Graczyk given full salary

By Andrew Kuehl
Statesman Managing Editor
akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- School officials in Kewaskum have released the details in the severance agreement between the school district and former superintendent of schools Wayne Graczyk. That agreement allows Graczyk who chose to retire, to continue collecting his over $96,000 salary and benefits. Officials are also unclear about the direction they will take with the absence of a chief for the Indians.

Graczyk left the district unexpectedly the latter part of May. He signed his severance agreement May 23. His last official day with the school district is June 30. Graczyk's contract started July 1, 2004 and is set to expire June 30, 2006. That contract including benefits is worth over $100,000. Taxpayers will now payout that contract in full to Graczyk while may seek other employment avenues.

On June 13th School Board President Gordie Dickman stated "After consideration of continued differences between the board and superintendent with respect to education and leadership philosophy the board of education determined it was in the best interest of the school district to grant the request of the former superintendent to retire. The resignation of the former superintendent is not in response to any form of misconduct or disciplinary action."

Details of the severance package follow:

* Graczyk agrees to retire from the district by June 30, 2005.

* Starting May 23, 2005 Graczyk will receive a paid leave of absence until June 20, 2005.

Fr. Ed Kornath is eager to begin his ministry at Holy Trinity, St. Michael

Fr. Ed Kornath is working on moving into his desk at Holy Trinity's rectory.

Stacks of boxes containing personal belongings filled the rectory Monday evening, but Fr. Ed Kornath, the new pastor at Holy Trinity Catholic Church, was more than willing to stop unpacking long enough to shed some light on his background and his ministry, which, he said, will concentrate on "sharing the message of Christ and leading people to holiness."

Kornath, who was set to celebrate his first Mass here Tuesday evening, beamed with excitement about coming to Holy Trinity and also working with the parishioners at St. Michaels and Fr. Bob Artmann, who will assist Fr. Ed until January when he retires.

"I'm really looking forward to the shared pastorate," he said.

Fr. Ed, as he prefers being called, said receiving the appointment here is actually the fulfillment of a dream. He recalled stopping at the Coffee Corner six years ago, as he was heading from St. Matthew's in Campbellsport to St. Thomas in Waterford.

Graczyk

* Graczyk will be paid a lump sum of $96,017 no later than June 30, 2005. That lump sum will be direct deposited and is subject to all withholding.

* Graczyk will receive $11,041.95 that would have otherwise gone to his retirement fund. That money too will be directly deposited by June 30, 2005.

Graczyk will be allowed to continue to participate in the school district's family health and dental programs through June 30, 2006. The district will continue to pay its existing contributions toward the cost of the premiums.

* If Graczyk finds alternative health care benefit coverage or fails to pay the premiums from the district's plan the coverage will terminate. Graczyk is required to return all district property except a Palm* Pilot (hand held computer).

* The School District will reimburse Graczyk $432.12 for premiums paid to secure personal long-term disability insurance from July 1, 2005 to June 30, 2006.

* Graczyk is allowed to continue coverage under the school district's life insurance plan as a retired employee during the 2005-2006 school year. Graczyk will receive an invoice for this, but then be reimbursed $746 for the premium from July 1, 2005 to June 30, 2006.

* The School District waives the liquidated damages policy for midterm resignation.

* Graczyk is required to release and forever discharge any claims of wrongful discharge.

* Graczyk must agree not to make any disparaging or negative remarks, comments, or communications whether oral or written, regarding the District, its Board members, the same goes for the board and the district.

So just what type of "difference" is worth over $100,000 cost to taxpayers? Dickman stated, that due to the agreement, he was not at liberty to say. "I wish we could talk about it. We weighed our options very diligently," he stated in a phone interview Tuesday evening.

On Monday, June 20 the district's leadership team held a workshop to plan out the next steps for the district in their process for replacing Graczyk.

Dickman opened the over two-hour workshop by asking the leadership team to cite the positives of the district. Numerous positive items were addressed while negative items were left alone.

The district's leadership team presented the board with the skills they thought would be important for their next boss. Those skills include communication, knowledge and leadership.

As far as the hiring process goes, the board looked to Wisconsin Association of School Boards (WASB). The board learned that the hiring process could cost them up to $10,000 if they used WASB's search services.

School officials will meet again Monday, June 27 to further discuss the matter at 6:30 p.m. A timetable and procedure were not discussed. Board member, John Kenworthy asked if the board thought they should spend time on reviewing the superintendent's job description.

Will taxpayers after recently approving a $2.15 million referendum have to dig deeper now to cover the additional cost of buying out Graczyk's contract and hiring another superintendent to replace him? What are your thoughts? See The Statesman's Letters to the Editor policy on page 5.

Get ready for BIGGER, BETTER fireworks!

Get ready Kewaskum! Just when you thought our fireworks display couldn't get any better a few folks have stepped up to the plate to make them bigger and better.

Kewaskum Fire Department chief, Mark Groeschel has announced that attendees to this year's fireworks display on July 3 will definitely get their monies worth as the show will be doubled in length and number of displays.

A memorial for former fire chief, Bob Stoltzmann has come through by Modern Woodman Insurance agent Jeff Jaeger. When Stoltzmann was diagnosed with cancer the Woodman held a matching funds event and since Stoltzmann's death it was decided Bob would like to see that money used to boost up the annual fireworks display. $1,700 was donated to the display and there will be a special tribute to Bob during the show.

At a recent village board meeting the department was pleased to announce yet another donation from Bullseye Construction in the amount of $2,654.

It is imperative to remind those thinking of attending the fireworks show on July 3 in Riverhill Park that this is a fundraiser for the Kewaskum Fire Department. Firefighters will be serving food and frosty liquid refreshments at the event.

Money raised by this annual event is used to offset the cost of lifesaving tools that are used almost daily by the department.

Usinger's Sausage to challenge C-Sport's longest brat record

MILWAUKEE- Officials at Usinger's Famous Sausage have decided they will host a 125th Birthday Bash at German Fest 2005.

The 125th Birthday Bash will also include a world record challenge by Usinger's Famous Sausage Makers with the creation of a bratwurst over 50 feet long. The brat will be transported to the German Fest grounds for measuring and grilling.

Just a few months ago Campbellsport was named the official brat capital of the world. Organizers of the Campbellsport Fire Department's picnic and Loehr's Meat Market in Campbellsport created a 48 foot sausage.

"It is obviously a large corporate giant trying to mimic the energy and vigor of small town America. Our vibrant local small town businesses will not be de-railed by large businesses trying to copy the ingenuity and simple hard work that makes our area so great. Small town local American businesses are models that can not be copied. We urge people to continue to support local businesses and appreciate their patronage especially as we celebrate our Independence," said Joel Fleischman, one of the organizers of last year's successful record break.

News of the super sausage was released early Wednesday, June 22. Officials in Campbellsport did not know how they would react to the possible breaking of their record.

"These corporate giants may have bigger budgets and larger venues but our spirit will not be broken (even if our record is). At this time, I can not confirm or deny if we would attempt the record again but, God willing, we just might," stated Fleischman.

The sausage saga continues, watch The Statesman for more details.

Radio Club to hold Field Day in W.B.

The Ozaukee Radio Club will have its annual emergency preparedness event called Field Day at Lazy Days Campground, West Bend on Saturday, June 25.

Field Day is an annual event for the Ozaukee Radio Club. Tents, antennas, radios, generators and other 'stuff' from storage will be hauled to the Lazy Days Campground.

On Saturday, after final testing, the operation begins in earnest at 1:00 PM. In two tents it is all dots and dashes. Two other tents are voice communications. Gary and Jeananne Bargholtz are bringing a satellite setup. In the big tent there is a Get On The Air station where YOU can try to talk to an Amateur Radio (Ham) station in Maine, Texas, Florida, Canada or California.

