Plans call for remodeling administration building into new school, moving offices to Regal Ware

Alternative School gets approval from Building and Grounds Committee

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- A plan to open an alternative school for high school students not fitting into the traditional school model, received its first favorable nod at the school district's building and grounds committee meeting on Monday, February 25.

The new school is set to open in the district's administration office building in fall. The district will then move their offices into a portion of Regal Ware's office building across from the high school.

Associate Principal for Kewaskum High School (KHS) Anne Ignatowski explained the need for the alternative school. She established that through the alternative school, students with social, emotional and addiction issues are able to fulfill their requirements to graduate. "For whatever reason, they are not functioning in our school at their peak capacity. We are looking at 20-45 kids being pulled from KHS and taking a completely different approach from our normal setting," she stated.

Students attending the alternative school would have a different type of day than those attending KHS. The students would experience a compacted schedule that is more hands-on and practical. Curriculum is to be taught through interdisciplinary projects, rather than subject by subject. Time will also be spent developing social skills, and completing community projects.

"We have students in the high school who have the skills and intelligence to be successful, yet have a difficult time succeeding. An alternative school would allow the district to meet the needs of these students. Right now we are producing kids who cannot function. This is a way to get them to be productive citizens. The key is, it's not easier. It's different," Ignatowski explained.

Ignatowski professed that these students are so credit deficient that if they continue on their current path, they will not graduate on time. "Right now, we have about 30-35 kids who if they stay on their current pace, will not graduate on time," she purported.

Currently, for students who are credit deficient, the KHS offers the Nova Net computer lab where students take courses online to make up credits. Some students come in after school and on Saturdays to work with staff on trying to make up their classes.

As a last resort, the district also pays to send kids to Moraine Park Technical College (MPTC) to receive a General Education Degree. "We've paid for programs in the past, because we can't meet their needs. We are paying for three kids to go to MPTC now, with another one in April and June. This (alternative school) would eliminate that and save us money," Ignatowski offered.

Committee member Jim Leister, asked how a student gets into a situation of credit deficiency. Superintendent of Schools, Mike Krumm answered him by saying students are

Police respond to threat at high school

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- Police responded to Kewaskum High School on Sunday evening in regards to a student making comments about harming himself and others at the school. Principal Christine Horbas stated that quick thinking from fellow students helped avoid a serious situation.

According to Chief of Police Dick Knoebel an officer met with Horbas at the school at 10:50 p.m. Radio traffic indicated that the principal wanted to meet with an officer in regards to a student who made threats of suicide and possibly initiating a shooting at the school.

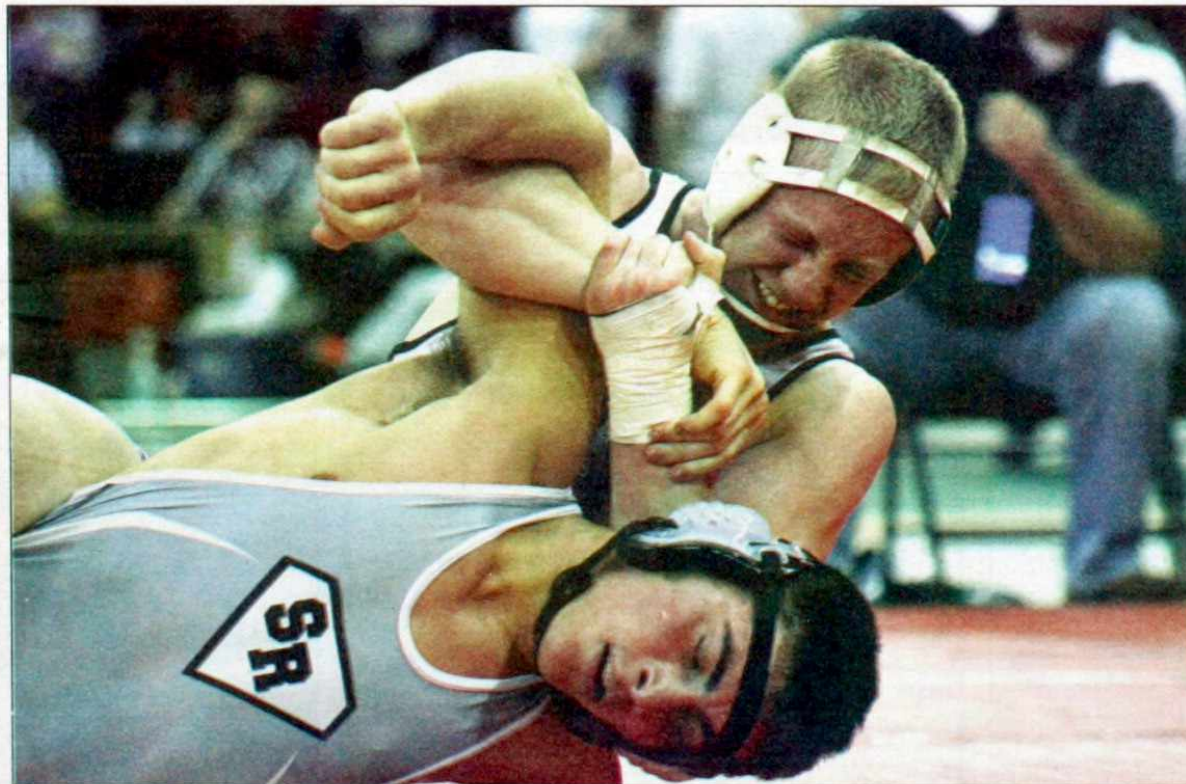

Horbas stated she called police after being alerted by a parent who stated another student was making threats on his Myspace page. Myspace is a social networking web site popular with many teens.

