School District makes administration changes, Dreher new KHS Associate Principal

By Andrew Kuehl
Statesman Publisher

Ignatowski replaces Kalina as Curriculum Coordinator, will principal at new Kewaskum Career Academy, Lazarevic given new technologies title

KEWASKUM- Less than a year on the job, Anne Ignatowski will leave her Associated Principal position at Kewaskum High School to move up the district's administrative ladder. KMS teacher Kris Dreher will move over to KHS to replace Ignatowski starting July 1. These changes come in addition to a number of other administrative changes approved by The Board of Education Monday evening.

According to Kewaskum Schools' Business Manager Paul Reichert, the changes were unanimously approved during a closed session meeting held Monday, June 9. Board members also approved a proposal for administrative salaries and benefits for 2008-09.

Ignatowski championed the proposal to start the Kewaskum Career Academy. She began her career at KHS in 1997 as a social studies teacher. She replaced Tom Fischer last year when he was moved to KES as principal.

Once in her new administrative position, Ignatowski will receive $74,475. As Associate Principal at KHS she received $60,000 and worked 220 days per year. She now will be employed full-time by the district and will work from the new administration building.

Dreher is a seventh grade teacher at KMS and has been teacher-in-charge (filling in for a building principal when he or she is out of the building) for the last three years. She has worked in the Kewaskum School District for 12 years, teaching sixth through eighth grade Social Studies and Language Arts.

"I'm committed to this community and glad to stay within this community pursuing the next step in my education career of becoming an administrator. I enjoy the students and staff of this district. I wouldn't change that for anything. I'm very excited about this new direction in my career," Dreher stated.

Dreher attended the University of Wisconsin- Oshkosh for one and a half years, later graduating from Concordia University in Mequon with an education degree and a minor in coaching. She received her Masters Degree in Administration from Concordia.

She will be paid $64,000 for the 2008-2009 school year.

Jane Lazarevic who has worked for the district as Instructional Technology Coordinator has been promoted to a newly created position of Director of Technology. In her new role she will supervise all aspects of the district's information systems and technology programs.

Lazarevic will continue her role in training and assisting teachers in using technology in the classroom working from KHS. She will begin her new position on July 1. She will receive a salary of $80,000.

Melinda Krumm, who has been employed for the last year as Summer School and Paraprofessional Coordinator will officially take on the hat of substitute principal in the event a building principal needs to take a leave of absence for medical or other reasons.

Reichert explained the need for this came up after a principal needed to take an extended leave of absence during the 2007-08 year. The district has used teachers in charge at district buildings for principal absences less than a day for the last 20 years and will continue. When absences are longer than a day, Krumm will take charge. The teacher in charge program began when multiple schools were managed by one principal.

Krumm received a 90-day contract worth $24,300 for the 2008-09 school year. However this is separate from when she is a substitute principal. She is compensated at the same rate while substituting.

A list of the salaries for the 2008-09 school year can be found posted with this story on our website.

Community flooded with rain rants

Kewaskum firefighters work on pumping water from a flooded Edgewood Road early Sunday, June 8 at 12:30 a.m.. Firefighters were called in by the Department of Public Works to help with pumping water out of the roadway and storm sewer into a nearby creek. Fire Chief Mark Groeschel stated his department pumped water from the storm sewer to the creek at the intersection of Knights Avenue and Edgewood. From the intersection at Forest Avenue and Edgewood, firefighters laid 900 feet of large diameter hose and pumped first the street, then from the storm sewer to the creek. Department of Public Works Director Jerry Gilles stated that from Monday, June 2 until Monday, June 9 the Village received 10.3 inches of rain. The largest amount received was Saturday when 4.2" were measured. An additional 3" was measured Sunday. More photos can be found throughout this edition and on our website.

School District looking for honorees for Outstanding Service Award

Last year, the Kewaskum School Board suggested administration look into different ways the District could start recognizing those who have dedicated part of their life for the benefit of children.

Kewaskum High School Principal Christine Horbas assembled a committee made up of community members, parents, students, and employees. They met for the first time in late August and worked throughout the fall developing a system to recognize past employees and community volunteers who have made an impact on students in the Kewaskum District.

The new award, which will be given out for the first time this coming fall, is called the Outstanding Service Award. Criteria were determined to be: longevity of service, impact on kids, and contribution to the District. Honorees will have their name, dates of service, and position(s) engraved and placed on the Wall of Outstanding Service.

The first three years, the district is looking to recognize many of those people who served students in past years, honoring up to fifteen people each year. In addition, posthumous nominations will be considered.

After a three-year window, only three to five honorees will be chosen each year. All nominations will remain active and will be reviewed each year until they are accepted.

Nominations are now being accepted through June 30, 2008. To obtain a nomination form, go to www.kewaskum-schools.org or call the District at 262-626-8427 and have one mailed to your home.

The selection committee will meet in late spring. Honorees will be notified by July 15th, and the honoring recognition will take place during the Homecoming Halftime Show on October 10, 2008.

Village offers community dumpster for flood refuse

Habitat needs help

Habitat for Humanity volunteers, Kevin Hinz and Gayle Van Ess, enjoy sunny skies on Saturday, June 7 as they begin to lay shingles on the Glacial Street house being built in Kewaskum. Habitat for Humanity is seeking help during the construction process. Those who might be able to volunteer a few hours should call 626-4625 or check the work schedule on the Washington County Habitat website at www.blitzbuild.com.

The village of Kewaskum will offer its residents use of a dumpster to dispose of flood refuse. This is open to village residents only and proof of residency may be required when using the dumpster at municipal garage off Fond du Lac Avenue. Shown above is a view of Townline Road, facing north, approaching Highway H. This portion of the road was flooded Monday afternoon.

Dryer blamed for Boltonville house fire Wednesday

Department of a house fire. Deputies and firefighters from the Boltonville Fire Department were subsequently dispatched to the scene.

An investigation revealed an exhaust pipe connected to a recently used dryer was not attached to an exterior vent. This caused the dryer to expel hot exhaust into an adjacent area of combustible material located nearby. At this time investigators believe poor ventilation of the dryers exhaust appears to be the cause and do not consider the fire suspicious in nature.

Damage estimates to the residence are estimated to be in excess of $100,000. Scenic Drive between Bolton Drive and N. Paradise Road was closed for approximately an hour while firefighters remained on scene.

Boltonville firefighters, were assisted by the Fillmore Fire Department, and were successfully able to contain the fire to the basement; however, the residence suffered significant smoke damage.

Game's not over, there's The Fifth Quarter

Proud owners of The Fifth Quarter on Fond du Lac Avenue in Kewaskum are Eric and Stacey Anderson and their children Charles and Rachel.

KEWASKUM- There is a new name on the front of a familiar watering hole in the village to go and get some drinks, you might say Kewaskum's own version of Cheers. The Fifth Quarter sports bar off Fond du Lac Avenue (US Highway 45), opened recently after the closing of O'Danny's. The difference is not just new management, but The Fifth Quarter is open every day for more hours.

"We try and make everyone welcome here," said owner Eric Anderson of Kewaskum. "We get a mixed crowd in here, from kids in college, that went through high school football and older."

Anderson makes sure for anyone that comes into the bar that it is a clean establishment. He also has well-qualified bartenders, one is local bar tending legend (at least that is what his patrons call him), Barney Strobel. Strobel, 82, also of Kewaskum has been a bartender for 60 years.