Wash. Cty. Sheriff's Dept. receives grant

The Washington County Sheriff's Department has received $20,000 in funding from the Bureau of Transportation Safety to help step up enforcement efforts relative to speed/aggressive driving and alcohol related driving violations. This money will help fund extra patrol deployments specifically targeted towards these types of problematic driving behaviors. This campaign begins now and extends thru September. The ultimate goal of this program is to try and reduce traffic collisions and injuries.

According to the Department of Transportation, in Wisconsin during 2003, speed was listed as a contributing factor in 16% of all crashes and 34% of fatal crashes. Combined alcohol and speed were listed in an additional 2.1% of all crashes and 18.9% of fatal crashes. Two-hundred-eighty-seven people died and 11,569 people were injured in these crashes. A "speed-related crash" is one in which at least one driver received a citation for speeding, or was listed on the accident report as either "exceeding the speed limit" or "speed too fast for conditions."

The motoring public is encouraged to help us achieve reductions to these statistics by driving responsibly, obeying the speed limit and buckling up.

Plans underway for WB 4th of July Parade

TERRY VRANA
West Bend 4th of July Parade Committee
vranalock@juno.com

As many of you know, the Moose Lodge of West Bend has decided not to continue its sponsorship of West Bend's annual 4th of July parade. In a last-minute attempt to allow this parade to continue, individual members of several West Bend area groups, (VW Post 8658-Barton, VFV Post 1393 - West Bend, American Legion Post 36, Am Vets Post 726, Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 448), have decided to sponsor this year's parade. The procedure for parade participants to follow will be outlined below, so please read carefully.

Due to the limited amount of preparation and organization time, there will be no formal registration or line-up for this year's parade. Instead, interested parade participants should merely show up at the parade staging ground (Badger Middle School - back parking lot) at 8:45 a.m. on July 4th. Parade participants will then be lined up by parade committee volunteers before the parade steps off promptly at 9:30 a.m.

The parade route will be the same as last year: Oak Street east to South Main Street/Main Street North through downtown/West on Cedar Street/North on 7th Ave. crossing Hwy. 33 to North Main Street and ending at Regner Park.

Time and budgetary constraints prevent the Parade Committee from paying money to parade participants this year. Parade participants will be volunteering their time, as are the organizers of the parade. Any group or individual is welcome to participate in the parade. Please remember that this parade is primarily aimed towards families and all parade displays should be treated as such. Although patriotic displays are encouraged, there is no formal theme for this year's parade.

Any questions regarding the 2005 4th of July parade can be e-mailed to vranalock@juno.com and they will be answered promptly. Your patience and cooperation will make this parade an enjoyable and rewarding experience for participants and spectators.

Anyone wishing to help with this year's 4th of July parade can send an e-mail to the above address. You will be contacted regarding the best use of your services.

Mueller, Koester are kings of the Sunburst Hill

BY JUDY HARLOW
Statesman Correspondent
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

A large, enthusiastic crowd was on hand Sunday at the Sunburst Ski area for the 22nd annual Motorcycle Hill Climb sponsored by the Kettle Moraine Sport Riders.

"We had a huge crowd ... 2,900. It was a big turnout," Mike Vrana, the vice president of the club, said Monday, reporting the riders found the hill to be more of a challenge this year because the grass was dry, and "it was slippery."

The attendance was actually closer to 3,000 than 2,900, considering the official count hit 2,976, according to club secretary Bruce Koenig, who reported there were 113 motorcycle hill climbers who tested the 300 foot hill.

Drawing a great deal of attention for his efforts was Kick Mueller from La Valle. This is the third year in a row Mueller took home top honors in the 600 Pro class. It took him just 8.56 seconds to reach the top of the hill, with Kurt Koester of Red Wing, Minn. finishing second at 9.05.

Paul Buettner of West Bend brought his Honda home in the third spot, with a 9.45 clocking the best of his two runs.

Koester didn't go home without a win, however. In the battle for the Open Pro class, he zoomed up the hill in 8.22 seconds, and later he came back to win the King of the Hill title with a speedy run of 8.14 seconds to round out a good day of racing.

The King of the Hill class is held for the 10 fastest riders of the day, who each get one more chance at earning this designation. After Koester came Matt Nelson of Ellsworth, who crossed the line in 8.62 seconds, and Louie Lauters of Campbellsport earned the third spot with his time of 9.02 seconds.

What was interesting Sunday was Watertown's John Stewart advanced to the King of the Hill competition from the 250 stock class with his time of 10.94. Stewart's luck ran out 40 feet up the hill on his final run when his bike stalled.

What made the story even more interesting is this was Stewart's first ever hill climb, and he won his class and was the only amateur to make the King of the Hill field. He definitely had an outstanding day racing.

Winning the 250 Pro class was John Alft. No home address was available for Alft.

The Kettle Moraine Sport Riders offered their appreciation to the people from the Sunburst Ski Area, who continue to allow the group to run its annual event on the hill. They also praised the efforts of the members of the Kewaskum Rescue Squad, who were on hand in case of injuries requiring medical attention.

Koenig and Vrana promised the Fathers Day tradition will continue next year.

Romp with the Animals is a summer school program designed to develop a child's appreciation and respect for the many animals we share the earth with, and to foster responsible attitudes toward those animals as well as our environment.

The two four-day series will be offered August 1 - 4 and August 8-11. Each program is from 8 a.m. - 12 noon. The cost is $50 and includes a Romp t-shirt, snacks, art supplies, bus transportation to the off site locations and all activities.

Chamber golf outing adds a couple new twists

BY JUDY HARLOW
Statesman Correspondent
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Golf ... food ... fun ... and all for a good cause. What could be better?!

The 13th annual Chamber of Commerce golf outing is coming up on Saturday, July 23rd, at Hon-E-Kor Country Club, with a $200 incentive for signing up early and the proceeds benefitting a new project to showcase some of the history of the community.

The money will get the ball rolling on the construction of an open-air building near the parking lot (on Main Street) across from the proposed Eisenbahn Trail, a bicycle trail that will be constructed where the railroad tracks once were.

"If your foursome signs up by July 9, the group qualifies for an extra $200 prize," Aaron Laatsch, one of the cochairmen of the event along with Mike Geidel, said last week, indicating, "We're hoping to draw in some entries earlier in the game."

Flyers are already available for the event. They can be obtained at the West Bend Savings and Loan, at the Piggly Wiggly and at Hon-E-Kor, according to Laatsch, who said the outing includes golf, prizes and dinner, or just dinner for those who do not wish to golf.

"It's going to be a scramble format again," Laatsch said, stressing, "The golfing is more for fun ... It's not like a tournament."

The cost is $75 for non-Hon-E-Kor members, $45 for those who are HEK members, and $15 for those who just want to come for the steak dinner. The golfing will get started at 10 a.m., and tee times will be available until noon.

The steak dinner will begin around 4:30 p.m., and afterward there will be awards for the scramble winners and raffle prizes given out.

Participants may pick their own foursomes, couples may sign up together, and singles are welcome. They will be assigned a group, if they wish.

Laatsch, Geidel and the Chamber have come up with an excellent idea to promote the building for the bike trail.

"I've been working on some plans with Joel Fleischman (of Campbellsport Building Supply), but nothing definite has been decided," Laatsch said, reporting the main idea will be to include some of the history of Kewaskum. "It will be kind of an informational structure, showing the way the railroad affected the community."

There will also be information on the businesses currently in the Chamber.

"We still have to work with the village on some things," Laatsch said.

With the biking theme, the committee, which also includes Kevin Bartelt, Joyce Kral and Jane Korth, has come up with an additional raffle idea.

"All golfers will automatically be entered into a raffle for his and her mountain bikes," Laatsch said, inviting the entire community to participate in the event.

Fr. Russ Stommel excited about new Racine assignment

Members of Holy Trinity Parish gathered Sunday, June 19 to say farewell to Father Russ Stommel who has served as temporary administrator of the parish for the past year. Fr. Russ spoke highly of his time at Holy Trinity and he said he will take many fond memories with him. He has begun his tenure as pastor of St. John Nepomuk in Racine.

