Variety of food, fun, music at Friend's of Kewaskum Mardi Gras celebration

A large assortment of delicious treats will await you at the Taste of Kewaskum which will kick off the Mardi Gras Celebration at Amerahn this Saturday, February 5. Mardi Gras is being sponsored by the Friends of Kewaskum.

The Taste of Kewaskum portion of the festivities begins at 6 p.m. and will feature the culinary specialties of some of Kewaskum's favorite chefs. Each food vendor will have their own booth and will serve smaller portions ala carte so that you will be able to sample as many of the treats as you can consume in a few hours.

The Silver Platter Restaurant will be featuring their special burgers and a Mardi Gras favorite called jambalaya. The Kewaskum Kiwanis will be serving two kinds of delectable turkey sandwiches, one with gravy and a new treat, turkey BBQ. Craig Gloede, star chef at Woody's Steakhouse will be preparing his famous Cajun chicken fiesta and ribeye steak sandwiches. Jodi Strobel of JO's Restaurant is planning on serving her choice Swiss chicken breast and her yummy garlic bread.

Also on hand will be the Kewaskum High School dance team who will be offering nachos and a large variety of homemade desserts, and the Coffee Corner will have an assortment of hot, delicious coffee and hot drinks. And just in case your sweet tooth is not quite satisfied, Chris Jung of The Candy Tree will be there with the perfect pre-Lenten treat, chocolate... chocolate and more CHOCOLATE!

There may also be a few more surprises planned as far as cuisine is concerned. But with this kind of variety, The Taste of Kewaskum is sure to please even the most finicky appetite.

Two other vendors are also planning on taking part in the Mardi Gras celebration. Teresa and John Klein, always a favorite at the Kettle Kountry Colors festival will be at Mardi Gras featuring an assortment of sweat-shirts and other fun items for sale. Kevin Hein and his Kewaskum High School marketing/woodworking class will also have a booth displaying their woodwork and they will be taking orders.

The fun and games will also begin at 6 p.m. with beads being given to everyone with a paid admission. There will be raffles, a silent auction with many items for young and old alike, the traditional prize egg basket, and the infamous Friends Wheel of Prizes.

At 8 p.m. the live entertainment begins with Mike the DJ, who comes to us highly praised by local favorite Downtown Harrison. During his tenure on stage, there will also be a limbo contest guaranteed to be a crowd pleaser. Plan on getting into it and you may find yourself in line for some great prizes. The limbo is being sponsored by Dodie Sargent of Little Folks School House and she has informed us that there will be different prizes for different age groups, so start loosening up those muscles.

Also on the agenda for the evening will be the highly coveted coronation of Mr. Mardi Gras. That will take place right around 10:30 and don't forget we're hoping the finalists will attend in costume and that alone should be worth the price of admission! To find out who the eight finalists are please see the related article. You may find a few surprises there, too.

Join the Friends of Kewaskum on Saturday, February 5 for their Mardi Gras Celebration. Come in costume and you may be eligible for a nifty prize. It's been a long winter, Lent is just around the corner, so break out and have some fun. Bring your entire family for there will be lots of fun, games and laughs for everyone.

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

● EDEN MAN FACING SEX ASSAULT CHARGES - A 21-year old man from Eden is facing charges of having sex with a 15-year-old girl. The man is being held in the Fond du Lac County Jail on a $1,000 cash bond. He is one of nine men in Fond du Lac who allegedly had sexual contact with the same 15-year-old. The girl is also facing 37 counts of sexual assault. The 21-year-old Eden man will appear in court again on February 10th.

● GROTHMAN ON CNN - State Senator Glenn Grothman made a national appearance on CNN. The Republican from West Bend was interviewed on the Lou Dobbs show about WHEDA loans for illegal aliens. "His show contacted us because I've been trying to get the WHEDA board to suspend the program," said Grothman. WHEDA provides home loans to first-time home buyers and tries to serve populations that have low ownership rates. Defaults on WHEDA loans are covered by insurance. "The ignoring of the immigration laws says that when we give out loans to illegal immigrants, it says our government believes our own laws are a joke," Grothman continued. "How can we say it's wrong for employers to ire illegal aliens yet we then give low interest loans to illegals." Grothman said some banks in Wisconsin are making money on the loan program to illegal aliens. Grothman's appearance was taped last Thursday morning at the public television studios at Vilas Hall at the University of Wisconsin and was about 10 minutes.

● PRESCOTT TO BE IN MADISON - George Prescott, former owner of the area Pick N Saves, is teaming up with Michael J. Fox and Governor Doyle to discuss stem cell research. Fox and Prescott are teaming up to try and find a cure for Parkinson's disease. Fox was in Madison to tour the University of Wisconsin's Waisman center and talk about Governor Doyle's research initiatives. Last year Prescott donated $2.1 million of his own money to help find new treatments for Parkinson's. Scientists at UWM are garnering national attention after making a major breakthrough in stem cell research. Word is, scientists have developed a way to encourage human embryonic stem cells to become spinal motor neurons and that could eventually help with degenerative diseases.

Virtual School information session Feb. 7 in West Bend

APPLETON - Wisconsin Connections Academy (WCA), Wisconsin's original K-8 virtual charter school, is inviting West Bend-area parents to attend free information sessions to learn more about its personalized approach to education. WCA provides public schooling for Wisconsin children at home, under the guidance of a certified public school teacher. WCA is a Wisconsin public school chartered through the Appleton Area School District.

The information sessions will be held at 1:00 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 7 at Clairmont Inn, 2520 W. Washington St. in West Bend.

"I'm proud of WCA and the high-quality education we provide for all of our students around the state," said Nichole Schweitzer, principal of WCA. "Hundreds of students are growing and thriving in this educational environment, and I'm excited to be able to share our success stories and program with other Wisconsin families who may also benefit from virtual schooling. Selecting the right school is a difficult and important decision for parents, and that is why we want to give parents the chance to learn about and experience WCA for themselves."

According to Wisconsin's open enrollment laws, students interested in enrolling in WCA who live outside of the Appleton Area School District must apply for admission to WCA between Feb. 7 and Feb. 25, 2005, in order to be eligible to enroll in the school for the 2005-2006 academic year. Submitting an open enrollment application does not obligate a child to attend WCA, rather it preserves the families right to choose WCA for fall 2005.

At the information sessions, attendees will be able to meet and talk with WCA teachers and a family who currently has children enrolled in WCA. In addition, samples of WCA's curriculum will be available for parents to review.

The parent information sessions will begin with a brief presentation about the school. Parents will then be able to visit several breakout areas, including areas for curriculum, technology, open enrollment information and more. Additionally, parents will be able to talk with a family who currently has children enrolled in the school to gain first-hand information about the program. Pre-registration is not required, and anyone interested in learning more about WCA is encouraged to attend.

"WCA has proven to be a successful and positive experience for many families around Wisconsin," said Schweitzer. "I strongly believe in this program and know that it helps many students learn in an environment that is most beneficial for their individual, educational needs. I'm pleased to have this opportunity to share WCA with area families to let them decide if WCA could be a good fit for their family."

WCA is a public school chartered through the Appleton Area School District, and because it is a public school, there is no tuition or fees to enroll. The school opened in the fall of 2002 and currently serves approximately 500 students in kindergarten through eighth grade. Students learn at home under the guidance of a certified Appleton Area School District teacher, along with oversight provided by a parent or guardian.

The school loans each family a computer, reimburses them for an Internet connection and provides all curriculum materials. WCA also supplies all of the necessary software and free technical support to ensure the computer is working properly. WCA meets the needs of students who, for a variety of reasons, learn better outside of the traditional classroom, but who can still benefit from the resources a public school can provide such as textbooks and lesson plans, professional teacher support, opportunities for peer interaction and more. In addition, WCA students have the opportunity to participate in field trips and various community activities throughout the year.

A total of 26 information sessions are being held for parents around the state from January 26 through February 22. In addition, five half-day expos will be held in Eau Claire, Wausau, Madison, Racine and Appleton. For more information, parents are encouraged to call (800) 382-6010 or visit www.connectionsacademy.com.

West Bend Rep. Strachota co-sponsors voter I.D. legislation

By ANDREW KUEHL
STATESMAN MANAGING EDITOR
akuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

MADISON- While many are feeling discouraged after a series of allegations have come out about voter fraud in Milwaukee County a few Republican legislators are taking action. At a Capitol press conference on Monday, January 31, Representative Pat Strachota (R-West Bend) joined legislative leaders in introducing photo ID legislation requiring

Pat Strachota

Wisconsin's voters to present a valid photo ID before voting or attempting to register to vote.

"It is imperative that Wisconsin take this step to protect the integrity of our voting process," said Strachota. "Media reports from across the state show that there have been several discrepancies in ballots cast verses number of citizens voting. When the FBI has to get involved in Wisconsin's voting process, it is clear it is time to make some changes."

Assembly Bill 63 is being authored by Representative Jeff Stone (R-Greendale) and Senator Joe Leibham (R-Sheboygan) and has received 49 Assembly co-sponsors, including Strachota, and 16 Senate co-sponsors from every region of the state. The legislation is an improved version of the photo ID bill that the Governor vetoed last session.

Village of Kewaskum Administrator Dan Schmidt also supports the proposed bill. While he doesn't feel voter fraud is prevalent in the village he feels this is the "best tool as far as retaining integrity as the village grows"

Schmidt also thought that this was good legislation that would treat everyone fair and equally.

Assembly Bill 63 will allow elderly/infirm voters casting absentee ballots via mail to include a written signed statement from a witness verifying their identity in lieu of a copy of a valid photo id. It will also allow those individuals without an accurate address on their photo ID to verify their address with one of the measures prescribed under current law.

Gov. Doyle vetoed a voter ID bill in the previous legislative session, and has suggested he would veto the bill again, even after evidence of election fraud has begun to surface in Milwaukee. The evidence is strong enough to merit an FBI probe, which was announced last week.

Strachota also added, "This is a common sense reform that will ensure voters in Washington County, and elsewhere in the state, do not have their votes wiped out by instances of voter fraud. I hope that the Governor will see the merits of this bill and sign it into law as soon as it reaches his desk."

Lynn receives special ring from her alma mater

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Young track and field hopefuls need not look any further than the county they live in to find an inspiring athlete to model their careers after.

In 1999, Marni Lynn, a 1997 graduate of Kewaskum High, became Carroll College's first ever National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) III Track and Field National Champion by winning the indoor title (at Ohio Northern College) in the 1,500-meter run. Her time of 4 minutes, 32 and 72/100ths seconds (4:32.72) was the fifth best time recorded in NCAA III Track Championship history.

Lynn's second NCAA III title came in the spring of 1999 when she won the 3,000 meter race in the Outdoor National Meet held at Baldwin-Wallace College near Cleveland, Ohio. Her time of 9:48.84 was the ninth best NCAA III time ever recorded.

