Regal Ware sells factory, closes store

By Andrew Kuehl Statesman Managing Editor akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- Once again, locally based Regal Ware Inc. producers of cast aluminum and stainless steel cookware will close their popular outlet store. The closure comes after the company sold their factory here on Second Street. Regal Ware offices on Reigle Drive were not part of the deal.

The $3 million sale became official on Tuesday, November 21. Roadster LLC, owner and president Chris Coakley, says that he sees a lot of potential in the community for growth. Coakley owns 14 buildings with 2.7 million in combined square feet.

He already has leases with three tenants in the former Regal Ware factory. He says he became interested in the property because of its close proximity to highways leading to major cities in Wisconsin. He also believes that the way the building was added on to over the years makes it very easy to divide the building for additional industrial tenant start-ups in the incubation stage. The 584,810 square foot building has 21 loading docks and five drive-ins.

Regal Ware will lease 112,000 square feet of the building where its cast aluminum foundry is located. Regal Ware currently has about 40-50 people working in that department.

However, Regal Ware has closed its outlet store located in the former factory. The store opened just over a year ago on October 1, 2006 after a seven-year hiatus. Deb Ramthun of Regal Ware, stated that they are seeking relocation possibilities but it is unknown at this time when the store will re-open.

Utility Buildings Corporation moved into the building on November 15. The company is a pre-fabricated equipment-building manufacturer. They specialize in power and communication systems packaging, modular and transportable building systems. They are moving to Kewaskum from Franksville in Racine County. The company retains six employees and is five years old.

APM LLC took residency on December 1. Information on their company could not be obtained.

Coakley's other company C. Coakley Relocation Systems will also use space inside the building and operate a satellite office there. The company specializes in full service moving and storage services for residential and commercial customers.

The company has offices in Sheboygan and Madison and also offers warehousing services.

School Board approves new name for field

By Andrew Kuehl Statesman Managing Editor akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- The Kewaskum Board of Education approved naming the high school's football field and track a complex. That complex will be named after a former principal and coach.

Only a handful of people, mostly supporting the measure, turned out to voice their feelings on the name change. Supporters asked the board to name the complex the "Doc" Mitchell Athletic Complex.

He was a district employee for 39 years and is credited with being the district's first athletic director.

This was the second attempt to name the field in Mitchell's honor. In 1994 a number of community members asked to have the board consider Mitchell for the honor.

The Board of Education at that time drafted a policy stating that any naming of district property be a unanimous vote. After the policy was drafted, the board did not have enough votes to get the measure approved and the action died.

Changes were made to the policy in 2006 with new members on the board. Current board president John Kenworthy then worked with the policy committee to rework the policy.

The new policy, removing the unanimous vote, was approved by the school board in May of 2006 with board member Jean Goeden abstaining.

On a motion by Tammy Eickerman and seconded by Bill Kesting, the naming was approved. Stephen Jensen, Goeden and Bruce Braidigan voted against the proposal.

Holiday gifts can be Something Special from Wisconsin

Looking for a fresh gift idea that celebrates "Made in Wisconsin"? Want to keep holiday dollars circulating at home? Tired of conforming to "big boxes"? Consider giving Something Special from Wisconsin this holiday and throughout the year.

"Supporting Wisconsin artisans and businesses is only one of the many benefits of giving "Something Special" for the holidays," said Nicole Reese, the state's 59th Alice in Dairyland. "The quality of Wisconsin-made products sends a warm greeting to friends and family."

Companies carrying the Something Special from Wisconsin logo have been certified as having the majority of their product ingredients or services coming from Wisconsin.

Reese kicked off a twoweek campaign beginning Dec. 4 to highlight Something Special from Wisconsin gift ideas. From fine wines to scented soaps, classy cheesecakes to tasty sausage, hot mustard to pure maple syrup, the variety of gift ideas is inspiring. More than 250 Wisconsin companies carry the prestigious logo.

"Every dollar spent on locally-made products and services contributes to a strong Wisconsin economy," according to Rod Nilsestuen, secretary of the state Department of Agriculture, Trade, and Consumer Protection. "Purchasing Wisconsin products positively impacts the quality of life we enjoy in both rural and urban communities."

Visit www.savorwisconsin.com for a directory of Something Special from Wisconsin companies. Many have Web sites where you can buy direct. Or look for products carrying the distinctive logo in your favorite

SynergyHealth and Aurora Health Care to explore joint cancer center

WEST BEND- Synergy-Health and Aurora Health Care today announced that they have entered into discussions about establishing a new stateof-the-art comprehensive cancer center to serve the greater Washington County community.

The new center would combine the medical oncology expertise of Aurora's Vince Lombardi Cancer Clinic with the expertise of St. Joseph's Hospital's medical and radiation oncology departments at The Alyce and Elmore Kraemer Cancer Care Center. It would also provide Washington County residents access to some of the most promising cancer research and treatments available nationally.

The new cancer center would be operated as a joint venture between Synergy-Health and Aurora, Washington County's two leading health care providers.

"These discussions are driven by a mutual desire to better meet the needs of cancer patients in Washington County," said Gregory A. Banaszynski, chief executive officer of SynergyHealth. "We are looking to create a local example of the national trend toward more cooperation and collaboration among health care providers, especially in specialized areas like cancer care."

Donald J. Nestor, Aurora's

Donald J. Nestor, Aurora's executive vice president and chief operating officer, said, "By combining our resources, we would be able to offer a higher level of cancer care in Washington County. We look forward to working with SynergyHealth."

SynergyHealth is a regional health system serving the greater Washington County community. St. Joseph's Hospital, West Bend Clinic, and SynergyHealth Foundation are members of SynergyHealth.

Aurora Health Care is a not-forprofit Wisconsin health care provider and a nationally recognized leader in efforts to improve the quality of health care. Aurora offers services at sites in more than 90 communities throughout eastern Wisconsin.

County's new mourge will open next week

Kelly McAndrews sits in her office at the Washington County Sheriff's Office. McAndrews began with the county a year and a half ago as Medical Examiner. She states she is excited to see the county moving forward with plans for the new morgue.

By Andrew Kuehl

Statesman Managing Editor akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

WEST BEND- A cost saving measure for taxpayers in Washington County is nearly complete. That plan will see the county begin operating a morgue starting January 1. Washington County's Medical Examiner couldn't be more pleased.

Medical Examiner Kelly McAndrews stated the need for in-house morgue services has become eminent, and her office began investigating the idea in the early parts of 2006. "At the rate Washington County has grown, placing the morgue in a pre-existing county facility was the best option. Through the development of the new morgue, Washington County is ensuring proper procedures associated with death investigations, and protecting the dignity of the deceased," she stated.

Previously, the county held a contract with Phillip Funeral Homes in West Bend and Slinger to store and transport bodies from death scenes. That contract is set to expire on December 31, 2006. The current contract cost taxpayers $33,000 annually for morgue fees, not including transportation fees.

"Weresearched what other counties did for their services. We saw a lot of counties had their own cooler area," stated McAndrews. That's when she learned about an abandoned refrigeration storage unit in the basement of The Samaritan Health Center.

That cooler was once used for storage of the bulk assistance program from a Federal program. The program ended about 10 years ago, leaving the cooler empty and unused. The County's Public Agency Center Committee, who oversees the Samaritan Health Center, gave it's blessing to remodel the area in October.

Construction on remodeling the 336 square foot area is now nearing completion according to McAndrews. "I'm really excited. This is a new way of doing things in the county. We are coming into a system that a lot of other medical examiner offices are using. It will give us a little more control over how our investigations are done and some storage room so if something big happens we are prepared for it," she asserted.

The facility can accommodate five bodies comfortably, but in the case of a disaster, morè could be stored. External examinations will be done at the morgue, however the contract with Waukesha County to perform autopsies will continue. Transportation services were bid out and two contracts were awarded to Patton Transport, who provides services for Milwaukee and Ozaukee Counties and as a backup, JLB Services will also provide transportation services in the event Patton cannot respond. This year, the county will spend over $17,000 on transportation of bodies. With the new transportation system, McAndrews is hoping to save at least $6,000.

entire morgue project is expected to cost $23,000.

McAndrews states the facility is just about ready for service. The refrigeration, electrical updates and plumbing are complete. Flooring is being installed this week. The facility is projected to be completed by December 19.

"This is such a great collaborative effort, it's exciting that Washington County will now have it's own morgue," she said.

There are no plans to move the Medical Examiner's office from it's present home in the Sheriff's Office.

Who is the County Medical Examiner?

Kelly McAndrews is Washington County's second medical examiner. She succeeded Pam Monroe on July 1, 2005. The Medical Examiner is a hired position that replaced the elected county coroner. Prior to beginning her career as medical examiner, McAndrews was a police officer in Menomonee Falls. She was also a special deputy with The Washington County Sheriff's Department. She began her career in law enforcement as a police officer with the Oneida Tribal Police Department.

While employed in law enforcement, McAndrews says she took an interest in death investigations. "I took a course in homicide in death investigation in Milwaukee and aced all the tests." she said cheerily.

She then began working on natural death investigations in Menomonee Falls. She holds a Bachelors Degree in criminal justice administration and is currently pursuing a law degree.

McAndrews is assisted by a deputy medical examiner, Kari Wellner, who was hired in August of 2006. The office has five other on-call medical examiners that assist the two.

KEWASKUM- Since Joanne Oneska has been the town of Farmington's clerk, she's added over 1,000 people to the list of those she serves. But, she says, it's those people and other town residents that have kept her smiling the last 25 years she has served as their go-to woman for anything to do with town business.

Oneska got her start in town government after then town chairman the late, Jack Theusch saw himself in need of a clerk. Her husband. Wayne, who is now deceased, was working with Theusch, at the Sheriff's Department.

Prior to becoming town clerk, she was employed as a purchasing clerk at Gehl Company in West Bend. Oneska says she likes to keep her plate full. She also worked at a bridal shop doing alterations, as a Friday night waitress at Bertram's (El Rey's) and has also worked for the City of West Bend in the Park and Recreation Department.