Fr. Ed

With a cup of coffee in hand, he strolled down the street, gazing at the Holy Trinity Church. Fr. Ed said, "I stood in front of Holy Trinity and said, 'I'm going to be the pastor of this parish some day' ... I didn't think it would come that fast."

Working at his last two parishes certainly gives Fr. Ed experience in the field of collaboration, beginning at Campbellsport.

"In Waterford, we worked with St. Clare in Wind Lake," he said. "Collaboration is the wave of the future" because of the decline in the number of priests, but it's not something that has never been done before.

"One hundred and fifty years ago, in this area, priests were circuit riders. They had three, four, five and six parishes to visit," Fr. Ed said, indicating his experience at the other collaborated parishes will help him.

"I think so ... Obviously every parish has its own identity, which needs to be respected," Fr. Ed said, but, "This is not the Packers against the Bears or the Democrats against the Republicans ... We are all Catholics. We can make it happen!"

St. Thomas also had a school with an enrollment of 200 students, so Fr. Ed is accustomed to working with a school staff and young people.

"I enjoy having a grade school. I like rubbing shoulders with the teachers, the kids and their parents ... the same with the religious education program," Fr. Ed said, quick to add, "I also like adult education," centered around sacraments, spirituality and contemporary moral issues.

"I would like to start a study circle for those who would like to know more about theology and contemporary moral issues," Fr. Ed said. "I'd like to dedicate it to Pope John Paul II ... the Pope John Paul II Study Program."

The program would include prayer, a talk on the topic or maybe an outside speaker, according to Fr. Ed, who said he would like to get this started in the fall.

Holy Trinity will be Fr. Ed's sixth assignment after being ordained in 1984. He grew up in Milwaukee where he and his parents — he comes from German and Polish heritage — were members of St. Josaphat's Parish. Fr. Ed attended grade school at St. Josaphat's, and it was there he first discovered a calling from the Holy Spirit to become a priest.

"I kind of had the desire to be a priest since second grade," Fr. Ed said, indicated the calling quieted for a while when he got to the seventh and eighth grade when he was leaning toward being a pilot, or studying history or archeology, two areas he is still interested in.

During his high school days at Boys Technical High School in Milwaukee, two young priests were assigned to St. Josaphat's, and it was then Fr. Ed began thinking seriously about the priesthood again. He attended Mundelein College in Illinois for his undergraduate work in philosophy and history, and, "Then I was accepted by St. Francis Seminary."

As part of his studies, Fr. Ed did field work at a hospital in Evanston, Ill. and worked in the Milwaukee jail. His first assignment was at St. Rita in West Allis, followed by stints at St. Agnes, Butler, St. Aloysius in West Allis and then to Campbellsport.

Fr. Ed also served as the chaplain for the Wisconsin National Guard for a time.

"I'm happy to return to the Kettle Moraine," Fr. Ed said, indicating his initial observations of Holy Trinity and St. Michaels are very good.

"It's very friendly ... I've already experienced a feeling of hospitality and welcome," Fr. Ed said, happy he was able to meet a lot of people at the town hall meeting, and adding, "The parish councils for Holy Trinity and St. Michaels had done a lot of work the past year," groundbreaking work for a successful collaboration.

So what might parishioners expect from Fr. Ed? "I enjoy preaching," he said. "My preaching is always biblically centered."

"He went on, "People describe me as being kind, gentle and listening," but added he isn't afraid to make tough decisions "when they need to be made." Fr. Ed has a strong devotion to the Blessed Virgin, and says a 60-year old statue of Our Lady of Fatima is one of his favorite possessions. His devotion to Mary led him to speak at Holy Trinity to the Christian Women about 10 years ago. "That's why Fr. Brophy asked me to come in to speak to the women," he said.

As far as his hobbies, Fr. Ed enjoys history, watching the Travel Channel on tv and says, "I love sports, especially the Packers!"

There will be welcoming receptions held for Fr. Ed this Sunday after the Masses at Holy Trinity and St. Michaels.

An even 700 persons from the area established a new record for Kewaskum Night at the Milwaukee Brewers game against the Texas Rangers Tuesday, June 10 at Milwaukee County Stadium. Kewaskum Night is sponsored by the Kewaskum Area Chamber of Commerce.

Occupancy conditions proposed by Dr. F.E. Nolting were not acceptable to Kiwanis Club of Kewaskum so it was decided that the club would cancel the 1980 Turkey Shoot at the Bar-N Ranch. Alternative sites for the Turkey Shoot are being investigated. Please watch for further announcements.

Fifty years ago, on June 5, 15 students received their diplomas from Kewaskum High School. On June 8, 1980 these former students held a reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schaefer. Three members of the class are deceased, but the 12 who attended the reunion had a memorable day. The year 1930 was the time of the Great Depression but every person in the class succeeded in spite of hardships. Andrew O'Connell became the liaison between Congress and the IRS. Bruno Ramthun and Frank Koepke were employed in industrial engineering. Pearl Schaeffer (Reed), John Louis Schaefer and Agnes (Meilahn) Schaefer were teachers. Frances Zeimet (Schneider) and Marcella Casper (Schaefer) became RNs. Marcella Corbett (Plazak) worked as an inspector for a brewery. Ruth Rosenheimer (Wierdsma) is active doing volunteer work in Milwaukee. Roland Heberer was a cheesemaker for many years and later worked for the State Department of Correction. Lyle Bartelt, deceased was a successful lawyer. Carl Meilahn, deceased, was engaged in farming. Edith Clark was employed as a secretary at Regal Ware, Inc. before her death. Carl Backhaus sold farm machinery and implements and has not retired because he loves his work. A starting wage of $60 and $80 a month was the normal wage for many of the above.

Eight seniors and 14 juniors were inducted into the Kewaskum High School National Honor Society this year. Senior candidates for induction were Joan Amerling, Tim Davis, Jeffrey Kreuser, Lori Marx, Lee Roehrdanz, Tom Rosenberger, Todd Schultz and Richard Stefanovic. Junior candidates for induction were Mary Brenholt, Kelly Butzke, Carrie Dreher, Jill Etta, Joan Hanrahan, Perry Kempf, Doreen Klug, Laurie Lemke, Karen Nigh, Theresa Nigh, Debbie Schlice, Ken Scott, Patricia Sleger and Julann Zemlicka.

The Kewaskum Indians broke up a four-game winning streak and dealt West Bend East their first loss of the season at Regner Park there

Monday evening, when they squeezed out a 1-0 shutout win over the Suns. After five scoreless innings, the lone run came in the top of the sixth. Dave Donath got a long hit to the left field fence and by the time the ball was retrieved, Donath was resting on third. Donath scored the winning run when a pitch went by the catcher.

A son, Kirk Ryan, was born to Raymond and Dorothea Korpela, East Troy, on June 14. Maternal grandparents are Mrs. Alice Volm and the late Aloysius Volm. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Mielke are the parents of a daughter, Sara Nicole, born June 6. Mrs. Mielke is the former Joanne Wood of Campbellsport. A daughter, Margo Marie, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Neil Strassman, Campbellsport, on June 4. A son, Timothy John, was born to George and Joan Wettstein, Campbellsport, on June 4.

The Kewaskum firemen were called to the Nick Beisbier farm in the Town of Wayne, located on Highway 28, about seven miles west of the village, Wednesday. A straw stack in the barnyard caught fire and threatened to burn the nearby barn and adjoining building.

Joseph P. Fell, Route 1, Campbellsport, claimed Miss Ardell Marie Westerman, Route 3, Kewaskum, as his bride June 15.

Effective July 1, the Kewaskum Post Office will again be a first class office, according to Postmaster Frank Heppel. Postal receipts for the calendar year 1954 amounted to $41,745.00 compared with $31,311.00 for 1953.

Kewaskum will have its annual fireworks display over the coming Fourth of July holiday weekend. This year the fireworks will be shot off in the village park on the night of Saturday, July 2, and will be sponsored by the fire department in cooperation with the village board.

The annual strawberry festival of St. John Lutheran Church will be held in their parish hall at New Fane on Thursday, June 30.

