Miller's Furniture receives state commendation for 100 years in business

By Mitch Maersch

mitch@kewaskumstatesman.com

KEWASKUM- In a time when many businesses are cutting or closing, one of Kewaskum's oldest is celebrating a milestone anniversary.

Miller's Furniture turns 100 years old this year with no signs of slowing down. It actually has survived the recession well.

The State Legislature honored the store this spring with a commendation for hitting the century mark.

"We actually I think are up over last year," said co-owner Derek Peterson. "What's helped us out is focusing on things people are interested in. We've created a number of loyal customers over the years."

Peterson owns the store with his wife, Cheryl (Miller) and are the fourth generation of the Miller family to own the store.

Cheryl joined the business in 1995 and Derek, a certified public accountant, in 1999. The couple bought the store in 2001.

Miller's in the last several years has switched its product line almost exclusively to Amish Mennonite.

"We've been very successful in that area and we feel that we can offer something different than a lot of other

Committee formed to explore construction of community building

KEWASKUM- Kewaskum's chapter of the Boys and Girls Club of Washington County is looking to partner with the community in hopes of creating a larger space for the fast-growing chapter. Community members met to form an exploratory committee to talk about ideas for a community center that would include a home for the chapter.

Kewaskum's chapter started three years ago after the district began early release Wednesdays and quickly grew to three days per week after school and to 200 members. The club now runs five days a week during the school year and in summer runs in conjunction with summer school programming.

The need for a larger space for the Boys and Girls Club of Kewaskum comes at a time when the community as a whole needs additional space as well for its various civic organizations. Increased usage of the popular Municipal Building Annex is noted as well, being used close to 95% of the time it is available for rental.

Boys and Girls Club wishes to expand

It is hoped that with the community coming together everyone could create one community based facility for usage by the Boys and Girls Club, civic groups and members of the community that already use the Municipal Building Annex.

The facility that the Village and Township of Jackson built a few years ago is being used as a model.

The Jackson chapter, as well as the community's park and recreation department and their senior citizens' group, use that facility. It is within walking distance from Jackson Elementary School. In that situation, the Boys and Girls Club is a tenant in the building.

Jay Fisher, Executive Director of The Boys and Girls Club of Washington County describes the situation as perfect and sees it as a great avenue to expand the Kewaskum Chapter if the community gets behind it.

"We're happy to facilitate and act as a conduit, but just like when we started the Kewaskum Chapter, the community as a whole must be behind it in the planning stages as well as financially," Fisher explained.

The community already has shown its support in starting the Kewaskum's chapter, which cost $69,000 to start, said Fisher.

With its own site, the chapter expects to double in membership, said Tom Fischer, former elementary school principal and Boys and Girls Club Board member.

"We definitely feel the need is there and we can only serve more people with a separate building," he

Pool death ruled accidental

Kewaskum Police Chief Richard Knoebel stated Thursday that an autopsy performed on last week's drowning victim in the Kiwanis Park Pool was indeed ruled an accidental drowning.

Alexander Becker, 20, of Kewaskum was diving in 12 feet of water on Sunday, June 20 at the park pool. Lifeguards stated Becker dove into the water landing on his stomach, came up from the water once, went back down and never resurfaced.

Village Awards Proclamations

said. Middle school programming is targeted as a major need since Kewaskum's programming only runs from first through fifth grade. The club also isn't currently open on days school is closed.

Inside it's portion of the building the chapter wants the facility to have a gym, computer lab and multi-purpose rooms like the West Bend club's facility that was expanded several years ago. The chapter would then share those facilities with various groups in the community.

The committee is also quick to point out that just because the location is in the village doesn't mean it is exclusively for village residents. The center is expected to be open to residents in the surrounding townships of Kewaskum, Farmington, Scott and Wayne.

It's a facility the Kewaskum community needs and a cause it could get behind, Fischer said.

"To move any further we will need a lot of community support," he said.

'Surf Shack' playhouse tickets for sale

The custom-built "surf shack" playhouse that has been traveling around Kewaskum recently is a fundraising project for Peace United Church of Christ. Raffle tickets are available to win this playhouse for $5 each or 5/$20 at the church, or call 262-626-4011 or e-mail peace.ucc@verizon.net.

The winner will be selected August 1st at the church's 12th Annual PIGNIC in Kewaskum's Kiwanis Park, but you do not have to be present to win. Delivery of the playhouse is included within 30 miles of Kewaskum.

The playhouse was built by church members Emil Ra-deztsky and Howard Zemlicka, and the tropical exterior was painted by members Mary Steinhardt and Laura Kirkegaard. The brightly colored playhouse features windows that open, a dutch front door, and a custom "surf-board". The porch and spacious interior offer play space in rain or shine. Any child or grandchild would love to have this surf shack in their backyard.

Raffle tickets are also available at the Ogi Vet Clinic, Van Ess Dental Office and Gateway Café, in addition to Peace Church. Proceeds from the playhouse raffle and PIGNIC event support outreach and mission projects in Kewaskum, Washington County and around the world.

