Village awards $6.9 million contract to C.D. Smith for WWTP upgrades

By Andrew Kuehl man Publisher

KEWASKUM- After two years of discussions, proposals from dozens of engineering firms across the state and gripes from residents, Village Trustees accepted a proposal from C.D. Smith Construction of Fond du Lac for close to $7 million for the upgrade. Sewer rates for residents are expected to jump over 90% in the next two years to help pay for the project.

Before accepting the contract from C.D. Smith, Trustees consulted with their financial advisors from Ehlers & Associates on how the project, the largest the village has ever undertaken, would be paid for. Dave Wagner addressed financing options for the WWTP project and gave the board two options

It was ultimately decided that the Village will finance the entire project (that is not paid yet) with a loan from the state's clean water fund. Thus far, Sewer rates to begin quarterly 12% increases in October to pay for project, a total of over 90% the village has paid over $38,000 to start the project.

To be eligible for the attractive financing provided through a clean water fund loan, the Village is required to provide documentation on how the loan will be paid back. The Village will do this by raising it's sewer rates over a two-year period.

At Monday's meeting trustees needed to commit in the form of a resolution to increase rates over the next two years by a little over 90%. All Trustees voted in favor of the increase with the exception of Trustee Kevin Scheunemann.

In addition to increasing sewer rates, the village will also increase impact fees, commonly referred to as connection fees to $3,900. The connection figure is based on the village having about 30 new connections anAccording to Zoning Administrator Chad Cook, thus far, the village has had seven connections in 2008. A total of 16 occurred in 2007. Wagner explained that if 30 connections don't occur, it doesn't affect the plan much, half will still make the numbers work. The main issue is increasing the rates in the next two years.

Cook asked Wagner how Kewaskum's impact fees compared with other communities. Wagner explained that Kewaskum would now be higher than most. "This is a significant increase moving forward," he remarked.

Trustee Derek Peterson, who chairs the Public Works Committee, stated after reviewing four proposals, the committee voted to go with C.D. Smith. Only Scheunemann voted against the recommendation.

I voted against this in committee. I do have to look at the events over the last month. I have to question as to why our community is being picked on on this mandate. We are one of the few communities that did not dump (raw sewage in the Milwaukee River) with the last flood waters, which says the dumping issue in 2004, which happened during construction in the (River Hill) park, and caused this mandate to come back on the table is no longer in play. There are a ton of other communities who dumped in the area (with the last rainfall), one right to the north of here. This would not be on the table if we were not being hamstringed by the DNR and forced to do this. I question the value judgement of the DNR in this case because the issue of us dumping in 2004 was a temporary issue due to construction and has noting to do with the current capacity of the plant in my opinion. When you tell people of this community you are going to double their sewer rates no one cares how their sewer plant operates, as long as there is clean water at the end that's the issue. I feel the current plant can do that for the next five years with minimum issues," stated Scheunemann.

Pete Albers the former wastewater superintendent, addressed the board, Two years ago the director of public works asked me if we need a new plant. He asked me if I knew anyone who could evaluate our plant. I found someone, president of an engineering firm, he did a study, came in, met with the past administrator and the operators. The first thing he said was, 'you don't need it and you can't afford it.' You need a head works and some minor new equipment, there were not violations in the last 40 years except the so called violation in 2004. There were 120 communities who violated in 2004. We never found out what they did, if we are 40 miles south here, they can dump million of gallons ev-

DPW receives new equipment

The village of Kewaskum's Department of Public Works has recently taken delivery on two new peices of equipment. The first, a 2006 Tympco Regenerative Air Street Sweeper. The sweeper comes with a full new factory warranty, as it was a demo unit for the dealership where the village purchased the truck. The village has traded their current sweeper for the new model that will help with leaf collection, a function that did not work on the former sweeper. The second piece of a equipment received was a 2008 International Dump truck with snow plow and wing. The village traded a 1987 Ford tandem axle truck and received $9,000 for it. The new truck, after the trade cost $94,000 plus $19,000 for the plow and wing. The new truck has a significantly better turning radius and the addition of a truck with a plow wing will greatly speed up the plowing process come winter. The truck will also be used for hauling aggregate material for the village. Both pieces of equipment were purchased from the DPW budget and not by financing measures.

KEWASKUM- Clergy from Washington County joined forces Tuesday on the job site of the 2008 "Thrivent Builds" Habitat for Humanity home in Kewaskum, WI. Over 25 ordained clergy, lay ministers and congregation members put their faith into action in siding, metal flashing, plumbing, rough carpentry, insulation, and site cleanup projects. Rev. Jay Thorson of Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Hubertus noted Habitat is one of his congregation's major partner ministries, and feels the mission reflects the church's core values the families. Only a few hours of service from any volunteer can make a life-changing experience in the lives of partner families. Together, we're making this a better place to live."

Rev. Sharon Stier has seen the local Habitat affiliate grow dramatically in the last decade. She, along with Russ Wanta, Executive Director, were instrumental in forming a Habitat organization in the county. Currently serving Faith UCC in Slinger, Rev. Stier is glad to see the ministry growing in new communities. The current build is the first in Kewaskum. Hartford is the site selected for the next home construction. Additional properties will serve the mission set forth at the organization's inception, to witness the Gospel to the entire county.

Habitat partner family member, Mark Glamann, was also investing his "sweat equity" hours on the project Tuesday. The family will work 500 hours on their own home, other Habitat projects, and at the Habitat ReStore in West Bend prior to owning their home. Mark is looking forward to a new home which is fully handicap accessible. Mark's brother, Terry, from Wausau is investing his time as "Friends and Family" support. Up to 150 hours may be donated by individuals to support the newest partner family.

ery time it rains and keep on going, the average flow is not higher that it was 20 years ago. What happened to the guaranteed $3.4 million, how can that double? You have many senior citizens in this village on fixed incomes, what are they suppose to do? I don't believe we need it, I've talked to many other engineers they agreed with me, all we need is a headworks, some other minor modifica-

Judy Gottlieb, DNR Basin Engineer for Kewaskum, did not deny the fact of bypassing or dumping by other municipalities. However, she explained that the bypassing in 2004 was not the only reason for the DNR coercing the village for a plant upgrade. "I brought up in my inspections in previous years about hydraulic deficiencies, along with lots of aging equipment. There are many pieces in that plant that all together, you need an upgrade," she established.

"If you don't do the upgrade now, you wanna wait five years, where do you think the prices are going to be for this same project? You have a sound project to move your plant forward. The costs are goin nowhere but up. I really think the village needs to take actions. You have heard from many engineers that believe you need enough work in enough areas of the plant to meet code requirements. You really don't have another option," Gottlieb explained.

Because of an agreed upon compliance schedule in the village's permit with the DNR (the contract between the village and the state under the clean water act that allows the village to discharge), the village is required to award contracts for the upgrades by the end of year. "If you don't, we will send a notice of violation, the village will be called in for an enforcement conference. If the village does not comply we would prepare a referral to the Department of Justice for non-compliance,' she threatened. Fines for the village would be in order as

Peterson introduced a motion to award the contract to C.D. Smith. Trustee Norman Kupfahl agreed with a second to his motion. Trustees Harry Roecker Schuenemann voted no. Trustee Tom Piwoni and President Andy Pesch voted in favor of the motion. Trustee Steve Schuenemann was absent.

