Wayne residents tell board no park at annual meeting

By Lisa Rogers
Statesman Correspondent

Chairman Scott Weiss resigns

TOWN of WAYNE- A cold down-pour did not deter town residents from packing the town hall for the annual meeting Tuesday, April 8. Supervisor Carl Klemme called the meeting to order and immediately announced the resignation of Town Chairman Scott Weiss.

When asked who would be filling in for Weiss, Town Clerk Chris Kuehn advised that the matter would not be discussed now as it was an agenda item for the next board meeting. Kuehn added that due to conflicts, the next meeting would be rescheduled; a date has not been set.

Kuehn proceeded to read the minutes from the 2007 annual meeting, and a motion was carried to accept them as read. Some of the projects completed since the 2007 meeting included replacing road signs, new dumpsters, cleaning up brush around the town hall, and forming a park committee to review the possibility of a new town park.

Prior to the floor being opened for comments, attendees were advised they were required to stand, state their name and address. Comments were required to be civil and if not, the speaker would be removed from the meeting by a police officer that was in attendance.

An advisory motion to not allow land to be purchased for use as a public park was made, and quickly seconded. Discussion ensued regarding this issue. While a survey conducted in 2004 indicated that the community would support a new park, the comments made showed strong opposition.

Some felt purchasing real estate in the current economic climate would be a bad idea. Many agreed that the existing park was not cared for, and that funds could be redirected to improve the park located behind Jug's Hitching Post. Others felt that Washington County did not need another park. Some homeowners were concerned about after hours park use and the inability of police to be able to keep the area safe.

Resident Steve Schmitt suggested a park project survey be conducted providing specific data that could be analyzed so that a better decision could be made. Other discussion included questions as to what type of park would be built, and if it would

Multi-family development in Cherokee Lakes tabled by VB

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- Developer Tom Timblin was told once again he needed to wait before proceeding on a plan to construct a 76-unit multi-family structure in his Cherokee Lakes Development. Village Trustees will take up the matter once again when plans are returned from FEMA.

Zoning Administrator Chad Cook introduced the topic at a public hearing held before the village's bi-weekly meeting on Monday, April 7. Timblin sought approval of the multi-family structure in the Cherokee Lakes Development near Timblin and Pleasantwood Drive.

Cook stated that the topic was brought before the Village's Plan Commission on January 22 to develop a consensus to include a previously presented 76-unit multi-family structure. He was given that consensus and Plan Commission members met again to make a recommendation on the proposal, where flood plain was topic of discussion.

Timblin stated flood plain engineering was being done. A March 17 flood study from Timblin's engineer was sent to the village's engineer for review. Engineer Ken Ward stated a final review was expected soon.

Three residents in a multi-unit condo at 652 Pleasantwood Drive, were concerned about a flood plain issue. Heiser informed them that Timblin was seeking contingent approval of FEMA. The residents were also less than thrilled regarding the addition of apartments as they were sold the idea of a condo association. "We don't want apartments there with the same

St. Lucas Congregation installs new pastor, Reverend Troy Swenson

On Sunday, April 6, Reverend Troy Swenson was installed as the ninth pastor at St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran Church in Kewaskum. Rev. Swenson joins Rev. Timothy Henning who has served at St. Lucas since 1991. Lutheran tradition invites area pastors to participate in the installation service. This tradition is two-fold in that it demonstrates a show of support from the visiting pastors to the new minister and allows them the chance to individually say a prayer and ask the Holy Spirit to bless his work. Pictured above, left to right: Front row Rev. Carl Ziemer, Wels Commission on Special Ministries; Rev. Swenson, Rev. Henning, Rev. Joshua Kesting, St. Paul, Neosho. Second row Rev. Michael Woldt, David's Star, Jackson, Rev. Randall Hughes, Kettle Moraine Lutheran High School; Rev. Robert Hein, Good Shepherd, West Bend; and Rev. William Carter, St. Paul, Brownsville.

thing we have on Timblin Drive," stated resident Scott Muench.

Timblin stated that he wanted this to be a condo project, but due to the state of the economy, financing cannot be obtained for a condominium project. When the economy improves, he hoped to sell the units as a condo project. He explained the development will be gearing toward seniors citizens or those with physical handicaps, but it will not be exclusive those people.

Shambeau stated that village staff would recommend not taking affirmative action on the proposal. In a later interview he stated that the mapping of the flood plain is preventing staff from recommending adoption. He explained that the village is charged, from FEMA to ensure residents are somewhat protected from flooding.

With one of the current structures already in the flood plain he and village staff did not like the idea of moving ahead without knowing what is in the flood plain. He admitted that because appropriate channels were not followed in Timblin's last construction phase the one structure is now left with having to purchase flood insurance.

Shambeau continued by saying FEMA is expected to change their mapping of the flood plain because of the construction that has ensued, namely the addition of a bridge over the Kewaskum Creek. If FEMA does not change the flood plain, a mitigation process would ensue. This process would be coordinated with DNR, FEMA, developer and homeowners to try and limit the extent of the flood plain.

Trustee Kevin Scheunemann motioned to table the item and take a vote at the first meeting after hearing from FEMA. Trustee Steve Scheunemann gave him a second and the motion carried.

include trails or sporting fields.

The vote to approve the advisory motion that town residents oppose the purchase of land for use a public park was unanimous. The board acknowledged this vote as an advisory motion, but clarified that it did not mean the park issue had been decided. Kuehn explained that according to Wisconsin state statutes, the vote remained advisory, as there was no actual land being presented for a vote.

He went on to add that there is a park committee that has not yet reported their findings to the town board and the issue was still open. When the Town Board has received information regarding a site and the price of the site a meeting will be called. Electors will then be invited to determine a decision in accordance with the appropriate state statutes that govern this type of purchase.

The current park fund balance is $109,710.14. This money may only be used to purchase land for use as a town park.

Other motions carried during the annual meeting included the approval to borrow up to $100,000 for emergency purposes if needed, and that the town board does not receive an increase in salary.

A brief update regarding the status of WI FI service was given. Charter has expressed interest, but is not yet ready technologically. Part of the continuation of the project is that there are enough customers in the area to make it worthwhile.