Many other fun activities will be part of the PIGNIC, including great food and homemade desserts, Kewaskum Big Band music, a bounce house and games for the kids, projects for families, a hand-stitched quilt raffle, a pig race contest and many bucket raffles. A worship service starts at 9:30 a.m. followed by a roast pork and chicken dinner from 11:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

Everyone in the community is invited to the 12th Annual PIGNIC!

4-H'ers celebrate June Dairy Month

June is dairy month and the Kettle Country Kids helped celebrate by doing a dairy themed window. Jessica Cotter, Julia Cotter, Sami Donath, Sydney Donath, Kaitlyn Miller and Max Stowers designed and decorated a window at LK Heating. Their idea was "Have you Herd?, Dairy is Great!" Three cows discussed who's team they were on, Team Edward or Team Jacob. Of course the smartest cow picked Team Dairy! A big thank you goes to Dave Donath, owner of LK Heating, for letting the club use his store front window.

Miller's Furniture

furniture stores right now," Derek Peterson said.

Like customization. Amish don't need to adjust an entire assembly line to change the hardware, finish or size of a piece of furniture.

"It's as close to custom cabinetry without going that route," Peterson said.

Oddly enough, Amish excel at making products they will never use, like custom-designed entertainment centers for big-screen TVs, DVD players and all the trimmings.

Peterson at first thought it would be difficult for the Amish to keep up with trends given they don't own electronics. He soon learned it was the opposite case.

Peterson gets most of the store's products from Amish in Shipshewana in LaGrange County in Indiana, and works with two Amish companies in Ohio and one in Pennsylvania. Shipping isn't a problem.

"We don't have to worry about freight issues because we pick it up ourselves," he said.

He and Cheryl make the 285-mile, six-hour trip to Shipshewana one to two times per month.

They work with one finisher and nearly 50 workshops in Northeast Indiana. Each specializes in a certain type of furniture - bedroom sets, dining room sets, etc. Collections are coordinated as they use the same wood and are sent to the same finishing shop.

Peterson said he has had "virtually had no problems as far as quality which is astounding."

Another element that sets Miller's apart is that Peterson is on a first-name basis with 95 percent of the owners of the lines the store carries.

"It's very key. If there's a situation where somebody needs something quick or there's a problem or somebody has a question about customization, I can resolve whatever I need to resolve. It's a real partnership," he said.

Peterson also works with two Amish companies in Ohio and one in Pennsylvania.

After furniture reaches the Kewaskum store, it typically travels anywhere within a 50-mile radius. Most customers come from Washington, Ozaukee and Fond du Lac counties, Peterson said.

The latest hot products are from a new line from Yutz Woodworking in Ohio called British Harbor. The unique beds have a storage compartment under the foot area and are a little smaller, allowing them to fit into smaller rooms and while creating more walking room. Peterson said the pieces also have attractive prices.

"We can't keep it on our floor right now because it's so popular," he said. "The price point has also brought in a number of younger customers which we traditionally have not seen."

The latest Tempur-Pedic mattress, Tempur-Cloud Supreme, is another hot seller. It has a different, softer feel, a good price and one more advantage.

"Tempur-pedic does wonderful job of marketing their product," Peterson said.

Miller's has also found success with the Smith Bros. line from Berne, Ind., a Swiss-Amish area.

"Many don't know we carry it but we do," Peterson said.

While Amish furniture is more expensive than other lines, Peterson said "the quality speaks for itself." Customers have become cautious and savvy on high-ticket purchases and know Miller's products will become family heirlooms.

"I think now they're seeing the value. When times are tight and you're spending dollars I think you want to make sure you're putting in a good investment," he said.

Bedroom sets, he said, should last at least 25 years.

"Ours are built for a lifetime," he said.

The housing boom several years ago didn't bring in as much business as people might think, however. Peterson said furniture purchases lag two years behind housing purchases. People put their money into buying homes but not furnishing them.

Peterson now hopes to capitalize on some relatively empty homes, "if we do things right and show them the value we can provide."

He said the electronics industry - big screen TVs, etc. - does a better job at marketing than the industry that makes products that holds those items. "Not many people who can list 10 furniture manufacturers," Peterson said.

Through direct mail advertisements targeting its customer base and the oldest technique around, people have gotten to know Miller's.

"We believe that word of mouth and past customers are basically our best sources. And it seems to have worked," Peterson said.

It could work for years to come. The Peterson's children, ages 10 and 8, have already talked about someday running the store and are already lining up business relationships. Miller's finisher in Indiana has five children, the oldest two the same age as his, and have become friends. They often write letters and see each other once a year. "I can see it 20 years from now, 10 years from now, they'll start working with each other the way I'm working with their parents now," Peterson said.

HISTORY OF MILLER'S

In 1910 Edward F. and Margaret Miller purchased Frank Zwaschka's furniture and undertaking (funeral) business on Fond du Lac Avenue which was started in 1875. At that time it was a relatively small store with living quarters, a casket display room upstairs, a furniture showroom below, and a barn in the back of the property which housed horses, a wagon, buggies, sleigh and hearse.

Edward and Margaret raised three sons, Fred, Joseph and Edward E ("Pat") in the family business. In 1928, Pat took over management of the business and his younger brothers soon joined the firm as well.