Horbas stated she probably could have waited until morning to deal with the situation however, "I wanted to make sure my kids were safe. I didn't want to wait until morning," she explained.

Knoebel stated that the officer responded. An investigation has begun and he stated he could not fully comment on the topic. He did say the student lived outside of the village.

"It's nice to see that fellow students cared enough about each other to bring this to the attention of administration and get this student help he needed," Horbas concluded.

Indians looking for another state trip in 2009

The Indians' Cody Seibel applies pressure to his opponent, JC Francois of Belleville/Montello/New Glarus Saturday morning in the finals of the state wrestling tournament held Thursday through Saturday at Madison's Kohl Center. Seibel lost the match but ended the tournament in fifth place. See more photos on page 20.

Alternative School

faced with difficult situations like a pregnancy, illness or being kicked out of home. "They are not bad kids, some of them don't have real good family situations," Krumm explained. He also said that some students come from other districts already in a situation.

Krumm, gave the perspective that many kids look at their situation as hopeless. "With this we can restore some hope to kids," he added. Ignatowski added, "These kids are smart, they just don't show it on paper."

Ignatowski said that students wanting to enroll in the alternative school would need to agree to specific terms that have not yet been outlined. Students would not be placed in the school against their will. The first year the school would accept juniors and seniors. Once established, the school will welcome freshmen and sophomores.

Ignatowski explained that some of the most needy kids demand a lot of individualized help from teachers, guidance counselors and principals. Upon the opening of the alternative school, they will be pulled out of KHS. The students who shared a classroom with a needy student ideally will receive a better education because the teacher will not need to devote more attention to a student who needs one-on-one teaching to succeed. Once the students needing the one-on-one teaching are removed, it should help raise the bar for the rest of the student population.

Requirements for a diploma have not officially been determined; the committee spearheading the idea with Ignatowski will present additional information to the Board of Education. Ignatowski did indicate however that students would receive a diploma from the alternative school, since they would not be students at KHS they would not receive a diploma from KHS.

Krumm reminded the committee that over the course of the next three years standards are being raised at KHS. This year a senior needs 24 credits to graduate; next year's class needs 26 and the year after those seniors need 28. "We are increasing our standards at this school, we need a safety net for some of these kids," he added.

To start, possibly by the next school year, two sessions will be held at the alternative school. While school is not in session students would be required to do community service or enroll in a school to work partnership.

"As a school board our first thoughts have to be to educate these kids, but we also have to ask the question, financially, how does this fit in," questioned chairman Bill Kesting.

Business Manger Paul Reichert presented a financial plan for the committee. He stated that the school would utilize existing personnel along with various existing educational items such as textbooks and computers. Krumm also quickly pointed out that as the population increases at the alternative school, the district would receive additional money from the state.

Reichert believed that the district could attract students from other districts that do not have this type of a school. Currently plagued by open enrollment, he hypothesized that the district could see $6,100 per student through open enrollment. By retaining students that would otherwise drop out, it is keeping the district's enrollment up and increasing aide and revenue dollars from the state.

Adhering to the strategy of using what they have, Reichert explained they intend to reconfigure the current administration building into the alternative school. The district would then lease 6,000 square feet from Regal Ware in the north end of their office building.

The current administration building is home to six people. Once the move to Regal Ware occurs administrators sprinkled throughout the district would join the six from the current administration building. Reichert figured that by doing this administration and their assistants will be able to begin to cross train each other. He also believed that by centrally locating everyone it would decrease travel time and not require everyone to be shifted around.

The school district will look to enter into a two-year lease of $60,000 annually, which includes utilities. To sweeten the deal, Regal Ware will also allow the district to use other areas in the building. Reichert says that money has already been budgeted for the project.

Reichert stated that before making this recommendation they looked at the former Statesman/liquor store and space in the Kewaskum Mall however both places required expensive remodeling.

Krumm also reminded the committee that by removing the students and the building and grounds office out of the high school, that will free up space for growth. "Because this building has 700 kids in it, they are crowded, not to the point where we need a new building but it will improve the situation," he stated.

The full Board of Education will hear the proposal at their March meeting. To hear the complete meeting, please visit our web site's multimedia section for an audio recording. We also welcome your thoughts on this issue facing our school district. ## Aurora Health Care offers enhanced cardiovascular services in county

HARTFORD - Aurora Health Care now offers enhanced cardiovascular services, from newly remodeled cardiac and pulmonary rehabilitation areas with expert staff to experienced physicians and surgeons in Washington County.

"Cardiovascular services is just one area we are enhancing and expanding for our patients in Washington County," said Michael Marshall, M.D., regional medical director for Aurora Health Care. "We have created comprehensive care for patients with our integrated care model, which ensures their care is seamless, whether they are seen at one of our clinics or our medical center.

"The cardiology services, stress testing and cardiac patient support groups at our various clinic sites complement our newly remodeled Aurora Medical Center in Washington County, and will enable us to serve more patients at the highest level of care."

Remodeled Rehabilitation Areas

"We have so much to offer cardiac and pulmonary patients, especially with the addition of some new, top of the line equipment and remodeled spaces," said Pam Feucht, R.N., supervisor of inpatient and cardiopulmonary rehabilitation services at Aurora's medical center in Hartford.

"In cardiac rehabilitation, we work with outpatients who have just been through surgeries or procedures involving the heart. A nurse and an exercise specialist work with small groups of patients three times a week. We monitor their heart rhythm, heart rate, blood pressure and oxygen saturations, and we pay attention to how they feel when they're exercising at various levels. We also are in close contact with their cardiologist, surgeon or primary physician, depending on the procedure and diagnosis," Feucht said.