WEST BEND- With an official signing ceremony, St. Joseph's Hospital, the West Bend Clinic and Synergy-Health Foundation formalized their affiliation with Froedtert & Community Health, effective July 1. In May, the three West Bend health care organizations announced their decision to join Froedtert & Community Health, a regional hospital system made up of Froedtert Hospital and Community Memorial Hospital.

This is a very important day for us, joining with leaders who share our values and commitment to serving patients and the community," said Bill Petasnick, president and chief executive officer of Froedtert & Community Health. "I look forward to the work ahead as we create a strong regional health care organization that responds to the growing needs of West Bend and Washington

Petasnick said benefits of the affiliation include imcare coordination across a broader network of providers and expanded health care services for area residents. Cancer, cardiovascular and primary care services have already been identified as potential areas for develop-

"Both St. Joseph's Hospital and the West Bend Clinic have always had a high level of energy and capacity to provide quality health services," said Tom Johnson, chair, SynergyHealth board of directors.

"Completion of the affiliation process with Froedtert & Community Health now provides a focus for continued growth of health care services in our community."

As part of Froedtert & Community Health, St. Joseph's Hospital and the West Bend Clinic will retain their names; the SynergyHealth Foundation will become the St. Joseph's Community Foundation, reflecting its mission to support health care needs in Washington County. All of the Foundation's resources both past and future - will remain in Washington County for the betterment of the community. Additionally, any past or future donations for specific purposes - for the hospital, the Kathy Hospice or specific programs - will continue to be used for those purposes.

Froedtert & Community Health is a regional hospital system formed in 2001 by Froedtert Hospital and Community Memorial Hospital. Joining the capabilities of a 200-bed community hospital and a 450-bed academic medical center, Froedtert & Community Health delivers nationally recognized, costeffective health care treatment and technologies from two hospitals and multiple clinic and program sites in Southeastern Wisconsin. In 2007, adult inpatient admissions for Froedtert & Community Health exceeded 35,000.

Last week you printed a letter by Ginny Maziarka of West Bend about the so-called "harassment policy" of the Kewaskum School District. I looked up this policy on the KSD web site and was confused. The KSD policy (411.2 -Student Conduct and Discipline Non-Discrimination Statement and Student Harassment Prohibition) is, to me, a very fair-minded and unambiguous policy

I don't know which policy Ms. Maziarka read; she made references to Wisconsin Administrative Code PI-9 which is not mentioned or alluded to in the KSD policy. The only other repeated reference in Ms. Maziarka's letter was her obvious dislike of the use of "sexual orientation" as it relates to student harassment.

This, I think, is what Ms. Maziarka is really concerned about-that GLBT (gay, lesbian, bi-sexual and transgendered) students get what she calls "special rights" compared to other students. This is neither the letter nor the spirit of the KSD policy.

The truth is that some kids are mean, some kids are bullies, some kids are disrespectful and some kids are, for many reasons, easily targeted for harassment. By naming "sexual orientation" specifically, the policy assures those kids and their families that the district will not ignore this specific kind of harassment.

The fact that individuals believe being gay is a "behavioral choice" and therefore those students who identify themselves as gay should not have equal protection from harassment in an academic setting is all the more reason to specify "sexual orientation" in the policy. Perhaps Ms. Maziarka's solution to protect gay students from bullying is to tell them to stop being gay?

As a parent of two KSD students and someone who works every day in the community with middle school and high school kids, I am proud that our district is willing to take a stand against harassment of every kind and that our teachers, principals and staff members are committed to the respectful treatment of all stu-

Parading for charity in Elmore Auburn tractor rollover

ELMORE- Bahr Time, in association with FATTIES BAR TIME and The Sandpiper Inn, held their seventh annual non-motorized parade for charity on Saturday, June 28.

This is the second year Kelly Bahr, owner of Bahr Time, has chosen the Kathryn Ribecky scholarship fund as the charity the parade do-Ribecky was student at Campbellsport High School before her life was prematurely taken away in a car accident. The Ribecky family started the scholarship fund in memory of Kathryn. It goes to students with dance or musical backgrounds because Kathryn was on the school's dance team.

"It's just a way to try and raise some money," Bahr said. "We don't advertise this heavily because these three bars can't hold a lot of people. We raised $945 in like four hours."

Bahr said the previous year the Kathryn Ribecky scholarship fund gave two $1,000 schol-

Bahr said the charities they donate to are always a local charity. She likes the Kathryn Ribecky charity because it is local and they will stay with it until a new local cause needs help.

The original parade had more riding lawn mowers for the bulk of the vehicles. Now, Bahr said they have supped up lawn mowers, a tractor pulling a wagon, golf carts, a picnic table on wheels and floats pulled by four-wheelers. She said they had 60 to 70 people in about 20 vehicles. Each person involved donated $4 to be in the parade.

'We had more floats this year than any thing," Bahr said.

The course of the parade goes to each bar. Bahr said the distance is under a mile

Kewaskum Fire Department and EMS responded to the town of Auburn on Thursday, July 3 at 12:19 p.m. for a tractor pulling a hay merger that overturned on Auburn Ashford Road. The responding Fond du Lac County Sheriff's Deputy stated the driver, Allen Schubert of Kiel, was traveling eastbound when he moved over for a westbound vehicle. Upon doing so, he encountered a low shoulder and was pulled him into the ditch. Schubert was transported to St. Joseph's Hospital in West Bend with non-life threatening injuries. A passenger, Mark Peronne of Waldo received medical attention at the scene while The owner of the tractor is David M. Eisentraut of Waldo.

WEST BEND- West Bend Savings Bank and Continental Savings Bank, two mutual community banks, have announced the two financial institutions will merge creating a new Wisconsin bank with over $650 million in combined assets and 27 locations serving Southeastern Wisconsin.

"It's a very proud day for both organizations," said Jim Podewils, president of Conti-nental Savings Bank. "This is the first merger between two mutual savings banks in Wisconsin in over eight years. This partnership will allow us to offer a greater depth of products and services to our customers, while allowing us to retain our community philosophy of friendly customer service

Ray Lipman, CEO of West Bend Savings Bank, added, This is a wonderful opportunity for both banks. When Jim and I began meeting in February 2007, we quickly saw the advantages that this combination provides to both organizations.

A press release from the banks stated the completion of the merger will occur late this year. The combined bank headquarters will be located in West Bend, while the bank will maintain a regional office in Greenfield. Lipman will become chairman and CEO and Podewils will be president and chief operating officer. Current employees and officers of both institutions will retain their employment with the new bank. A name for the new bank will be determined upon completion of the merger.

West Bend Savings Bank and Continental Savings Bank are mutual savings banks sharing the same philosophy of building long-term relationships with a strong community focus, without the influence of outside stockholders or private owners. Lipman relates, "Our core values are similar in that we both believe success lies in serving our communities and our customers, while providing superior benefits and positive work environments to our employees. We also believe the cultures of the two banks blend very well. We're excited that we will have the resources to more effectively compete in a changing financial arena, while maintaining our roots of serving communities with local ownership."