In 1933 a home on Forest Avenue was purchased from Joseph Schmidt. The home was converted into a funeral home and the funeral business was transferred that location (where it still exists today), making Miller's one of the first freestanding funeral homes in Washington County. Throughout the years the structure has gone through a number of additions.

In 1939, Pat had an addition of his own design built onto the rear of the furniture store.

Tragedy struck only three years later, when on January 2, 1942, the furniture store was destroyed by fire. Only the newly built addition remained standing. Edward F and his wife, who lived on the second floor, fled by means of a second story window in the middle of the night to survive the flames.

Due to wartime restrictions Pat could not rebuild immediately, so Miller's Furniture was temporarily relocated to the building presently occupied by TanTalyzer Tanning Studio on Main Street. It took three years for the restrictions to cease.

The present building was completed on the site of the destroyed store at the corner of Forest and Fond du Lac Avenues. In 1974 another addition was made, which provided warehouse space in the rear and more than doubled their display area.

Over the years many of Pat's children became involved in the business. Mary Ellen, Joan, Isabelle and Clare were interior decorators. Theodore was bookkeeper and Edward J (Pat's oldest son), became vice-president, and was being groomed to found the third generation of Miller's Furniture.

In 1974 Pat purchased land north of the store that had been Perschbacher Implement, in order to expand the furniture display area once again. This final addition increased the showroom to its current size of approximately 20,000 square feet. Shortly after the expansion, Pat transferred the management of Miller's to his son, Edward J. Miller, and thus began Miller's third generation.

In 1985 Miller's Furniture and Funeral Home were divided into two separate entities. Miller's Furniture was purchased by Edward J. and the funeral home business was purchased by Fred Miller (Pat's brother). Upon Fred's retirement, Larry and Louise Martin purchased the funeral business and continue to own and operate it under Miller Funeral Home.

Edward J's daughter, Cheryl (Miller) Peterson began at Miller's Furniture in 1995. In 1997, Edward J also expanded the floor-covering department by adding a full-time flooring manager who brought with him his thirty-plus years of flooring experience.

Cheryl and her husband Derek Peterson became the fourth generation of the Miller family to own the furniture business when they purchased it in 2001 from Edward J. and Sharron Miller.

Soerens says good bye after almost four decades

Ken Soerens stands next to the Kewaskum Indian at the middle school. The principal the last 13 years retired this year after nearly four decades in education.

By Mitch Maersch

mitch@kewaskumstatesman.com

Call Ken Soerens education's ultimate utility player.

All three jobs Soerens held came with a couple of days notice.

So, too, did his departure from the Kewaskum School District.

Soerens retired this year after 37 in education, 36 in Kewaskum. He taught high school social studies for 23 years and was middle school principal the last 13.

He will be missed by many. "He was one of the guys on the committee that hired me. He always seemed to be in my corner and helped me out a lot," said Dave Rockhill, high school social studies teacher who was mentored by Soerens.

Rockhill said Soerens has a dry sense of humor and could relate to kids well.

"He ran a pretty tight ship but the kids really seemed to like him," he said.

Soerens had planned on returning next year, but at the end of school Soerens realized his tank was empty. He didn't have what educators in their mid-30s did.

"It just came up to you so quickly," he said.

It made for an easy decision.

"When I can't do the job I want to do, I'm going to get out. I'm not going to do it for the money," he said.

Doing education at all was never in the master plan. The Cedar Grove native's mother died when he was 4 or 5. His father worked in the Kohler foundry and brought him to work when Soerens was a senior in high school for the 100th anniversary of the company in order to motivate him to attend college.

Soerens majored in accounting at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater. Then came a "D" in calculus, triggering a new path.

Soerens always loved history and he loved coaching and his high school teachers, still calling them Mr. and Mrs. His history teacher, in fact, told him he would someday become a teacher. Soerens told him he was crazy.

The switch to history and education was made.

"I can't believe I get paid to teach and learn about history," Soerens said. The American Revolution and Civil War are his favorite topics.

The story eerily mirrors another of Kewaskum's retirees, this year, high school and middle school choir director Dave Bertelsen, who received a "D" in calculus at UW-Madison before switching to music and education.

Soerens landed a job in late August at Tri-Catholic Consolidated Schools in Fredonia in 1973. Soerens, the school's only Protestant teacher, taught social studies, physical education, art and math. The school closed after a year and Soerens went to work in a foundry in Cedar Grove. He enjoyed it so much he would have been a metallurgist had education not worked out.

A couple of days before school started, a call came from Clark Pearson, then high school principal. A social studies teacher left to be a principal in Wild Rose and Pearson had to quickly fill the position.

"I really didn't interview or compete with anybody," Soerens said.

On his first day of school, Soerens' father passed away from heart failure. Soerens wasn't sure he would ever come back, but he did.

He loved teaching, and he coached the girls' basketball team for 18 years, 16 of which produced winning seasons including one trip to the state title game. He also was an assistant football coach for eight years.