"Our pulmonary rehabilitation program is unique in that there is not another one in Washington County. We serve patients with chronic lung disease to teach them proper breathing techniques, how changes in the weather can affect their breathing, and how they can recognize signs of upper respiratory infections. We work with patient families to educate them as well, and review each patient's progress every week," Feucht said.

Patients Are Important Part of Team

"We want our patients to safely and appropriately achieve their goals. They are the most important member of the team, so we review their goals weekly to make sure they are an active part of the team and that there are no unrealistic expectations set for the patient. We also are in close contact with their pulmonologist or primary physician, depending on diagnosis," Feucht said. "Once they've achieved their goal, we encourage patients to join our medically based fitness center, which also has been remodeled."

Community Fitness Center

"An added benefit for the community is that the fitness center in the hospital is open to the public for a monthly fee. Whether or not you have health issues, it's a benefit to work out in a medically based supervised fitness center. Our staff, who all have four-year degrees in exercise science, are always in the gym to check heart rate, blood pressure, and to speak with people about any concerns they may have," Feucht said.

For more information about the fitness center or rehabilitation program, call 262-670-7233.

A Full Complement of Services

In addition to the newly remodeled rehabilitation areas, Aurora Medical Center in Washington County has an experienced vascular services team to address specific patient needs. It includes Laith Alsayegh, MD, vascular medicine specialist; Martin Crain, M.D., interventional radiologist; and Thomas Derrig, M.D., vascular surgeon. All three work with patients' primary care physicians, specialists and cardiologists for an enhanced level of care and the best outcomes.

Breakthrough Technology

Patients also have benefit of the only 64-slice CT in Washington County at the Aurora Health Center in Hartford. This breakthrough technology allows physicians to view even the smallest arteries in the brain, heart and peripheral vascular system, and offers a number of advantages over traditional angiography.

They include:

It's faster. The exam is 15 to 30 minutes rather than four to five hours.

There's no recovery time. Patients can leave as soon as their exam is completed.

There are fewer risks, since an arterial puncture is not required.

It's less expensive.

Added Benefits

Patient education is important to providers and patients at Aurora Health Care. In 2008, new programming will be launched that targets wellness and disease management for patients interested in learning more about cardiac health.

Long time 'employee' at West Bend Savings Bank FIRED

Kristy Vogt, the Manager of the West Bend Savings Bank office in Kewaskum has announced the 'firing' of a slacker: their old ATM machine! "By the time you read this we will have replaced the old ATM with a new one that works! For me it's like getting rid of an employee who is completely unreliable" stated Kristy when asked if she had any feelings of regret about losing the old machine.

The old ATM was installed at the time the building was opened back in 1994 and was 'state of the art' at that time. Since then however, time and weather have taken their toll on the mechanical money dispenser, and the technology of the machines themselves have improved so much, so the old unit has become an irritation more than a convenience.

"The newer machines are so much more reliable and user friendly," stated Sue Garman, Senior Vice President of Operations for the Bank, "people will feel like they are working with our fastest and most reliable teller. It's better for both the customers and the bank; much easier to operate and maintain."

"An ATM like the one being installed in Kewaskum is worth over $40,000; it requires upkeep and attention several times a week even when it's working perfectly. But considering the number of our customers (and non-customers) who use that machine daily or weekly, it's a convenience we cannot be without," stated Kristy.

Kristy also told us that they are going to be having an "ATM Grand Opening Party" on February 28th and 29th. "We've nicknamed the new ATM "Happy" because she/he will make everybody smile (we called the old one "The Grump" by the way), and as part of the Grand Opening, Happy will be giving out some "special prizes" during normal business on those two days --- so count your money carefully when you visit on those days!"

Schwengels named instructor of the year

Moraine Park Technical College carpentry instructor Jerry Schwengels of Fond du Lac received national recognition when Associated Builders and Contractors (ABC) recently named him the 2008 National Craft Instructor of the Year. It's an honor given to an instructor with outstanding teaching credentials and a commitment to preserving the high educational standards of the merit shop construction industry.

Schwengels, who was one of seven regional finalists, will be presented with the national award on March 8 during ABC's National Craft Championships in San Juan, Puerto Rico. He is also the only instructor to win ABC of Wisconsin's Instructor of the Year award twice, in 1996 and 2007. In addition, the ABC of Wisconsin Apprentice of the Year Award recipients for the last three years were his students.

"It is truly a priceless honor for me," said Schwengels. "I believe this accomplishment is a synergistic 'team award.' He named the dedicated apprentices and employers, fellow Moraine Park instructors and staff, and ABC of Wisconsin as those without whom his achievement would not be possible.

As an instructor in ABC of Wisconsin's Carpentry Apprenticeship program at Moraine Park since 1989, Schwengels has taught 15 of the 18 apprentices who have placed first in the carpentry contest at ABC of Wisconsin's annual Apprenticeship and Training Trust Skill Competition. Additionally, 11 of Schwengels' apprentices have placed first, second or third in ABC's National Craft Championships. Fourth-year carpentry apprentice Nathan Potratz of Pickett will join Schwengels in Puerto Rico to compete for the national carpentry title. "Jerry has had more ABC National Craft Championship winners than any other single instructor in the country," said Wayne Belanger, director of education for ABC of Wisconsin, in his nomination of Schwengels for the national award. "Many of his apprentices have gone on to become leadmen, foremen, superintendents, or even to own their own businesses. A number of his graduates have also become instructors."

A native of Clinton, Schwengels holds a bachelor's of science in industrial education from Winona State University, Winona, Minn., and is a National Center for Construction Education and Research (NCCER) Certified Craft Instructor. Having invested in his own education and experience, Schwengels has a diverse background that enables him to teach residential and commercial remodelers, home builders, commercial builders, bridge builders and more. His instruction also includes guest speakers, field trips, presentations by fourth-year apprentices and hands-on theory projects that are done in small groups.