Oneska says she's seen a lot of changes in the last 25 years. She remembers having to hand-write minutes, whereas now she uses a laptop computer, making her job much easier. Time she puts into the job now has at least doubled for her. She says many more reports are filed now.

Most notably the dollars for the township was $204,903. The 2006 budget was $650,893. As the town has grown, the amount of money needed to run the township has gone up, however, the amount of money received from the state has gone down. In '81 the state kicked in $75,381 and in '06 they gave $60,645. When she started, the job in 1981, the entire budget

clerk was an elected position. She says from 1981 until 2000 she never faced opposition, something she's very proud of. In 2000 she explains, the town board decided that it would be best to make the clerk an appointed position.

She says the way people get their information has also drastically changed. It used to be she had to mail or handdeliver agendas, minutes and other township proceedings. Today, all residents need to do is hop on their computers and visit the township website and it's all there. Many of those added reports can also be filed electronically by email.

Spring and Summer are the busiest time of year she explained. After becoming the town's zoning administrator in 1986, it is her duty to issue the township's building permits. "I get calls from 6 a.m. until 10 at night, I don't like them after nine, but people still call," she stated.

Oneska says she feels very fortunate to have worked with some very good town boards." After the 2007 election, she will, have worked with 14 different boards of supervisors and five different town chair-

In her free time, she enjoys Green Lake, which is basically her back yard. She especially enjoys time there with her grandchildren. She is also looking forward to her annual trip to Fort Myers Beach, Florida. The trip is taken every year with her old bowling team.

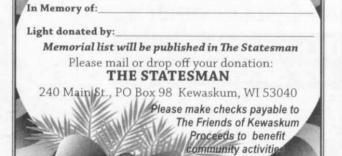

Oneska and her husband had two children, a daughter Jenny who is married to Braedy. Two grandchildren, Rayden, 4, and Hannah, 2, are the joys of her life. A son, Jeff passed away 10 years ago.

Marian College granted graduate and undergraduate degrees in August. Heather Amerling, Lomira, earned a master of arts in education, educational technology

Marian College is a Catholic applied liberal arts college located in Fond du Lac, Wis. The college offers more than 50 undergraduate and graduate programs at its main campus, and a variety of adult accelerated-degree programs in facilities throughout Wisconsin. The size of the College permits a very favorable student-faculty ratio, one of the lowest among Wisconsin colleges. Marian's six academic divisions offer programs of study designed to meet a full range of pre-professional and professional academic needs. The primary divisions and programs include business, education, the arts, sciences, nursing and technology. Marian College is a community committed to learning, dedicated to service and social justice, and joined together by spiritual traditions.

Kewaskum Juniors plan anniversary celebration

A volunteer organization in the community for 40 years is something to be proud of! Much has been accomplished over time through volunteer efforts and hours.

Members of the Kewaskum Junior Woman's Club are currently organizing a 40th anniversary celebration commemorating their chartering with the world's largest volunteer organization, the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

During this day and age, we are a very mobile society. While every effort has been made to send a personal invitation to past and current Junior members, we know someone may have been inadvertently missed. Please don't take offense! We want you to join us!

The anniversary celebration is Sunday, January 14, 2007, at Hon-E-Kor Country Club. A social time will be held from 12:30 until 1:00 p.m. Lunch will be served at 1:00 p.m. with entertainment and program to follow. The cost is $17.00.

If you have not received an invitation and would like to attend, please call Louise at 626-4291 or Karen at 626-2816.

Women's Club to hold house decorating contest

The Kewaskum Women's Club will again be touring the village on Wednesday, December 30th seeking four plaque winning homes. They will be looking for originality, religious content (if this is your decoration theme) and representation of the holiday theme.

Please have your decorations lit by 6 p.m. on this night if you would like to be included in the judging. The committee looks forward to choosing your home.

Notification of winners will occur shortly after the judging and plaques will be awarded. A picture will be taken and will appear in The Statesman.

Good luck to all!

Community Events For

December 15 - 22

DECEMBER 15, 16, 17 — THE "LIVING NATIVITY" is BACK!!! After a five year break the St. John's Living Nativity is coming back to West Bend. It is an outdoor presentation of the activities surrounding the birth of Christ. Share in the wonder of our Savior's birth at St. John's Lutheran Church 809 S. 6th Ave. in West Bend. Dec. 15, 16, 17 from 5-8 p.m. Performance repeated every 20 minutes. Have a Blessed Holiday Season!

DECEMBER 22 – WINTER SOLSTICE NIGHT HIKE, 7:00 pm - 8:30 pm (Friday) Zillmer Trails (located off of Hwy SS between Hwy G and Hwy 67 near New Prospect). Gather around the fire as we share some traditions of the longest night of the year. We will then travel through the dark woods to discover what animals are awake and braving the cold of a winter night. This program is best for families with children over the age of six years.

To be included in the Community Events, FREE OF CHARGE, please submit your event prior to our 3 pm Monday deadline, at our office at 240 Main Street, Kewaskum; e-mail — ckuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com or on the web www.kewaskumstatesman.com, PLEASE NOTE, businesses offering specials or events for profit are not accepted. KMS choir concert Dec. 19

There is a mountain of snow and chilly temperatures outside, but in Kewaskum Middle School on Tuesday, December 19, there will be lots of warmth as the KMS choirs perform songs of the season.

The sixth-grade choir will begin the evening with a lively tune called "It's Christmas Time!" and a medley of "Snow" songs.

The seventh grade choir will perform the stately "Carol of the Drum" and a crisp version of "Winter Wonderland".

The eighth-graders will continue the festivities with a selection of carols and the heart-warming "Do You Hear What I Hear".

The KMS Swing Choir will conclude the choral celebration with "Santa Claus Is Coming To Town". Several students will also sing solos and perform in ensembles.

The concert will be held at 7:00 p.m. in the middle school gym and should be done in less than an hour. The concert is free!

Cochran tours Germany

Jacob and a Thaiwanese exchange student in front of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin.

"Hola!" ("Hello" in Spanish). Yes, I am still in Germany. No, I didn't go to Spain yet. I did go on a tour of Germany. The tour was through Rotex, a club of former Rotary Exchange Students. I was with forty-five other exchange students from around the world. The tour took us through five of Germany's biggest cities, and literally in a circle around the country. There were many great experiences, probably once in a lifetime, and I made many new friendships. All in a matter of ten days during my fall break from school.

The first day was pretty uneventful as we just met and drove to our youth hostel in Hamburg. We didn't get a chance to tour the city until the following day. We saw some historical buildings, the harbor, and a few churches. I took the opportunity to go to McDonalds and eat a hamburger, in Hamburg. Something I have always wanted to do. Next time though, I think I will look for a more local restaurant. Another highlight of Hamburg was seeing a German bachelor party in progress. It was different, in that the point of the bachelor party is to humiliate the groom He had to walk around all day wearing a goofy clown costume trying to sell a bunch of junk. It was pretty funny. We finished off our day in Hamburg by eating pizza at an Italian restaurant and then going back to the hostel.

Day three was in Berlin. We stayed at the Generator Hostel, apparently a very popular one, as there were a lot of interesting people there. That day they also let us loose in the city in groups of five. It is a pretty crazy city, very hustle bustle with a lot of tourists. It was the next day that the Rotex took us to see the general tourist attractions of the city. I was able to see many interesting sites; such as the Brandenburg Gate, a Holocaust Memorial, and the government buildings. The day after this we went to my first German castle near Berlin. It was built in the early nineteenth century and it was beautiful! I thought castles were supposed to be large and daunting!? We were unable to see everything because the estate was so big, and we had to go on to our next city, Dresden.

Dresden was gorgeous. The buildings were large, and made of sandstone and looked majestic by the river and in the city. Many of the buildings were rebuilt after the Second World War to their original form. While we were there in Dresden, so were the presidents of Germany and Russia for a meeting with each other. It made Dresden even more interesting with the snipers on the roofs, and police all over, not to mention all the crowds.

It did stop us from going into a few historical attractions though. They were closed for fear of terrorist attacks during the meeting, especially since the city is notorious for being the home of many neo-Nazis. Well, thankfully nothing like that happened, and we were able to enjoy the splendor of Dresden, Germany.

Our next stop on the Germany tour was close to Weimar, the Buchenwald concentration camp. It was a work camp during the Second World War that housed and labored the Nazi's foes such as gypsies and Jews. It was a solemn event, to see these artifacts of such a gruesome event in history. While many of the buildings had been demolished at this site, I still felt it was a good experience to go see because we have learned so much about it in history class and to see it in person was very unnerving.

The day following the concentration camp we went into the city of Weimar and walked through the streets. Our guides pointed out houses and apartments that some of Germany's most famous authors and artists abided in. We also visited an art museum and an old church in the city. The church was beautiful, and had an intricately carved altar. I am not exactly an art connoisseur, but I enjoyed seeing an original Monet. The rest of the day was a little bit of a blur because we traveled and I mostly slept. All these days of traveling and staying up late were finally catching up to me.

After Weimar we traveled on to our final destination, Munich. We were all pretty excited, having heard so much about Munich, Bavaria. When we drove into the city some of the first things we saw were huge BMW and VW display cases and car lots, and also the Olympic Park from the Munich Games of 1972. The first thing I saw was the famous Glockenspiel, a clock with mechanical dancers that go around a few times a day. We waited for a while but found out the wait would be too long. Throughout the day we saw other landmarks of Munich, including the Olympic Park and one of the new soccer stadiums built for the recent World Cup. What I really liked the most about Munich was the atmosphere.

It was not as busy as Berlin, there was a huge marketplace where we ate, and the people were very friendly. I hope that I can make it back there to visit sometime.

Our tour of Germany was coming to an end. The final day we traveled several hours to where we had started the trip at the train station in Dortmund. It was sad, knowing that we would not see each other for another two months or so. We were all pretty tired so we said our goodbyes and took the trains home slowly departing from one another. The tour had met most of my expectations and created some more hopes. Hopes of traveling some more and learning more about this land, and hopes of my new found friendships that within a year will put me in contact with people in multiple countries around the globe. Maybe that is part of what this whole exchange thing is about Until next time, Jacob Cochran. Oh yes, Fröhliche Weihnachten.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of ROGER KUEHL, who passed away 14 years ago, December

No one can mend the hearts that broke, the day you went away

No one can know the loneliness, and sadness we must

No one can love you as we do.

