig unearthed 48 bodies.

"It's something that has to be done to prosecute Saddam Hussein, but it's not like they don't have a preponderance of evidence against him anyway," said Lance Cpl. Brenden C. Reary, 25, a reserve infantryman with Weapons Company and native of Rolla, Mo.

A preponderance indeed; last year, after securing Baghdad, the I MEF assessed 59 mass grave sites, diagramed the areas and questioned locals for information of the sites' histories.

The Kuwaiti government was missing a total of 605 people before the war with Iraq began, said Van Auken.

To date, 322 skeletal remains have been found, and 167 of them positively identified as Kuwaiti through DNA testing or comparing dental records at independent labs in Kuwait, the United States, France, the United Kingdom and India, said Van Auken. The rest have not yet been through the identification process.

to uncover the bodies at the grave sites, which were located a few hundred yards outside the camp, gun trucks from the company escorted them and provided protection at the otherwise unsecured location.

Throughout the five-day mission, which was conducted entirely outdoors, the temperature soared into the triple digits, leaving troops sweaty and fatigued but not sluggish.

"The heat has made it pretty miserable, but Marines are going to do their job whether it is 120 or negative 20," said Mroczek, a native of

*Our Treasure
When someone you love
Becomes a memory
That memory
Becomes a Treasure*

The time has gone by quickly, it still doesn't seem real
I wonder...how long does it take for ones heart to heal
Most times I smile when I recall life with you through the years
Yet times I just have to think your name and I can't stop my tears
I still find it hard to go home, hard to walk through the door
You won't be sitting in the kitchen, I know I won't see you any more
Your clutter on the corner of the table and your favorite reclining chair
Are some of the pictures locked in my memory, they are no longer there
One by one your things have been slowly given or put away
They say we can't live in the past, we must live for today
But that doesn't mean you're forgotten, you are etched in our hearts
In each and every one of us, you still play an important part
You are a hard act to follow; you were truly one of a kind
We search ourselves for traces of you, things that you left behind
Your smile, your eyes, your talents, or bits of your personality
Then we know you are still with us and you will live on eternally
You were a good husband, father, father-in-law, grampa, and our friend
We will never tell you goodbye, we'll just say... see you again
You are our treasure! Everyday I give thanks to the man above
I pray that you know how much you are still missed and loved.

Body Double

By: Tess Gerritsen

TESS

DOUBLE

Did you ever wonder what it would be like to look like someone famous? How would it feel to be mistaken for Julia Roberts or Brad Pitt? Would a Bill Clinton look-alike be looked at askance if he supported a Republican candidate? Are there bad-boy expectations for an Ozzy Osborne look-alike? They say that everybody has a "double" somewhere in the world, and if you've ever seen yours (twins notwithstanding), you know that it's really unsettling to see pictures of a stranger who looks exactly like you. In the new novel "Body Double" by Tess Gerritsen (c.2004, Ballantine Books), there are two women who look alike. The problem is, one of them is dead.

Pathologist Dr. Maura Isles, on her way back from Paris, comes home to police cars, crime tape, and ambulances in the driveway of her house. Surprised, she stumbles to her front door, where the police whisk her inside and start to question her. Everyone who knows her is stunned to see her, and Maura is further baffled. That's when Maura is taken out to the car that's parked in front of her home. Inside is a woman who is Maura's exact double, slumped over with a bullet in her head - a dead ringer, if you will. But who is the woman and why has she come to Maura's house?

Through DNA analysis, Maura, who was adopted, soon learns that the dead woman was her twin sister, Anna Leoni. Good old-fashioned sleuthing indicates that Anna was running from someone or some thing. Stunned and confused, Maura travels to Maine to learn more about this sister she never knew. Anna Leoni had rented a small cabin in a tiny town in Maine, and when Maura rents the same cabin, she feels uneasy. There is malevolence in this place, and dozens of locks on the doors. What could Anna have been so afraid of?

When bodies are discovered adjacent to the cabin, Maura learns who once owned the land that the cabin is on, and she begins to poke around in her own past, searching for answers to a question that nags her: can evil be passed on, genetically?