Apprentices are encouraged to use their skills in service to the community. Schwengels has volunteered his students' assistance with building projects that include half-scale wood appliances for the Tiny Tech child development center at Moraine Park; an ornate playhouse for the West Bend Builders Association; a reading loft for a non-profit day care center; and a "carpet ball" game for the Fond du Lac Boys and Girls Club. Three of his classes spent a day volunteering for two ABC of Wisconsin projects for the Rawhide Boys Ranch.

"Jerry Schwengels' dedication to craft excellence truly embodies the ideals of a merit shop construction craft instructor," said Bill Fairchild, 2008 ABC national chairman. "It is an honor to recognize his efforts to train the next generation of construction craft professionals."

Jon Waldhuetter, dean of apprenticeships at Moraine Park, added, "Recognition as National Craft Instructor of the Year is an achievement that identifies the best of the best. Knowledge of the industry, a desire to pass on that knowledge to the next generation and a commitment to apprenticeship training - these are the tools that Jerry brings to the classroom. An employer need look no further than the graduates of Jerry's program to know that these apprentices are prepared to carry on the torch of the skilled trades person. We are proud to have Jerry as a member of our instructional team."

Schwengels' award includes the trophy, his trip to Puerto Rico for the national conference with expenses paid by the national ABC, a monetary stipend, a laptop computer and a leather jacket, compliments of the NCCER.

UWWC announces cast for 'Trailer Park Musical'; show March 7-9

WEST BEND - The cast for The Great American Trailer Park Musical has been announced by UW-WC's Assistant Professor Brad Ford, who is directing and producing the spring play.

Cast members and their characters include: Mary Wittmann, West Bend as Betty (den-mother type); Danielle Rogne, West Bend as Lin (short for Linoleum); Sheena DeLong, Campbellsport as Pickles (sweet but not too bright); Missy de Irueste, Cedarburg as Jeannie (agoraphobic wife of Norbert); Collette Merrill, West Bend as Pippi (runaway stripper who moves into Armadillo Acres Trailer Park and creates a lot of chaos); Carl Liden, Waukesha as Norbert ("regular guy" - married to Jeannie for 20 years); Christophe Jenkins, West Bend as Duke (Pippi's obsessive and possessive boyfriend).

The production staff includes: Katie Kottke (West Bend), Assistant Director; Ernie Brusbardis, (Hartford) Vocal Director; Lisa Schnabel (West Bend), Choreographer; Daniel Steubs (Germantown), Lighting Manager; Dan Koenings (West Bend), Scene Shop Supervisor; and Amy Kottke (Germantown), Stage Manager. The production crew includes Samantha Jacob, Josh Pope and Daniel Steubs.

The very fun and sometimes silly performance comes with this warning: "Contains tacky outfits, bad perms, exotic dancers, 80s nostalgia, road kill, strong language, and spray cheese - everything a musical should be!" The "triplets of tackiness" - Betty, Lin and Pickles tell the story of the trailer park (Armadillo Acres) which is "a little bit country and a little bit rock and roll - but 100 percent trashy."

Written by David Nehls and Betsy Kelso, The Great American Trailer Park Musical was first produced at the 2004 New York Musical Theatre Festival. Nehls wrote the script based on his experience as a young paperboy who found his neighbors in a nearby trailer park to be "the people who had the hot cocoa and cookies for me and would always engage me in conversation. They were the coolest people on the paper route; and they were so lovely," he said. Never looking down the trailer park lifestyle, the authors portray the characters as generally sincere loveable people (although they may be uneducated and a bit lazy at times).

According to The New York Sun review, "The Trailer Park meets South Park in this big-hearted new musical comedy with a cheeky script and infectious score." The New York Times deemed it "undeniable fun."

Three performances are planned, including Friday and Saturday evening, March 7 and 8 at 7:30pm and a Sunday matinee on March 9 at 2pm. All performances take place in the University theatre, located on the second floor of the campus at 400 University Drive in West Bend. Tickets are $12 adults and $9 for seniors (over 62) and youth (under 18). Reservations are recommended and can be made by phoning the campus at 262-335-5208.

Kewaskum students participate in Tri-State Honors Band Festival

Four-year-old screening at Kewaskum schools

On February 15th and 16th, two KHS students participated in the Tri-State high school honors band festival at UW-Platteville. Lindsay Schneider, right, and Rachel Jensen, left, were selected to participate with this group that featured some of the best young musicians from Wisconsin, Iowa, and Illinois. This 75-piece ensemble performed a wide variety of challenging literature on their concert. Students also participated in master classes on their specific instrument taught by university professors and professional musicians.

If you are a family that is new to the Kewaskum School District and your child has no older siblings attending the district already, please call the District office at (262)-626-8427 ext. 8001 to share information on your child. This applies to children entering four-year-old kindergarten and/or a five-year-old going into kindergarten who is new to the district.

This year's annual four-year-old kindergarten screening and 2008-2009 school registration will be held on Saturday, April 5th, from 8:00 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Monday, April 7th, from 8:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The district screening covers areas of speech and language and readiness skills.

Children that are three-years-old for whom there is a concern in the areas of speech and language or readiness skills should also register for screening. To be eligible for enrollment in four-year-old kindergarten, children must have attained their fourth birthday on or before September 1, 2008. Parents/guardians may call the District Office between 8:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m., (262) 626-8427 ext. 8001, before March 14, 2008 to set up an appointment with Ms. Debbie Goodsell.

"I would like to impress upon you the importance of calling to set up an appointment for screening your child so that we are able to plan accordingly for next school year. This is also important to ensure your child may attend the school in the area where you live," stated Debbie Goodsell. "If you fail to call by March 14th, we may need to assign your child to a school that is not their neighborhood school."