Kewaskum Women's Club holds annual salad luncheon

Members of a Red Hat group from West Bend attended the 10th annual Women's Club Salad Luncheon on March 29.

Holy Trinity church basement was the site for the 10th annual Kewaskum Women's Club Spring Luncheon on Saturday, March 29th. Tickets are at a premium and always sold out for this fundraising event for the Club. All of the delicious salads are prepared and served by the members.

The theme this year was the apple and each diner was treated to an apple timer,

One of the highlights of the event was the wonderful entertainment. Coming from the Grafton Seniors Group, the Silver Belles, performed for approximately 1/2 hour. The performers ranged in age from 70 to 86! The music was from Walt Disney-remembered by most and enjoyed by all.

Many, many area retailers donated items for the 12 raffle boxes, assembled by the Club. Each was worth approximately $80 and the drawing proved how widely popular this event is with winners coming from as far as Cedar Grove.

The 12 BIG winners included: Cycle of flowers - Cele Schmidt; Warm Wishes - Sharon Rauch; Live it Up - Betty Fazer; Nesting Tables - Joyce Schleif; Unique Gifts - Delores

Guest Opinion

What can be done to address gas prices? Some say "close loopholes" or "investigate" price gouging. It's time for a real solution beyond rhetoric: expand the only oil refinery in Wisconsin.

Murphy Oil of Arkansas currently owns Wisconsin's only refinery in Superior. The plant is at the end of 1,200 miles of pipeline stretching from the oil sands of Alberta, Canada, where the area of extract is the size of North Carolina.

The Wisconsin refinery currently handles 35,000 barrels of petroleum products daily, about a tenth of what average-sized plants manage. After a possible $6 billion upgrade, the daily output would be 235,000 barrels.

What are the reasons for this expansion? There would be a major economic benefit. Four hundred jobs would be added to the 150 already existing. In addition, there is already a piggyback effect from Canada's oil. Murphy Oil doesn't just profit. Bucyrus and P&H Mining Equipment Co., both from the Milwaukee area, make mining shovels (worth $20 million each) for the Alberta oil fields. Manitowoc Crane Co. has their cranes in Canada and according to a Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (May 2006), Rockwell Automation has products worth millions being used in Alberta. The southern half of Wisconsin directly benefits from Canadian Oil. And that's not including the halo effect of specific jobs for constructing a refinery addition in Superior.

National security is another reason for the expansion. Over 60% of our oil is imported. Even more important (and less known), some of our refined oil is not refined in the US. It's bad enough we depend on unstable countries like Venezuela and Nigeria for raw oil, our dependence is now so bad we outsource refining. Insuring oil trade with the Canadians is a smart diplomatic move.

Furthermore, the Superior plan would be a buffer for price variations. There hasn't been a new US refinery built since the 1970s. Whether it's an explosion in a Texas refinery or hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico, there needs to be more elasticity when refineries have trouble. Expanding the Superior refinery would partially address gas prices because a significant portion of the price is based on proximity to refineries.

Expanding this refinery is a serious issue. Should the environment around Lake Superior be considered? Absolutely. But remember there are tougher pollution regulations than there was decades ago. Murphy Oil has spent millions on upgrades to their Wisconsin facility. Superior's clay subsoil may also prevent oil spills from getting into groundwater better than some new site in the northern Midwest. And in September 2007, the manager of the Superior refinery guaranteed "open discussions" with the agencies like the DNR and US Fish & Wildlife Service. From a regional perspective, it's often more environmentally efficient to expand the site of a current refinery, rather than trying to build a new one in a new area. From a world perspective, it's more environmentally safe for the US to use Canadian oil. If Superior and the US avoid it, China will gladly use Canadian oil with virtually no pollution standards.

The debate over whether to have a bigger refinery in Superior needs to take place now. Permit applications entangle local, state, and federal regulations and can take years to settle. Gov. Doyle and the state legislature should seriously tackle gas prices by addressing Wisconsin's refining capacity.

At the very least, the federal government must look at some of the recent military base closings where space and infrastructure is available for refining. Whatever the case, it's time for real solutions to high fuel prices.

Moraine Park's Culinary Arts Gourmet Dinner to raise money for scholarships April 25

Moraine Park Technical College's Culinary Arts program and the Moraine Park Foundation Inc. will present "A Spring Slowly Event" on Friday, April 25, at the Park Terrace restaurant on the Fond du Lac campus. Sponsored by Society Insurance, this year's gourmet dinner will benefit both the general scholarship fund and scholarships for Culinary Arts program students. The "Spring Slowly" theme reflects the slow-food trend.

"Slow food isn't just about the food itself," said Moraine Park Culinary Arts Instructor James Simmers. "It's about taking a new view toward dining, that a meal is as much important to the soul and social being as it is for the sustenance. A meal should be an experience and not just a way to satiate hunger." There will be a wine reception at 6 p.m., followed by dinner in Park Terrace at 7 p.m. Moraine Park culinary students, faculty and guest chefs will prepare an exclusive six-course dinner for guests. The menu will feature deconstructed Wellington of shrimp and quail eggs with fresh spring onions; watercress and cucumber soup with early harvest radishes; duck à la orange salad with confit and caramelized oranges; blueberry lime smoothie cream; poached wild salmon with fresh dill and tournedos Rossini with morel mushroom pâté; and a dessert specially created for the guests' gastronomical enjoyment.

"The annual Culinary Arts dinner has been a signature event for the Moraine Park Foundation to benefit their student scholarships fund. This year the Foundation made it possible for more than 100 Moraine Park students to enroll full-time through the scholarships they received," said Sharon Nevins Holmes, Moraine Park vice president of marketing and college advancement. "It's a great event - a superb dining experience and a true benefit to our students' educational goals."

The cost is $100 per person, with the dinner limited to 50 guests. To register, call Debbie Martin at 920-924-3263.