Lately, it seems I've read an overabundance of crime-detective-mystery-thriller-type books, and when I started reading "Body Double", I was hoping it wasn't yet another of the same old thing. Happily, it's not. The characters aren't superheroes, but instead are normal people with flaws, and the crime scenes will satisfy "CSI" fans. There are some genuinely creepy parts in this book where, when reading them, I was so drawn into the story that I almost forgot that it was only a novel. The one distracting thing is that, at first blush, there are so many pregnant women in "Body Double", it seems as if everybody is expecting. Rest assured that there is reason for this.

If you're looking for a great suspense novel that's triple the thrills, pick up a copy of "Body Double". It's one very good book.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of our dear father, ARNOLD SCHMIDT, who passed away ten years ago, Aug. 16, 1994:

Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death leaves a heartache no one can heal.
And though the years are many or few, they are filled with remembrances of you.

Many a sleepless night we've spent thinking of you.
Loving and kind in all your ways, upright and just to the end of your days.
Sincere and true in your heart and mind, beautiful memories you left behind.
But we know you are in God's own care.
And some day we shall meet you there.

Deeply missed by your family.

In loving memory of JENNY SCHULZ, who passed away ten years ago, Aug. 22, 1994:

Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where the loveliness never dies,
She lives in the land of glory,
Mid the blue and gold of skies.

Gone from us who loved her,
Into the Heaven of peace,
The home of our loving Savior
Where her soul is happily at ease.
Her life is a beautiful memory
Her absence a silent grief,
She sleeps in God's beautiful garden,
In the sunset of perfect peace.

Deeply missed by her family.

BUSINESS NEWS

Dairyland Seed announces new corn releases

WEST BEND - Dairyland Seed recently announced the release of 18 new corn hybrids for the 2005 planting season. Each of these varieties can be seen at research tours and field days through the Midwest this fall. Descriptions of these new products follow:

85 Day Stealth-6685 - Roundup Ready® technology. Stealth-6685 offers you an early dent-by-dent hybrid with consistent high yields across various growing environments. Excellent root strength and disease resistance are featured in Stealth-6685. Excels at high plant populations.

86 Day Stealth - 7685 - You get double bonus! You'll benefit from the ease and coverage of your Roundup herbicide application while on the other hand not having to worry about spraying your fields for the European Corn Borer! Great roots and disease resistance! You can hit peak yields at high plant populations!

90 Day Stealth - 1690 - A YIELD STAR in a brand new genetic package! Our team of hybrid corn breeder scientists proudly brings forward this new Stealth -1690 Hybrid Corn variety to generate those extra bushels of grain that your farming operation seeks. Stealth-1690 features good plant health on a medium height plant that exhibits an upright leaf structure. You'll see a longer, moderately girthy ear of corn.

93-Day Stealth-5692 - YieldGard Corn Borer protection. You'll see strong stalks and roots but most of all you'll see extra grain production. An excellent Western adaptation thru western WI, MN, ND and SD. Stealth-5692 provides a strong medium height plant with a cob that has a high ear flex trait.

93 Day Stealth-6194 - Roundup Ready® technology. This genetic combination provides excellent disease resistance, which means excellent stay green in this hybrid that transfers grain into a medium girthy ear that is physically medium to long in length. A Nice strong yield package in a medium-to-tall plant.

94 Day Stealth - 8194 - NEW technology that combines three key yield components: (1) Scientific genetic yield capability of Stealth -5194, (2) YieldGard Corn Borer protection and (3) YieldGard rootworm protection. Now called YieldGard our Stealth-8194 gives two insect families the double-whammy while allowing for great plant development. Excellent early growth, stalks and staygreen. Medium-girthy ears develop from medium-to-long cobs.

97 Day Stealth-6497 - Capture the dynamic yield potential of Stealth-1497 in this Roundup Ready product offering - realize the benefits of less weed pressure and more yield strength with the NEW Stealth-6497. This exceptional yield drive you get from this unique corn family is unparalleled for this maturity zone. This hybrid is very receptive to high plant populations and is a strong performer in drought conditions. Stealth-6497 is very versatile across soil types. Excellent roots that penetrate the soil for that extra yield. An excellent package.

103/101 Day Stealth-6503 - Roundup Ready® technology. Profit from the grain you will produce from a plant with a good stalk strength, semi-erect leaves and girthy ears when you plant Stealth-6503! Receptive to higher plant populations.