No one can take your place.

Deeply missed by his family.

IN MEMORY

In memory of ROGER JACAK, SR., who was called

My first Christmas in Heaven

I see the countless Christmas trees around the world below With tiny lights like Heaven's stairs reflecting on the snow.

The sight is so spectacular, please wipe away the tear For I am spending Christmas with Jesus Christ this year.

I hear the many Christmas songs that people hold so dear But the sounds of music can't compare with the Christmas choir

I have no words to tell you. the joy their voices bring, for it is beyond description, to hear the angels sing.

I know how much you miss me. I see the pain inside your heart. But I am not so far away We really aren't apart.

So be happy for me, dear ones, You know I hold you dear. And be glad I'm spending Christmas with Jesus Christ this year.

I sent you each a special gift, from my heavenly home above, I sent you each a memory of my undying love.

After all love is a gift more precious than pure gold. It was always most important in the stories Jesus told Please love and keep each other as my Father said to do. For I can't count the blessing or love he has for each of you.

So have a Merry Christmas and wipe away that tear. Remember, I am spending Christmas with Jesus Christ this year.

PRAYER OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN

(Never known to fail)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven. Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me here you are my Mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (pray three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish it and it will be granted to you. The Christmas Pig
By Kinky Friedman
Simon & Schuster $15.95 163 Pages

What would you do if your very best friend asked you to do something special for her, something that would make her feel really great this holiday season?

You'd do it, wouldn't you? As long as it was legal, you'd probably get it done. That's what friends are for, right?

But if it would get you in trouble, well, that's nothing to snort at. In the new novelette, "The Christmas Pig" by Kinky Friedman, a young boy learns that, even though it might not be easy, friends sometimes save one another's bacon.

Every year, King Jonjo Mayo the First commissions a Christmas nativity portrait to be displayed after Midnight Mass. This year, he's kind of in a bind. No worthy painter has been found, and Christmas is coming up fast. King Jonjo is about to throw a Royal Fit when his advisor, Feinberg, suggests that the King send his knights to find a boy that the locals say is quite talented.

The knights travel far up the northern coastline to a small village where they find a Viking who claims to have found the boyin a basket on a stormy night. The Viking tells the knights that the boy might be the son of mermaids, but right now, the child is being raised by a kindly farmer and his wife. The knights can speak to him, the Viking says, but the boy won't talk back.

You see, the boy – Benjamin – has never been known to utter a word.

Deep inside himself, Benjamin feels no emotion. He's never had a friend. He's never shown affection. People think he's mentally handicapped, but he's not. He's a genius and he completely understands that the King needs his masterpiece within two weeks. Benjamin knows that it must be his greatest work. He realizes that the fate of the farm rests upon the stroke of the sable.

Returning to his studio, Benjamin faces a blank canvas. He's discouraged, until he hears a soft, friendly voice. It's the small pig from the back corner of the barn, and she says her name is Valerie.

Inspired, Benjamin begins work on his painting. He and Valerie strike up a friendship, and Benjamin finds a voice that only Valerie hears. Then Benjamin hears something that terrifies him: when the portrait is done, the king's men want to please their sire with a roast pig.

And the kindly farmer just happens to have one.....

Author Kinky Friedman missed gaining the office of the governor of Texas last month, but that's okay. Governors don't always have time to pen charming novels like this one. "The Christmas Pig" is a quick read - something you can finish in a night or less - and it deftly mixes politics, love, friendship, Friedman-style humor, and a darn fine holiday lesson in a story that will make you smile. In short, this is a book you should jump into, whole-hog.

Pick up a copy of "The Christmas Pig" and share. Get one for your best friend, too. It'll make her squeal with glee.

Year-end tax moves can pay big

The month of December generally has most people thinking about shopping and making their Holiday plans. But it's also a great time to take actions that can help you fare much better come tax time.

"Our '12 Tax Tips of Christmas' are items individuals and businesses need to consider at this time of year," said Tony Jasen, co-host of the Real WealthTM Radio Show. "These tips can help you build Real WealthTM by claiming legitimate deductions or implementing simple strategies that are often overlooked or forgotten."

'We're not certain that most tax accountants will keep you informed on these cost-saving tips," adds Jim Silbernagel, the program's other co-host. "Our radio program, Real WealthTM Radio heard in West Bend on Saturday mornings from 11 a.m. - 12 noon and Sunday mornings from 8 a.m-9 a.m. on AM 1470 WBKV, helps people with a comprehensive approach to personal finances. Year-end tax planning like this is just one step people need to take when it comes to their financial health."

Here are the '12 Tax Tips of Christmas':

- 1. Charge deductible expenses such as charitable contributions and medical expenses on a credit card before December 31. These expenses become a 2006 deduction even though you don't pay them until 2007 and you may qualify for incentives provided by the credit card company.
- 2. Estimated tax payments since your last Wisconsin estimated tax payment is due on January 15, 2007, paying it by December 31 it will become an itemized deduction for 2006.
- 3. If you are a W-2 wage earner who has received a large capital gain, ask your employer to take a larger withholding on your last paycheck before the end of the year. This will help prevent an underpayment penalty in 2007
- 4. Exhaust any flexible spending accounts (medical, dental, etc.) before the end of the year. Take advantage of these monies rather than losing them, and consider now your deductible contribution for 2007.
- 5. Consider doubling up on real estate taxes and charitable contributions. Many senior citizens don't have many itemized deductions because they don't have a mortgage payment. By doubling up on the real estate taxes and charitable contributions they can put themselves into a situation where they can itemize tax deductions at least every other year.
- Clean your garage, attic or basement of unwanted items and donate them to your favorite charity for a deduction before December 31.

- 7. Major gifts such as large contributions of cash to your children can total up to $12,000 per child without affecting gift or estate taxes or increase it to $60,000 when using a college 529 savings plan for your children and grandchildren.
- 8. Maximize contributions to your deductible IRAs or retirement accounts that your employer may offer you. Every dollar you put into a qualified retirement account before December 31 is a dollar that you won't be taxed on and you may even qualify for tax credit.
- 9. Consider converting regular IRAs to Roth IRAs. With a regular IRA you have to pay taxes at the time any funds are distributed. With a Roth conversion IRA, you pay a tax at the time of conversion but you pay no further taxes as the IRA continues to grow tax free until the money is eventually distributed.
- 10. Small business owners can help themselves by making key purchases (office supplies, equipment, etc.) before December 31. Pre-buying accelerates business expenses and you can take the full deduction because you've expensed the money.
- 11. Small businesses should note section 179 of the IRS tax code which allows small businesses to buy up to $108,000 worth of equipment. Buy this year (even if they are financed over time) and you can write it off against your taxable income.
- 12. Bottom line, don't go it alone. Visit with a comprehensive advisor to determine if these strategies or others are appropriate for you.

The Real WealthTM Radio Show, featuring Jim Silbernagel and Tony Jasen, is a comprehensive financial talk show gaining amazing popularity in Wisconsin. This can be attributed in large measure to the fact that this show provides good, sound financial advice in terms that anyone can easily understand. Wisconsin's only statewide, homegrown Real WealthTM Advisor Network now has a total of 14 radio affiliates.

BOURBON CHERRY BUTTER WITH ORANGE

Serving Notes: Use it with pork, ham, duck and turkey or try it baked inside an acorn squash or tossed with carrots, beets and sweet potatoes. It's also wonderful as a spread on bread, rolls or muffins.

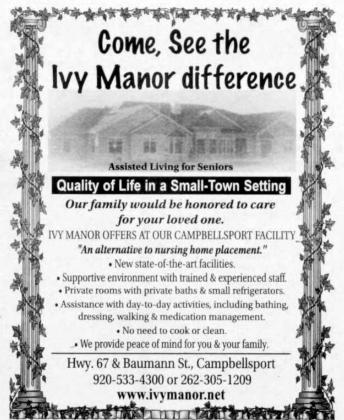

1/4 cup bourbon1/2 cup dried cherries*1 cup (2 sticks) salted butter, room temperature

2 Tbsp. orange zest, freshly grated

2 Tbsp. confectioners' sugar, or to taste

Optional: 1 Tbsp. orange or angostura bitters or additional bourbon

- 1. In a small bowl, soak the cherries in bourbon, stirring occasionally, until bourbon is almost absorbed. This will take 2 to 12 hrs. (To speed the process, lightly heat the cherries in bourbon, but cool completely before adding to butter.)
- Place the butter in a medium mixing bowl and with an electric mixer (fitted with the paddle) or wooden spoon, beat until light and fluffy. Scrape down the sides.
- Add the soaked cherries, zest, sugar and bitters or additional bourbon (if using) and beat to incorporate, scrapping sides of the bowl with a rubber spatula as needed.
- Scrape into a small bowl, serving crock or butter mold and cover tightly; or shape into a long roll in grease-proof paper (plastic, wax or parchment) for storing and slicing as needed.

St. Francis Bank out, Mid-America Bank in

By Andrew Kuehl Statesman Managing Editor akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- Customers of St. Francis Bank will soon see a new sign on their local branches in the area. Mid-America Bank, who purchased the assets of the bank in 2003, says that the new year will bring finishing touches on some changes for the company

On December 1 2003 MAF Bancorp based in Clarendon Hills, Il acquired 23 branches of St. Francis Bank. That company operates 82 branches of Mid-America Bank through the Chicagoland area. They have assets totaling $11.5 million.

Holly Hughes, of Mid-

America Bank, articulated that customers will be unaffected by the change. "When Mid-America Bank acquired the St. Francis branches, all accounts were converted to Mid-America accounts," she stated. She said the reason the St. Francis Bank name has been maintained was because of the rich history afforded by the company.