High school social studies teacher Glenn Eichstedt remembers Soerens as a colleague and assistant coach. Eichstedt took over for Soerens as head girls' basketball coach and Soerens moved to freshman coach.

"When I called timeout and asked for suggestions, I got a good variety of suggestions," he said. "Ken was great, very supportive, just the kind of guy you'd want. Never made you feel like anything but an equal basis."

When Eichstedt came to teach at Kewaskum, Soerens was the department chair. Eichstedt had already taught for 11 years but still benefitted from Soerens' expertise.

"Very helpful, always willing to give me the benefit of his experience and at the same time show great support," Eichstedt said.

Two days before school started in 1997, Pearson called again, this time as the new superintendent, bumped up from middle school principal as Kewaskum's superintendent took a job back in the military in Washington D.C. Pearson asked him to be middle school principal.

"I really didn't think I wanted to become a principal," Soerens said. "I would rather have been in the classroom with the kids."

He took the job as a trial basis for one year. And didn't leave until 13 later.

Being principal provided a whole new insight to the world of teens. They're different in the classroom compared to the hallway, cafeteria and at recess. "I could see kids in a different way," Soerens said.

The change was both physical and literal. No more talking to 6-foot-5, 230-pound high schoolers. On Soerens' first day, one girl came to him crying at lunch because she couldn't get into her locker.

After nearly four decades in education, Soerens said kids haven't really changed.

"Kids still need attention, they need love," he said. "They need that relationship with adults."

They remember those relationships. At this year's eighth-grade commencement, Soerens asked the crowd to list the last five Heisman Trophy winners, the last five Academy Award winners and a teacher who made a difference in their lives. Nobody could remember the first two; everyone could come up with the third.

If anything changed, kids are getting smarter faster, Soerens said. He struggles to help middle schoolers with math because it's what he did at the high school level.

"For you guys that are grumbling I'll put you up against an eighth-grader," he said.

Soerens remembers two laws changing that altered the high school culture: child labor laws and the drinking age moving to 21, which he supported. Some high schoolers would come to school and sleep because they held full-time jobs; others came with alcohol on their breath.

While not all students liked history in high school, Soerens said many have told him they later learned to love it. He still hears stories about his school trips to Gettysburg and Washington D.C.

At the middle school, Soerens is proud of implementing an honor level system of discipline. A forgiving computer system tracks students' infractions and erases them after a 14-day stretch. Each first and second violation earns a lunch detention within any given 14 days; each third and fourth an after-school one.

Infractions run the gamut from behavior to coming late to class to forgetting materials. This year, 57 percent of the school didn't receive one infraction and those students earned a pizza party.

"The kids know where they're at," Soerens said. "It's really teaching responsibility."

Soerens said changes like that and Superintendent Michael Krumm's initiatives like district wide silent reading, the new high school auditorium and fitness center and focus on community relations has made Kewaskum one of the best school districts in the county.

"I'm very proud to be part of the district," he said.

Soerens has four specific retirement plans: learn Spanish, play piano, work on his family tree and get a dog, though he's not sure his wife will allow that last one.

He may spend more time with his children, Holly, who teaches kindergarten in Sheboygan, and Jenny, a massage therapist at Kohler Co.

"And no, I still have not received a massage yet," he said.

He may substitute teach; he may fill in as an administrator somewhere. He may be Brett Favre, he said.

"I'm going to be fun employed. I'm going to do something I've never done before," he said and pointed to a Papa Murphy's coupon on the wall of his office. He may jump from job to job: pizza maker to starter on a golf course.

Regardless, Soerens is happy that high school principal Christine Horbas is jumping into his job at the middle school. He met with her last week to help the transition.

"With her passion for kids and her passion for changes, I think she's the right person," he said. "I'm leaving the building in good hands."

Ecology and Identification of Dragonflies and Damselflies

The Friends of the Kettle Moraine invite you to the Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit for their Summer Saturday Evening Event, "Ecology and Identification of Dragonflies and Damselflies." The program will be held on Saturday, July 10, from 7:00 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67, half mile west of Dundee. The program is free, but donations are always gratefully accepted.

If you could step back into the past to the time of the dinosaurs, you would see dragonflies with wingspans of up to six feet. Today, dragonflies still grace our summer skies, but they do not reach that extraordinary six foot wingspan. Even now they are some of our largest insects with several species growing to about six inches. These incredible creatures are as beautiful as any bird or butterfly and benefit humans by eating thousands of insect pests.

The evening presenter, Bob DuBois, a Dept. of Natural Resources community ecologist, has researched these amazing insects for many years. He will provide a peek into the fascinating lives of dragonflies and damselflies, and introduce you to some of the insects more than 110 species.