105/103 Day Stealth - 1705 - Stealth-1705 has excellent movement in its maturity as well as south of its maturity. Upright leaf structure develops on a strong stalk with excellent staygreen. Large, girthy ears with excellent dry-down are what you will produce. Adaptable across a wide variety of soil types.

105/103 Day Stealth-5503 - Capture the yield kick behind the strong genetics used in our Stealth-1503 hybrid with the YieldGard Corn Borer protection incorporated in the NEW Stealth-5503! This plant type has a semi-upright leaf configuration and displays a very girthy ear type. Stalk strength is strong and this hybrid is receptive to higher plant populations. Eliminate your corn borer concerns and at the same time enjoy the benefits related to outstanding grain production when you plant our NEW Stealth-5503.

107/105 Day Stealth-5007 - YieldGard Corn Borer Protection. This variety of seed corn had a dominant yield advantage this past growing season. The NEW Stealth-5007 establishes its presence in your field quickly after planting and fights for yield throughout the growing season. This hybrid features very good ear flex and rapid dry down. An outstanding hybrid for yield with great stalk strength.

109/106 Day Stealth-7507 - A terrific combination! You receive the stacked value and ease of your Roundup herbicide application while removing your concern with European Corn Borers. Plus you get these features in the highly respected and proven 1507 genetic package! Our confidence rating behind this hybrid is very high. Stealth-7507 has excellent stalk strength and rapid drydown. Very good stay green and excellent responsiveness to high populations.

109-106 Day Stealth-8507 - YieldGard Plus benefits come to fruition in this Corn Borer and Rootworm protected hybrid. Utilize the strengths of our 1507 genetic family and accentuate it with total corn borer and rootworm protection. Solid emergence, vigor, staygreen and disease resistance. Release the yield barriers and ride the high population capability of the NEW Stealth-8507 for outstanding yield.

109/107 Day Stealth-1709 - This new exceptional yield from a large robust plant. The plant integrity of the NEW Stealth-1709 is exhibited thru excellent stay green, which directly correlates with outstanding plant health. Excellent eye appeal Deep-kernelled with strong test weight. The large, girthy consistent ears of grain are what makes this product yield.

112/109 Day Stealth-8611 - Brand NEW Yield Guard Plus technology means double trouble for two of the main insect pests (corn borers and corn rootworms) you encounter when growing commercial corn. This technology offers you great insect control while at the same time providing you the pathway to yielding in our Stealth-1611 genetics.

116/112 Day Stealth-8515 - Focus your management on yield as the two main insect pest (European Corn Borer and Corn Rootworm) affecting yield are no longer an issue. Stealth-8515 is the NEW YieldGard Plus technology using Stealth-1515 as the yield delivering mechanism. With Stealth-8515 you have a hybrid with a proven yield track record. Excellent plant health, great drought stress tolerance and capacity to excel at high plant populations create a victory for agriculture with this new technology. High test weight.

116/114 Day Stealth-5014 - NEW GENETICS...NEW YIELD CAPACITY! YieldGard Corn Borer Protection. This NEW hybrid excels under high management and therefore responds to both your desire and management efforts to take advantage of its yield. A great package of roots and stalks support the yield output provided by new Stealth-5014. A girthy ear translates into combine overflow!

117/115 Day Stealth-1615 - Tremendous ear flex in this very high yielding NEW hybrid means you'll need to employ your combine and harvest more frequently. This robust plant type has excellent stay green and therefore great plant health. A rugged hybrid over a lot of conditions. The NEW Stealth-1615 is a conventional hybrid with extraordinary yield!

Whistling Straits, state, PGA receive rave reviews

What a view, looking out at the 18th fairway with bunkers and Lake Michigan as a backdrop for Sergio Garcia and his group as they hit approach shots to the green on the 500-yard par 4 hole.

Autograph seekers were out in force during the three practice rounds, and Ernie Els, who had a chance to take over the No. 1 world ranking, was happy to oblige PGA guests. Incidentally, yellow and white autograph flags were popular items in the pro shop, and they were all sold out sometime on Wednesday.