West Bend Savings Bank has 18 locations in Washington, Dodge, Sheboygan and Waukesha counties, the old-est operating since 1926. The Kewaskum branch has operated in the village for over 30

Continental Savings Bank has been in existence since 1914. The bank operates seven branches in Milwaukee and the outlying suburbs of Brookfield, Brown Deer, Hales Corners and Mukwonago. Additional information on both institutions can be found on their individual web sites located at www.csbmoney.com and www.wbsavings.com.

KEWASKUM- After it's abrupt closing, the historic downtown building that has been home to close to a dozen restaurants will re-open under the ownership of former Woody's Steakhouse employee, Victoria Feucht. It will open as Victoria's Cornerstone Feucht is currently the manager of Rock River Hills Supper Club in Horicon. She says owning and operating her own restaurant has been a dream of hers for years. In fact, she was ready to act on that dream in Horicon, officially leasing and taking over the supper club she managed.

Being able to complete her dream in her hometown excites Feucht. She said Monday she intends on opening in late August or early September. She has her chefs, many from Woody's Steakhouse, along with waitstaff in place and those dining in the new restaurant may recognize a few faces.

Early indications reveal the menu will continue to offer a variety of choice steaks, the same as Woody's Steakhouse however, the menu will be downsized so she can offer a wider variety of daily and weekly specials, so customers do not become bored with the same menu. She will also offer a limited lunch menu, with items that can be freshly prepared for those who need to meet a 30-minute lunch pe-

The building's owner Gary Gavin confirmed he leased the building and is doing some light remodeling while the building is vacant and Feucht prepares for her opening. Hours of operation will be the same as Woody's Steakhouse. The Statesman will give more information once an opening date is determined. According to Village officials, Feucht has applied for a liquor license which will need approval from Village Trustees in the near future.

KEWASKUM- There are an estimated 3,500 people in the village of Kewaskum and only a handful of that total are not familiar with Isabelle Muckerheide ... even fewer who don't

Isabelle is one of those wonderful people who is defined by her happy disposition, her activity in the community. her friendliness, and last but certainly not least, her strong

So it was no surprise the whole community turned out Sunday at the Amerahn Hall to join in Isabelle's 90th birthday party.

Born in Neshkoro but a resident of Kewaskum for approximately 63 years, Isabelle enjoyed her day in the spotlight, which she shared with her brother-in-law, Henry Kurz, who turned 80 on the very day she hit the big 9-0.

Neshkoro is located in Marquette County and was home to Anton and Stella (Paluka) Yeska. "I had two brothers and three sisters," she said. "Three of them are gone. I'm the oldest of those who are still alive

Isabelle said her dad was a "jack-of-all trades ... a carpenter mainly, and her mother a house wife, who "stayed at home with

Several months after her birth on July 6, 1918, an important world event occurred. "In November, it was the Armistice, Isabelle said. "My mother wrapped me in a shawl, and we went to the neighbors. They were so glad it (World War I) was over.

Isabelle met her husband Al when he was helping construct an overhead bridge in Neshkoro. "He had a big smile," she recalled, and when asked about their first date, she said,

"It was in town about a week or two later."

The couple married in 1942, moved to Madison for a short time while he was in the service, then they came back to Al's home town, Kewaskum, and eventually built their home on Highway 28 west of the Vil-

Muckerheide wound up working for Washington County, but Isabelle said he had plenty of other jobs, including being a cook at the Baker Canning Company and "helping his dad. They did sawing and threshing.

When this reporter commented what a fine man Al was, Isabelle proudly remarked, 'Wasn't he though!'

Al passed away in 1979, and thanks to family, friends, neighbors and her faith community, Isabelle forged a life on her own and a joyful one at that.

About her connection to Holy Trinity Catholic Church where she normally occupies a place in the front pew, Isabelle said, "I've been at Holy Trinity since coming to town. I think Fr. La Buwi was here when we first came to town."

Isabelle attends daily Mass

"whenever I get a chance ... as long as I'm still able to drive.'

When Arnie Amerling died last year and Edward Hawig died several weeks ago, Isabelle moved up the ladder as the parishes elder statesmen. "I'm not sure. I'm going to say I'm one of the oldest," Isabelle said. "I've seen a lot of changes (in the parish) since I've been here, but she doesn't mind. "You just have to adjust."

Holy Trinity's current pastor, Fr. Ed Kornath, has enjoyed having Isabelle in his parish. In addition to her being a wonderful person, Fr. Ed said, "She is an excellent baker. At least every two or three weeks, she brings me a loaf of banana bread."

Fr. Ed goes on, "She is a very faith-filled lady ... It's a joy to talk with her. She had very fine stories to tell."

When she isn't at Holy Trinity, Isabelle said she enjoys playing cards or bingo, working word searches or visiting with friends, and then there are auctions, which once were a pas-

Isabelle said she still goes occasionally "when (Mike) Paul has an auction." She also enjoyed a long association with the Kewaskum Historical Soci-

It's no secret Isabelle loved to collect old postcards she purchased at auctions. She often shares them with the readers of The Statesman, especially around major holidays.

"I like anything old. We went to the auctions. That was our pastime," Isabelle said about her collection, which at one point numberd 10,000. "In those days, you used one-cent stamps on the cards

Isabelle also still enjoys cooking, something she once did while working in Green Lake, Wisconsin. "I cooked for Spencer Tracy once," she said, explaining he was receiving a honorary degree at Ripon College and she helped cater the meal.

Another guest of the bed and breakfast owned and operated by the Carver family she worked for was Mrs. Simon Kander, the author of the Settlement Cookbook

About her secret to longevity, Isabelle said laughingly, "I always say it's because I am a Polack," then adds, "The good Lord helps me out. That's all I can figure out, and don't smoke

And does Isabelle think she will reach 100? "I don't know," she said, adding, "I had a party when I was 80 and now I'm having one at 90 ... I don't know if I should reserve it for another 10 years. "I'm happy to be here. I've met so many nice friends, and my neighbors, you can't beat them. They're always there when you need them," she said.

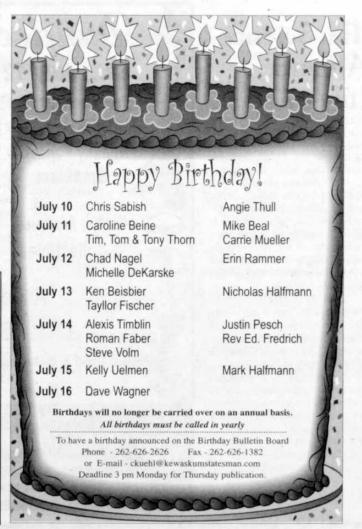

Isabelle was also happy to share the day with Kurz. thought it was cause for a double celebration," she said.

A well deserved celebra-

Writer's note: One of the highlights of the celebration was a special phone call Isabelle received Saturday evening from her great niece in New Zealand.

