Pesch squeaks out a win, no change to town board

Town of Kewaskum resident Scott Wollner accepts a ballot from poll worker Debbie Butzlaff on Tuesday. Spring elections were held across the state. Wollner's wife, Caroline, and son, Ray can be seen checking in with poll worker Jane Gerhartz. Electors chose incumbent Supreme Court Justice Shirley Abrahamson for the bench and Tony Evers to succeed Elizabeth Burmaster as Superintendent of Wisconsin Schools. Election coverage in the town of Wayne and Scott can be found inside this edition as well.

By 12 votes according to unofficial results, the Village of Kewaskum kept its president Tuesday. Incumbents reigned in the Town of Kewaskum as newcomer Glenn Goodearle was defeated.

Andy Pesch beat out Trustee Kevin Scheunemann 306-294. Pesch was appointed president last year after Matt Heiser resigned the position to interview for the village administrator job.

Pesch had served for 12 years on the board before winning his first election as president.

"I didn't put out any campaigning at all. Kevin put out quite a bit," he said.

Pesch said the race does not change how he works with Scheunemann on the board.

"Not for me. I don't know about Kevin, but not for me," he said.

Pesch is pleased residents had to choose their president this time.

"I was glad to see people had a choice. The last few years, I don't know how many, the village president always ran unopposed," he said.

Pesch said major issues facing the village include paying off the $8 million tax incremental finance district and completing the village's new sewer plant.

One trustee seat changes as Derek Peterson did not seek re-election. Plan Commission member Jim Hovland joins the board as he received 408 votes. Incumbents Tom Piwoni (423 votes) and Norman Kufahl (406 retained their seats. There were 17 write-in votes.

"The board needs to work together looking at economic development, working with the town of Kewaskum on issues as well as looking what the citizens in the village like to see, too," Hovland said. "When you think economic development, you think of the TIF district and other areas, too, that need to be looked at."

Hovland said he ran for the board to help improve quality of life in the village. Hovland used to be a community resource development educator at the UW-Extension in Fond du Lac County before retiring two years ago.

Incumbent supervisors Allen Hron and Daniel Schmidt easily beat out challenger Goodearle for two

Amerling to play for Point

Kewaskum High School gridder Zach Amerling, will again take to the field in fall. Plans of him playing for UW-Steven Point have been confirmed by Pointers' Head Coach John Miech.

Zach Amerling

The WR/CB Amerling was a football first team all-conference player in 2008. He also made the WFLA All-Region team. Academically, he has achieved high honor roll status.

"Zach has worked hard to give himself an opportunity to play in college. Coach Journell, who recruited him for UWSP, was impressed by his quickness, speed, and good hands," stated Head Football Coach Jason Piittmann.

The Pointers were 2008 Wisconsin Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Football Champions, finished the regular season with a 9-2 record and ranked ninth in the country, and advanced to play in the 2008 NCAA Division III playoffs.

Amerling is the son of Scott and Tracy Amerling of Kewaskum.

Roads, Library, Municipal Code water tower bath discussed by VB

By Mitch Maersch
For the Statesman

The Kewaskum Village Board took action on an array of items during their meeting, Monday, April 6. Trustees approved one road project instead of two, a new chapter in the municipal code, a bid for the library remodeling project and hiring a private company to clean a village water tower.

Once street project a go, the other one on hold

The Hillside water main project will be done this year, but Habeck Street's storm sewer work will have to wait.

The Village Board approved doing the $201,441 worth of work on Hillside and voted to push back an estimated $93,627.10 of work on Habeck Street until next year due to funding issues.

To complete both projects, about $40,000 would have to be pulled from the street budget's restricted fund, normally used for emergencies like during last snow season to cover additional plowing.

The board didn't want to do that this time.

The $40,000 shortfall came from advice of the village's auditor, which said half the cost of the asphalt work should be paid for by the street department instead of the water department.

Public Works Director Jerry Gilles said the $93,000 would drop to about $81,000 thanks to engineering savings. He would have liked both projects to be done so engineering work isn't wasted and because the village got a good price on asphalt at $49 per ton, $10 to $20 less than expected.

The board unanimously agreed to do the Hillside work, citing its urgency given eight water main breaks since the mid-1990s, and voted 6-1 to push back the Habeck Street project. Derek Peterson voted against delaying the project.

Municipal code to get new chapter

The Village Board on Monday informally directed staff to add a new chapter to the municipal code to cover planned unit developments (PUDs).

The code does not address PUDs, an issue which arose during the "great garbage debate of 2008," said Village Administrator Mathew Heiser.

Staff has since examined how to address PUDs in the code, per board direction.

"It's a bit daunting," Heiser said of the task.

He said up to a dozen chapters of the code would need updating, a lengthy and costly process. The board agreed creating a new chapter to address PUDs would be easier to do and easier to comprehend.

Library Board gets OK to approve bid

The Village Board on Monday unanimously approved allowing the Library Board to authorize a bid for its remodeling project.