If you have any questions, other than to register, you may contact Tom Fischer, Principal of Kewaskum Elementary, at (262) 626-8427 ext. 1104.

UW-FdL to offer ACT prep course

The University of Wisconsin-Fond du Lac will offer two ACT Preparation courses this March and May. The classes will consist of four sessions taught by UW-Colleges faculty and are open to all area students regardless of which college they plan to attend.

At the first meeting students will take a diagnostic test to identify areas of both strength and need. The second and third class meetings will include a review of the pretest results, English/reading/writing and math and science. The last class meeting will include a mini-test, wrap-up and questions.

Of the students who completed the January ACT prep course, in a post evaluation 100% indicated a good to excellent understanding of ACT study skills, testing guidelines and mathematics section of exam.

Additionally, 100% of the students indicated good to excellent when asked to rate the practical value of the course and quality of materials. The overall rating of content and quality of faculty teaching the course was very good or excellent. One of the students is quoted as saying, "Going over the math section the way we did was helpful. Going through several of the test questions was beneficial."

The ACT Preparation sessions will be offered Saturday, March 8 (May 10), 8 a.m. - noon; Saturday, March 15 (May 17), 8 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.; Tuesday, March 18 (May 20), 6 - 9 p.m. and Thursday, March 20 (May 22), 6 - 8 p.m.

To receive the full benefit of this course it is important to attend all class sessions. It is also important to note that registering for an ACT Preparation does not register students for the ACT test.

The course fee is $129 and includes "Cracking the ACT," a 532-page study guide, administration of pre-test complete with results and all instruction. Early registration is recommended due to limited space. To register or for more information call (920) 929-3622 or sign up and pay online at www.fdl.uwc.edu/ce.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of Ruben Oppermann, and Shirley and Ed Zastrow, who left us so suddenly twelve years ago on Feb. 25.

I still hear the songs
I still see the lights
I still feel your love
On cold wintry nights.

I still share your hopes
And all of your cares
I'll even remind you
To please say your prayers.

I just want to tell you
You still make me proud
You stand head and shoulders

Keep trying each moment
To stay in His grace
I came here before you
To help set your place

You don't have to be Perfect all of the time
He forgives you the slip
If you continue the climb

To my family and friends
Please be thankful today
I'm still close beside you
In a new special way.

From three special people that we know are with us and a part of us all. We send you back our thoughts, love, smiles, and memories that so comfort
our hearts.

We so miss you all.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of MERLIN PROST, who passed away Feb. 22, 1993:

We think of him often as it has been fifteen years ago since God called him to our heavenly home after battling cancer for eighteen years.

Once in awhile his name still comes up at town meetings discussing some road that had little done to it since Merlin was on the Barton Town Board.

In our hearts his memory lingers on with silent thoughts and a secret tear. We will always keep his memory dear.

Sadly missed by his wife,
children and grandchildren

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of Jennifer Lynn Schickert, who passed away 10 years ago, Feb. 23, 1998:

How can we say what we feel on this day?

God knows we miss you in every way.

Sometimes we wish we could sit and talk or just take a nice short walk.

We miss your big bear hugs.
We wish we could have you help us blow out the candles on our birthday cakes.

We miss your magic finger that always made us laugh and smile.

We wish God could have left you here for a longer while.
We know that you're with us as we live out each day.

Sadly missed by

The Bookworm Sez

by Terri Schlichenmeyer

The Monsters of Templeton

By Lauren Groff

Hyperion Audiobooks, $39.95 13 hrs./11CDs

Legend has it - and everyone claims - that you can never go home again.

Oh, sure. You can haul belongings from the dorm to the bedroom you've shared with your sister since you were five. You can heal wounds beneath your ancient 4-H ribbons in the aftermath of adult heartbreak. You can hide out in Mom and Dad's house for myriad reasons, but it's never the same. The home you knew before leaving is never the home you return to.

In the new novel "The Monsters of Templeton" by Lauren Groff, Wilhelmina Sunshine Upton arrives at her family's cottage, disheveled and distraught. But the comfort she longs for in Templeton isn't what she finds - or needs.

On the morning that the dead monster broke the surface of Lake Glimmerglass near Templeton, New York, Willie Upton returned to the town where eight generations of her family had lived. Just months before, Primus Dwyer, her former teacher, chose Willie to work alongside him in a graduate program. He had chosen her to sleep beside him, too. But now Dwyer has reconciled with his witchy wife and Willie is carrying his child. Pregnant and red-faced from crying, Willie retreated to the womb of home, fleeing what had become of her life.

Not long before Willie was born, her mother, Vivienne, had had her own homecoming to Templeton. Because her parents had mysteriously died, commune-living Vivienne was suddenly an heiress. And because Viv was never sure who had gotten her pregnant, Willie was always told that she had three fathers.

But now Viv dropped a bombshell. Willie's father was no hippie. He lives in Templeton, and he, too, descends from the Temple family. As the town becomes a growing focus of the scientific community, The Lump grows within Willie and her curiosity grows, too. Which Templetonian is her father? Were the closets of the aristocratic scions of Templeton filled with skeletons?

While I really, really loved this audiobook, there are a few things you need to know when listening to "The Monsters of Templeton": first, this story is going to ask you to suspend disbelief now and then. You've been warned.

Secondly, there are errant characters that pop up often in the audiobook, and that can be discombobulating unless you understand that they're musings from Willie's forebears and their servants. Printing out the family tree on the "enhanced" audio disc will help a lot. If you choose to skip that, just be aware why the shift of voice.