In that same outdoor meet, Lynn earned her third All-American award by placing fifth in the 1,500 run.

All of the above were the icing on a huge cake of accomplishments for Lynn, who set eight school records, won 18 Midwest Conference indoor and outdoor titles, set conference records in six events, earned the title of MVP/Outstanding Meet performer nine times and qualified nine times for national track events and once in cross country.

Lynn also holds the record for the fastest 5-kilometer cross country time in school history, a time of 17:42.6.

Not only was Lynn a good athlete, she excelled in the classroom as well, earning several Midwest Conference Academic All-Conference awards and NCAA Academic All-American awards in both cross country and track.

Lynn still lives in Waukesha and currently runs her own marketing company doing graphic design t-shirts, apparel and promotional items for schools and companies. She was honored along with two other Pioneers at a ceremony held in Waukesha Friday night (Jan. 28) during the half-time of Carroll's men's basketball game.

How does a young woman attain such high collegiate goals, especially considering she never managed to win a state championship while competing for Kewaskum High School?

"I didn't want to be average. I wanted to be the best," Lynn said in an e-mail correspondence over the past weekend, quick to add, "I was lucky to have coaches who believed in me and figured out what I, as an individual, needed to do to perform at the highest possible level."

Lynn has often noted current KHS Coach Jerry Gosa was very important in her development, and at Carroll, Brian Illiese and Rich Vargas were the two coaches who unselfishly guided her right to the top of the national track scene.

During Friday's presentation, directed by the schools current athletic director and track coach, Lynn was presented with a ring made of 10 karat gold and with a topaz stone for Carroll's colors. One side of the ring has a big "C" for Carroll and the other has a female runner with 1,500m and 3,000m, 1999 inscribed. Her name is also inscribed on the inside.

"Being a national champion is the greatest accomplishment I have ever experienced," Lynn said. "It gave me a certain status that will never leave me, no matter how good or bad I should run in future track seasons ... I became a leader for runners all across the Country. Coaches and athletes from all over the Country knew who I was and what I accomplished, and they respected me for it."

What made Lynn especially proud was the fact she was in her own words "a prime example of an athlete who started college as an average runner and through hard work and determination became the best in the nation."

She qualified for national meets her junior and senior years, but illness and a stress fracture kept her from winning additional titles.

In addition to running her business and teaching piano lessons at Eagleville Elementary School, Lynn still works out six days a week, which includes three days of running, two days of swimming and one spinning. She had planned to run in an event at UW-Whitewater on Saturday but then found out unattached runners were not allowed in the event.

Lynn's parents, Bob and Sandy, and Vargas were in attendance at Friday's ceremony.

* Nick Wietor, who also received his national chamionship ring Friday, competed for Campbell'sport High School before going to Carroll College where he was a standout in the weight events. Wietor and his wife, Shannon, who also ran for Carroll College, currently reside in Kewaskum. He won the discus title in 1999.

Plymouth residents upset as city ratifies deal with Aurora Health Care

The Common Council in Plymouth has ratified a deal with Aurora Health Care - thus Aurora will continue to provide urgent care services at Valley View Medical Center and they'll also begin construction of a new $8 million clinic. Neither Valley View nor the new clinic will offer inpatient or emergency services. Area ambulances will have to take emergency patients to hospitals in surrounding cities.

An ambulance driver from Random Lake says Aurora is not living up to earlier promises, where they reportedly guaranteed a free standing emergency room. Aurora is not commenting. Officials in Plymouth initially were exploring the possibility of having the city acquire Valley View Medical Center, but now they say that's not a good move for taxpayers.

Waukesha County moves ahead with referendum on state mandates

Washington County supervisors have been considering a pair of referendums to help fund state mandated programs. While Washington County is still debating, Waukesha County has decided to move forward with a referendum.

Voters in Waukesha will vote on a pair of referendums April 5th. They'll ask voters whether the state should pay the cost of Waukesha County Courts and Human Services. Both are programs mandated but not fully funded by the state. More than 30 other counties in the state have already agreed to referendums.

New insurance building to go up at Hwy. 33

The city of West Bend has a deal for a new office building to go up at the corner of Highway 33 and Wisconsin Street. Reportedly, A.N. Ansay and Associates has purchased the corner parcel and they should be breaking ground within the next three months. The insurance agency says the new building will be home to their office along with a fitness center and condos.

A.N. Ansay bought the land from the city as part of their tax incremental financing district.

Sensenbrenner reintroduces driver's license immigration bill

Congressman Jim Sensenbrenner is once again working on a measure aimed at banning illegal immigrants from getting a driver's license.

Sensenbrenner introduced a package this week on immigration and security measures. His initial proposals were dropped by Congress last month. The key proposal from the Menomonee Falls Republican targets driver's licenses to undocumented residents. Sensenbrenner says the measure is needed to prevent terrorists from using the ID to penetrate the country's security defenses.

DNR sets aside 181 acres in Washington and Sheboygan counties

In an effort to stabilize the rural landscape in Washington County the state is going to spend $599,000 to prevent development on 1818 acres, mainly in the Farmington area.

Last week, the Natural Resources Board voted 7-0 on acquiring 101 acres in the Town of Farmington at a cost of $415,000. The rest of the money will be used to buy property in the Town of Sherman in Sheboygan County. Governor Jim Doyle must still approve the acquisition which will prevent development on the land.

New bank to open in West Bend

A new bank could soon be coming to West Bend. A group of investors, with the Commerce State Bank, are exploring their options. Frederic Ruf, who is the former chairman of the Wisconsin Housing and Economic Development Authority is taking the lead on the deal. He says that West Bend needs a bank that will focus on small and midsized family owned businesses. The bank is expected to open this fall, along Highway 33 between downtown and Highway 41.

FdL buys old Kohls store

The City of Fond du Lac is going to spend $385,000 to buy the old Kohl's food store property on Sophia Street. The city is using a combination of city and federal funding to purchase the old store. After a study, the city will determine whether to use the site for green space or a residential development. The Kohl's store closed 15 years ago.

FdL man awaiting charges on Molotov Cocktail

A 22 year-old Fond du Lac man will be facing charges of possession of a Molotov Cocktail after the firebomb was thrown in the driveway of a home on the city's northwest side. No one was injured during the incident.

Theft at John Paul Chevy

West Bend Police say someone stole an exhaust off a new Chevy Avalanche from John Paul Chevy on West Washington Street. The dealership called the cops around 10:30 a.m. Monday, January 31 after noticing the part was missing. Police have no suspects at this time.

Jury trial begins for WB man accused of child assault

A three day jury trial began Tuesday, February 1 in Washington County Court for a West Bend man accused of assaulting a nine-year-old girl. A criminal complaint says 45 year-old Arthur Ankebrant lured the girl into his apartment, offered her a glass of water and then said he'd teach her how to defend herself so people wouldn't hurt her.

Ankebrant then allegedly assaulted the girl. He's pleaded not guilty to three charges of assault and child enticement.

Eight finalists to compete for 'Mr. Mardi Gras' title

A flurry of last minute voting totally took me by surprise and changed the entire makeup of the Mr. Mardi Gras contest.

Last week I figured a $5 bill would pretty much guarantee any candidate would make it to the finals but that notion went right out the window in a hurry. It's amazing to see what some people will do to get out of the contest or make sure someone else gets in!

We actually only received two NEW candidates at the close of the nominations and they were Kevin Bartelt and Dave Pfeiffer. However, both of these candidates received enough nominations to put them into the finals. Congratulations guys... I think... you must have a lot of friends... or enemies, depending on how you look at it.

For those of you who don't know our first two finalists, Kevin Bartelt is the branch manager at West Bend Savings Bank here in Kewaskum. He is very active in the community, is a member of local civic groups including the Kewaskum Kiwanis and the Kewaskum Area Chamber of Commerce to name a few. And we'll let him try to figure out just who thought he would make a perfect candidate.

The second newcomer to make it right, smack dab into the finals is none other than Dave Pfeiffer, who I assume is absolutely thrilled. For those of you who don't know Dave, well... I don't think there is anyone who doesn't know Dave... just a quiet, reserved guy that dines at Woody's Steakhouse, keeps to himself alot, and hangs out with a group of friends who spend alot of time at the library. Yeah... right! That makes even me giggle! Dave does enjoy an occasional prank, and it looks as if his friends do too! I won't say who voted for you Dave, because I think you can pretty much figure it out.

I am not giving out these finalists in any particular order, but the third gentleman who comes to mind is John Borland of John's On Main fame. Seems John's customers think it would be great fun to see if they can get him crowned Mr. Mardi Gras. I have to agree with them. But then I think ALL the candidates this time are simply incredible!

The fourth finalist is Josh Riebe. His votes were totally anonymous. They were actually typed on the nomination form. Josh is a senior at Kewaskum High School and is an apprentice chef at Woody's Steakhouse. Yes, it does look as if the gang at Woody's was very busy one night.

And as long as we have brought up Kewaskum High School, another one of our finalists hails from the old alma mater. But this finalist is one of the student's all-time favorite teachers, none other than Dave Rockhill. Hopefully the entire student body will be on hand to drop in a dollar vote for their preferable choice.

The sixth finalist is Andrew Kuehl who edged his way into the finals courtesy of his mother-in-law, Cindy Rawley, who just happens to be visiting Wisconsin from Las Vegas. Grandma also gave Andrew's son Hunter money to vote too, and he was extremely proud to vote for daddy.

The seventh finalist also hails from the Woody's establishment and that is the star bartender, Scott Rohlinger. So our finalists contain two of the best old-fashioned makers I know... Scott and Andrew. I don't know if that has to be a prerequisite for attaining the Mr. Mardi Gras crown, but it sure can't hurt. Scott also is an assistant golf coach and I hope all those who enjoy golf will drop in a vote for Scott!

And last, but certainly not least is one of the Friends personal favorites, local Modern Woodmen representative Jeff Jaeger. Jeff is so busy in the community he hardly has time for dating, drinking or any of the other hobbies single men enjoy. That's right... Jeff's a bachelor and he is very active in the Friends group and the Chamber. Chamber members now is the time to throw in a few votes for Jeff. I just know he would hate the notoriety of being crowned Mr. Mardi Gras!

So there are the finalists.... if your favorite didn't make it, you have no one to blame but yourself for not voting more.

Each of the above finalists are asked to attend the Mardi Gras Celebration at Amerahn on Saturday, February 5. If you would like to earn some extra points, come on up in costume and you will receive an extra 10 bonus points. If your costume is judged to be the best of the finalists you will receive another 25 bonus points. I heard an ugly rumor that someone was knitting Scott Rohlinger a loin cloth and of course, that also is worth the price of admission, but I think that it truly is just an ugly rumor.

At this stage of the game there are cannisters at Woody's where you can throw a $1.00 vote in for Josh, Scott and maybe even for Dave Pfeiffer. If there is no cannister for Dave, just paste $1.00 up on the mirror and I will know how to retrieve it.