Gray Wolves: The True Story

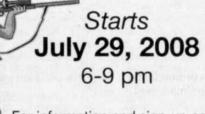

The Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit's Summer Saturday Evening Events next program is "Gray Wolves: the True Story." The program will be held on Saturday, July 19, from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67 half mile west of Dundee. The program is free, but donations are always gratefully accepted.

The gray wolf is a symbol of wilderness, places still wild and free. Before European settlement, wolves were found throughout most of the United States and Canada. By the middle of the 1900's, wolves were almost eliminated from the lower forty-eight states. The only states left with strong populations were Minnesota and Alaska. Today, wolves are making a come back in some areas of our country including Wisconsin, which is now home to about 500 wolves.

Jerry Sanders, a board member of the International Wolf Center, will cover the amazing natural history of wolves. He will touch on why wolves almost became extinct in Wisconsin and provide information on the status of wolves today.

For further information or directions, please contact the forest staff at the Ice Age Visitor Center. The center's phone number is (920) 533-8322 and is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Benefit to be held for Beck family in Campbellsport

Moving into or building a new home is a landmark occasion for a family. But for Bill Beck and his family is will not be the same when they finish building their home. On May 1, Beck was working on his house carrying supplies and fell two stories into the basement of the unfinished house.

The fall paralyzed Beck from the waist down. He was air lifted with the Flight For Life to Theda Clark Medical Center where he was diagnosed. With his injury, Beck is out indefinitely as a machinist at Mercury. He also worked part-time building houses for contractors.

"He's lucky he's alive," said his mother Jane Beck. "He are very fortunate to have him in the condition he's in. But he's alive and I am grateful for Jane, his family and friends are putting on a benefit Saturday at Fireman's Park in Campbellsport. Jane said with Bill being out of work the money raised will help out with the cost of finishing the house.

The benefit begins at seven in the morning with a kick-ball tournament. There will be plenty to do at the benefit. There will be games, a bake sale, live music by The Julida Boys and Mike & The Destroyers, a DJ, games and a live auction. The auction will have prizes including Nintendo WII, 6 Packer tickets for the 2008 season, fishing on Lake Winnebago, vacation packages, autographed balls from the Packers and Brewers and many more. Jane said they also have had a raffle to raise money. The grand prize was $1000.

"Basically, it's to get Bill to know everybody cares," Jane said. "Bill is a strong man. He is not used to being in a chair. His family is behind him, his friends are behind him and I think Bill needs to know that."

Bill spent five week in Theda Clark Medical Center and has been home since June 6. He goes to rehab twice a week. Jane said the doctors have not put a percentage together if he will ever regain the use of his lower body. She said the swelling around the spine will diminish in four to six months and they will have better knowledge around then.

Bill's wife Kelley and son Ryan have been helping at home with range of motion and rehab.

Bill is an avid hunter, fisherman and outdoorsman. Jane said most of the time Bill has two jobs.

"He's with his son 24/7. They hunt, they fish, they work, they play," Jane said about Bill's relationship with his son.

Any donations or information call Jerry and Jane Beck at 920-948-4257.

Linda Larsen, outstanding basketball star at Kewaskum High School for the past four years, has been named Honorable Mention on the National High School Girls Basketball All-America team for 1983. She is the daughter of Tom and Laura Larsen of Kewaskum. There are some 423,500 girls who participate in prep basketball and Linda was one of only 250 who are honored with national recognition.

Marigold Foods, producers of Kemps Dairy Products, is continuing its renovation and expansion program at the Kewaskum plant. With the completion of their new, larger ice cream storage freezer, Marigold began demolition of the old freezer facility next to the site to make room for a new milk storage area. Also land formerly occupied by the home purchased and moved by Mr. and Mrs. Doug Schacht, is being levelled and filled in to provide vehicle parking for Kemp's larger trucks. Other new additions to the plant are the raw milk storage silos on the southeast side of the plant.

The company plans to eventually have the milk processing and trucking operations work out of the Kewaskum plant, leaving only the sales division at its Green Bay site.

After almost a year of negotiations and arbitration, the Kewaskum teachers have been awarded a 9.2% salary increase, plus fringe benefits, for a total 9.7% raise for the 1982-83 school year. The increase was awarded by a state-appointed arbitrator to the Kewaskum Education Association members who have been working since last August without a contract.

The First Annual Dairy Daze was held Saturday in River Hill Park in Kewaskum. The AMPI women served a delicious dairy luncheon to over 200 people. Winners in the milk drinking contest were David Gosa, Mike Jandre, Ra-chel Gosa, Michelle Schaub, Dawn Jandre, Dave Garvey, Tracy Rodenkirch and Cheryl Kurtz. Winners in the ice cream eating contest were Paul Stoltzmann, Dave Gosa, Bret Prost, Rachel Gosa, Dave Garvey, Christine Narges, John Nowak and Tracy Rodenkirch. Winner of the milking contest was Greg Ogi, local veterinarian with 42 ounces of milk in three minutes. Other contestants were John Long, Superintendent of Schools, Gerald Stollenwerk, Village President, Dan Schmidt, Village Administrator, and Mark Jansen, Washington County Sheriff's Department. At the dance held in the evening, the Kewaskum Jaycees announced the awarding of the Outstanding Farmer of the Year, who was Robert Etta of Kewaskum, and the Outstanding Man of the Year Award was given to Richard Schmidt, Kewaskum.

Moraine Park students can transfer credits to online bachelor degree

Moraine Park Technical College students who are pursuing or have received an associate of applied science degree have a new option if they desire to extend their education. Through an articulation agreement with Chadron State College, a public fouryear college in Nebraska, Moraine Park students can transfer 64 to 67 credits toward a bachelor of applied science degree with an option in Management or Management & Communication through fully online courses.

"Students can transfer the bulk of what they've already earned to Chadron State," said Kirk Lacy, assistant to Chadron President Janie Park. "They will need only 61 credits to complete their bachelor degree." Those credits can be completed through Chadron online courses or other transfer credits, with at least 30 of the 61 credits being earned from Chadron.

We are very excited about this agreement," said Dr. Gayle Hytrek, Moraine Park president. "It allows our students to continue their online degree. It is a great opportunity for them as well as for our staff."

In addition to the credit transfer, another advantage for Moraine Park students is affordability, with all online courses offered at the same flat-rate tuition for both instate and out-of-state students. Federal financial aid is available to qualifying students. And the flexibility of eLearning allows students to work at locations and times that are convenient for them. Working adults can take advantage of four-week (sum-

"This new transfer agreement with Chadron State College offers our graduates a wonderful opportunity to pursue lifelong learning past their associate degree from Moraine Park," said Dan Ensalaco, Moraine Park vice president of academics and economic development. "In addition to the low tuition rate available at Chadron, students who have taken online or blended courses at Moraine Park will be very comfortable in taking this online bachelor program since Chadron uses the same eCollege online course platform as Moraine Park. The transition for our students will be very simple."