Melvin E. Kluever, Kewaskum, a son of Mrs. Clarence Kluever and the late Mr. Kluever, was awarded the Bachelor of Science degree (mechanical engineering) at the University of Wisconsin's annual commencement June 17.

Diane Schaefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schaefer, Kewaskum, was among those who received degrees at commencement exercises at Wisconsin State College, Milwaukee, on June 12.

A petition signed by the majority of the property owners along Main Street has been filed with the village board asking for the paving of the sides of Main Street providing the state and county pave the center with 18 feet and providing they are not to pay more than half of the cost of the balance of the street improvement (amounting to $2.00 per running foot). This would leave a balance of about $9,000 to be paid by the village.

The Holy Trinity School closed last week Friday. On this day the members of the eighth grade graduating class were presented with their diplomas by their pastor, Father Vogt. The class includes: Elizabeth Metz, Ruth Kohn, Florence Bath, Eleanor Hron, Russell Heisler, Joseph Miller and Albert Hron.

The Washington County community picnic will be received this year by popular demand and will be held in Schoenbeck's grove near West Bend on July 27.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. August Seefelt of Kewaskum on June 16 and a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Schaefer, also of Kewaskum on June 17.

The Theresa Union Telephone Company has a force of men working here changing the line into a metallic system.

Under the provisions of a new law recently passed by the legislature at Madison and which is now in effect, horse-shoers are given a lien on horses and other animals for the amount due for labor or services.

The 11th annual tournament of the Washington, Ozaukee County and North Milwaukee Firemen's Association to be held here June 25 will undoubtedly be one of the largest in line of attendance held for some years. It is expected that there will be about 300 firemen in the parade. The largest delegations will come from North Milwaukee, West Bend, Hartford and Schlesingerville, who will bring their own bands.

Tuttle Creek catches a summer movie

The preschoolers at Tuttle Creek Learning Center started out their summer by visiting Paradise Theatre in West Bend to see Madagascar. They had a great time and are looking forward to more fun activities this summer. Keep looking for our adventures as the summer goes on!

Deputy Ron visits with the Little Folks

The Little Folks School House in Wayne has continued with their devotion in providing education on safety. Last month, staff from Friends of Abused Families visited and trained the Little Folks teachers on all forms of child abuse.

This past week, deputy Ron Rewertz made his annual visit and spent over an hour with the children talking about safety. Deputy Ron starts his presentation by asking the children what they think his most important tools as a police officer are. This led into a discussion and explanations of his radio, handcuffs, pistol, taser gun, baton, knife and whistle. The children were curious and his bullet proof vest and uniform. When the group discussed the officer's gun, he asked how many of the children thought their parents had guns at home. Deputy Ron told all of the children that they needed to go home and tell their parents that if their guns are not locked up, they needed to do so right away.

The deputy spoke at length regarding 911 - the fire, medical and criminal emergency number. Also what the consequences are of a false 911 call. The children were talked to about "stranger danger" and were told that when they are out with their parents in public, they should not be allowed to wander off or even go to the rest room alone.

Also, with summer upon us, children were educated in water and bike safety. They were reminded that they should always wear a helmet while riding their bikes. The children were then talked to about car safety and the importance of seat belt use.

To conclude his presentation, the deputy took the children outside and let them crawl into his car. They investigated the front seat, the back seat and the trunk. They watched the lights and heard the different sirens.

The staff of Little Folks wishes to thank Deputy Rewertz of the Washington County Sheriff's Department and look forward to his visit again next year.

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER®

Michael A. Guido
Metter, Georgia

A gentleman left a rake and a hoe to be repaired. When he picked them up, he handed the mechanic some money. But he refused it.

"No," he said. "There's no charge for that little job."

But the man insisted that he take the money.

"Sir," replied the mechanic, "can't you let a fellow do something-just to stretch his soul?"

Have you done anything today to stretch your soul?

Round about you are people with burdens that are heavy to bear, with problems that are difficult to solve, and with needs that are hard to meet.

Help them, and you'll stretch your soul.

Big Weather

by Mark Svenvold

BIG WEATHER

CHASING TORNADOES IN THE HEART OF AMERICA

MARK SVENVOLD

Here's a happy little bit of information for you: on average, 10,000 severe thunderstorms hit the U.S. annually, bringing 1000 tornados. The area known as "Tornado Alley" is actually several alleys, including Oklahoma, which is in the center of a zone of concentric rings. That means that Oklahoma - and Oklahoma City in particular - endures the most violent tornadoes of F4 magnitude annually than anywhere else on earth.

So why would otherwise normal human beings rush to Oklahoma for tornado season? Find out why in "Big Weather" by Mark Svenvold.

They come from all over the U.S. Some come from other countries and pay for tours, much like one would pay for a bus ride around the Homes of the Stars in Hollywood. They are chasers, men (and some women) who own thousands and thousands of dollars worth of gadgets that will help them get as close to a tornado as is possible without going too close.

Author Svenvold was on a trip through Oklahoma in the spring of 2000, and happened to get caught up in some nasty weather. The sky turned black and the wind howled. The locals, however, were unperturbed, even going so far as to look at Svenvold with amusement when he asked where the hotel's basement was located. The next morning, the sky was clear and it was as if the storm never happened. Svenvold realized that he just had to see a storm up-close.

In May of last year, Svenvold decided to tag along with a few people who were chasers. Matt Biddle, founder of the storm consulting company Moderate Risk, was Svenvold's guide for much of the month. Biddle had been chasing storms for years and had seen some of the biggest. With trepidation, Svenvold wanted to see a tornado. He wasn't disappointed.

During his time with Biddle, Svenvold talked to other chasers, including two men who own a steel-fortified tank-like custom truck made to get up-close-and-personal with a twister. He examines the issue of Global Warming and explores whether or not it could be causing mega-storms across the country. He also talked to survivors of the 1999 Moore / Oklahoma City tornado, the single-most destructive tornado ever recorded in U.S. history. The last chapter of this book, which includes those interviews, is a heart-stopper.

Although I liked this book enough, I had mixed feelings about it. Author Mark Svenvold offers lots and lots of science and meteorology in this book - almost too much - and it's very often hard to understand unless you're a weatherperson. Although Svenvold tries to make it easy to grasp, I think that even Weather Channel fans will have a bit of difficulty with this book. On the other hand, there are some stories and facts in this book that will make your jaw drop. If you've ever endured that "locomotive" sound of a twister, or if you don't think you'll be intimidated by the hard science in this book, pick up a copy of "Big Weather". You'll be blown away by it.

Financial tips for newlyweds

You're married. Now what?

Jeff Jaeger, Modern Woodmen Representative
262-626-4139

As newlyweds soon learn, the concerns of married life reach far beyond what brand of toothpaste to buy or who's going to control the remote. The transition from single life bring many changes. The most difficult change often concerns the couple's finances.

Newlyweds enter into not only a personal relationship, but a financial relationship as well. In the past it was his money and her money. Now it's his money, her money and our money.

One of newlyweds' most important tasks is to talk about finances, which should include a good life insurance plan. Ideally these things are discussed long before the wedding. It's important to discuss your expectations about spending and saving, your financial goals and day-to-day details, like who'll pay the bills and who'll balance the checkbook. The more you communicate, the less likely you'll run into arguments over money."

Your budget could be as simple as writing on a piece of paper:

1) Where your money is coming from each month (your income).

2) Where your money is going each month (your expenditures).

There's a good exercise to do for three to six months. It gives you a good indicator of what can happen in the future. And it can tell you what your disposable income is at any given point in time.

Another important step is to establish good credit. It is recommended couples get one credit card and pay it off every month. It's too easy to get in the trap of having multiple credit cards, running up balances on those cards, paying the minimum due and thinking you're going to get out of the debt cycle. You won't. If you never start out in that direction, you'll be miles ahead of the game."

A limited budget can make life's unexpected emergencies - a broken water heater, car problems, etc. - even more difficult. Once you've determined your disposable income each month, consider setting aside a portion of that money in a liquid investment, such as a money market account, to cover such emergencies.