For further information or directions, please contact the staff at the Ice Age Visitor Center. They may be reached at (920) 533-8322, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

The members of the club decide which community service activities they will participate in each year. This year, in addition to the garbage pick-up, the club promoted Red Ribbon Week and educated the students at the school about the dangers of drugs. They also made bracelets and necklaces for the residents at Kettle Moraine Gardens, put on plays about being brave, responsible, and respectful for 1st and 2nd graders, and decorated the Giving Tree to help families in need in the community. 3D Club members pictured here are Melissa Hutchins, Destiny Kudelko, Paige Airaudi, Megan Dixon, Peyton Airaudi, Amanda Weyer, Marissa Zarda, Samantha Ostranger, Lily Bergeron, Megan Marx, Hannah Coman, Kyle Beth, Aly Heiser, Stephanie Schneider, Skyler Donath, and Calvin Aman

ROBERT J. BRUCKERT

Robert J. Bruckert, 64, of Pearson, and formerly of Kewaskum and Nenno areas, died with his family by his side on June 21, 2010 at the VA Hospital in Madison from kidney and heart disease.

Bob was born on Sept. 19, 1945 in Fond du Lac to Marion Bruckert Krieser.

In his teen years he helped his grandparents on their farm in Nenno. It was there that he became very close with Ginny Feucht and her family; friendships that are strong to this very day.

In Oct. 1963 Bob joined the U.S. Navy. He was stationed out of Long Beach, CA serving as a Seaman 2nd Class testing torpedoes. He was honorably discharged in 1967.

On Nov. 4, 1972, Bob and Jocelyn Fellenz were married at the Peace United Church of Christ in Kewaskum.

On Dec. 3, 1973 their first daughter Kristen was born. On April 7, 1975 their second daughter April was born. In 1994 Bob was blessed with his first grandson, Jesse. In 1998 his "princess" Nolee arrived and in 2003 his namesake Robert was born.

Bob spent many hours teaching the grandsons to fish and letting Nolee fix his hair to any style she wanted.

Bob was an over the road truck driver until 2000. He drove medical transport until 2004, retiring due to medical reasons.

Bob loved to hunt, fish, 4 wheeling and play the annual Christmas sheephead game. He was a devoted son, husband, father, brother and Buppa.

Bob is survived by his wife of 37 years, Jocelyn; his daughters, Kristen (Kevin) Drewry of Fond du Lac, and April of Elmore; his grandchildren, Jesse, Nolee and Robert Drewry and his loyal companion Sammy. He is further survived by his mother, Marion of Campbellsport; his brothers, Fritz (Kathy) Krieser, Ken (Rogene) Krieser, Tom (Marianne) Krieser, Daniel Krieser; his sister, Kathleen (Ringo) Mielke; many nieces, nephews and aunts. He is also survived by his mother-in-law, Shirley Fellenz and sisters-in-law, Karen Fellenz, Kathe (Tom) Streveler and Tracy (Bruce) Boettcher. Bob was fortunate to have some life-long friends. They include the Feucht family, Don and Char Waite, Paul Kearney, Jimmy Fellenz and family, John Warnecke and family, Tom Griep, Tim Gruel, Mike and Doug Feucht and others we may have forgotten.

He was preceded in death by his step-father, Ken Krieser; his maternal grandparents, Frank and Emma Bruckert; his father-in-law, Leander Fellenz; his godson, Jason Warnecke; a special little buddy, BJ Fickler and other friends and family.

You're right Dad---It's hard to be humble when you are PERFECT in every way.

A celebration of life will be held at a later date.

Funeral services were Friday, June 25 at the Twohig Funeral Home, Campbellsport at 8:00 p.m. with military rites following.

Visitation was Friday from 4:00 p.m. until time of services at the funeral home. In lieu of flowers, memorials are appreciated to the family or the VA Hospital in Madison.

FRANK J. BRUNI

Frank J. Bruni of West Bend died on Thursday, June 24, 2010 at his home at the age of 85. He was born on March 17, 1925 in Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada to the late Pasquale and Rosina (nee Mirabelli) Bruni.

At the age of 16, Frank started working in the ship yards in Canada. He later enlisted in the Canadian Army, serving overseas. Following his discharge, he began to work for Chicago Northwestern Railroad, which is when he moved to the United States, settling in the West Bend area.

A short time later, he entered a plumbing apprenticeship program. He worked for Ross Engineering, Zien Plumbing and various other shops.

On April 26, 1952, he was united in marriage to the love of his life, Dolores M. Lestina in Chicago, IL.

Frank was a loving husband, devoted father and proud grandpa. He often attended various events that his grandchildren participated in.

Following his retirement from Zien Plumbing in 1989, he remained active. He worked as a maintenance man for the former West Bend Hotel. Volunteering for the Full Shelf Food Pantry, Habitat for Humanity and the Habitat Resale Shop also kept him busy.

He was a member of Plumbers Local 75 for more than 50 years, and enjoyed their monthly retirement luncheons. He also was an active member and past president of the West Bend Lions Club. Their corn roasts and annual Easter egg hunt were a few of the activities Frank participated in. Because of his dedication to the club and their events, he received the Melvin Jones Fellow and was awarded the Birch-Sturm Fellowship.

Survivors include his wife Dolores; seven children, Janet (Wayne) Sharbuno, Don (Kathy), and Dave, all of West Bend, Jim of Marinette, Elizabeth (Christopher) Rucinski of Rice Lake, Eileen (Artie) Kreis of Campbellsport and Robert (Patricia) of Madison; 20 grandchildren; two step-grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; five sisters and two brothers, Theresa Bruni of St. Catherine, Ont., Mary Sisco and Anna Ward, both of Thunder Bay, Ont., Bill (Fleurette) of Kelowna, British Columbia, Julie (Gene) Milani of Winnipeg, Ont. and Emma (Allen) Toivonen and Peter (Maureen), both of Thunder Bay, Ont.; nieces, nephews, other relatives and friends.