Chadron also offers an online Master of Business Administration degree as well as a master of science degree in Organizational Management. Moraine Park has program-toprogram transfer agreements with private four-year colleges in which certain Moraine Park associate of applied science degree programs can be articulated toward a bachelor degree. Moraine Park also has program-to-program transfer agreements with 10 of the universities within the University of Wisconsin System, as well as general studies transfer agreements with UW-Green Bay and UW-Oshkosh. General studies agreements also exist with four-year private colleges such as Marian College and Milwaukee School of Engineering, as well as out-ofstate institutions and online universities.

Kids Safety Bulletin Summer Camp Safety

By: Don C. Keenan

When you send your children to summer camp, you expect them to swim, play tennis, do arts and crafts, and make plenty of new friends. You expect them to have an experience they can remember their whole lives. Most of all, you expect them to be safe.

More than 10 million children go to summer camp each year. There are about 12,000 camps in the U.S. – 7,000 overnight camps and 5,000 day camps. But of those camps, only about 25 percent are accredited by the American Camping Association (ACA). The ACA provides accreditation to camps for meeting certain industry standards.

How safe are summer camps? We know that children are injured and several children die each year at camps. But the real statistics are a mystery, because camps aren't required by federal law to report injuries and deaths. The ACA received eight reports of deaths in 2003 (the most recent data), but there was no information available on the 75 percent of non-accredited camps that don't report to the organization.

To help protect your children, use the following checklist when deciding on a camp program:

ACA Accreditation: Is the camp accredited? ACA-accredited camps have a higher safety standard than non-accredited camps. Even if you find an accredited camp, you still need to investigate its safety standards.

Staff-to-camper ratio: How many campers are assigned to each counselor or staff member? Ratios differ by age groups, so you need to use your judgment when evaluating the camp's ratio. High school aged children may need fewer councelors than a camp designed for elementary school aged children. In general, at resident camps, the ACA recommends the following:

1:6 (that's one staff member for every 6 campers) for ages 7 and 8

1:8 for ages 9 to 14 1:10 for ages 15 to 17 At day camps, recommendations are 1:8 for children 6 to 8, 1:10 for ages 9 to 14, and 1:12 for campers ages 15 to 17

Staff training: What kinds of training do the counselors and other staff members have to go through? Who provides the training – the camp, or an outside agency? Outside agencies are always preferred, and counselors should always be trained in basic first aid.

Background checks: Do the counselors and other camp staff have to undergo background checks? The ACA requires staff screening, which can include criminal background checks where permitted by law. Even camps that are not ACA-accredited should investigate the background of anyone who is going to be in close contact with children.

Medical care: Are there trained medical staff on site 24 hours a day, 7 days a week? There should also be first aid equipment to handle every potential situation, from bug bites, to cuts and scrapes, to more serious injuries.

Emergency transportation: How long would it take an ambulance to reach the camp in case of emergepcy? Are there vehicles at the camp that could transport your child to a hospital? These questions are especially important if the camp is off the beaten path, far from a medical facility.

Skills test: Does the camp require campers to take a skills test before swimming, diving, boating, rock climbing, rappelling, or horseback riding? Campers should never be allowed to participate in an activity for which they're not ready or properly trained.

Buddy system: Are children paired up by the "buddy" system before swimming or participating in other water activities? A buddy can alert counselors if his or her partner gets into trouble in the water.

Don Keenan, the founder of Keenan's Kids Foundation, has recently published a book on child safety called 365 Ways to Keep Kids Safe, which is available at: www. balloonpress.com and from www. amazon.com . All proceeds benefit the Keenan's Kids Foundation.

In 1995, residents at Okhura Village, Japan, built a snowman that measured 96 feet 7 inches in height. The project took 10 days to complete.

A Calculated Demise
By Robert Spiller
Medallion Press
$7.99 303 pages

Remember your favorite teacher in school?

Even if you hated dragging yourself to class, you probably still had a teacher who sticks in your heart. She might have taught you to love books. Perhaps he made algebra make sense. Maybe it was the person who let your creativity soar. Whoever it was, you'll remember that educator for the rest of your life.

At East Plains High School, one of the more popular teachers is Bonnie Pinkwater, Math teacher. Her students know she's fair. She loves the classroom and she cares. But in the mystery "A Calculated Demise" by Robert Spiller, Bonnie cares a little too much. When one of her students is accused of murder, she decides to do some ciphering because the clues just don't add up.

Ever since her husband, Ben, died a couple of months ago, Bonnie Pinkwater has tried to stay busy. That's not difficult, since her students keep her mind off her troubles and her colleagues keep her on her toes.

But lately, she wants to plant her toes firmly in the backside of EP's wrestling coach, Luther Devereaux. While some kids love Devereaux, Bonnie knows he's a loudmouth and can be cruel to his athletes. One of the kids he's cruel to is Matt Boone.

The eldest of thirteen kids, Matt is mentally challenged but at the end of the school year, he'll graduate. He'll be the first person in his family in fifteen years to have that honor and Bonnie wants to see it happen. Matt is a nice kid.

Or so she thinks.

When Devereaux requests that Bonnie let Matt out of class early so he can talk to the boy, Bonnie grits her teeth and lets Matt go.

And she quickly regrets it.

Within a half hour, shouts go through the school's hallway. Luther Devereaux is found in a pool of blood in the wrestling loft, and Matt Boone is there, kneeling next to him. The murder weapon has Matt's fingerprints on it. Without a fraction of a doubt, it looks like Matt is the killer, and he's arrested.

But then two local smalltime drug dealers are found dead and a transfer student is discovered stuffed in the trunk of a car.

Body + body + body doesn't make sense to Bonnie. She doesn't believe Matt's capable of murder - he's the gentlest kid she knows - but as the deaths multiply, this math teacher has some real problems to solve.

Finding yourself minus some free time this summer? You'll have time to add in a little reading if you grab "A Calculated Demise".

I love a mystery that keeps me guessing until the end, and that's the kind of angle you'll find here. Author Robert Spiller's story is good from the start, it's quick to read, and the main character (whom you'll see in other Spiller mysteries) is extremely likeable.

If you're looking for something to pocket for a breezy summer read, grab this one. For mystery lovers, "A Calculated Demise" equals pure enjoyment.

Samuelson Sez Let's work on this election

I know this presidential campaign has been going on now for two years. For many of us, myself included, it has become tiresome to the point that we don't pay attention to the rhetoric of the candidates. Now, as we come out of the 4th of July holiday and head toward November, it is time to pay attention because we now know that a member of the U.S. Senate will be voted into the White House in Novem-

Both of the candidates are talking about "change". Frankly, I haven't heard much of a definition of the change that either one would bring to the White House. I am particularly interested in what they plan to do on a National Energy Program. One candidate has said "We need to tap all of the resources out there" and refers to off-shore drilling, drilling in Alaska, bio-fuels and nuclear energy. I've heard the other candidate say "We should have had an energy program in place 20 years ago and I'll get one that works and I'll do it quickly." That still doesn't tell me they fully recognize our dependence on oil for our energy needs, particularly oil from OPEC countries and the real impact of ever-higher oil prices on every segment of our economy and the world.

Now that the candidates will be crisscrossing the country asking for our votes, it is time for all of us to listen carefully to what they say, but equally important, it is time for us to ask serious questions about economic policy as well as energy policy. There will, of course, be a lot of discussion on the war, but people tend to vote their pocketbook and I'm guessing the economy will hold the spotlight.