There is also a cannister to vote for John Borland at John's On Main and we are hoping some inventive student (or teacher) will take up a collection or cannister at high school for Dave Rockhill. And I have a funny hunch there must be someone at West Bend Savings Bank who could come up with an idea to collect votes for Kevin Bartelt.

Now finalists it is time for you to figure out which charity you wish to donate half of the money you raise to. All finalists will receive half of the proceeds they raise to donate to the charity of their choice. The other half will benefit Kettle Kountry Kolors. So it is a win-win situation for all involved. Finalists do have to put up with a little grief, but it all goes to a good cause.

And remember, finalists may donate their half of the proceeds to any charity they choose, whether it be the high school football program, golf program, a local needy charity, civic organization, the auditorium fund, or your favorite national charity. You get to make the call.

I might add I think this is a great group of finalists and if you don't attend the celebration, you will miss a very fun-filled evening, not even mentioning all the other food and games being planned.

If anyone has any questions call Lana or Nicole at 626-2626. Otherwise be sure you pick up your advance sale ticket (or come in to cast your vote) at the Statesman.

Sculptures on Display at UWWC Festival

WEST BEND - UW-Washington County will be displaying the sculptures of Jon Schultz, this year's featured alumni artist, at their upcoming Fine Arts Festival on Sunday, February 6. A graduate of Kewaskum High School, Jon attended UW-Washington County before transferring to UW-Milwaukee where he will complete a bachelor's degree in Art Sculpture this May. Festival hours are from 1:00 to 4:00 pm at the West Bend campus.

A required three-dimensional art course at UW-Washington County helped Jon to discover his passion and career path. By his sophomore year, Jon had decided to major in art. Excelling at drawing, Jon wasn't looking forward to taking the required class in ceramics, taught by Professor Tom Gross. However, after working with cast ceramics in Tom's class, he found that he really enjoyed the medium.

Describing Professor Gross as a "great teacher," Jon notes that Tom is the one who suggested he complete his degree at UW-Milwaukee. Tom also suggested that Jon visit Professor Charles Kraus, his art instructor while attending UW-Milwaukee. Jon decided to take this advice and transferred to UW-Milwaukee, where he experimented with bronze and metal castings. He also became friends with a student from Germany who had studied art in Italy, and worked extensively with stone. The elderly man convinced Jon to try experimenting with stone. Jon was at home with the stone sculptures, advancing to several types of stone, including marble, granite, limestone, and quartz as well as combinations of stone and metal. In May, Jon will graduate from UW-Milwaukee with a major in sculpture.

Jon plans to continue his education after graduation, but hasn't made a final decision on the campus. His career plan is to teach art at the college level, while continuing to work as a sculpture artist. In addition to his studies, Jon has worked as a landscape designer for Unique

Services in West Bend for the past nine years. He views this work as a "sculpture in a sense," and enjoys the design aspect of "bringing patterns together." He also enjoys finding potential art materials while working on a job site.

In addition to traditional classroom learning, Jon has participated in several day long iron pours at UW-Whitewater as well as an International Contemporary Cast Iron Art Conference and Iron Pour at Johnson Atelier in New Jersey. Locally, Jon's artwork has been displayed at Menomonee Falls Public Library, and the Alfons and Skylight Galleries in Milwaukee. His work has also appeared in two international exhibitions at the Ghost Fleet Fine Arts Gallery in Nags Head, North Carolina. In 2003, Jon received first place in the George Grundie Scholarship Competition at UW-Milwaukee.

A graduate of Kewaskum High School, Jon also credits the excellent art teachers at both the middle and high schools. Jon "enjoyed his experience" at UW-Washington County and views it as a "stepping stone to his career." If he hadn't attended the West Bend campus or taken that required ceramics class, who knows what career path he might have followed. As it stands, he feels very fortunate to have discovered his passion and a very promising career path.

Other Festival Highlights: Artwork from 24 area middle and high schools will be on display at the campus, which is located at 400 University Drive (off Hwy. 33 West) in West Bend. Hundreds of students will also be participating in musical and dance performances. Admission and parking are free.

For more information about the Fine Arts Festival, contact Sue Survis, Director of University Relations at 262-335-5233 or by email at ssurvis@uwc.edu. For festival highlights and updates, visit the campus website at: <http://washington.uwc.edu>.

Create the perfect getaway at home

A Little Imagination Can Go a Long Way on Valentine's Day

(ARA) - It's not romantic, but in today's world, money can be tight and quality time together can be scarce. That's why it's so important for couples to create a perfect night for Valentine's Day -- instead of the predictable candy, flowers or dinner in a crowded, overpriced restaurant.

Valentine's Day gives us a chance, not only to relight the spark we have with our special someone, but to throw on a little kerosene so that it burns bright for another year. Even on a tight budget, a memorable night of romance and fantasy can be yours by using your imagination (which is still free until someone learns how to bottle it) and remembering this: you can be anywhere your heart desires with the right music, the right lighting and the right wine.

The Ski Cabin Fantasy

Is it your dream to spend a romantic weekend in Asheville or Aspen? Just the two of you in a little cabin, spending the night in front of a fire, safe from the ice and cold outside. Set the mood, and you're instantly there. Dim the lights and place some thick blankets and comfy pillows in front of the fireplace. Create that authentic atmosphere by turning down the heat as much as possible so that the blankets, the fire and some snuggling are absolutely necessary. Scent is important, so add a little something extra to the fire by soaking hickory chips in orange or apple juice overnight, powdering them with cinnamon and clove and then adding them to the fire as needed. For music, try some instrumental jazz like Miles Davis or John Coltrane. A spread of sliced cheeses, grapes, warm chestnuts and a passionate-purple bottle of Luna di Luna Sangiovese/Merlot will complete the scene with just the right flavors.

The Tropical Paradise Fantasy

Does the idea of an amorous night in Aruba, Key West or Cancun for Valentine's Day sound more like your sweetheart's desire? With a little creativity you can provide the next best thing. Turn-up the heat and lay out a thin blanket and a couple of beach chairs to create a tropical scene. Turn off all the lights on the east side of the room and replace the lights on the west side with orange bulbs to simulate the sunset, then spritz the air with ocean breeze- or orchid-scented air freshener to recreate a tropical atmosphere. Cook a tropical-style meal (grilled seafood or steak are always good choices) and serve it on the blanket. Add a background CD of beach sounds like waves or gulls to set the tone for the evening. For a finishing touch, you'll need a sunshine-yellow bottle of Luna di Luna Pinot Grigio/Pinot Bianco or the volcano-orange bottled Shiraz/Merlot and a CD of Jimmy Buffet or Bob Marley to play on another stereo and you're all set.

The Italian Romance Fantasy

Rome, Milan, Venice, Florence, Palermo; some of the most romantic cities in the world are in Italy. Chances are your Valentine would love a starry-eyed night of Italian food and ambiance almost as much as actually being there. Serve-up eggplant or chicken parmesan, baked ziti, tortellini alfredo or frutti de mar (Italian seafood pasta) along with salad and garlic bread to make mouths water and to put a rich, delightful smell in the air. Set the table and light candles throughout the dining area for a sophisticated ambiance. Pop open a romantic-red bottle of Luna di Luna Merlot/Cabernet, fill the air with the sounds of romantic arias or maybe Frank Sinatra, and you'll have created a masterpiece by capturing the essence of Italy right in your dining room.

Any of these "vacations" would ordinarily cost you a pretty penny. But, as you can now see, with a little ingenuity you can create the experience right in your own home. All you have to do is imagine what that perfect night would be like, then creatively use music, lighting, color and scent to set the mood and capture the experience. After all, if "it's the thought that really counts", then the imagination you put in to your Valentine's Day evening will be worth a fortune.

The Ha-Ha
By: Dave King

The Ha-Ha A Novel Dave King

Someone told me the other day that the average man uses 2,000 words in a normal day, while the average woman uses 7,000 words in her daily conversations. Which makes you wonder: who figures this stuff out? What would you do if you could not read, write, or speak? How would you ask for directions, follow a recipe, or use the internet? How would you tell someone that they mean the world to you? In "The Ha-Ha", the new novel by Dave King (c.2005, Little, Brown and Company), Howard Kapostash manages just fine - until his life is turned upside down.

Sixteen days, that's all. Howard was in Vietnam 16 lousy days when he was injured by a bomb that he barely remembers. He was in a coma for awhile, and he spent months in rehabilitation. When he got out, his leg dragged, but that got better. His head, though, was another story. The bomb left him with a crease in his noggin and a big pink scar that stands out like a neon sign. Worst of all, something happened, and Howard can't make his brain work with his lips or his eyes. Howard is unable to speak anymore, and written words no longer make sense.

Back when he was in high school, Howard was in love with Sylvia. She was sweet and innocent then, but while Howard was a soldier, Sylvia discovered drugs and booze. When he came home, things were never the same between them. They're still friends, though, and every now and then, Sylvia leans on Howard; like now, when she's heading for rehab once again, and she asks him to take care of her 9-year-old son, Ryan, for awhile.

What does a childless middle-aged man without a voice know about taking care of a kid with an attitude? Not much, Howard decides, but he reluctantly brings Ryan home anyway, to the house he shares with Laurel, who runs a business out of the kitchen, and two guys Howard derisively thinks of as Nit and Nat.

Nobody in the house expected to be sharing living quarters with a kid. Nobody thought it was a good idea to have him around.

Nobody predicted they'd make their own family and learn to love a boy who needed them as much as they needed him.

Usually, when I read a book I like, I have no trouble racing through it, but "The Ha-Ha" was different, and I wasn't sure why. Then I realized that I dragged my feet because I didn't want it to end. Though Howard is mute, the story is told from his point of view, and he's funny and sarcastic, and I was intrigued by his intelligence mixed with his inability to show it. The other thing I liked is that author Dave King gives this book a Hollywood ending, but it's not the ending you think it's going to be.

Put this book on your "To Read" list. "The Ha-Ha" is one you won't be able to stop talking about.

He was born on August 26, 1942 in Eau Claire to the late Ralph and Loren (nee Watson) Hestekin. After graduating from Eau Claire High School Arthur joined the United States Army where he served almost one year in Vietnam.

Following his service in the Army he became a unit manager for Commercial Collections in Milwaukee.

On July 5, 1996 he was united in marriage to Marie Donnelly in West Bend.

In his spare time Arthur enjoyed a variety of hobbies; one of his favorites was model railroading. He also enjoyed playing the guitar and camping. Arthur was a member of the Miller-Justman-Guelig American Legion Post 270.

He is survived by his wife, Marie; a son, Jason (Tammy) Hestekin of Oshkosh; three step-children, Debbie (Andy) Leitheiser of Milwaukee, Dianna Donnelly of West Bend, and Rodney (Amy) Donnelly of Kewaskum; nine grandchildren; 3 great-grandchildren; a brother, Ralph (Kay) Hestekin of Chetek; a sister-in-law, Clara Ann (Rex) King of Byesville, Ohio; other relatives and many close friends.