People may poke fun at our fair state because of the image they have that we are all cheeseheads, that we get married during the halftimes of Packer games ... in blue jeans, and that we rate deer hunting cabins as five-star accommodations.

No one was laughing at Wisconsin this past week, however, as golf fans from all over the United States watched with awe as Whistling Straits, located near the tiny community of Haven, was showcased in the annual PGA Tournament.

What a great piece of land

God created on the banks of Lake Michigan.

What a masterpiece golf designer Pete Dye carved out of the property. ("The course looks absolutely beautiful," a friend from Ohio remarked to me Sunday evening.)

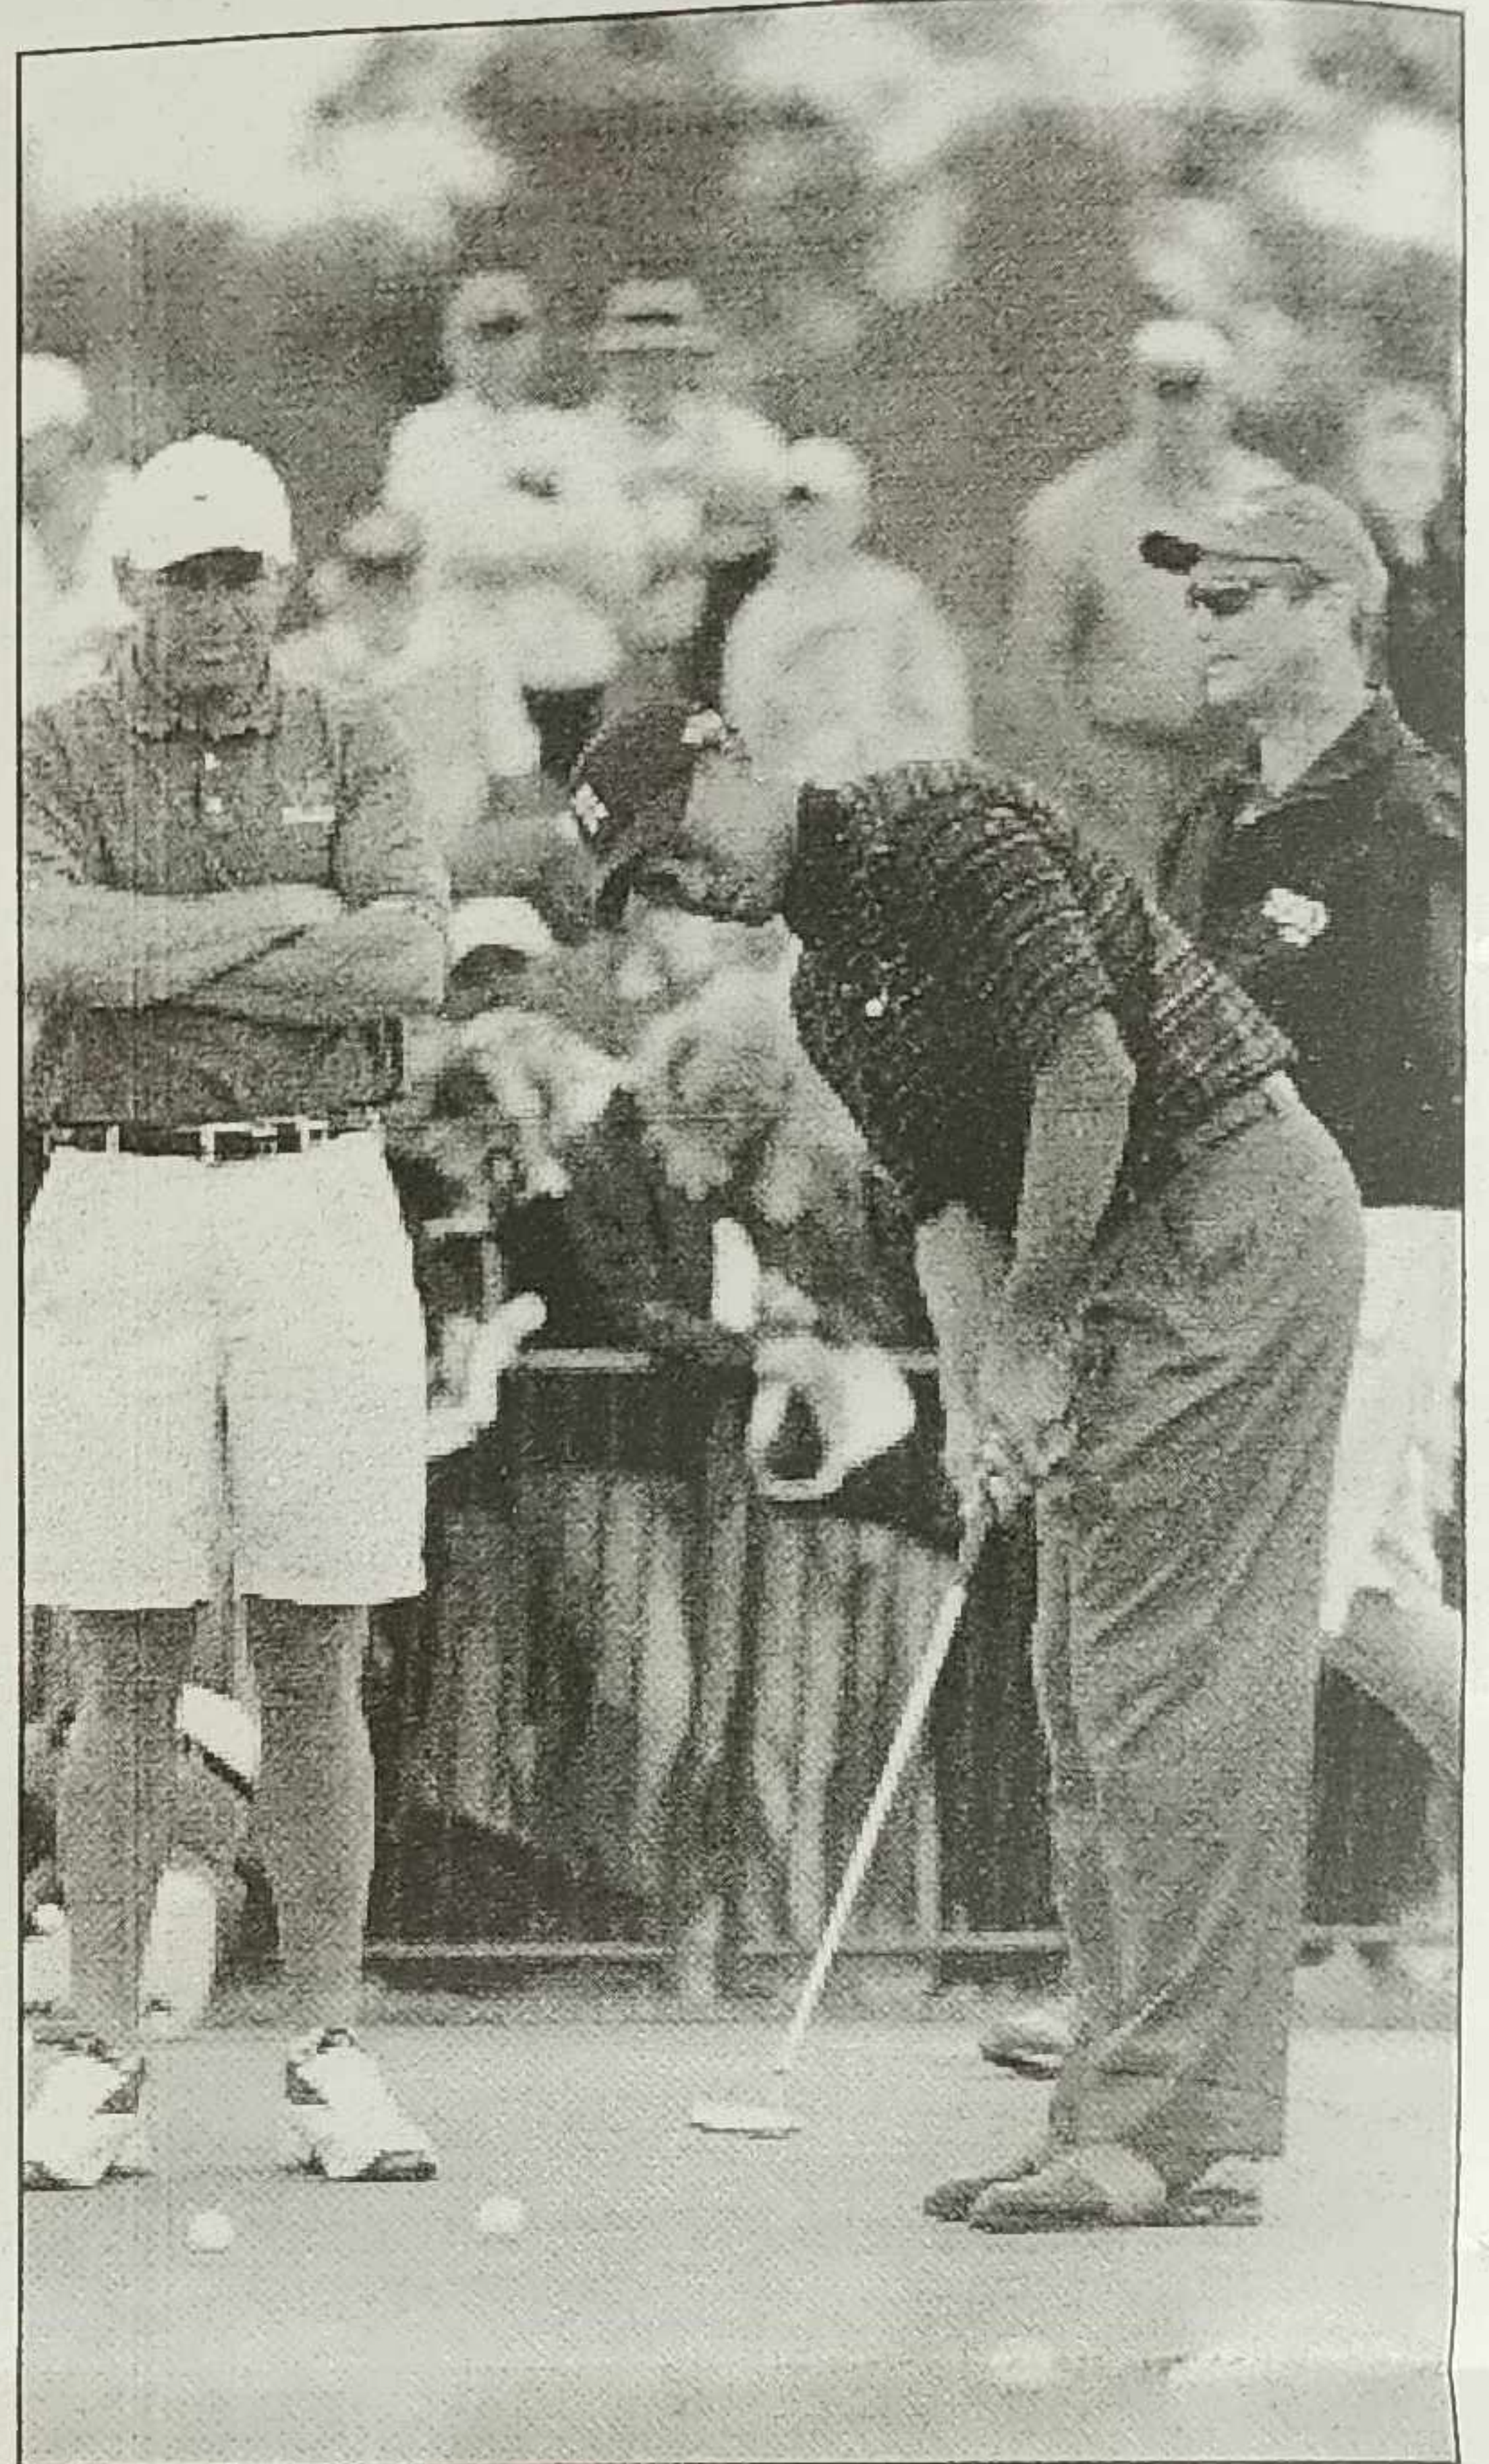

What a great accomplishment for Herb Kohler to see his dream of hosting one of the four majors come true. And more majors are on the way, you can count on that!