I will be curious to see how many visits are made to rural communities to talk agricultural and trade policy, to talk food production and the direction the country should take on the food vs fuel controversy and the tendency to blame ethanol as the main culprit in the higher food prices. There is a clear division of thinking on trade agreements...one candidate would dismantle NAFTA and other agreements; the other would keep and promote additional agreements. If you are in the presence of a candidate, don't be afraid to ask questions and keep pursuing those questions until you get an answer that is satisfactory.

We must always remember, however, that to win votes candidates will make promises they know and we know can't be kept.

Something else to remember, this is more than a presidential election year. All of the House members and many members of the Senate are up for election, there are members of your State legislatures and State houses up for election. If we really mean what we say when we talk about the right to vote and our responsibility as a citizen to vote, then we had better be well-informed. So the challenge for you and me now is to really pay attention so that we can make what we feel is the right decision in the voting booth in November.

Immel honored for servicing 40,000 cows

WAUPUN - Brian Immel, Campbellsport, was recently recognized at the East Central/Select Sires awards banquet for servicing his 40,000th first-service cow.

To date, Immel has serviced 40,511 first-service cows. As a Member Service Representative (MSR), Immel provides professional artificial insemination services and offers semen and product sales to dairy and beef producers in Washington County.

"Brian is a very dedicated employee," said Al Deming, general manager of East Cen-tral/Select Sires. "His dedication starts with his customers and he gives them the best service humanly possible.

East Central/Select Sires is a professional, artificial breeding cooperative serving dairy and livestock producers in southern Wisconsin. As a member-owner of Select Sires located near Plain City, Ohio, East Central helps make up the largest Artificial Insemination (A.I.) cooperative in the world. They provide highly fertile semen as well as excellence in service and programs to achieve its basic objective of supplying livestock breeders with America's best genetics at a reasonable price.

A's score four run in 12th to win RR thriller

By Judy Harlow Statesman Correspondent

Tied at six after 11 innings, the Kewaskum Athletics put a four-spot on the board in the top of the 12th, then held on to beat host Hustisford 10-8 in a Rock River League game played Sunday

"Hustisford knocked off previously unbeaten Brownsville last Sunday and looked to do the same to us this week," Jim Ziegler, the A's player/spokes-person said late Sunday night, reporting his team was down 6-0 after two innings but rallied to win the game in three extra innings

The Astros took advantage of numerous Kewaskum miscues in the second when three walks, two hits and six errors led to six Astro runs off the starter, Ziegler,

The A's struggled at the plate early against Andy Steffen, but finally broke though with a single run in the top of the fifth.

With two outs, Jake Panzer worked his way aboard with a walk, fouling off numerous pitches in the process. He would later score on a rundown to plate their first run.

It was Panzer who came to the rescue on the mound one inning later. With the bases loaded and one out, Panzer came in to relieve Ziegler and got a pair of strikeouts to stop the Astro scoring threat.

Kewaskum threatened in the sixth, getting two aboard, but lineouts by Nick Whitty and Adam Sarauer ended the inning.

Once again in the seventh, the A's had two base runners, but consecutive flyouts ended this opportunity, and the score was still 6-1 in the Astros' favor.

Things finally started going Kewaskum's way in the eighth. Jason Strobel led off with a double to left and advanced to third on Dan Shea's single. A wild pitch allowed Shea to move into scoring position, then Whitty delivered a two-run double to cut the lead to 6-3. Whitty would later score, making the

All-star pitcher Cory Tjader took over mound duties for the A's in the ninth and tossed a scoreless bottom of the eighth.

The A's had to score in the ninth, or the game was over. The first two men up, Jon Olla and Austin Saraurer, gave the team hope with a walk and a single to center, and Steve Ketter moved them both up a base with his perfect sacrifice bunt. Then Strobel ripped a single up the center, scoring both runners and putting the score at 6-6.

Shea followed with a walk, so again there were two runners on, but a runner was thrown out trying to steal third, and a strikeout ended the inning.

Neither team got much going in the 10th or 11th innings, but the fireworks started in the top of the 12th when Whitty drew a one-out walk and Adan Sarauer smacked a single through the right side Then Tiader dropped a single just out of the reach o the third baseman down the left-field line to load the Olla laced a single to left to drive in the go-ahead run, and Austin Sarauer came through with anothe single, making the score 8-6. Ketter's clutch single drove in two more runs, puttin the A's ahead 10-6.

Hustisford didn't go down without a fight. They loaded the bases with two outs in their last at-bats but after a single added two runs, Tjader got a ground out to end the game and give him his fifth win of the

Whitty helps A's maintain perfect mark in RR

By Judy Harlow Statesman Correspondent

Nick Whitty has certainly proved himself as a valuable member of the Kewaskum Athletics home talent baseball

Not only is Whitty a for-Campbellsport standout, a good fielder and clutch hitter, but he can pitch as well. He proved that last Wednesday when he went all nine innings and struck out nine in leading the A's to a 7-2 victory over the host Horicon just two.

The game was a Rock River League makeup game, which was originally rained out earlier this season. With the win, the A's improved to a perfect 10-0 in the RR, and it helped them retain their hold on first place in the standings, one game ahead of Brownsville.

"(Whitty) was making his first start on the mound this year," according to player/ spokesperson Jim Ziegler, who reported his teammate scattered eight hits and walked

Once again, Kewaskum got off to a good start, with leadoff man Jon Olla reaching first on a error and then stealing second base. Austin Sarauer followed with an RBI single to plate Olla for the first run, and Sarauer scampered all the way to third on the play, later scoring on Steve Ketter's sac fly.

In the top of the third, the A's put up four more runs on the scoreboard, and Olla was again the igniter of the rally, leading off the inning with a double to left. With one out, Ketter drove him in via a single, and after Jason Strobel walked and Dan Shea reached on an error, the bases were loaded for Adam Sarauer, who promptly ripped the first pitch for a single up to middle to score two more runs.

Ty Schill got into the act when he singled home Shea, giving Kewaskum a 6-0 advantage, which was more than enough for Whitty, who gave

Geidel traveling around state honing golfing skills

By Judy Harlow Statesman Correspondent

So what has Ethan Geidel been up to since his appearance in the 2008 WIAA Division 2 State Golf Tournament in early June?

The Kewaskum High senior-to-be has been playing more golf, competing in the PGA of Wisconsin's Junior Tour, preparing to make a run at a third straight MVP title in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference Tournament.

Most recently, Geidel golfed in the annual PGA Junior Championships at Yahara Hills Golf Course East, firing scores of 80 and 76 to finish in a nine-way tie for 66th place in the rugged competition.

Geidel was 12-over-par in the two-day competition, which concluded on July 1.

Geidel struggled a bit in his first nine of the final round, firing a 40, but he came back nicely with a 36, which included a birdie three on the final hole.

The winner of the tournament for boys 16-18 was Max Hosking of Madison, who carded rounds of 70 and 64 in the event for a 134 total and a two-stroke victory over Cody Strong of Madison (66-70).