"I like people, I can't just sit at home," Strobel said about what he likes about bar tending. "I can walk down here when I went to and meet the local people like I do."

Strobel mainly works just a couple of hours a day in the afternoon.

Anderson said Friday and Saturday are usually the busiest nights, but on Wednesday's there is a dart league and Thursday nights they have $2 bottles of beer and free peanut night.

"A lot of times people are coming in after golf at Hon-E-Kor or after baseball at Kiwanis Park," Anderson said.

The bar seats about 15-20 people and has a few tables to sit on as well. They have Bud Light, Miller Lite and Miller High Life on tap. To go along with the dart board, they also have a pool table. The jukebox has a variety of music, from mixed CD's to country to classic rock. Behind the bar are two HD TV's and another TV facing the tables.

Currently, the bar has $2 bottles and $2.50 Bloody Mary's during NASCAR races. Anderson plans on having drink specials and free food for next Packers season. They also have every Brewers game televised on the TV's.

"There has been a lot of history with this bar," Anderson said. "There are a lot of people happy that we are now open seven days a week and have a place to come back to."

The event was held on April 17, 2008 and raised $5,780.48. This includes $2,500 matched by Modern Woodmen's home office through the organization's Matching Funds program. The money will be used for medical bills.

"I would like to take a moment to thank everyone that purchased a benefit ticket on my behalf," Mlejnek stated. "Also, everyone that attended the benefit card party. Everything was a success. A major portion of my medical bills should be handled. Thank you all," he continued.

The Matching Funds program offers Modern Woodmen camp members nationwide the chance to show their support of a community cause, organization or individual in need by partnering with community organizations and holding fundraisers. Modern Woodmen matches money raised up to $2,500. These fundraising projects contribute more than $6 million to community needs nationwide each year.

Founded in 1883 as a fraternal benefit society, Modern Woodmen of America offers financial services and fraternal member benefits to individuals and families throughout the United States. The organization's Kewaskum camp provides a number of volunteer service and social activities for local members.

Spc. McElhatton stationed in Afghanistan

Spc. Cory McElhatton

Spc. Cory McElhatton, son of Thomas and Cheryl McElhatton, of Kewaskum, signed up to serve his country in May of 2003. His military career, in which he is a helicopter mechanic, has taken him to Korea for 18 months, Ft. Campbell for a year, Iraq for a year and he is currently stationed in Salerno, Afghanistan where he will serve for the next 15 months. After that time, his military obligation will be fulfilled. He serves with the 6th battalion, 101st C. Company.

Cory stated that he was unsure if he wanted to make the military a career. One of his options after his service is to join the Active Guard Reserve (ARG) where he could be stationed closer to home. He says he loves his job and the responsibility that goes with it.

McElhatton's position is a UH60 Blackhawk mechanic/crew chief in the medivac unit. His crew consists of a pilot, 2nd pilot, medic and himself as the mechanic. He also assists the medic on missions when needed.

A typical day for McElhatton consists of morning and afternoon maintenance meetings. He is on duty every three days and then off for three days. If they are in Organ-e, which is a small site in the mountains, then they are on duty for a full seven days. They all rotate to Organ-e once a month.

When it comes to maintenance, they have daily routine oil and fluid checks throughout the aircraft. Maintenance can vary as helicopters can be unpredictable especially in the mountains under inclement weather.

Cory's job can vary at any given time from mechanic maintainer, crew chief or working with medics on a mission.

He stated the difference between Iraq and Afghanistan is that Iraq is a war and Afghanistan is a peace keeping mission.

When not on duty, Cory enjoys hunting, fishing, riding his Harley, being outdoors and racing.

Education is what remains after one has forgotten what one has learned in school.

On the cat walk

Senior Citizens Activities, Inc. is putting on their third annual Déjà Vu Style Show and Salad Luncheon June 22.

The Senior Center is modeling clothes, jewelry, hats, scarves, etc. from consignment stores for next to nothing," she said. "Most of the clothes are between $4-$12."

"These consignment stores are more picky as far as what they accept. The clothes can't be in just any condition," treasurer of the Senior Center Anne Koppelberger said.

Koppelberger, 51, is the youngest of models and she is in her second year of modeling at this event.

"It was a blast. I had fun," Koppelberger said about modeling. "I met a lot of really nice and funny people over there. Being the treasurer I have gotten involved in many of the fundraising activities."

Feltes said most of the models are between the ages of 60 through 80. Of the 25 models, Jane Aubrey, 92, is the eldest model to hit the runway.

This year will not just be for the woman. They will be modeling men's clothing with two men modeling.

Last year they had around 100 people in attendance.

The deadline to make reservations is June 17. Reservations can either be dropped off at the Senior Center or mailed to 401 E. Washington St. West Bend, WI 53095. The show itself will be held at Jansen Family Park in West Bend. Lunch begins at 11:30 in the morning and the show starts at 1 p.m.

ment stores St. Vincent DePaul, Play'n for Pennies, Déjà vu and Once is Never Enough for sale.

Lonny Feltes, 84, has put on the show the previous years and said this is an opportunity for seniors to buy clothes at a reasonable price.

Searching for Hidden Treasures: Geocaching

"Searching for Hidden Treasures: Geocaching" is the next program in the Evening Events series at the Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit. The evening is sponsored by the Friends of the Kettle Moraine. The program will be held on Saturday, June 21, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67 half mile west of Dundee. The program is free, but donations are always gratefully accepted.

Hidden treasures... Secret codes... Challenging, beautiful natural terrain... Cool technology toys... Do these things pique your interest? Then geocaching is for you! What is geocaching? It is a great, fun-filled sport that uses the technology of GPS (global position system) satellites to locate treasures hidden by fellow geocachers. Once you get the clues from the Internet, you are off on your quest to find hidden treasures or caches.

Join Brian Geoffery and friends from the Wisconsin Geocaching Association and Jackie Scharfenberg, forest naturalist, as they provide you with the tools and knowledge to begin geocaching. Jackie will cover how to use topographic maps and orienteering compasses. Brian will explain how the GPS system works and the ins-and-outs of the sport of geocaching. The evening will end with actual treasure hunts to find nearby hidden caches.

For further information or directions to the Ice Age Visitor Center, contact the forest staff at the Ice Age Visitor Center. The staff can be reached at (920) 533-8322. The center is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Korth family has expanded Memorial Tournament

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

Anyone who has ever been a member at Hon-E-Kor Country Club or has played there regularly will attest to the fact the owners, Bud, Jim Korth, and Jane Korth have created a family atmosphere in their business.

The owners and the entire staff care about the people who play golf at their course and don't forget about them when they pass away.

Tribute will be paid to over 150 former members at the 2nd annual Hon-E-Kor Memorial Scholarship Tournament on Saturday, June 28th at the golf course.

The event was launched a year ago, mainly in the name of the late "Tudy" Korth, Bud's wife, and now it is being expanded.

"You still remember seeing them out there playing. Some of their faces are still so vivid. I think of them a lot," Jane Korth said, reporting, "When Tudy passed away, we didn't want it just to be for her, but it worked out that way the first year ... we know she would want it this way (expanded), too."

Going through the list of the deceased members, Jane Korth said thoughts of Judge Jim Schwalbach come to mind, looking at the stone near the spot where he dumped hundreds of tee shots into the pond on No. 14.