The library wants to remodel a portion of its 3,500 square foot interior to create more room for technology and a larger children's area. The project is slated to cost about $75,000, said Library Director Steev Baker.

Most of the project will be paid for through a gift from the late Wayland Tassar. The village kicked in $10,000, a required match to what the Library Board spends itself.

Last year, people checked out 68,770 materials from the library, an all-time record.

Private company to clean water tower

The Village Board on Monday approved the cleaning of the water tower's exterior be done by Lane Tank Co. Inc. for $3,900.

The village had looked into the new fire truck doing the work after its arrival in June, but decided against it.

"For $3,900, there's a tremendous amount of liability if anything went wrong," said Village Administrator Matt Heiser.

He said two to three people would be 100 feet off the ground, the cleaning chemical going through the truck is not what the truck is designed for, and private property surrounds the tower.

"Just plain not feasible," said Fire Chief Mark Groeschel.

The board approved Lane Tank of Mosinee to do the work 6-1. Derek Peterson voted against it to save $3,900.

"I'm willing to live with a dirty tower," he said.

Village woman charged with child neglect

Woman leaves 2, 1 year-olds to drink wine with friend

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman.com

KEWASKUM- A 21-year-old woman from the village has been charged with child neglect after she left her children home alone so she could visit a friend's home. A neighbor heard the child crying late and called police who found the child alone.

Barbara J. Bingen was charged in Washington County Circuit Court with one count of child neglect after an incident on Tuesday, February 10, 2009 where a neighbor in the 600 block of Main Street heard Bingen's two-year-old child screaming for her mother.

A Kewaskum Police Officer was dispatched to the scene at 10:04 p.m. for a two-year-old child reported at home alone. The neighbor told police he was home, watching television and could hear the girl downstairs screaming. After the screaming continued he went opened his door to check on the girl and found her in a stairwell. The girl became frightened of he and his wife. The wife then searched a laundry area and Bingen's apartment.

The wife's son told police he believed he saw Bingen leaving the downstairs apartment and five minutes later the girl was heard crying.

Another Kewaskum Police Officer arrived to find another one-year-old child asleep in a crib at Bingen's apartment.

A Kewaskum Police Officer, still at the apartment called Bingen who told the officer she was at home. Yet another police officer observed Bingen driving near the intersection of Railroad and Main Streets. He stopped her and took her into custody.

The father of the children, James Bingen was believed to be incarcerated, so the children were then transferred to an area foster home.

During an interview with police, Bingen stated she left the apartment at 11 p.m. but later recanted and stated she left at 9:30 p.m. She explained to police she was in the village drinking wine at a friend's home. She stated she planned to return home that evening.

Bingen posted bail after her arrest. She was to make her initial appearance on Monday, April 6. She did not appear and a warrant was issued for her arrest.

Hron, a town supervisor the past three years, owned and operated Allen Hron Jewelers in West Bend for 35 years before retiring. He hopes the town can maintain its rural environment and wants to encourage farming, complete road projects and continue brushing and tree trimming in road right-of-way and clean up some cemeteries.

Goodearle had served as alderman in West Bend before running for town supervisor.

Sterns request second CUP from town

Donald Stern has requested a revised Conditional Use Permit from Town of Kewaskum officials. The request was made as the town filed a lawsuit in Washington County Circuit Court to clean up the property on East Moraine Drive.

The town is asking a judge for a judgement to allow the town to come on to the Stern property and remove items they and town code considers a nuisance. According to court documents, the suit was filed on March 31 and gave the Sterns 20 days to respond to the court.

Stern indicates he wishes to operate an auto salvage yard at the address. Stern's last permit was denied by the town board.

Town Clerk Nancy Boden indicated the town received the Stern's application on March 4. However the permit fee remains unpaid, if it stays that way, the town will not place it on their April agenda.

An erosion and storm water management plan has also not been received. The Sterns did however pay for a site plan review.

Call fire call update

In last week's edition, we reported The Boltonville Fire Department was summoned to Call of the Wild Bar and Grill in the Town of Kewaskum.

After the famous Kewaskum rumor mill got cranking, we were asked to stipulate that an explosion was ruled out. The owner of the business was burning boxes outside the business in a burn barrel.

There were no injuries and the fire was contained to the burn barrel.

Kriewaldt unseats Kuehn, Klemme keeps chair, Schulties, Samann are supervisors in Wayne

By Andrew Kuehl

Statesman Publisher
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

TOWN of WAYNE- A bit of a shake-up was the end result from voters in the Spring Election Tuesday. Town government will see some new faces but keep some old.

The biggest upset saw Julie Kriewaldt defeating Chris Kuehn for the clerk position 255-165. Kuehn edged past Kriewaldt two years ago.

"I was surprised and pleased that I won," Kriewaldt stated Wednesday morning.

Kriewaldt indicated her daughter and husband went to the town hall after the polls closed to see the results. She thought her daughter was kidding when she provided the results.