He was preceded in death by his parents, and a step-son Jeff Donnelly.

A memorial service for Arthur was held on Wednesday February 2 at 7:00 pm at the Myrhum-Patten Funeral Home, West Bend. Rev. David Schoob of Trinity Lutheran Church officiated. Visitation was at the funeral home on Wednesday from 4:00 pm until the time of service.

Memorials to the family would be greatly appreciated.

West Bend Clinic physicians receive board re-certification

Charles Kaufmann, D.O.

Howard Hack, M.D.

WEST BEND – Synergy Health West Bend Clinic physicians Charles Kaufmann, D.O. and Howard Hack, M.D., recently earned Board Re-Certification from the American Board of Medical Specialties (ABMS).

Dr. Kaufmann, Family Practitioner, successfully completed the American Board of Family Practice re-certification exam. Dr. Hack, Gastroenterologist, received his re-certification from the American Board of Internal Medicine with the successful completion of the Gastroenterology exam.

The ABMS consists of 24 approved medical specialty boards that establish educational and practice standards for physicians. Achieving board certification signifies a standard of excellence in knowledge and practice by a physician. Certification involves the successful completion of an approved training program, oral and written exams, an assessment of experience and qualifications, maintenance of skills between exams and the capability to provide quality health care to patients. Some specialty boards of the ABMS issue certificates valid for 6-10 years and then require a physician to complete an evaluation/exam process to gain re-certification.

Dr. Kaufmann joined SynergyHealth West Bend Clinic in 1990. He has a special interest in pediatrics, sports medicine and dermatology.

Dr. Hack joined Synergy Health West Bend Clinic in 2002. His professional interests include colon cancer prevention, acid reflux and ulcer disease.

Dr. Kaufmann and Dr. Hack practice at SynergyHealth West Bend Clinic on Paradise Drive. Information on West Bend Clinic physicians and their board certification status is available at www.synergyhealth.org. A listing of physicians board certified by the ABMS is available at www.abms.org.

SynergyHealth (www.syn-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

With the upcoming vote on the annexation/TIF district Feb 7th, I have some comments.

I read last week that the Kewaskum School District is gathering information to have a referendum on school spending, technology and more.

I guess I am miffed at the school districts lack of concern with the TIF, the hundreds of thousands of dollars the school district will lose in taxes for 14-20 years, and the weight existing Kewaskum School District taxpayers will bear while the TIF is payed off.

If this was an industrial development only with a tenant(s) locked, lets go for it....but its a crap shoot.

Adding the subdivision is just getting the developer an easy profit and a strain on Kewaskum residents, again, more trash, more plowing, more labor...and the current residents pick up the cost while the developer gets his money and the taxpayers suffer the costs.

This area would be best left in the town to alleviate islands, and keep the rural charm with larger lots, and the school district could reap the rewards of the taxes from day 1 and not day 5220.

News Notes

The snow and ice season has arrived creating some problems regarding garbage and refuse collection. This matter is covered in the Municipal Code, Chapter 78-91 (a).

Everyone is asked to maintain their garbage cans (receptacles) and mobile containers in good condition and they shall be kept tightly covered at all times and shall be capable of being closed so that water and snow cannot enter and shall easily accessible to the refuse collectors on the property from which the refuse originated.

This means the snow and ice must be cleared to make the garbage cans (receptacles), recycling bins and mobile containers accessible for pickup. If this is not followed your garbage/refuse and recycling may be not be picked up. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

VILLAGE OF KEWASKUM NEWS NOTES "Snow and Ice Removal"

The snow and ice season has arrived bringing along some problems. To alleviate these problems or to clarify a few items, let us refer to the Municipal Code, Chapter 82.6, which covers "Snow and Ice Removal."

(a) SIDEWALKS TO BE KEPT CLEAR. The owner or occupant of any lot or lands within the village abutting upon a public street along the line of which a sidewalk shall have been constructed shall, whenever such sidewalk shall be encumbered with snow or ice, clear the same therefrom within 24 hours after cessation of each storm. If it is impossible or impractical to remove the ice therefrom, he shall treat the same with sand, cinders, ashes, salt or some other substance continuously until removed so that such sidewalk will not be slippery or dangerous to pedestrians. If any such owner or occupant fails to remove such snow or ice from such sidewalk or to treat such ice, the director of public works may do so; and the expense of such removal or treatment shall become a special tax or charge against the property to be collected in the manner specified in subsection (c). If the director of public works orders such removal of snow and ice, a minimum charge of $25.00 per occurrence shall be affixed as the expense of the removal or treatment. If the cost of removal or treatment exceeds the $25.00 minimum, the actual cost for such work shall be charged plus a ten percent handling charge.

(b) SNOW NOT TO BE DEPOSITED IN STREETS. No person shall cause to be deposited snow from his premises on the sidewalk abutting thereon onto any street in the village without a permit from the director of public works, who may require to be paid a fee sufficient to reimburse the village for the cost of removal of the snow. The expense of such removal or treatment shall become a special tax or charge against the property to be collected in the manner specified in subsection (c).

(c) Assessment of cost. After clearing or treating any such sidewalk as provided in this section, the director of public works shall file with the village clerk/treasurer a written report containing a description of such lot or tract charged and the amount of the expense chargeable to the same. The clerk/treasurer shall thereupon make out and mail to the owner of such lot or tract at his last known address an itemized statement of the cost; and, when paid, the amount so paid shall be credited to the village general fund. If the same is not paid within 30 days, it shall bear interest at the rate of six percent per annum from the date on which the work was completed. If any such bill shall remain unpaid on October 1 next following the clearing or treating of the sidewalk, the village clerk/treasurer shall insert such charge in the general tax roll of the village and the same proceedings shall be had thereafter for the collection of such taxes as in cases of other taxes extended upon such roll.

Snowed in at your Library series continues

On Tuesday, February 8th at 6pm, the Kewaskum Public Library will be hosting a special history lesson by the Washington County Historical Society.

Find out more about the mix of people and traditions that helped create Kewaskum—from the mysterious mound-builders who inhabited the area in a time before European settlement, to the Menomonie, Potawatomie, Sac, and Fox tribes that lived in and around what would become the Kettle Moraine Forest, to the German and Irish immigrants that settled in small groups along the north bend of the Milwaukee River.

This program will have something for everyone, but will especially appeal to local history buffs, genealogists, and students.

This is a free program, and part of the Kewaskum Public Library's winter program series "Snowed in @ Your Library." Please call the library at 262-626-4312 for more information about this and other exciting presentations.

Season may close in one day if harvest cap is reached

Lake Winnebago sturgeon spearing season opens Feb. 12

OSHKOSH - Clear water and good ice conditions are expected to make the 2005 Lake Winnebago lake sturgeon spearing season look much like recent seasons: high harvests of lake sturgeon, record participation by spearers and closed in record time.

Wisconsin's 74th consecutive spearing season on Lake Winnebago opens at 6:30 a.m. Feb. 12, and could close at the end of the day if spearers reach any one of three harvest caps. A separate spearing season on the upriver lakes of Butte des Morts, Winneconne and Poygan also opens at 6:30 a.m. Feb. 12, and will close at 12:30 p.m. that day.

The state Natural Resources Board in December 2004 approved emergency rules giving the Department of Natural Resources authority to close the Winnebago season at the end of opening day if spearers reach harvest caps. The caps of 500 juvenile females, 500 adult females or 2,000 males include fish from Lake Winnebago season as well as the upriver lakes season.

The emergency rule received strong support from the public and the Winnebago Citizens Sturgeon Advisory Committee at meetings held to discuss the high harvest rates following the close of the 2004 season.

"This 74th season promises some of the highest harvest rates and participation in the history of the fishery," says Ron Bruch, the Department of Natural Resources' senior sturgeon biologist and a fisheries supervisor in Oshkosh.

"We want people to enjoy the tradition of this unique season," he says. "But we also want people to realize when they're sitting in their ice shacks that we're in a transition year and that coming years will be different."

DNR fisheries staff working with the Winnebago Citizens Advisory Committee have done everything they can to allow maximum participation yet keep harvest of these slow growing, late maturing fish at safe levels by using harvest controls such as season length, spearing hours, minimum sizes and bags.

"We've exhausted those options after 2005," Bruch says. "We have to look at limiting effort in some ways." DNR staff have been discussing possible options for the past year with members of the advisory committee, which will be discussed at public meetings after the 2005 season.

The emergency rule allowing for a one-day season on Lake Winnebago was passed to provide additional protection to the sturgeon stock following the record-setting 2004 season, Bruch says. Spearers harvested 509 adult females on opening day, surpassing the total allowable harvest for adult females of 425, but the permanent rules allowed the season to continue for another day, in which time an additional 175 adult females were harvested. All told, 259 more adult females were speared than the total harvest cap.

The permanent rules allow the season to run 16 consecutive days or until the end of spearing hours on the day after spearers reach 80 percent of any one of the harvest caps.

"We have made significant progress over the last 10-15 years in bringing the harvest rate of adult female sturgeon down to an acceptable level and we are starting to see more of these big fish," Bruch says, noting the new record fish registered in 2004 - a 188-pound 79.5 inch adult female -- and the two 200-plus pound fish DNR crews captured and tagged during spawning assessments last April on the Wolf River.

"We don't want to lose the ground we have worked so hard to gain, so we need to move forward with the next generation of regulations," he says.

2005 season pressure expected to be on upriver lakes

Bruch expects fewer spearers on Lake Winnebago than in 2004 and about the same number of spearers on the upriver lakes as in 2000, the last time spearing was allowed on the upriver lakes. The agency sold 6,465 licenses to Lake Winnebago spearers and 4,169 to spearers opting to spear on the upriver lakes. Spearers are not allowed to spear both lake areas this year and were required to make a choice on which area they preferred when they bought their license.

"The requirement that they choose which season they wanted to participate in probably resulted in more people buying tags for the upriver lakes, because traditionally, harvest rates have been higher there," Bruch says.

DNR limits harvest from the entire system to 5 percent of the adult lake sturgeon population because overharvest can crash a population and rebuilding can take generations. Female lake sturgeon don't start spawning until they are 20 to 25 years, and then spawn only every three to five years.

How fast spearers reach harvest triggers in 2005 will depend largely on ice conditions and water clarity -- factors that dictate whether it's easy for spearers to get their shacks set up on the ice and see the fish, Bruch says. "Both are excellent right now."

With help from DNR's 102-year-old lake sturgeon management program and citizens, the Winnebago System now supports North America's largest self-sustaining population of lake sturgeon while sturgeon stocks in the rest of the country and world are declining.

The Winnebago spear fishery is unique in the country; Michigan also offers spearing on the Black River, but its total harvest is capped at five, compared to an average harvest of 1,500 on Lake Winnebago in more recent years.