Lastly, if you keep this audiobook in your car, make sure you have plenty of gas. Partly because of Nicole Roberts' performance and partly because of author Lauren Groff's writing, this story will have you sitting in a parking lot, idling, listening, unwilling to shut the car off and go about your business.

"The Monsters of Templeton" is a great choice for book group, vacation, or nice, quiet weekend tucked on the sofa, awaiting spring. Look for it at your library or bookstore. It's a novel you'll definitely want to take home.

People don't have to like or support you, so you always have to say thank you.

-Ruben Studdard

75 Years Ago

February 10, 1983

The first blizzard of the winter swept this community Tuesday, followed by sub-zero weather. On Thursday morning it was 30 degrees below zero. Five inches of snow fell and the terrific wind piled it in banks so that the county plows were called out to keep open the roads. Many cars stalled and had to be dug out of snowbanks. The snow was heavier south, Milwaukee reporting 12 inches. Locally attendance at school was cut to one-third, trains were three hours late and water systems in homes froze.

The Kewaskum High School senior class will present their class play, "Who Wouldn't Be Crazy" February 16 and 17. The cast includes: Raymond Kudek, Linda Rosenheimer, Raymond Smith, Ruth Corbett, Marcella Schleif, Wilmer Klahn, William Martin, Theodore Schoofs, Sylvester Muckerheide, Ione Schmidt, Harold Casper, Edna Krueger, Eleanor Hron, Louise Herman, Eleanore Krautkramer, Harold Marx, and Edward Dorn. Between acts Linda Rosenheimer will present vocal solos, Mildred Stoffel piano solos, Earl Kohler, Robert Rosenheimer, Sylvester Terlinden, Albert Hron, Edmund Rinzel and Alvin Krahn, a novelty act, and Doris Rosenheimer, dances.

Frank Slowik and Loran Keller have opened a barber shop at New Fane. Slowik is shop manager and Keller apprentice. Prices will be 25 cents for haircuts and 15 cents for shaves.

Peters Bros., the famous German Concertina and Bandonion players, will give a concert and old time dance at the Opera House on February 12.

The brush along the east bank of the Milwaukee River north of the village bridge was cut down by Otto Backhaus and crew of men. The clearance of the brush is a great improvement to the surroundings.

A nine pound baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boegel of the Town of Wayne on February 5.

50 Years Ago

February 21, 1983

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Fellenz, their 12 children, and Mrs. Fellenz's mother, Mrs. Mary Schneider, were left homeless Friday when fire destroyed their two-story farm home on Highway HH, at Orchard Grove, 1-1/2 miles east of St. Michaels in the Town of Farmington. The fire broke out about 10 a.m. in the kitchen at the north end of the house. The entire home was gutted by the blaze with an estimated loss of approximately $18,000. The flames spread so rapidly that members of the family were unable to enter the kitchen where the telephone was located to call the firemen. They had to call from the home of a neighbor. It was believed the fire may have started from wiring in the wall.

After several months of careful planning, the Robert G. Romaine American Legion Post #384 - Kewaskum, has decided to undertake extensive remodeling of their clubhouse on North Fond du Lac Avenue. The building structure shall be lowered and the second floor will serve as the deck for a modernly designed clubhouse. The structure, purchased by the Legion in 1945 from the H.J. Lay estate was built in 1903.

At a meeting held last week, the forming of a new athletic conference and the revamping of the Valley Tri-County conference was further developed. North Fond du Lac, Campbellsport and Kewaskum withdrew from the circuit last Wednesday night. All three schools reported steadily increasing enrollment and indicated a preference for playing 11 man rather than eight man football. From all indications, six teams are committed to the proposed new conference. They are Kewaskum, Campbellsport, North Fondy, Slinger, Germantown and Grafton.

On Valentine's Day, Mr. and Mrs. Roman Kral, Kewaskum, announced the engagement of their daughter, Audrey, to Raymond E. Krueger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond H. Krueger of Theresa.

Pvt. George Hanrahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hanrahan, Route 2, Kewaskum, returned home Saturday after completing six months of active

Samuelson Sez Meat Processing Industry Needs to Act

It is time for the meat processing industry in the United States to get it's house in order. As a matter of fact, it is way past time for the industry to get that job done. We have simply had too many incidents over the last decade that puts animal agriculture and the meat processing industry in the worst light.

It couldn't be much worse than what the nation has watched over and over again, for the past two or three weeks, on television news programs across the nation; the undercover video taken at a packing plant in California showing workers shocking, kicking and shoving "downer" cattle with fork lifts. It ultimately led U.S.D.A. to recall 143-million pounds of the company's beef; not so much for concern over the safety of the meat, but because the processing was done without plant personnel following rules that are in place.

The Department of Agriculture guidelines mandate that an inspector must review sick or injured animals, called "downer" cattle before they can be slaughtered and the 1958 Humane Slaughter Act set strict rules for the humane treatment of animals in packing plants. In this case, both of those orders were ignored. That is the reason for the beef recall and it is the reason the plant has been closed. The two workers were fired and have now been charged with felonies for their actions.

The President of the Humane Society of the United States, the group that conducted the undercover video, said he feels this is common practice in the meat processing industry and the denial by industry spokespersons "is the typical rhetoric and false assurances that we hear from the industry after glaring problems have been exposed".

I do not agree with the President of the Humane Society. I think this is a separate case and not widespread across the industry. I also know that part of the stated goal of the Humane Society of the United States is to put an end to livestock production in this country and turn all of us into vegetarians. I also question why, if the Society was so concerned about the practices in the plant, they waited six months before they revealed the videotape, in effect allowing these plant employees to continue the inhumane practices for another half-year.