The Moraine Park Foundation Inc. is a tax-exempt, nonprofit corporation. Its purpose is to solicit, receive and administer gifts, bequests and property for the development, promotion and benefit of Moraine Park. ## Christopher Niver solo exhibition at MWA

The Museum of Wisconsin Art is proud to announce a solo exhibition of the embroidered works by Milwaukee's Christopher Niver. Christopher graduated with a BFA from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and received his MFA from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. In 2006 he received a Wisconsin Arts Board Fellowship and the Greater Milwaukee Foundation's Mary L. Nohl Fellowship. Niver is part of MWA's One from Wisconsin solo exhibition series. The exhibition will open on Wednesday, April 2nd and close on Wednesday, April 30th.

Niver's works look like they could have been made by a Nineteenth Century sailor. Using black thread on white cotton fabric he creates hand-stitched vignettes of exotic people and places. Secluded grottoes lush with vegetation, stagnant pools of water, and ominous skull shaped islands. The people are large, muscle bound and hairy men who are hiding something behind their excesses. Niver says that while his works can be funny at times they also address serious issues. He states as one example, "The imaginary sailor who is subject to the tender mercies of the sea." His landscapes meditate on the frailty of nature, death and loneliness.

The Museum of Wisconsin Art (formerly the West Bend Art Museum) is America's newest regional art museum housing the premier collection of Wisconsin art. Its Early Wisconsin Collection (1830-1960) is the finest anywhere and the work of Milwaukee native and artist Carl von Marr (1858-1936) is given prominence with his magnum opus The Flagellants (1889) at 14' x 26', listed as one of the must-see objects in the state. Contemporary art is regularly displayed through temporary exhibitions and the monthly One from Wisconsin solo exhibition series. The MWA is open Wednesdays through Fridays, 10:00 am to 4:30 pm, Saturdays from 10:00 am to 4:30 pm, and Sundays from 1:00-4:30 pm. It is located at 300 South Sixth Avenue, West Bend, WI. ## Kewaskum Chamber of Commerce APPRECIATION Dinner and Style Show Everyday we come across people we appreciate. We show our appreciation by gifts, cards and a simple "thank you". What if there was an outside the box idea for that person who has everything or deserves something more than a simple "thank you"?

The Kewaskum Area Chamber of Commerce has a solution. Their annual Appreciation Style Show Dinner will be held on Wednesday, April 23 at the Amerahn Ballroom

Kayak connections

In April there is a bonus "Evening with Nature Series" program at the Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit - "Kayak Connections." The program will be held on Tuesday, April 15, from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67 half mile west of Dundee. Has this lingering winter dampened your spirit? Are you dreaming about kayaking down a flowing river or across a beautiful lake, but never tried kayaking and don't know how to get started? Then come on April 15th to wet your appetite for the upcoming paddling season. Tom Koeppen and his friends from the Northeast Paddlers will introduce you to the sport of kayaking. They will cover what gear and skills are needed for this wonderful silent sport. They will share where to go kayaking especially here in southeast Wisconsin. They will also tell how to connect with on the water classes and kayaking groups. If you are not careful, they may even turn you into a kayaking enthusiast.

at 4:30pm, with the dinner at 6:15 p.m.

A little over 18 years ago, members were trying to find ways to raise money to support and promote activities in the community. There had been a long-standing Washington County Secretaries' organization that promoted their "Secretaries Day" on the fourth Wednesday of April. This gave the Kewaskum Chamber members an idea, to promote secretaries from the Kewaskum area.

Hon-E-Kor's Jane Korh and Hair on Main's Wendi Dreher proposed the idea of a luncheon and style show for the working woman not just secretaries. Korh and Dreher with help from Kathy Rohlinger, and Diane Schickert started with 45 ladies.

As the event grew, two set-

KHS Talent Show May 9

On Friday, May 9, the Kewaskum High School Swing Choir will be sponsoring the annual Talent Night. This year the event will be held in the KHS Theater and will begin at 7:00 p.m.

Any member of the Kewaskum community is welcome to perform. So dust off those accordions, fiddles, and tubas and contact Dave Bertelsen at 626-8427 x4571 to make sure you are part of the biggest and best talent show ever! And if you don't want to be onstage, make sure you mark it on your calendars because you won't want to miss it!

tings at Hon-E-Kor were necessary to accommodate the over 100 ladies. It was later moved to Amerahn Ballroom.

The tradition of "just for secretaries" became obsolete. It was now an event to show one's appreciation to anyone. Since the event was close to Mother's Day, many daughters would bring their mothers. It was just one way to show their mothers just how much they were appreciated. Businessmen didn't just send their secretaries, they also sent their wives to the luncheon to show their appreciation for the work that they had done at home.

Today, groups like the Red Hat Society, Homemakers of America, continue to enjoy the dinner, fashion show and entertainment. With a mix from brides to proms, tots to teens, beach to hunting, Dreher says she continues to try and please a variety of "fashion bugs."

This year as Dreher and her committee continue to promote the woman on the go. A new twist was added a few years ago where attendees had the opportunity to shop at booths from a variety of businesses and home-based entrepreneurs.

Country Catering will again provide a delicious meal for this year's attendees while the Kewaskum Women's Club will make desserts. Dress Barn of West Bend will again show dinner guests their up to date fashions for business, dancing and pleasure.

Tickets for the event can be purchased at Hair on Main or The Candy Tree. Questions should be directed to Dreher at (262) 626-2616.

25 Years Ago

April 1, 1983

Cheryl Burkhalter and Connie Nigh, seniors at Kewaskum Community High School, have been awarded the 1983 J.O. Reigle Scholarships by Regal Ware, Inc. The $4,000 scholarships are offered annually to graduating seniors and provide $1,000 per year for a four-year college program. Cheryl is the daughter of Kenneth and Judith Burkhalter of Allenton, and ranks first in her class. Connie is the daughter of Vincent and Elvira Nigh of Kewaskum, and ranks fourth in her class.

Tuesday, April 5, is Spring Election Day in the State of Wisconsin. For the first time in Tuesday's election, the new punchcard voting system will be used in Kewaskum and Washington County.

The School Board of the School District of Kewaskum has accepted the resignation of Robert Borch, District Business Manager, effective May 1, 1983. He has accepted a position as business manager of another school district beginning May 1, 1983.

Paste and patch or maintain and repair, that is the decision Kewaskum School District taxpayers will be asked to make at a Special Meeting of the electorate scheduled for May 2.