Major spearing regulations for 2005

Sturgeon spearing regulations for 2005 are the same as for 2004 with the exception of the possibility that the Lake Winnebago season may close at the end of opening day under emergency rules to prevent overharvest of the slow-growing, late maturing fish.

The season opens Saturday, Feb. 12 on both Lake Winnebago and the upriver lakes, although the upriver lakes season is for one day only.

Major spearing regulations are listed below, but a full description can be found in the 2005 Winnebago Pool Lakes Spearing regulations available at DNR service centers or found online at www.wisconsinifishing.org, then click on a headline that says, "Lake Winnebago Spearing Regulations," and then look on the left hand column for the same.

Major spearing regulations are:

- * Spearing hours are from 6:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. every day of the season, and sturgeon must be registered by 1:30 p.m. the day they are speared.

- * The licensee must carry his fishing and sturgeon spearing license and tag at all times while fishing for sturgeon with a spear.

- * A sturgeon spearing license and tag is nontransferable. No person may possess the tag or license of another. GROUP BAGGING IS ILLEGAL!

- * No person may possess a validated sturgeon carcass tag unless the tag is attached to a legal sturgeon.

- * No person may cut, use, or maintain an ice hole larger than 12 inches in diameter or square for the taking of fish in any manner through the ice except spearing sturgeon in Lake Winnebago during the open season. The total area of a sturgeon spearing hole or combination of holes in an individual spearing shelter may not exceed a total of 48 square feet.

- * No person may have under his or her control any spear or similar device in any enclosure on the ice or waters of the Winnebago System except when authorized during established sturgeon spearing seasons.

- * No person may take, capture, kill or attempt to kill sturgeon on Lake Winnebago System waters by any means other than spearing with a spear thrown by hand from inside a fishing shelter placed on the ice during the open spearing season.

- * A spearer with an unused and valid sturgeon license and tag who spears a lake sturgeon must immediately validate and attach the spearer's carcass tag to the sturgeon (just forward of the tail).

- * Any fish harvested from Lake Winnebago must be registered at one of the sturgeon registration stations on Lake Winnebago. Any fish harvested from Lakes Butte des Morts, Winneconne or Poygan (the upriver lakes) must be registered at one of the sturgeon registration stations on the upriver lakes.

- * It is unlawful for any person to transport any unregistered sturgeon in or on any motor driven vehicle unless the sturgeon is carried openly exposed - open to view by a person in a passing vehicle -- and placed so the carcass tag cannot be handled by anyone. "Openly exposed" means open to view by a person in a passing vehicle.

- * To transport a legally harvested and tagged sturgeon the fish must be accompanied by the spearer until registered.

Dismal first half hampers Indian boys Scoring woes continue for Lady Indians

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Playing home or away, it doesn't seem to matter for Plymouth High sharp-shooting guard, Casey Delger.

The 5-foot-10 senior scored 22 points for the Panthers in their win at Kewaskum earlier this season, and Thursday night, he led the scoring parade again, this time with 20 points in a 56-42 home victory over Kewaskum.

"We played four quarters of solid team defense, unfortunately we only managed one half of offense," KHS Coach Glenn Eichstedt said after his team fell to 0-8 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference and 1-13 overall.

Eichstedt said the Indians' half-court defense was very successful in holding Delger's basket total down. "He made all four of his two-point baskets on fast break opportunities," Eichstedt said, reporting Delger canned one 3-pointer in each half, and, "He concluded his performance by converting six of seven free throws in the fourth quarter."

Delger's scoring totals weren't the only similarities in the two games. At Kewaskum, the Indians only managed to score 10 points in the first half against the Panthers, and in the rematch, that was the story again. The Indians mustered just four points in the first period, on baskets by Zach Wollner and reliable forward Matt Parrent.

The best Kewaskum could do in the second quarter was to score three baskets, two by Parrent, who wound up as the Indians' leading scorer with 13 points, and one by Todd Warnecke.

"We were more successful imposing our defense on Plymouth than we were against West Bend West on Monday evening," Eichstedt said, deploring his team's inconsistent offense, which saw just three players score points before intermission when the Indians were already down 23-10.

What Eichstedt did like was a more productive effort in the second half (32 points) when they came close to duplicating Plymouth's total of 33 points.

"Adam Flanders, Adam Lehnerz, Zach Wollner and Todd Warnecke contributed to the Indians' solid second half performance," Eichstedt said. "Now all we need is to put together four periods of productive offense to give ourselves a victory."

Warnecke and Wollner wound up with nine and seven points, respectively, while Flanders added five, all of them coming in the second half.

Parrent not only led the Indians in scoring, he also hauled down nine rebounds. Warnecke was next with five.

The KHS coach concluded by saying, "Overall, this was a much improved performance than the past two contests, which should hopefully give us a boost of confidence heading into two home contests next week (Feb. 1 vs. New Holstein and Feb. 4 vs. Sheboygan Falls)."

At full strength, the Kewaskum High girls basketball team would have needed to be working on all cylinders to beat a potent Plymouth team Friday night.

Without senior Lindsay Keller and sophomore defender Marissa Dehler, the Indians' chances of victory were greatly diminished.

Hampered by numerous turnovers and a lack of scoring power, the Indians were beaten 51-17.

With the win, the visiting Panthers stayed within a game of the lead in the battle for Eastern Wisconsin Conference supremacy. Two Rivers is currently at 9-0, while Plymouth is boasting an 8-1 mark.

Kewaskum fell to 2-7 in the EW and 3-12 overall.

"I could have played her, but I needed to give her a rest," KHS Coach Jeff Gosse said about Keller, who has been slowed by illness in recent weeks.

Dehler's problems, according to Gosse, have been the flu and congestion problems. "I pulled her, too, We need to get ready for next week (Friday, Feb. 4 vs. Sheboygan Falls)."

"I thought they (his Indians) played a great first half. I was real proud of them," Gosse said. At that point, Kewaskum was down 19-8, and the emphasis during the intermission was to work on rebounding better, staying away from the Plymouth trap and covering the Panthers' 3-point shooters better.

"We did just the opposite," Gosse said. "We have two press breaks. One out of ten times we run it right ... Certain people just do what they want to do, and that's just killing this team."

The Indians managed just six points in the third quarter, and only half that many in the fourth when the lone points were three free throws by Paige Thelen, who ended up with five points.

Soph Bry Timblin led the Indians with six points on three baskets.