What great sportsmanship the fans, the majority of them from Wisconsin, displayed, cheering for all the great shots produced by these talented athletes, who seem to display magic with the tools of their trade.

And what a feeling of satisfaction for all of those who volunteered their time to help show Wisconsin has a better side. There were 3,500 of us who greeted visitors, sold programs, served as marshals around the greens, silenced fans as the golfers were hitting their shots, served food, escorted officials to the course from nearby airports and sold millions of dollars worth of PGA memorabilia and clothing.

Even though the alarm clock went off at 4:40 a.m. twice during tournament week so I could be on time for my shift in the merchandise tent, I thoroughly enjoyed being a volunteer. It was fun working with people from other Wisconsin cities who Tiger Woods spent plenty of time practicing on Tuesday, but in the end his putter failed him in three of his four rounds at Whistling Straits, so he went winless in the four major tournaments in 2004.

Photos by Judy Harlow

were just as proud as I was to host such an event.

Happy, smiling faces could be seen everywhere, except perhaps on John Daly, whose bid for a Ryder Cup roster spot evaporated after he shot an 81 in the first round.

One of the biggest perks we volunteers all received was getting to watch the tournament action when we weren't on duty. And oh, boy, were there some highlights that stand out in my mind, like seeing Hale Irwin's ace on No. 7 during the first day of action.

Irwin's shot hit the left bank near the edge of the green, propelling the ball in an easterly direction and right into the cup.

My husband and I decided the best plan of action for the opening round was to pick a hole, then camp out there and get to see most golfers in the field. There were just 15 of us out there at 7:30 a.m., watching Lake Michigan and reflecting a while until Skip Kendall and the first group came by about 8:30. Kendall's tee shot landed just two feet from the pin. Here was a Wisconsin product treating us to the first birdie of the tournament on the 223-yard test.

Like the loaves and the fishes, the number of spectators grew by leaps and bounds when the big boys came through. We saw them all — Tiger, Phil, Sergio, the Big Easy, Vijay, Justin Leonard, Chris DeMarco, Darren Clarke, etc.

Friday before my stint in the embroidery and engraving department, I decided to sit in the stands at No. 18 for a while and was not only able to see shots on the finishing hole but No. 9 as well.

Sunday, fans literally hit the ground running at 7 a.m. when the gates were opened. Honestly, there were golf fans waiting to dash to the stands to secure a seat for the drama to unfold some 11 hours later.

When Leonard came up short on his approach to 18, the playoff was on, and the door was open for Singh to claim the Wannamaker Trophy.

This was a finish golf fans will not soon forget, and it happened right here in our state.

Now back to Packer games and plans for the gun deer season which opens on November 20th.

A's suffer tough loss in 12th inning

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Just three outs. That's all the Kewaskum Athletics needed Sunday to defeat visiting Hartford and keep their slim Rock River League playoff hopes alive.

The A's were nursing a 2-1 lead at Kiwanis Park when Steve Owen came up to the plate as the first hitter in the top of the ninth inning. Owen ruined Kewaskum's day, hitting a home run off Jim Ziegler to tie the game, and the deadlock was broken in the 12th when the Hartford team scored two more runs and the A's weren't able to answer. The final score was 4-2.

"I just made a mistake with that leadoff hitter in the ninth," Ziegler, the team spokesperson said Monday night, reporting it was really quite a pitchers' duel with both starters throwing all 12 innings.

Josh Herring escaped with the victory, and he had an impressive 24 strikeouts in the game against just two walks.

"Everyone in our lineup struck out at least once," Ziegler said, reporting he wound up fanning 11 Hartford hitters and walked three.

Kewaskum took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Ty Schill drew a walk and stole second. Herring got the next two A's to strike out, but he couldn't fool Jason Strobel and Adam Sarauer, who came up with back-to-back singles for the hosts' first run.

In the fourth, it was Strobel getting a rally started with a single. He stole second, then Sarauer singled him to third, and Dan Shea stroked an RBI base hit.

Unfortunately, the A's were not able to push any more runs across the plate in either inning.

In the 12th, Ziegler may have been tiring as he gave up a double, then a single and after intentionally walking Owen to load the bases, the next man up singled in the first run, and an error produced Hartford's other.