Palm Sunday was a special day for eight young people at Peace United Church of Christ, who were confirmed in the Christian faith at the 10:45 service. Those confirmed were Todd Kirst, son of Wayne and Linda Kirst; John Markus, son of Ronald and Erma Markus, Lance Rodenkirch, son of Tom and Allyne Rodenkirch of rural Kewaskum; Edward Walz, son of Norman and Martha Walz, all of Kewaskum; Dauine Hanson, son of Dennis and Dawn Hanson, and William Gruss, Jr., son of William and Jacqueline Gruss, both of Campbellsport, and Keith Stern and Sherri Stern, children of Gerald and Donna Stern of Kewaskum.

Ralph Trapp Jr., 13, the son of Donita and Ralph Trapp Sr., Route 1, Adell, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Butzke Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trapp, who attends the Kewaskum Middle School, was named a National Award Winner by the United States Achievement Academy. Ralph was nominated by his art teacher Mr. R.J. Anglim, and is eligible for a scholarship in art.

The Kewaskum High School chess team closed out the year with its best performance at the State Meet within recent years. The Indians went 4-2 in the two day event and finished in seventh place in the 24 team event. No team went undefeated as Milwaukee Tech won the title with a 5-1 record. The five man varsity team consisted of Romie Holl, Gregg Classey, Ed Ham, Tom Crandell and Jeff Igel. The Kewaskum Junior Varsity brought home the third place trophy at the State Meet. The top four players contributed to the team score. The players were Glenn Classey, 5-1, Todd Jaromin, 4-2; Steve Hubbell 4-2 and Brian Pamperin 3-2-1 for 16-1/2 points. Other players competing for Kewaskum were John Martin, Frank Voge, Randy Igel and Randy Wilhelmi.

A son was born to Dan and Jennifer Schroeder, Kewaskum, on March 28. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Homer Schaub, Kewaskum, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Schroeder of Long Lake. A son, Matthew Aaron, was born to Keith and Susan Polster, West Bend, on March 25. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ostrander, Kewaskum, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James Polster, Theresa. ## Sylvan Learning's Helpful Hints for Student Success:

It's Not So Gr8 When Email Slang Slips Into Students' Schoolwork, Teacher Survey Says

By: Barbara Hampton, Center Director

Plz practice your writing B4 U head bak 2 school. C U in a few wkz.

Millions of children (and adults!) use language like this to chat with friends, make weekend plans and stay in touch with out-of-town relatives via email and Instant Messaging (IM). According to a survey conducted by Sylvan Learning Center, 91% of teachers nationwide say they do not accept the use of this informal writing style in their students' assignments and tests.

Email and IM style of writing isn't completely bad, since it does encourage students to write more often. In fact, more than three quarters (76%) of teachers surveyed agree that children can benefit from email and IM as learning opportunities.

When crafting emails, children are challenged to carefully choose their words, keep it simple and use relatively few words to convey tone and meaning appropriately. The popularity of Internet writing is also helping children see writing as a fun activity that encourages creative writing, and not just something they "have to do."

What Parents Need to Know

Help your child develop an understanding of the writing process by spending time thinking about a writing project, developing a brief outline and rewriting drafts. By showing your children that writing is a multi-step process and not always instantaneous, parents can help their children make the shift to an academic style of writing easier.

What Parents Can Do

Parents can make the most of their child's interest in email and other computer writing by helping them to avoid using an informal style of writing too often. Show children that writing can be more than a means of communicating with another person by introducing them to online journaling or Web sites that publish children's poems, letters, editorials, essays or stories.

Sylvan Learning Center offers parents the following tips to avoid IM and email-style language making its way into schoolwork:

Talk to children about using different writing styles to communicate with different audiences. Describe the importance of personalizing messages and why it's important that students know their audience. While it's okay to close a letter with "C ya" to a friend in an IM, it is not okay to include this slang in homework assignments. Remind them that formality is required in school.

Review schoolwork for IM and email style language. Encourage your children to write properly and take the time to carefully review assignments several times before submitting them to the teacher. Review your child's homework to ensure he or she is not using shortcuts or slang.

Talk with children to establish ground rules for using IM and email. Work with your child to develop a plan for using IM and email to make sure other responsibilities, such as completing homework and chores, are met before going online to chat with friends.

Encourage your child to read. Read with your child at least 15 minutes per day - or one hour per week - since reading will help teach children about sentence structure, grammar and vocabulary. Reading and writing support each other and good readers become good writers. The more your child does of each, the better she will be at both.

About the Survey

To understand teachers' experiences with email an Instant Messaging, Sylvan conducted an online survey with teachers who use Book Adventure, a free reading motivation program created by Sylvan Learning Center. More than 1,176 public and private school teachers throughout North America participated in this survey.

KMS holds dance for Bridges of Wisconsin clients

KMS 8th grader Samantha Smallish (center) gets a hug from some of her new friends from Bridges of Wisconsin.

Dancing and having a great time was the main event at a KMS 8th grade service project that turned into a memorable life experience for many area youth.

By Amber Donath
Statesman Correspondent

Recently, the Kewaskum Middle School (KMS) 8th grade class was looking for a service project to complement their character education focus in the advisement program here. Their focus has been on the virtues of citizenship, caring, leadership and cooperation.

"I was talking with my aunt about some of the outings that my uncle goes on with Bridges of Wisconsin, a group that cares for clients with special needs in West Bend, and thought it would be fun to have the kids plan a party for them, as it would hit many of our learned virtues," said Nikki Airaudi, a KMS 8th grade teacher.

During Wednesday advisement group time, the 8th grade students planned every part of the party - from invitations to decorations to food and activities. They were divided up into committees and had approximately four 20-minute sessions to complete all of the planning - a big job in a short amount of time!

The day of the St. Patrick's Day themed dance arrived.

There were 32 students along with several teachers and parent helpers in attendance, not to mention the more than 25 guests from Bridges of Wisconsin.