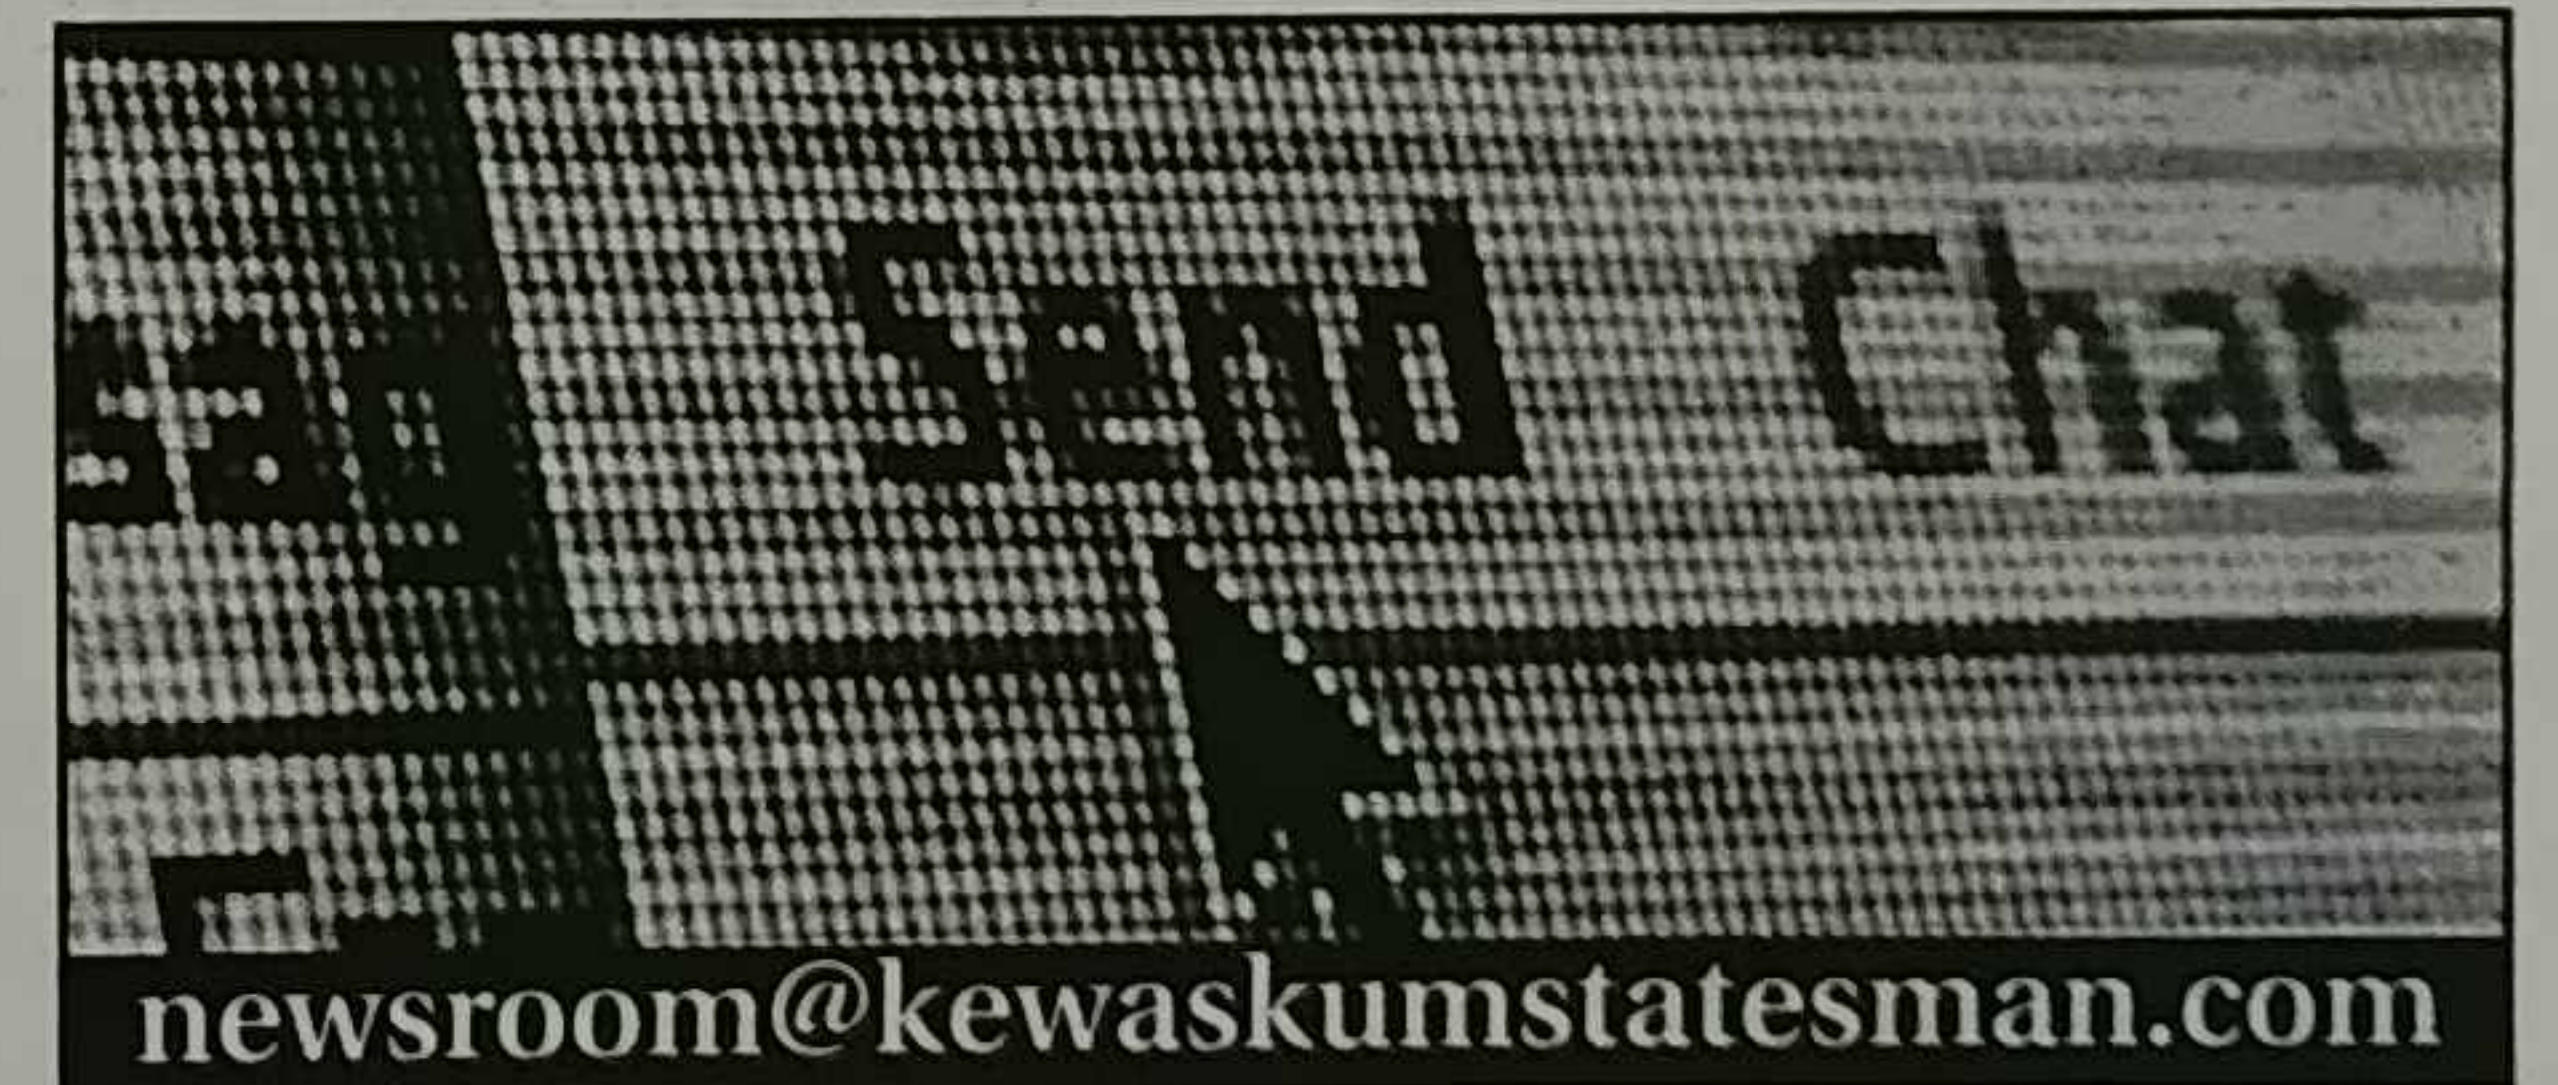

Plymouth had three girls in double figures, led by Stacey Vollbrecht's 13 points. Next came Kallie Benike with a dozen and Lorie Hogue with 11.

"We don't run our offense," Gosse said, noting the team worked on it a couple nights last week, going over small details, but when they get to the game, "We just don't do it."

Indians top Campbellsport matmen in a thriller

The Kewaskum High wrestling team got off to a good start against Campbellsport Tuesday night, thanks to the efforts of junior Jeff Thull. Thull is shown scoring a near-fall in his match against Ben Pankratz at 215 pounds. Thull posted a 7-1 win over Pankratz to give the Indians a 3-0 lead.

Kewaskum had just two senior wrestlers, including Zach Holm, right, who was a scoring machine in his bout against Billy Sulicz at 130 pounds. His 13-0 victory was worth four points for the Indians, who finally beat Campbellsport to pretty well clinch a piece of the Eastern Wisconsin Conference dual meet title.

Nursing a 14-3 lead in his match against Louie Braatz at 171 pounds, Kewaskum High senior Noah Olla could have just coasted the final five seconds and added four points for a major decision in Tuesday's battle with arch rival Campbellsport.

Olla knew his team might need some extra points, however, since the Indians were down 34-26, so with one gigantic surge of energy, he applied a "stack" on Braatz and when the referee resoundingly hit the mat, signaling a pin in 5:59, the Kewaskum fans erupted in excitement.

More was on the way as 189-pound sophomore Jake Turowski tied up Billy Mayer in knots to the tune of a 9-0 major decision, giving the Indians four more points and putting the final score at 36-34.

Bout, match and with a win over New Holstein (on Feb. 1), a piece of the Eastern Wisconsin Conference dual meet title! It was definitely a defining moment in the history of Kewaskum High wrestling.

Not since the second year of competition in the sport — right after Coach Joe Harlow started the program — had Kewaskum beaten Campbellsport in the sport, and the Indians couldn't have picked a better time to get the victory.

Coach Dennis Aupperle remarked after the recent loss to Plymouth how badly his wrestlers wanted the EW title. "That was one of their goals," he said, but the situation looked bleak after Plymouth won at Kewaskum.

The following week, the Cougars helped out with a 29-28 win over Plymouth. The match actually ended in a tie, and Campbellsport got the win because they had more pins.

On Tuesday, Kewaskum took care of business and basked in the championship sunlight, especially Olla and Turowski, who sealed the deal.

"It was all God," Olla said after being congratulated over and over by his teammates and classmates. "I turned him with one hand."

Olla remembers having control of Braatz's legs and said, "It was just a single move ... Faith can move a mind."

Instead of taking much of the credit for the team win, Olla said modestly, "I was only one part of the whole match." Still his win was huge and coming in the last second was thrilling.

Later, personable CHS Coach Mark Peterson said he never expected Braatz would get pinned. He didn't even figure his man would lose to Olla.

"He (Braatz) had beaten Olla at Oshkosh (on the Waters Classic) so I figured we could take him," Peterson said. "That was a couple bonus points for Kewaskum."

"Jake, Jake, Jake," the KHS fans chanted as their final wrestler used a double leg drop to take a quick 2-0 lead. More points were on the way in the second period when Turowski escaped, got another takedown and near-fall for a more comfortable lead, which expanded further with stalling points called against Braatz.

Kewaskum started out the match with a convincing 7-1 victory by Jeff Thull at 215. A throw in the first period netted Thull five points and the first-year wrestler was on his way against Ben Pankratz.

Then Campbellsport dominated, winning three of the next four and all by pin to take a 24-9 lead.

This was kind of expected because of inexperience at a couple of these weight classes, but help came when the Indians got to 130 where senior Zach Holm needed just 18 seconds to score his first takedown on Billy Sulicz and just kept piling up points toward a 13-0 major decision.

Eric Ogi followed with a quick pin in 2:57 after coming off his back in the first period against Derek Hafermann.

Indian fans were pretty confident Nick Bartley would win at 140, and he did, using a variety of moves for four takedowns, including a nifty fireman's carry, and a reversal for a 19-02 major decision. Now Campbellsport's lead had been whittled to one point at 24-23.

Moving into the lineup so Scott Rhoads could go up to 152, Jake Sabel performed well under the pressure of this big meet. He decisioned Kenton Stevens 8-1 at 145, giving the Indians a 26-24 lead.

Still Campbellsport bounced back with 10 points from a win by three-time state place winner (he won titles his freshman and sophomore years) Justin Schmidt and a pin by Adam Gassner over Jon Olla, Schmidt used his height advantage, power and moxy for a convincing 9-1 win.

As the announcer said, this was the "main event." Rhoads had only lost one match previously this season, and Schmidt is now 30-1.

"Justin's a tough, tough hombre," Aupperle said, admitting, "When Zach didn't pin and Nick didn't pin, I thought we were in a little trouble."

"I knew the match was going to be close ... the people sure got their money's worth," Aupperle went on, indicating Rhoads wanted to wrestle Schmidt, figuring if he doesn't get pinned, the team gives up just three points instead of a possible six.

"We looked a little flat tonight. We didn't come up well from the bottom," Aupperle said, and you can bet the Indians will be working on that aspect of the sport in time for the EW Tournament (at Two Rivers, Feb. 5) and the regionals when the Indians and Cougars will meet again.

For Tuesday, however, they all just wanted to enjoy a special victory and the fact their first EW title was at hand.

Wedding.... Music to your ears

By Ronda Addy

When selecting music for your wedding, there are some important things to consider.

The number one thing to remember is to keep the music in good taste, no matter where you are getting married. If you are getting married in a church, there may be guidelines regarding the use of secular music. It is a good idea to check with the church where you are getting married to see if it has any specific requirements.

The music played while the bride and the wedding party walk down the aisle is called the processional. The best processional music can be performed at walking pace and can be ended anytime. When choosing your processional music, figure in the number of people in your wedding party, how far they need to walk and how fast they will walk.

You may want live music. The number of pieces that you have during the ceremony will depend on how long you want the ceremony to be. Vocal or instrumental music is appropriate during the seating of the mothers or the lighting of the candles, right before the processional or the vows, during the lighting of the unity candle, and if included in the ceremony, during communion.

Choosing music is personal and you want it to reflect your personality. Browse through the sheet music at a local music store for ideas or ask your soloist or accompanist for ideas. If you have a particular song in mind, check to see if sheet music is available. If you want instrumental music for you wedding, your choices may include the church organist, a harpist, a string quartet or some other instrumentalist.