St. Francis Bank customers could see sign changes inside and out taking place right now. Hughes believed that all changes and transitions should be complete by the beginning of January 2007.

for longtime customers of St. Francis Bank in Kewaskum. In 1997 the bank changed its name to St. Francis Bank after St. Francis Bank purchased the branch in November of 1994 from M&I Bank who operated under the Bank Wisconsin name. Prior to that M&I Bank purchased Valley Bancorporation who held the holdings of Valley Bank.

Valley Bank came to Kewaskum after buying out the holdings of The Bank of Kewaskum in 1973. The Bank of Kewaskum was the village's first bank, being started in 1904 by the Rosenheimer Family.

St. Francis Bank was founded in the Milwaukee suburb of its namesake in

Borland becomes CSCS certified

Rachel Borland of Kewaskum has become certified as a Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist (CSCS) by the NSCA Certification Commission. The CSCS certification is for professionals who design and implement strength training and conditioning programs for athletes in a team setting.

To earn the CSCS credential Borland passed a written exam that was prepared by experts in the strength training and conditioning profession. The exam consisted of two sections, Scientific Foundations and Practical/ Applied and has a total of 190 questions. Typically, 65.5% of individuals who sit for the CSCS exam pass. By passing the CSCS exam, Borland has obtained the first nationally accredited strength training and conditioning credential.

"The CSCS program encourages a higher level of competence among practitioners, which, in turn, raises the quality and safety of the strength training and conditioning programs ad-Borland of sis become certified Strength in Specialist e NSCA Certiminission. The ministered by those who are CSCS certified," said Dr. Tom Baechle, CSCS, *D; NSCA-CPT, *D; Executive Driector of the NSCA Certification Commission.

The CSCS program was established in 1985 as a way of identifying individuals who possess the knowledge and skills needed to competently train athletes, and is the only strength and conditioning credential that has been nationally accredited since 1993. To earn national accreditation by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies (NCAA), the NSCA Certification Commission demonstrated the ability to administer examinations that effectively discriminate between qualified and unqualified individuals. Today. there are more than 19,000 CSCS certified professionals throughout the world.

DAYS GONE BY

25 Years Ago

December 11, 1981

In a move that will more than double their store size, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jaeger of Jaeger Sewing Center, have purchased the former K & R Carpeting building on Main Street in Kewaskum. Jaeger said they are presently working in the new store and hope to begin moving after Christmas. He hopes the store will be open and ready for business by the first of the year.

Norbert Thull and William Volm of Route 2, Kewaskum, were honored as the 1981 outstanding conservation farmers for 1981. Bannasch's debut spoiled by Plymouth guards

BY JUDY HARLOW Statesman Correspondent

Every coach wants to win his first game, but it didn't happen for young Bobby Bannasch, whose Kewaskum Indians had a jittery start last Friday night against Plymouth, leading to a 56-41 loss.

The host Indians only scored three points in the first eight minutes of the game and were quickly behind one of the quality teams in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference.

"I think a lot of it was nervousness, playing the first game in front of a home crowd," Bannasch said Monday, reporting this was the Panthers' third game of the year, so they already had more experience under their belts.

"It was just kind of an up-hill battle," Bannasch said, noting the Panthers were able to maintain a 10-point advantage throughout the second quarter, then went up 27-14 at intermission.

The second half, we showed improvement," Bannasch said, indicating there was better execution, so, "We cut it to seven at the end of the third quarter."

Plymouth had an answer for the Indians' run, however, and the answer was successful 3-point goals.

"Then they hit a bunch of threes," Bannasch went on. Plymouth wound up with five, 3-point goals, including two by Logan Dellger, a pair by Cody Comerford, and one other one by Clay Comerford.

The Comerford twins combined for 30 of the Panthers' points, while Dellger chipped in with 13.

Our game plan was to shut down Doebert. He's their six-foot-seven guy. He only had two points, so we were successful there," Bannasch said, but the Panther guards certainly picked up the slack.

Kewaskum had two players in double figures, Matt Parrent with 13 and Casey Scheel with an even dozen. Those two have been fixtures on the team for the past two seasons, and Bannasch is depending on them to be the leaders and scorers this year.

Jon Holt also showed he can compete at the varsity level. The 6-1 junior chipped in with nine points and helped out on the boards where Kewaskum was close to a draw with Plymouth.

reported Bannasch Kewaskum had 11 defensive rebounds and eight on the offensive end of the court, while the winners came away with 24 total boards.

I give a lot of credit to Holt and Matt. They did their jobs boxing out," Bannasch said, praising the two tallest players on his squad.

One area that is going to need improvement very quickly is getting some scoring from the reserves. In this game, only the Indian starters scored, and Bannasch said he talked to a couple of the younger players afterward, telling them not to be timid and to take some shots.

"Plymouth is an excellent team. We have a chance to play them again," Bannasch said, confident the next time the two teams meet (on Jan. 26) the game will be closer.

And was Bannasch nervous about his first varsity game? "Yeah, I was nervous. It took me a while to settle down and get used to things and the speed of the game," the firstyear coach said, confident he will be more relaxed when the Indians travel to New Holstein on Friday

KHS wrestlers open the season with a bang

BY JUDY HARLOW Statesman Correspondent

So far, so good ... very good in fact.

After its first two outings, the Kewaskum High wrestling team is already 5-1, and four of the Indians are off and running with 6-0 starts.

Kewaskum opened the season on Nov. 30th with a convincing 51-23 victory over host New Holstein.

Two days later, the Indians were at the annual Lomira Dual Meet Tournament, and they fell just two points short of emerging with the championship trophy.

The host Lions nipped Kewaskum 37-36 to successfully defend the title they also won in 2005.

"We lost a close one to Lomira," KHS coach Dennis Aupperle said, reporting his team had two other close matches, including a 39-36 decision over Homestead and a 36-31 victory over Berlin.

The Indians won convincingly over Cedar Grove by a score of 40-23 and smothered Sheboygan South, 58-21.

"Overall we wrestled really well," Aupperle said, noting four of his Indians were undefeated on the day.

The first to take a title was 112-pound Andrew Haugen, who improved to 6-0 with his five victories, which included four pins.

Senior Eric Ogi, who placed fourth in the Division 2 State Tournament last February, also went 5-0 and improved to 6-0 with three pins and a pair of forfeits.

Ogi is currently wrestling at 145 pounds.

At 189, Jake Turowski is off to a good start. He recorded four pins and was awarded one forfeit to boost his season record to 6-0, while sophomore P.J. Krueger looked solid, pinning two opponents, shutting one out by a score of 6-0 and taking two forfeits.

About the match at New Holstein, what Aupperle liked best is how aggressive his Indians were. "Overall we were aggressive, which was nice to see," he said. "With quite a few faces out there, you don't know what to expect until you get that first match in. Seven pins was nice to see ... the kids were very aggressive out there.'

Haugen, Mason Smith (140), Ogi, freshman Cody Seibel (160), Cody Kerr (171), Turowski and Krueger all pinned their opponents.

The most exciting match came at 125 where Stephan "Bud" Kattar found himself far behind at the end of the second period but came back to Stephan came back from a 10-1 deficit to win 12-11," Aupperle said. "We have some young kids who have plenty of experience. They are just going to need some mat time to get them headed in the right direction."

Lady Indians play better ball vs. Port and Plymouth

BY JUDY HARLOW Statesman Correspondent

Better scoring, better rebounding, better defense.

Coach Jeff Gosse saw improvement in all these areas by members of his Kewaskum High girls basketball team last week.

The Indians did not win either of their games against Port Washington and Plymouth, but the scores were respectable.

On Thursday night, the host Panthers came out on top 46-23, and Tuesday night, the Indians scored 20 points in the second half, eventually losing to the Port Pirates by a score of 50-28.

"We're getting there, slowly but steadily," Gosse said about the two games, which give the Indians a record of 0-

The Plymouth game was the first of 14 Eastern Wisconsin Conference games Kewaskum will be involved in this season, and the Panthers had just a little too much size and experience for the Indi-

"We didn't match up well with them," Gosse said, reporting this was especially true about Panther Emily Nowicki, who stands 6-feet (6-0) tall and has plenty of bulk to go with her height. "It's a tough matchup for us at this point."

After Nowicki scored six points in the first quarter, the Indians started to concentrate on her. "We took away her inside game," Gosse said. "The trouble is Alice West drained three, threes.

West led the Panthers with 17 points, including three 3point goals.

By half, Plymouth was holding a 20-point lead, then Gosse challenged his girls to play better defense.

"They had 31 (points) at half-time. I told the girls, didn't want them (Panthers) getting 50," Gosse said, pleased the goal was reached and pleased to see the Indians much closer to the Panthers than the difference of a year ago. "I think last year they won by sixty."

Jennie Wicklund paced Kewaskum's scoring with nine points, then came Jessie Liniewski with seven.

The leading rebounder was Nicole Kison, according to Gosse, who said she had seven defensive rebounds and two on the offensive end of the

"She(Kison)reallystepped up her game," the coach said. "Nicole fouled out but they (the fouls) were all working for position underneath.

Gosse went on, "I thought Kelsey Goetsch played good. The Rinzel girls (Stephanie and Megan) played good. After a year off, they are coming around.

Also drawing praise was Liniewski, who, Gosse said, is "coming around as a point guard, learning the cognitive aspect of being a point guard."

Concerning the game against Port, it was the Pirates' good shooting that hurt the

"That was the difference in the game," Gosse said, pointing to Port's outside shooting.

"How many threes did they have?"

The answer was seven, including three by Colleen Kreschel, who helped the Pirates with an even dozen points. Also hitting 12 points was Micky Baranek, while Alyssa Thome was next with 11.

For Kewaskum, Wicklund hit in double figures with 10, coming on the strength of three long-range bombs, and Sam Droese was a point back

"The kids played good de-fense," Gosse said. "We still need to take care of the ball better, especially against other teams' presses. We also need to be more patient on offense" and not take the first shot that Gosse said he has been very pleased with Wicklund's play. "Jenny has been playing very good ball, giving a lot of effort and working really hard," he said.

Kewaskum had 29 rebounds in this game. Droese led the Indians in that department with nine.

"There's improvement. I'm happy. I think the kids are starting to see it (improvement) too," Gosse said.