"I think at first it will be a learning curve, I'm looking at some training and I have some clerks who have offered to help me. There are things I would like to do, first is learning the whole job and getting that under my belt," Kriewaldt indicated.

On giving the office another try, Kriewaldt stated she had people who asked her to give it another shot, "that sealed the deal," she stated.

Kuehn served as clerk for several terms and was a town supervisor before he was clerk.

Carl Klemme survived his first election as chairman of the town albeit getting a challenge from Leander Herriges, who served as chairman a number of years ago, but lost his seat in the election two years ago. Klemme soundly carried the vote 305-199.

Former Washington County Sheriff Robert "Bob" Schulties will be back into politics after receiving 301 votes for one of two open supervisor seats. Michael Samann will return to the board after receiving 179 votes.

Samann was appointed to replace Klemme when he was appointed Chairman last year.

Art Filber received 111 votes while Nicholas Hesprich received 94, both unsuccessful.

Running unopposed for treasurer, Gerald "Poncho" Schulz received 382 votes.

Brockhaus family connected to St. John Church

NEW FANE- Karl Fredrich Edward Brockhaus was born in 1850 in Altenflies, Germany. He came to the United States in 1865 with his parents and eight siblings. On December 29, 1865, his father, Christian Fredrich Brockhause, bought the property across the street from the St. John Church in New Fane. They were very active in the church.

In November of 1870, a special meeting was held by the congregation to discuss the building of a new church. They had outgrown the log one. Karl Brockhaus was picked to build the church as he had been trained as a stone mason in Germany. All the members of the church helped with the hauling of the stones and the building. The church was completed and dedicated in 1871.

Karl also built a stone house for his parents and family, which by that time consisted of 11 children.

In November of 1879, Karl married Bertha Alberine Wilhamine Buegess and moved to Marion, Wisconsin, where they farmed and raised four children. One of their children became a Lutheran minister. His name was Paul.

Frederich Brockhaus, brother of Karl, bought the farm from his father in 1887 and on January 17, 1889, married Maria Fick. As time went on, Frederich expanded the house and added five more bedrooms and a great room to accommodate his growing family and have additional space for his father, sister, Yetta, and brother, Albert.

In 1902 a new minister arrived, Rev. H. Ohldag. his household furnishings were delayed so the Brockhaus family took them in. Their family consisted of three adults and three children. They lived in the Brockhaus home for two or three weeks.

In 1907, this happened again with the arrival of Rev. Gudekunst and his family of seven.

Frederich Brockhaus died of a stroke in September of 1904, leaving his pregnant wife and four daughters. His wife, Maria Fick Brockhaus, stayed very active in the church. Most prominently in the Ladies Aid. She died in 1938.

Wilbr Kleinke bought the farm from the estate and continued work with the church. His mother was Amanda Brockhaus, one of the four daughters of Frederich and Maria.

St. John Lutheran Church of New Fane is celebrating their 150th anniversary this year.

Reysen upsets in Scott race for constable, Jung retains chair

By Andrew Kuehl

Statesman Publisher
andrew@kewaskumstatesman

TOWN of SCOTT- Two late write-in campaigns and a challenge for constable brought out town voters this past Tuesday. Electors voiced a change in their constable and kept their chairman in his seat.

Incumbent Steve Richter was defeated by 41 votes after newcomer Chris Reysen garnered 241 votes.

Incumbent town chairman Steve Jung held on to his seat no problem despite challenges from former town chairman Larry Martin and former supervisor Cheryl Scholz. Jung received 276 votes, Martin 176 and Scholz 36.

Mural planned for County BBBS

WEST BEND- A member of St. Frances Cabrini Parish's Boy Scout troop has begun work on a project to be considered for the honor of becoming an Eagle Scout. The project, once completed will feature a mural on the back of the office of Big Brothers Big Sisters of Washington County.

The past months have seen Aaron Dréws, working closely with Mary Gamerding, Executive Director of Big Brothers Big Sisters (BBBS) of Washington County. The two are working together with local artist Ted Conde to produce the mural.

BBBS of Washington County pairs children with adults across the nation who serve as mentors to the youth. The BBBS building is located in downtown West Bend.

The three have created a vision for a mural on the back of the BBBS building, facing the Milwaukee River. The mural is expected to portray the message of the organization, as well as brighten up the atmosphere of the riverwalk.

While specific designs for the mural are still in progress, it is expected to incorporate the artwork of Little Brothers and Little Sisters. Dréws is sure that the mural will benefit the environment of the riverwalk, as well as that of the entire community.

Dréws explained the project will require a certain amount of funds. He is asking businesses and individuals to consider donating to help this cause.

Any donations for supplies or services to help with the mural will be extremely welcome. For more information please call Aaron Dréws at (262) 306-0992 or (262) 353-6412, or email at aarondrews@hotmail.com.

Update your Easter ham

(Family Features) With Easter right around the corner, families are looking for affordable choices for their holiday meal. According to a survey conducted by the National Pork Board, about 70 percent of Americans serve ham for their holiday dinner. This treasured holiday centerpiece is an affordable choice for the Easter table that won't break the bank.