The music played when the bride and groom, wedding party and officiate walk back down the aisle is called the recessional. It should be upbeat and does not have to be very long. Another option is postlude music. This is music played immediately after the recessional as the guests get up and leave their seats.

Music at the reception is crucial and often means the difference between everyone having a good time or being bored to tears.

A booking agent that has experience with wedding entertainment may be helpful. By using an agent, you won't have to track down a band, make a deal and then hope they show up. Get samples of the band's work as well as references. What songs are on their song list? How do they sound on the demo? Do they do requests? Check out a live performance of the band. Do they have fun when they perform? Are they professional?

After you have made your decision, get a signed contract that spells out all the details. The contract should include the name of the band and their leader or contact person, the amount they are charging and how they are going to be paid, and the time when they need to be at the reception and be finished setting up and how long they will be playing, including breaks. The contract should also include a cancellation clause.

Be sure to tell the agent how many people will be at the reception, what music you want for the first dance and who will be the contact person. Check with the agent a few weeks before the wedding to make sure all the arrangements have been finalized.

Taste in music is a very individual thing. You want your wedding day to be memorable. Choosing the right music is a good way to start.

When a typical bride walks down the aisle on her special day, there is a strong possibility that one member of her bridal party may be expecting a bundle of joy.

Years ago, the bride and the expecting mom-to-be would have to special order a dress. It was just one more thing a busy bride would have to plan out. The bridal industry has now recognized that maids or maid/matrons of honor may indeed be expecting and have introduced a maternity line into the bridal wear.

"We're seeing an increase in the maternity version," said Cathy Deitte, owner of Edith's Bridal Store located in Fond du Lac. Deitte said when the wedding day comes most expectant moms are close to seven to eight months pregnant so a maternity is clearly a wise investment of time and money. She said a full array of colors and styles are available that will compliment the other members of the wedding party.

Deitte said it's very important for brides to shop and order their wedding dresses early. Planning ahead will insure that the bride and her maids get what they need in time for the wedding.

And, another continuing trend in bridal attire is the young stylish clothes for the mother of the bride. Mothers of the brides are in great physical shape say many bridal consultants and they are not wearing the frumpy matronly dresses of the past said Roxanne Schatz, owner of Amelishan, a bridal shop in Hubertus.

"Moms want a figure flattering dress," said Schatz. The bridal industry has a lot to offer these fashion conscious moms from stylish jackets to beaded gowns.

As far as trends in bridal attire, the "in color" for the season continues to be the dark browns or chocolate colors for the bridal party. Another trend is number of children in the wedding parties are increasing said Deitte.

"There's more of a selection in the junior bridesmaid dresses," said Deitte.

Brides do have to plan the attire around the location of the wedding say the consultants. For the most part, bridal shops are seeing an increase in destination weddings. Destination weddings are planned events where the entire wedding party and guests travel to a special location to celebrate the nuptials.

"I've had destination wed-

Real men wear pink

By CASSANDRA THOMPSON
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
cthompson@kewaskumstatesman.com

"Pink is in." That's the new fashion trend many bridal consultants are telling their clients. However, pink is not the color for the blushing bride. A soft pastel pink is the new in color for the groom.

Alissa Levenhagen, Tuxedo Supervisor, from Edith's Bridal Shop in the city of Fond du Lac saw the soft pink color on display at a bridal fashion show in Nevada and Illinois. Whether grooms from the Midwest will acquire a taste for this new color remains to be seen.

"The traditional tuxedo color is black," said Levenhagen. "The grooms can usually add colors to their vest and ties."

Men who favor more traditional colors of black, silver and white tuxedos can add some spice by wearing trendy ties and hats. Roxanne Schaltz, owner of Amelishan in Hubertus said men can be more "fashion forward" by incorporating the Windsor hats and ties into their wardrobe.

"The Windsor ties are long and stylish," said Schaltz. It provides a creative outlet for men looking for something more creative than the standard bow tie.

Levenhagen offers a few tips for grooms to make their shopping experience go a little easier at the tuxedo store. She said grooms should discuss with the bride the style of the tuxedo coat. A great way to get started is to look at different coats on the internet.