Right after the high school season concluded, Geigel played in the Junior Tour meet held at Brandybrook, shooting an 81, which was good for Less than a week later, Geidel was at the Pine Hills Country Club in Sheboygan for another tour event. In this one, he fired an 82, putting him in 19th spot.

And at Beloit CC on June

27, Geidel posted a score of 74, 3-over-par, to finish in a tie for 11th.

The round didn't start out off all that well, as Geidel came in with a seven on the first hold, but he battled back to reach 40 for the front side, then used three birdies on the back for an excellent 34 and

All-Star team will include seven A's

By Judy Harlow

Considering their fine record (21-3) this season and all the impressive numbers they are putting up, it was no surprise the Kewaskum A's have seven players on the Rock River League All-Star

Information on squad was released late last week. The A's, who are a perfect 10-0 in RR action, will have two starters, two pitchers and three reserves on the North sqaud that will play this coming Sunday, July 12, in Rubicon.

The A's two starters are center fielder Jason Strobel and shortstop Austin Sarauer. Strobel is leading the league in home runs with four. He also has 14 RBIs for the year.

Sarauer has been wielding a hot bat for the A's, batting a glossy .444 with 16 hits in 36 trips to the plate in RF

Kewaskum's pitchers high in the balloting are Jim Ziegler and Cory Tjader Ziegler is currently sporting a perfect 5-0 mark with an impressive 1.38 ERA against league teams, while Tjader is 2-0, with one save and a sparkling 1.80 ERA.

Backups from the A's squad include Dan Shea, Steve Ketter and Jon Olla. Shea will back up at third base, bringing a .412 batting average with 14 RBIs into the game. Ketter and Olla both made the team as reserve outfielders. They are sporting respective averages of .303 and .343.

The game will be played Sunday at 2 p.m.

WIAA rule changes

By Pat Neumuth Statesman Sports Editor

patrick@kewaskumstatesman.com

At the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association annual summer meeting the WIAA Board of Control approved several recommendations that will impact schools athletics in the Kewaskum high school athletic director Jason Piittmann said most rule changes happen at a spring meeting, but some rules must go to the Board of Control and that is the reason for the summer meeting.

The first set of changes pertains to basketball. Teams will be allowed in the 2009-10 season to schedule up to 22 games if all of the games are scheduled in Wisconsin or bordering states. If a school wants to go further away for a game they are allowed to play 20 games. The board has cut down the number of practices from five to three before the team's first scrimmage. Piittmann said it was mainly the Milwaukee schools with national recognition that opposed the rule change.

Coming up in the 2008-09 season, basketball coaches are recommended to attend seeding meeting for the playoffs. Failure to attend the meeting will result in a loss of the coach's box in the first game. The WIAA have altered the method for determining divisions for the playoffs. The largest 116 schools will be placed in division one, the next 116 are in division two, the next 128 will be division three and the rest will be in division four.

The softball season will have a schedule change effective in 2010. The WIAA's change moves the softball season one week later than the current schedule. This moves the State Tournament back a week to June 17-19.

"After this last spring, the softball rule makes a lot of sense as wet as things were," said Piittmann. "I talked about it with a WIAA executive staff member and the concern there was the later you go, it's harder for schools with the fact school is out of session and trying to get fans and administrators to be present at state tournament games are more difficult."

Piittmann said this new change would overall make it better to play because of the weather. He said most school's season will be over during the school schedule.

The rules change to wrestling, but only at the junior varsity level. This rule change gives the JV the chance to have eight multiple and six dual meets. Multiple schools are allowed at all dual meets too. Piittmann said this rule does not effect Kewaskum's wrestling program.

"JV we will run as many duals as the varsity, pretty much," Pitt-mann said. "We usually leave an empty date or two on the tournament side because we have not had real big numbers. There are some kids that one weekend they are a JV tournament wrestler and Tuesday they are a varsity dual meet

The WIAA changed some medical and sportsmanship rules. First, participants in any sport will not be able to compete the same day they received a fluid intravenously. The sportsmanship rule just requires schools administration to meet with the WIAA Executive Staff if the school is cited for multiple sportsmanship offenses. A ban of all artificial noisemakers at high school events was passed as well.

Bauer wins gold at Badger State Games

State Games held on Saturday, June 28 at Watertown High School scored a first place victory and took home a gold medal.

Bauer will be a second grader at Kewaskum Elementary School this fall. He has been a member of the Kewaskum Indians Wrestling Club since its inception and has wrestled exceptionally well during the past two seasons.

This was the first time Bauer was exposed to wrestlers from around the state. Wrestling at 50-52 pounds in the K-2 grade category, his first match was against Tyler Olson from Eric Bauer wrestling in his first Badger Rinelander. Olson took Bauer down for a two point lead at the end of the first period. After a scoreless second period, Eric managed a reversal and near fall points to defeat Olson by an eight to four decision.

> The second round Bauer matched up against Cole Ramos of Kenosha. Ramos got caught in a cow catcher move and Bauer pinned him in 19 seconds > Bauer's final match of the day pitted him against Hanna Phillips from Pewaukee. Bauer used a single leg take down and cradle to pin Phillips in 12 seconds.

PAT'S PERSPECTIVE

I like to C.C. this from the Brewers

July 7, 2008 will go down in Brewers history as the day they decided to finally make a push for the playoffs. The Brewers getting the big Cy Young winning southpaw C. C. Sabathia proves to the state of Wisconsin they are committed to the city of Milwau-

Getting a premiere pitcher like Sabathia is what the doctor ordered for the Brewers. Pitching wins championships. I would say the Brewers are the scariest team to meet if they make it to the playoffs. Two pitchers that can dominate on the hill in the playoffs are essential for a World Series run.

I'm just a little shocked the Brewers got such a good player. I figured the Brewers if they even tried to get in the trade market that they would not make this large of a splash. Baseball experts are already saying this is the biggest deal of the year.

The Brewers are not my favorite team, but I root for them. It's hard not to root for them after seeing 23 years of mediocre baseball. The last time the Crew made it to the playoffs was 1982. I was born in 1985.

Don't let Sabathia's 6-8 record fool you. He had a horrible April losing four out of five starts in that month. Sabathia has a ERA of 3.83 and leads the majors with 123 strikeouts. Not to mention, he is 6'7" 290 pounds and 27-years-old. He has pitched in the AL his entire career, but he has a 12-6 record with a 3.74 ERA in 30 career starts against NL teams. The AL is a better league from top to bottom and I can only see his stats go up in the NL.

The Cleveland Indians in return got outfielder Matt LaPorta, pitchers Zach Jackson and Rob Bryson, plus a player to be named later. LaPorta was the big name the Brewers had to let go. LaPorta has the power to hit 35 homeruns in the majors, but the Crew is already set in the outfield for some years to come.

Sabathia is a good pitcher, but he is reportedly a better teammate and person. He has never had any character issues and this is in a time where all professional athletes lives are under a microscope. I have read that he is a joy to have in the clubhouse. ESPN.com has also quoted some of Sabathia's friends saying he just wants to win and does not just go to the team that throws the big money at him because he is already rich.