While ham is traditional and affordable, it's also versatile. It's simple to contemporize classic ham, adding a little zing with on-trend recipes filled with spicy, fruity ingredients.

"While ham is delicious on its own, you can easily pair it with so many flavors," says Pamela Johnson, director of consumer communications for the National Pork Board. "The tang or sweetness of glazes, sauces and chutneys is a sure-fire way to bring flair to your holiday feast."

According to Mintel's trend research, "exotic" flavors and fruits are making a big impact in 2009. This Easter, try a delicious Baked Ham with Sweet 'n' Sour Plum Sauce. This savory dish blends the Asian spices with sweet honey and brown sugar. A glaze made with flavorful ingredients such as purple plums results in an incredibly appetizing slice-of-ham heaven.

When the feast is over, this recipe will leave you with plenty of leftover ham, perfect for including in the next day's breakfast, lunch or dinner - yet another reason this recipe is guaranteed to make your Easter meal a success! Visit TheOtherWhiteMeat.com for more than 100 additional ham recipes, videos and free downloadable brochures.

The Museum of Wisconsin Art is proud to announce a photography exhibition by Madison's Tom Jones which opened on April 1st and is on exhibit until April 26th. Photographer Tom Jones draws on history's representation of Native people in photographs and how Native culture is represented in advertising and pop culture.

By examining historical photographs, taken by people outside the Native culture, Tom hopes to shed new light on old assumptions and stereotypes about Native Americans.

Jones examines the nostalgic romanticizing of Native American culture and how actors portray themselves as Native American with "knowledge" gleaned from historic photos. By reversing the role and placing a Ho-Chunk voice behind the camera and a non-native as the subject, Tom hopes "The presence of a Ho-Chunk photographing non Indians dressing as Native Americans, will take on a whole new meaning within the history of Photography and Ethnography."

"I draw on these historic representations of Native Americans and the way that our material culture is represented in popular culture today," says Jones. "By turning the camera lens back on the Rendezvous sub-culture I am examining the nostalgic romanticizing of Native Americans through photographs. I do not come with preconceived judgments of these re-enactors, but I am interested in how they position and present themselves dressed as Indians by way of these historical images. There has been a long history of these assumptions and perceptions of our culture and by reversing these roles I intend to put in an active Ho Chunk voice within this dialogue. The presence of a Ho-Chunk photographing non-Indians, dressing as Native Americans, will take on a new meaning within the history of Photography and Ethnography. I have chosen to concentrate on photographing this project only within the original homeland of my tribe, the Ho Chunk Nation, which encompasses Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota."

Jones received both his Masters in Photography and his Masters in Museum Studies from Columbia College, Chicago, IL in 2005. In addition Jones has received many awards - most recently a 2007 University of Wisconsin-Madison Graduate Research Grant. In 2009 he will be exhibiting at the Gertrude Herbert Institute of Art, Augusta, GA and at the Mashantucket Pequot in Connecticut. Tom currently is an Assistant Professor of Photography at UW-Madison.

The Museum of Wisconsin Art is located in downtown West Bend at 300 South 6th Avenue. Public hours are Wednesday - Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. and Sunday 1:00 - 4:30 p.m. For more information, call 262-334-9638 or visit website atwww.wisconsinart.org.

KSD receives generous donation of paper

Students at Farmington Elementary School get creative with a generous paper donation from West Bend Transit.

Statesman Photos by Amber Donath usually incorporated.

By Amber Donath
Statesman Correspondent

Have you ever thought about where some of the extra supplies for schools and classrooms in the Kewaskum School District (KSD) come from? Books and basic supplies are often provided, but in order for most classrooms to be successful and engaging, other creative activities are

These enrichment activities have been easier to provide our students this year, thanks in large part to a huge donation of paper from West Bend Transit. Ben Schloemer, West Bend Transit owner, had a semi-trailer full of paper that was no longer wanted because the boxes were damaged...but not the paper itself.

Luckily he asked some of his employees if they knew of a use for the paper. John Stowers whose son is a third grade student at Farmington Elementary School said that he would like to see if West Bend Transit could donate the paper to KSD. After a series of phone calls, arrangements were made for delivery of the paper.

As a result, students in each of the five district schools have benefited from this generous donation. The paper has been used in classrooms to create posters, concert decorations, protective table covers, after school activities and much more.

Thank you West Bend Transit for your generous donation. Hundreds of students have been provided an opportunity for enrichment learning activities and even some added fun in school.

Growing Great in first grade at KES

Mrs. Kasten's students are the Kewaskum Elementary School garden caretakers - planting, weeding, watering and watching the plants near the bell tower. So when Mrs. Carol Zoerb, the district's gifted and talented coordinator, and Mrs. Kasten started brainstorming about a spring project to celebrate Youth Art Month, it seemed only natural that bringing a garden inside was the only way to go. With the help of parent volunteers and KHS senior Emily Huf, the first grade computer pod area was transformed into a garden paradise - "Growing Great in 1st Grade."