"It was really amazing watching the kids begin to open up and relate with the Bridges clients as the party went on," said Airaudi. "When the dance began, the kids didn't seem to know how to act. Staff and parents encouraged KMS students to begin interacting with their guests. As the afternoon went on, each of the kids seemed to find one or two Bridges guests that they developed a bond with and were fully involved in making sure that person had a great time. By the end, all of the kids and Bridges clients were together, singing, dancing, laughing and having a great time!"

The students in attendance truly enjoyed themselves. The feedback has been nothing but positive. Haley Derge said, "I didn't expect to have that much fun at this party."

Bryanna Juers added, "It really gave me an appreciation for how lucky I am."

The guests had a wonderful time, too. They all went home with prizes, pictures and full bellies! Many even grabbed the microphone to sing a song with their new friends.

The Bridges of Wisconsin caregivers were impressed with the outing, explaining that many of their clients rarely are able to socialize in an environment that is just for them. They were also impressed with how sweet and caring the KMS students were.

FES receives Best Buy Teach Award Grant

FES fourth grade teacher Lora Schreiber wrote a grant that awarded FES a $2,000 Best Buy Teach Award.

By Amber Donath
Statesman Correspondent

Farmington Elementary School (FES) is excited to announce that it has received a $2,000 Teach Award from Best Buy Co., Inc. for integrating interactive technology into its curriculum.

FES is in the fourth year of its five-year plan to incorporate environmental education into the curriculum while also beautifying the schoolyard's landscape. Students, staff and community members have plotted, prepared sites, and planted prairie areas and a demonstration garden. This grant will provide students access to binoculars, cameras, and printers, thus enhancing their opportunities to research, record, and publish their hands-on learning.

"For more than 10 years we have had a 15-house bluebird trail, but never had the proper equipment to observe the birds and perform other field study objectives," says Lora Schreiber, FES fourth grade teacher and grant writer. "Now, with this award we will be able to purchase binoculars to identify birds and other animals from a distance so as to not disturb them. We will also be able to have kid-friendly digital cameras and printers to capture plants, animals, insects and more in our prairie sites, which will add a new dimension to our scientific discoveries and enhance student projects.

This year, Best Buy Teach Awards of $2,000 were given to 1,300 schools to sustain or enhance existing educational programs. An additional 50 schools were awarded $10,000 for technology-based programs they've successfully implemented. Eight school districts will also receive $100,000 awards, which will be announced in May 2008.

"Teachers are finding creative ways to engage students by using technology hands-on; we want to support their efforts by helping them enhance or expand these programs," said Paula Prahl, vice president, public affairs, Best Buy Co., Inc. "We know that schools are the cornerstones of these communities where our employees, customers, and their families live and work."

Since 2003, the Best Buy Teach Award Program has rewarded schools that creatively integrate interactive technology into their curricula. Over the past four years, nearly 5,000 schools nationwide have received $14 million in Teach Awards, reaching 1.5 million K-12 students. All accredited, public and private nonprofit elementary, middle and secondary schools located within 50 miles of a Best Buy store are eligible.

Visit www.BestBuy.com/CommunityRelations for more information about how Best Buy supports communities and the education and technology-based partnerships and programs.

MEMORIAM

In memory of JENNIFER LYNN SCHICKERT, on her 25th birthday, April 11.

We miss you on your birthday
Not only for your smile
We'd like you to be with us
If only for a while.

This should be a happy day
To spend with those you love
The last ten years without you
Just watching from heaven above.

So we celebrate without you
The best way we know how
We celebrate the memories

Happy Birthday Jenny
We miss you!

Love, Dad, Mom,
Mike, Becky,
Joey, Danica
and Molly

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of LESTER STROBEL, who passed away four years ago on 4/14/04.

We think of you in silence,
And often say your name,
But all that's left to answer us,
Is your picture in a frame,
We often look at your picture
And your smile seems to say,
Don't grieve for me, I'm only resting.
And you'll see me someday."

Deeply missed by family

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of JOHN STEGER, who passed away 10 years ago, April 9, 1998:

They say memories are golden,
Well, maybe that is true.
But we never wanted memories,
We only wanted you.

If we had one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
We'd pray to God so hard,
For yesterday and you.

If teardrops were a stairway
And heartaches make a lane,
We'd walk a path to Heaven
And bring you back again.

A thousand times we needed you.
A thousand times we cried.
If our love could have saved you,
You never would have died.

Where Are You Now?

By Mary Higgins Clark

Simon & Schuster, $25.95 289 pages

MARY HIGGINS CLARK

Did you ever have one of those days where you just want to step away from the world and maybe disappear for a minute?

We all go through times when we're just better-off left alone. Some people, though, take that to an extreme.

When Carolyn MacKenzie's brother disappeared ten years ago, the family was frantic. It wasn't like Mack to do something like that. In the new novel, "Where Are You Now?" by Mary Higgins Clark, Carolyn fears that something bad happened to Mack. But then the calls arrive...

Every Mother's Day, Charles "Mack" MacKenzie, Jr., the only son of wealthy New Yorkers, makes his annual call to his mother, who hasn't seen Mack since he walked out of his apartment 10 years ago, and vanished. The phone might ring at 3am. A few years ago, he called a little after midnight. He doesn't say much; one or two sentences, and the line is dead.

Carolyn, Mack's sister, was sixteen when her brother disappeared, and his furtiveness has marked her entire adult existence. She's spent ten years wondering if Mack is sick or in trouble. She's put her life on hold, unable to move forward.

So when he last called, something snapped.

Carolyn screamed at Mack, telling him that she would find him, but Mack doesn't want to be found. He left Carolyn a note, warning her to stop her search. Ignoring the note, the demands of her mother and the pleas of her late father's lawyer (who has fallen in love with Carolyn's mother), Carolyn decides to find Mack. She needs closure. Her mother needs to put everything to rest. Life needs to go on, whether Mack wants to be a part of it or not.

Then another person disappears, and it doesn't seem to be voluntarily.

Coed Leeseey Andrews was out with friends at a local nightclub, coincidentally owned by Mack's former roommate, Nick. When her friends left early, Leeseey stayed to party and never returned home. The police are looking for her, but the search becomes more frantic when the phone call arrives.

"Please, Daddy, he says he's going to kill me."