He was preceded in death by a granddaughter, Rachel Best; a brother, Jim, and a sister, Assunta Sarlo.

Funeral services were held on Monday, June 28 at 7 p.m. at the Schmidt Funeral Home in West Bend with Deacon Mark Jansen officiating. Visitation was at the funeral home from 4 until 6:45 p.m. Monday.

A Memorial Mass of Christian Burial was held on Monday, July 5 at 11 a.m. at Holy Angels Catholic Church with burial of the cremated remains to follow in Holy Angels Cemetery.

The family has requested memorials to the Wisconsin Lions Foundation.

Over 500 students from 34 area high schools took part in the Conference. Other Kewaskum Smoke Signals members attending the workshops included Colleen Alsberg, Chris Boden, Rhonda Herriges, Ann Marie Krahn, Colleen Horner, Lisa Krahn, Connie Menger, Michelle Nigh, Anne Rosenberger, and advisor, Kevin Chambers.

The 1985 Kewaskum High School Junior Prom was held on April 20. Wade Jepsen and Leah Kupahl were elected King and Queen.

Nothing could have been a better birthday present than what KHS boys track coach Dave Drexler received on Friday at the Vanderpan Invitational held in cold Sheboygan Falls. The preliminary announcement following the meet showed Kewaskum a 98-97 loser to Plymouth in a seven-team field, but after a recount the final tally showed Kewaskum a 114-102 winner. KHS won six events with Mike Steinhardt leading the way with a pair of firsts in the 100 and 200 while placing in the high jump and third in the long jump. Gunner Schlieter doubled in the 1600 (4:41.8) and 3200 (10:24.9), while Monty Shaw and John Nowak gathered the other KHS firsts in the 400 and pole vault, respectively. Shaw also took a second in the 800.

A daughter was born to Dennis and Ardell Anderson, Kewaskum, on April 26. Sons were born to Kevin and Carolyn Darmody, Campbellsport, on April 25 and to James and Donna Johnson, Campbellsport, also on April 25.

Fourth prize in the 1985 Yarns of Yesteryear Contest was awarded to Dr. Richard G. Edwards of Kewaskum. His entry, "An Errand of Mercy," was chosen from among 666 submitted by senior citizens from all over the state. The contest is sponsored annually by the University of Wisconsin Extensions Arts, WRWA and Stanton Lee Publishers, who invite senior citizens to submit their reminiscences.

KHS Principal Leroy Kopecky has received word that Kewaskum was selected to be one of the area schools to participate in the program, "Best in the Class." WTMJ-TV, Channel Four, and General Motors are again saluting high school students from area schools with high academic achievements. This year Kewaskum's high honor students are Janet Mueller, Mike Steinhardt, Sandy Secor and Gary Butzlaff. These students and those from other schools in our area will gather at the Milwaukee County Zoo on May 11, to partake in festivities which will include a picnic lunch, personalities, award presentations and the video taping in individual and group settings of "The Best in the Class of 1985."

1. The monuments are to be placed at the southwest and northwest corners of the subject property

5. The parent parcel must be shown as a separate proposed lot on the CSM or a waiver must be obtained.

6. Description should contain ties to the adjoining (adjacent parcels, streets, etc.)

10. Update concept plan so the alternate access to the development via Trading Post Lane is eliminated as originally shown on a concept plan

Motion by Craig Garbisch to approve the request by Kewaskum Trading Post, Gary Gavin owner, for a Certified Survey Map to create 2.505 acre lot along Prospect Drive referred to as the remnant parcel contingent on the issues being met as stated by Ruckert-Mielke in the letter dated June 1, 2010, except for recommendation #10. TO THE HEART OF IT...Donating blood, aneurysm screenings vitally important

To the heart of the matter, an aneurysm on my aortic artery means surgery Thursday. Bad news, though, in this world of newspapers, sometimes means good opportunities to perhaps save other lives. Let's talk blood and aneurysms.

In addition to writing this syndicated column for two decades, three years ago I founded On Wisconsin Outdoor (OWO), a newspaper and website focusing on hunting and fishing. On occasion in this column and in every issue of OWO we ask you, the Wisconsin outdoorsman and woman, to give blood. Our "Real Men Bleed" campaign started long ago using outdoor writers and guides as spokesmen.

Today, our OWO staff regularly gives blood, my family gives, my friends give. After years of donating, the Blood Center of Wisconsin calls us when each five-week waiting period is up and we're eligible to give again. And here's a promise; they'll feed you like a bear at the bait station...with the sweet stuff... when each donation is complete.

For the first time in OWO and by complete coincidence or pure fate, I was the spokesman in the "Real Men Bleed" public service message in preparation of our July-August issue. After sending the ad to design last Monday, I traveled to St. Luke's for a routine stress test and echocardiogram. By the time I was on the road for home, the call on my cell phone came in. I was told to return immediately. They had discovered a very large aneurysm on my aorta near the heart. If it burst it meant "imminent death".