Wheeler Tile and Home Improvements located in Fredonia, donated a 6x6 tile for each first grader. The students then designed their own garden creations from flowers, animals and bugs. The colorful tiles will hang permanently on the first grade wall.

Mrs. Drost, Mrs. Hanschke and Mrs. Kasten are thrilled with the results of their spring project and hope you will stop and visit their indoor garden when you're at KES.

KHS students fill the bus for Goodwill

BY: KATIE OSCAR
Special to The Statesman

The economy may be in a recession, but the students of KHS sense of generosity is at an all time high. Last week, students collected gently used clothes to donate to those in need. The school-wide clothing drive was sponsored by the Class of 2011. The goal was to fill an entire school bus with clothes, which would then be taken to Goodwill in West Bend.

On Friday, March 27, Mrs. Horbas accompanied ten sophomores on the bus to Goodwill. When the sophomores got onto the bus, they all asked, "Where will we sit?" Nearly every seat on the bus was full. After everyone squeezed into the few empty seats, the bus was driven to West Bend Elevator, where it was weighed. The bus weighed in at 21,160 pounds. Then it proceeded to the Goodwill store in West Bend, where the sophomores unloaded the bus. The employees were excited saying that this large donation would help them greatly.

On the way back to KHS from Goodwill, I interviewed Mrs. Horbas and the students about the clothing drive. "A senior, Jessica Forbes, suggested to me, she found out that Goodwill was in need of clothes; they had more people coming in and less were donating," Mrs. Horbas told me when I asked what sparked the idea to do this drive.

The students felt it would have a positive impact on the community. It will give needy families clothes and show people that teens can promote good causes, and are able to help out during times of crisis.

We headed back to West Bend Elevator to weigh the bus without the clothes. Smiles abounded as Mrs. Horbas read the ending weight. 19,960 pounds, that meant that the students collected 1,200 pounds of clothes to donate to Goodwill. Everyone clapped, one couldn't help but feel the positive energy that filled the bus all the way back to school.

Making paper

The students at Farmington Elementary School in Mrs. Gruett and Mrs. Dehler second grade classes created paper pulp bowls this week in art. The second graders learned about how paper is made and how different artists use recycled materials to create new pieces of art. It was a very messy but fun project

Little folks keep their smiles bright

Jessica Jacak, one of Dr. VanEss's dental hygienists recently visited the Little Folks School House to help teach the children about good dental health. The presentation began with a video entitled "Magic Brushing with Dudley and DeeDee." Jessica introduced and demonstrated the tools that a dentist would use. She taught the little folks about proper brushing and flossing techniques, and plaque and cavities. Jessica also talked to the little folks about losing their baby teeth. The staff at Little Folks would like to thank Dr. VanEss's office for faithfully visiting each year to teach the children the importance of good dental hygiene.

Modern Woodmen contest winners

Students from KES recently gained the opportunity to demonstrate their public speaking skills and take pride in personal accomplishments. On April 1, the 5th graders took part in a speech contest sponsored by Modern Woodmen of America. Students competing in the contest shared their presentations on this year's topic: A person who has touched many lives. ## Put Your Heart into Living Healthier

Recent surveys revealed most women believe they are not at risk for developing heart disease. The truth is all women are at risk.

Do you have...

- A pant size of greater than 14?
- Blood pressure greater than 130/85?
- A Body Mass Index greater than 24?
- A sedentary lifestyle?
- A waist measuring more than 35"?
- Cholesterol higher than 200?
- Unhealthy eating habits?
- A smoking habit?

If you answered yes to any of these questions or don't know the answer, you too may be at risk for heart disease. But there are things you can do to lower that risk. By increasing your physical activity level, you can actually decrease your blood pressure 4 to 9 points. And, decreasing your total cholesterol by as little as 10% may result in a 30% decrease in your risk for developing cardiovascular disease.

For more information on how to live heart healthy, or to take an online Heart Health Risk Assessment to understand your personal risk, please call Aurora's Women's Heart Care at 1-888-388-5881 or visit www.Aurora.org/MyHeart.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of LESTER STROBEL, who passed away five years ago, April 14, 2004:

Those we love don't go away
They walk beside us every day
Unseen, unheard, but always near
Still loved, still missed and very dear

So much has changed
since you've been gone,
Through ups and downs
our lives move on,
But as time rolls by
one thing remains true,
We'll always have wonderful memories of you

Sadly missed by his family

On Wisconsin Outdoors

With the Dick Ellic Ernarte

A Helping Hand.... Hunters sometimes the only path to youth outdoors

Outdoor classrooms like this goose banding session near Green Bay allow youths to interact with wildlife on a very personal basis

More than 20 years ago, my old truck rattled into a driveway in Waukesha Wisconsin in the wee hours. I couldn't tell you the exact time, but I know that there wasn't a hint of morning orange on the October sky as a tall, skinny 15 year old with hair hanging past the shoulders made his way from the house to take a place in the front seat.