The A's threatened in the bottom of the 12th, with Jake Panzer and Steve Ketter reaching on an error and a hit, respectively, before Herring got the final two outs on strikeouts.

Sarauer went 4x6 for the A's, and Strobel had a pair of singles.

Ziegler was satisfied with his effort, except for the one pitch to Owen. He said Herring's strikeout total was amazing but added, "He threw more pitches than I did. He had to have more than 200."

The loss gives Kewaskum a 9-8 mark in the Rock River and pretty well dashes their playoff hopes. Still the A's are expected to be fired up for the finale at Waupun on Sunday.

"We hope to finish on a high note," Ziegler said.

By JUDY HARLOW

An opening-round 76 propelled Jason Jahnke to win the annual Junior Championship at Hon-E-Kor Country Club.

Jahnke had a four-shot lead over Jeff Anderson of West Bend (82) after the first round of action, then his 86 on the second day was enough for a three-shot margin of victory, 164-167.

Finishing in third place was Paul Hoenecke of Kewaskum. He posted 18-hole scores of 88 and 90 for a 178. Jeff Paulus was fourth with a 184, while Kyle Witte came in at 203.

Cale Anderson carded a 91 in the first round, then withdrew from the competition.

HEK Pro Joe Harlow has announced applications are currently being taken for the Men's and Women's Club Championships.

Golfers still need time to develop

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

When Carol Martin opened the cupboard for the 2004 Kewaskum High girls golf team, she found it to be a little barer than it was a year ago.

Gone from the club which tied for third place with Watertown in the Wisconsin Little Ten race last fall are six golfers, including regulars Crystal Dreher, a first-team all-WLT pick, Katie Kowalczyk and Cassie Rempel.

Martin, who is starting her fifth season as head coach, does have two experienced players, Katie Korth and Nicole Rempel, who are both juniors.

"They will be my Nos. 1 and 2," Martin said. "They both hit the ball long," but to drop their scoring averages below the low 50s mark, where they were last season, they will have to improve their short games.

Senior Maggie Dickmann is also back but she didn't play on the varsity enough in 2003 to earn a letter. She will be a varsity player this season, according to Martin, who said, "I think I'm going to go doing a lot of changing at Nos. 4 and 5," especially early in the season because many of the girls did not play much golf during the summer so it will take time to sharpen their skills.

Kewaskum had three matches scheduled this week, including the season-opener at Two Rivers on Wednesday, the Highlander Invitational at Hawthorne Hills today (Thursday) and Friday at the Sheboygan quadrangular meet.

About the first meet, Martin said, "This is just a little dual we have with Two Rivers to open the year."

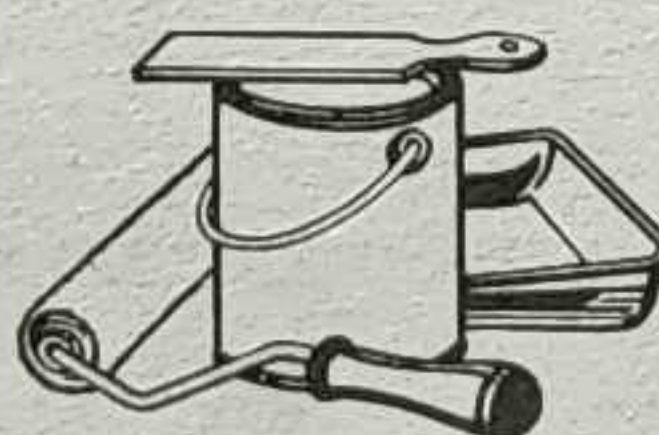

Practice opened last Monday, and Martin said she is currently working with a squad of ten. While many do not have any experience, she said they appear to be very coachable, adding, "They'll get better as the season progresses."

Martin was disappointed none of the six freshmen who originally signed up for golf came to practice last week, but she thinks she will pick up a couple more girls this week.

Concerning who will be strong in the WLT this season, Martin said, "I think it will be Watertown." The Indians won't have long to wait until the first WLT match. It's set for Monday, Aug. 23rd at Watertown. In the conference matches, the team scores are determined by taking the low four individuals from six players on the varsity.

KHS will host its WLT meet at Hon-E-Kor on Thursday, Sept. 9.