I juggled a "keep cool" message my brain was sending me so as not to increase my heart rate with the two-minute total shot of adrenalin that rocked my body. Think big buck fever times 100. But, I made it to E.R. with Lori, was checked in to the Cardiac floor, and after two days of thorough testing including CAT scan, cardiac catheterization and abdominal ultrasound, I was scheduled for surgery.

This journey has seen me travel from complete calm, like lying awake alone in a dark room at 3:00 a.m. on the cardiac floor and enjoying a vicious thunderstorm rock Milwaukee, alone with my thoughts, to an increased anxiety each time a new test neared, like the cardiac catheterization that injected dye into my heart to diagnose potentially blocked arteries. My anxiety evolved quickly to hysterics when I was prepped by a staff who greeted me with smiles and the banter of two outdoorsmen in the group who ripped on each other like trappers in a cabin after eight fingers of Jack. I told them if they did not stop it we would all experience an aneurysm burst together right there on the table. I told Lori it was such an enjoyable experience I almost wished I could do it again...almost.

The good news is that my heart is sound and healthy with no artery blockage, and no abdominal aneurysms were detected. The St. Luke's cardiac surgical team is unsurpassed and the surgeon called this a "bump in your road". The surgical results are considered a "cure" with no additional care related to cardiac disease required. In two months, I should be doing everything I ever did, like losing fish and missing pheasants.

The bad news is that it's still open heart surgery. My siblings and our children may experience aortopathy, a genetic predisposition for developing an aneurysm, or weakening in the aorta above the heart or near the abdomen. My late, great father in his eighties had an abdominal aneurysm that was successfully addressed surgically. I'm lying if I said I wasn't sometimes afraid. Overwhelmingly I am moving forward with a certain calm allowed by God, my family and more friends than I knew I had.

Let me tell you why I'm trying, sometimes unsuccessfully, to stay clear of the "why me" approach. In the elevator from the Cardiac floor, an elderly man and women talked of visiting their son, my age, who had received a new heart five weeks before. His heart was fine. But the strain on his other organs had been great due to the years of functioning with his bad heart, and he is having a difficult time recovering.

"It's so hard to watch one of your children suffer," the woman said. "I received a new heart 16 years ago. But I wish it was me in that bed instead of him. Our other son also has heart problems."

After Lori had extended our best, the man, with the deep wrinkles of eight decades etched on his face, smiled and held open a door for my family. "I was eaves-dropping," I said. "I'm sorry. I wish your family health." His thanks and continued smile told me I had better not feel too sorry for myself.

I know that four units of blood will be ready for my surgery. I appreciate it. When I give blood, it's for others. I never expected to need it myself. When you give blood this week for the first time, remember your family, your loved ones, or you, may someday need it too.

I also know that the medical experts called the discovery of this aneurysm, because I had no symptoms, a "fortuitous discovery". Pure luck is giving me an opportunity to beat a killer. If your family members have had an aneurysm, proper medical monitoring for you, your siblings and eventually your children is imperative. Certainty is growing that aneurysms are often familial, or hereditary, and so very often curable. If not addressed, and an aneurysm bursts, you're done.

I'll leave you with one intense fear. What if they give me a liberal's blood on the table to mingle with my own? What if I have a sudden urge to join PETA and release my filet-o-fish sandwich to swim again? If that's in my future... I hope it bursts.

Listen, I like you. Many readers sent letters when Taylor Rae was born, when we lost my father, when I lost Blue after 16 years of writings, if I may have made them laugh, or when I help them cry. If a reader sends a note telling me they like a column I wrote, for 20 years my response has always been the same; "Your letter meant more than the money I make". It's so true. So... health to you and your families. Long life. God bless you. And if I may be a bit selfish, God bless Lori, Taylor and me too this week.

Thanks for the ride. See you in the field.

Despite errors, Indians still lead EWC

Kiel pitcher D.J. Driscoll scores ahead of a throw home to catcher Bo Seibel from center field on a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning Tuesday. Kewaskum came back from a three-run deficit in the sixth to win, 5-4, and improve to 12-0 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference.

Coach Doug Gonring cites his baseball team's 51 errors this season as a ridiculous number that must be stopped, but nobody can fault the Indians for entertainment value this season.

Kewaskum won 11 in a row coming into Friday's game against Plymouth, two of the last three in dramatic fashion. The Indians are 18-3 overall and winning ugly but sitting pretty on top of the Eastern Wisconsin Conference at 12-0 as second place teams hover around .500.

Last Friday the Indians survived a 10-run inning, ejection, three home runs and went through three pitchers in a wild, 10-inning contest against Sheboygan Falls that carried a playoff-like atmosphere.

It became a story of a sophomore growing up and a senior staying up despite being pulled for early mistakes.

Kewaskum took a 4-0 lead in the first inning and looked to cruise as it had done in a 6-0 win at Falls on June 14. But the Indians gave up 10 in the second on six hits, four errors, two walks and one hit batter.