Matt didn't know me. I worked with his mother and she had asked if there was a chance that I could take her son with no male influence in his life hunting. I was 29 years old, no gray, 6-foot-one and dressed in camo clothes from head to foot in the black of night. A certain tenseness hung under the dome light as Matt tossed away any opportunity of escape by closing the door behind him.

"Hi Matt," I said offering my hand, my name and one little suggestion before we headed on to the northern unit of the Kettle Moraine State Forest. "It's going to be cold out there this morning. Do you have any boots?"

Matt looked down at the floorboards and his holey, high-top tennis shoes. He looked back at me and shook his head. His baptism to the world of Wisconsin bowhunting for deer would have to be done with cold feet.

The truck traveled north toward Kewaskum, like so many beginnings to so many hunts, time spent in quiet conversation and planning.

Because Matt wasn't ready to place an arrow to ensure a quick kill, and had never entered any woods in the predawn black, he would stick with me and we would take a ground stand until the cold intruded. Then we would catch breakfast, practice with his bow on the farmer's tractor road, and take a stand again in late afternoon.

Just off the deer trail moving inside the barbed wire fence running with the wood edge, I showed Matt how to kick leaves away so that he wouldn't make noise while adjusting position. With a quiet word not to become discouraged if we didn't see deer, in fact that we probably wouldn't see deer during this first vigil, we settled in to watch our lighten. It wasn't 15 minutes after legal shooting hours that the two fawns came.

And came and came. The small deer moved with the fence, motherless and clueless that danger stood on the ground ahead. Matt was on the inside, toward the fawns and I whispered not to move. They came on still, periodically alternating between a feeding posture and the instinctive snap-up of the head to "catch" any predator that might be lurking near. In minutes, the closest fawn stood literally three feet from Matt, closer than I have been to any wild deer before or since in 40 years in the field, stomping its front feet, twisting its head and "demanding" that this thing before it move.

After an eternity, the two fawns bounded off just 15 yards, stopped, looked back, and slowly burned away with the morning fog into a lifelong memory. Matt turned to me. "I...I...I...can't stop shaking," he whispered.

Matt and I have traveled some roads since, good and bad. I helped him buy his first rifle, watched him gut his first buck and many more. We dragged out critters together. And Matt told a brother standing in front of a cabin stove that he "would wait until the deer was dead a little while longer" before partaking in eggs and tenderloin for breakfast.

With an inner toughness even as a kid that was born in Matt, he stuck with me on a day-long track of a deer that ended up as a banner story on the cover of Deer & Deer Hunting magazine. Lori and I moved in with him for one year when he needed someone at age 16, and we found out in a hurry that there is a reason that parents stay up worrying into the early hours and clash with their kids. And I wouldn't trade the memories for anything.

April 7th, I have a few hour ride to Mississippi River country and a date in Grant County. I will meet Miles, a 12 year old boy who has completed his hunter's safety course and wants to hunt but who has no male role model in his life. He's saving for his first shotgun, his mother said. It's evident that Pam is a good mother but can't do it all. She is looking forward to someone who knows the woods and this game we all love stepping in, if just for a while, now and then.

Miles and I have one of my shotguns to sight-in. We have landowners to say hello to. We're hoping for permission to hunt during the State-wide Youth Turkey Hunt April 11 and 12, and we'll have a gift of appreciation to leave when we find it. We have calls to try, birds to locate, and some professional hanging-out to do together. It will be a few hour introduction and hopefully, years of hunting and fishing when we can make it happen. But it has to start with one day.

The two-day spring youth turkey hunt, initiated in 2007, occurs each year during the weekend preceding the opening of the regular season. The Youth Hunt, according to DNR releases, "allows opportunity for close one-on-one mentoring of future hunters in a relaxed atmosphere without competition for hunting spots from regular season hunters."

"Study after study has shown that it takes a hunter to make a hunter," said DNR Upland Wildlife Ecologist Scott Hull. "With all the activities available today, getting out with a son, a daughter, a niece, a nephew or a family friend can mean a lot. Spending time with a youth, passing on your skills and passion for your sport can be a big step toward nurturing a lifelong commitment to conservation of our wildlife resources."

May I add, your involvement can be a life-saver, period and if you're just lucky, that street some day will run both ways. Matt now, has been my friend for more than two decades. He is a vice-president of a Waukesha Bank. He is married with a toddler and a baby. And when I need financial advice, I land in a chair across the desk from Matt in a Waukesha office. Those people in the lobby have no idea what kind of memories are spilling out of the door, with my friend's laughter the exclamation point an affirmation that I did at least one thing very right in my life.

There are no special application procedures for the youth turkey hunt. Anyone interested can find additional details in the spring turkey hunting regulations, on the DNR website, or by calling Scott Hull at 608-267-7861 or Sharon Fandel at 608-261-8458.