"There's Tudy and LaVern (Hron) and Audrey (Bartelt Jaraczewski)," Jane Korth said.

Since 1962 when the Red Nine was open, thousands of golfing stories and "tales" have been unveiled. Who could forget the P and W Punkin Works, Ervie Werner and Will Potter, who make pumpkin pies for a tournament each year and even bought an orange Volkswagon which they drove around Washington County to advertise their nickname?

Werner's banjo was often heard at the Hon-E-Kor parties, while Frank and Helen Winnihoff would dance from the dining area through the kitchen door and back out again.

"Mixie Marx, he was always so nice," Jane Korth went on, about Marx, who once had a tryout with a professional baseball team, then came back to Kewaskum to follow in the footsteps of his grandfather and father and run the family grocery business.

In addition to seeing his friend smile in the store, Marx was known as a real gentleman on the course, a golfer who religiously followed the rules of the game.

Virginia Miller was another true sportswoman, who loved golf and was good at it. (She was in my foursome on a Ladies Day when I got my one and only eagle on the old No. 6 on the Red Nine).

The teacher/artist John "Peanuts" Vrana, who drew cartoon banners for people who scored aces or low rounds.

The story about Jan Koch making a turn while going down the hill on the first hole and accidentally losing her passenger, Adeline Tassar.

New Year's Eve parties. A golf ball flying through the picture window overhead on No. 9., and finding a golf ball wedged in the trunk of two limbs ... it really was an unplayable lie.

And the old Las Vegas Days event. On every hole, there was some kind of a contest — did you ever hit a drive while standing on an inflated innertube — then inside, there was fun and frolic, including the board contest where the chicken decided who the winner would be.

The memories go on and on, and it is hoped by the Korths that many relatives will come to the memorial event, even if it's just for the dinner or to chat with others who are related to the deceased members. Jane Korth said photo albums of the early years of the course will be on display for people to look through.

For the competition part of the event, the cost is $45 per member for those with their own carts, $60 for members with the cart included and $80 for non-members, cart included. A steak dinner, featuring ribeye, filet or T-bone, is included in the price. Live entertainment by Tedd Young will be provided after the dinner.

There will be a noon shotgun start, and the event is a select drive, 2-person best ball. To sign up, call Hon-E-Kor by June 25th.

Proceeds from the event go to a $1,000 scholarship to be given to a senior who was a member of the Kewaskum High Golf team or any high school senior who holds a current junior membership at Hon-E-Kor.

Treat your friends as you do your picture, and place them in their best light.

May 22, 2008, was the date for the 14th annual Milwaukee Public Television Reading Rainbow Young Writers and Illustrators awards reception.

Farmington Elementary School (FES) 2nd grader Sydney Donath was a winning author for a second year in a row.

This year's story, Majestic the Magical Unicorn, a story about a unicorn who wants to make the world better for others, earned Donath a Special Merit award for her age group.

"I was excited to hear I won again," said Donath. "I worked really hard on my story."

Donath was one of 20 winners selected by a panel of judges out of the 1,155 entries received. Several of those entries were from first and second grade students at FES.

The award winning stories will air as a program on MPTV-10 on July 11 at 5:29pm and repeat on MPTV-36 on July 12 at 8am. Individual stories will also air on both stations starting June 2 in between children's programming.

FES Legacy Project completed

For 10 years, Farmington Elementary School (FES) fifth grade classes have created a Legacy Project – a gift to the school as a remembrance of their time at FES. This year was no exception. Current FES 5th graders in Mrs. Wenzlaff's and Ms. Peltonen's classes created a giant map of the United States on the school playground. It brightens the blacktop, will enhance learning and can be incorporated into playground games. Leading the 5th grade students on this creative endeavor were several classroom parents including project co-chairs Ann Haack and Nancy Kruschke plus Carrie Rohde, Shelly Taylor and Trisha Taylor. It's Our Day: America's Love Affair with the White Wedding 1945-2005

By Katherine Jellison

AMERICA'S LOVE AFFAIR
WITH THE WHITE WEDDING
1945-2005

It's our day

KATHERINE JELLISON

It happens every summer. You know it's coming, but the swarm surprises you nonetheless.

They show up on your doorstep. On your company bulletin board. Dropping on your kitchen table, begging for attention. They hide as bookmarks in your latest novel; breeding, it seems, like two wire hangers in an otherwise empty closet.

And so how many wedding invitations have you gotten this year?

A bunch, I'll bet, but why watch yet another white-clad woman walk to her wedding? In the new book "It's Our Day" by Katherine Jellison, you'll say "I do" to reading about America's love for all things bridal.

In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, amid all the pleas for help, shelter, and homes for displaced pets, someone organized a pipeline for brides. All those future-Mrs. lost their dresses in the flood, and while basic necessities were obviously the most important, having a beautiful dress and lacy veil in which to wed were a close second in many betrothed minds.

Why do we cherish the idea of a formal white gown? Why do so many women long for a Cinderella-princess wedding? Jellison says we've been conditioned to want it, even though weddings weren't always this way.

In the years preceding the Depression, wedding gowns were simple, often utilitarian, and often homemade. Queen Victoria was the first to wear a white wedding gown, but from her 1840 ceremony until after the Depression, only brides from well-off families could afford the frivolity of a white dress they'd wear just once.

Once incomes rose, middle-class brides had money to spend and were willing to become avowed consumers. As families used weddings to confirm their middle-classness (or to announce their "arrival" to affluence), the popularity of elaborate gowns grew and never wavered.

Since World War II (the years in which Jellison starts her examination of weddings), through the 1950s (and pastel bridesmaids' dresses), 1960s (when mini-gowns vied for popularity with "traditional" dresses), the 1970s (when feminism made weddings seem anachronistic and quaint), the 1980s (skyrocketing divorce rates), and beyond (think: "Who Wants to Marry a Millionaire?") women marched down the aisle clad in lace and vowing that "being a princess" was their wedding day dream.

Are you looking for a bridal planner that will help you with your storybook wedding? If so, look elsewhere. This book isn't going to give you Happily Ever After, but it will make you understand why you're feeling pressure to get it.

While "It's Our Day" is sometimes a little dry, author Katherine Jellison explains America's obsession with The Perfect Gown and bride as icon. She discusses rising wedding costs, and how bridal gowns went from the useful-after-the-wedding frocks of great-grandma's day to heirlooms that modern brides hope to pass on to their daughters (despite that the wedding industry wants nothing less). Jellison also examines weddings in African American families and same-sex unions.

If you cry at weddings, or if you're curious about nuptials and brides, then scoop up this book. "It's Our Day" is the perfect marriage between curiosity and ceremony.

Samuelson Sez Statistics..Fact vs Fiction

The statistic has been around since the 1980's and, over the decades, supporters of ethanol have had to deal with it over and over again and haven't been able to put it away. As recently as a few days ago, on the Fast Money Show on CNBC, it reared its ugly and false head once again. The statistic? That it takes 1,700 gallons of water to produce a gallon of ethanol.

Not true! But it was born in the 1980's when Dr. David Pimentel, an entomologist at Cornell University launched a campaign to refute claims of the nation's corn growers that ethanol could be an alternative fuel to help cut our reliance on foreign oil. For some reason, he didn't like ethanol and to support his argument, he included the total amount of water needed to grow the corn crop in addition to the water needed to process the corn into ethanol to reach his 1,700 gallon claim. Never mind the fact that as little as 4% of the corn used for ethanol production in this country requires any irrigation and that God-given rainfall provides the moisture for the other 96% of the crop.