Yet this incident, as well as the shipments of beef containing banned ingredients to South Korea and other countries that cost U.S. cattle producers millions of dollars in lost sales, just emphasizes again the need for the meat processing industry to clean house and police itself to restore its integrity, credibility and reputation. The entire livestock industry cannot afford this kind of activity.

My thoughts on Samuelson Sez.

Badgerland Farm Credit Services members to receive patronage payments

Badgerland Farm Credit Services, a leading cooperative provider of credit and financial services to agriculture and rural Wisconsin, announced recently that it will be making $5.25 million in cash patronage payments to its members in early March.

"This is the cooperative difference," says Diane Cole, President and CEO of Badgerland Farm Credit Services. "Our members are our owners, and that means they share in Badgerland's financial success. We are pleased that over the past four years we've returned more than $30 million in cash patronage to our members. The loyalty and commitment our members show towards their cooperative is what makes our patronage program possible each year."

"The patronage program is intended to be an additional ownership benefit for our members and one that we believe separates us from other financial services providers," adds Mark Hesselink, chairman of the board. "We want them to remember that profits will either help capitalize their association to allow it to grow and keep interest rates competitive or go back into their pockets."

Badgerland Farm Credit Services plans to continue the patronage program in future years based on current business projections and the association's ability to meet its earnings and capitalization targets. This $2 billion cooperative, headquartered in Baraboo, Wis., serves its members and customers through offices in 21 communities in 33 southern Wisconsin counties. It ranks among the largest Farm Credit associations in the U.S. Visit www.badgerlandfcs.com for additional information.

On Wisconsin Outdoors

With the Dick Ellis Experts

To preserve and protect... state natural areas worth passing on

Step by step, Sue Knaack's metallic snowshoes broke a trail through the deep snows accumulated over the Rocky Run Fishery Area in Columbia County in a winter seemingly without end. The trail cut through a rolling landscape of white untouched in recent days by human intrusion grew deeper and wider as noted Wisconsin wildlife artist Terrill Knaack and a reporter followed. Somewhere on the horizon to the west, man and wife, both devout allies of the Wisconsin native environment, would step again into the 316 acres of oak savanna that would allow them to step back in time, if only for a few hours.

"The oak savanna today is the most endangered plant community in the world," Terrill Knaack said. "Prior to settlement, Wisconsin and Illinois were just covered with oak savanna, but they were cut down for pasture. Wisconsin's original landscape was like living in a great open park setting with huge, fire resistant bur and white oak with low vegetation beneath. The thick woods were not here."

According to "Wisconsin Naturally," a guide to State Natural Areas (SNA) written by experts of the Department of Natural Resources Bureau of Endangered Resources State Natural Areas Program, Rocky Run Oak Savanna is one of more than 150 SNAs located throughout Wisconsin in 70 of 72 counties ranging in size from less than one acre to more than 7,700 acres. Over its 56 year history, the SNA Program has grown to approximately 400 sites encompassing more than 150,000 acres of land and water.

Wisconsin Naturally defines natural areas as tracts of land or water that represents the last vestiges of Wisconsin's native landscape as it existed prior to the 1830s, before intensive European settlement began. In all more than 75 unique types of natural communities constituted Wisconsin's landscape of the early 1800s, according to the guidebook. In the 180 years since intensive settlement began, those communities have been extremely reduced, primarily due to conversion of land for development, agriculture, transportation, grazing and timber production. Prior to European settlement, Wisconsin contained a mosaic of natural plant communities ranging from prairies and oak savannas in the south to pine forests and boggy wetlands in the north.

SNAs protect outstanding examples of native biological communities such as prairies, pine barrens, bogs and boreal forests. They also preserve significant geological and archeological features, Wisconsin Naturally states, and are often the last refuge in Wisconsin for rare species of animals, plants, fungi, lichens and a host of other organisms.

The oak savanna that was our destination February 23 sprawls on the hillsides high above Rocky Run Creek, a trout stream that Terrill Knaack visited with his father as a boy. The very low density of mostly white, bur and black oak, Knaack said, are vital to helping maintain a whole ecosystem of plant and animal life that flourish in the partial shade cast by the savanna and open areas beneath.

"These savannas preserve native plants and animals and help prevent them from becoming extinct," he said, mentioning the red headed woodpecker, yellow lady slippers, pasque flowers and yellow trout lilies as savanna subspecies benefiting from the savanna environment. "Native species that have adapted to the savanna environment disappear because of the invasive underbrush."

Controlled burns and cuts on state properties within oak savanna eliminate intrusive undergrowth, he said, like red cherry, box elders, locust and elm. Historically, he said, natural burns started by lightning helped maintain the savannas and fire-resistant oaks, noting that Indian communities were always built on east or southeast sides of water because those fires followed westerly winds. Other rare plants that benefit from the Rocky Run savanna, according to Wisconsin Naturally, include woolly milkweed, prairie thistle, prairie false dandelion, and Flodman's thistle. The endangered slender glass lizard, Blanding's turtles, and three rare butterflies; coral hairstreak, dog-face butterfly, and rearkit's blue have also been seen at Rocky Run.

Knaack called these properties scattered throughout Wisconsin beautiful natural areas that the DNR has in the past made a high priority of purchasing with stewardship money. He said with stewardship funding drastically cut, protecting native plants and animals can become more difficult. But he said that residents of Wisconsin need to find these SNAs, and experience them.

"What is our connection to these places?" he asked. "Do we have a responsibility to this creation or is there such a thing as creation? Do we have a responsibility not only to future generations but to the earth itself? Are we just materially connected to the earth or is there something else there too?"

"Visit these places and you see a certain sense of order that tells me there is transcendental meaning to it. I think we have a certain responsibility for being here. Life itself is a miracle. Regardless of where you are in Wisconsin, everyone needs to find these sanctuaries, get out there and enjoy it... and then do something to preserve it."