Suddenly, knowing where

Mack is now is a matter of life or death.

In every mystery, there comes an AHA moment: "Aha! The brother is the killer!" or "Aha! It's the sister!" or "Aha! The butler did it!"

You'll have a few dozen AHA moments when you read this latest from Mystery Maven Mary Higgins Clark.

"Where Are You Now?" is a surprisingly fast read with just enough characters to throw you off the trail and just enough action to keep you turning the pages. It's the kind of mystery that you can give to anyone who loves sleuthfests because the heroine is smart, the bad guys are completely without merit, the ending isn't frustrating, there are no lovingly gruesome scenes and no four-letter words.

"Where Are You Now?" If you're smart, you'll be standing in the "mystery" section of your local bookstore or library, looking for this great novel.

It's Time for a Water Policy

For years I have been talking about concerns over water; its availability and quality. You have heard me say many times that I feel the next major battle between rural and urban America will be over water; who gets it, its quality and how it gets used.

There is no question we need water to sustain life. Industry needs water to provide employment and produce goods. Agriculture needs water to produce food, and as individuals we need water to wash cars, to cook and to water the lawn. All of us need water.

Whenever I spend time in Scottsdale in the Valley of the Sun in Arizona, the importance of water becomes even more apparent. That is why this past week, while spending several days in Arizona, I was very surprised at a front page headline of the Sunday Arizona Republic. The headline read "Water Bounty; The Reservoirs Are Filling." In the 22 years I have been visiting Arizona, I don't ever recall reading that kind of a headline. But then in small letters underneath, it said, "however, the drought is not over."

Yes, it is possible to have a drought in the middle of the desert. The drought in Arizona is now in its eighth year in a state that averages a little over 8 inches of rain annually. State meteorologists, as well as citizens, were anticipating another very dry winter because of La Nina, but it turned out to be just the opposite. As a matter of fact, from November 30th until the end of February, a three-month period, four-and-one-third inches of rain fell in the Valley of the Sun. Suddenly, water canals and reservoirs were filling and Roosevelt Lake east of Phoenix registered water depth increases of ten to twelve feet in one day. With a good snow pack in the mountains that feed the Colorado River, they are looking forward to good water supplies as we go into the summer in Arizona.

But it is a reminder once again, of how critical the supply of water can be and what an impact it has on our lives. People who live in the Desert Southwest are much more aware of that than those of us in other parts of the country where water is more plentiful. I vividly recall getting my first water bill after building a house in Scottsdale in 1992; the bill was so big I thought it was an offer for my house!

This all brings me to my final point; the need for a national water policy that supercedes state borders and local governments, that promotes wise use and conservation and that fairly allocates water to satisfy the needs of all of us. If you think water shortages can't happen to you, let me suggest you read "The Drying of the West" in a recent issue of National Geographic Magazine; it will get your attention and hopefully, will stimulate a national dialogue to establish a national water policy.

My thoughts on Samuelson Sez.

Bed liners for dummies? DualLiner is newest tenant in former Regal factory

KEWASKUM- The once thriving Regal Ware factory in Kewaskum is well on it's way to humming once again. DualLiner, a company producing bed liners for pickup trucks has taken up residency in the Second Street industrial building.

DualLiner occupies 11,000 square feet there that they use as their main office and warehouse. The group chose Kewaskum as their headquarters because it's somewhat centrally located between the company's owners.

Manufacturing is outsourced to a company in Southeastern Wisconsin. As demand increases, they say they intend to build a manufacturing facility in the area.

"One of the things we base our criteria on is our country. We believe we should keep the opportunities here. We want to bring manufacturing here. Our volumes are reaching a point where it makes sense to do things ourselves," the company's General Manager Bryndan O'Hara exclaimed.

Once a plant is built, O'Hara expected the company would add 15-20 new jobs, most being in their manufacturing department.

DualLiner was born after one of the owners met the inventor of the unique truck accessory at the Specialty Equipment Market Association (SEMA) trade show in Las Vegas a number of years ago.

O'Hara, explains the company came together about six years ago. He's been a part of the company's leadership for about three and a half years. "I stumbled across the product. After driving trucks for 30 years, I finally I've tried the others and none of them work," he says.

As any truck owner would attest to, bed liners are slippery. The key to DualLiner's product is the zero-skid mat combined with the hard polyethylene sides.

O'Hara touts that the product's ease of installation is the second part of it's recent rise to popularity. There are four steps, taking 15-20 minutes to install. 1) Add the load guard to the front of the truck bed. 2) Install the sides to your truck bed. 3) Unroll and install the zero-skid mat. 4) Install the tailgate piece.

The bed liner also comes with a lifetime warranty that can be transferred to any new owners of the truck the bed is installed in.

O'Hara also points out that only one of the company's five owners was a pickup owner. The non-truck owners had foresight, and bought in to the company because of the product's simplicity.

Because of their belief in the American economy, DualLiner will only work in full-size American trucks. "We need to keep it close to home, we believe in America. Our goal is not about making lots of money; it's about being part of America and driving our economy forward," O'Hara professed.

Locally, the DualLiner product is available at Moose's 4 x 4 in Hartford and Just the Details in Slinger. However it can also be ordered from the Company's website www.dualliner.com. The website also contains a list of the available truck models where DualLiner can be used.

The product ships in a box with five pieces which O'Hara says is "very appealing to people." "Retailers like it because it's easy to handle and store," O'Hara explained.

Regal Ware among best plants during Industry Week

WEST BEND- Regal Ware World-wide hosted 70 people for plant tours as part of Industry Week's '08 Best Plants Conference which was held April 1-3 in Milwaukee. The tours were conducted April 1 and 2 at Regal Ware's Schmidt Road facility.

Regal Ware was among a select group of industry leaders targeted for tours during the conference to showcase operational excellence in action. Other companies highlighted were Miller Brewing Company, Quad Graphics, John Deere, Signicast Corporation, Gardner Denver, and Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

In opening remarks to the tour groups Regal Ware's President and CEO Jeff Reigle said, "We are now in our third year of focusing on Lean principles in the operation of our business. 'Lean' is a way of life for our company because it gives results; and those results allow us to remain committed to manufacturing the majority of our products right here in West Bend and Kewaskum. This continuous improvement management approach focuses on driving all waste out of all operations; and the result is better value for our customers"

That sentiment was mirrored during a product demonstration conducted as part of the tour by Regal Ware customer John LaBracke, President of Waukesha-based Lifetime Cookware Associates.