After you've set up an emergency fund, then comes the fun part - setting goals together. Talk about where you want to be in one year, three years or five years.

Your goals may include saving for a vacation, a new car or a down payment on a house. Take another look at your disposable income and set aside a portion to reach those goals.

Larson retires from WB Savings Bank board

Richard A. Larson Sr.

West Bend Savings Bank has announced the retirement of Richard A. Larson Sr. as Chairman of the Board of the bank and its various holding companies effective June 30.

Larson joined the bank in 1955 after his graduation from the University of Wisconsin and service as a United State Air Force officer in Korea and later in Washington DC. Larson started at the bank as an assistant secretary and was promoted to secretary-treasurer and later vice president in charge of mortgage lending. He was elected to the bank's board of directors in 1963 succeeding the late Henry M. Gehl. When his father, Albert C. Larson, the banks president and CEO died in 1968 the board named Larson president and chief executive officer. He was named Chairman of the Board in 1973, after the retirement of Chairman Elmer W. Eberhardt.

Larson served as the bank's chief executive officer for 25 years. Since his retirement as CEO in 1993, Larson's son, Richard Jr. is currently the bank's Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer.

During Larson's 50 years with the bank it expanded from one small office at 5th and Walnut in West Bend to 15 offices in four counties. Also, within a few weeks, the bank will be opening a new administrative home loan building in downtown West Bend. In addition, two new branches are currently planned as second offices in the Hartford and the Slinger/Jackson areas. From five employees in 1955, the bank has grown to nearly 200 employees, plus additional personnel in its various subsidiaries. From assets of less than $10,000,000 the bank has grown to almost $400,000,000 today.

During his tenure with the bank Larson served on many industry boards and committees including as a Director and Vice Chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago; as a member of the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) first advisory committee; a director of the United States League of Financial Institutions and a Director and President of the Wisconsin League of Financial Institutions. In 1991 Chairman Alan Greenspan named Larson to the Federal Reserve Board's 12 person Advisory Council in Washington DC.

Larson and his wife, Gail, now live in Bonita Springs, Florida and spend their summers in Madison.

The Bike Writer

By Judy Steffes

Yes, it is a small world! So, I'm sitting at Nick's Family Restaurant in Spooner. I've worked my way into a table with two old guys, Bob and Buck. They didn't seem to mind too much that I joined them for breakfast. We were working out mapping details and as they were getting set to leave... guess who walks through the door. Irene Gnacinski my waitress from Brother's Diner in Kewaskum. What a surprise. She and her husband just drove in from gambling the night before.

Day 5 Chippewa Falls

After the bike repair, I decided to spend a couple of days in Chippewa Falls. My brother Tom was going to drive over from Minnesota to bike with me and explore. I got a great rate at the Badger Motel and toiled around while waiting for him to arrive.

It was early Saturday and strong storms were in the forecast. Stopped at the Chippewa Falls paper and waited for their office to open. Around 8am, Hugh Francis came out of the office across the hall. He asked about my bike trip and then generously offered his office and internet, as the public library was still two hours from opening.

Hugh was an accountant and resembled an older Jimmy Stewart. He had pictures on his office cabinet of his boys in the UW marching band. I noticed a drawing of George Washington, in the early stages of Mount Rushmore. "When I was young my father and I climbed to the top and stood on Washington's head," said Francis. "The real interesting thing is to the lower left; the letter."

On the wood paneled wall inside was a typed letter from President Ronald Reagan. "My dad originally wrote Reagan after he mentioned a buddy of his during an inaugural address in January, 1981," said Francis of Reagan's comment about Martin Treptow. "Treptow and my father were school friends who served together in WWII." Francis said his father was with the Old Hickory Division in Belgium and Treptow with the Rainbow Division on the western front in France. "Treptow was killed in the war and in his pocket was found a patriotic pledge he wrote as a New Year's resolution and how he felt it was his duty to serve his country." Francis said his father wrote Reagan and the President wrote back.

The letter was dated March 23, 1981. It began, Dear Mr. Francis: I was pleased to receive your recent message and want you to know how much I appreciate hearing that you were a friend of Martin Treptow. I found your remembrances of him very interesting. With heartfelt thanks and best wishes, Sincerely, 'Hand signed' - Ronald Reagan

In the bottom right hand corner of the letter was a color photo of Ronald and Nancy Reagan waving, as they were about to enter Airforce one. "My Dad received that letter from Reagan on March 30, 1981," said Francis. It was the same day Reagan was shot by John Hinckley Jr. outside the Hilton Hotel in Washington.

Much of Chippewa Falls is torn up this summer by construction. Seems to be the season, Wausau had its fair share of detours as well. Up the street from Hugh's office was a little shop called 'Olson's Ice Cream.' There were green benches out front, along with a homemade ice cream cone. The display screamed, small town Wisconsin. The double scoop cone was about six feet tall. The ice cream was made out of two upside down metal bushel baskets. The top "basket" was painted pink, the second was lime green. A brown metal triangle cone was balanced on a cement block.

Kristin was the clerk behind the counter. She had worked there for the past six years, while going to school at UW Eau Claire. "I'm working towards a degree in health information technologies," she said while loading 20 gallon drums of 'Ho-Maid' ice cream into the front freezer.

22 flavors of ice cream are displayed in the glass top freezer. "The kids like the Cotton Candy Confetti and Black Licorice is pretty popular too," said Kristen of the more interesting selections. The cotton candy ice cream was bright blue with specks of pink and yellow. I figured what the cotton candy to me, was like what a Captain and Coke is to a kid.

It was 10 o'clock in the morning and two people were already working on a couple scoops in the corner booth. The bells sound and a family of four walked in the front door. The woman orders a vanilla cone and the little boy was quick, all over the cotton candy.

Olson's Ice Cream is a Chippewa Falls landmark, having been in business since 1944. In the back of the shop are pictures of the old Olson's dairy delivery trucks. There's a black and white photo of the early days of the ice cream shop. The menu on the wall in the background lists prices at 5 cents, 10 cents and 15 cents. The shelf below the menu carries rows and rows of candy bars. The owner's son Howard was the one who crafted the bushel basket street sculpture and Howard's son Dave currently runs the shop.

Kristin said the bushel basket cone has been stolen several times, but always manages to find its way back to the curb in front of the store. The display is freestanding and they still haven't chained it down.

Day 6- Spooner

Put in 48 miles today dodging raindrops from Chetek to Spooner. Staying at Trinity Lutheran Church. Pastor Will Mowchan is a fellow biker. Mowchan is about 6'5, he has salt and pepper hair, a long face, mustache and noticeable ears to hold up his glasses. He was hit with lymes disease several years ago and that's slowed his biking a bit.

In August 2004, Mowchan and nine other parishioners from the church traveled to Tanzania in East Africa. Their mission was to help construct and renovate a remote clinic. "We support a missionary in Gilai. Dr. Steve Friberg and his wife, the group and I went to a village nine hours past the end of the road and helped work on the clinic."

Mowchan and his team put in a water tower, a roof on the staff building and they built a propane refrigeration system to store medicines. "The tribe, called the Masai, had no two year old children in the village," said Mowchan as all of them had died of measles because they were not able to safely store vaccines.

As the projects were completed in the village, the Masai showed the missionaries how thankful they were by including them in native customs. Mowchan remembered one instance where he and the other missionaries carried 15 foot 2 x 6 pieces of wood nine miles up the side of a mountain to a village where the people had been Christian less than a year. "We were still about 20 minutes from the village and we could hear women singing," said Mowchan. "Dr. Freiberg said it was a song of thanksgiving and to welcome us." When they entered the village, Mowchan said, they were so overwhelmed and they knew they were getting far more with the welcome than the tribe was getting from their delivery of the timbers.

"The Masai greeted us, letting us drink all the tea and water we could drink. We later learned, every drop of water had been carried for three hours on top of a woman's head," he said. "For us to drink a quart or two quarts was really a huge gift from them."