The birth of the state natural area program

Wisconsin Naturally credits Wisconsin's early conservationists of the 1930s, 40s and 50s including Aldo Leopold, botanist Norman Fasset and Albert Fuller and plant ecologist John Curtis for calling attention to our natural communities and the consequences of their loss. Under their guidance the state Board for the Preservation of Scientific Areas was created in 1951 as the first state-sponsored natural area protection area in the nation. That first board, according to the guidebook, evolved into today's State Natural Areas Program, but the original mission remains the same: "Establish a system of State Natural Areas that as nearly as possible represent the wealth and variety of Wisconsin's native landscape for education, scientific research, and for the long-term protection of Wisconsin's biological diversity for future generations."

Aldo Leopold for example, Terrill Knaack said, was instrumental in UW-Madison's purchase in the 1930s of the 60 acre Faville Prairie north of Lake Mills on the Crawfish River. That property was the only area in Wisconsin that held native, undisturbed remnants of native plants and orchids once prevalent throughout the state, for example white lady slippers. Significantly more acreage maintaining this plant life was also in that area during Leopold's time, he said, "but succumbed to drainage and plowing" prior to purchase.

As a member of the Madison Audubon Society, Sue Knaack has helped restore native plants in 350 acres adjoining the Faville Prairie. With subspecies of plant life different, the Society plants local genome seeds in an effort to remain historical true to Wisconsin's past.

KYB teams wrap up tourney; boys win league championship

By Nathan Kenworthy
Statesman Correspondent

The two Kewaskum 4th grade girl's teams won their final games of the tournament that was rescheduled from the previous weekend via forfeit against Eden and Lomira. The white team took 7th place and the green team took 5th place. In the championship game, Laconia beat Oakfield while Campbellsport beat North Fondy for 3rd place.

On the boy's side, the 3rd/4th grade team pulled off a feat that no other Kewaskum 3rd/4th grade team has ever done before, in winning the Fond du Lac Area League Championship.

The Indians faced rival Campbellsport in the championship game. The Indians trailed 1-4 after a defensive first quarter. The Indians wore down the Cougars and led 12-8 at halftime. The Indians kept up their aggressive defense and strong rebounding to lead 16-10 after three quarters. They had clear control of the game in the final quarter and won 22-12.

The championship winning coaches were Eric Flanders and Jeff Bischoff. The players who were on the winning roster for Kewaskum were Gavin Schreier, Parker Hughes, Charlie Witek, Michael Prochnow, Keaton Flanders, Nicholas Buchel, Sean Murray, Hunter Engelman, Joshua Baker and Conner Enright.

Lady Indians end regular season with a victory

By Nathan Kenworthy
Statesman Correspondent

The Kewaskum Indians girl's basketball program entered this season with a 46 game losing streak. For those who don't follow closely with preps basketball, that is over two full seasons without the taste of a "W."

Coach Jeff Gosse and his players started the season with a victory over Cedar-Grove Belgium in what many of the players considered their best sports memory. The Indians have struggled at times throughout the season with their offensive cohesiveness and lack of varsity experience. However, the lady Indians have won three conference games and four overall. That may not seem like a great season to some, but the Indians have showed an incredible turnaround over the past few seasons and the future seems very bright as the Indians have only a few seniors on the roster. That is not to say that those players won't be missed, but the majority of the scoring has come from underclassmen.

The Indians played their final game of the regular season at home on Friday, February 22 against New Holstein. The Huskies were looking to finish 7-7 in conference, while the Indians were looking to get a victory and give themselves momentum going into the state tournament. The Indians were not looking to make this a close game. They controlled the game from the opening tip and would never look back. The Indians scored 23 points in the first quarter and had a 16 point lead. The rest of the game was relatively even, but the Indians were not going to give up the large advantage it had earned.

There was some cause for concern with the Indians free throw shooting, however. They shot 12 for 30 from the charity stripe. Sophomore Anna Butler had a great evening, scoring 24 points including 2 three-point baskets and four free throws. Junior Jennie Wicklund scored 8 points while Shaylah Haire, Elissa Miller and Haley Rauch added four.

The Indians season is not over, however, and they looked forward to playing Kettle Moraine Lutheran in their Division 2 sectional on Tuesday, February 26. The game will have been played too late for this edition, so look for the stats and sounds from that game in next Thursday's paper. They will be looking for a different outcome from their male counterparts who also faced KML in their opening game of the state tournament.

Boys fight to the end, KML too strong to overcome

By Nathan Kenworthy
Statesman Correspondent

The Kewaskum Indians boy's basketball team knew the team that they were facing in their division two sectional very well. They had played Kettle Moraine Lutheran just 15 days before. Despite KML's great talent and high ranking, Kewaskum was not willing to just hand over the game before it started.

KML was 14-7 entering the game, while Kewaskum was 2-18. The two teams played on Tuesday, February 19 at KML. The game was very similar to the game they had played two weeks prior in Kewaskum, however that meant the outcome would not be in Kewaskum's favor. The Indians only trailed by nine at halftime and kept the game competitive throughout its entirety. KML did pull away in the third and fourth quarters. The final score was 61-38.

KML junior Taylor Koth was a large reason the Indians' season ended at the gymnasium at KML. He scored 32 points including 4 three point baskets. The Indians should be proud how they competed and never gave up. The seniors who were playing in their last high school basketball game played strong, with Daniel Parker leading the team in scoring with 11 points. Seniors John Holt and TJ Corey finished with 9 and 5 points respectively. Brian Backhaus added 6 points.

Kettle Moraine Lutheran did lose its next game to Eastern Wisconsin Conference member Sheboygan Falls.