After a game against Sheboygan Falls on Tuesday (Dec. 13), the Indians are home against New Holstein tomorrow night (Friday)

Kewaskum wrestlers breeze to win number six

BY JUDY HARLOW Statesman Correspondent

No battle to the final bout against Plymouth this time.

The Kewaskum High wrestlers took advantage of six Plymouth forfeits last Friday night en route to a convincing 54-27 victory over the Panthers in an Eastern Wisconsin Conference meet.

With the win, the Indians improve to 2-0 in EWC action, and they are 6-1 overall.

"Their numbers are really down," KHS coach Dennis Aupperle said about Plymouth, which normally has been a power in EWC wrestling but this season has just 15 or so boys out for the sport.

The seven forfeits equated to 36 points, and the Indians also got pins from Andrew Haugen at 103 pounds, Mason Smith at 140 and Ray Wollner at 152

"Nathan (Seitz) got beat by a good kid," Aupperle said, adding, "Mason Smith pinned a good kid (T.J. Spaeth). I think Eric Ogi beat him just 8-3 last year.'

What was a little disappointing was the outcome of Cody Seibel's match against B. Williams. The match ended 8-7 in Williams' favor after Seibel led much of the way. "He should have won. He was winning ... I think it was by four points," Aupperle said.

To gain the win, Williams got a pair of takedowns in the final two minutes against the talented KHS freshman.

"He just needs some time on the mat," Aupperle said about Seibel, who was a Cadet Greco and Folk style champion and a freestyle runner-up in Kids Wrestling.

Seibel, currently 3-4, is from Campbellsport but open enrolled at Kewaskum, according to Aupperle.

Four Indian wrestlers, Haugen, Ogi at 140, Jake Turowski at 189 and P.J.

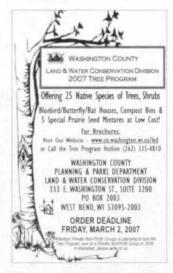

Krueger at 215 are all sporting perfect 7-0 records going into Saturday's Marty Loy Invitational at Fond du Lac, one of the tougher meets in southeastern Wisconsin.

Aupperle and his assistants, Kevin Chambers and Joel Dziedzic, are working with a squad of about 25 athletes. "That's down a little bit," Aupperle said, reporting Ben Boettcher and Matt Buker are currently out with knee injuries, while Steven Kudek is out with mononucleosis. "I'm hoping he's back next Tuesdays (Dec. 19 vs. Kiel)." the coach said, adding Eric Turowski is also recovering from an injury but there was a chance he would return for the Marty Lov event.

During the hustle and bustle of this holday season, remember...Jesus is the reason for the season

Organizations share needs big and small for 2007

By Andrew Kuehl an Managing Edito akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

Christmas The Season seems to afford us all the desire to do things for the common good. During this season we seem to want to give back and reflect on the blessings or gifts we receive. A host of non-profit groups operate throughout the year carrying out their mission or operation, depending on the gifts they receive.

e number of non-agencies throughout of non-The profit Washington County alone, top the hundreds. When you throw churches and schools in the mix you have a four-digit number. Each of these organizations have items on their wish list and unfortunately, despite leaving boxes of cookies and glasses of milk, Santa doesn't seem to drop in to these agencies like he does our homes

Recently, Publications alerted a number of the organizations we work with throughout the year to tell our readers what they need to operate in the coming year. Each was instructed to reply with three to five items they could use. A name and phone number is also given so that any interested reader can make arrangements to give to the organization.

It is hoped that instead of spending hours searching for that hard to buy person that a simple donation to a charity might fulfill that gift need.

The Way Home

by Bonnie Rapkin

Well, it's official. Christmas season is now upon With the Thanksgiving holiday behind us and the after-Thanksgiving sales in fullforce, it's definitely Christmas time once more.

Do those words flood you with feelings of warmth and good cheer? Are you excited about all the sights, sounds and tastes of the season? Or are you perhaps instead, deep down, experiencing at least a slight sense of dread over all the preparations and work that you know needs to be accomplished before the big

After all, most of us already have lives that are completely filled up. As I've mentioned before, even without Christmas rush, we feel like there aren't enough hours in a day. Now, add to your schedule trimming the tree, decorating the house, baking cookies, shopping, shopping, shopping, wrapping, wrapping, wrapping not to mention driving around jam-packed traffic and parking lots fighting for a spot, waiting in endless lines and racing around to countless stores because everyone's out of what you need.

And then, worst of all, having to deal with rude and crabby people, whether it be store clerks or other customers. Indeed, it's no small task to hold onto the "Christmas Spirit."

I'm sorry. I truly don't mean to sound like Ebenezer Scrooge. But unfortunately, I know only all too well that more often than not, this is the reality of what we encounter this time of year.

So, is there anything we can do to combat all of this? Is there some way to hold on to our good intentions and tidings of comfort and joy? Of course there is. And it's as easy as a smile.

Mother Theresa said, (Yes, I know I frequently quote Mother Theresa!) "Every time you smile at someone, it is an action of love, a gift to that person, a beautiful thing." And I've also heard it said that a smile is contagious, so pass it on. It may take a little practice, but the next time you start to feel the frustrations of the season creeping up on you, rather than the "warm fuzzies," think of something about Christmas that fills you with joy. And smile. Say a kind word to that crabby customer or clerk. Mother Theresa also said, "Kind words can be short and easy to speak, but their echoes are truly endless." Not only will you keep your own good feelings intact, but you may just lift someone elses. Now that's a gift of the season! As trite as it may sound,

I like to think of all the Who's down in Whoville, the "small and the tall," who wake up on Christmas morning with no presents at all. They all go outside, join hands, and start singing, "Christmas Day is in our grasp, as long as we have hands to clasp. Christmas Day will always be, just as long as we have we. Welcome Christmas while we stand, heart to heart and hand in hand."

And if that doesn't put a smile on your face, try Linus' words from "A Charlie Brown Christmas," when a frustrated Charlie Brown yells, "Can anyone tell me what Christmas is all about?!!" "Tll tell you," replies Linus. "And there in the country were shepherds abiding their fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. Then the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of God shone all around them, and they were so afraid. But the angel said unto them, "Fear not, for behold, I bring you tidings of great joy. For unto you is born this day in the City of David a savior, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you. You shall find the babe lying in a manger wrapped in swaddling clothes. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, saying, "Glory to God in the Highest, and peace to all people on Earth." (Luke 2:8-14)

Just hear those words in your mind, the next time someone steals your parking spot. And, instead of muttering some "knee-jerk reaction" comment, remember just a few more words of Mother Theresas: "Words which do not give the light of Christ increase the darkness.

May the light of Christ and the peace of the Lord truly be with you this holiday season.

Thanks At Tibe Holidays So before the festivities get underway We'd like to wish you a grand holiday KOHN'S CITGO 516 Main Street, Kewaskum (262) 626-2707 OPEN WEEKDAYS AT 4:00 AM

'Twas the Night Before Christmas

By Clement Clarke Moore

Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there.

The children were nestled all snug in their beds, while visions of. sugar plums danced in their And Mama heads in 'kerchief, and I in my cap, had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap.

When out on the roof there arose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter. Away to the window I flew like a flash, tore open the shutter, and threw up the sash.

The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow gave the lustre of midday to objects below, when, what to my wondering eyes should appear, but a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer.

With a little old driver, so lively and quick, I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick. More rapid than eagles, his courses they came, and he whistled and shouted and called them by name: "Now Dasher! Now Dancer! Now. Prancer and Vixen! On, Comet! On, Cupid! On, Donner and Blitzen! To the top of the porch! To the top of the wall! Now dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!"

As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, when they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky so up to the housetop the courses they flew, with the sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas too.

And then, in a twinkling, heard on the roof the prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my head and was turning around, down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.

He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot, and his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot. A bundle of toys he had flung on his back, and he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.

His

His eyes -- how twinkled! how dimples, His merry! cheeks were like roses his nose like a cherry! His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow, and beard on his chin was as white as the snow. The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth, and the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath. He had a broad face and a little round belly, that shook when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly.

He was chubby and plump a right jolly old elf, and I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself. A wink of his eye and a twist of his head soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work, and filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk. And laying his finger aside of his nose, and giving a nod, up the chimney he

He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle. And away they all flew like the down of a thistle. But I heard him exclaim, 'ere he drove out of sight, "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"

Clement Clarke Moore's famous poem, which he named 'A Visit From St. Nicholas," was published for the first time on December 23, 1823 by a New York ewspaper, The Sentinel. Since then, the poem has been reprinted, translated innumerable into and languages circulated throughout the world.

Moore read the poem to his wife and six children the night he wrote it, and supposedly thought no more about it. But a family friend heard about it and submitted the poem to the newspaper which published it anonymously the following Christmas. Moore's poem immediately caught the attention and imagination of the state, then the nation, and then the world. Finally, in 1844, he included it in a book of his poetry.

The GFWC Kewaskum

Women's Club will be holding their annual Christmas Party at the home of Ruth Schmitt in rural Kewaskum on December 14. Each member brings six Christmas cookies to exchange for the social hour with Christmas music and natural winter beauty scenery at the Schmitt home.

Kewaskum high school seniors Brian Liegl and Nick Bailey have been named as Kiwanis Students for the month of December.

First prize winner in the annual tree decorating contest was won by Kewaskum Middle School with the able assistance of art teacher Lynn Molenda. The tree was located in front of the Kewaskum Post Office. If you looked closely at the tree in front of the Doctor's Inn on Fond du Lac Avenue, you would see up close the decorative ornaments handcrafted by members of the Wayne Crusaders 4-H Club. The ornaments were made out of empty soda cans which were painted white and then faces were painted on with other features. Cookie cutters were also used to outline stars which were cut out of the tops of ice cream containers and then spray painted gold and strung together and placed on the tree as garland.