There are 250,000 to 300,000 in the Masai tribe. Mowchan described them as 'stone age' but said they're really proud of their way of life and they're determined to keep it.

The hallways at Trinity Lutheran Church are full of colorful pictures of the Masai. "I was very lucky to be allowed to take pictures of the tribe," said Mowchan. "Normally they break cameras when they see one pointed in their direction."

In Mowchan's office is a picture of two, black tribesmen wearing colorful red robes. The pair, a father and son, are sitting on a piece of wood holding black zebra tails to swat flies. "They're elders in the community," said Mowchan of the son who is in his mid-seventies and his father who is over 100 years old.

"The Masai have extreme respect for their elders and when the 100 year old came into the village, everything stopped and everyone went over and bowed to him." Mowchan said when younger people bow in respect, the elder puts his hand on their head and say a blessing. "That was really something for the five high schoolers from Spooner to see."

In all the pictures the Masai wear serious expressions. They also have no hair. "They all shave their heads because there's so little water, they can't waste it on washing hair," he said.

Another framed picture is a close-up of two Masai men, carrying spears and wearing colorful beaded headdresses. "A neighboring village was so grateful we were improving their clinic, they invited us to a circumcision ceremony," said Mowchan about the event which lasts three days and involves boys between 12 and 16 years old. "They define the custom as dying to boyhood and rising to the responsibilities of being a warrior." Mowchan said very few white people have ever witnessed the ceremony.

Mowchan's group got to the village the night before the ceremony. Around 4 o'clock in the afternoon the other boys who had been circumcised that summer, brought one boy into the middle of the village. "They slapped him around and kicked him and they chanted all night long; don't be a stupid boy anymore become a man and join us. Be a warrior, be proud and be free and protect your people." Mowchan said they listened to the chanting the entire night, while lying under the stars in the southern hemisphere.

At four in the morning, all the men from the Trinity Lutheran mission were awakened and given tea. They were then led just outside the main gate of the village. "The kid who was being roughed up the entire night laid down on the ground, they threw a bucket of cold water on him and the circumciser did it," Mowchan said matter of fact. "The boys who are circumcised are then supposed to lay there like they're dead. If they so much as wince or let go of a single tear it means life long disgrace."

Mowchan said the kid lay motionless and then the celebration started. "The Masai shot arrows into cow's jugulars. They collected a liter of blood into a gourd and since we were the honored guests we got to drink first," said Mowchan who also got first dibbs on eating raw goat kidneys. As the feast got underway, warriors entered the village to dance. "They danced for two days," said Mowchan who was astonished at the extent of chanting and dancing.

The boys who are circumcised wear ostrich feathers on their head and they are dressed in two black pieces of cotton, each is tied around their shoulder and covers their entire body. "The black color of the garment absorbs the sun's heat and helps the wounds from the circumcision stay dry and not get infected and heal faster."

The Tanzanian environment is harsh and demanding. Located just south of the equator the temperatures are in the low 50's at night and the high 80's during the day. Everything that grows has a thorn on it. Cobras, that can spit venom 15 feet and blind a person, live along the cliff just outside the village where Mowchan and his missionaries stayed. There were also rogue elephants and wild lions. "Dr. Friberg took us to a clinic and showed us a warrior who had just been mauled by a lion right outside the village where we had been sleeping," said Mowchan. "The lion had killed one of the man's cows and he went after it and killed it with his spear, but he didn't know there was a second lion in the bushes and when he was pulling his spear out of the dead lion the second one mauled him."

Mowchan said the Masai are simple. "Their belongings could fit into a small day pack, but they don't feel sorry for themselves. They're incredibly strong, happy and proud. They have immense respect for their elders and their parents and they're very generous with guests." When asked whether he thought they made a difference Mowchan started ticking off a short list of meaningful things they accomplished. "The missionaries in Tanzania can vaccinate people now, they can be cleaner in their medical practice and spend less time on sterilization because they now have running water," he said. "I think what we did is important because it made a difference in a culture that is just trying hard to survive."

Superior to Duluth

Crossed from Superior, Wisconsin into Duluth, Minnesota on Friday. Superior, according to the locals, is the ugly stepsister to Duluth.

Old buildings converted to taverns and more taverns define Superior's downtown. 'The End Zone,' 'Capri Lounge,' 'Odyssey's,' and 'Mr. Lucky's.' An old Chinese restaurant is now 'Bob's Tanning.' Although the sign still carries a Chinese script.

The streets in Superior are covered in cracks. Traps for a bicycle tire as a two to four inch gap can grab a wheel, lock the fork, wrench the frame and have you pinned to the pavement faster than a wrestling move by The Rock.

Superior provided my first challenge to finding a church for the night. I had to ask three times before Pilgrim Lutheran opened their doors. Dale Johnson, who was working in the yard at the church, helped me secure a spot in the youth room that evening and then showed up at 6:30 Friday morning. "I thought you were going to sleep in this morning," I said. "Came to take you out to breakfast," he barked.

Johnson is 70 years old, white hair, very thin and fit. He owned a construction business and raised a family in Superior. He and his wife are both active in the community. Pastor Bill Wilson, a very mild mannered man in his fifties who reminds me of Ned Flanders from The Simpsons TV show, joins us at breakfast.

Our conversation revolves around the community and then I get an education in the goodwill of the church. "We must get ten people a week come in and ask for money for gas, money for food, money for a granddaughter that lives 100 miles away and needs open heart surgery," said Wilson who sported glasses and a mustache that totally covers his upper lip.

"The church has a contract with A&W restaurant, so I can get them a meal," said Wilson who relied on his religious radar to detect the fakes from the flock. "If I'm in a mood I'll make people prove their case." Wilson said one man came to the church asking for cash for gas so he could get his family home. "I followed the guy to the parking lot and there were three drunk men in a car," said Wilson. "The man told me his wife went up the street in their other vehicle to Wal-Mart."

Crossed over a bridge on Highway 2 into Duluth. The downtown streets are lined with brick pavers. A more 'pedestrian friendly look' said one businessman.

The main drag in Duluth can be found on Superior Street and Michigan Street. They look very similar to downtown Milwaukee, but with less traffic. The Art Museum, the Duluth News Tribune, banks and retail outlets are housed in new and old buildings alike. A music store has posters from the 70's completely covering the front window. A sun-faded poster of The Fonz sits below a techno-colored orange and yellow drawing of a Viking, and above is a busy, bedroom door size poster of Rachel Welch.

There's angle parking in downtown Duluth. Parking attendants in little three wheeled vehicles weave in and out amongst city buses and trolleys. The cross streets in Duluth are steep; Streets of San Francisco steep. My calves' burn as I'm forced to walk my bike, just to make it up the block.

Fitger's Brewery complex is on the north end of Superior Street. The three-story brick building is an old brewery that has since turned into a mix of restaurants and shops. The old brewery was established in 1857 as a way to put some 'unemployed Duluthians back to work,' after the prolonged depression.

A great museum of the Fitger's Brewery is outside the main corridor of the brewpub. 1972 was the day the Brewery closed its doors and in 1984 the facility reopened with a 48-room hotel, two full service restaurants and a retail center. The brewpub features a fantastic apricot beer, outdoor seating and a medium priced menu.

Just up the street from Fitger's is the Portland Malt Shoppe. The red brick building is a small joint; you have to walk up to the window to give your order. New York Cherry, Moose Tracks, Praline Pecan and Coffee Mocha Chip. $2 will get you a healthy single scoop and $4.95 will deliver a Power Malt, complete with vanilla wafer cookie. A gas tank magnet in the window of the shop said, 'In 1921 this building was built as a gas station for Northwestern Oil Company.'

Banners for this weekend's Grandma's Marathon hang from the streetlights in downtown Duluth. The blue and brown two-piece flags indicate the run has been in existence since 1977. ESPN trucks are already in town and out-of-town participants are getting in some last minute miles, chasing up and down the Lakewalk.