So, how much water does it take to process ethanol? It takes four gallons of water to process one gallon of ethanol. That's less water than it takes to flush the average toilet in this country, so please, let's put this false statistic out to pasture forever, so we don't have to deal with it again. While I'm at it, let me add one more number to the mix...

it does take 1,851 gallons of water to refine a barrel of crude oil. That's according to Argonne National Laboratory which also says water use in dry mill ethanol plants dropped more than 26% between 2000 and 2006.

On another subject, but still related, I fully expected speakers and attendees at the Global Food Summit in Rome last week to spend most of their program time bashing the bio-fuels industry, blaming it for world hunger and starvation, higher world food prices and all the other ills of the world. So it came as a pleasant surprise that while it was mentioned, speakers focused more on trade policies that limited movement of food and agricultural products between countries. They were especially critical of countries that embargoed shipments of food to other countries to ensure their own citizens had enough food; and some speakers had very harsh words for the oil-rich countries who donate little or no money to fight world hunger.

There were some very positive suggestions on steps to take to alleviate world hunger and I especially liked the idea of a new Green Revolution to equal the success of the first Green Revolution of the 1960's led by Nobel Peace Prize winner, Dr. Norman Borlaug, a program that literally saved millions of people from starvation. We did it before, we can do it again!

My thoughts on Samuelson Sez.

Deadline for 2008 Farmers Union Carbon Credits Program is Aug. 15

CHIPPEWA FALLS - Wisconsin farmers and landowners interested in enrolling no-till and seeded grassland conservation projects in the Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program have until August 15, 2008 to meet the 2008 enrollment deadline.

The Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program, administered by North Dakota Farmers Union, allows farmers and landowners to earn income by storing carbon in their soil through conservation practices including continuous no-till crop production, long-term grass seeding, forestry and methane capture projects, which reduce greenhouse gas emissions into the atmosphere. These are five-year contracts.

"With carbon now a tradable commodity, producers have the opportunity to enroll their projects in the Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program online and earn a little extra income," WFU President Sue Beitlich said. "As carbon prices have continued to increase, now is a great time to get in on this program."

The Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program accepts applications on an on-going basis. However, to receive payment in 2009, qualified farmers and landowners must enroll by August 15, 2008. If eligible conservation methods were practiced in 2007 and 2008, landowners can receive payments for both 2007 and 2008. The deadline does not apply to forestry projects.

Over 3.5 million acres have been enrolled in the Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program and marketed on the Chicago Climate Exchange (CCX). Producers who enroll in the program receive an annual payment based on prevailing carbon market prices.

To learn more about the Farmers Union Carbon Credit Program, visit www.carbon-credit.nfu.org or call (800) 366-8331.

DNR Notification Error - Kewaskum Waterworks
Kewaskum Water Utility did not perform this sampling because the Utility was not notified of this monitoring requirement by the DNR in 2007.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER
Monitoring Requirements Not Met for the Kewaskum Waterworks

We are required to monitor your drinking water for specific contaminants on a regular basis. Results of regular monitoring are an indicator of whether or not your drinking water meets health standards. There are no special precautions you need to take at this time. Kewaskum Water Utility did not perform this sampling because the Utility was not notified of this monitoring requirement by the DNR in 2007. To address this, the Utility will collect a composite sample over the next 4 calendar quarters. The sample will be sent to the laboratory for analysis during the second quarter of 2009.

Falls steals on the road
thunder from Indians

The Bible says: "The Lord give, and the Lord taketh away."

That is exactly what happened to the Kewaskum Indians Tuesday night, June 10 against Sheboygan Falls. Coming back home after sweeping Two Rivers Monday, 5-2 and 11-7 in a doubleheader, the Indians could not hold on to beat Sheboygan Falls. A four run seventh inning huddled the Falcons over the Indians 8-6.

"(You) can't come out and be complacent," said Head Coach Doug Gonring. "Got to come out and fight. It shows that anybody can be anybody. We got to be focused during every pitch."

The game started off rocky for the Indians. The Falcons started the game with a single. An error on the pick off moved the runner to second. The next batter, Kewaskum pitcher Jordan Petrin beamed. Falls executed a bunt moving the two runners. A double scored both runners and the Falcons had a quick 2-0 lead. Two batters later with runners on the corners, a swinging bunt was miscommunicated between Petrin and catcher Nick Olla to score another run.

"I was thinking to much. I wasn't playing my game I was playing their's," Petrin said about the first inning. "I started to feel more comfortable with Nick behind the plate. Everything was connecting in the later innings."

The Indians got one run back in the fourth off of Mike Gutjahr's double scoring Olla.

A solo homerun pushed the Falcon lead to three again in the top of the fifth.

The bottom of the fifth is when the game switched hands. The first two batters Justin Krueger and Petrin flied out. Next batter, Ben Butler reached on an error and Olla got on board with an infield single. Nick Ebert drove both in with a deep double off of the bottom of the fence to bring the Indians within one. Gutjahr hit another double, bringing home Ebert to tie the game.

"I was just thinking about putting the ball in play, hitting the ball where they weren't and scoring another run," Gutjahr said about the tying RBI.

Cody Seibel came in to pinch run for Gutjahr. Seibel took third on a passed ball. Josh Harbin drove in Seibel by reaching on an error, giving the Indians their first lead of the game. Cody Nuernberg added to the lead driving in Harbin from first with a double.

Ebert came in the sixth in relief. After walking the first batter, he struck out the side.

However, the tables turned again. Ebert walked the first two Falls batters and surrendered a single to load the bases. He was ahead in the count, but hit the Falcon batter to bring in a run.

Gonring went to the bench and replaced Ebert with Olla.

On Olla's first pitch, the Falcon batter doubled down the line scoring the tying and go-ahead run. Olla got the first out by picking off the man on second in a pickle. With a runner on third and two outs another run scored by a Falcon infield single. Olla struck out the final batter to send it to the bottom of the seventh down two.

Harbin started the inning by getting hit by a pitch, but three ground ball outs sealed in for Sheboygan Falls.

The team got a good look at what a side arm pitcher was like during the game. Gutjahr said they haven't seen one all year.

"It was a little difficult. He came inside a little bit and you had to pull it or hit it foul to stay alive."

Petrin went 3-for-7 during the doubleheader against Two Rivers and has flip flopped with Butler to become the team's lead off hitter.

"I feel I can get on base for the team in the first when I'm up and my teammates can hit me in," Petrin said.

Gonring said the team played very well in these past two games. This one against Sheboygan Falls the balls just went through and they hit it where the defense wasn't. He said some of the miscommunication on some plays was due to the team still being a young team.

The Indians go at it again on Thursday (today) at New Holstein and Friday at home against Campbellsport.

PERSPECTIVE

Hall wants out:
Brewers need pitching

A great 2006 season of 35 homeruns and 85 RBI's in the 2006 season, Bill Hall's performance has slipped.

Following the 2006 season the Brewers thought they had a stud utility player that can play the infield or outfield. Hall signed a four-year deal worth $24 million, but hasn't lived up to the paycheck.

Hall, 28, is batting .164 against right-handed pitching. Meanwhile, Russ Branyan, recently called up from AAA-Nashville, is batting .333 with five homers and seven RBI in 11 games. Seems to me the Brewers play has picked up with Branyan playing nearly every day.