The Kewaskum Elementary School Just Say No Club members April Lettow, Nicole Braun and Danielle Smolinski wrapped gifts they donated to a family in Washington County. The club purchased gifts with money earned through a candy sale and distributes them to area families at Christmas time. Wayne Elementary's Just Say No Club also played a major role in the gift dona-tion program. Club officers at Wayne include Captain Kristy Asmondy, Secretary Vanessa Dehling, Treasurer Billy Kumrow and Historian Kaitlyn

December 17 & 24, 1976

Santa Claus will be in Kewaskum on December 13 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the new Middle School. There will be no program, but area children, eight and under are invited to say hello to Santa Claus and to receive a bag of Christmas treats. Kewaskum Kiwanians will be on hand to help Santa during his visit.

Dr. R.G. Edwards will retire from medical practice on January 1, 1977. Dr. Edwards who practiced full time from an office in his home, came to Kewaskum February 6, 1932. He celebrated his 71st birthday on Sept. 1. Dr. and Mrs. Edwards have six children, Mrs. Annabelle Tessar, Richard (Arlette) and William (Violet), all of Kewaskum; Ruth (Eldon) Ramthun of Route 2, Campbellsport, Gwen (Jules) Dreher of Kenosha, and Patricia (Dr. Joseph) Darin of Brookfield.

With Christmas only a few days away, the musicians at Kewaskum wish to announce a Christmas Concert on December 22, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the High School Auditorium. Featured on the program will be the Jazz Ensemble playing popular and jazz numbers and the second half of the program will have the Symphonic Band playing traditional and contemporary Christmas music.

Gay Olson and Tom Ryan have been selected as Kiwanis Students of the Month. Gay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Immanuel Olson of Kewaskum and Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ryan of rural Kewaskum.

The Kewaskum XYZ Club (Senior Citizens) enjoyed their dinner and Christmas Party held at the Kewaskum clubhouse on December 14. Ninety-eight people were in attendance.

Holiday greeting ads included those from Kewaskum Realty, Richard Gust Agency, Skybird Paint and Glass, Kettle Moraine Electric, Amerahn, Dennis Family Shoe Store and Fairmont Foods.

Who Turned Out the Light?

By Pastor Kurt Ziemann

Immanuel Lutheran - Town of Scott and St. Stephen's Lutheran - Batavia

Between Immanuel Lutheran Church parsonage, there is a path. By day it is a cheery, refreshing way. Tall pines line the path on both sides. A carpet of needles makes each step soft and noiseless. The wind whispers softly through needles of the forest, and the cool of the place offers shelter from the hot sun. What a path! I can't think of anyone who would dislike such a path. But, ah, this is the path by day.

By night the path becomes a stranger. The eerie stillness and dark shadows are enough to make the most courageous weak. I have heard the sound of wings in the trees. They are mysterious. I have never seen the bird. I have heard rustling in the undergrowth. I have sensed the watching of eyes and immediately I whistle a tune or shake my keys. By night, this path can be a frightening place especially for a five year old boy who refuses to enter except with the urging and strong grip of his father's hand upon his. By night this path can be a place of danger with every step. And yet, I find myself often walking it, unafraid and confident, alone and in the night.

Don't call me courageous. No, courage and bravery have nothing to do with my choice to walk the dark path. It's light. It's the light on the pole down by the driveway that guides me. The path lines up with it. Though it is dark, the light shines like a lighthouse amidst the rocks. It beckons me home. It illuminates my steps, and I don't stumble or stray. The light - it's all about the light at night that chases the darkness away.

We are entering the season of darkness. The days are getting shorter. I must run later now in order to catch the morning sun. No longer is the setting sun in my eyes when I am preaching a sermon in the Saturday evening service. Soon, many of you will be going to work in the dark and coming home in the dark. This fact is brought home by the realization that five months ago we had over fifteen hours of light and today we have just eleven and a half.

Human beings were made to be in the light. In fact, we can't see without it. But something terrible happened. Someone turned off the light. It was the first sin orchestrated by the Prince of Darkness, the very devil himself. This is why so many are so eager to walk the path of life in the dark. Satan has convinced them to step out of the light. He has convinced them that God will not see their deeds. He promises life in darkness. But Satan is a liar.

God's Word says: This is the verdict: Light has come into the world, but men loved darkness instead of light because their deeds were evil. Everyone who does evil hates the light, and will not come into the light for fear that his deeds will be exposed.

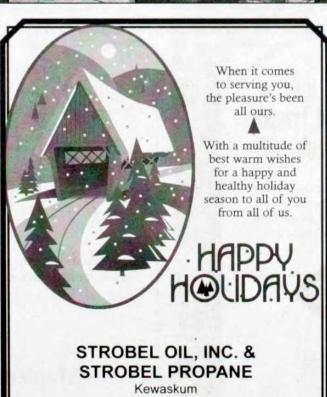

But whoever lives by the truth comes into the light, so that it may be seen plainly that what he has done has been done through God." (John 3:19-21 NIV)

Are you in the light or in the darkness? Is your loved one or the person you work with in the light or in the dark? Darkness is no place to be. Ask the child who is afraid of monsters. Ask the young lady walking through a parking lot late at night. Ask the elderly person who is living alone. And if we were able, ask the person in the darkness of hell. Ask them, and they would tell you - there is no better place to be than in the light.

And this Light has come! Jesus said: "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." (John 8:12 NIV) Jesus has come to shatter the darkness of this world. Jesus has come to expose the evil of Satan and sin. Jesus has come to defeat darkness and bring us into His glorious light.

You know what that means, don't you? There is no need to fear the bump in the night. There is no need to fear him who wishes to turn out your Light. It means that "if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus, his Son, purifies us from all sin." (1 John 1:7 NIV) It means the way to heaven is lit and a glory beyond words awaits us. God is calling you out of the darkness. He longs to bring you into His light. There is no safer place. There is no path better even in the darkest of nights.

Butterball Santas

Makes I doz

1/2 tsp. red

- cup butter, at room temperature
- 2 cup sugar
- Tbsp. milk
- tsp. vanilla extract 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 36 miniature chocolate 1 tube prepared white
- decorator frosting

paste food coloring*

. Preheat oven to 325°F. Using a mixer, beat butter until fluffy. Add sugar; beat until well combined. Beat in milk and vanilla. Beat in flour. If you are not using a heavy duty mixer, it will be necessary to beat in the last of the flour by hand. Remove one cup of dough and set aside.

2. Beat food coloring into remaining dough to make a bright

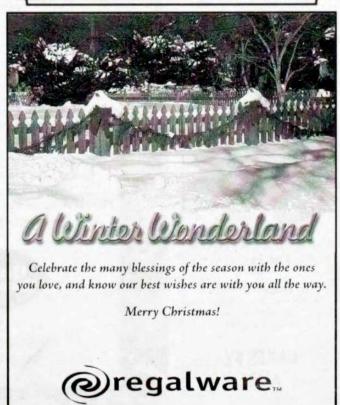

3. Form the plain and red doughs into 12 balls each. With red dough, separate each ball into one 1-in. ball and five 1/2n. balls. With plain dough, separate each of the balls into one 3/4-in. ball and four 1/4-in. balls

4. Shape the Santas: Slightly flatten the 1-in, red ball on an ungreased cookie sheet. This is Santa's "body." Place plain 3/4-in, ball on top of red ball for head; flatten slightly. Attach the four red 1/2-in. balls for arms and legs. Attach the last red ball as a cap on top of Santa's head. Reshape cap slightly to form a friangle. Attach the four 1/4-in. plain balls for Santa's hands and feet. Lightly press the balls against each other so they hold together. Add miniature chocolate chips to face for eyes and nose. Bake 12 to 15 min. or until lightly browned. Remove from oven and leave cookies on baking sheet for 2 min. Remove to racks to cool.

5. Using star tip, squeeze the decorator frosting to form a mustache and beard on Santa's face. Also, form a ball at the tip of his cap and rim at the bottom of his hat.

Christmas Music

By Roxana Robinson

At Christmas, in New York, music is everywhere. It blares though loudspeakers overhead, from the stalwart Salvation Army soldiers, in shops and malls and elevators. It is part of the air, the scene. This music is traditional and familiar, the whole point is that it's familiar, that this is music that reminds you that it's Christmas. We know these formal English verses, solemn ecclesiastical melodies. If we grew up here, we know them all by heart, no matter who we are. And if you know something by heart, it is part of you, you feel you own it. So we've come to own these quiet hushed melodies, sung for centuries in the high dark spaces of English cathedrals. And we own these ancient middleeastern images: bearded men in robes, flocks of sheep in the rocky desert, the camels, the bright stars in the high dark sky. These are ours.

The carols are such a part of the season that yesterday, when I started down the subway stairs at 68th street, as soon as I heard music I knew it was Christmas music. Down on the platform I saw the players: two men in their late forties, playing an accordion and a saxophone. They looked Russian, with pale skin and dark hair. They hadn't shaved that day. The accordion player was plump, with a round face and close-cropped hair. He was sitting down, with a towel over his knees. He wore a sweater with a leather vest over it, and before him, on the pavement, was a leather satchel, open for business. The saxophonist had a square face and longish hair. His black moustache was ragged and thick and dashing. His dark coat was buttoned to his neck, and at his throat a scarf was tightly knotted. On his head was a very black felt hat. His eyes were closed, and he was clasping his instrument to him and leaning into the music.

It wasn't Christmas carols. Often, at this station, there are jazz musicians, and for a moment I tried to make it into jazz. The notes were sliding and lilting, more urgent and engaging than Christmas carols, but it wasn't jazz either. I moved a few steps down the platform, listening, and saw a woman approaching me and them, her face a stony New York mask. I watched her walk over to them and lean down to speak. As she spoke she smiled at them, and dropped a bill into the satchel. When she turned back to the rest of us, the smile still echoed across her features. Everyone on the platform was listening.

The music was quick and melodious, plaintive, yearning. I kept expecting it to slide into "Those Were the Days, My Friends," that rythmic song that makes everyone start longing for Mother Russia no matter where you came from. But it didn't do that. The saxophonist swayed, his black-hatted head cocked, his eyes still closed in sweet contemplation. Listening, I next began to think it was Gypsy music: it reminded me of those violinists in restaurants, leaning over your table and drawing out a haunting nostalgia with their bows. Maybe it wasn't Mother Russia we were all longing for, but Mother Rumania instead, and before that, Mother India.