This trade may give Ben Sheets the incentive to stick around Milwaukee for a while. Sheets and Sabathia's contracts are up at the end of the year. I think the Brewers have a legitimate chance to win a World Series with this core group of players. I'm not guaranteeing anything. I will believe it when I see the Brewers just make the playoffs, let alone win a World Series

Ryan Braun, Prince Fielder, Corey Hart, Rickie Weeks and J.J. Hardy are a good core of offense to build from. Keeping Sheets and Sabathia would be a good foundation and the backbone of the team. It is not going to be easy to keep everyone, but it can

The Brewers are reportedly not done with the trade market. They have been reportedly interested in picking up some help in the bullpen with a couple of more arms.

But this trade is a landmark deal in Brewers history. I'm convinced the Brewers are trying to get better. This sudden rise needs to continue and the only way that will happen is if they are able to re-sign their core guys

Another non-conference loss

patrick@kewaskumstatesman.com

There were no fireworks the day after Independence Day at Kiwanis Park from the Kewaskum High School baseball team's bats. The Indians had only three hits in their 4-0 loss to Nicolet High School.

"It's really a 1-0 ballgame," Indians head baseball coach Doug Gonring said. "They earned the first run, but the other three were unearned."

Gonring was unhappier with the inconsistency at the plate. He said you can't win unless you score a run. The Indians offenses consisted of a Mike Gutjahr single in the first to right field and Cody Seibel singles in the fourth and sixth inning.

'We got to score runs. Obviously, we've had the problem the whole year," Gonring said. "Our M-O is that we don't hit. We haven't hit consistently all year."

Gutjahr said Nicolet pitchers Nino Iannello and Sam Kohnke threw hard and had good breaking balls. He said most of the pitchers in conference usually don't throw it was hard as these guys.

The Indians started off the game rocky on defense. Nicolet's Brian Huntsinger walked and stole second to lead off the game. Two batters later, Huntsinger scored from second by way of a Ben Knight single. Knight stole second and then moved to third with the next batter Pat Collis' single. Indian pitcher Nick Olla struck out the next batter, but walked the bases loaded with two outs. Olla produced a ground out fielders' choice to escape

Kewaskum's defense stepped up to produce three innings of 1-2-3 baseball.

The Indians threatened to score in the fourth. Olla and Gutjahr struck out to begin the inning. Seibel connected on his first of two singles to put a runner on base. Nick Ebert and Jordan Petrin walked to load the bases with two outs. Cody Nuernberg ripped a grounder, but it was right at Nicolet shortstop Brandon Zall to end the Nicolet added another run in the fifth. They also added two in the seventh because of errors. Ben Butler committed an error that would have gotten the team out of the inning and Bo Seibel committed another error to score the runs. Tom Appleby scored from third and Huntsinger came from second for the other run, as Sal Maniscalco reached on the error. Pitcher John Holt picked off Maniscalco at first to end the inning.

The Indians fell in order in the bottom of the seventh to end the game.

Olla pitched four innings giving up one earned run off of two hits, four walks and three strikeouts. Petrin, Ebert and Holt all pitched one inning in relief. Olla is now 1-1 for the season.

The Indians are 12-2 in the EWC, but have a terrible 1-6 non-conference record.

We see different teams and sometimes we see better competition than what we are usually against," Gutjahr said about non-conference games.

Gonring is good friends with Nicolet's head coach Dick Sykes and said the team team will play for seasons to come. Gonring said Nicolet was ranked earlier in the season and playing them every year will make Kewaskum better.

Gutjahr is optimistic that the team can repeat as conference champs, but he said the hitting needs to improve.

Errors doom Indians in loss to Falcons

By Pat Neumuth Statesman Sports Editor patrick@kewaskumstatesman.com

Serious miscues for the Kewaskum High School baseball team led to Sheboygan Falls taking the 3-2 victory over the Indians.

"We pick-off a guy, we end up missing with an error. We have two outs and boot a ball at third," said Head Coach Doug Gonring. "There was four errors in a matter of two innings that cost us the ball game."

The fifth inning was the start of the downfall Gonring mentioned. With a runner on first and second with two outs, Sheboygan Fall's Clayton Thimmesch was stealing third. Catcher Nick Olla made a good throw down the line, but third baseman Cody Seibel miss played it and Thimmesch scored because of the throw. Thimmesch reached on an error by shortstop Ben Butler earlier in the inning. This run tied the game at two.

The other crucial error happened in the seventh inning. Pitcher John Holt fought back from a 3-0 count to strikeout the first Falcon batter. Then, he walked Thimmesch to put a runner on first. Before the next pitch, he made a great pick-off to first base and Thimmesch caught, but first baseman Jordan Petrin threw the ball high and over Butler's head at second and Thimmesch advanced to third. Next up, Travis Christensen drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to center field.

The Falcons doubled to center and the Indians intentionally walked a batter before Holt struck out Tyler Collins to end the inning.

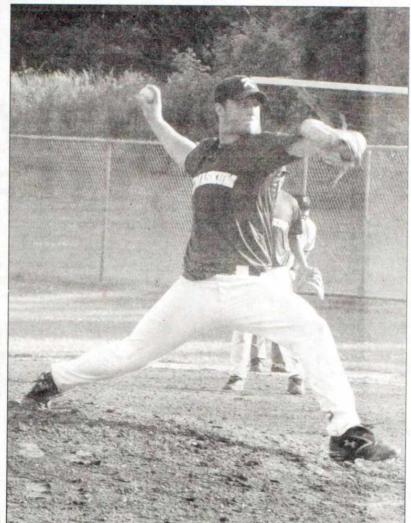

Olla said Holt seemed a little tired in the seventh. He said Holt's velocity was there he just was hitting his spots and had to fight back in counts.

The Indians threatened to come back in the bottom of the seventh. Petrin led off the seventh with a double that looked like was over the fence when it hit the bat. Olla tried moving the runner over, but popped a bunt attempt in the air for the first out. Next, Mike Gutjahr walked. Seibel ripped a shot to left, but it was right at the left fielder for the second out. Nick Ebert fouled out to the first baseman to end the game.

The Indians surrendered the first run of the game in the first. Olla tied it up in the third with a line drive home run to left center. He hit the shot on a 0-2 count.

"I just wanted to get out in front of it and not pull my shoulders," Olla said about the home run. "I've been popping up to right. I just wanted to swing level and get in front of the ball."

Butler put the Indians ahead 2-1 in the fourth. Olla stole second as Butler was on first. Sheboygan Falls' second baseman Justin Laack missed the tag on Olla and Butler alertly ran home.

Gonring was still unsatisfied with the team's hitting woes. The Indians increased the hitting production this game to nine hits, but Gonring said the team could not string the hits together and could not get hits when guys were in scoring position.

The field conditions started off a little sloppy. The infield looked like mud to start the game, but seemed to dry up fine in the fourth inning. Gonring said he and some guys on the time worked on getting the infield in playing condition at 1:30 p.m. for the 5:30 p.m. start.

The Indians still have a shot for a share of the conference title. They are two games back from New Holstein and they play them at New Holstein Friday in a doubleheader.