The Lakewalk is one of the gems of Duluth. It's a six-mile stretch of paved trail that runs along Lake Superior. Rows of violet lilacs border the street side of the path, separating the trail from the traffic and the trains. Further south on the Lakewalk tiers of stairs lead up to shops on Superior Street. Closer to the city, the trail blends with boardwalks and the beach.

Off to the side of the Lakewalk is a covered boat called the Leif Erickson. As the story goes, the boat was built in 997 A.D. and crossed the North Atlantic 10,000 miles to Iceland. The ship came to Duluth in 1927. As years passed, the ship fell into disrepair. A lawmaker in the community wanted to set the ship ablaze like the Vikings, however the community stepped forward to try and save it. Valiant efforts of repair seemed to have lost steam and now the boat sits partially covered, an unfinished and forgotten project.

Towards the end of the boardwalk there's a fabulous silver, steel beamed-bridge leading to the peninsula off Duluth. The peninsula is a seven-mile stretch of straight. Minnesota Avenue flies like an arrow through town. Driveways are difficult to differentiate from the blocks, which run up to 41st Street. The peninsula ends at Park Point Park, and then there is a small airport on the last tip of land.

Houses hug the shoreline. The bay is on one side, the lake on the other. Everyone's backyard is the beach. Boats are as common as cars. One home has a mock Loch Ness monster in the bay. Several humps and the long neck of the creature can be seen as it serpentine in an out of the water.

There's one store on the peninsula, one gas station, one church and one cop. Bay Side Market has gas priced at $2.09 for a gallon of regular unleaded. The store still uses paper stickers to price each item. A box of Raisin Bran is $4.99. Milk is $3.95 a gallon and bread is $1.89 a loaf.

Noel Knudson is working on his pine green English Austin in his driveway. "It's from 1951," said Knudson who wears a classy straw hat and looks like he just stepped out of a granola commercial. "I owned a similar vehicle about ten years ago. Left that one at a Standard station in Minneapolis for a tune up," he said. "Went back a week later and the whole shop had vanished, my car included."

Knudson is in his early sixties, short, portly and sports a white beard. Next to his English Austin is a 1959 salmon-colored Blue Bird bus. "My wife and I bought that with the intention of filling it with old books and taking them down to antique stores in Milwaukee," said Knudson about his backup vehicle that has its rear wheels buried in sand.

Knudson paid $22,000 for his two-story home. "It has a poured basement, really solid but tough to get a loan because the bank at the time said this was a red line district." Now the peninsula has changed from a haven of 'summer homes' to 1500 homes, some priced as high as $2 million. "I came to the peninsula 32 years ago, but never had intentions of staying," he said with a laugh. "But this is a great place to watch the weather change."

A's reach finals in Plymouth tourney but drop 2 other games

BY JUDY HARLOW
Statesman Correspondent
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Behind solid offensive punch and a great pitching effort by Jeremy Schmidt, the Kewaskum Athletics home talent baseball team has propelled itself into the finals of the Plymouth Tournament.

Schmidt limited Saukville to just two hits in his complete-game (seven innings) 11-0 win in the second round of the event held last Wednesday night and featuring 10 hits by the A's.

Bob Findley stroked three hits for the winners, while Brandon Banton, Jason Strobel and Steve Ketter each added two hits. One of Ketter's hits was a solo home run in the first inning when the A's scored four times.

They also had a big fourth inning, sending five runners across the plate. The rally came after two outs and started with a walk. Banton's two-run "dinger" was the big hit in the outburst.

According to team spokesperson Jim Ziegler, the A's will face the Cedarburg Mercs in the championship game.

"No date has been set for the game yet," Ziegler said. "We will probably determine this week when the game will be played."

Getting back into Rock River action over the weekend, the A's could have used a couple of those 11 runs, and had they been able to do so, they would have finished at 2-0 instead of losing back-to-back, one-run heartbreakers.

On Saturday at Kiwanis Park, Kewaskum came up on the short end of a 3-2 score in a pitchers' duel between Ziegler and Ryan Hall, who once played for the A's but now is an ace on the Brownsville pitching staff.

Hall gave up seven hits and struck out seven, while Ziegler's effort included seven strikeouts. He gave up eight hits to the winners.

Brownsville scored a single run in the first inning and two more in the third.

The A's tied the game in the bottom of the first when Jake Spaeth drew a walk, advanced to third on Corey Immel's single and came home on a ground out.

In the third inning, after two outs, Ketter worked Hall for a walk and later scored on Rowe's base hit.

"We had guys thrown out at the plate in the third and fifth," Ziegler said, reporting, "We left guys on first and third to end the game ... this was a game we should have won."

Playing at home again Sunday, Kewaskum got just four hits off Brian Breuer (in five innings) and wound up on the short end of a 4-3 score against Rubicon.

Once again, it was a matter of leaving too many runners stranded, according to Ziegler, who said, "We left 11 guys on base. We had a lot of missed opportunities."

Rowe was wielding a hot bat again, going 2x4 with a solo home run in the bottom of the fifth. Ketter doubled for the A's, while Immel had the only other base hit.

Kewaskum never led in the contest. It was 2-2 at the end of the third inning, then both teams scored single runs in the third, and Rubicon took the lead for good with a single run in the top of the fifth.

Jake Panzer was the hard-luck pitcher for Kewaskum. He went eight innings, giving up the four runs on six hits. He struck out five and walked five.

With last week's games, the A's are 5-5 in Rock River action and 10-7 overall. Kewaskum was at Horicon on Wednesday for an opening round game in the annual SWABA (South-eastern Wisconsin Amateur Baseball Association) Tournament. On Sunday, the A's go back to Horicon for a Rock River game.

Winning streak halted by Plymouth; Indians also lose to Kiel, Two Rivers

BY JUDY HARLOW
Statesman Correspondent
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Baseball can be a very fickle game.

One week, a team can be on the top of the world, and the next it falls into a hole.

"We can't get the runs in ... leaving too many men on base," Kewaskum High coach Dave Donath said after his team lost three straight games last week, after riding a five-game win streak against Eastern Wisconsin Conference opponents.

On Monday, the Indians were beaten by Plymouth 9-1. The next day, Kiel made it two in a row over Kewaskum, winning 5-3 in a game shortened by rain. Then on Thursday, the Indians were edged by host Two Rivers, 8-6.

Against Two Rivers, Abe Foerster took the loss after pitching just one inning. He gave up two hits, three runs, only one of which was earned. Jon Roskopf started the game, giving up three runs in the first two innings and John Holt went three innings, giving up two runs on three hits and a walk.

The Raiders rallied for three runs in the sixth to erase Kewaskum's 6-5 lead.

Casey Gates was the winning pitcher. He went six innings before leftie Joe Christianson came in for the final three outs.

Dan Shea went 2x3 for KHS with two doubles, two runs scored and two RBI. Jon Olla was 2x4, with an RBI.

"We left too many runners on base, ten total," Donath said.

In the fourth, the Indians had the bases loaded before Gates got Logan Staeger to hit a bouncer back to the mound for the last out.

KHS had a 2-0 lead after the first when Josh Meyer walked and scored on Shea's double. Shea later scored on a hit by Staeger.

The Indians managed just five hits against Kiel. Meyer had two of them, both singles. The senior pitcher/infielder also had two stolen bases and scored a run.

Meyer took the loss and is now 2-2. He gave up a pair of runs in the first, two more in the second and a single run in the fifth.

"It rained in the top of the sixth. That was the end of that," Donath said, indicating the game was called soon after.

Brent Arenz went 2-x3 for the winners.

Kewaskum scored two of its runs in the third when Casey Scheel walked, advanced on Meyer's single and scored on a ground out. Olla brought Meyer in with a base hit.

In the loss to Plymouth, it was a matter of Foerster being hit hard for the first time all season. He gave up 13 hits, including a pair of home runs, one to Dylan Dellger and the other to Josh Palasz, who had two RBI.

Dusty Medved had three hits for the Panthers, while Trevor Peiper was holding the Indians in check.

"It was a closer (game) than that for the most part," Donath said, reporting Plymouth got six hits off Foerster in the bottom of the sixth.