We weren't all from Rumania, though, or from India, so what was the hold this music had on us? Why did it make everyone on the platform smile to themselves, even if they were not looking at the accordion-player, leaning back on his stool, his arms wide apart, the pleated accordion stretched soulfully out across his chest to the very limit of its possibilities? Or at the saxophonist, his black moustache embracing the mouthpiece, his chin lifted high under his black hat? Why was it that we were all listening, all smiling privately and tapping our toes inconspicuously, and thinking of somewhere we'd never been?

It was wild and sweet and strange, that music, and it reminded me of something else, but what? After a moment I remembered: just last night, in the street. A white van from New Jersey had driven around and around in our neighborhood. On its roof was a lit-up menorah, and the black-bearded driver into a loudspeaker, exhorting us to light candles at Shabos. Between the exhortations there were recordings of Hannukah music. And that music, I remembered now, had the same penetrating minor chords, the same yearning, haunting, Eastern quality that made the spine straighten and the blood quicken. And listening now to the two Russians, I felt a thrill at the recognition, at the wide, wild, ancient connections I was hearing.

So this is how it is, now, at Christmas in New York. We're all Russians, Americans, Jews, Gypsies, Christians. Nothing is simple now, nothing can be taken for granted, and nothing belongs to us alone. Everything comes from somewhere else; we're part of a great web of connections, ancient, complex, intricate. We're in a shared, wider, more complicated place now. We're living our lives to the music of the world, and this is haunting and strange, thrilling, with a relentless beat that stirs our pulses and challenges our hearts and urges us on and on, to somewhere we've never known, but which somehow we remember.

Have kids in need of a haircut? Looking for gift ideas for children of all ages? Look no further...your all-in-one shop is waiting for you in West Bend. Peek-A Bootique and Cuts for Kids are ready to make the holidays less stressful and more "stylish" for all.

Peek-A-Bootique, offering children's boutique fun fashions, great games and books, terrific toys and novelty gifts has been open since 2000. Ever since the store opened, Kelly Rosenthal, storeowner and Kewaskum resident, had hopes of finding the right kids' stylist to set up shop inside the popular store. Her goal came true in the summer of 2006.

Kim Treider heard through the grapevine about Peek-A-Bootique and that there was a possible opportunity for the right stylist. She approached Rosenthal...and the rest is history Cuts for Kids offers haircuts for girls and boys of all ages and is conveniently located inside Peek-A-Bootique so parents are free to shop while their child is having their hair cut or styled.

There's nothing like good friends to warm up the holiday season! Thank you so much for being ours. FOUR SEASONS RESORT Crooked Lake, LLC (262) 626-2934 which includes a certificate and lock of hair. After every haircut, a child gets to pick a prize and girls can even have fun clips and/or sparkles added to their new look.

Kids love the atmosphere of the salon and can even watch a movie while their hair is being cut or styled. Parents enjoy the relaxed atmosphere, extra time shopping and most of all prices. Cuts for Kids charges $12.50 for a haircut.

Cuts for Kids salon hours are: Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Thursday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.; closed Sunday and Monday, Call ahead to schedule your appointment.

During the holiday season, kids visiting Peek-A-Bootique, can fill out a Dear Santa wish list (which the store keeps on file year-round to help Santa as well as friends and relatives).

Yes, Virginia, There is a Santa Claus

Editorial Page, New York Sun, 1897

We take pleasure in answering thus prominently communication below, expressing at the same time our great gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of The Sun:

I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, "If you see it in The Sun, it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except what they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus

He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The external light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies. You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if you did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived could tear apart. Only faith, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus? Thank God he lives and lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay 10 times 10,000 years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Merry Christmas Happy New Year!

Francis P. Church's editorial, "Yes Virginia, There is a Santa was an immediate sensation, and became one of the most famous editorials ever written. It first appeared in The New York Sun in 1897, and was reprinted annually until 1949 when the paper went out of

Honoring our Troops this Holiday Season

By Governor Jim Doyle

Wisconsin spectacular. It's a time filled with festivities and family, and a chance to celebrate with the people we love.

While we enjoy our time at home in Wisconsin, we should pause to remember the very brave men and women in uniform serving our country in Iraq, Afghanistan, and all over the world. Many of these heroes won't be able to come home these holidays. I applaud their bravery and I want to thank them and their families who sacrifice so much in the name of our country and our freedom.

As the proud son of a World War II Veteran, I am humbled by the service and sacrifice of our military families, and one of the great privileges I've had as Governor is working for and with our state's veterans.

I not only appreciate and honor the service of these fine men and women, but I am committed to ensuring that the State of Wisconsin continues to honor its debt to each and every one of our veterans. The veterans who have returned home - and those who will have earned our respect and gratitude. They deserve the best services and benefits that we can offer.

Last January, I had opportunity to Wisconsin National Guard troops stationed in Iraq and Afghanistan. During the trip, I got to meet with soldiers from the Camp Douglas-based 32nd Brigade Headquarters at Camp Arifian. I met with soldiers from 1st Battalion, 120th Field Artillery, from Wisconsin Rapids and four other Central Wisconsin communities. met with soldiers from 2nd Battalion, 127th Infantry, from Appleton and five eastern Wisconsin communities, and at Camp Buehring, I met with soldiers from 2nd Battalion, 128th Infantry, from Madison and other communities in Southern Wisconsin. It was an honor to see them and the work they were doing, and to have the chance to tell them how incredibly proud I am of all of them.

What I heard most often from these fine men and women was how much they missed their families, especially during the holidays.

Many of the men and women I saw are home this with their families. But hundreds of Wisconsin soldiers are oversees away from their families this holiday season. I wish them all the very best. And like everyone in Wisconsin, I hope they are able to come home safely and

So when everyone in your house gets together to celebrate this holiday season, make sure to take a moment to recognize the brave men and women from Wisconsin who can't be here, who are putting their lives on the line every day. We owe them and their mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, wives, husbands and children a debt that can never be repaid.

FILLMORE- During the traditional Thanksgiving/
Christmas season our area schools often take part in outreach projects in the community to help students understand the true meaning of this special time of year. When you home-school your children, it's up to you to show your students the meaning of this season. One Fillmore mother did just that.

The Bingens who reside in the Krystal Heights subdivision in the town of Farmington do a service project annually. They began when they started homeschooling their two daughters Hannah and Abbi.

Amy Bingen teacher/mom, says that her family does a service project annually around Thanksgiving. This year, the family took bags around their Krystal Heights neighborhood and nearby Overlook Pass subdivision asking for nonperishable food donations for Washington County's Full Shelf Food Pantry.

"One weekend we dropped off the bags and the next weekend we picked them up," stated Amy. She says that over half of the houses they visited the weekend prior, had bags of food for them. "The support was overwhelming," recounted Amy. The family ultimately collected 200 food items.

"We want to thank the residents in the Krystal Heights and Overlook Pass subdivision in Fillmore," concluded Amy.

Editors note: Amy Bingen came into our office before Thanksgiving wanting to thank her neighbors for taking part in their project. We decided to hold off on the article until it could be published in this fitting publication. It's delightful to see this family's will to do something for their community and even more so, the neighbors that gave to their cause. If your family did a similar project please contact The Statesman news desk at 262.247.2569 or newstips@kewaskumstatesman.com

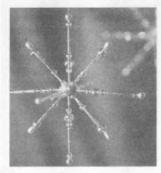

Christmas Crafts

BEADED SNOWFLAKE ORNAMENTS

Materials and Tools:

- Corsage pins with pearl ends (available in fabric and craft stores)
- Crystal-like beads in desired shapes and sizes (we used clear narrow tubes and round beads in several sizes)
 - · Small cork
 - · Iridescent white glitter

paint pen (usually used for fabric, available in craft and discount stores)

· Monofilament thread

Instructions:

- 1. Place beads on one corsage pin in desired order, leaving the last 1/4 inch without beads. Make three more beaded pins using the same arrangement. Make another set of four beaded pins, using a different arrangement. Make an additional set of two beaded pins. (You should have a total of 10 beaded pins.)
- 2. Cut the cork, if necessary, so it is about 1/4 inch long. With the round side of the cork lying on the work surface, poke one beaded pin into the cork (close to the work surface) like a spoke of a wheel. Place a matching beaded pin opposite the first. Place the remaining two opposite each other, between the first set.

3. Using the remaining

- 3. Using the remaining set of four, poke each into the cork, slightly closer to the top of the cork and alternating with the first set of four. Place the remaining two beaded pins into each round end of the cork.
- 4. Cover the cork using glitter paint pen. Allow to dry. Apply a second coat, if necessary, and let dry.

To hang, cut a desired length of monofilament thread and tie to one spoke of the snowflake. Or stand several of these sparkling snowflakes on your mantel or group them to create a wintertime centerpiece.

Variation for Kids: If the kids want to make these snowflakes, use pipe cleaners instead of pins and plastic foam balls instead of corks. Bend the end of the pipe cleaners into a loop to keep the beads from falling off the outside end.

HOLLY-AND-IVY KISSING BALL

Materials

- 5-inch foam ball
- Fresh or silk ivv
- Fresh or silk holly
- U-shape pins
- 3-1/2 yards of 1-inch

wide red plaid ribbon

Instructions:

Note: Use fresh holly and ivy only if you plan to use your kissing ball for a single day.

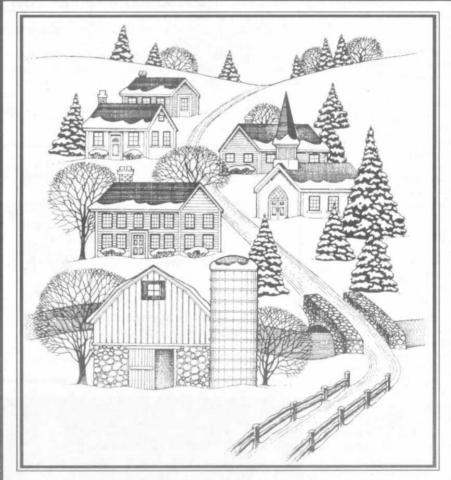

- 1. Cut an 18-inch length of ribbon for the hanger. Glue and pin the hanging loop to the top of the foam ball. Cut assorted lengths of holly and ivy. Use U-shape pins to hold the holly and ivy to the foam ball.
- 2. With the remaining ribbon, tie an eight-loop bow and trail the ends through the decorated ball, pinning the ribbon in place.