"If Billy's not going to be an everyday player, it's probably best for him and the team to be traded," Hall's agent Terry Bross told the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel. "They could get a pitcher for him that would really help the team. I'm sure there are some teams out there that could use a third baseman or shortstop."

Pitching is exactly what the Crew needs.

I feel the Brewers need to pursue a trade with the Kansas City Royals for starter Zack Greinke. KC reportedly is looking trade Greinke if the deal is right.

Greinke, 24, has a 5-4 record with a 3.77 ERA with 62 strikeouts in 86 innings this season. Greinke is a young, up-and-coming pitcher that needs to get with a good team. I'm sure it is tough to win many games is Kansas City. Last season, he went 7-7 with a 3.69 ERA.

However, a deal straight up for the two looks unlikely. Hall is making $4.9 million to Greinke's $1.4, and I don't see the Royals adding to their payroll.

What Brewers management should try for is a four-player trade to even out the salaries. The Brewers would give up Hall and Tony Gwynn Jr. to get Greinke and Mark Grudzielanek.

Let's face it Crew fans, Gwynn Jr. is not his father and will never be the kind of player we all hoped he would be. Grudzielanek is old at 37, but he is a native of Milwaukee and would be a veteran backup to Rickie Weeks, who is on the 15-day DL.

This transaction would give the Brewers a solid No. 2 starter and veteran player with playoff experience. The Royals in return would get two young players. Hall could play every day at one position and Gwynn Jr. has a pedigree name that could contribute in center if was given a chance with a new ball club. I would say the Brewers outfield is pretty stack for years to come and Gwynn Jr. won't get the chance to play in Milwaukee.

Time is running short for the Brewers to get into the playoffs. Locking up Ryan Braun for seven years was top priority. If you think about it, the way he is playing right now it was a steal. Next up that should be on the Brewers list is making sure Ben Sheets and Prince Fielder stay in Milwaukee.

Sheets can become a free agent after this year and teams may throw more money at him than the Brewers could even think of. This is another reason the Crew needs Greinke.

Fielder is currently unhappy with his paycheck and the Brewers need to fix that. Fielder and Braun compliment each other well in the order. If Fielder is gone, opposing pitchers can pitch around Braun.

The push for the playoffs needs to be this season. It does not matter if they catch the Cubs or get in via the wildcard. Two great starting pitchers can dominate a series and with Sheets and Greinke they would have a chance to do damage.

Kewaskum Gold Pony League team starts season with a bang

The Kewaskum Gold Pony League team improved their record to 5-0 with a win this past week over Campbellsport 24-4. The pitching tandem of Brandon Chapman, Brandon Susen and Dan Bohn combined for seven strikeouts while allowing only five hits. A balanced offense helped with all Kewaskum players reaching base and 12 different players scoring. Tony Gonring and Dan Bohn each had a home run with Justin Steiner going 4 for 4.

The team is batting an impressive .436 with an On-

Base-Percentage of .590. The pitching staff, which consists of Brad Boegel, Dan Bohn, Brandon Chapman, Tony Gonring, Brett Nuernberg and Brandon Susen have done extremely well in pitching strikes and letting their defense play behind them. Other team members include Kenny Gigstead, Josh Hutchins, Billy Lawton, Mark Miller, Clayton Reif and Joe Wollner.

Their next home game is Friday, June 20th at 8 p.m. with the Kewaskum Green Pony League Team playing earlier at 6 p.m.

A pot luck of track accomplishments Boettcher comes up with a big throw in Iowa meet

The 2008 track banquet was a success and not just because of the vast array of tasty food that lined the serving tables at Kewaskum High School.

The student athletes, coaches and parents were excited to get together also to savor the memories of the Division 2 state championship girls 4x200-meter relay team, four new school records, several invitational titles earned by the Lady Indians and plenty of other individual accomplishments.

The foursome of Haley Gregoriou, Jessie Liniewski, Nichole Kison and Kelly Uelmen were the featured guests after their outstanding efforts late in the season, which produced the state title and a school record of 1 minute, 45.26 seconds (1:45.26).

Once again coach Jerry Gosa took center stage to congratulate his athletes for learning a key lesson they can take into their adult lives: Hard work produces results.

Gosa let the event coaches talk about their own athletes, however, and vaulting coach Josh Parrent certainly had a lot of good things to say, considering juniors Jake Dickmann and Alissa Clapper qualified for the state meet and still have another try at making the podium.

Dickmann was the EWC champion and set a personal high 13-feet (13-0) in the sectional to advance to UW-La Crosse, while Clapper set a KHS indoor mark of 9-6 early in the year.

Kevin Schellinger, the lone senior in the group, also had a good year, clearing 12-0 in the sectionals.

"This was a very talented group of vaulters," Parrent said, adding they were united by the idea athletes get out of an event what they put in it, and, "That's the mindset you have to have to improve."

When it came to the jumpers, coach Jason Meinen had depth and talent, starting with sophomore Candace Beine, whose best high jump effort was a 5-4, erasing the old KHS mark of 5-2.

Beine "consistently placed in two field events (high jump and triple jump) in every meet, according to Meinen, who also praised Liniewski for going 5-0 in the high jump and helping with her seconds and thirds, and Kison who long-jumped a best 16-4 in the County Outdoor, placed in the EWC and earned a berth in the sectionals. And Heather Schmitt placed 8th in the EWC long jump.

As far as the boys were concerned, Eric Turowski, a newcomer to the program, had season bests 38-8 and 18-10 in the triple jump and long jump, respectively, while Dickmann's top effort was clearing 6-2 in the high jump and Scott Steldt, Brandon Zolp and Zach Amerling also made improvements.

The lone senior jumper was Dan Dymond, and Meinen said he would do whatever the coaches asked of him and was a good leader.

Matt "Ghandi" Gundrum had just three varsity boys in the field events, and two of them, Ben Boettcher and Tyler Swanson, finished 1-2 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference Championships and both went to state, with Boettcher placing seventh.

Boettcher's toss of 178-7 in the sectional put his name in the KHS record book, and as luck would have it, the former record holder, Charlie Sparks, was helping to run the event that day.

For the girls, Lacy Taylor, Georgianna Abfall and Angela Kugler led the way, and Gundrum said he is hoping they build on this year's efforts in 2009.

LuAnn Potter was the new hurdle coach this season and directed her charges to big improvements, starting with Gregoriou going under 50 seconds in the 300 hurdles (49.89). In the 100 high hurdles, the leaders were senior Liz Potter (17.21) and Gregoriou (17.3).

With Clapper's surge toward the low 17s in the event, the future looks bright for KHS hurdling.

The big problem distance coach Randy Backhaus had was a lack of numbers as he had just four boys and four girls. Backhaus praised senior Tyler McElhatton for his dedication to the sport, despite a tough academic load, and he said to look for the girls (Amanda Meyer, Brooke Waala, Jessie Beaupre, Crystal Lepp and others) and boys 4x800 relays to improve next year because most of the runners were freshmen and sophomores.

And what did Gosa said about the sprinters and relay runners? Plenty, starting with transfer student Jon Komp, Amerling, Zolp, Turowski, Dymond, Dylan Kenworthy and Steldt, who all improved during the year.

"To make the next step, it is very important to do things between now and next year," Gosa said, urging the runners to go out for other sports and participate in weight training.