Kewaskum got just five hits, two by the sophomore Shea, who drove in a run in the fifth inning.

State collecting birds, mammals for West Nile Virus monitoring

MADISON -- Wildlife health specialists at the state Department of Natural Resources will again be working with the state Division of Public Health and U.S. Department of Agriculture-Wildlife Services to test wild animals for West Nile Virus (WNV) in 2005. Results of the testing program help scientists and public health officials monitor the presence and impact of the disease, which kills wildlife and can infect humans.

Public Health and USDA will once again be testing crows, ravens, and blue jays, which -- because they are highly sensitive to WNV -- will help those agencies identify where the virus is present in the state and therefore possible risk to human health. The DNR will focus on testing wild mammals and birds other than crows, jays, and ravens in an ongoing study of whether WNV is having an impact on wildlife populations in the state. DNR Wildlife Health is particularly interested in testing any wild animals showing signs of nervous system disease, especially bats and squirrels, and birds from the following groups: gulls, cranes, hawks and owls, game birds, cormorants, and selected song birds.

People who find wild animal carcasses that are not decomposed or scavenged should call the West Nile Virus hotline (1-800-433-1610) for guidance on whether the animal meets the criteria for WNV testing and where to deliver the carcass. When handling dead wild animals be sure to wear gloves (preferably rubber) or insert your hand into a clean plastic bag, pick up the animal with the bagged hand, invert the bag over the animal and seal it. Cool or cold storage is best. The WNV hotline is also available for information on the disease.

The DNR's WNV program, started in 2002, has tested more than 900 non-corvid birds and mammals representing over 100 species for the mosquito-borne virus. WNV has not been detected in commonly hunted birds such as waterfowl, ruffed grouse, pheasant, turkey or woodcock.

WNV is primarily transmitted to birds and mammals by the bite of an infected mosquito. An estimated 80 percent of people bitten by a WNV infected mosquito experience relatively mild illness although fatalities have occurred, mainly in elderly humans.

Additional information on West Nile Virus and wildlife can be found on the DNR Web site and the DHFS Web site at <http://dhfs.wisconsin.gov/communicable/westnilevirus> - Exit DNR.

Reducing personal risk of WNV involves preventing mosquito bites.

The best way for people to avoid contracting WNV is to take the following precautions to avoid being bitten by mosquitoes:

- Wear protective clothing such as long pants, loose-fitting long-sleeved shirts, and socks;
- Consider using an insect repellent according to manufacturer's directions on the label;
- Apply enough repellent to cover exposed skin and clothing but do not apply insect repellents in enclosed areas and avoid prolonged or excessive use of DEET products. DEET products remain effective for approximately 4 hours;
- Make sure that doors and windows have tightly fitting screens - repair or replace all screens that have tears or holes.

KHS volleyball team loses highly successful coach

BY JUDY HARLOW
Statesman Correspondent
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

One of the most successful coaching runs at Kewaskum High School has come to an end.

After 25 years, Dave Rizzardi has decided its time for him to step down as head girls volleyball coach, but the decision was not one that was reached easily.

"I've had a pretty empty feeling ever since," Rizzardi said this past weekend, referring to the day he tendered his resignation the final week of school.

"With the 25-year celebration (last October)... I think that, combined with how my body feels, these were the keys," Rizzardi, who may have to undergo hip replacement surgery within the next year, said. "I like milestones ... If I continued, I would probably want to go to 30. I don't know if I could physically make it to 30."

Rizzardi, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, came to Kewaskum to teach agriculture. He first served as an assistant coach, then took over the head job in 1980 when Jane Vesper decided to give up the post.

Over the years, his teams went to the WIAA State Volleyball Tournament twice, first in 1986 and then in 1991. Indian teams also captured six conference titles under Rizzardi's direction. They came in 1985, 1995, 2000, 2003 and 2004. All came in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference, which Kewaskum was assigned to during the 1979-80 season.

The last two titles were especially gratifying for Rizzardi, who said, "That's kind of the empty part. I'd like to go for three in a row."

Kewaskum finished a perfect 14-0 in the EW last fall, led by seniors Danielle DeGroot, Amanda Magnus and Briana Bastian. DeGroot was the team's MVP. She and Bastian were on the first team in the all-EWC balloting.

The veteran coach said there are plenty of talented players returning this season, but the constant pain he experiences while standing during the practices prompted the decision.

When Rizzardi looks back over his volleyball career —

Rizzardi was also a very successful weight coach in the track program and he tried his hand as KHS girls basketball coach for a couple years — there are many satisfying moments.

"The two trips to state ... these were fun, and the conference titles," Rizzardi said.

And he leaves knowing the program is in good hands.

"I do feel we're at a good point where I think we can make a change," Rizzardi said, praising his assistant coach Kelly Marquardt and noting, "We have a great middle school program (led by Mary Holfeltz). It's an automatic feeder program."

"I'm still kind of a neutral person on club volleyball," Rizzardi said, referring to the fact many club players miss out on participating in other sports to concentrate on volleyball. He does see, however, it has helped to develop the skills of a lot of his players.

"When I started, it (the program) wasn't strong," Rizzardi said, but with hard work by the girls and the coaches, that all changed to a point where "There has always been some success," either winning a regional or finishing high in the conference standings.

Kewaskum also has two women currently playing at the collegiate level. Jill Wittmann will be a sophomore on the UW-Stevens Point team, and DeGroot, a standout on the 2004 squad, is going to St. Norberts College where she is planning to play.

Rizzardi promises to be on hand to help out with the program. "It's not like I'm going away," he said, adding, "We have all summer to put the new people in place."

Shea homers twice, leads Indians to 16-6 triumph

Dan Shea, a sophomore infielder on the Kewaskum High baseball team, made coach Dave Donath look like a genius Friday night in the Indians' game against Sheboygan Falls.

Because Shea has been hitting the ball so well this spring, Donath slipped him down in the lineup one spot, from No. 2 to No. 3, thinking the move would produce some more runs.

The plan certainly worked out. Shea went 2x3, hitting a pair of home runs, his third and fourth of the year, helping the Indians break out of a three-game losing streak. They pasted visiting Sheboygan Falls, 16-6, in a game shortened to five innings because of the 10-run "mercy rule."

"We did a little bit of moving," Donath said. "We moved Dan down to three and brought Casey Scheel from the No. 9 spot up to two."

The first of Shea's homers was a solo shot in the third inning, and Donath said it was hit to left-center field. "It went high over the pool fence."

The second, a three-run shot, one came in the Indians' three-run fourth. "The wind held it up a bit, but it cleared the fence (in left field) by 20 feet," the coach said, indicating Shea is currently batting in "the real high .400s. I would guess he's in the neighborhood of 30 hits already in 16 games."

After making the statement, Donath checked his score book and found out he was very close ... Shea officially has 26 hits.

Josh Meyer and Ross Stockhausen also had good nights at the plate. Stockhausen went 3x3, with three doubles for four RBI. The first baseman also scored three runs.

One of Stockhausen's doubles was the big blast in the fifth when the Indians scored eight runs on four hits, a couple of walks, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

Josh Meyer added two hits and four trips to the plate, and he picked up the pitching win, holding the Falcons scoreless in the fourth and fifth innings.

Sophomore Matt Parrent started and went two innings. He gave up three hits and two earned runs. Abe Foerster came on in relief. He gave up four runs and four hits in one inning of mound duty, then Meyer finished up in grand style.

Donath was very pleased to see his team was a little more efficient in this game, leaving just four runners on base. "That's a lot better," he said.

With the victory, the Indians improved to 6-5 in the EWC and 10-6 overall.

When asked who is leading the conference standings, Donath said, "I think Campbell and Plymouth are tied." There are no weekly results sent out by EWC officials, and Donath said, no results are updated on any conference web site. "If there is, I'm not sure where it is."

Kewaskum hosted Campbell on Tuesday and is at Roncalli tonight (Thursday) and at Plymouth on Friday.