Tour guests at the Regal Ware facility included manufacturing leaders from companies as diverse as Abbott Diabetes Care, Bucyrus International, Ford Motor Company, and Nestle.

Industry Week connects decision-makers within manufacturing enterprises to share ideas and tools that inspire action. Its award-winning presentation of trends, news, analysis, research and peer-to-peer conversation motivates manufacturing leaders to achieve their goals. found a bed liner that worked., O'Hara exclaimed.

O'Hara pointed out that there are only two reasons why truck owners invest in a bed liner. "They want it to protect the truck and protect cargo,

Possible sale of National City Bank reported

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

Customers at the new National City Bank might not want to purchase new checks just yet. The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported Wednesday that the large banking organization might be up for sale.

Citing exposure to mortgages the company was reported as saying they are "reviewing a range of strategic alternatives for the company."

Just over a month ago customers made the switch from being Mid-

America Bank customers. The year prior customers made the switch from being St. Francis Bank customers.

National City has a branch locally in Kewaskum and West Bend as well as 22 more in the state.

The article reported that the bank has hired investment bank Goldman Sachs to help with strategic planning. It also reported that Standard & Poor's Corporation lowered its outlook for National City to negative from stable, citing estimated losses from losses on home mortgages.

APRIL FOOLISH...Mother Nature gives anglers cold shoulder

Eric Tufto of Wausau prepares to release a walleye taken on the Fox River at DePere and netted by Justin Gaiche of Wausau with the help of a headlamp.

Mother Nature calls the shots. She dictates who wins and loses on the water. When she's angry, it matters little what river experts might be standing next to you in waders on the Fox at the midnight hour, how much knowledge they carry, what lures are in the arsenals or how many walleyes in the 10 pound class may be in the current just a pitch away. What you've done in the past in the same spot, on the same day a year or two ago is rendered meaningless. She says if you will have walleyes tonight or if you head home at 3:00 am, running on "almost empty". Today, I don't like Mother Nature.

For 20 years, Phil Schweik has traveled from guiding on his home waters of the Wisconsin River near Mosinee north of Wausau to work the Fox River at DePere during the same two day April window. Like the draw to Mississippi Pool 4 showcased recently, Wisconsin anglers will travel long distances to find excellent walleye fishing on the Fox, the Wisconsin, The Rock, The Wolf or the Mississippi, the human migrations becoming heavier to those waters with reputations for holding big fish. Some anglers follow the spring runs dictated by water temperature south to north on the same rivers, or jump rivers to find as much heavy action as possible. To the Wisconsin walleye addict, the fact that water temperatures reach the magic 42 degree mark at different times in different places is a very good thing indeed.

"I was fishing the Wisconsin River dam at Domtar Friday and the walleyes were in 25 feet of water in 34.7 degree water temperature," Schweik said. "Downriver 12 miles the fish were eight to 10 feet shallower in 38 degree water temperature."

For two decades, Schweik and company have penciled in "superb" fishing as a sure bet on the Fox April 1st and 2nd with 50, 60, or 70 walleyes per angler the expectation. The average fish...the majority of fish...stretch the tape between 22 and 27 inches. The occasional 28 and 29 and 30 inch fish is a daily occurrence. And, the obese fish even 34 inches in length and pushing an unbelievable 15 pounds is taken here at DePere every March or April

Almost light-headed with that knowledge, I pointed the truck to DePere intent on shore fishing all night with a school of true angling experts; Schweik, a multi-species guide with Hooksetters Fishing Services and Gander Mountain Pro Staff member; Professional Guide Justin Gaiche of Wausau, television host of Hooked Up; MWC Professional walleye angler Adam Rasmussen of Stevens Point, who would work the shallow current and rocks from his Ranger; and avid angler Eric Tufto of Wausau. On this April 1st nocturnal walleye hunt though, Mother Nature was waiting patiently in the wings with an April Fools joke...just for us.

Two days prior to our trip, Schweik's friend had visited the Fox and scored a 50 fish night. Two days after our trip, the catch of other angling acquaintances would include three walleyes over 28 inches and a 31-1/2 inch pig. Comfortable air temperatures around 40 degrees and normal current speed and water clarity in the two to four foot depths marked each "book-end" trip.

"I talk to a lot of fishermen every day," Schweik said. "Every one of them said Tuesday of our trip was the absolute worst day that we could have come here. We had run off from heavy snow Saturday and Sunday plus a major cold front that sent consistent 40 degree air temperatures to 15 degrees; a 25 degree difference. They opened the dam gates and we walked into high, fast water as muddy as chocolate milk that had been low, clear and slow. It dramatically pushed the walleyes out of their pattern."

That pattern annually sees thousands of spawning walleyes including an extremely high number of trophy fish move off of Green Bay to travel up the Fox to the dam. Hundreds of boats will be anchored near the dam to greet them. Typically, as night falls the fish will move even shallower where anglers in waders throwing crankbaits also find fishing fast. Typically, fast current will not bother the schools, but the conditions had sent our walleyes deep. Rasmussen would report in the wee hours from his Ranger that his electronics had revealed stacks of walleyes in deep, protected pools with no appetite for a midnight snack.

Rasmussen had dropped us off from the boat on an island just off the dam and spawning current intent on fishing all night with the aid of headlamps. The plan called for wading the river and working the two to four foot current, eddies and protected pools with #5 and #7 shad raps, thundersticks, or any relatively small floating crankbait.

"One real key is using no stretch braided super line like Cortland Spectrum or Power Pro," said Schweik. "They're real thin diameter. With a long rod and a light drag you can get the lures out into the current and down and the line resists abrasion on the rocks where they spawn."

Now, catching and releasing three walleyes at 26, 25 and 20 inches wouldn't be considered bad on most Wisconsin waters over five hours of fishing. But this was the Fox River, on April 1st, and I was fishing with four experts. My friends headed northwest and I was on my way home shortly after midnight for a two hour ride home to New Berlin.