The girls will obviously miss Uelmen, a 4-year varsity letter winner and the major leader on the team, but Gosa is confident the relays will go well again with three (Liniewski, the EWC 200 champ, Kison and Gregoriou) of the four back, along with Jessi Forbes, who was slowed by a stress fracture.

More help should be provided by Bryanna Keller, Rachel Yocum, Ashley Roeske, Meagan Thornton and others.

"I'm very proud of these ladies," Gosa concluded.

Special awards were announced at the end of the evening, with Uelmen and Dymond named as the MVPs for their dedication and leadership. Other awards included: Outstanding Freshman — Bryanna Keller; Outstanding Sophomores — Beine and Gregoriou, and Scott Steldt; Most Improved in the Field Events — Beine, Boettcher and Dickmann; Most Improved in the Running Events — Gregoriou; Most Dedicated — Swanson, Kison and Liniewski.

Being invited to the Senior All-Star Spotlight Track Meet at Northern Iowa University was a chance for a little redemption for Kewaskum High senior Ben Boettcher.

Mission accomplished for the hard-working discus thrower who had stumbled a bit in the WIAA Division 2 state meet and had to settle for a seventh place finish with a throw just under 160 feet.

On Saturday in Cedar Falls, Boettcher threw a personal best 179 feet, 3 inches (179-3) to finish third overall among the athletes from Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and South Dakota. He was just two inches behind the runner-up Ryan Bader, who is also from Wisconsin.

The winning throw surpassed the 186-foot mark. The top three finishers also received medals for their efforts.

Boettcher, one of the stars on the Indian football team last fall, had established a school record in the event with a throw of 178-7 at the sectional meet, and Saturday's effort was better.

"I guess so, I broke the school record again," Boettcher said Monday, concerning how he performed in the Iowa meet, which was run according to collegiate rules. Each athlete got three throws in the preliminaries and the top throwers, another three each in the finals, but just one at a time.

"My first throw was a scratch. It was too bad," Boettcher said, figuring it was very long. "On the second one, I had a 171 (feet) or something like that, and the third one was the 179."

In the finals, he said he scratched on one attempt and also had one that sailed 177 or 178.

One of the keys to doing well in this meet was staying relaxed, according to Boettcher, who said, "There's not as much pressure at this meet even though it's a bigger meet."

Boettcher is still a bit undecided about what he will do in the fall. Coaches at Concordia University are interested in having him on their football team, but now he is wondering if track is a better option for him.

"I like to play football, but probably track-wise, I have more of a future," Boettcher said, indicating there were college coaches scouting the meet and noting the coach from Indiana State University, where former KHS record holder Charlie Sparks competed, is interested in him. "He wants me to come there for a visit," Boettcher said.

Two more track meets are on Boettcher's June calendar. "I'm going to the Junior Olympics at Carroll College on June 23rd, and I'm going to compete at the Badger State Games. Those are on June 28th," Boettcher said. "We'll see if I can still get over the 180-mark. I'm hoping I can do it."

Usually when it comes to high school sports, it does not consist of kids shooting guns, but that is not the case for Kewaskum high school's trapshoot team.

The school district gave them the permission to start up this year's first trapshoot team and they are one of few schools in the state that can letter in the sport. The sport, however, is not a WIAA sanctioned sport.

"I think the year went very well. Our biggest concern was safety and there were no safety issues at all," said coach Jeff Geidel. "We didn't know what to expect, it being our first year. We didn't know how many kids we would have or how well they would do."

Safety was first and foremost the biggest concern, when the kids are firing off 12-gauge shot guns, for the coaches. It was mandatory for each member on the team to go through the hunter's safety course before joining the team.

The team went to the state tournament in Mayville this year. There was about a 120 teams in the state tournament. There are four champion teams crowned at the state meet. There is the grand champion, then class A, class B and class C champions. Of the four teams Kewaskum sent to the state tournament the team of Andy Bullette, Trevor Kohn, Jake Butzlaff, and Alex Larsen won the class B championship.

"It was better than what they figured they would do," said coach Jeff Geidel. "It blew us out of the water that first year there the kids won a trophy."

The team shoots their practices and home matches at New Fane Sportsman Club every Tuesday night. New Fane Sportsman Club also has open shoot on Fridays for the public.

The team held their banquet there last Tuesday. Each team member earned at least three medals for their experience trapshooting. Matthew Ratzel, Jason Geidel, Tanner Schaub, Kohn, Mike Hutwagner, Kyle Wegner, Bullette and Tim Otten all earn varsity letters at the banquet.

"I like to shoot," freshman

Otten said about the trapshooting. "It's a good way to be with my friends and hang out. After shooting we have a soda or something." Otten said he has been trapshooting since the age of 12.

Not all of the members started at a young age. Sophomore Theresa Ratzel started for the first time this year. "I started out with an eight (out of 25) then went to nine to 18," Ratzel said. "I have hunted before."

This year her and her other fellow female on the team, Sara Weyer, competed only twice this year, once at the state tournament. The coaches are trying to recruit more girls to join the team. Ratzel said they have two more coming out for the team next year. "It's not just a guys sport, its fun," Ratzel said. "We try to prove the guys wrong, that we can shoot a gun."

Kohn was named this year's MVP and Bullette was named most improved. Matthew Ratzel is the only senior on the team, the rest plan on coming back.

Ketter's rare feat, 19-hit barrage, give A's 10th win

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

It's rare for a baseball player to hit for the "cycle," but Kewaskum Athletics standout Steve Ketter accomplished that feat last Friday night, leading the A's to a commanding 14-1 win over the host West Bend Benders in a non-league game.

Ketter was definitely the star at the plate for the Kewaskum team, going 4x5 with four runs batted in (RBIs). His 3-run homer in the top of the eighth capped his bid to stroke a single, double, triple and home run in the same game.

Jake Lathers earned his first pitching win of 08, going seven strong innings, striking out 13, while scattering four hits and giving up one run, which was unearned.

The win gives the Athletics a mark of 10-1. Two others games Kewaskum had on its schedule for last week, against Johnson Creek and Brownsville, were rained out.

After a scoreless first inning, the A's went to work offensively, picking up two runs in the second and two in the fourth. They put the victory away with a 4-run burst in the sixth and five more runs in the top of the eighth.

Adam Sarauer's double plated Dan Shea for Kewaskum's first run. Shea was on base via a single, and later Jon Olla added a base hit to bring Sarauer around.

In the fourth, the big hits were Olla's double and a triple by Ketter.

The sixth was a very productive inning, with the winners coming up with four consecutive hits, including a single by Ketter, an RBI double by player/manager Jason Strobel, an RBI single by Shea and another RBI double by Jake Flood, who was filling a spot on the roster for the A's for this game.

Adam Sarauer and Jim Ziegler followed with RBI ground outs to round out the scoring.

The four runs in the sixth gave Kewaskum a 9-1 lead, and they added more insurance in the eighth inning rally, which all began with two outs when Ziegler doubled to right field and Jake Panzer worked his way for a walk. Olla reached on an error by the shortstop, which loaded the bases for Austin Sarauer, who promptly hit a single up the middle, bringing two runs home.

Following Sarauer to the plate was the mighty Ketter, who delivered with a blast over the fence in right field.

After Lathers retired from the game, Panzer and Strobel each took the mound for an inning and didn't give up any hits.