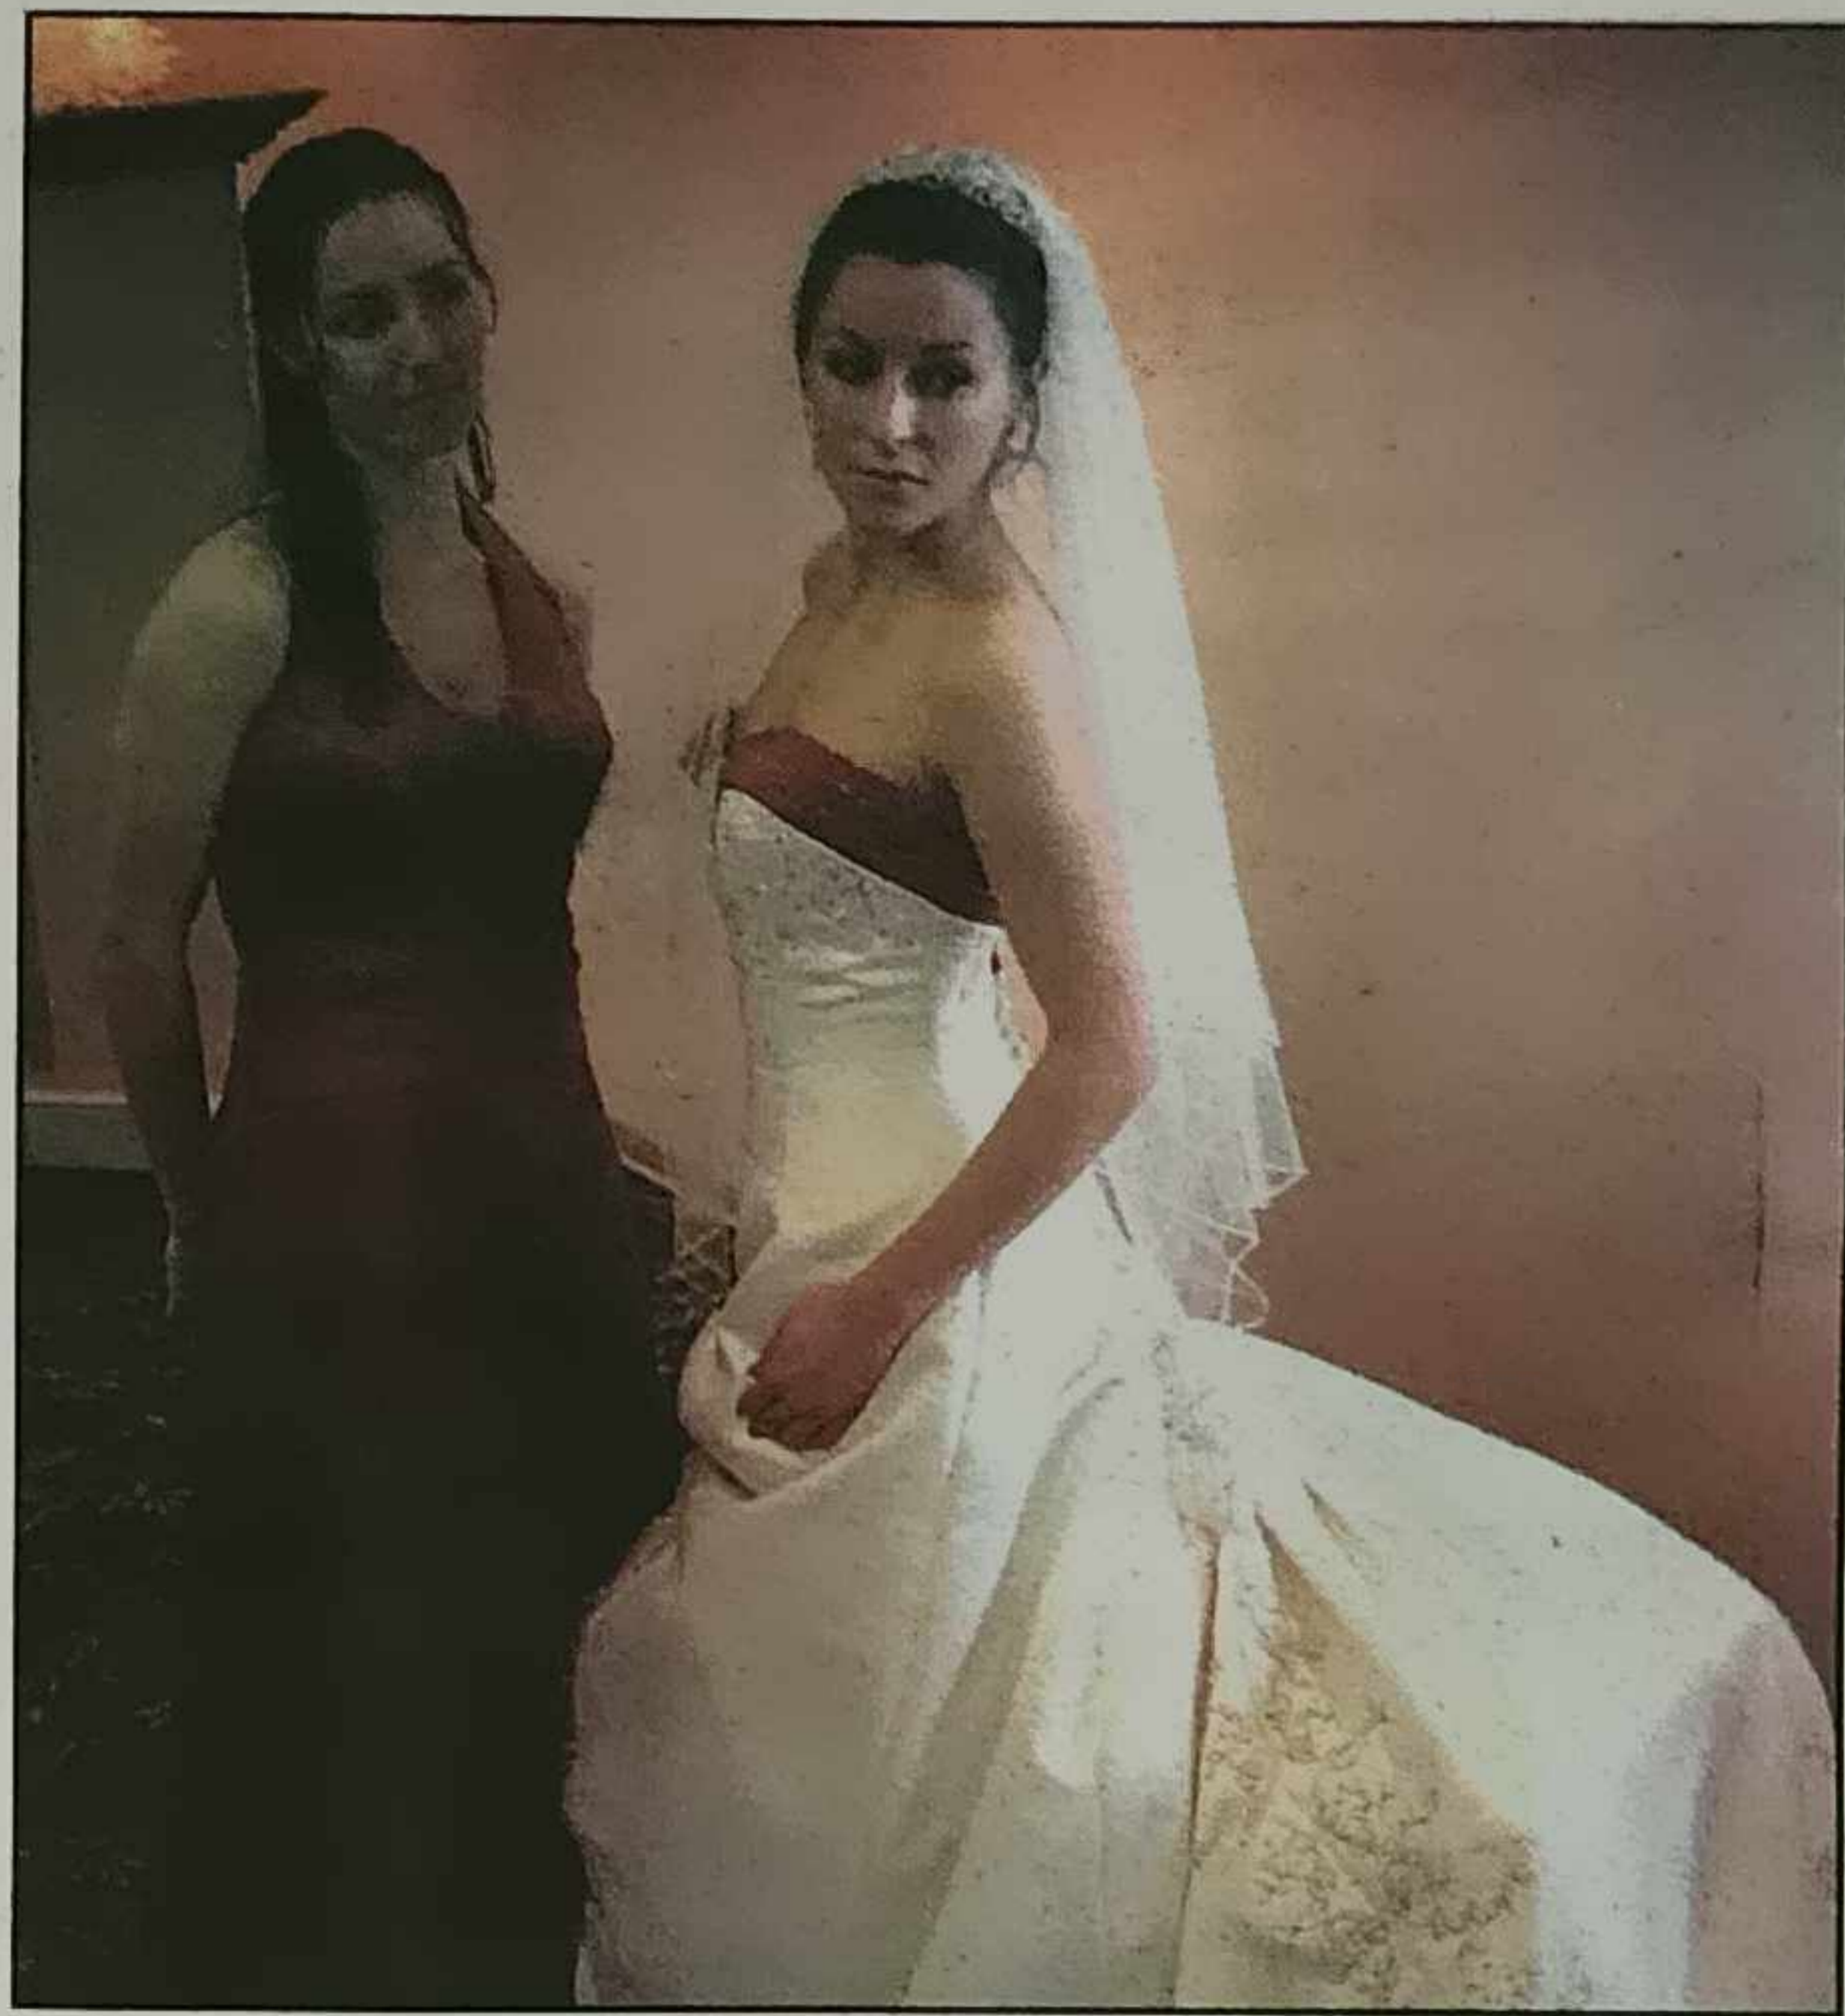

"Grooms should carry a swatch of the color from the bridesmaid's dresses," said Levenhagen. When selecting the tuxedo, it's easier to match dye lots with the maid's dresses.

dings where 40 to 50 people travel with the bride and groom," said Schatz.

For destination weddings, many bridal shops advise the wedding party to choose simple but elegant attire that will be easy for people put on and take off. A lot of buttons and bows, and attire with numerous accessories should be avoided. If at all possible, brides should rule out a train if it's a destination wedding.

Sharon Paul, Bridal Supervisor for Edith's, offers a few tips for brides planning their wedding and selecting their gowns. She stresses the importance of shopping early for bridal attire. Paul recommends brides order their dresses at least three to five months before the wedding to avoid hassles. Really large wedding parties should come in with the bride and groom said Paul. Another thing brides should remember is that the pictures in the magazines and on the internet are doctored.

"Keep in mind your body type," Paul warns brides. A petite bride may want to consider a simple elegant design. Finally, Paul recommends that brides chose a trusted friend or their mother when selecting their bridal gown. When too many people are present, so many different opinions can overwhelm the bride.

"It's her day and her dress," summed up Paul. She tells brides to have fun and not get stressed out.

Create a Wedding That Reflects Your Personal Style

ask your fiancée to read your tan lines.

- Take a hot air balloon ride and either propose over a romantic spot or have your proposal spelled out on the ground.

- Pop the question over the public address system at a mall or someplace similar.

- Show up at your fiancée's home or workplace in a fire engine or a police car with the lights and sirens blaring.

- Attend a play, and either before or during intermission, go onstage and propose in front of everyone. Make sure you have the permission to do so.

If none of these ideas appeal to you, here are some others:

- Send a singing telegram.
- Using glow-in-the-dark paint, write the proposal on your fiancée's ceiling or with washable crayons on the wall.

- Put pieces of paper with the proposal in helium-filled balloons. Then have your fiancée pop them to find out what the message is.

- Put a "marry me" banner outside your fiancée's window at work.

- If you propose in the winter, spell out the proposal on a hill in the snow or someplace where it can be seen from afar.

- Skywrite the proposal.
- Put the proposal on a billboard on your fiancée's way to or from work.

- Put together a scrapbook of photos and other memorable items and on the last page have the proposal note.

- Put the proposal note under or on top of your fiancée's pillow.

Whether you're both romantics at heart, have a slightly twisted sense of humor or share a common obsession, your proposal should reflect your and your fiancée's personalities. It should be memorable and unique.

you can do that.

- Put your proposal note inside a fortune cookie.

- Have a picnic and place your proposal note so that when your fiancée goes to unpack the basket, she finds it.

- Have a treasure hunt with the clues leading up to your proposal note.

- Have a puzzle made that either shows you holding a sign proposing or has the actual proposal.

- If you both enjoy fishing, go on a fishing trip and attach your proposal note to your fiancée's hook.

For those of you who prefer a more hands-on approach, here are some suggestions:

- Have a romantic dinner at home or at a restaurant with flowers, music and candles. Then pop the question near the end.

- Write your proposal in suntan lotion somewhere on your body. After getting a tan,

You are ready to pop the question. You could just do it the old-fashioned way by getting down on one knee, but you are a romantic at heart and want to do something slightly more memorable. But what?

Proposing on a special day, like Valentine's Day, is a good place to start. Make sure that when you actually propose you have your fiancée's undivided attention. Do it when she won't be stressed out or rushed. Decide if you want to propose someplace private or public. If you don't mind proposing in public, make it someplace that has special meaning, like where you went on your first date.

Experts recommend that you don't actually put the engagement ring in food, as your fiancée could swallow or drink it. Instead, put your proposal in writing, so to speak. Here are some ways

Marriage means forever, what to do when the big day sours

By Tresa Erickson

No one likes to do it, but sometimes a wedding has to be cancelled. The bride and groom may realize they are not meant for each other, or one or the other may discover marriage isn't what they wanted after all. Whatever the reason, you or someone you know may have to call off a wedding, and even under the best circumstances, it isn't easy. There are steps you can take, however, to make the process go as smoothly as possible. Here's how.

Once the wedding has been called off, the first thing you need to do is inform the guests. If no announcement has been made in the newspaper and no invitations have been sent, all you need to do is tell a few friends and let them pass along the word. If an announcement has been made, you need to rescind it. You can do this in a number of ways, but the most common sounds like this:

Maggie Smith and Kurt Jones announce that their engagement has been ended by mutual consent.

This will also work if invitations have been sent but the wedding is still months away. If the wedding date is near, you have a little more work to do. Depending upon how far off it is, you can either send announcements or call the guests. If you decide to call, start with those who planned to travel. They may have enough time to cancel their reservations.

As you are making the announcement, it is not necessary for you to explain why the wedding was cancelled. That is your business and no one else needs to know what happened. Don't be surprised, however, if you are questioned about it. Stand firm and don't disclose anything unless you want to.

Once you have notified the guests, you can move on to the finer details. First, cancel any bookings with vendors, such as the caterer and florist. Inform the officiate that their services will not be needed, as well as the managers of the wedding ceremony and reception sites. Depending upon how near the wedding date is, you may lose some of your deposits and incur bills for whatever services the vendors have provided you with thus far. According to many experts, whoever calls off the wedding should be responsible for footing the bill, but that argument may not stand up in court, so be leery of taking any judicial action.

Turn next to the gifts. Offer to return any that you have not used. Engraved and monogrammed items need not be returned. If you are asked to return any of the gifts, you should be responsible for the postage.

While you are dealing with the gifts, you might as well decide what to do about the ring. By law if the woman calls off the wedding, she must return the ring. If the man, on the other hand, calls off the wedding, she may keep the ring. However, many women opt to return the ring anyway, as who wants a reminder of a cancelled wedding.

Calling off a wedding is painful and costly. Before you do it, make certain that it's what you want. If you are the least bit hesitant, postponing the wedding while you seek couples counseling may be a better option.