Just a few more questions, please, just for you. What are you doing this weekend? What are you doing these upcoming hunting and fishing seasons? And what young boy or girl do you know, without an outdoor mentor anywhere in site? Oh, and one more.

What are you going to do about it?

The Fond du lac County Snowmobile Association organized its annual county snowmobile ride Saturday, January 17. The NKM Crooked Trails Snowmobile Club in Dundee hosted this year's ride.

Forty-two machines from around the county met at the Roadhouse in Dundee for what would be a 70-mile trip through the southern part of Fond du lac County.

The ride went north to Dotyville and then south through Eden to Waucousta where it stopped for an hour break. From there they rode to the Sandpiper Inn on Lake Bernice for a nice sit down lunch. The ride then circled east through New Fane and up through the State Park back to Dundee.

The FDL County Association's goals this year include organizing the youth in the County into groups. As older members in local clubs retire from the sport, it is thought to be essential that today's youth get involved to carry the sport into the future.

The Association was happy to see a group of young people participating in the ride and riding together.

All trails in FDL County are marked, groomed and maintained by local snowmobile clubs. Without the club members volunteering their time to maintain the trails and the local landowners (who allow the use of their land for trails) there would be no riding.

The future of the sport depends on you. To join a local club and get involved with others who enjoy your sport, contact Ray Sippel at (920) 533-4279 for information.

Clapper, jumpers have good outings at Oshkosh meet

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

OSHKOSH— Buoyed by the efforts of the high jumpers and pole vaulter Alissa Clapper, the Kewaskum High School girls track team placed 11th in the annual Titan Invitational held at the Kolf Field House on the UW-Oshkosh campus last Tuesday evening, March 31.

The Indians finished with 18.5 points in the highly competitive small school division. Perennial powerhouse Catholic Memorial of Waukesha captured the team title after amassing 56 points, a single point ahead of Seymour.

Two Rivers, like Kewaskum a member of the Eastern Wisconsin Conference, finished third with 36.5 points, then came Omro and Freedom with 34 and 33 points, respectively, to round out the top five.

Clapper cleared 9 feet, 3 inches (9-3) to finish second in the vaulting event. This was her best effort of the season and came within three inches of her personal best 9-6, which is the current KHS record, also which coach Jerry Gosa is convinced she will eclipse by the end of the season.

"She was the two-time defending champion," KHS coach Jerry Gosa said. "She was hoping to make it three, but the girl from New Holstein (Alayna Muldoon) has really improved and really did well." Muldoon cleared 10-0 before missing.

In assessing his team's strengths in a preseason interview, Gosa emphatically stated the high jump would be a big point producer for the Indians, and it was in this meet, with senior Jessie Liniewski going 4-10 to take third place and junior Candace Beine making 4-8 to finish in a six-way tie for the fourth spot.

"That's her best of the season," Gosa said about Liniewski's effort, adding, Beine "has been struggling, but that's not unusual early in the season" and competing indoors.

Kewaskum got its other points in the 4x200-meter relay where Hailey Gregoriou, Liniewski, Nichole Kison and newcomer Anna Butler combined for a time of 1 minute, 56 and .97 (1:56.97) to place seventh.

A year ago, three of those young ladies helped to turn in a time of 1:59.65 to finish 12th at Oshkosh, then went on to win the Wisconsin Division 2 title with a swift 1:45.25.

"The girls have high expectations," Gosa said about his relay runners, fully confident they will win many races this season when they go outdoors.

When Megan Thornton aggravating an injury in her foot in the open 400, Gosa had to go with a substitute in the 4x400 relay, and the KHS foursome was far back in the pack with a 4:46.61. The coach also expects that group to be good outdoors.

Beine had a pretty good day in the triple jump, winding up in the 11th spot with a day's-best 30-05.

"It's nice to see her in the triple jump," Gosa said, pleased when his athletes compete in more than one event.

Gosa received a call early last week that there was a spot left in a JV invitational at Sheboygan North, and he jumped at the chance to get his younger athletes in a meet.

"Some of the kids showed us some things," Gosa said, referring especially to the performances of freshman sprinter Eric Perkins. "He can run. He won the 55-meter dash (7.28) and he was second in the 200 (26.57).

Gosa also noted Perkins anchored the winning 4x160 relay, combining with Lucas Kopeschka, T.J. Schlice and Joey Wollner.

Schlice also cleared 9-6 in his first pole vaulting competition.

For the girls, Valerie Hedlund placed second in the 55 hurdles; Britany Wagner was fourth in the 55-dash and the foursome of Natalie Bandy, Tess Bandy, Whitney Bastian and Megan Ringwell won the 6-lap relay.

The points from the boys and girls combined to determine teams places. Kewaskum scored 75 points to finish fifth of the eight teams, including Plymouth, Sheboygan and a Green Bay team.

The Indians are slated to compete in the WTF (Wisconsin Track Federation) State Indoor Meet at UW-Whitewater on Saturday. Only selected Indians will go to this competition, which typically draws the best track athletes in southeastern Wisconsin.