Kewaskum came up with 19 hits, including the four by Ketter, three by Ziegler, two by Olla, two by Austin Sarauer, two by Shea, two by Jake Flood, and two by Adam Sarauer.

The A's were scheduled to play at Johnson Creek Tuesday night (June 10) and are set to play in the annual Plymouth Tournament on Friday night at 6 p.m. vs. the Cedarburg Mercs.

Kewaskum hosts Hartford in a Rock River League game on Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Team rallies around Nuernberg's play

In the era of baseball where "chicks dig the long ball," it was a relay to home Kewaskum head coach Doug Gonring said, that took the air out of Kiel as the Indians win another in the EWC, 10-3, on Friday.

The Indians had a 5-3 lead in the fifth inning. Kiel's designated hitter Jordan Kolb was on second with two outs and clean-up hitter Aaron Schnor was at the plate. It seemed that Schnor was going to drive in Kolb with his single to left, but freshman Cody Nuernberg came up firing as he fielded the ground ball to left. Nuernberg's relay throw hit third baseman Cody Seibel perfectly to set up the play at the plate. Catcher Nick Olla tagged out Kolb and the Indians ran off the field hooting and hollering.

"The relay was probably the best part of the whole day today. That is what we struggled with, playing catch. It changes the momentum of the ballgame," said Gonring. "The defensive plays win ball games."

Nuernberg ignited the offense as well. The Indians started the game in a 2-0 hole after the first. Nick Ebert led off the second with a base hit. Seibel walked to put two runners on for Nuernberg. On the 1-1 pitch, Nuernberg took the fastball down the heart of the plate over the left field fence, giving the Indians the lead.

"I just got my hands through and ripped it," Nuernberg said. "I didn't know if it was going to get out because it was a line drive."

Kewaskum added two more runs in the fourth with a Jordan Petrin sac fly to right scoring courtesy runner Brian Backhaus, for pitcher John Holt, and a RBI double by Mike Gutjahr scoring Olla.

The Indians blew the game open with another two run inning in the fifth and scored three in the sixth.

Holt's afternoon started a little rocky on the hill. He walked the first batter and surrendered an infield single to the second Kiel batter. Kiel got on the board by Chris Liermann's RBI double.

With runners on second and third Holt and Seibel made a little eye contact at third. From the stretch, Holt made a pick off move to third and Seibel tagged Kolb out at third for the first out of the inning.

"The infielders and I know when there is a runner on second or third for a pick off play with a little eye contact," Holt said. "Cody called it and it was a good call."

The Indians almost got out of the inning only surrendering the one run, but with two outs, a little high of a throw by Seibel could not be brought in by first baseman Gutjahr and Kiel capitalized on Gutjahr's error.

Holt settled down and he said he threw just a good enough game to get the win. He said he did not have his best stuff and needs to work on the control of his curveball with the catchers.

Holt's fastball, however, was working fine. He recorded 12 strikeouts. Five of the strikeouts, Kiel batters were out looking. Holt struck out at least one batter in every inning besides the seventh. Along with his 12 strikeouts, he gave up three runs (two earned) with three walks and five hits in his seven innings of work.

The baseball team also wanted to honor the girls from the 4x200-meter relay state champion team. Haley Gregoriou, Jessie Liniewski and Nichole Kison threw out the ceremonial first pitch. Kelly Uelmen was working and could not make it to throw out the ceremonial pitch.

This game almost was for not, but the hard work of Gonring and Kewaskum AD Jason Piittmann showing up early to Kiwanis Park to prepare the field, made it happen. The game started ten minutes after the scheduled 5:30 p.m. start due to the field conditions.

Every minute counts for McElhatton

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

All through high school, Tyler McElhatton has maintained a near-perfect balance between academics, athletics and other extra curricular events, and the formula for his success has been "a lot of careful time management."

While he sometimes could have used days that stretch 28 or even 30 hours, McElhatton had to find time within the normal 24 hours to study, take a very difficult on-line chemistry class, run cross country and track, practice his chess moves, give a little attention to playing the piano and still have time for family and friends.

Academics, specificly the sciences, have been McElhatton's passion, but he does well in most every subject, leading to a grade point average right above the 3.9 mark. When asked how that ranks among the Kewaskum High class of 2008, McElhatton said, "I think right now I'm number seven."

Just listing the courses he took for his senior year would be enough to make most people tired. "I took Organic and Inorganic Chemistry," McElhatton started out, then adding AP (Advanced Placement) English, personal finance, sociology, along with AP Biology, Calculus and Psychology, and Spanish 5.

Add to that list, an on-line chemistry course which the KHS honor graduate called "brutal," because it is designed for college students. McElhatton explained he wanted to work on a chemistry seminar this year with instructor Jerry Gosa, but when verbalizing these thoughts to KHS principal Christine Horbas, she had information for him on the on-line course from Ball State University in Indiana.

"It ended up taking a lot more time than I thought it would," McElhatton said, indicating he managed to get a B in the course the first semester and hopes to do the same or better this semester before he heads to the University of Wisconsin-Madison where he plans to study biochemistry.

Concerning his reasons for choosing Madison, McElhatton said, "I didn't want to go too far away from home, and the science department at Wisconsin is one of the best, if not the best, in the Country."

McElhatton didn't want to give up his chess or athletic participation and actually did well in both those events, too.

In cross country, he was usually the Indians' number two man last fall and he qualified for the Division 2 sectional track competition recently by running a 4:52.37 in the 1,600-meter run at Lomira, which hosted the regionals.

His goal had been to dip under the five-minute mark in the race. "I actually had that goal since sophomore year. It's taken me until this year to finally break it," he said.

As far as chess went, McElhatton qualified for the national high school competition in Atlanta, Georgia. "My record was two wins, three draw and two losses, so I came out exactly even."

Did we mention that McElhatton is also an accomplished pianist? He has taken private lessons from Anna Asch for years to reach the pinnacle where he won the Senior Division of the Washington County Concerto Piano Auditions in 2007, allowing him to play the concerto with the Kettle Moraine Symphony Orchestra.

"That was a major highlight in my musical career," McElhatton said.

And did the extra curricular experiences teach McElhatton any lessons? "It definitely helped me to set and reach goals," he said, and speaking of goals, he has some lofty ones set for his future.

"At this point, I think I would like to go into research for a pharmaceutical company," McElhatton said, indicating he would like to find another formula ... one that might help people who suffer from debilitating or terminal diseases.

Looking at McElhatton's history of success, chances are good he will do just that.

Mom -
College is great. But mom, how do you fold laundry and while we're at it mom, can I do it all in one load? Oh and could you send money, please? I need something other than mac and cheese and ramen noodles. Some fresh food would be great. Oh mom could you start calling me when you get up for work? Sometime around 7:30? And if I don't answer, please keep calling until I do. Thanks mom. Just wanted to let you know I love being on my own. I think I'll be fine....oops the washing machine just bubbled over....

love,
Joe College

Parents - paying for college? Do the math first

(ARA) - In these challenging financial times, parents make certain sacrifices to ensure they can navigate the crunch and provide their children with the things they need most. Given the frequent need for sacrifices when it comes to paying for college, parents owe it to themselves to make sure they focus on value.

Securing the right education at the right price means "doing the math" to determine the real cost of a college education. While the reality check may not be pleasant, it can lead to considerable money-saving decisions when it comes to funding a child's college education.