Falls' Cole Heili hit three-run and two-run homers into the pond, and Zach Vanengen hit a two-run shot that only cleared the regular fence as the Indians changed pitchers twice. Cody Nuernberg was thrown out of the game for pushing down the shortstop while running to third base on a wild pitch, adding to an already growing dislike between the two teams and their fans. If they were united in anything, it was their displeasure for the umpires.

The Indians chipped away while the Falcons tallied a few more runs before it was 14-11 in the bottom of the seventh.

Up stepped Kewaskum's power hitter, Brad Boegel, with 10 home runs through 18 games at that point, and two men on base. A homer would tie, but Boegel was 0-for-4 in the game.

The sophomore turned clutch.

Boegel launched a low pitch high in the air to left center that cleared the fence, tied the game and ripped momentum from the strong grasp of the road team.

"Off the bat it felt good. I didn't know if it was going to get out or not but I knew it was going to get over his head," Boegel said. "I just wanted to hit hard after not hitting the ball very good the last couple games."

"Clutch swing," Gonring said.

Work was far from over as the teams went into extra innings. Cody Seibel hadn't allowed a run since he came into the game with one out in the sixth, but got in trouble in the 10th on three walks. A pickoff throw to third sailed high, and the Falcons took a 15-14 lead.

The Indians got going in their half of the inning with a leadoff single by Boegel, a reach on an error and a bunt hit.

With the bases juiced and nobody out, Gonring called on Steve Kudek, who he pulled from third base early in the game after making a few errors. High school rules allow re-entry of players in certain situations, and Gonring told Kudek he would be needed if Kewaskum sent enough batters to the plate that inning.

The Falcons drew in their infield, but that didn't matter after Kudek's bat got in touch with the ball. The senior cracked a fly over the right fielder's head for a two-run double and game winner.

"I was just looking to make contact and score the run," Kudek said. "He gave me another chance to come into the game and win it. I just kept my head up the whole game after I got taken out and did what I had to do."

Keeping their heads up is important, as Gonring often reminds his team.

"He did a great job, kept his head up. We talked about that. I'm glad that he kept focus because at any moment in time you're needed. Re-entry at that point in time was vital," Gonring said. "I wanted his at-bat in there because maybe he could pop one. He's got that little jump in the bat once in a while."

On Tuesday, the Indians fell behind 4-1 against Kiel, a team they beat 14-4 on June 17. They finally got a rally going in the bottom of the sixth.

Two walks and a fielder's choice loaded the bases for leadoff hitter Sam Olla. He smacked a two-run single to center to cut the lead to one.

With his son, Tony, on third base, Gonring put on a squeeze. A wild pitch allowed Tony to score easily and tie the game and move Olla to third. Cody Seibel hit a sacrifice fly to center for the go-ahead run and then pitched a one-two-three seventh for the save.

"I was just trying to drive it up the middle," Olla said of his bases-loaded hit.

Another dramatic escape and another coach scratching his head about his defense, which added three more errors to its total.

"Houdini," Gonring said with a laugh. "Our inefficiencies are going to bite us sometime and I thought today was the day. We gave them four runs that are just inexcusable if you're going to be a great ball club."

"This stuff has got to stop. The simple plays have to stop," he said.

The four runs made Cody Nuernberg's pitching effort look much worse than it was. Nuernberg struck out 10 in six innings and allowed six hits while walking four. Gonring said his deep and quality pitching staff has been keeping his team in games this season.

"It's part of the game that goes completely unnoticed but it's the most important part of the game for winning. Winning is defensive baseball. You can hit 20 homers but if you don't start picking up the groundballs the other teams are going to hit enough singles to beat you," Gonring said. "If you're getting 10 strikeouts you only have to have 11 put-outs."

Players are trying to find answers to slow starts and suspect defense.

"It's just the little things that come back to bite us," Nuernberg said. "Comeback team this year. Always takes a little chewing from Doug to get us going. This team - we can go where we want to go, we've just got to get on it earlier. We can't wait until the last two innings. We've got to put in extra time off the diamond, not just at practice. We've got to have guys work on their individual positions."

"I don't know," Olla said. "I guess we just come in thinking we're just going to 10-run every team. We just need to play every game as it's Game 7 of the World Series, I guess."

On Monday, Kewaskum dominated Two Rivers, winning 12-2 in six innings. Lucas Kopeschka pitched five innings and allowed one run on six hits and two walks while whiffing eight.

Cody Seibel hit a two-run homer to right center and a three run double to right field to end the game via the 10-run mercy rule.

"Just sat back and drove it. It was kind of a high pitch. I don't know if it had the distance to go out," he said of his home run.

"Pleased with the effort," Gonring said. "They had a little jump. Cody Seibel - had two bad at-bats in his opinion and he didn't let affect himself. Years in the past it kind of took him down and it didn't take him down this time so that's a really good thing."

Kopeschka also earned praise.

"He did an excellent job, just did a fabulous, fabulous job of getting ahead," Gonring said.

In looking ahead, Kewaskum hosts Plymouth on Friday and Nicolet at noon on Saturday.