"It doesn't matter who you are or what you know sometime," Schweik said. "Because when she wants to, Mother Nature shows us just who's in control."

KIWC was bigger and better this year

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

No "sophomore jinx" for the Kewaskum Indian Wrestling Club.

To the contrary, the second year was better than the first ... better in so far as the number of participants, better as in the number of trophies the team brought home, and better organization by splitting the group up into the older and younger wrestlers.

And oh yes, more participants won matches this winter, and most everyone had fun, according to head coach Tim Hardy.

Fun was also a part of the annual KIWC Banquet, which was held Sunday night in the high school's cafeteria. Team members and their parents first met for a couple games of bowling.

Concerning how many people were in attendance Sunday, Hardy said, "I think it was about 120." After feasting on a tasty pot luck dinner, there was plenty of time to celebrate the team's successes.

"We placed in six tournaments," Hardy said. "I believe we had two firsts." Those came at Berlin and Random Lake.

The club was represented at the Wisconsin Kids Folks Style Tournament by five wrestlers, and two of them, Zach Smith and L.J. Pinchard, placed fifth in their respective age and weight classes. (See accompanying story on the state competition.)

Smith, a fifth grader, had the most matches for the year, a total of 72, and his season record was an impressive 60-12.

Hardy is optimistic three of the current eighth graders, who competed in a lot of tournaments this winter, will do very well when they compete for the high school.

"Lance Pinchard is one of the eighth graders we're losing. He was one of the wrestlers who made it to state," Hardy said. "He lost to the eventual state champion.

Hardy went on, "I think he'll fit right in" on the high school team.

"Mike Bier, I think will do real well in high school, too," Hardy went on, also praising Andy Doll. "It seems like at every tournament, they were going up against each other," the coach said, adding, "I hope one of them gets heavier."

Pinchard finished the year with a mark of 34-8, while Bier was 21-11 and Doll 11-11.

Joey Wollner is another eighth grader with potential, according to Hardy.

"We had several kids get third at regionals. They take two (to state)," the coach said, hopeful some of them will move up the extra place next season.

Two wrestlers Hardy expects to do very well next season are Joey Seitz (6th grade) and Austin Goeden (7th), who both finished third in the regionals.

"He lost his first match of the year at the regional," Hardy said about Seitz. "It was really too bad ... just a little mental lapse."

"He's (Seitz) going to be a good one," the coach said.

"Austin did a really good job. He ended up third at regionals. He's one who could have made it," Hardy said about Goeden, who posted his second straight 30-win season.

The KIWC had 70 members this year. "Last year I think we were around fifty," Hardy said, adding, "The way the community is growing, we're just going to keep on growing."

While the parents sang the praises of Hardy and Dave Goeden, who coached the younger wrestlers, Hardy said, "We've got a super group of parents. You couldn't ask for any better. They are always willing to help. Any night at practices, you'll have at least five days helping. That's a big plus."

Hardy also announced the younger wrestlers will have an excellent opportunity to stay in shape this summer, with the addition of the Scott Rhoads Camp. It starts June 10th and runs three nights a week, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays until Aug. 28th. The camp will be broken into two age groups, grades fifth through eighth and those in high school.

More information on the camp will be available closer to the starting date.

Clapper is a bright sapot for Lady Indians at Oshkosh

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

Just two places was all the Kewaskum High girls track team could garner in the annual Oshkosh Indoor Invitational held at the Kolf Field House on the UW-Oshkosh campus on April 1.

Catholic Memorial of Waukesha won the competition and did so quite convincingly, piling up 53 points. Little Chute also turned in some good efforts toward a second place with 47 points, followed by Southern Door, 36.50; Sevastopol, 35; and Oshkosh Lourdes, 29 to round out the top five.

Kewaskum finished 18th with 11 points.

"We did not have a good meet," KHS coach Jerry Gosa said, figuring the lack of practice during the Easter break might have been responsible for the sub-par effort. "Our girls were not sharp last week."

There was nothing sub par about the performance of Alissa Clapper in the pole vault. Clapper, a junior, won the event after clearing 9 feet (9-0). "She had a couple good efforts at 9-6, too," Gosa said.

Clapper earned 10 points for the Lady Indians, and the other point was scored by Nichole Kison in her first try at running the 800. Her time in the event was 2 minutes, 38 and .04 seconds (2:38.04) for eighth place in a big field.

The two Indian high jumpers, Candace Beine and Jessie Liniewski both cleared 4-10 and tied for 12th place, with a logjam of jumpers two inches ahead of them and the winner going 5-2.

None of the KHS long jumpers had gotten in any outdoor practice before this meet, but Kison finished 16th out of 48 competitors with a jump of 14-3.50, and Heather Schmitt also made the top half of the field, placing 21st at 13-11.25.

The biggest disappointment of the day came when the baton was dropped by the Indians in the 4x200 relay. Even with the miscue, the KHS foursome of Clapper, Kison, Liniewski and senior Kelly Uelmen earned a clocking of 1:59.73, good for 12th out of 40 teams.

"It was a lost opportunity for Uelmen," Gosa said, referring to the fact this was her last chance to run at Oshkosh.

Among the other KHS performances were: 1,600 — Helen Schoeborn, 6:20.48, 26th out of 45; 3,200 — Tonya Janssen, 14:28.93, 19th; 55 hurdles — Clapper, 10.66, 28th; shot put — Lacy Taylor, 28-6, 27th; 4x400 relay — Kison, Megan Thornton, Schmitt, Megan Struck, 4:48.64, 28th; and 4x800 — Crystal Lepp, Stephanie Abramovich, Jessie Beaupre, Janssen, 11:29.96; 33rd.

The Lady Indians are at the Crusader Invitational in Waukesha this Saturday. Start time is 9:30 a.m.

Butler named EWC honorable mention

Kewaskum Indians' basketball player Anna Butler was honored for her great play this season by being named honorable mention all-conference to the Eastern Wisconsin Conference. The 5'6" sophomore led the Indians to four wins and also in scoring with 9.2 points per game.