A few smart, simple rules can help families determine a realistic number to start budgeting for.

Math Rule 1 - Know Your Estimated Total Costs

Tuition is just one part of the total cost of college. It's important to factor in books, meals, housing, transportation and other expenses (even decorating the dorm room) when making a college financial plan. Your school should be able to provide helpful information on costs. Meanwhile, here are a few insights that may help:

* Four-year public college - If you're in-state, the average budget is about $18,000 per year, of which tuition and fees are $6,185. The average out-of-state budget should be about $28,000, of which tuition and fees are $16,640. Students considering a public college should be mindful that tuition and fees are approximately one-third of their total budget.

* Four-year private college - The average budget should be about $35,000 per year, of which tuition and fees are close to $24,000. Students considering a private school should consider their tuition and fees as just over two-thirds of their total budget.

* Two-year college - The average estimated budget for a two-year college is about $13,126 per year. Tuition and fees are just $2,361 of that amount. Students considering a two-year college should understand that tuition and fees are approximately 20 percent of their total budget.

Math Rule 2 - Know the Impact of One Percentage Point of Interest and Shop Around for the Best Rate on Student Loans

If, after determining the total cost, you and your child decide you need to borrow, keep in mind that even a small change in rate can make a substantial difference in the overall cost of a student loan. For example:

* A $10,000 private student loan that has an average percentage rate (APR) of 8.69 percent will cost $20,512 in interest if you defer payment until after graduation.

* Meanwhile, a $10,000 private student loan with an APR of 6.92 percent will cost $14,797 in interest if you defer payment until after graduation.

In other words, a less-than-2-percent difference in the rate of interest on a $10,000 loan translates to a $5,700 difference in the amount you'll have to repay.

Math Rule 3 - Understand the Impact of Your Repayment Decisions

Using the same examples above, recalculate the interest payments if the borrower starts repayment on the student loan immediately.

* The first loan's total interest owed is reduced to $11,056, a savings of nearly $9,500 in overall interest paid.

* The second loan's overall interest amount paid reduced to $8,420, a nearly $6,400 difference.

Because payments need to be made consistently, it may not be realistic for many students to start repayment immediately. However, knowing that interest accrues during the deferment period and that you have to make it up by paying it back later should help parents and students make smarter borrowing decisions.

Student loan company MyRichUncle offers handy tools for prospective borrowers. One tool, called the APR Monthly Repayment Calculator, provides student loan borrowers a new process where they can view examples of private student loans and repayment from several different vantage points, including the cost difference between different repayment terms, different repayment options and the impact of different interest rates on the overall cost.

Help your teen stay safe during summer months

(ARA) - For teens, summer months bring high-school graduation parties with friends and extended curfews allowing for later nights. This time of year can also mean that teens have more free time and could face added pressure to drink alcohol. It's important for parents to exercise their positive parenting influence and help their teens make responsible decisions.

In fact, when it comes to underage drinking, parents have the biggest influence on their teens' decisions. According to the 2007 GfK Roper Youth Report (SM), 69 percent of teens ages 13 to 17 say their parents -- not their peers -- are the No. 1 influence on their decisions about whether they drink alcohol, and that finding has remained consistent since this survey began more than a decade ago.

Lonnie Carton, Ph.D., director of Teen and Family Resources for the Web-based "Warm2Kids" program and an advisory panel member of the "Family Talk About Drinking" program, offers parents advice on how to use their positive influence with teens as they celebrate graduation and enjoy the more relaxed days ahead.

"It's important for parents to create an atmosphere of open communication with their teens, especially during the summer months when teens have more free time," Carton says. "Along with setting firm rules and guidelines, parents can teach teens critical decision-making skills to help them make responsible choices -- including not drinking when underage."

Dr. Carton advises parents to let teens know that rules are made to protect them, not punish them, and remind them to make their own decisions based on what they know is right. Teens should call immediately if they get into a situation they know isn't safe. Carton also reminds parents to think again if they believe it's OK to bend the rules and host a party with alcohol for teens and their friends, memorable occasion or not.

"Every parent wants their house to be the 'hang-out' place, but providing alcohol to minors is not only irresponsible, it's illegal. And while graduation celebrations and summer parties are special occasions in your teen's life, supplying or permitting alcohol at these events is never negotiable," adds Carton.

In fact, most parents are not permitting underage drinking or hosting these kinds of parties. A recent survey by Harris Interactive for Anheuser-Busch found that 82 percent of parents with children under 21 years of age do not think it is OK for parents to provide alcohol or purchase alcohol for their teens or others' teens at parties or gatherings. In addition, the survey found most parents with teens ages 15 to 20 years would not allow their teens to attend a party where other teens are drinking, even if parents would be present.

Putting your positive parent power to work during this season will help teens enjoy a memorable and safe time. Career tips for Generation Y college grads

(ARA) - With employers facing a looming shortage of skilled professionals, your recent college degree can lead to more opportunities than you might imagine. Increasingly motivated employers may, however, leave you with an overwhelming array of choices. How do you - a soon-to-be or recent college graduate - set your career on a course towards lifelong fulfillment and financial reward?

"Members of Gen Y - or the 'Millennials' - have a clear vision of what they want from a career, and it's a vision that is unique to them and the technologically advanced, environmentally and socially aware world they grew up in," says Deb Marquette, manager of field talent attraction for Thrivent Financial for Lutherans. "This generation of workers is motivated, conscious of their place in the global community and determined to make a difference in the world."

While it's difficult to generalize characteristics of an individual based on their generation, there has been a lot of research conducted to find commonalities among members of Gen Y. Here is what the research says you might be looking for in a career, and tips to help you find a career that is a good match for you.

1. You want to make a difference.

More than 60 percent of 13- to 25-year-olds feel personally responsible for making a difference in the world, according to research by Cone Inc. and AMP Insights. Look for companies whose values align closely with yours. You may find the most career happiness with companies that support your activism and charitable efforts, and participate in or support charities and issues important to you. As an example, Thrivent Financial matches a challenging career with outreach opportunities, including Thrivent Builds-an alliance between Thrivent Financial and Habitat for Humanity.

2. You're not afraid of competition; in fact you crave a challenge and hard work.

Being competitive with themselves and others comes naturally to Gen Y employees, who want to do their work better and faster than their co-workers, research by NAS reveals. Look for companies that nourish your competitive nature with rewards programs that recognize performance.

3. You would like to be self-employed, or at least in a career that provides plenty of autonomy.

While many Millennials would like to be self-employed, few are able to do so because of high start-up rates and the cost of paying for health insurance, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Look for companies and careers, like Thrivent Financial's sales opportunities, that offer entrepreneurial-type benefits, like flexibility and unlimited income potential, along with the support and backing of a Fortune 500 company. "Look for a job where you can be on your own, but not alone," Marquette advises.

4. You understand the value of experience.

More than half of graduating college seniors don't expect job offers upon graduation and 74 percent think relevant work experience is most important in getting a job, according to monstertrack.com. Seek companies, like Thrivent Financial, that offer internship programs where you can accrue relevant work experience while you're still in school.

5. You want to work for a company that speaks your highly technological language.

In 2006, 97 percent of college students polled by Harvard Institute of Politics reported they had visited Facebook in the past month. Look for an employer who understands how you use technology to communicate - from e-mail and intranet to YouTube and social networking sites - and is willing to speak the same language.