Chosen all-stars Paulus, Fellenz seek funds for game

Senior lineman Fred Fellenz and senior linebacker Joe Paulus will represent Kewaskum High School and the football program, as they participate in the Wisconsin Football Coaches Association (WFCA) All-Star game. The game will be played July 18 at UW-Oshkosh's Titan Stadium.

Fellenz and Paulus' WFCA honorable mention all-state honors made them eligible for this season's All-Star game. They will join others from across the state.

This season's All-Star game (formerly called the Shrine Bowl) is now split up into two games. This year divisions one through three will play in one game and divisions four through seven will be in another. Fellenz and Paulus will be playing for the North All-Stars.

All players chosen for the All-Star game are asked to raise $500 to play. All proceeds from the players goes to Children's Hospital. Last year, Children's Hospital accepted over $125,000 and that was with only one game. Over the past three years, $220,000 has been raised for the organization by the football games and players.

Paulus and Fellenz are seeking sponsors for the charity. Those interested will have their name listed in the All-Star game program. Businesses, can also participate by placing an ad in the program viewed by over 10,000 people. Paulus can be reached at (262) 483-9069; Fellenz at (262) 353-1814.

KHS Athletic Director Jason Piittmann said he was unsure if any Kewaskum player has represented the school in previous All-Stars games. He said they have only brought guys to the 7-on-7 game that coincides the All-Star game. Paulus said he is glad he can enjoy the game with a teammate.

Both guys still are working out to stay in good football shape. Fellenz has been in the Kewaskum fitness center almost every day after school.

Fred Fellenz and Joe Paulus

"It's a great honor for our program," Piittmann said about two players making the All-Star game. "These two young men are very deserving football players, very deserving young men. Their success personally, is also a reflection of our team and our program for the last few years. They know that they wouldn't be getting the accolades that they have been getting if it wasn't for the other 10 guys on the side of the ball with them."

Lady Indians getting closer to win after three

Conference foes Panthers, Falcons dominate in two on-the-road matches

By Andrew Kuehl

andrew@kewaskumstatesman.com

So far, the Lady Indians Soccer team has played more practice outside than they've games outside then they've practice on their field and after their first three games, it shows more time is needed on the field. The ladies saw tough games on the road against Plymouth (7-2) and Sheboygan Falls (8-1) and came home this week to tie a non-conference game against Living Word (2-2).

Hitting the grass on their first Eastern Wisconsin Conference (EWC) match of the season against the Plymouth Panthers on Friday, April 3, the girls quickly took control, scoring after only 35 seconds of play. Jess Smallish found the net with help from the teams wounding legs Christine Bohn. Bohn would eventually find the net herself on a break away before the half was over.

During a quiet second half head coach Piwoni said her girls played better but could not find the net. She also admitted defensive pressure was lacking as evidenced by the seven Panther goals.

Kewaskum would try for four more goals with no luck. Plymouth tried for 10 more, but goalie Paige Lightner refused to let them find the net.

The Panthers are looking for their 10th straight EWC title this season.

Traveling to Sheboygan Falls on Monday, April 6, to play in wicked conditions, Piwoni stated the start of the game saw all the action. "The first 15 minutes was solid," she stated.

Smallish again scored, giving the ladies their lone point. The Indians tried for six more however.

"They beat us in the middle," Piwoni explained.

After the half, the defense tightened up, but it was Lightner doing most of the work with 14 saves off the Falcons' 22 shots.

On Tuesday, April 7, the ladies hosted Living Word Lutheran, who plays in the Midwest Classic, for a non-conference match. While playing conditions are never ideal at home for the soccer teams, a chilling wind and swampy field hindered play for both teams.

The Timberwolves' Maggie Barnes scored the game's first goal. Bohn shortly followed suit bringing the game to a tie. She would score once again, this time carrying the ball from mid-field nearly unobstructed.

The second half saw the Indians ahead 2-1, however, a quick shot by Allegra Meymbourg tied the match. Bohn tried another shot but did not connect.

The end of the match saw the Indians with 10 shots; Bohn with five, Jess and Sam Smallish with two a piece and Elissa Miller with one.

Passing was the struggle for the ladies in this match as well as not spacing themselves on the field. Piwoni said the team needs a little more time learning how to play with each other. She thought the team put things together good, but the weather and field conditions did not allow the girls to produce the speed they needed.

"I was disappointed we could not capitalize on some shots," Piwoni concluded.

The ladies here spring break and will play next in the Oostburg-Veldboom Memorial Tournament at Oostburg High School on Saturday, April 18.

The Indians' midfield man Amber Struck, right, hustles to steer the ball away from a Living Word player during Tuesday's windy match. Hustle was on Struck's to-do-list as she kept the ball in play for a good part of Tuesday's match against Living Word. After being dominated by two EWC powerhouses on the road, the Lady Indians came home to play a non-conference tie game.