AAA Wisconsin offers free non-alcoholic holiday drink guide

As a way to help prevent drunk-driving deaths injuries during the holidays, AAA Wisconsin is offering its popular booklet of nonalcoholic drink recipes free to the public again this year. The 2006 special edition of AAA Wisconsin's Great Pretenders Party Guide features some of the best nonalcoholic drink recipes gathered from AAA's cadre of Diamond Awardwinning restaurants throughout the Midwest.

The Great Pretenders Party Guide's introductory message notes that in 2005, nearly 17,000 people died in the United States as a result of alcohol-related traffic crashes. In Wisconsin, alcohol is involved in more than one-third of all fatal traffic crashes, making alcoholrelated deaths the single largest component of all traffic fatalities in the state.

The holiday season should be a time of joy and celebration, but tragically each year it becomes a time of grief for the loved ones of those killed and injured in alcohol-related traffic crashes," said AAA Wisconsin President Frymark. "These tragedies are preventable if we will all choose positive alternatives to drinking and driving."

To emphasize the drunkdriving problem, the Great Pretenders Guide has several charts showing how alcohol affects drivers. There also are tips for helping party hosts monitor alcohol consumption and deal with guests who drink too much. In addition, the guide has information for party hosts on trendy new food items that are tasty and easy to prepare.

To obtain free copies of the Great Pretenders Party Guide, visit any AAA Wisconsin branch office, call toll-free 1-800-236-1300 ext. 2486, or download a copy of the booklet at AAA. com/Pretenders.

AAA Wisconsin offers automotive, travel, insurance and financial services to more than 600,000 members in Wisconsin. It is part of The Auto Club Group (ACG), the largest affiliation of AAA clubs in the Midwest, with approximately 4.1 million members in eight states. ACG belongs to the national AAA federation, a not-for-profit organization with more than 49 million members in the United States and Canada.

The following are some of the recipes from the guide.

Don't shop until you drop this holiday season

The stress and strain of holiday shopping combined with our overly stressful lifestyles can take a heavy toll on our bodies.

Stress is recognized as the number one killer in today's society. The American Medical Association (AMA) notes that stress is the cause of 80 to 85 percent of all human illness and disease, and every week 95 million Americans suffer some kind of stress-related symptom for which they take medication.

How destructive can stress be on your body? "Stress is dangerous and can affect every system in your body," says Dale Healey, DC, dean of the School of Massage Therapy at Northwestern Health Sciences University in Bloomington, Minnesota. "When you allow stress to affect your life, you are allowing it to influence every organ and every cell in your body.

As our bodies try to cope with everyday stress, the physical strains inflicted by hours of wearing awkward winter coats and toting heavy packages can take a toll on our bodies and our emotional wellbeing. Dr. Healey recommends that holiday shoppers treat holiday shopping as an athletic endeavor. He also recommends finding ways to manage stress during the holidays and throughout the

Dr. Healey offers these 11 tips for surviving the holiday

- 1. Stay hydrated. Drink eight to 10 glasses (8 ounces) of water a day.
- 2. Stretch before and after a long day of shopping. When the body is stressed, muscles are less flexible than usual.
- 3. Wear walking shoes to lessen the impact of walking on hard shopping mall floors layers to accommodate for differences temperature between busy stores and the cold outdoors.

Take frequent rest breaks, and refuel with healthy snacks, not coffee, soda or sugary treats.

6. If possible, don't take children along on holiday shopping trips. Children often tire faster than adults, adding to the stress of the day.

7. Although the holidays are busy, make time to do some enjoyable activities whenever

8. Whenever you can, notice and relieve tension in your body. Breathe deeply and gently stretch and relax any tense areas.

Wear comfortable and loose clothing when possible. 10. Avoid holding in feelings day after day, but instead, find a safe place to feel, express and embrace them.

11.Schedulean appointment for a massage during the hectic holiday season. While it may seem like yet another item on your to-do list, massage lowers your heart rate and blood pressure, boosts the immune system, and reduces fatigue, emotional and physical.

Prevent holiday injuries; use caution during the holidays

For millions of homes, the holiday season would not be complete without decorations, twinkling lights, Christmas trees and candles. Unfortunately these festive signs of the holiday season also can lead to injuries, and the American College of Emergency Physicians urges the public to keep safety in mind.

"The holiday season is a hectic time for all of us, filled with activities and errands, and many people pay less attention to safety and end up in the emergency department," said Dr. Brian Keaton, president of the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP). "The nation's emergency physicians urge people to take a little extra time and care as they go about enjoying the holidays and remember never to drink and drive."

More than 12,000 people are treated in the nation's emergency rooms each year due to falls, cuts, electrical shocks and burns from faulty holiday decorations or accidents that occur while putting decorations in place, according to government statistics. The holiday season also means parties where alcohol is served. More than one thousand people in December 2004 were killed in car crashes involving a car or motorcycle driver with an illegal blood alcohol content level of .08 or higher according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

ACEP offers the following safety tips to help the public avoid the most common injuries during the coming holiday season:

Outdoor Safety

 Clear snow and leaves from pathways and sprinkle salt on patches of ice.

 Check children's shoes, socks and gloves periodically to make sure they are dry while playing outdoors in cold weather to avoid frostbite and hypothermia. · Find a safe place for children to sled. Make sure the area is free of fences, roadways, trees and other hazards. Choose a hill where children cannot reach fast, uncontrollable

Travel Safety

- · Wear seatbelts at all times.
- Place all children under age 12 in the back seat and secure all children in appropriate safety restraints for their ages and sizes.
- Never drink alcohol and drive; if you do plan to drink alcohol, assign a designated driver.
- Be aware of your surroundings, including changes in weather or traffic patterns.

Candles and Fireplaces

Keep lighters and candles away from children and never leave burning candles unattended.

 Have chimneys and fireplaces professionally inspected yearly to ensure they are safe to use and the chimney is unobstructed.

Decorations and Christmas Trees

 Check decorative lights to make sure they are not broken and the wires are not bare or frayed.

· Turn off all decorative lights before going to bed or leaving the house

- · Avoid using sharp decorations and ornaments.
- Keep Christmas trees away from fireplaces or other areas where high heat is present.
- When buying an artificial tree, be sure the label indicates it is "fire resistant."
- When buying a live tree, check for freshness (green, full of needles, sticky trunk). Fresh trees are less of a fire hazard and should be watered frequently.
- Use the appropriate size ladder for any decorating job and have someone help you.

General Tips

- Have a first-aid kit nearby.
 Know where the fire
- extinguisher is kept.

 Keep emergency telephone numbers by your telephone.

ACEP is a national medical specialty society representing emergency medicine with more than 25,000 members. ACEP is committed to advancing emergency care through continuing education, research and public education. Headquartered in Dallas, Texas, ACEP has 53 chapters representing each state, as well as Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. A Government Services Chapter represents emergency physicians employed by military branches and other government agencies.

Eggnog Fudge

1/2 cup butter
3/4 cup eggnog
2 cups sugar
10 oz. white chocolate bars, broken into pieces

1/2 tsp. ground nutmeg1 7 oz. jar marshmallow crème

1 cup chopped pecans 1 tsp. rum or rum extract

 Combine butter, eggnog and sugar in a heavy 2 1/2- to 3-quart saucepan; bring to a rolling boil; stir constantly. Reduce heat to medium and continue cooking 8 to 10 min. or until candy thermometer reaches 234°F, stirring to prevent scorching.

2. Remove from heat; stir in chocolate and nutmeg. Add marshmallow crème, nuts and extract; beat until well blended. Pour into a buttered 8- or 9-in. square pan. Cool at room temperature; cut.

Microwave Instructions:

 In a 4-quart microwave-safe bowl, microwave butter on high for 1 min. or until melted. Add eggnog and sugar; mix well and microwave 6 min. or until mixture comes to a rolling boil; stirring after 3 min.

2. Scrape sides of bowl and mix well, continue microwaving 9 min. more, scraping bowl and mixing after each 3 min. Stir in chocolate until melted; continue as directed above.

Christmas Is On The Way

Some things haven't changed much since the old days. Good friends, loving family and courteous neighbors like you, are still what Christmas is all about.

Santa got stuck in the chimney!

The children had hung their stockings by the fireplace and were all snug in their beds.

Sometime during the night, they were visited by a big, jolly, old man dressed in red. You got it, it was Santa Claus!

Santa and his bright red toy bag came down the chimney This was his last stop of the night. First, he filled each stocking special treats. Then, for each child, he left some gifts.

"A new bike for Suzie," said Santa, pulling a beautiful pink bicycle out of his bag. "And, a train set for Billy."

By the time Santa finished his work, he was a little hungry. He spotted a glass of milk and a plate of goodies, sitting on the kitchen table.

"I'll just take one," said Santa, reaching for a piece of chocolate cake. "If I eat too much, I might get stuck in the chimney on my way out."

The cake was so gooey and so good that Santa just had to have another slice. Soon, the plate was empty.

said Santa, "Oh my!" realizing what he had done. "I'm so full now!"

Santa got up from the chair. As he did, he heard it snap in

"Oh my!" said Santa again. "I've broken the chair!"

Santa gathered up his bag and went over to the chimney. With a twinkle of his eyes and twitch of his nose, up the chimney he rose. However, he was only able to get halfway up the chimney before he got stuck. He tried to go further, but the further he went, the more he got stuck.

Oh no!" said Santa. "I'm stuck!"

No matter what Santa did. Dad was by the fireplace. He had just placed some kindling into it and he could not get out. He dangled in midair with his big was about to strike black boots a match, when hanging glad there to look up. is no fire on
